It was held under the old Code that a purchaser at an execution sale can maintain a suit against the decree-holder for recovery of his purchase-money, where it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in property sold, and he is not entitled to the special procedure in the execution department mentioned in s. 315 (r. 93).—Munna Singh v. Gajadhar Singh, 5 A 577, F B. Followed in Kishun Lal v Muhammad Safdar Ali, 13 A 383; Gurshidawa v. Gangaya, 22 B. 783; Pachayappan v. Narayana, 11 M. 269, Hari Dayal v. Sheik Samsuddin, 5 C. C 1001: It was also held under s 315 that whether the auction-purchaser proceeded by an application under that section or by a regular suit, he was not entitled to receive back his purchase-money unless the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest at all, if the judgment-debtor had some saleable interest in the property, however small, he could not, by suit, any more than by application, obtain a refund of the purchase-money in proportion to the extent to which the judgment-debtor had no interest —Bhagwan Das v. Alla Bakhsh, 52 P R 1919; Shanto v. Nainsukh, 23 A. 355; Muhammad v. Bachcho, 27 A. 537; Surendra v Venkata, 17 M. 228 It was held under the old Code, that the purchaser was entitled to proceed by way of suit even after rateable distribution against those among whom the purchase-money was distributed; Kishen Lal v. Muhammad, 13 A. 383; Girdhar Das v. Sidheswari, 40 A. 411, 44 I. Under the present Code an auction-purchaser is not entitled—as he was under the old Code—to bring a regular suit for a return of the purchase-money in cases where the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property; Nannu v. Bhagwan Das, 39 A, 114; Ramsarup v. Dalpat, 43 A. 60: 58 I. A purchaser at a court-sale who is afterwards deprived of the property by a person claiming title paramount has no right to sue for refund of the purchase-money from the person to whom it is paid.—Ram Dayal v. Rampal, 22 O C. 42: 51 I. C 95; Lakhmi Chand v. Chaturbhurj, 65 I C 230 (39 M. 803, 39 A. 114, 36 A 529, 37 C. 67, 35 B. 29, refd to). The procedure prescribed by this rule is by summary application within a limited time. So, where, a purchaser after confirmation of sale succeeded in establishing his title to the property in a suit under s. 283, C. P Code, 1882 (r. 63), and then sued for the refund of his purchase-money. Held, that the suit was maintainable There is no warranty of title in sales under a decree of a Court.—Sumer Chand v. Wahid Husain, 3 A. L. J. 819: 6 A. W. N. 310 But see Dewaji v. Amrita Bai, 15 N. L R 140: 42 I. C. 818.

A decree-holder fraudulently caused the sale in execution of his decree of certain immoveable property belonging to a minor. The minor brought a suit to set aside the sale and obtained a decree against the purchaser The auction-purchaser then sued the decree-holder to recover his purchase-money and the costs incurred by him in defending the suit brought by the minor. Held, that he being innocent of fraud, and having purchased in the bona fide belief that the property of the minor was saleable was entitled to recover the purchase-money, but not the costs.—Makundi Lal v. Kausila, 1 A. 568 (6 N. W. P 168 distinguished).

A purchaser of an occupancy holding sold in execution of a decree obtained by the mortgagee of the property took possession of it but having been afterwards ejected therefrom by the landlords sued to recover the purchase-money with interest Held, that under the present C. P. Code, the suit was incompetent —Juranee Mahammed v. Jathi Mahammed, 22 C W. N. 760: 46 I C 783 The sale must be set aside before a purchaser can recover back his purchase-money; Balwant v. Balu, 67 I C 360 Nannu v Bhagwan, 39 A. 144: 37 I. C. 9; Banka v. Guru, 28 C W N 20, Manar Ali v Sarafuddin, 27 C. W. N.183: 70 I. C. 606; Ram Sarup v. Dalpat Rai, 43 A. 60 When the sale is set aside by reason of irregularities committed by the decree-holder, the purchaser was entitled to bring a suit for recovery of the poundage-fee and interest on the purchase-money paid —Parvathi v Govinda Swami, 39 M. 803; Najibulla v. Jainarain, 36 A 529

Where the judgment-debtor is found to have had no saleable interest the remedy of the purchaser is not limited to an application under this rule, but he can maintain a suit for refund of purchase-money even though he did not ask to set aside the auction-sale; Prasanna v. Ibrahim, 36 C. L J 205. 41 I C. 924; Asadulla v. Karam Chand, 4 Lah 334 The weight of authority however is decidedly against this view (vide the cases noted above)

" Any person to whom the money has been paid."—This includes a decree-holder who has obtained a rateable share of the sale proceeds under s 73 C. P. Code.—Kishunlal v. Muhammad, 18 A. 383.

Appeal and Revision.—An order under this rule for refund is not a decree, and no appeal therefore lies; Lingam Krishna v. Jagani Venkataswamy, 3 L. W. 105: (1916) 1 M. W. N. 109: 33 I. C. 285; but is capable of revision under s. 115, Kunhamed v. Chathu, 9 M. 487; Lingam Krishna v. Jagani Venkatasawamy, 3 L. W. 105: 33 I. C. 215.

Limitation.—Under Act. 181 of the Limitation Act, the period of limitation for an application under this rule is 3 years from the accrual of the right.—Girdhari v. Sital, 11 A 372.

A suit under s. 315 of the old Code brought by an auction-purchaser for a refund of his purchase-money was governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, and the period was 6 years from the accrual of the right.—Nilkanta v. Imamsahib, 16 M. 361; Sidheswari v. Goshain, 35 A. 410.

"With or without interest."—When a person claims more than he is entitled to the Court can refuse interest —Moulvi Abdul Hye v. Macrae, 23 W. R. 5; Nafar Chander v. Gopal Chandra, 19 C. L. J. 358. When it is proved that the purchaser has contributed to the loss he has sustained, no interest should be allowed.—Kunhi v. Ferayil, 8 M 103. While setting aside a sale the Court has power under this rule to direct the decree-holder to refund the purchase-money with interest for the period during which the decree-holder had use of the money.—Maharaja Bahadur Singh v. A. H. Forbes, 33 C. L. J 176 P. C.: 25 C W. N. 366.

Certificate to Purchaser.

94. Where a sale of immovable property has become absolute, the Court shall grant a certificate specifying the property sold and the name of the person who at the time of sale is declared to be the purchaser. Such certificate shall bear date the day on which the sale become absolute.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to the first part of s. 316 of the C. P Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The latter part of the old section has been embodied in section 65 of this Code. This rule is to be read with s 65, where all the cases bearing upon this rule have been noted.

The word "specifying" has been substituted for the word "stating" which occurred in the old Code, and the words, "such certificate shall bear date the day on which the sale became absolute," have been added These words have been added adopting the view expressed in 30 A 390. In 3 B. 433 and in 17 B 228, a contrary view was expressed

Scope of s. 316 of the C. P Code, 1882, examined in Bhowani Koer v. Mathura Prasad, 7 C L J 1.

Sale Certificate.—A sale certificate merely records an accomplished fact, and states what has been sold; it does not create title but is merely evidence of title; Basir Ali v Hafiz Nazir, 43 C 124, 129; Promatha v. Sourab Dasi, 21 C. W. N. 1011: 47 C. 1108: 58 I C. 327.

"The Court shall grant a certificate."—The provisions of this rule are mandatory, and a Court has no power to refuse a sale certificate to an auction-purchaser; Baikunth v. Narinda Sundari, 3 Pat. L W. 76 1 Pat. L. J. 446: 38 I C. 576.

Construction of Sale Certificate.—The certificate of sale is not conclusive as to the property sold at execution sale. In order to determine the title of the purchaser, it is to be seen what was actually offered for sale and bid for What was offered for sale is to be ascertained by the decree, by the order of the Court and the sale proclamation and if the order has been carried out and the property sold accordingly, that sale and nothing else must be taken to have been confirmed, whatever words of description referring to the transaction may have been inserted in the order confirming it or the certificate stating it.—Balrant v. Hirachand, 27 B 334 (22 W R 181 and 408, 14 W. R. 435, and 15 W. R 546, referred to and distinguished) See also, Assamathem Nessa v Lutchmuput, 4 C. 154.

Where a purchaser buys property in a Court auction, he buys what the Court purports to sell, and when the Court gives him a certificate that the property which he buys is sold to him without any limitation, it is not open to the Court, in a subsequent proceeding, to go behind the sale certificate and say that what purports to have been conveyed was not conveyed, Natesa Patter v. Ganapathi, 52 M. L. J. 68· A I. R 27 Mad 311

A certificate of sale issued by a Court is a document of title, and it ought not to be lightly regarded or loosely construed. Where, therefore, in pursuance of such a certificate the purchaser is placed in possession of the property described therein, and there is no ambiguity in the words of the certificate, it is not within the competency of the Court, in a suit brought by the judgment-debtor, to construe the certificate by reference to other documents, and to place a limitation upon the extent of the property to which it refers, as to do so would defeat the object of the certificate; Ramabhadra v Kadiriyasami, 63 I. C. 709: (1921) M. W. N 374: 14 L W 125 P C.

The terms "right, title and interest of the debtors" as used in the sale certificate and in the order confirming the sale must be construed with reference to the circumstances under which the suit was brought and the true meaning of the decree under which the sale took place as well as all proceedings leading up to sale.—Akhoy Kumar v. Bejoy Chand, 29 C. 813, 7 C W N 54 (7 C 357 referred to).

Mere inaccuracy of language of mis-description will not vitiate a sale certificate The intention of the parties must be booked to.—Maula Buksh v. Kuruck Lall, 7 W R 245; Manson v. Golam Kebria, 15 W. R. 400, Tara Nath v. Joy Soonduree, 21 W. R. 93.

Where a sale certificate declares the sale of the rights of a particular party in land of which the identity is not in dispute, the mere mis-description of the rights so transferred does not constitute a difficulty in the way of giving the purchaser possession.—Kuleemooddeen v. Ashruf Ali, 19 W. R. 276.

The Court in construing a sale certificate refused to go into facts lying behind it for the purpose of contradicting its terms.—Lalla Bissessur v. Doolar Chand, 22 W. R. 181; Pearee Mohun v. Gosto Behary, 26 W. R. 104.

Where a sale certificate, though containing errors, was accurate as to any part of the description of the subject of sale, and could be used to identify it, with the assistance of extraneous evidence, such evidence could be received to show what was intended to be dealt with.—Maleebun v. Raseeda, 25 W. R. 401.

Variance between Proclamation of Sale and Sale Certificate.—Where there is a discrepancy between the descriptions in the sale proclamation of what is to be sold and the certificate of what has been sold, the descriptions in the proclamation of sale are to be taken as of superior authority in dealing with the conflicting claims of innocent third parites whose rights are affected by the variation.—Uma Charan v. Gobind, 1 C. L. R. 460; Thakur Barmha v. Jiban Ram, 19 C L. J 161 P. C. 41 I. A. 38: 41 C 590; Rama Chandra v. Haji Kassim, 16 M. 207. Similarly, where the proclamation stated that the entire interest of five brothers in a mortgaged property was to be sold, and by a mistake on the part of the officer conducting the sale, the sale certificate omitted to mention the names of four of them, it was held that what was sold to the purchaser was the property as described in the proclamation, and not the property as erroneously described in the sale certificate; Balvant v Hira Chand, 27 B. 334; Christian v. Prasad, 4 Pat. 760 90 I C. 501: A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 615.

Statement of Jumma in a Sale Certificate, How Far Admissible in Evidence.—Any statement as to rent payable for a holding, made by a person in a sale certificate, which was obtained by him as purchaser of the holding, at a sale in execution of a decree against the former tenant, being in the nature of an admission by him or his predecessor in the title, cannot be used as evidence on his behalf, as such a statement does not come within the exceptions to s. 21 of the Evidence Act —Ramani Pershad v. Mahant Adaiya Gossain, 31 C 380.

Amendment of Sale Certificate.—A Court has an inherent jurisdiction to amend a sale certificate which incorrectly describes the property actually sold.—Nasiruddin v. Sayudur Rahman, 19 C L J 209; Bujha Ray v. Ram Kumar, 26 C 529, Saddo v Bansi, 23 A. 476; Raja of Kalahasti v. Maharaja of Venkatagiri, 38 M. 387; 25 M. L. J 198 · 21 I. C. 389.

A Court has inherent power to correct a sale certificate, where it appears that the sale certificate includes properties which were not sold, though advertised for sale —Gobinda Chandra v Abhoy Charan, 12 C. W. N. 1027.

After the confirmation of sale, if it is found by the Court that there was a mistake in its own action, the Court may amend its order and grant a fresh sale certificate —Mohesh Chandra v. Hari Mohan, 7 C W N 388

Where after the confirmation of sale an error is stating the boundaries given in the sale certificate is discovered, the Court has ample authority as a Court of justice, equity and good conscience to rectify the error and to mould the relief accordingly as between the original parties or their rep sentatives in interest; Nandi Lal v. Jogendra, 29 C. W. N. 403: 82 I. 294: A I R. 1924 Cal. 881.

No appeal lies against an order granting a review and directing amendment of a sale certificate to correct the boundaries of the land so the only question in such a case being whether the certificate given to t auction-purchaser give a right description of the property sold, and one relating to execution discharge or satisfaction of the decree within t meaning of s 244, C P Code, 1882 (s 47).—Bujha Roy v. Ram Kum 26 C. 529: 3 C. W N. 374 (1 C. W. N. 658 approved). See also, Ma mod v. Locke, 20 M 487. No appeal lies from an order refusing to ame a sale certificate.—Saddo Kunwar v. Bansi Dhar, 23 A 476 (26 C 5 and 18 A 36 referred to).

No appeal lies against an order refusing to grant a sale certificate the decree-holder auction-purchaser; the question determined being not relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. T decree-holder, auction-purchaser, is a party to the suit, within the mea ing of s. 47.—Jagarnath v Karick Nath, 7 C. L. J. 436 (1 C. W. N 65 applied, 18 A 36 not followed: 27 C. 34 followed).

Registration of Sale Certificate.—Section 17 of the Registration Act cl. (xii) provides that the registration of a certificate of sale granted to th purchaser of any property sold by public auction by a Civil or Revenu Officer is optional. Under section 89 of the said Act, a copy of the certi ficate is to be sent by the Court to the Registering Officer.

A certificate of sale issued by a Court under s. 316, C. P. Code, 188 (Or. XXI, r. 94), if duly registered, takes effect, under section 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, against all unregistered incumbrances.—Ramas v. Arunachala, 7 M 248 (6 B. 193 followed). But See Narasayya v Jungam, 7 M. 418; and Magan Lal v. Sakra Girdhar, 22 B. 945.

Section 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, affects like documents which it is optional, as well as those which it is compulsory to register, and its effect is not modified by the fact that the subsequent registered purchaser buys with full notice of a prior unregistered incumbrance.—Nalappa v Ibram Sahib, 5 M. 73 (5 C 836 discussed).

Sale Certificate Cures All Irregularities.—All irregularities, though material, are cured by the certificate of sale.—Balkrishna v. Masuma, A 157: 9 I. A. 182; Naqar v Bhaskar, 10 B. 444.

What Passes at a Court Sale.—What passes to the purchaser at Court sale is the "right title and interest" of the judgment-debtor, whatever that interest may be, in other words, in the case of a Court sale, there is no warranty of title either by the decree-holder or by the Court. The purchaser buys the property with all risks and all defects in the judg ment-debtor's title except as provided by rr. 91 and 93, and in the absence of fraud, his only remedy is to recover back his purchase-money, where it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the pro perty at all, and he cannot by suit or application, obtain a refund in pro portion to the extent to which the judgment-debtor had no interest.—D Ally v. Mohecooddeen, 5 I. A. 116: 3 C. 806; Shanto Chunder v. Nain

Sukh, 23 A. 355; Sundara v. Venkata, 17 M. 228; Moitheensa v. Apsa, 36 M. 194: 12 I. C. 44; Sobhagchand v. Bhaichand, 6 B. 193.

Title of Purchaser Without Certificate.—A purchaser of immovable property at an execution sale can establish his title by evidence independently of the sale-certificate; the sale-certificate is not the title but merely the title-deed.—Tantadhari v. Sundar Lal, 7 C. L. J. 384 (27 B. 379, 2 A. 305 followed). See also, Khabhari Singh v. Ram Prasad, 7 C. L. J. 387, and Brojo Nath v Joggeswar Baghi, 9 C. L. J. 346.

A purchaser of immovable property at a Court-sale, who has been put into possession by the Court, has thereupon a complete title against all persons bound by the decree, notwithstanding that he has no certificate of sale, or one only which has not been registered.—Shivaram Narain v. Ravji, 7 B. 254 (21 W. R. 349 followed) See also, Velan v Kumarasami, 11 M. 296.

The order confirming a sale of immovable property in execution of a decree is sufficient to pass the title in the property to the purchaser, and its production is sufficient evidence of the purchaser's title. The production of the sale certificate is not essential.—Tara Prasad v. Nund Kishore, 9 C. 842; 12 C L R. 448; and Doorga Narain v. Baney Madhab, 7 C. 199 (207). See also, Jagan Nath v. Baldeo, 5 A. 305; Kalee Dass v. Hur Nath, W. R. (1864) 279; and Khushal Pana Chand v. Bhimabai, 12 B. 589

If it is admitted that the plaintiff purchased immoveable property at a Court-sale, he can recover without producing the certificate of sale.—Sadagopa v. Jamuna Bhai, 5 M. 54. See also, Naigar Timapa v. Bhaskar Parmaya, 10 B. 444; and Muzaffar Husain v. Ali Husain, 5 A 297.

The Term " Purchaser " Includes his Representatives.—When a sale in execution has become absolute, the Court can, under this section, grant the certificate prescribed therein to the representatives of a deceased purchaser. Re Vinayak Narayan, 24 B 120.

Limitation.—The provisions of Or XXI, r. 94, are mandatory, and it imposes a positive and imperative duty upon the Court in the matter of granting a sale certificate.—Baikunt Misser v. Narinda Sundari, 1 Pat. L. J. 446. The provisions of the Limitation Act do not apply to applications for a sale certificate. If the Court, therefore, fails to issue a sale certificate and the purchaser has in consequence to apply to the Court for a grant of the certificate the application may be made at any time.—Kylasa v. Ramasami, 4 M. 172; Vithal v Vithojirav, 6 B. 586.

Stamp on an Application for Sale Certificate.—An application by an auction-purchaser for a certificate of sale, need bear no Court-fee stamp, since by s. 316, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 94), it is not even required to be in writing —Hira Ambaidas v. Tekchand Ambaidas, 13 B. 670.

Delivery of property in occupancy of judgment-debtor.

95. Where the immovable property sold is in the occupancy of the judgment-debtor or of some person on his behalf or of some person claiming under a title created by the judgment-debtor subsequently to the attachment of such property and a certificate in pect thereof has been granted under rule 94, the Court shall the application of the purchaser, order delivery to be made putting such purchaser, or any person whom he may appoint receive delivery on his behalf, in possession of the prop and, if need, be, by removing any person who refuses to vacate same. [S. 3

This rule corresponds to s. 318, C. P. Code, 1882, with some v changes only The word "immovable" has been added before word "property," the word "where" has been substituted for the "when" and the word "such" has been substituted for the word "t after the word "putting." These are the only changes introduce this rule.

"Subsequently to the attachment."—Or. XXI, r. 95 provides th purchaser shall be entitled to be put in possession of the property bo by him, if it is in the possession of a person claiming under a title cr by the judgment-debtor subsequent to the attachment of the proper Cooverji Hirji v. Dewsey Bhoja, 17 B. 718 (722). He is not, how entitled to obtain summary possession from the lessee pendenti li the judgment-debtor and must bring a suit for possession.—Santaw v. Kedar Nath, 3 C. W. N. 12

Purchaser of Undivided Share.—The purchaser of a share in divided joint family property, cannot be put in joint possession o share purchased by him with the other members of the family; his per remedy is by a suit for partition.—Balaji Anant v. Ganesh Jana 5 B. 499; Maruti v Lila Chand, 6 B. 564; Yelumalai v. Sriniva M. 294. See also, Mandavilla Ramarow v. Sivanarayana, 25 M I 153. 9 L. W. 81. 49 I C 629. But see, Indrasa v. Sadu, 5 B note; and Cooverji Hirji v. Dewsey Bhoja, 17 B. 718 (721), whe has been held that when the whole right of the family in the pro have been sold, the purchaser is entitled to possession of what h bought, without any necessity for partition.

Putting the Purchaser in Possession.—Khas or actual possessi contemplated by this rule A Court has jurisdiction to issue an for khas possession, although in the first instance it passed an ord giving formal possession —Hur Kishore v. Sudoy Chunder, 17 W 80 (9 W R. 454; and 12 W R. 285, followed).

Successive Applications.—If one application proves infruct another application may be made if it be within the period of limit prescribed by Art. 167 of the First Schedule of the Limitation A Raghunandan v Ramcharan, 49 I. C. 150, F. B.

Separate Suit for Possession.—A decree-holder who purchases sale held in execution of his money or mortgage-decree, the propert the judgment-debtor, is in the same position as an ordinary purch and if after confirmation of sale he fails to obtain possession from judgment-debtor, he may claim possession either under this rule or r. 96 or by a separate suit and s. 214, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 47), is not a bar to such a suit.—Bhagwati v. Banwari Lal, 31 A. 82, F. B. (30 A. 72 overruled: 27 C. 34: 27 M. 740 dissented from; 6 C. L. J. 749 followed). In this Full Bench case all the rulings of the several High Courts have been referred to, considered and discussed See also, Chotharam v. Mussammat Karman Bai, 8 P. R. 1918 44 I. C 169; Buddhu v. Bhagirathi, 40 A. 216; Sashi Bhusan v. Radha Nath, 19 C. W. N. 835, Goba Nathu v. Sakka Ram, 44 B. 977; Sridhar v. Jogeshwar, 4 Pat. L. J. 716.

An auction-purchaser, even when he is the decree-holder himself is not bound under this rule to apply for recovery of possession of the property but may maintain a separate suit for recovery of possession of the property purchased.—Panchanan v Sukhamoy, 50 I. C. 299.

A suit by an auction-purchaser, to obtain possession of land, the subject-matter of his purchase, will lie when it is shown that an attempt has been made to obtain possession in execution proceedings, and that such attempt has been unsuccessful —Iswar Pershad v. Jai Narain, 12 C. 169 (10 C. L. R. 258 explained). See also, Seru Mohun v. Bhagoban Din, 9 C. 602: Balvant Santaram v. Babaji Bin, 8 B. 602. Kishori Mohun v. Chunder Nath, 14 C. 644; Sevu v. Muttu Sami, 10 M. 53; Shankar v. Narsingrav, 22 B 667; and Sheo Narain v Nur Mohammad, 29 A 463: 4 A. L. J. 434.

After formal possession, a suit is maintainable for actual possession, and not barred by s. 47. The limitation applicable is that governing suits and not execution proceedings.—Jagannath v. Milap Chand, 28 A. 722: 3 A. L. J. 504

Limitation.—The period of limitation for an application by the purchaser for delivery of possession is three years from the date when the sale becomes absolute under Act 180 of the Limitation Act. The period of Limitation for a suit for delivery of possession is 12 years under Art. 138.

Effect of Formal Possession in Saving Limitations in Suits for Actual Possession.—Symbolical possession does not amount to dispossession as contemplated by s. 335, C P. Code, 1882 (Or XXI, rr. 97, 99 103).—Ibrahim Mullick v. Ram Jadu, 30 C 710.

Where possession of property purchased at an auction-sale in execution of a decree is formally given by the Court under s. 318, C. P Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 95), although the actual possession may remain with the judgment-debtor, the date of the granting of such formal possession forms, as against the judgment-debtor, a fresh starting point for limitation in respect of a suit, for possession of the property sold brought by the auction-purchaser or his representative The period of limitation for such a suit is 12 years from the date when the auction-purchaser obtains symbolical possession.—Hari Mohun v Babur Ali, 24 C. 715, Mangli Prasad v. Debidin, 19 A 490, Narain Das v. Lalta Prasad, 21 A 269, Jagannath v. Milap Chand, 28 A. 722 3 A. L J. 504, Juggobundhu v. Ram Chunder, 5 C 584; Juggobundhu Mitter v Purnanund, 16 C. 530, F. B. (10 C 402 overruled) (This decision in effect also overrules the case reported in 2 B. L. R. Ap. 29: 24 W. R. 419-note). See also, Mahadeo v. Parashram, 25 Bom. 358; and Gopal v. Krishna Rao, 25 Bom. 275, where it has been further held that Arts. 136, 137 and 138 of the Limitation Act refer to cases where no possession (formal or actual) has been obtained through the Court; Art 136 applies to a private purchaser from a person not in possession; Art. 137 applies to an auction-purchaser of the rights of a person not in possession; Art. 138 applies when the actual purchase is made of the rights of a judgment-debtor, who is in possession at the date of the sale; and Art. 144 applies when an auction-purchaser or his assignee has obtained formal possession, but is disturbed by the judgment-debtor or his heirs who have continued in actual possession

In cases where the judgment-debtor is in actual possession, the purchaser ought to take actual possession and mere symbolical possession will be of no avail, and it will not give him a starting point for the purpose of Limitation in a suit to recover possession.—Shridhar v. Ganapati, 43 B. 559, 51 I C. 72 But see, Bhulu v. Jatindra, 1923 Cal. 138: 27 C W N. 24.

The auction-purchasers having been resisted in obtaining possession of the property purchased by a person claiming under a mortgage from the judgment-debtor, sued for possession by avoidance of the mortgage, alleging that the same was fraudulent and collusive. Held, that the law of limitation governing the suit was not Arts. 91 and 95, but Art. 138 of the Limitation Act, 1877.—Uma Sankar v. Kalka Prasad, 6 All. 75

Art. 138, and not Art 136 of the Limitation Act, is applicable to a suit brought by the assignee of an auction-purchaser to obtain possession of the land.—Arumuga v Chokalingan, 15 M. 331. Followed in Pullaya v Ramayya, 18 Mad. 144 Approved in Sati Prasad v. Jogesh Chandra, 31 Cal. 681, F B · 8 C. W. N 476, F. B. (23 Cal. 49 disapproved) See also, Venkata Lingam v Veerasami, 17 Mad. 89 (14 C 611, and 2 C. 145 followed)

See also, notes under Order XXI, rule 96.

Application for Possession is a Step-in-aid of Execution.—An application by a decree-holder to be put in possession of the property which he purchased in execution of his decree, is a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of Art 182 (5) of the Limitation Act.—Sanatoola v. Raj Kumar, 27 C 709: 4 C W. N. 681. See also, Moti Lall v Makund Singh, 19 A. 477; Bhakwati v. Banwari, 31 A. 82, F. B.; and Prem Krishna v. Juramoni, 13 C. W. N. 691 (10 C. W. N 28 followed; 27 Cal 709 referred to).

Proceedings Taken by a Purchaser (Decree-holder) under this Rule. Whether Comes Within the Meaning of Section 47.—Section 47 of the C. P. Code, has no application to a suit brought by a decree-holder (who has with the Court's permission purchased the judgment-debtor's property) for recovery of possession of that property on the strength of the sale to him. Nor is such a suit barred because the plaintiff had failed to avail himself of the summary remedy provided by r. 95.—Chotha Ram v. Mussammat Karman Bibi, 8 P. R. 198: 44 I. C 169

The Effect of Objection being Disallowed.—The word "disallowed," in this rule has no reference to an order passed on an appeal, but refers to the disallowance of the objection by the Court before which the proceedings under this rule are taken.—Mahomed Hossein v. Purundur Mahto, 11 C. 287.

An objection by a judgment-debtor to a sale in execution of a decree on the ground that the property which was the subject of the sale was not legally saleable, is not a matter which can be entertained under this rule so as to afford a ground for setting aside the sale on account of material irregularity in publishing or conducting it.—Ram Chaibar v. Bechu, 7 A. 641.

An application by an auction-purchaser to set aside a sale on the ground of his having been deceived as to the extent of the estate sold, does not fall within the provisions of this rule or r. 91, and in the absence of a case falling within those rules, r. 92, requires that the sale should be confirmed.—Brij Mohun v. Rai Umanath, 20 C. 8, P C. See also, Khetter Nath v. Faizuddin, 24 C. 682, where it has been held that, unless a sale is set aside under rule 89 or rule 90 the Court is bound to confirm the sale under rule 92.

The confirmation of a sale is no bar to an application by the judgment-debtor to have it declared that in execution of the decree the property which had been sold could not be sold; that he had no disposing power in it, and therefore the sale passed no interest to the purchaser, and the enquiry which should have to be made upon an application like the would be an enquiry under the provisions of s 244, C P. Code, 1882 (s. 47), uncontrolled by rules 90 and 93.—Durga Churn v. Kali Prosonno, 3 C. W N. 586: 26 C. 727 (8 A. 146 and 24 C. 355 referred to)

Appeal Against Orders under this Rule.—The Patna High Court has held that no appeal lies from an order under this rule, Haji Abdul Ghani v. Raja Ram, 1 Pat. L. J. 232 F B The decisions of the Calcutta High Court are conflicting on this point; in some cases it was held that an appeal lies (Madhu Sudan v Gobinda, 27 C 34; Sanatoola v. Raj Kumar, 27 C. 709), while in others it was held that it does not lie (Ram Narain v. Bandi Prasad, 31 C. 737; Hari Charan v Mon Mohan, 18 C W. N 27; Sashi Bhusan v. Radha Nath, 19 C W N 835 In the Bombay High Court it has been held that an appeal lies, Sada Shiv v. Narayan, 35 B. 462.

Revision.—Where the decree-holder or auction-purchaser is resisted in taking possession, and he applies again for delivery of possession without making an application under r. 97, and such application is refused by the lower Court · Held, that the High Court will not interfere in Revision where the party has another remedy —Raghunandan v. Ramcharan, 4 Pat. L J. 91 49 I. C. 150 F B

96. Where the property sold is in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under r. 94, the Court shall on the application of the purchaser, order delivery to be made by affixing a copy of the certificate of sale in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum or other customary mode, at some convenient place, that the interest of the judgment-debtor has been transferred to the purchaser. [S. 319.]

Delivery of property in occupancy of tenant.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to s. 319 of the C. P. Code, 1882 with some verbal alterations.

The words "on the application of the purchaser" have been added, after the words "Court shall"; the word "thereof," which occurred in the old section, after the word "delivery," has been omitted; and the words "or other customary mode" have been substituted for the words "or in such other mode as may be customary." These are the only changes introduced by this rule.

Delivery of Possession to Purchaser.—Symbolical possession is contemplated by this rule. Such symbolical possession is given only in cases when the party in actual posession is entitled under this rule to remain in such possession. It should not be confounded with cases where a party is entitled to actual possession but obtains only what is called a paper delivery, i.e., where he gets no possession at all.—Govindasami v. Pethaperuma, 44 I. C. 839.

Possession Otherwise than by Court.—Section 264 of Act VIII of 1859 (which corresponds with this rule) did not limit the applicant to any particular manner of obtaining possession; and it contained nothing to prevent the purchaser at an execution sale from obtaining possession, if he can, without the assistance of the Court.—Obhoya Churn v. Rajendra Coomar, 22 W. R. 406.

Possession actually taken by a person having a right to it is not the less effective, as perfecting his title, by reason of an irregularity in taking it. Subsequent ouster will give rise to a new cause of action.—Lilla v. Annaji, 5 B. 387. See also, Bandu v. Naba, 15 B. 238. See also, Sitgram v. Mehcenlal, 2 Agra 235.

"A certificate in respect thereof has been granted."—It is not incumbent on the Court to put a purchaser into posesssion until he had his certificate of sale.—Tukaram v. Satwaji Kanduji, 5 B. 206, Basappa v. Morya, 3 B. 433.

"Order delivery to be made."—Under ss. 318 and 319, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 95, 96), the Court executing the decree can only deliver possession in accordance with and over the property specified in the sale certificate. Those sections do not contemplate an enquiry into the question of specific shares of property held by the several judgment-debtors and not set out either in the sale proclamation or sale certificate; and the Court has therefore no jurisdiction to direct delivery of possession contrary to the terms of the sale certificates.—Ghulam Shabhia v. Dwarka Prasad, 18 A. 163.

Delivery of possession under r. 95 and dispossession of tenant of the judgment-debtor thereunder, is not dispossession in due course of law within the meaning of s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act.—Muluk Patooni v. Bharat Chandra, 12 C. W. N. 691.

Effect of Delivery of Formal Possession on the Question of Limitation.—A formal possession given by a Civil Court under an execution, operates in point of law and fact as a complete transfer of possession as between the parties to suit; but such possession has no such operation as against third persons who are not parties to the suit.—Lockessur Koer v. Purgun Roy, 7 C. 418. Dhondiba Krishnaji Singh v. Ram Chandra, 5 B. 554; Runjit Singh v. Bunwari Lal, 10 C. 993 (5 C. 584 F. B. explained). See also, Krishna Bhupati v. Rama Murti, 18 M. 405. But a third party will be affected, if such delivery of possession takes place in his presence and to his knowledge and he does not obstruct —Kocherlakota v. Vadrevu, 27 M. 262 But see, Mahadeo v Janu, 36 B. 376: 14 Bom. L. R. 115.

Where possession of property purchased in execution sale is formally given by the Court under rr. 95 and 96, although the actual possession may remain with the judgment-debtor, the date of granting such formal possession forms, as against the judgment-debtor, a fresh starting point for limitation in respect of a suit, for possession of the property sold, brought by the auction-purchaser or his representative.—Mangli Prasad v. Debi Din, 19 A. 499; Narain Das v. Lalta Prasad, 21 A. 269; Hari Mohun v. Babur Ali, 24 C. 715; Jogobundhu v. Purnanund, 16 C. 530, F. B. (10 C. 402 overruled); Nasiruddin v Sayudur Rahman, 19 C L. J. 209; Jagobundhu v. Ram Chunder, 5 C. 584, F. B., Umbika Churn v. Madhub, 4 C. 870: 4 C. L. R. 35; Shama Churn v. Madhub Chundra, 11 C. L. R. 93; Gopal v. Krishna Rao, 25 B. 275; Mahadeo v Parashram, 25 B. 358. But symbolical possession given under this rule does not, as against third parties, entitle the person to whom such possession has been given to count a fresh period of limitation from the date of the possession —Doyanidhi v. Kelai Panda, 11 C. L. R 395, Kishori Lal v Lala Shib Lal, 1 C. W N. 343; Ram Chandra v. Ravji, 20 B. 351, Narain Das v. Lalta Prasad, 21 A 269

RESISTANCE TO DELIVERY OF POSSESSION TO DECREE-HOLDER OR PURCHASER.

Resistance or obstruction to possession of immovable property.

97. (1) Where the holder of a decree for the possession of immoveable property or the purchaser of any such property sold in execution of a decree is resisted or obstructed by any person in obtaining possession of the property, he may make an application to the Court complaining of such resistance or obstruction.

(2) The Court shall fix a day for investigating the matter and shall summon the party against whom the application is made to appear and answer the same. [Ss: 328; 334.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule lays down the provisions of ss. 328 and 334 of the C. P. Code, 1882 The provisions of those two sections, which were almost similar, have been amalgamated in this rule in a more concise form Section 328 of the C. P. Code, contained the procedure which was to be followed in cases of obstruction, or resistance to delivery of possession to decree-holder; and s 334, C. P Code, contained the procedure in case of obstruction or resistance to auction-purchaser in obtaining possession of immovable property. But as the procedure in both the cases was almost similar, therefore the provisions of the above two sections have been embodied in this rule in an amended form, the retention of two separate sections being considered unnecessary. The wordings of the old sections have been changed, and they have been framed in such a way as to include the provisions contained in both the sections

Scope of the Rule.—This rule provides a summary remedy but it does not preclude an aggrieved party from proceeding by way of regular suit.—Ballav v Gulab, 57 I. C. 177

"Holder of a decree for the possession of immovable property."—A decree passed under s 9 of the Specific Relief Act is a decree for possession within the meaning of r 97, and there is nothing in that rule which prevents its being applicable to such a decree; Banjoisi v. Sarasamman, (1926) M W N 163, 92 I. C. 61 A I. R. 1926 Mad. 353.

Applicability of the Rule.—This rule does not apply unless the auction-purchaser has made an attempt to obtain possession of the property either through Court or out of Court, and he is resisted or obstructed in obtaining possession, Sobha v Tursi, 46 A. 693, 696: 83 I. C. 923: A. I. R. 1924 All. 495

Regular Suit.—This rule does not make it obligatory on a decree holder or purchaser, who is obstructed in obtaining possession of the property, to pursue his remedy under this rule, and the failure of the decree-holder or purchaser to avail himself of the remedy under this rule does not prevent him from proceeding by a regular suit.—Balvant v. Babaji, 8 B. 602, Trimbak v Narayan, 8 B. 491. But if he applies for the summary remedy under this rule and fails, the order against him is conclusive unless he brings a suit to establish his right to possession as provided by r 103. Such a suit must be brought within one year from the date of the order —Sobha v Tursi, 46 A. 693: 83 I. C. 923: A. I. R. 1924 All. 495.

Limitation.—The application under this rule has to be filed within 30 days from the date of the resistance or obstruction as provided by Art. 167 of the Limitation Act.

Fresh Application for Delivery of Possession.—It has been held by the High Courts of Madras and Patna that where a decree-holder or auction-purchaser, who is obstructed or resisted in obtaining possession, omits to apply under this rule within 30 days from the date of resistance or obstruction, he is entitled to make a fresh application for delivery of possession.—Muttia v. Appasami, 13 M. 504; Raghunandan v. Ram Charan, 4 Pat L J. 94: 49 I. C. 150 On the other hand, it has been held by the High Courts of Bombay and Allahabad that he is not entitled to make a fresh application and that his only remedy is by a regular suit; Vinakrao v. Devrao, 11 B. 473; Kesri v. Abdul Hasan, 26 A 365.

98. Where the Court is satisfied that the resistance or obstruction was occasioned without any just cause by the judgment-debtor or by some other person at his instigation, it shall direct that the applicant be put into possession of the property, and where the applicant is still resisted or obstructed in obtaining possession, the Court may also, at the instance of the applicant, order the Judgment-debtor, or any person acting at his instigation, to be detained in the civil prison for a term which may extend to thirty days. [Ss. 329, 330 and 334.]

Resistance or obstruction by judgment-debtor.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule, embodies the provisions contained in ss. 329, 330 and 334 of the old Code, in a concise form, Section 329 of the old Code contained the procedure in cases where the obstruction or resistance was occasioned by the judgment-debtor or by some other person at his instigation; and s 330 of the old Code contained the procedure which was to be adopted in cases where the judgment-debtor or some person at his instigation and without any just cause insisted and continued to offer obstruction or resistance to the delivery of possession.

The words "without prejudice to any penalty to which such judgment-debtor or other person may be liable under the Indian Penal Code or any other law for such resistance or obstruction" which occurred in s. 330 have been omitted from this rule, probably on the ground that retention of those words are unnecessary, as independently of those words it would be an offence under the I P. Code. The words "to be detained in the civil prison" have been substituted for the words, "commit the judgment-debtor or such other person to jail" which occurred in s 330.

Resistance or Obstruction by Judgment-debtor.—This rule contemplates two cases, namely, where the obstruction is occasioned, without any just cause, (i) by the judgment-debtor, or (ii) by some other person at his instigation Where the obstruction is caused by a person other than the judgment-debtor, the Court has no jurisdiction to pass an order under this rule, unless it is satisfied that the person was acting at the instigation of the judgment-debtor.—Ezra v. Gubbay, 47 C. 907 60 I C 969; Mancharam v. Fakirchand, 25 B 478, 486. An application to remove obstruction caused to delivery of possession to a decree-holder purchaser, by a purchaser from the judgment-debtor of the attached property after attachment, must be dealt with under this rule because such purchaser. Kupanna v. Kumara, 34 M 450: 7 I C 418

" Is resisted or obstructed."—No particular kind of resistence or obstruction is necessary, but there must be some overt act of opposition to the Court's officers on behalf of some one who is actually present—Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 25 B 478, 485. See also, Mahabir Prasad v. Parma, 14 A. 417

" In obtaining possession."—Both tangible physical possession and constructive possession are meant. Possession does not cease to be real or actual because enjoyed through tenants, servants or members of one's family.—Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 3 Bom. L. R. 58. See also, Brijabala v. Gurudas, 33 C 487: 3 C L. J. 293

Renewal of Resistance of Obstruction to Execution—Fresh Cause of Action.—A decree-holder who is resisted in the execution of the decree for ejectment may apply for possession again and if again resisted may complain against the second resistance —Baranagore Jute Factory Co., Ltd. v. Raj Kumar, 13 C. W N 724 (11 B 473 referred to; 5 M. 113 and 13 A. 233, referred to on the question of limitation).

Appeal.—An order allowing or refusing delivery of possession after an execution sale is not an order under s. 47, C. P. Code even when the decree-holder is the auction-purchaser and as such no appeal lies. A second appeal lies to the High Court against a decree of the Appellate Court passed without jurisdiction.—Aduram Haldar v. Nakuleswar Rai, 29 C. L J. 48: 49 I. C. 137. An order passed against the decree-holder auction-purchaser under Or XXI, r 98 is not appealable, even if questions relating to execution are decided therein; Surendra v. Satyendra, 92 I. C. 544: A. I R 1926 Cal. 985

An appeal made under Or. XXI, r. 97 is not appealable to the District Court and is consequently not open to second appeal.—Meghu Singh v. Basudeva Jha, 32 I C 383.

Resistance or obstruction by bona fide claimant.

99. Where the Court is satisfied that the resistance or obstruction was occasioned by any person (other than the judgment-debtor) claiming in good faith to be in possession of the property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, the Court shall make an order dismissing the application. [S. 331, Para. 1.]

Presidency Small Cause Court.—A small Cause Court has jurisdiction, in execution of a decree in ejectment, to act under this rule and remove any improper obstruction to the carrying out of its own order.—Mahomed Ghouse v. Mohideen, 45 M L J. 66: 73 I. C. 985: A. I. R 1924 Mad. 74.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to para 1 of s 331 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The words "the Court shall make an order dismissing the application" have been substituted for the words " the claim shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the decree-holder as plaintiff and claimant as defendant," which occurred in the old section. The second, third and fourth paras of section 331, which ran as follows, have been omitted:—

"and the Court shall, without prejudice to any proceedings to which the claimant may be liable under the Indian Penal Code, or any other law for the punishment of such resistance or obstruction, proceed to investigate the claim in the same manner, and with the like power, as if a suit for the property had been instituted by the decree-holder against the claimant the provisions of Chapter V,

"and shall pass such order as it thinks fit for executing, or staying execution of, the decree.

"Every such order shall have the same force as a decree, and shall be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise"

Scope of the Rule.—The object of the omission is that there will now only be a summary enquiry with regard to the claims of third parties; and they have been allowed the privilege of bringing a regular suit against any order that may be passed against them under this rule (Vide rule 103). Under s. 331 of the old Code, a claim by a third party had to be tried as a regular suit and the order passed by the Court was a decree and was appealable. But under rule 103, the order passed under this rule shall be conclusive, subject to the result of the regular suit.

Resistance by Person Other than the Judgment-debtor.—Where in a suit brought by a plaintiff against two defendants, a decree is passed, by consent, against one of them only, the other defendants is not a judgment-debtor. He is a "person other than the judgment-debtor" within the meaning of this rule; Jathavedan v Kunshu, 30 M 72

A proforma defendant in possession of the property decreed and resisting delivery of its possession to the decree-holder is not a judgment-debtor and his claim should be enquired into under this rule Har Nihal v. Shamji Mal, 21 P W R 1910 64 P L R 1910 5 I. C. 809.

Where a person is entitled to the possession of a share after partition, and a commissioner is appointed to partition the share and to put him in possession of his share, resistance to such commissioner is resistance within the meaning of this rule,—Kali Kumar v. Bramhanand, 7 C. L J. 98 (16 M. 127, followed).

R. 99 contemplates an application by the decree-holder; a third party resisting the delivery of possession may apply under r 100—Sukan Sing v. Baijnath, 12 C. W N. 115.

"On his own account."—A tenant of the judgment-debtor is not a person claiming on his own account and can not obstruct the judgment-debtor's landlord in his obtaining possession Jafferji v. Miyadin, 46 B. 526, 64 I. C. 692 A I. R 1922 Bom 273, Jai Ram v. Nawroji 65 I. C. 212: 23 Bom. L. R 1316, but if the decree-holder landlord knew that the sub-tenant was in possession of the premises at the time of his suit and did not choose to make him party, he cannot claim possession against him in execution proceedings, but should seek his remedy by suit; Ezra v Gubboy 47 C. 907: 60 I. C. 969.

"Claiming in good faith to be in possession of the property."—The word "possession" as used in this rule is not limited to actual physical possession. It includes also constructive possession, such as possession by a tenant. Where premises sought to be recovered in execution are in occupation of tenants and the landlord of such tenants obstructs the effect executing decree, the claim of such landlord may be investigated under this rule.—Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 25 B. 478 (14 B. 627: 22 B. 967: and 15 W. R. 70, referred to).

The investigation of claims under this rule is not limited to the fact of possession. Any question of title arising between the contending parties in connection with their right of possession may be finally determined in such investigation as in an ordinary action on ejectment.—Maula Khan v. Gern Khan, 14 B. 627. Referred to in Mancharam v. Fakir Chand 25 B. 478. Followed in Mahip Rai v. Dwarka Rai, 27 A. 453 (14 B. 627: 22 B. 967, followed: 10 C. 50, not followed) and distinguished in Mahomed Isub v. Bashotappa, 27 B. 302.

An investigation under this rule was limited to the fact of possession and was no bar to a subsequent suit brought to try the title to the land in dispute.—Chinna Sami v. Krishna, 3 M. 104.

In a proceeding under this rule, the onus is on the plaintiff to establish a prima facie case of possession, and it is then incumbent on the claimant to answer that case and show, if possible, a better title.—Rakhal Chura v. Watson and Co., 10 C. 50. Not followed in Mahip Rai v. Dwarka Rai, 27 A. 453; in Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 25 B. 478, p. 490; and in Bapoojirao v. Fattesing, 22 B. 967. In all these cases a contrary view has been taken; but they have been overridden by the present rule.

Dispossession by decree-holder or purchaser.

100. (1) Where any person other than the judgment-debtor is dispossessed of immovable property by the holder of a decree for the possession of such property or, where such property has been sold in execution of a decree, by the purchaser thereof, he may make an application to the Court complaining of such dispossession.

(2) The Court shall fix a day for investigating the matter and shall summon the party against whom the application is made to appear and answer the same. [Ss. 332 and 335.]

Bona fide* claimant to be restored to possession.

101. Where the Court is satisfied that the applicant was in possession of the property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, it shall direct that the applicant be put into possession of the property. [Ss. 332 and 335.]

COMMENTARY.

These two rules correspond to section 332 and 335 of the C. P. Code 1882. The provisions contained in those sections have been summarised in these two rules with several alterations and omissions. The language of the old sections has been changed, but the procedure under the old and new law is the same.

The last paras of ss. 332 and 335 have been omitted from these rules and have been inserted in rule 103.

Rules 100 and 101.—These rules are to be read together.

Object and Scope of the Rules.—These two rules refer to events which may arise subsequent to the delivery of possession; and the preceding rules lay down the procedure to be adopted in cases of resistance or obstruction in the course of delivery of possession

Under these rules if any person other than the judgment-debtor is dispossessed in delivering possession either to the decree-holder or to the auction- purchaser, then he may by an application under these rules obtain an order for restoration of possession, if he can satisfy the Court that he is in bona fide possession of the property on his own account, etc. His remedy is twofold: he can either apply under this rule or bring a regular suit or he may do both, that is, if he becomes unsuccessful in an application under these rules, he can bring a regular suit under rule 103

The object of rules 97, 99 and 100 is to give power to the Court where an attempt has been made to deliver possession and there is resistance or obstruction to give, after enquiry, a quick summary decision which should protect the public peace, prevent obstruction and terminate the execution proceedings subject to the result of a regular suit.—Sharoda Proshad v. Roy Dhunput Singh, 19 W. R. 221, Mt. Zahooran v. Syad Mahomed, 18 W. R 87; Sri Nath v Annada Prosad, 1 C W N. 192

"Is dispossessed."—Delivery of actual possession alone can constitute dispossession under this rule A landlord who is in possession through his tenant may be said to be dispossessed within the meaning of this rule if the decree-holder or purchaser takes delivery of actual possession of the land from the tenant —Brajabala v Gurudas, 33 C 487.

"He may make an application."—The applicant's remedy is twofold. He may either apply under this section for restoration of possession or bring a regular suit to establish his title under rule 103 Or he may do both, that is, if he does not succeed by an application under this rule, he can institute a regular suit.

Dispossession of Third Person by Decree-holder or Auction-purchaser.—For the meaning of the word "judgment-debtor" within the meaning of this section, see Vasudeva Upadyaya v. Visvaraja Tirthasami, 19 M 331 and Jathavedan v Kunchu Achan, 30 M 72, M. L J 433

"Judgment-debtor" includes representatives of the judgment-debtor and all persons who are bound by the decree —Bhikhia v Birj, 2 Pat L J. 478.

R. 99 contemplates an application by the decree-holder, and a third party resisting the delivery of possession of property to a decree-holder cannot apply under that rule for the investigation of his claim, but he may do so under r. 100, after he has been dispossessed —Sukhan Singh v. Baij Nath, 12 C. W. N. 115.

A decree in a possessory suit under sec. 9 of Act I of 1877 is a within the meaning of rule 100; and any person dispossessed in ex of such a decree can apply under this rule to recover possession land.—Brahma Mayi v. Barkat Sirdar, 4 B. L. R. 94 F. B.: 12 25 F. B. Contra in Gobind Chunder v. Gobind Ghose, 7 W. R.

Possession by receipt and enjoyment of rent is as good in actual occupation and this rule is not restricted to cases of personal tion.—Bhyrub Sircar v Sham Manjee, 15 W. R. 70. Approved i charam v. Fakirchand, 25 B. 478 Followed in Brajabala v. Guru C. 487: 3 C. L. J. 293. Present possession does not mean right to sion on redemption, Baliram v Narayan, 54 I. C. 276

Possession through a mortgagee is sufficient to bring a claim this rule.—Asgur Ali v. Asgar Ali, 20 W. R. 373. Followed in B v. Gurudas, 33 C 487: 3 C. L. J 293.

A mortgagee, who is in possession of the mortgaged property the mortgage, is in possession " on his own account " within the m of this rule.—Shafiuddin v Lochan Singh, 2 A. 94.

A mortgagee from a tenant is in possession on his own acc Kedarnath v. Saday Chandra, 19 C. L. J. 13.

Planting a bamboo and making proclamation to the occupant estate that it has been adjudged to some other, is sufficient dispo of a landlord to warrant him in applying to the Court under this Collector of Bogra v Krishna Indra Roy, 2 B. L. R. 301: 11 W. Followed in Brajabala v. Gurudas, 23 C. 487: 3 C. L. J. 293.

A party dispossessed of land under colour of a decree to which not a party, is entitled to an investigation under r. 100 and if i is established to a decree.—Hassun Aly v. Naib Ahmed, 11 W. R

A person dispossessed of his land in execution of a decree of Court against a third party should proceed for the alleged obstruc his possession, not by a suit in the Mamlatdar's Court, but by an a tion under r. 100, or by a regular suit.—Gulabbhai Gopalji v. J Ratanji, 13 B. 213. See also, Ram Chandra Subra v. Ravji, 20 B

Dispossession under Order of Collector.—A person who has be possessed under an order made by the Collector, to whom ex proceedings have been transferred, should apply to the Collector and the Court complaining of such dispossession. This rule has no app when execution has been transferred to the Collector; Ragho v. H 37 B. 488: 19 I C 903

Cases Not Falling Within the Scope of This Rule.—An object did not claim to be in possession " on his own account or on acc some person other than the defendants," but whose sole ground o vention was that he held a bona fide title derived from the defe was not entitled to be heard under section 230 of Act VIII of 1859 (100)—Eusuf Ali v. Shib Shunkur, W. R. (1864) 384.

A mortgagee under a mortgage from the judgment-debtor after ment is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the mea

s. 47. This rule has no application to such a case.—Narayanasami v. Seshapper. 17 M. L J. 821; but see Kedar v. Saday, 19 C. L J. 13.

"Was in possession on his own account."—A member of joint Hindu family cannot say that he is in possession of any particular portion of the joint property on his own account. His possession is the possession of the family.—Cooverji v. Dewsey, 17 B. 718. But see Radhagobind v. Raghunath, 18 C. W. N. 695, where it has been held that a person in joint possession with the judgment-debtor, as a member of the family or otherwise is in possession on his own account and entitled to intervene under this rule. See also, Ramkishen v Damodar, 75 I. C 856

A person who purchased a non-transferable holding from the recorded tenant, cannot apply under this rule, when the landlord decree-holder takes possession under a sale in execution of his rent decree obtained against the recorded tenant.—Panchratan v. Ram Shahay, 43 I C. 969, nor is a purchaser pendente lite entitled to apply under this rule.—Kanashabhai v. Rajagopal, 42 I C 523

Questions for Trial for the Nature of Evidence Required under this Rule.—Where an application is made by a party on the ground that he was in possession and that he has been dispossessed in execution of a decree, the Court should in the first instance examine the applicant.—Obhoy Churn v Rajendro Coomar, 16 W R 288.

When a person making a claim to certain property under r 100 has been allowed to bring a suit under that section to try his right to the property, it is sufficient in the first instance for him to prove his possession, without proof of title, but if he takes this course, it is open to the defendant to show that although possession may be with the plaintiff, yet he (defendant) has a better title.—Dilbasc Koonwaree v Ganga Pershad, 5 C. 278. (5 B. L. R 708 explained)

It was held under the old Code in some cases that the question of title might be gone into, as well as the question of possession.—Yusan Khatun v Ram Nath, 7 B L R Ap 26, 15 W. R 327, Radha Pyari v Nabin Chandra, 5 B L. R 708; 13 W R 80, F B Followed in Abdool Sobhan v. Brahma Deo, 14 W R. 140. See also, Nugender Chunder v. Ram Comul, 3 W R. 213; Jadunath v Kali Prasad, 6 B L R Ap. 55; 14 W. R. 358; and Ajoo Khan v Kisto Pershad, 8 W R. 477 But see Safiuddin v. Lochan Singh, 2 A. 94, where it has been held that a person claiming under r 100 need not prove his title, but only the fact of possession. See also, Kedar Nath v. Saday Chandra, 19 C L J 13 in which it has been held that no question of title can be gone into in a proceeding under r 101

Where the applicant complains that he has been dispossessed in execution of a decree to which he was not a party, and there are reasonable grounds for thinking that his claim is bona fide, it is the duty of Court to treat the case as a regular suit between the claimant as plaintiff, and the decree-holder and judgment-debtor as defendants.—Lulect Narain v. Keshub Deb 15 W. R. 209; Bance Madhub v Nund Lall, 22 W R 123; Yusan Khatun v Ram Nath, 7 B. L. R Ap 26, 15 W R. 327; Ajoo Khan v. Kisto Persad, 8 W R 477. Sahoo Gokul Pershad v Zynub, N. W. P. 176 (Ed. 1873), 255.

If there are several applications, each application should be tried separately.—Sharoda Moyee v. Nabin Chunder, 11 W. R. 255.

Burden of Proof in a Claim Case under this Rule.—The onus of proving his case is on the applicant.—Mahomed Ausur v. Prokash Chunder, 8 W R 8, Woodoy Tara v Abdul Gunee, 12 W R. 16; Judoo Nath v Kali Pershad, 14 W. R. 358; Brindabun Chunder v. Tarachad, 20 W R 114

The applicant must prove whether or not the judgment-debtor was in possession at the date of the sale. Mere proof that he was in possession at some time prior to 12 years before suit does not discharge him from the onus —Nasiruddin v. Sayudur Rahman, 19 C L. J. 209, Mohima Chunder v Mohesh Chunder, 10 C 473 P C

Ex-Parte Order for Delivery of Possession.—Or. IX, r. 13 does not apply to execution proceedings, and a party against whom an order under r 101 is passed even though it be ex parte, can only seek his remedy by way of suit under r 103 —Hari Charan v. Manmatha, 41 C 1 See also, Jugolkishore v. Bachinder Mohan, 52 I. C. 416, where it was held that Or IX, r 9 has no application in the case of proceedings under rr. 100 and 101.

Limitation.—Under Art 165 of the Limitation Act, an application under this rule must be made within 30 days from the date of the dispossession, Abdul Karim v Islamunnissa, 38 A. 339: 14 A. L. J 403: 34 I. C. 231.

Dismissal of Application for Default.—It was held by the Patna High Court, in Satyanarain v Govind, 3 Pat L. J. 250: 43 I. C 951, that a party not bound by a decree may, under Or. IX, r. 9, obtain a re-hearing of a claim made by him under this rule, which has been dismissed for default; but the same High Court took a contrary view in Bhubaneswar v Tilakdhari, 4 Pat L. J 135: 49 I. C. 617.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order made under Or. XXI, r. 101, C. P. Code —Musst Golabi Bibi v. Aslam Khan, 57 P. R. 1917: 91 P W. R. 1917. 101 P L R 1917. 41 I C. 891; Bai Mani v. Ranchodlal, 25 Bom L R 147: 72 I C 256· A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 214. It has been held by the Madras High Court that where an application is contested between persons who were parties to the suit or representatives of parties the case falls within s 47, and an appeal lies from the order; Appu v Kuthurava, 41 M L J 54. 63 I. C. 730; Meyyappa v. Chidambaram, 39 M. L. J 603. 61 I C 349, Veyindra v. Maya, 43 M. 696: 58 I. C. 541

Rules not applicable to transferee lite pendente.

102. Nothing in rules 99 and 101 shall apply to resistance or obstruction in execution of a decree for the possession of immovable property by a person to whom the judgment-debtor has transferred the property after the institution of the suit in which the decree was passed or to the dispossession of any such person.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 333, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications The words "to resistance or obstruction in execution of a decree for the possession of immoveable property by a person," have been added after the words "shall apply," and the words "or to the dispossession of any such person" have also been added after the words "was passed." The word "passed" has been substituted for the word "made" which occurred in the old section.

103. Any party not being a judgment-debtor against whom an order is made under rule 98, rule 99 or rule 101 may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the present possession of the property; but, subject to the result of such suit, if any, the order shall be conclusive. [Ss. 332 & 335, last Para.]

Orders conclusive subject to regular suit.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to the last paras. of ss. 332 and 335, C P. Code of 1882, with some modifications

This rule does not apply unless an order under r. 98, r. 99, or r. 101 has been made —Hargolal v. Chandulal, 69 I. C. 557. A person against whom an order is made under rules 98, 99 or 101, may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the present possession of the property; but he is not bound to proceed under the foregoing rules. If he proceeds under those rules and becomes unsuccessful, he must bring the regular suit within one year and the order unless set aside by a regular suit within the statutory period, becomes final and conclusive

Scope and Effect of an Order under this Rule.—An order rejecting a claim petition under Or. XXI, r 100, not being appealed against within one year, acquires the force of a decree —Achuta v Mammavu, 10 M 357 (8 M. 506 followed). The order intended to become final under this rule is an order which is passed after enquiry into the matter of resistance, but if the Court declines to pass an order under r 97 or r. 100 and refers the claimant to a separate suit, then Art 11-A of the Limitation Act has no application.—Meerudin v. Rahisa Bibi, 27 M. 25 (12 C 550 referred to).

This rule does not apply to an order dismissing an application for default of prosecution because it is not an order made after investigation.—Sarat Chandra v Tarini Prasad, 34 C 491 11 C W N. 487. See also, Bhimrao v. Martand, 45 I C 102, Wamandhar v Kamta Prasad, 22 N L. R 94 · 97 I C 178 A I R 1926 Nag 423

There must be an enquiry before a valid order under this rule can be made —Gouri v Sita, 14 C W N 316

Or. XXI, r 103 which gives a right of suit to a party who is not a judgment-debtor, is not restricted by the general provisions of s. 47.—Badami Seshiah v Katti Chinna, 52 I C 928.

In a suit under this rule, not only the question of possession, but also the right or title on which the claim of possession is based should be gone into; Kunni Moidin v. Pocker, 44 M. 227, and such right to possession may be established without shewing that the plaintiff was in possession at the date of the dispossession or summary order.

Period of Limitation for a Suit to Establish Right.—A party against whom an order under Or XXI, r. 101 is made, must bring his suit to establish the right which he claims within one year from the date of the order, otherwise the suit will be barred by Art. 11-A of the Limitation Act, 1908.—Bhimappa v. Irappa, 26 B. 146 See also, Mahadev v. Babi, 23 B. 730; Ram Singh v. Kundan Singh, 96 P. W. R. 1916: 103 P. L. R 1916: 36 I. C. 211 The fact that there was a pending suit regarding the title to the property in which he had set up his title does not absolve him from the obligation under s 103; Kumaarn Unni Achan v. Kunni Krishnan, 75 I. C. 814. In Bhiku v Sujat Ali, 26 C. 25, it has been held that if an objection under Or. XXI, 100 is rejected, the objector is not precluded from instituting a suit to enforce his mortgage lien over the property, more than a year after the date of the order. A suit to establish mortgage lien over property is not a suit to establish a right to the property Where an application is dismissed for default on the petitioner applying to withdraw his petition for want of evidence, the opposite party being present Held, that there was no enquiry within the meaning of Or. XXI, r 100, and the suit was not barred by one year's limitation.—Sarat Chandra v. Tarini Prashad, 34 C 491; 11 C. W N. 487. See also, Kunj Behari v Kuadh Proshad, 6 C L J. 862, where it has been held that merely because the claimant, does not adduce evidence or is absent, it does not follow that there are no materials before the Court to enable it to enquire into the matter. If the Court does not enquire into it and dismisses the application, the order is made upon investigation.

Suit by Auction-purchaser for Possession upon a Different Cause of Action.—The provisions of this rule do not apply to a suit brought by an auction-purchaser against the opposite party for possession, not under his auction purchase, but upon a different title altogether. In such a case the suit need not be brought within one year from the date of the decree as required by Art. 11-A of the Limitation Act; Ambica v. Ram Prosad, 30 C. W. N. 163: 90 I C. 575: A. I R. 1926 Cal. 877.

Amount of Court-fee Payable in a Suit under this Rule.—An auction purchaser who was resisted obtaining actual possession, and whose application under Or XXI, r. 100 was rejected, brough a suit against the person in possession, for a declaration of his right to the property and to be put in actual possession thereof Held, that the suit was properly stamped with a Court-fee stamp of Rs. 10.—Pirya Das v. Vilayat Khan, 23 A 884 (9 B 20 referred to).

ORDER XXII.

DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

No abatement by party's death, if right to sue survives.

1. The death of a plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate if the right to sue survives. [S. 361.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to section 361 of the last Code. The illustrations attached to the old section have, however, been omitted by the Select Committee as they seemed too obvious to serve any useful purposes.

" Right to sue."—This means the right to seek relief by legal proceedings. It is the right to institute a suit claiming the same relief which the deceased plaintiff claimed at the time of his death.—Gopal v. Ram Chandra, 26 B. 597; Sarat Chandra v. Noni Mohon, 36 C. 801. The cause of action in the original and revived suits must be the same, and that no fresh cause of action can be imparted into the revived suit.—Sham Chand Giri v. Bhagyaram Panday, 22 C. 29. See also, Umrao Begum v. Irshad Husain, 23 C. 997 P. C.

An application under Or. XXII, r. 1, C P. Code to be brought on record as the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff could not be rejected on the ground that the original plaintiff had no cause of action which would survive to the applicant. The " right to sue " as specified in Or. XXII, r. 1, C. P Code means merely the right to obtain relief by means of legal procedure (26 B. 597 refd. to); Gundappa v. Manjappa, 2 Mys. L. J. 1.

Cases Where the Right to Sue Survives and Where it does Not.—In order to understand what is meant by the expression " right to sue survives " it is necessary to look into the provisions of s. 306 of the Indian Succession Act XXXIX of 1925 (which corresponds to s. 89 of the Probate and Administration Act) and s. 37 of the Indian Contract Act. S. 306 of the Succession Act says: " All demands whatsoever, and all rights to prosecute or defend any action or proceeding, existing in favour of or against a person at the time of his decease, survive to and against his executors or administrators; except causes of action for defamation, assault, as defined in the Indian Penal Code or other personal injuries not causing the death of the party; and except cases where, after the death of the party, the relief sought could not be enjoyed, or granting it would be nugatory.

It is clear from the above that the right to sue does not survive in suits for defamation, assault or other personal injuries not causing the death of the party and in cases where after the death of the party, the relief sought could not be enjoyed or granting it would be nugatory

Section 37 of the Contract Act says. "Promises bind the representatives of the promisors in case of the death of such promisors before performance unless a contrary intention appears from the contract." Where it appears from the terms of the contract itself that the obligation must end with the death of the promiser, the right to sue does not survive against his representative because the obligation is determined by the death of the promisor Generally speaking all contracts which involve the exercise of special or personal skill are not binding on the representatives of the promisors See illustration (b) to sec. 38, Indian contract Act

Suits for damages for breach of contract, suits on promissory notes, suit for recovery of debts, suits on mortgages, suits for wrong done to property are suits that do not abate on the death of the plaintiff or defendant

A suit for damages for malicious prosecution and obstruction of a right of way abates on the death of the defendant in the absence of any allegation that the estate of the wrong-doer was benefited thereby: Ma Shew Thit v. Maung Po Aung, (1921) 4 U. B. R 73: 65 I C 66

In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, if the plaintiff dies before trial, the right to sue or the cause of action survives to his legal representatives as such a suit falls within the scope of s 89 of the Probate and Administration Act —Krishna Bihari Sen v. The Corporation of Calcutta, 31 C 993. 8 C W. N 745 (confirming in appeal 31 C 406 8 C W. N 329) On the other hand, it has been held by the High Courts of Bombay, Madras and Patna that the right to sue does not survive and that the suit abates on the original plaintiff's death; Haridas v Ramdas 13 B. 677, Rustomjee v Nurse, 44 M 357: 62 I. C. 260 F. B., Manjappa v Pannusami, 44 M 828 62 I. C 757; Palaniappa v. Raja Rajeswara, 49 M 208 92 I C 366: A I R. 1926 Mad. 243; Punjab Singh v. Ramautar, 4 Pat. L. J. 676 52 I. C. 348. But if a defendant after appealing to set aside the decree dies before the hearing, his legal representative is not debarred from prosecuting the appeal —Gopal Ganesh v. Ramchandra Sadashiv, 26 B 597. Followed in Paramenchetty v Sundararaj Naick, 26 M. 499.

An action to recover damages for breach of a contract of marriage abates on the death of the plaintiff; Hiralal v. Nanalal, 44 B. 416· 55 I C 624 A suit to establish the plaintiff's right to the office of a mokrer abates on his death, because the right claimed is a personal right to an office, Sham Chand v. Bhayaram, 22 C. 92. There is a conflict of authorities on the question whether the right of pre-emption under the Mahomedan Law does or does not abate at the pre-emptor's death; Sayyad Ziaul v Sitaram, 36 B. 144; Muhammad v. Niamatunnissa, 20 A. 88; Yusuf Ali v Dal Kumar, 20 A. 148.

During the pendency of a suit by a Hindu widow for possession of her husband's estate, she died. Held that the cause of action survived on the death of the plaintiff, and therefore the suit did not abate —Parbutty v. Higgin, 17 W R 47: 8 B. L. R. Ap. 98.

Where a Hindu mother who sued to restrain encroachment on the share allotted to her on partition and agreed to sell her interest to the defendants at the value to be found on arbitration, died after the award but before the decree, it was held that the right of action on the award survived to her sons.—Denomoyee v. Chooneymoney, 4 C. W. N. 280. Affirmed on appeal in 28 C. 155: 5 C. W. N. 242.

A revisioner's suit for a declaration that an alienation made by a Hindu widow is invalid, abates on the death of the plaintiff, and it cannot be continued by the next reversioners; Sakyahani v. Bhavani, 27 M. 588; China v. Lakshminarasamma, 37 M. 406 22 M. L. J. 375. But it has been held by the Privy Council that a suit brought by the presumptive reversioner for declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid, is brought by him in a representative capacity and on behalf of all the reversioners, and on the death, therefore, of the presumptive reversioner, the next presumable reversioner is entitled to continue the action begun by the deceased; Venkatanarayana v. Subbammal, 30 M. 406: 42 I. A. 125: 29 I. C. 298

Where an agent who sues on behalf of an undisclosed principal dies pending suit, the suit (if it can be continued at all) can be continued by the agent's representatives, and not by the principal.—Periannan Chettiar v. Rengachi Reddy, 17 M. L. J. 116.

Where a testamentary guardian applies to be appointed guardian under this rule and dies pending the proceedings, the application abates, and as his claim was based on a personal trust, his representatives are not entitled to continue the proceedings; Gangabai v Khashabai, 23 B. 719. Where, however, the claim is not based on a personal trust, the proceedings can be contained by the legal representative of the deceased; Sami Chetti v Adai Kalam, 47 M. 459 46 M L J 179 84 I C 613· A I. Against an order of Court appointing a particular person as guardian of a minor, the minor's paternal uncle who opposed the appointment in the lower Court, preferred an appeal; on the death of the appellant pending the appeal, his son sought to continue appeal; objection was taken that the right to sue did not survive and the appeal abated Held that the appeal did not abate and could be prosecuted by the son of the deceased appellant; Sami Chetti v. Adaikkalam Chetti, 46 M L J 179.

If a defendant is dead at the time of the institution of the suit, the plaintiff cannot go on with the suit by applying for the substitution of the deceased defendant.—Kristodas Law v Kumar Khiroda Kanta, 51 I C 160

A suit by a Hindu mother for a share at a partition among her sons under the Dayabhaga School, abates on her death —Tripura v Dakshina, 5 C. L. J. 310: 11 C W N 098.

A suit for personal injunction abates when the person against whom the suit is brought dies.—Josiam v. Samu, 7 M L T. 195 5 I C. 937.

Abatement of Right to Sue In Formâ Pauperis.—The right to make an application to sue in forma pauperis is a personal right and does not survive to the heirs of the pauper; Jatindra Nath v. Sourindra Nath, 64 I C. 63.

No Abatement by Reason of the Death of the Plaintiff After Decree.—A suit which has terminated in a decree cannot abate by reason of the death of the plaintiff after the passing of the decree; Mulchand Kalwar v Gobind Singh, 59 I C. 939.

Death of Either Party Pending Appeal.—Hence where, during the pendency of an appeal against a decree in favour of the plaintiff in a suit in which the right to sue would not survive if the plaintiff died before decree, either party dies, the appeal does not abate; Muhammad v. Khushalo, 9 A. 181; Gopal v Ramchandra, 26 B. 597; Paramen v. Sunderaraja, 26 M. 499. But if the plaintiff's suit is dismissed, and the plaintiff has appealed from the decree, and either party dies pending the appeal, the appeal will abate, Gopal v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 597; Sakyahani v. Bhavani, 27 M. 588, Josiam v Sawmi, 34 M 76; Saklat v. Bella, 2 R. 91: A I. Procedure where one of several plaintiffs or defendants dies and right to sue survives

2. Where there are more plaintiffs or defendants than one, and any of them dies, and where the right to sue survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, the Court shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or against the surviving defendant or defendants.

This rule corresponds to section 362, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the word "where" has been substituted for the words "where" and "if."

"To the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone."—A and B, as joint owners of certain land, brought an action for damages on account of trespass. B died after the action was brought. Held that the cause of action survived to A The words "cause of action" mean right to bring an action —Chunder Mohun v Biswambhur, 1 B. L R. 42: 6 W. R Civ Ref. 2; and 17 B 645

A Mahomedan appellant died leaving sons and daughters The sons applied to be brought upon the record, but they did not bring their sisters upon the record along with themselves, held that they not having done so, the appeal abated.—Haidar Husain v. Abdul Ahad, 30 A 177: 5 A L. J. 62

A, B, and C, members of a joint Mitakshara family, sued for a declaration of their right, after refusal of their application for registration of names under the Land Registration Act, and obtained a decree During the pendency of the appeal against the decree, A died, and more than six months after, the appellant applied to have B and C noted as legal representatives who had taken the estate by survivorship. Held that the application was governed by this rule, which is not limited in its application to cases, in which the right of suit survives against the surviving defendants, by reason of some circumstance antecedent to the suit.—Shyamanand v. Rajnarain, 11 C. W. N. 186: 4 C. L. J. 568.

If the right to sue survives against the surviving respondents, even by reason of any cause which arises after the institution of the suit or the appeal, e.g., the purchase of the interest of the deceased by them during the pendency of the appeal, the case would fall within the purview of Or. XXII, r. 2; Jhangi Ram v. Musst. Rupan Bai, 102 I. C. 436: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 501.

"Against the surviving defendant or defendants alone."—If the defendants in a suit are jointly and severally liable to the plaintiff, the suit does not abate merely because one of the defendants has died and his legal representatives have not been brought upon the record.—Jwala Prasad v. Kopiya Munda, 59 I. C. 890.

"The suit shall proceed."—The word "suit" includes an appeal, see r. 11.

Procedure in case of death of one of several plaintiffs or of sole plaintiff.

3. (1) Where one of two or more plaintiffs dies and the right to sue does not survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or a sole plaintiff or sole surviving plaintiff dies and the right to sue survive, the Court, on an application made in that behalf, shall cause the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff to be made a party and shall proceed with the suit. [Ss. 363, 365.].

(2) Where within the time limited by law no application is made under sub-rule (1), the suit shall abate so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned, and, on the application of the defendant, the Court may award to him the costs which he may have incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the estate of the deceased plaintiff. [S. 366, Para. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—The provisions contained in sections 363, 365 and 366 of the C. P. Code 1882 have been embodied in this rule with several alterations and omissions.—(1) The words "so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned" in sub-rule (2) are new. (2) The words "the suit shall abate" in sub-rule (2) have been substituted for the words "the Court may pass an order that the suit shall abate" which occurred in s. 366 of the Code of 1882. Under the present Code it is not necessary to make an order that the suit shall abate as it abates ipso facto, if no application is made under sub-rule (1) within the time limited by law (90 days);

Ram Gopal v. Hari Kishan, 7 L. L. J. 517: 88 I. C. 478: A. I. R 1925 Lah 598; Lachmi v. Muhammad, 42 A. 540: 59 I. C. 903.

Limitation.—The period of limitation for an application under this rule is 90 days, see Art 176 of the Limitation Act IX of 1908

The Suit shall Abate " so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned."—The words " so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned " mean that the suit shall primarily abate so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned, but they do not mean that the suit shall in no case abate as a whole. In a suit by the partners of a firm to recover a partnership debt if one of the partners dies pending the suit and his legal representative is not brought on the record, the suit will abate only so far as the deceased partner is concerned, Sarju v. Ram Sarup, 19 A. L. J. 266: 60 I C 755 But where the suit cannot proceed in the absence of the deceased plaintiff's legal representative, as when the shares of the parties in the joint property have to be determined, the death of one of such plaintiffs, if no legal representative of the deceased plaintiff is brought upon record within limitation, will have the effect of causing the suit to abate as a whole, Huda v Lala, 41 P R 1915; Raj Chunder v. Gangadas, 31 C 487 31 I. A 71.

This Rule Applies to Appeals.—This rule applies to the case of a deceased appellant as it does to the case of a deceased plaintiff (s 107 and Or XXII, r 11) Therefore where one of two or more appellants dies, and the right to appeal does not survive to the surviving appellants alone, the legal representative of the deceased appellant should be brought on the record If this is not done, the appeal will abate so far as the deceased appellant is concerned The decision of the question whether the death of one of the appellants causes the appeal of the others to abate, turns upon the question whether the right to appeal survives to the surviving appellants. If it does, the appeal of those appellants does not abate by reason of the death of one of the appellants, Ram Sewal v Lambar Pande, 25 A 27, Lachmi v. Amin Chand, 97 P. R 1900 Where several plaintiffs or defendants jointly appeal from a decree in a case to which Or. XLI, r. 4 of the Code applies, the death of one of such appellants, if no legal representative of the deceased appellant is brought on the record within the period of limitation, can only have the effect of causing the appeal to abate so far only as the deceased appellant is concerned, it cannot have the effect of causing the appeal to abate as a whole, Chandarsang v Khimabhai, 22 B. 718; Ram Sewak v. Lambar, 25 A 27, Chintaman v Gangabai, 27 B. 284; Somasundaram v. Vaithilinga, 40 M 846, Piyare Lal v. Charamani, 84 P. R. 1918; Maung Byaung v Maung Shwe, 2 R 486: 81 I. C. 170: A. I. R. 1924 Rang 376 But the appeal will abate as a whole if the case is of such a nature that the appeal cannot proceed in the absence of the legal representative of the deceased appellant.

Two or More Legal Representatives.—The words " legal representative " in Or XXII, r. 3 must, where there are more than one legal representative, be read in the plural. Hence, where a sole appellant died during the pendency of his appeal, leaving three legal representatives and only one of them was brought upon the record within the prescribed period of limitation: Held, that the appeal must abate Either all the representatives should have been brought upon the records as appellants, or if any had refused to be joined as appellants, they should have been brought on as respondents.—Ghamandi Lal v. Amir Begum, 16 A. 211. Followed in Haidar Hussain v. Abdul Ahad, 30 A. 117 5 A L. J 62 See, however, Musala Reddi v. Ramayya, 23 M. 125, where it has been held that when there are more than one legal representative, all of them must, so far as it is possible for this to be done, join in an application under this rule, and the words " legal representative " must in such a case be read in the plural. But where all the representatives cannot be joined as applicants, this rule should not be constructed so as to have the effect of rendering the application no application by " the legal representative " within the meaning of this rule (10 B. 220, and 16 A 211 considered).

Legal Representative of Deceased Plaintiff.—For the definition of the words " legal representative," see s. 2 (11) The words " legal representative," as used in this order, have a very wide significance and are not synonymous with the word "heir "; Ram Din v Raj Rani, 8 N L. R. 113. On the death of a Hindu widow during the pendency of a suit by her to recover property belonging to her deceased husband, the reversionary heirs of her husband are her legal representatives within the meaning of this rule; Premmoyi v Preonath, 23 C 636; Tribhuwan v. Sri Narain, 20 A 341; Rikhai Rai v. Sheo Pujan, 33 A 15 A suit brought by the head of a mutt, on behalf of the mutt, may be continued on his removal by his successor in office, because his successor is a person on whom the trust property devolves within the meaning of Or XXII, r. 10; Ratnam v Nataraja, 46 M. L. J. 341: A I R 1925 Mad 615 34 I. C 200 The legal representatives of a daughter, who dies after instituting a suit to recover possession of her father's property as his heir, are the next heirs of the father entitled to come in after her; Ramaswami v Pedamunayya, 39 M 382; Jadubansi v Mahpal Singh, 38 A 111. On the death of a reversioner, pending a suit for a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid, the next reversioner is the legal representative within the meaning of this rule; Venkata Narayan v Subbammal, 38 M. 406: 42 I A. 125.

An executor appointed by the will of a deceased plaintiff or appellant is his legal representative within the meaning of this rule —Payyath Nanu Menon v Thiruthipalli Raman, 20 M 51.

An administrator appointed under section 10 of Bombay Regulation, VIII of 1827, does not, by such appointment, become the legal representative of the deceased, or entitled to continue an appeal filed by him —Malapa Sidapa v Devi Naik, 21 B 102

If a question arises as to whether any person is or is not the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, such question should be determined by the Court under Or XXII, r 5 —Oula v Beepathee, 17 M 200

The original plaintiff sued for redemption of a mortgage executed by her father She claimed as the only unmarried daughter of three arraying as defendants, besides the mortgagee, her surviving married sister and three children of a deceased sister. The plaintiff died during the pendency of the suit Held that the claim being personal to the plaintiff, the suit abated, and the surviving sister could not be permitted to carry on the suit in substitution for the original plaintiff.—Balak Puri v. Durga, 30 A. 49

The right of the mother to a share on partition among the sons, is in lieu of her maintenance, and such share on her death, reverts to the sons. Where the mother brought a suit against the sons for her share of certain G. P. notes, which had been partitioned amongst themselves by them. Held that on her death the right to sue did not survive in her executor—Tripura Sundari v. Dakhina Mohan, 11 C. W. N. 698: 5 C. L. J 310

Death of Pauper Applicant.—Right to obtain permission to sue as a pauper is only a personal right. on the death of such applicant his legal representative cannot come and ask to be substituted in his place. There is a marked distinction between a right to sue and right to make an application for permission to sue as a pauper.—Lalit Mohan v. Satish Chandra, 33 C. 1163: 4 C L. J. 234 See also, Farzand Ali Khan v. Amir Haidar, 26 I. C 714.

Minor Applicant.—A minor is entitled to be made a party as the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff in the same way as an adult, but his application must be through a next friend; Ruckmani v. Veerasami, 47 M. L. J 870: 80 I. C. 942 A I R. 1924 Mad. 813.

Death of Plaintiff After Preliminary and Before Final Decree.—Where in a suit a plaintiff dies after the passing of the preliminary decree and before the passing of the final decree (as in a mortgage suit), this rule applies; Lakshmi v. Subbarama, 89 M. 488: 29 I. C. 42; Subbarayader v. Ramadasu, 42 M. L. J. 310: 68 I. C 942: A. I. R 1923 Mad 237; Natesa v. Kannammal, 46 M. L. J 181: 78 I. C. 61: A I. Death of Sole Plaintiff—Abatement of Suit.—The section refers to a death only as occurring before decree.—Bhugwan Das v. Nilkanta, 9 C W. N. 171; Ramananda v. Minatchi, 3 M 236.

Upon the death of a sole plaintiff, if no application to revive is made within the prescribed time, the suit abates. But the Court may, under s. 371, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 9) revive the suit, on the application of the legal representative of the plaintiff, within 3 years from the time when the right to apply accrues, if he can show that he was prevented by sufficient cause from containing the suit.—Bhoyrub Dass v. Doman Thakoor, 5 C 139. 4 C L. R. 374. See also, Ram Protap v. Lal Chand, 9 C W N 369 and Fulvahu v. Goculdas, 9 B 275

A sole plaintiff having died after decree an application was made after the prescribed period of limitation by his legal representative to be substituted on the record in his place. Held that s. 365, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r 3) does not apply to the case of a sole plaintiff dying after decree, the right to sue being merged in the decree.—Cally Churn v. Bhuggobutty Churn, 5 C L. R. 108. See also, Ramananda v. Minatchi, 3 M. 236

On the death of a reversioner pending a suit for a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid, the next reversioner is the legal representative and is entitled to be brought on the record as such —Venkatanarayana v. Subbammal, 38 M. 406.

The legal representative of a deceased plaintiff can only prosecute the cause of action as originally framed; similarly a defendant cannot raise any defence against the legal representative which he could not have raised against the deceased plaintiff himself —Sham Chand v. Bhayaram; 22 C. 92; Subbaraya v. Manika, 19 M. 345.

On the death of a partner the right to sue in respect of debts due to the firm survives to the surviving partners.—Balkissen v. Kanhyalal, 17 C. L. J. 648.

Abatement Where No Application by the Deceased Plaintiff's Representative.—Upon the death of a sole plaintiff, if no application to revive is made within the prescribed period of limitation from the date of the plaintiff's death, the suit abates But the suit can be revived within three years on the application of the legal representative under s. 371, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 9), if it can be shown that he was prevented by sufficient cause from continuing the suit.—Bhoyrub Dass v. Doman Thakoor, 5 C. 139: 4 C. L. R. 374; Fulvahu v. Gokuldas, 9 B 275; and Ram Pratap, v. Lall Chand, 9 C. W. N 369

Award of Costs.—Notwithstanding that s 582 C P. Code, 1882 (s. 107 and Or. XXXII, r. 11) does not expressly direct that the word " plaintiff " in s. 366, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r 3) shall be held to include an " appellant " yet the power conferred by section 366 (Or XXII, r 3, cl. 2) in the Court of original jurisdiction to award costs against the estate of a deceased plaintiff, may by analogy, be taken to be conferred on the Appellate Court.—Rajmonee Dabee v. Chunder Kant, 8 C. 440. 10 C. L R. 437 (4 B. 654 followed) See also, Dontu Pedda v. Mallan Balayya, 37 M L J. 596.

Limitation.—Under Art. 176, Act IX of 1908 the period of limitation for an application under this rule by the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff and under s 582, C. P Code, 1882 (s 107, Or XXII, r 11) by the legal representative of a deceased appellant is 90 days from the date of death.

An application for an order to set aside an abatement must be made within 60 days from the date of the abatement, under Art 171 of the Limitation Act and an application to have the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff made parties, within 6 months from the date of the deceased party under Art 176.—Mamanthin v Maung Po Win, 10 Bur L. T. 27

The provisions of Act XXVI of 1920 curtailing the period of limitation for bringing on record the legal representative of a deceased appellant to three months from the date of his death, apply also to cases where the death has taken place even before the passing of the amending Act, Nimba v. Janki, 71 I C 176; Vijaya Singh Dattaji Rao v Shivaji Rao, 26 Bom L. R. 378

If a plaintiff dies after decree, his representatives are not bound to apply within the prescribed period of limitation to be made parties to the suit, but have the same time to file an appeal as the plaintiff would have had. Ss. 363 and 365, C. P Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 3) and Art 171 of the Limitation Act 1877, do not apply to the case of a plaintiff, dying after decree —Ramananda v. Minatchi, 3 M. 236

Execution Proceedings.—The provisions of this rule do not apply to execution proceedings by virtue of r. 12 of this order.

Revision.—Under this rule, the Court must enter the name of the legal representative on the record if he applies for the same within the prescribed period Its not doing so amounts to a failure to exercise juris diction vested in it by law under this rule, and the High Court may interfere in revision under s 115 —Janardhan v. Ram Chandra, 26 B 317

Appeal Against Orders under this Rule.—No appeal lies from an adjudication that a suit or an appeal has abated, because such an adjudication does not amount to a decree; Hamida Bibi v. Ali Husen, 17 A 172, Walayat v Ram Lal, 12 A L J 1113; Muhammad v. Manohar, 20 A L. J 214 64 I C 838. But see Mati Lal v Bishambhar, 47 A 741' 88 I C 95 A I R 1925 All 431. An order of the Court declaring that a suit has abated owing to the cause of action not surviving, or that the death of one of several plaintiffs has caused an abatement in toto, is a decree, and appealable as such, Niranjan v. Afzal, 128 P R. 1916 F. Held, that an order rejecting an application that a suit might be declared to have abated by reason of the death of the plaintiff, and the invalidity of an application to the Court to bring his legal representative on to the record, was not one of the orders contemplated by s 366, C P. Code, 1882 (Or XXI, r 3), and no appeal would lie therefrom — Bhagwan Das v Maharaja of Bharatpur, 17 A. 286.

Procedure in case of death of one of several defendants or of sole defendant.

4. (1) Where one of two or more defendants dies and the right to sue does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, or a sole defendant or sole surviving defendant dies and the right to sue survives, the Court, on an application made in that behalf, shall cause the legal representative of the deceased defendant to be made a party and shall proceed with the suit.

(2) Any person so made a party may make any defence appropriate to his character as legal representative of the deceased defendant.

(3) Where within the time limited by law no application is made under sub-rule (1), the suit shall abate as against the deceased defendant. [S. 368.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to section 368, C. P. Code, 1882 The old section has been remodelled and its words have been changed. The present rule has embodied the material provisions of the old section in a more concise form. Several words and phrases of the old section have been omitted, but no material change seems to have been made in the meaning. Under the old section, application for substitution was to be made by the plaintiff or by the legal representative of the deceased defendant. But in the present rule the words "on an application made in that behalf," have been added so as to include the application of both, and hence para. 3 and the last para of the old section have been omitted as unnecessary. The insertion of the above words have also rendered the case (9 B 59) obsolete and inoperative The words "and shall issue a summon to such representative to appear on a day to be therein mentioned to defend the suit" which occurred in para 5 have been omitted as unnecessary, the omission being supplied by Or. 1, r. 10, sub-rule (4).

In sub-rule (1) of this rule the words "shall cause the legal representative of the deceased defendant to be made a party," have been substituted for the words "the Court shall thereupon enter the name of such representative on the record in the place of such defendant" which occurred in para. 4 of the old section The above amendment clearly shows that under the present rule the legal representative of the deceased defendant " is to be made a party Such addition therefore comes within Or. I, r 10 (4) See also. 8 M 300, which will explain the object of the amendment

Suit.—The word "suit" in this rule includes an appeal, and the word "defendant" a respondent, see, r. 11

Death of Defendant and Substitution of his Legal Representative.—The section applies to the case of a defendant who dies before a decree is passed.—Sambasiva v. Veera Perumal, 28 M. 361.

Where a defendant dies pending a suit, it is open to his legal representative to come on record on his application notwithstanding the plaintiff's omission to implead him. In such a case, the Court might award costs to the legal representative; Kuppuswami v. Singaravelu Chetty, 45 M L J 233 (1923) M W. N. 867.

In a suit where a defendant dies, it is not open to the plaintiff to ask the Court to add some body other than the legal representative of the deceased defendant as a party to the suit, and an application asking for this to be done would not bind the real representative; Mahomed Junaid v Aulia Bibi, 61 I C 947.

R. 1916 F. B , Subramania v Venkatanamier, 31 I C. 4; so is an order directing the abatement of a suit in consequence of no legal representative of a deceased plaintiff having applied within the time prescribed by law to be brought upon the record, Ram Sarup v. Matiram, 1 Lah. 493 · 57 I C 137.

Held, that an order rejecting an application that a suit might be declared to have abated by reason of the death of the plaintiff, and the invalidity of an application to the Court to bring his legal representative on to the record, was not one of the orders contemplated by s. 366, C P Code, 1882 (Or XXI, r 3), and no appeal would lie therefrom —Bhagwan Das v Maharaja of Bharatpur, 17 A. 286

Procedure in case of death of one of several defendants or of sole defendant.

4. (1) Where one of two or more defendants dies and the right to sue does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, or a sole defendant or sole surviving defendant dies and the right to sue survives, the Court, on an application made in that behalf, shall cause the legal representative of the deceased defendant to be made a party and shall proceed with the suit.

(2) Any person so made a party may make any defence appropriate to his character as legal representative of the deceased defendant.

(3) Where within the time limited by law no application is made under sub-rule (1), the suit shall abate as against the deceased defendant. [S. 368.]

"Does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone."—Three defendants were sued jointly as representing the estate of their late father and their liability, if any, was joint and indivisible. The lower Court dismissed the suit and the plaintiffs appealed. During the pendency of the appeal one of the defendants respondents died and the application to bring his legal representatives on the record was made nearly two years later Held, that the appeal abated in as much as the right to sue did not survive only against the two defendants on the record; Gurdas Mal v Kashi Ram, 2 Lah L J 64.

"The Court, on an application made in that behalf."—Under the old Code, application for substitution was to be made by the plaintiff or by the legal representative of the deceased defendant But in the present rule, the words "on an application made in that behalf" have been added so as to include the application of both So when a defendant dies pending a suit, it is open to his legal representative to come on record on his own application notwithstanding the plaintiff's omission to implead him. In such a case, the Court might award costs to the legal representative; Kuppaswami v. Singaravelu, 45 M. L J 233: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 679 If the legal representatives of a deceased respondent are already on the record as parties, it is not necessary to make an application for substitution and it is enough to make an entry on the record to that effect. Or. XXII r 4 is not applicable to the case, Hafizunnissa v Jawahir, 24 O. C. 374: 66 I C 24 (32 A 551 32 A 563 followed)

In a case where all the heirs of a deceased respondent are already parties to the appeal, there need be no formal application under Or. XXII, r. 4, to bring on record the legal representatives of the deceased and, the appeal will not abate on that ground Rr. 2 and 4 of Or. XXII contemplate two different sets of circumstances, and the provision in r. 2 is independent of and in no way subject to the provisions of r 4, and so r. 2 is applicable, and no application need be made under r 4, Gopal Das v. Mul Chand, 7 Lah 399: A I R 1926 Lah 607

Where No Application is Made Within the Period of Limitation.—Where on a party's death, no application is put in to bring in his legal representatives within the time allowed by law, the suit or appeal abates though the party was ignorant of the death of the deceased; Mir Nawab v. Hardeo, 60 P R 1911, Hadu v Lala, 41 P. R 1915, Jamna v Sarjit, 67 P R 1919, Jowala Ram v Hari Kishen, 5 Lah. 70 80 I. C 690: A. I R 1924 Lah. 429, Hari Saran v Eradat, 2 P L R. 279 Ignorance of death may, however, be a good ground for setting aside the abatement, Daya Singh v. Buta Singh, 118 P. R 1916

The Suit shall Abate as Against the Deceased Defendant.—Ordinarily a suit or appeal does not abate in its entirely on the death of one of several defendants or respondents because of the failure of the plaintiff or appellant to revive it against the representative of the deceased—the abatement only takes place as against the latter, Kali Dayal v. Nagendra, 24 C. W N. 44 30 C L J 217 54 I C 822, Narain Das v Sheodin, 48 A. 251: A. I R 1926 All 234 A suit or appeal does not abate in its entirety by reason of the failure of a plaintiff or appellant to bring on record the representative of a deceased defendant or respondent within the time prescribed therefor, if the suit or appeal can proceed in the absence of such representative fo a final and complete adjudication, Chandarsang v Khimiabai, 22 B 718; Bai Full v. Adesang, 26 B 205, Joy Gobind v Monmotha, 33 C 580; Upendra v Sham Lal, 34 C 1020, Mehdi Hussain v Sughra, 25 A 206, Runga v. Jnanaprakas, 30 M 67 Abdul Aziz v Baldeo, 34 A. 604; Shankarbhai v. Moti Lal, 49 B 118 A I R 1925 Bom 22, Rai Kashinath v Kailas, 4 Pat 53. 89 I C 296 A I R 1925 Pat 48, Raghbir v Sohan, 6 Lah. 233 · A. But the suit or appeal will abate as a whole if it is of such a nature that it cannot proceed, in the absence of the legal representative of the deceased, to a final and complete adjudication, Raj Chander v. Gyan Das, 31 C 487 · 31 I A 71; Hem Kunwar v. Amba Prasad, 22 A 430 Imamuddin v Sadaath, 32 A 301, Nanak Chand v. Ram Chand, 4 L L J 189 77 I C 186, Shabbar v Abbas, 23 A. If on the death of one of the defendants his legal representatives are not brought on the record, the question whether the suit abates as a whole depends upon whether the suit can proceed in the absence of the legal representatives of the deceased defendant. Where the lands in dispute are separately held by some of the defendants and the deceased defendant had no joint interest in those plots of land, the suit does not abate; Sarat Kamini v Chaitanya, 67 I. C. 290, Ratanlal v Jadeo, 75 I C 820

Held that the legal representatives of one of the deceased mortgagees not having been brought on the record within the period of limitation the appeal abates as a whole, because the suit being for redemption it cannot proceed without all the mortgagees being before the Court. Bhagwan Singh v Jamal, 3 L. L J. 252.

Where in a suit for pre-emption, the legal representatives of one of the respondents are not brought on record, the whole suit abates as the decree is indivisible —Imam v Sadarat, 32 A. 301.

Where a defendant dies, it is for the plaintiff to choose against whom he proposes to proceed, and if some one else with an adverse claim to the nominee wishes to be made the representative, he should be added as a party —Rameswar v Janeswar 18 C. W N. 129, 19 C L J 19

If pending an appeal arising out of a suit for damages against several joint wrong-doers one of the wrong doers (respondents) dies, his representative must be made a party It is not open to the plaintiff appellant to prosecute his appeal only against some of the wrong-doers (respondents) at his choice; Kali Narayan v Haran Chandra, 62 I C 714

Abatement of Suit Or Appeal as against the Deceased Defendant or Respondent Only.—Where a person is made party to a suit on a mortgage as being personally liable as a surety for the payment of the debt and on the death of such person, his legal representative is not brought on the record, the suit abates as against him only, and not as a whole; Mehdi Husain v. Sugra Begum, 25 A 206

Where the liability of the defendants is joint and several, and in appeal, on the death of one of the defendants, his legal representatives are not substituted in his place, the appeal abates so far as the deceased defendant is concerned; Joy Gobind v Monmotha, 33 C 580, Shankerbhai v. Mati Lal, 49 B. 118 26 Bom L. R 1217; The liability of fixed rate tenants to pay rent is joint and several So if one of them dies during the pendency of an appeal in a suit for recovery of rent and his legal representatives are not brought on record, the appeal abates only so far as the deceased tenant is concerned, Abdul Aziz v Baldeo, 34 A 664: 10 A L J. 183, Kashinath v. Kailash, 4 Pat. 53: 89 I C 236· A. I. R 1925 Pat 480; Upendra v Shamlal, 34 C. 1020. Whether or not the appeal abates as against the deceased respondent only or as a whole must depend upon the particular circumstances of each case The test to be applied being whether in the absence of the respondent against whom the appeal has abated, the appeal can proceed, Midnapore Zamindary Co. v Amulya, 53 C 752· 95 I. Abatement of Suit or Appeal as a Whole.—Where relief sought against defendants is joint and indivisible, abatement against one is abatement against all; Chet Ram v Msst Ilaicho, 92 I C 35 26 P. Order XLI, Rule 20 and Abatement.—Or XLI r 20 does not override the provisions of Or XXII of the Code, Manindra v Bhagabati, 30 C. W. N 45, 90 I C 986 A I R 1926 Cal 335

Limitation.—Under Art 177 of Act IX of 1908, an application for substitution of the legal representatives of a deceased defendant or respondent must be made within 90 days, from the date of the death of the defendant or respondent as the case may be. The word "respondent" in Art. 177 of Act IX of 1908 is not confined to a respondent in the first appeal only, Susya Pillai v. Aiya Kannu, 29 M. 529; but it includes also a respondent in the second appeal; Upendra v Sham Lal, 34 C 1020, Madhuban v Narain, 29 A. 535. Where a respondent dies leaving more than one heir and one of the heirs is substituted as heir on the record within time but substitution of the names of the other heirs is made after the time allowed, appeal will not abate under this rule; Sidhu Saran v. Nand Kumar, 7 Pat L T 716. 94 I C. 209. A I R 1926 Pat 276

Where before the making of a final decree in a mortgage suit, the sole judgment-debtor dies and the decree holder fails to apply within six months of his death to have his heirs substituted and made subject to the preliminary decree, the suit (under Or XXII, r. 4) will abate, Bhut Nath v Tarachand, 25 C W. N 595: 33 C L J. 115.

Death of Pro Forma Defendant.—The death of a pro forma defendant or respondent during the pendency of a suit or appeal affords no ground for the abatement of a suit or appeal and the passing of a decree without his legal representative being brought on record does not render the decree a nullity; Ambika Prosad v Jhinak Singh, 45 A. 286: 21 A. L J. 91, Abdulla v Mahammad, 2 L L J 601; Ram Labhaya v. Kartar Singh, 7 L L J 466 92 I C 261 A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 651, Brij Inder v Kanashi Ram 44 I A 218 104 P R. 1917: 45 C 94.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order refusing to set aside an order of abatement —See Order XLIII, (1) (k).

An order under the penultimate clause of s 368, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r 4), declaring a suit to have abated is appealable not as a decree, but as an order, under Or XLIII, r. 1.—Mehdi Husain v. Sughra Begum, 25 A 206 The case of Benode Mohini v. Sharat Chunder, 24 C 837 10 C L R 119, in which a contrary view was taken is no longer the law

The High Court can take cognizance of the case under s 622, C. P Code, 1882 (s 115) —Benode Mohini v. Sharat Chunder, 12 C. L R 121

Decree for or Against a Dead Person.—A decree against a defendant who was dead at the institution of the suit is a nullity; Ram Partab v Gouri Shanker, 25 Bom L R 7: 85 I C 464: A. I. R. 1925 Bom 140, Mohim v Azum, 12 W R. 45; Veerappa v. Tindal, 31 M 86 A decree passed in favour of a number of plaintiffs one of whom is dead at the time is not necessarily a nullity in its entirety in every case. A decision of this matter will depend on a variety of consideration; Sikandar Khan v Baland Khan, A I R. 1927 Lah. 435.

Death of Defendant After Preliminary and Before Final Decree.—A preliminary decree does not put an end to a suit which remains pending till final decree. Where, therefore, a defendant dies after the passing of a preliminary decree against him and an application to bring his heirs upon the record is not made within the period of limitation the suit abates Moti Lal v. Ram Narain, 39 A. 551: 40 I. C. 1006; Jaganath v. Ram Karan, 20 A. L J 575: 68 I C. 251: A. I. Indian Succession Act and Legal Representative.—The legal representatives of a deceased subject to the Indian Succession Act are his executors or administrators and not his heirs, Barnet Brs. v. Mrs. Fowle, 3 R. 46 A I R 1925 Rang 186; Framji v Adarji, 18 B. 337.

Rehearing of Suit or Appeal.—A plaintiff whose suit is heard and dismissed is not entitled to a re-hearing of the suit on the ground that one of the defendants had died previous to the hearing of the suit and that the suit was heard without bringing the legal representative of the deceased defendant on the record The same applied to appeals.—Vellyam v. Jothi 28 M. L J 138

Execution Proceedings.—This rule does not apply to execution proceedings —See r 12

Determination of question as to legal representative.

5. Where a question arises as to whether any person is or is not the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or a deceased defendant, such question shall be determined by the Court. [S. 367.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 367, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions The word " the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit " have been omitted, and the effect of the omission is that when rival parties claim to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or defendant, the Court must determine that question, and it has no longer any option in the matter. The old section is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison " If any dispute arise as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit, or decide at or before the hearing of the suit, who shall be admitted to be such legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit."

" Shall be determined by the Court."—The Court in Or. XXII, r. 5, means the Court before whom the question as to who the legal representative is, arises viz., the trial court if the question arises at the trial stage or the appellate Court if the question arises in appeal.—Mt Chand Mani v. Kartik Singh, 3 Pat. L. T. 380: 65 I. C. 131.

Where a dispute arises in the course of the trial as to who are the representatives of a deceased party, it is the duty of the primary Court to decide the dispute after investigation and if it fails to do so, the appellate Court can decide the question, Taja v. Devi Ditta, 4 Lah. L J. 314,

Rival Claimants for Substitution—Court to Determine Who is the True Legal Representative.—This rule empowers the Court, in a case where a dispute arises as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, to appoint a legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit, but the appointment of such legal representative is not a determination of any issue which is properly raised in the suit, and particularly (in a suit for partition of family property) such a vital issue as to whether the deceased plaintiff was joint or separate from the rest of the family.—Parsotam Rao v Janki Bai, 28 A 109: (1905), A. W. N. 206

When a question arises as to who are the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff, it is obligatory on the Court to decide it—Subrahmania Iyer v Muthu Vaithilinga, (1918) M. W. N. 108: 44 I. C. 987.

When rival parties claim to be the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or appellant, the Court should, either before or at the time of hearing of the suit or appeal, ascertain and determine for the purpose of the prosecution of the suit or appeal, who is the true legal representative of the deceased, and should not admit on the record all the rival claimants as legal representatives of the deceased—Muhammad Hussain v. Khushalo, 50 A 223, F B, Har Narain v. Kharag Singh, 9 A. 447; Vithu v. Bhima 15 B 145 See, however, Sankali v Murlidhur, 12 A. 200; and Balibar v. Ganesh 27 B 162, in which all the cases on the point have been referred to and discussed. See also, Palchur Mahalakshamma v. Veri Reddi, 44 M. L. J 60 69 I C 529.

Or XXII, r 3 presupposes that the party claiming to represent a deceased plaintiff is his legal representative; but if the representative character is denied, or when two or more persons claim it, the procedure prescribed in this rule should be followed.—Oula v. Beepathee, 17 M 209 Distinguished in Meenatchi Achi v Ananthanarayana, 26 M 224

A dispute within the meaning of this rule need not be between persons claiming to represent the deceased plaintiff—Subbayya v. Samiyadayyar, 18 M 496. Followed in Hanmant Singh v. Ram Gopal, 30 A 348: 5 A L J 363 Distinguished in Meenatchi Achi v. Ananthanarayana, 26 M 224

Where an alleged adopted son of a deceased plaintiff applies to be made a legal representative of the deceased and his adoption and representative character is denied by the defendant, the Court is bound to enquire as to his representative character under this rule—Vanjinathayar v Vaithinathayar, 16 I. C 798. See also, Vatsalabhai v Sambhaji, 20 Bom L R 902 47 I C 757

The Court executing a decree is not competent to entertain the question of the legitimacy of the heir of the deceased judgment-creditor seeking to continue execution proceedings.—Abidunnissa v. Amirunnissa, 2 C 327 P. C. (affirming 20 W R 305).

A respondent having died, a conditional order was, on the application of the appellant, made substituting the name of his alleged representative on the record That order was cancelled upon the application of another person, who satisfied the Court that he and not the person whose name had been conditionally substituted was the real representative, and who asked to have his name put on the record. Held, that the Court had no power to substitute the name of the applicant on the record, and no further application having been made by the appellant to complete the record, the appeal was ordered to abate —Sadhu Sarun v Dwarka Singh, 12 C. L. R. 45

Effect of Bringing a Wrong Representative on Record.—Where a person who is not the legal representative is in fact brought on record as such and the Court allows the wrong representative to be brought on record and to continue the litigation, the benefit of that litigation may be taken advantage of by the proper legal representative and the representatives on record will be accountable to him, Zamindar of Bhadrachalam v. Raja Venkatadri Appa Rao, 43 M L J 486 (1922) M W N 532

Legal Representative, Who Is?—For the purposes of Or XXII, r. 5, it is sufficient if a person has succeeded in forcing recognition of his status from the deceased and has intermeddled with the deceased's estate and is actually in possession of a portion of it, Goor Bachan Singh v. Giam Singh, (1922) Lah 175.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order under this rule —Dunni Chand v Arja, 37 A 272

No appeal lies from an order dismissing the application of a person to be brought on record as the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, such an order not being a decree, Ram Sarup v Mati Ram, 1 L 493· 57 I. C. 737, Rukhmini v Veeraswami, A. I. R 1924 Mad 819; Sahadeo v. Vidawati, 91 I C 166 A I R 1926 Lah 181, The same view was taken by the Madras High Court in the recent Full Bench case of Venkata Krishna v Krishna Reddi, 49 M 450: 50 M. L. J. 485. 95 I. C. 489 A I R 1926 Mad 586, where it was held (overruling Ayya Mudali v Veerayee, 43 M 812) that no appeal lies against an order refusing the application of a person to be brought on record as the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff on the objection of the defendant even when there is no rival claimant for being brought on the record as his legal representative

An order under Or XXII, r 5, which brings on record two rival claimants as the legal representatives of a party to a suit without adjudicating on the relative claims of both is not appealable —Shaik Aptab v. Moyan, 39 I C 371 (1917) M W N 148 (27 B. 162 distinguished). See also, Subramania Iyer v Muthu Vaithilinga, (1918) M. W. N. 198: 44 I. C. 987

No abatement by reason of death after hearing.

6. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing rules, whether the cause of action survives or not, there shall be no abatement by reason of the death of either party between the conclusion of the hearing and the pronouncing of the judgment, but judgment may in such case be pronounced notwithstanding the death and shall have the same force and effect as if it had been pronounced before the death took place. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule is new; it has been framed to give effect to the decisions noted below. See also notes under s. 50.

Where a party to a suit died after argument and before delivery of judgment, the decree passed in the suit or appeal is a valid decree, and can be executed against the heirs of the deceased defendant under s. 234 C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 80.).—Ramacharya v. Anantacharya, 21 B. 311. See also, Narna v. Anant, 19 B. 807; Chetan Charan v. Balbhadra Das, 21 A. 314, Surendra v. Doorga, 10 C. 573, P. Suit not abated by marriage of female party.

7. (1) The marriage of a female plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate, but the suit may, notwithstanding be proceeded with to judgment, and, where the decree is against a female defendant, it may be executed against her alone.

(2) Where the husband is by law liable for the debts of his wife, the decree may, with the permission of the Court, be executed against the husband also; and, in case of judgment for the wife, execution of the decree may, with such permission, be issued upon the application of the husband, where the husband is by law entitled to the subject-matter of the decree. [S. 369.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 369, C. P. Code, 1882, with the difference only that the word "where" in sub-rule (2) has been substituted for the words "if the case is one in which," which occurred in para. 2, of the old section.

A party having died while a suit was pending against him, his widow was brought upon the record, and a judgment was given against her, which was confirmed in appeal. The original decree embraced an award of certain mense-profits (occurring after the husband's death) for which the widow was personally liable. Between the original decree and final judgment, she married again and accordingly execution was sought against her second husband. Held that he was not liable and that the term "judgment" in this rule did not include the judgment in appeal.—Brojobhur Chunder v. Mohintosh, 9 W. R. 442.

8. (1) The insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which the assignee or receiver might maintain for the benefit of his creditors, shall not cause the suit to abate, unless such assignee or receiver declines to continue the suit or (unless for any special reason the Court otherwise directs) to give security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may direct.

When plaintiff's insolvency bars suit.

(2) Where the assignee or receiver neglects or refuses to continue the suit and to give such security within the time so ordered, the defendant may apply for the dismissal of the suit on the ground of the plaintiff's insolvency, and the Court may make an order dismissing the suit and awarding to the defendant the costs which he has incurred in defending the same to be proved as a debt against the plaintiff's estate. [S. 370.]

Procedure where assignee fails to continue suit or give security.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 370, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions.

The word "bankruptcy" which occurred in the old section has been omitted. The first para. of the old section is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison and observing the change introduced in sub-rule (1):—

"The bankruptcy or insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which his assignee or the receiver appointed under s. 357 might maintain for the benefit of his creditors shall not bar the suit, unless such assignee or receiver declines to continue the suit and to give security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may order."

Sub-rule (2) is almost similar to para. 2 of the old section. The changes made are merely of a verbal character.

Plaintiff's Insolvency.—This rule does not apply to a case where there has been only an application to declare the plaintiff to a suit an insolvent and vesting order made, but the proceedings are subsequently annulled, and the party is not declared either a bankrupt or an insolvent; therefore in such a case, where a suit has been dismissed for the non-appearance of the plaintiff or the Official Assignee on the date fixed for hearing, Or. IX, r. 9 applies.—Amrita Lal v. Rakhali Dassi, 27 C. 217: 4 C. W. N. 291.

If pending a suit the plaintiff is adjudged insolvent, the Court ought not to dismiss the suit without notice to the Official Receiver in whom the property of the insolvent vests, to appear and state his willingness or otherwise to continue the suit; Official Assignee of Rangoon v. Chidambaram, (1920) M. W. N. 704: 12 L. W. 551.

Section 107 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule) means that a suit abates by the insolvency of the plaintiff, but that the defendant shall not plead the abatement without giving the Official Assignee an opportunity of prosecuting the suit Where, therefore, the plaintiff after the institution of a suit, became insolvent, and the defendant thereupon obtained an order that the Official Assignee should give security for his costs within 14 days, and should be made party to the suit within one month, and that in default, the suit should be set down for dismissal within eight days after the expiration of the time so limited. Held, that such an order was irregular —Gamble v Abdul Rahiman, 12 Bom. H. C 257

If an assignee who has been substituted for the plaintiff under section 106, Act VIII, of 1859 (this section), declines to furnish security within such reasonable time as the Court may order, the defendant may, within 8 days after such neglect or refusal, plead the bankruptcy or insolvency of the plaintiff as a reason for abating the suit.—Heera Lall v Carapiet, 13 W. R 431

After the institution of a suit the plaintiff was declared insolvent, and, on the date fixed for hearing, the Official Assignee appearing applied for a postponement The Court accordingly made the following order — "It is ordered that the suit be dismissed unless the Official Assignee elects within two months to continue the suit and give security for the defendant's costs " The time for complying with the order was subsequently extended, and the plaintiff in the meantime obtained an order allowing the insolvency proceedings to be withdrawn The defendant now applied for dismissal of the suit in pursuance to the terms of the above order, and the plaintiff objected as he was no longer insolvent and now ready to prosecute the suit Held, that the order had been made in an improper form, inasmuch as this rule gives the Court no power to order the dismissal of the suit, and that the Court could now rectify it by cancelling that portion of the order —Lekhraj Chuni Lal v. Sham Lal, 16 B 401.

After the institution of a suit the plaintiff was declared an insolvent and thereupon the defendants obtained an order under this rule directing the Official Assignee to elect within the time fixed by the order, whether he would proceed with the suit, and, if so, to give security for costs Subsequently a creditor of the insolvent obtained an order from the Insolvency Court for the examination of the defendants with reference to the estate and effects of the said insolvent Held, that the defendants who have filed written statements in the suit, and who have in that suit given inspection of the decuments in their possession, ought not to be examined until that case is heard —In re Bhagwan Das, 22 B 447.

Insolvency of Pauper Applicant.—Where a pauper applies for leave to sue in forma pauperis, and after such application is granted, becomes insolvent, the provisions of the present rule can be applied, but not before. Chidambaram v Kother, 48 M L J 491: 87 I. C. 720. A. I R 1925 Mad 791

" Or. to give security."—Security for costs required to be furnished by the official Assignee should be at the time when electing to proceed with the suit he brings himself on the record as plaintiff Where without any such security being demanded, the option is given to the official assignee to continue the suit and on that option he has brought himself on the record and has been prosecuting the suit, no order for security of costs can be made at any subsequent stage ; Venusami Iyengar v

Varadaraja Iyer, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 511: 100 I. C. 440 The object of Or. XXII, r. 8 is to make the Official-Assignee, in case he fails in the suit, liable for all costs of the suit and not only liable for such costs as were incurred after he appeared on the scene Under this rule, the official assignee should give security for the costs of the suit incurred up to the date when the official assignee is made a party plaintiff and not all costs that may be incurred till the termination of the suit, Gulam Hussain v Pianally, 28 Bom L. R. 1074 A. I R 1926 Bom 533

Limitation.—There is no limitation provided for the Official Assignee to appear and apply for substitution in place of a plaintiff who is adjudged an insolvent or for such plaintiff to appear and apply for the restoration of his name on the record after the adjudication is annulled Till therefore an order is obtained under Or XXII, r 8 of the C P. Code, the proceedings cannot abate and must be deemed to continue, Khunnilal v. Rameshar, 43 A 621 19 A L J 685

Execution Proceedings.—This rule does not apply to execution proceedings See rule 12

Effect of abatement or dismissal.

9. (1) Where a suit abates or is dismissed under this Order no fresh suit shall be brought on the same cause of action.

(2) The plaintiff or the person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or the assignee or the receiver in the case of an insolvent plaintiff may apply for an order to set aside the abatement or dismissal; and if it is proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from continuing the suit, the Court shall set aside the abatement or dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit. [S. 371.]

(3) The provisions of section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall apply to applications under sub-rule (2) [S 372-A.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para 1 of s 371, C. P Code, 1882, with verbal changes only

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of s 371, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions The words "the plaintiff or the person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or the assignee or the receiver in the case of an insolvent plaintiff," have been substituted for the words, "but the person claiming to be the legal representative of the deceased bankrupt or insolvent plaintiff," which occurred in the beginning of para 2 of the old section The other changes in this sub-rule are mere verbal

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to s 372-A of the C P Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "applicable to appeals," which occurred in the old section

Limitation.—An application to set aside an abatement or order of dismissal is to be made within 60 days under Arts 171 and 172 of the Limitation Act

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit, under Or XLIII, r. 1 (k).

Where a party to a suit dies and more than 3 months after an application is made to bring on record his legal representative, the application is one under Or XXII, r 9 (2), and the order thereon is appealable under Or. XLIII, r 1 (k)

" May apply for an order to set aside the abatement."—The following persons are competent to apply under sub-rule (2), viz., (a) the plaintiff [where a suit has abated under r 4 (3)] (b) the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff [where a suit has abated under r. 3 (2)] and (c) the assignee of an insolvent plaintiff [where a suit is dismissed under r. 8 (2)].

Each one of the appellants is entitled to prosecute the appeal and to apply for setting aside abatement and for substitution ; Sadhusaran v. Nandkumar, 7 Pat L T 746 A I R 1926 Pat 276

Where a suit abates on account of the death of the sole defendant in the suit, the abatement must be set aside under Or. XXII, r 9, before a substitution of parties could be made ; Mt. Bibee Khozaima v The Official Liquidator of the Kayestha Trading and Banking Association, 2 Pat 168 , Mahanth Ramperkash v Kunj Lall, 4 Pat. L. T. 567. See also, Jogunessa Bibi v Satish 28 C W N 559, where it was held that where substitution had already been made the order for substitution could be treated as being one setting aside the abatement.

Whether Formal Order of Abatement Necessary Before Abatement can be Set Aside.—Where no application is made within the prescribed time to bring upon the record the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or appellant, the suit or appeal abates automatically. There is no necessity to pass an order that the suit has abated ; Ram Gopal v. Har Kishen, 7 L L J 517 88 I C. 478. A. I. R 1925 Lah 508, Qaim v Nura, 7 L 73 A. I R 1926 Lah. 234 ; Sarat Chandra v. Maihar Stone Co Ltd , 49 C. 62· A I. R. 1922 Cal. 335; Lachmi v Muhammad, 49 C 62· 42 A 540 But in Gujrati v. Sitai, 44 A. 459 66 I C 554, the Allahabad High Court held that before there can be an order of abatement, there must be an order, and it is from the date of the order that limitation begins to run

" No fresh suit."—When it is sought to revive a suit on the death of the plaintiff, the cause of action of the original and the revived suit must be same, and that no fresh cause of action can be imported into the revived suit —Sham Chand v Bhayaram, 22 C. 92. See also, Umrao Begum v Irshad Hussain, 21 C 997, P. C.

" Sufficient cause."—Where the plaintiff shows sufficient cause for not making the application for the substitution of the legal representative of the deceased defendant within the prescribed period and when he shows a bona fide desire throughout to effect the substitution, his application is not barred.—Syed Hossain Ally v Abdur Rahim, 7 C. W. N. 520.

Mere ignorance of the fact of death is not a sufficient excuse under Or XXII, r. 9; Chuni Lal v. Kala Khan, 4 L L J. 171 67 I. C. 596: A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 61; Phulwati v Mahishtwari, 75 I. C 909

Before an abatement is set aside the Court has to be satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not applying in time Ignorance of death, standing by itself, may be sufficient cause, but if it is accompanied by great delay and dilatoriness it would be otherwise, Sarat Chandra v Maihar Stone and Lime Co. Ld, 49 C 62. 67 I C 917, Tirath Ram v. Mahomed Abdul Rahim Shah, 73 I C 616, Jowala Ram v. Hari, 5 L 70: A I. R. 1924 Lah 429; Rajani v. Raja Jyoti, 27 C. W. N 710: 75 I C 255· A. I R 1924 Cal. 90 Ignorance of the whereabouts of the legal representatives of the deceased may also be a sufficient cause unless the ignorance was due to negligence, Munshi Ram v Radha, 6 L. L. J 192: 80 I. C 694 A I R. 1924 Lah 461; Muhammad Mohsin v. Muhammad Abid, 91 I. C 560

Under Or. XXII, r. 9, it must be proved that the appellant was prevented by "sufficient cause" from going on with the suit within the time allowed by law; otherwise the appeal once abated shall not be revived and the High Court has no discretion in the matter —Gopallal v Kerani Gope, 28 I C 803 See also, Daya Singh v Butu Singh, 118 P R 1916

It is the duty of the person prosecuting an appeal to keep himself informed of the existence of his adversary A mere plea of ignorance of the death of the opposite party is not a sufficient ground for setting aside an order that an appeal should abate.—Mahomad Aslam v Lalu, 45 I. C. 591· 21 O C 68

The provisions in Or. XXII, r. 9 (3) does not confine the sufficient cause mentioned in Sub-rule (2) to the circumstances given in s 15 of the Limitation Act; Lachmi Narain v. Muhammad Yusuf, 42 A 540: 18 A. L. J 688

Where more than three months after the death of a defendant in a suit the Court brought his legal representatives on record on an application for that purpose, on the ground that the parties were ignorant of the reduction of the time allowed by recent legislation, held, that the delay was properly excused; Lakshmibai v Yeswant Vithal, 24 Bom L. R 909.

Where the appellant had reason to suppose that the enactment of Act XXVI of 1920 would not affect the period of limitation for an application to implead the legal representative of a respondent who had died before the Act came into force, the abatement was set aside, Niaz Ahmed Khan v Abdul Latif, A I R 1923 Lah. 475

Where one of the defendants died pending the appeal, and the legal representatives of the deceased defendants were under the impression that the co-defendants were prosecuting the appeal and challanging the validity of the entire decree, it was held that it was a sufficient ground for excusing the delay in making the application to bring him on the record; Chandrakumar v Sandhyamani, 36 C 418: 2 I C 112

As to what is "Sufficient Cause," see also, Shiba Prasad v. Rati Maity, 53 I C 586, Tiur Sing v. Todar Mal, 22 P. W. R. 1919: 49 I C 50, Syed Akhtar Hussain v. Qudrat Ali, 9 O & A L R 267 73 I C 215. See also, sub-rule (2) of the rule and s. 5 of the Limitation Act which says: "The fact that the appellant or the applicant was misled by any order, practice or judgment of the High Court in ascertaining or computing the prescribed period of limitation may be sufficient cause within the meaning of the section."

Sub-rule (3).—If no application is made within 60 days to set aside the abatement or dismissal under Arts. 171 and 172 of the Limitation Act, the Court has the power under s. 5 of the Limitation Act to admit the application after the expiry of that period, if the applicant satisfies the Court that he has sufficient cause for not making the application within 60 days.

Substitution without setting aside abatement.—Where a suit abates on the death of a sole defendant, no order for the substitution of his legal representative in place of the deceased can be made untill the abatement has been set aside under this rule; Bibi Khozaima v. Official Liquidator, 2 Pat 168, A I R 1923 Pat. 417. According to the Bombay High Court the omission to set aside the abatement is merely a formal defect; Lakshmibai v. Yeshvant, 47 B 92.

10. (1) In other cases of an assignment, creation or devolution of any interest during the pendency of a suit, the suit may, by leave of the Court, be continued by or against the person to or upon whom such interest has come or devolved. [S. 372.]

Procedure in case of assignment before final order in suit.

(2) The attachment of a decree pending an appeal therefrom shall be deemed to be an interest entitling the person who procured such attachment to the benefit of sub-rule (1). [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to s. 372 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The change introduced in sub-rule (1) will be apparent on a comparison with the provisions of the old section, which is reproduced below: "In other cases of assignment, creation, or devolution of any interest pending the suit, the suit may, with the leave of the Court given either with the consent of all parties, or after service of notice in writing upon them and hearing their objections (if any), be continued by or against the person to whom such interest has come either in addition to, or in substitution for, the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require." On a comparison it would appear that the words "during the pendency of a suit" have been substituted for the words "pending the suit," and the words "by leave of the Court" have been substituted for the words "with the leave of the Court."

The words "given either with the consent of all parties, or after service of notice in writing upon them and hearing their objections (if any)" and the words "either in addition to or in substitution for, the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require," which occurred in the old section have been omitted

On a comparison of sub-rule (1) with the old section, it would appear that under the present rule it is not necessary for the Court to give leave with the consent of the parties or after service of notice upon them By the above alteration in language, no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Sub-rule (2) is new. It has been framed to override the case of Chail Behari v. Rahmal Das, 20 A. 38, in which it was held that a creditor of a decree-holder who had attached the decree pending an appeal against it was not entitled to be made a party respondent under this rule

"Other cases of assignment, creation or devolution of interest pending suit."—Rules 2, 3 and 4 deal with the case of devolution of interest on the death of a party to a suit Rule 7 deals with the case of creation of an interest in a husband on marriage of a female party, and Rule 8 deals with the case of assignment on the insolvency of a plaintiff. This rule provides for cases of assignment, creation and devolution of interest other than those mentioned above.

The words "other cases" in this rule mean cases other than those specifically mentioned in the previous rules If therefore the proceeding rules, though they have dealt with the event of death, have so dealt with particular cases only, other cases will fall under this rule. A mortgage suit even after an order absolute for sale is a pending suit until the sale actually takes place, and an application made before sale by the legal representatives of the decree-holder for substitution would fall under this rule; Bhugwan Das v Nilkanta, 9 C W N 171 See also, Chunna Lal v. Abdur Ali, 23 A. 331; Dakoju Subbarayadu v Musti Ramadasu; 42 M. L. J. 301. (1922) M W N. 375 R 10 is a residuary rule governing only those cases which are not provided for by the pending rules, Sahdev Singh v. Vidyawati, 91 I C. 166. A I R 1926 Lah 181.

"Interest."—The "interest" contemplated by this rule is an interest which will be vitally affected by the suit; Harihar v Gendilal, 43 I. C 811. The word "interest" in this rule means interest in the property which is the subject-matter of the suit; Harish v Chandpore Co. Ltd, 30 C 961 A obtained a decree for money against a certain limited company The company had sold their properties to a third person who again sold his rights to another limited company On an application for execution of the decree against the latter company, substituting them on the record as the legal representatives of the former company on their dissolution Held, that the decree could not be enforced against the latter company, this rule not being applicable to the case, Harish v Chandpore Co Ltd, 30 C 961 (followed in Arbuthnots' Industrials v. Muthu Chettiar, 31 M 464 4 M L T 90) An adoption is not a "devolution" or the "creation" of an interest within the meaning of this rule It is the creation of a status to which certain incidents are attached by law; Ganpatrao v Laxmi Bai, 15 N L R 24

Assignment, Creation or Devolution of Interest Pending Suit.—A suit brought on behalf of a mutt by a trustee not properly appointed can be continued by a properly appointed successor on whom the repre- sentation of the institution has devolved. Or. XXII, r. 10, and not Or. XXII, r. 5 applies to such a case; Ratnam Pillai v. Annamalai [illegible] 46 M. L. J. 341 : 19 L. W. 367.

Where a trustee dies or retires and another is elected in his place the estate devolves on the new trustee and it is a case of devolution of interest within the meaning of this rule. The new trustee can be added under Or. XXII, r. 10; Thirumalai v. Aruna Chella, 92 I. C. 529: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 540.

Where a suit is alleged to have been compromised and a document embodying the compromise has been filed in Court, the suit does not cease to be pending until the passing of the decree. Consequently it is open to a person alleging himself to be the purchaser of the property before the compromise to apply under Or. XXII, r. 10 to be added as a party to the suit; Lakshan Chandra v. Nikunjamani, 27 C. W. N. 755 (32 C. 4[illegible] 13 C. L. J. 487, 43 M. 37, 37 A. 326 refd. to).

Where the High Court sends for the records in an appeal filed by the plaintiff against an interlocutory order of the lower Court refusing to appoint a receiver of the property, the suit is still pending on the file of the trial Court and it has jurisdiction to bring on record, the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff. Bhogilal v. Darasha Kooverji, 25 Bom. L. R. 308.

The words " during the pending of a suit " in Or. XXII, r. 10, relate to a suit in which no final order has been made.—Gocool Chunder v. The Administrator-General of Bengal, 5 C. 726: 5 C. L. R. 569.

A party seeking to bind the Official Assignee by the result of a suit pending which the interest in its subject-matter has devolved upon him by operation of law, should apply under this rule to have him joined as a party to the suit. This rule is applicable only to the case of an assignment of an interest in the subject-matter of the suit during the pendency of the suit.—Punnitharolu v. Bhashyam, 25 M. 406 (18 C. 43 referred to). The " devolution " referred to in Or. XXII, r. 10 is not of the same character as is referred to in the definition of " legal representative " in s. 2 (11) and only means the devolution of the interest of the person who instituted the suit.—Lakshmi v. Subbarama, 28 M. L. J. 491 : 29 I. C. 142.

The " cases of assignment, creation, or devolution " of any interest pending a suit contemplated by this rule are those in which " the person to whom such interest has come " is arrayed on the same side in the suit as " the person to whom it has passed." Held, therefore, that a compromise in a suit for land between the plaintiffs and one of the defendants whereby the latter consented to a decree being given to the former for half of the land, was not a " case of assignment " of interest in such land within the meaning of this rule.—Radha Prasad v. Rajendra Kishore, 5 A. 209.

Order XXII, r. 10 applies to an application made by a person who has not obtained any assignment directly from a party to the suit but has obtained an assignment derivatively from a party to the suit.—Prasanna Kumar v. Ashutosh, 18 C. W. N. 450; 20 I. C. 685.

Where a public trust is represented at different stages of a suit by different representatives, one not claiming under the other, the rule applicable to the case is Or. XXII, r. 10, and not Or. XXII, r. 8 of the C. P. Code; Sundaresan Chetty v. Visvanatha, 45 M. 703: 43 M. L. J. 147: (1922) M. W. N. 444.

A person who had advanced monies to the plaintiff to carry on the suit and had obtained an assignment of half of her interest, which assignment was disputed by the plaintiff, was made a party defendant on his own application only upon the statement of the plaintiff that the assignment was executed but without deciding her objection that the assignment was not good and valid.—Rajaranee Dassee v. Debendro Nath, 8 C W. N. 754.

A mortgagee of defendant's property before suit, who has also made further advances to the defendants on the same security after the suit, is entitled to be made a party to the suit under this rule on defendant's declaring his intention of abandoning his defence.—Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy, 8 B. 323.

The language of Or. XXII, r. 10 is sufficiently wide to cover the cases of leases such as those which are alleged to have been granted by the defendants during the pendency of the litigation Ramkumar Lal v. Raja Mukund, 1 Pat L. J 596 (39 C. 220 distd). See also, Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra v. Ramlal Bhagat, 27 C W N. 29 P. C.; 36 C. L. J 542; 49 I A 220 P. C.

When certain persons applied to be made co-plaintiffs and failed, they could not apply to have the application treated as one under Or. XXII, r. 10 for substitution of new plaintiffs on the ground that there had been a transfer or devolution of interest from the plaintiff, pendente lite.—Srimati Bibi Jan v. Abdul, 36 I. C 999.

The words " devolution of interest " in this rule do not mean only devolution by death, but are applicable to a case in which, pending a suit instituted by the manager of Chota Nagpore encumbered estate, the estate is released from the management and restored to the owners It is open in such a case to persons alleging themselves to be owners of the estate to apply to be made plaintiffs in the place of the manager, under this rule —Sourindra Mohun Tagore v Siromoni Debi, 28 C 171; 5 C. W N. 307. The assignee of a mortgage deed has a right to come in under this rule. When a receiver has filed a suit and has been discharged during its pendency the person beneficially entitled to the property, may be allowed to continue the suit as plaintiff —Macleod v. Kishan, 30 B. 250: 6 Bom. L. R. 996

The insolvency of defendants in a mere money suit does not affect the devolution of any interest upon the Official Assignee within the meaning of this rule which is substantially the same in its terms as s 372 of the old Code.—Jethalal Kalianji v. Gangaram, 29 I. C. 30 8 S. L. R. 325.

On the death of the plaintiff, his sons, who were mere heirs of a joint Mitakshara family, of which their father, the deceased plaintiff, was a managing member, applied for the revival of the suit. Held, that it was not necessary that either letters of administration or certificate under Act

VII of 1889 should be obtained in order to entitle the applicants that they may be permitted to proceed with the suit —Beejraj v Persaud, 23 C. 912

An adoption is not the creation of an interest within Or. XXII, but is the creation of a status. It does not operate as a devoluti interest or as an alienation —Ganpat Rao v. Laxmi Bai, 43 I. C. 6

If a person applies to be substituted or added under Or. XXII, on the ground of assignment pendente lite and it is disputed, the has power to decide that dispute. This rule is not confined to ca admitted assignment, creation or devolution of interest.—Enday Benodini 29 C L. J 362 51 I. C. 233; Surendra Narayan v Nit Narayan, 90 I C 267 A. I. R 1926 Cal. 173; Allah Jawaya v Rai, 94 I. C. 926 A. I R. 1925 Lah 574.

Assignment or Devolution of Interest Pending Appeal.—This does not apply to a case where the devolution of interest occurs be the time of the passing of a decree and the time of filing an appeal the decree —Collector of Muzafarnagar v. Husaini Begum, 18 A Distinguished in In re Durga Prasad, 22 A. 231. See also, Narain v. Dy Commr., Pertabgarh, 38 I. C. 511: 20 O. C. 31.

Held, that the rule applies as well as to the case of a devoluti interest pending an appeal as to the case of a devolution of interest ing a suit —Held, also, that a person may, under this rule be add substituted as a party either on his own application, or on the appli of one of the parties already on the record.—Gokal Chand v. Sarat dra, 18 A 285 Followed in In re Durga Prasad, 22 A 231; Rajani v. Raja Joyti Prasad, 27 C. W. N. 710

Death of respondent pending appeal—Right of assignee his in to be substituted in his place Held, that where there has not only bee death of the respondent, but an alleged prior conveyance to him o property awarded by the decree appealed against, there is a fact in tion to the fact contemplated by s 368, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. r. 4) and this rule being alone sufficiently inclusive, must apply —So ram Bhagvat v. Jibai, 9 B. 151 Approved in Jamna Das v. 16 B. 27

A obtained a decree against B, declaring his right to a house decree was reversed on appeal, and A's claim was dismissed. The Court reversed the decree of the District Court and remanded the ap On remand the District Court made a decree in favour of A confirmin original decree of the first Court. Subsequent to the decree of District Court on remand, B sold the house to C. B then preferr special appeal to the High Court. but died before it was heard that C could not carry on the special appeal after B's death —More Bapuji v. Kushaba, 2 B. 248

Assignment of decree pending appeal—Assignee of decree made pondent to appeal—Decree reversed in appeal—Liability of assignee costs of hearing in lower Court Held, that the assignee of a decree, is made respondent in an appeal from it and takes no steps actively support it, ought not to be ordered to pay costs —Ramji Morarji v Ellis, 20 B. 167.

A receiver who filed the appeal was discharged and a new receiver was appointed in his place. Held, that the litigation commenced by him did not abate, but it cannot proceed without his successor being impleaded.—Akula Paradesi v. Dhelli Jagannatha, 28 A. 157.

No New Suit.—The suit, carried on with the leave of the Court by the person who has acquired an interest by devolution, is not a new suit. It is the old suit carried on at his instance, and he is bound by all proceedings up to the stage when he obtains leave to carry on the proceedings; Rai Caran v. Biswanath, 20 C. L J. 107. The essence of this rule, whether applied to proceedings in the Court of the first instance or proceedings in appeal, is that the suit is one from the beginning, and that the addition of the transferee does not initiate, as regards him, a new proceeding; Chuni Lal v. Abdul 'Ali, 23 A. 331, 335.

Limitation.—The right of the assignee to apply for substitution in a pending suit is a right which accrues from day to day and is not therefore barred by limitation.—Kedar Nath v. Hara Chand, 8 C. 420, Surendra Keshub v. Khetter Krishto, 30 C 609; Prasanna Kumar v. Ashutosh, 18 C. W. N 450.

In a partition suit a preliminary decree was made in July 1887. Since then no steps had been taken to carry out the decree. The plaintiff, the father of the petitioners, died in December, 1891, leaving the petitioners, who now applied to have the suit revived in their name Held, that the application was made in a pending suit, and though falling within this rule was not time barred, the right to apply being one which accrues from day to day.—Ram Nath v. Uma Charan, 3 C W. N 756 (8 C 420 followed).

After the preliminary decree and before the final decrees where the judgment-debtor dies and more than six months after his death an application is made to bring his legal representatives on the record, such application falls under Or. XXII, r 10, and not under Or. XXII, r. 4 and is not barred by time, Tularam v. Tukaram, 64 I C 307

Appeal Against Orders under this Rule.—Under Or XLIII, r. 1, cl (l), an appeal lies from an order under this rule giving or refusing to give leave

On an application for substitution made under this rule, it was objected that the application could not be granted, but the Court overruled the objection and ordered the substitution applied for. Held, that the order for substitution was practically the same as an order disallowing objections, and that there was nothing in the terms of section 588 (21), C P. Code, 1882 [Or XLIII, r. 1, cls (k), (l)], to prevent an appeal from that order.—Sourindra Mohun Tagore v. Siromoni Debi, 28 C. 171. 5 C. W. N 307.

An order dismissing on its merits an application by the assignee of a plaintiff in a suit to be brought upon the record either in addition to or in substitution for the plaintiff, is a judgment within the meaning of article 15 of the Letters Patent and an appeal lies therefrom.—Commercial Bank of India v. Sabju Saheb, 21 M 252

Execution Proceedings.—It is doubtful whether Or. XXII, r 10 applies to execution proceedings.—Harish Chandra v. Chandpore Company

Limited, 30 C. 961. This rule seems to have been made applicable to execution proceedings by Or. XXII, r. 12 by the principle of exclusion—Midnapore Zemindary Co Ld v. Kumar Naresh Narain Roy, 16 C. W. N. 109 (30 C. 961 referred to)

Application of Order to appeals.

11. In the application of this Order to appeals, so far as may be, the word "plaintiff" shall be held to include an appellant, the word "defendant" a respondent, and the word "suit" an appeal [S. 582]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to the latter part of section 582, with some alterations The first portion of the section has been incorporated in s 107.

This rule gives effect to Shoshi Bhusan v. Girish Chunder, 11 C 604, Chajmal Dass v Jagadamba Prosad, 10 A. 260; Debi Din v. Chunna Lal, 10 A. 264, Rajmonee v. Chunder Kant, 8 C. 440: 10 C. L R 437: 11 A. 408 and 22 A 430 In these cases it has been held that the word "plaintiff" or "defendant" must be held to include "appellant" or "respondent" respectively The cases in which a contrary view was taken have been overridden by this rule.

Death of Appellant or Respondent—Abatement of Appeal.—Where the right to sue is a personal right, it ceases with the death of the appellant and the appeal abates, as in the case of a reversioner.—Satyabhami v Bhavani, 27 M. 588

The test to determine whether or not the failure to bring upon the record the heirs of one of several respondents, who has died, has the effect of causing an abatement of the entire appeal or qua that particular respondent alone, is as to whether or not the appeal can be decided without, as a result of that decision, bringing into existence two decrees contrary to each other. If the result of hearing and deciding the appeal would be to bring into existence two decrees of Courts of competent jurisdiction contrary to each other, the appeal must abate as a whole; Sheo Chand v Sita Ram, A. I R 1927 All. 331

Where pending an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit for malicious prosecution on the ground that the damages awarded were insufficient, the appellant (plaintiff) died: Held, that the appeal abated; Murugappa Chettiar v. Ponnusami, 44 M. 828: 41 M. L. J. 304: (1921) M. W. N. 138

At the date of the hearing of the appeal the appellant was dead, but neither the pleader nor the Court was aware of the fact. The Court heard and decided the appeal Subsequently the deceased appellant's son applied for re-hearing of the appeal. Held, that the decree of the lower Appellate Court was a nullity The Court was barred under s 365, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r 3) to enter his name on the record and to rehear the appeal.—Janardhan v Ram Chandra, 26 B. 317.

Death of joint appellant pending appeal—Legal representative of the deceased appellant not brought on the record—Appeal proceeded with by surviving-appellant. Held, that the Appellate Court had power to hear the appeal and reverse the whole decree under s. 544, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 4).—Chintaman v. Gangabai, 27 B. 284: 5 Bom. L. R. 90.

Pending the hearing of a special appeal the appellant died, and after the prescribed period of limitation, his son and the sole heir applied to be substituted as appellant in place of the deceased for the purpose of prosecuting the appeal. Held, that the application was not made under s. 365, (Or. XXII, r. 3) but under s. 587, C. P. Code, 1882, (s. 108) and was, therefore, not barred by art. 171 and 172 of the Limitation Act. —In the matter Ram Sunker, 3 C. L. R 440.

Leave to revive the the widow's appeal, which abated on her death before the hearing was obtained by the younger daughter of the deceased talukdar, one of the defendants· she being next among those who would have a claim to inherit the taluk in succession should the appeal be decreed. Held, that the appellant by revivor must be restricted to the suit for the taluk, and could not advance on this appeal any claim of her own which she might have preferred in a suit to inherit property which had belonged to the deceased other than the talukdari estate.—Umrao Begum v. Irshad Husain, 21 C. 997, P. C.

Procedure analogous to that laid down in s 368, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 4), in respect of the death of a defendant must be applied in the case of the death of a respondent. Where, therefore, a respondent dies pending an appeal, the appellant is at liberty to select one or more persons to defend the appeal; and no person, other than the person so selected, has a right to force himself into the proceedings and to claim to have his name entered as representative of the deceased respondent against the appellant's consent.—Lakshmi Bai v Balkrishna, 4 B. 654. See also, Rajmonee Dabee v Chunder Kant, 8 C 440, 10 C. L R 437.

Although a Court is bound by s 368, C P Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 4), to place on the record the name of the person alleged by the appellant to be the legal representative of a deceased respondent, nevertheless, where a person, other than the person alleged by the appellant to be such representative, claims, on good primâ facie grounds to be the representative of the deceased respondent, and the interest of the person entitled to the estate of the deceased may be prejudiced, the Court should under s. 32, C. P Code, 1882 (Or I, rr 8, 10, 11), proceed to make such claimant also a party to the appeal —Athappa v Ayanna, 8 M 300.

On the death of a respondent pending an appeal, the assignee of his interest has a right to be substituted in his place —Rajaram Bhagvat v. Jibai, 9 B 151.

Where several plaintiffs or defendants jointly appeal against a decree to which s 544, C. P Code, 1882 (Or XLI, r 4) applies, the death of one of such appellants, if no legal representative of the deceased is brought upon the record within limitation, can only have the effect of causing the appeal to abate only as against the deceased appellant, it cannot have the effect of causing the appeal as a whole to abate —Ram Sewak v. Lambar Pande, 25 A 27 (22 A 222 overruled, 16 A 211 distinguished). See also, Alla Baksh v Madho Ram, 23 A. 22; and Chandarsang v.

Khimabhai, 22 B. 718. Followed in Bai Full v. Adesang, 26 B. 203 and in Upendra Kumar v. Sham Lal, 34 C. 1020: 11 C. W. N. 1100, 6 C. L J. 715. Referred to in Chintaman v. Gangabai, 27 B 284. But where the relief sought against the defendants is joint and indivisible, abatement against one is abatement against all; Sardara v. Allahyar, 73 I. C. 604.

Where a joint decree for possession in favour of the several plaintiffs was passed by the trial Court and pending an appeal therefrom by the defendant, one of the plaintiffs respondents dies and his legal representatives are not brought on record within time, the whole appeal abates, Arjun Mirdha v Kali Kumar, 68 I C. 194; Sheikh Dendoo v. Shaikh Sachon, 72 I. C. 2

Where for failure to bring on record the representatives of one of the respondents who is a necessary party, the appeal abates, it also abates as against all respondents, Ma Zan Nyein v. Maung Kyaw Zan, 1 Rang 189. 74 I. C 1027.

Where a respondent dies during the pendency of an appeal and his legal representatives are not brought on record within time, the appeal automatically abates as against him, even where the appellant is not aware of his death, Sheo Chand v. Sita Ram, 100 I. C. 482: A I R 1927 All 331 (A. I R 1926 All 217, folld).

Where one of four respondents in the lower Appellate Court died, and no application was made within 6 months to put the legal representative on the record, and, in the application that eventually was made, the wrong person was named as legal representative: Held, that the appeal was one where the right to appeal did not survive against the surviving respondents, but against them and the representatives of the deceased respondent Under the circumstances s. 368, C. P Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r 4), read with this rule, applied, and the proper order was to have directed the suit to abate —Hem Kunwar v. Amba Prasad, 22 A. 430. Distinguished in Dharan Jit Narayan v. Chandeswar Prosad, 11 C W N. 504, 5 C L. J 393 and in Joy Gobind v. Monmotho Nath, 33 C. 580

In a suit for accounts of partnership business, all the partners are necessary parties and the suit cannot go on in the absence of any one of them. A respondent, to whom a sum of money was due under the decree of the first Court died, pending an appeal to the High Court An application for substitution of his representative was made more than 6 months after his death, and no sufficient cause was shown for the delay Held, that the nature of the suit being such that the right to sue did not survive against the other defendants (respondents) alone, the appeal abated —Raj Chunder v Ganga Das, 31 C. 487, P. C.: 8 C. W. N 442

Where in an appeal the interests of the several respondents cannot be discriminated, an order of abatement in respect of one of the respondents results in the abatement of the appeal against all; Srimati Golasmaler Khatun v. Nawab Khajah Habibulla, 64 I. C 49.

An appeal does not abate by reason of the failure of an appellant to bring on record, the representative of a deceased respondent within the prescribed period, if the appeal can proceed, in the absence of such representative, to a final and complete adjudication.—Ranga Srinivasa

v. Gnanaprakasa Mudaliar, 30 M. 67 (31 C. 487. 8 C. W. N. 442 distinguished).

Where on the death of a respondent it appears that his heirs are already parties to the appeal, it cannot be said to have abated merely because no fresh application is made to bring on the record the legal representatives of the deceased; Kartar Singh v. Lal Singh, 59 I. C. 238

When during the pendency of an appeal against a decree for rent one of the plaintiffs (respondents) died and his heirs were not brought on the record: Held, that the appeal ought to be dismissed—Tarip Dafadar v. Khotjannessa, 10 C W N 981 (6 C. W. N. 196 followed)

Where the special appellant died during the pendency of the appeal: Held, that the appeal must abate; and that the respondent could not require that it should proceed, in order that he might have an opportunity of taking objections to the decree of the lower Court. If the respondent desires to secure the right of asking for a decision on his objection, he must file a separate appeal.—Jatta Bin v. Babu Bin, 3 Bom H. C 81.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT

XV Add the following to Rule 11, Order XXII —

" Provided always that where an Appellate Court has made an order dispensing with service of notice of appeal upon legal representatives of any person deceased under Order XLI, Rule 14 (3), the appeal shall not be deemed to abate as against such party and the decree made on appeal shall be binding on the estate or the interest of such party " (P. 1577.)

COMMENTARY.

Scope of Object of the Rule.—This rule is new It has been framed to set at rest the several conflicting rulings under the old Code. Under the Code of 1882, it was held in several cases that Chapter XXI of that Code, which has been replaced by this Order, did not apply to proceedings in execution of a decree. But this rule provides that with the exception of rules 3, 4 and 8 of this Order all other rules shall apply to execution proceedings. Rule 3 deals with the procedure in case of death of one of several plaintiffs or of sole plaintiff; rule 4 deals with the procedure in case of death of one of several defendants or of sole defendant; and rule 8 deals with the procedure in case of plaintiff's insolvency.

Application of Order XXII to Execution Proceedings.—On the death of a judgment-debtor or execution-creditor, the execution proceedings do not abate, and the legal representatives may apply to proceed with the execution.—Monmatha v. Rakhal, 14 C. W. N. 752: 10 C. L J. 396

The provisions of Or. XXII relating to the abatement of suits and appeals do not apply to execution proceedings or to appeals from orders made in such proceedings Mir Khan v. Sharfu, 5 L L J. 163: 71 I C 577.

Or. XXII, r 12 provides that rule 3, which refers to substitution of legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff, does not apply to proceedings in execution of a decree. On the death of the applicant for execution, it is open to his legal representatives to apply immediately for carrying on the proceedings in execution of the decree, or to apply for fresh execution under Or. XXI, r 16. It is not necessary for them nor is it competent, to make an application for substitution, and therefore an order for substitution, if made, cannot have the effect of continuing the application made by the predecessor, Akhoy Kumar v. Surendra, 30 C. W. N. 735 96 I C. 378 · A. I. R. 1926 Cal 957.

ORDER XXIII.

WITHDRAWL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

1. (1) At any time after the institution of a suit the plaintiff may, as against all or any of the defendants, withdraw his suit or abandon part of his claim.

Withdrawal of suit or abandonment of part of claim.

(2) Where the Court is satisfied—

(a) that a suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, or

(b) that there are other sufficient grounds for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the subject-matter of a suit or part of a claim, it may, on such terms as it thinks fit, grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from such suit or abandon such part of a claim with liberty to institute a fresh suit in respect of the subject-matter of such suit or such part of a claim.

(3) Where the plaintiff withdraws from a suit, or abandons part of a claim, without the permission referred to in sub-rule (2), he shall be liable for such costs as the Court may award and shall be precluded from instituting any fresh suit in respect of such subject-matter or such part of the claim.

(4) Nothing in this rule shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others. [S. 373.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) is new, except the words "at any time after the institution of a suit" in the first line. The most important change introduced in this sub-rule is the substitution of the words "withdraw his suit" for the words "withdraw from the suit" which occurred in the old section. The distinction between the above two expressions has been clearly pointed out in 32 B 345, noted below.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to first para. of section 373, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions, alterations and omissions. The word "on the application of the plaintiff," which stood after the words "the Court is satisfied," have been omitted from the present rule. The words "allowing the plaintiff to institute" have been substituted for the words "permitting him to bring " in clause (b). The words " as to costs or otherwise " which stood after the words " terms " in the old section, have been omitted The other alterations made in sub-rule (2) are mere verbal

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 2 section 373, C P Code, 1882 with change of some words and phrases, without any change in the meaning. The words " in respect of such subject-matter or such part of the claim," have been substituted for the words " for the same matter or in respect of the same part " which occurred in the old section

Sub-rule (4) is almost similar to para. 3 of the old section

Object of the Rule.—The object of Or. XXIII, r. 1 is not to enable a plaintiff after he has failed to conduct his suit with proper care and diligence and after his witnesses have failed to support his case, to obtain an opportunity of commencing the trial afresh in order to avoid the result of his previous misconduct of the case and prejudice the opposite party — Nathuni Ram v Musammat Sheo Kuar, 3 Pat. L J. 460 · 5 Pat. L. W 104 (1918) Pat. 220, 46 I C 179.

The main object of Or XXIII, r 1 (2) is to prevent a defeat of justice on technical grounds Where no formal defect necessitating failure of the suit is shown to exist there must still be a defect which has the effect of shutting out a fair trial on the merits and arises out of some error made in good faith by the plaintiff which can only be effectively set right by a trial de novo—Doma v. Dayaram, 48 I C. 1005.

Distinction between the expressions " Withdrawal from suit " and " Withdrawal of Suit."—Sub-rule (1) contemplates a withdrawal of the suit and sub-rule (2) a withdrawl from the suit If a party desires to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, he must apply to the Court under sub-rule (2) for permission so to withdraw. If he does not desire to withdraw from the suit, with liberty to bring a fresh suit then he can under sub-rule (1) withdraw the suit of his own motion for which the Court's order is not necessary —Mohant Behandasji v. Parshotamdas, 32 B. 345 · 10 Bom L. R 293.

Power of Court to Allow Withdrawal of Suit.—There is no general jurisdiction given by the C P. Code for allowing a party to withdraw except under Or. XXIII, r 1 If there is no formal defect in the case, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one If the plaintiff is allowed in such a case, the High Court will set aside the order —Ramchandra v. Hachunika Faker, 35 I. C. 843 (16 C. W. N. 1027 approved).

Or. XXIII, r. 1 does not apply except to cases where the suit is properly pending in a Court in which the leave is granted. Therefore a Court which has no jurisdiction cannot permit withdrawal of a suit.—Ramdeo v. Gonesh, 35 C. 924: 12 C. W N. 921.

Where a plaintiff does not desire to withdraw unless with liberty to bring a fresh suit and the Court considers that such liberty ought not to be granted no sufficient ground having been made out, the proper course is to dismiss the application—Suradhani v. Chandranath, 20 C. W. N 1011 (32 B. 345 followed).

A Court has no jurisdiction to allow withdrawl of a suit after an award is made by an arbitrator against the plaintiff.—Debi Churn v. Bipra Prasad, 7 C. W. N. 186.

An application for withdrawl cannot be conditional, to the effect, " that if the Court considers the suit to be badly framed, then the plaintiff may be permitted to withdraw." Such conditional application is not contemplated by the rule.—Baij Nath v Ravaneswar Prosad, 6 C. L. J. 163 (166).

Courts in India have no power to dismiss a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Hiralal v. Udoy, 16 C. W. N. 1027. 16 C L. J. 103.

Permission under section 97, Act VII of 1859 (this rule), to bring a fresh suit, could not be given after final judgment has been pronounced.—Sheoraj Nandan v Raj Coomar, 24 W. R. 23

An Appellate Court has no power to interfere with the discretion of the first Court in allowing a plaintiff, at any time before final judgment, to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit in the same matter.—Ram Kanye v Haru Chunder, 17 W. R. 229.

Withdrawal of Application to Withdraw Suit.—An application to withdraw a suit can itself be withdrawn for proper reason, and the suit could be proceeded with thereafter; Lakshmana v Appalwar, 44 M L J. 77 71 I. C. 288.: A I R. 1923 Mad 246

Finality of Order Allowing Withdrawal.—Where a suit has been allowed to be withdrawn with liberty to sue afresh, the Court trying the subsequent suit is not competent to enter into the question whether the Court which granted the plaintiff permission to withdraw the first suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit had properly made such order, Samaddi Sheikh v. Fulbash Bewa, 1923 Cal 269

Power of Appellate Court to Allow Withdrawal of Suit.—Where a plaintiff's suit is dismissed, and he appeals from the decree, the appellate Court has power, under this rule read with s 582, C P Code, 1882 [s. 107 (2)], to allow a plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit —Afzal Begum v Akbari, 37 A 326. 13 A. L J 444; Ganga Ram v. Data Ram, 8 A 82; Kamayya v Papayya, 40 M 259: 37 I. C 41 F B; Channubhai v. Dahyabhai, 44 B 598; Sheikh Hassain v. Mahomed, 45 B. 206 59 I C 210; Sheikh Hussan Gulam Mohidin v. Mahamed Ali, 22 Bom L R. 1183 45 B 206; Udoy Chand v Mulla Reasat Hossain, (1922) Cal. 58, Tewari Gajraj v. Sri Thakayi, 74 I. C 894. But see Kaliprasanna v Panchanan, 44 C 357 33 I. C. 670, where a contrary view was taken The appellate Court has no power to grant leave to withdraw the suit before the appeal is admitted —Eknath v. Ranoji, 35 B 261: 10 I. C 813

A Court ought to be very cautious before allowing an application for withdrawal when the case has reached the stage of appeal, even though it orders the entire costs of the defendant to be paid by the plaintiff; Kamta Prasad v Ram Ratan, 24 A L J 721 A. I. R 1926 All 548

The question whether leave should be granted in second appeal to a plaintiff to withdraw his suit depends upon whether the Court is satisfied that the decree against the plaintiff should be set aside. Where the decree is based on a concurrent finding of fact, it is not open to the Court to grant leave to withdraw; Ram Kumar v. Safiunnessa, 63 I C 169.

An Appellate Court ought not to grant permission to a plaintiff who has been unsuccessful in the trial Court to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, more especially where the parties quite understood what were the matters in dispute between them and exactly what it was that the plaintiff claimed and the defects are more apparent than real; Sunghai Bajilal v. Kanhai, 61 I C 584.

See section 107, sub-rule (2).

Allowing Withdrawal Alone Without Liberty to Bring Fresh Suit, Whether Proper.—Where plaintiff prayed for leave to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit but the Court simply allowed him to withdraw his suit and refused him permission to bring a fresh suit: Held, that the Court, acted without jurisdiction in dividing the plaintiffs' petition into two parts and attempting to treat the application as one under the first part of Or. XXIII, r. 1, cl. (1); Shamnandan v Mulchandram, 1 Pat L T. 292.

"Formal defect."—Where the Court is satisfied that a suit must fail by reason of "some formal defect," or that there are "other sufficient grounds" for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the subject-matter of a suit, the Court may, on such terms as it thinks fit, grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from such suit, with liberty to institute a fresh suit in respect of the subject-matter of such suit. A Court ought not to grant leave to withdraw a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, on a mere allegation that there is formal defect, without satisfying itself that it does exist as a matter of fact; Kironmoyi v. Ramanath, 64 I C. 556; Radharaman v Tularam, 10 A. L. J. 393. A mere general statement that there are formal defects is not sufficient—the plaintiff must specifically state the formal defect —Pundalik v. Chandrabhan, 43 I. C 346. Misjoinder of parties and causes of action is a formal defect; Watson v. Collector of Rajshaye, 13 M. I A. 160, (170), Gamshi v. Khairati, 16 A 279, Afzal v Lachmi Narain, 40 A. 7. 42 I. C. 856. Improper valuation of the subject-matter of a suit and consequent insufficiency of Court-fee is also a formal defect; Watson v. Collector of Rajshaye, 13 M I. A. 160; 3 B L R P C 48; Kannuswami v Jagathamlal, 41 M. 701. Want of proper stamp or non-registration of a material document is a formal defect. Watson v. Collector of Rajshaye, 13 M I. A., 160; Misser Debee v. Baldeo 5 N. W P 116. If the defect is curable by amendment of the pleadings, no leave to withdraw should be granted; Rameswar v. Rasul Beg, 21 O C 66: 45 I. C 603. The omission by the plaintiff to include in his plaint all his causes of action, which are inconsistent with each other, cannot be said to constitute a formal defect in the plaint, and is not a sufficient ground to allow withdrawal of the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one; Manbhari v. Sumerchand, 12 A. L. J. 441. If a plaint is defective, the only sort of defect which attracts this rule is a formal defect; Pali Kanji v. Krishna Aiyar, 23 L W. 525: 94 I. C 983: A. I. R 1926 Mad 863.

"Other sufficient grounds."—The power to dismiss a suit, with liberty to bring a fresh one for the same matter, is limited to cases where the suit fails by reason of some point of form. Such liberty should not be given where, after issue joined, the plaintiff has failed to make out his case.—Watson v. Collector of Rajshahi, 3 B. L. R. 48, P. C.: 13 M. I. A. 160, P. C. See also, Mona Bibee v. Oomed Ali, 16 W. R. 276: and Muddun Ram v. Israil Ali, 21 W. R. 291. See, however, Omesh Chunder v. Thakoor Dass, 23 W. R. 345.

The circumstances contemplated by Or. XXIII, r 1 of the Code are confined to those cases mentioned in cls. (a) and (b) of r. 1, sub-rule (2) of the order, and do not include a case where the Court making the order is not satisfied that the circumstances mentioned in cls. (a) or (b) exist If the Court is not satisfied that the circumstances contemplated in the rule exist then it has no jurisdiction to make the order as the jurisdiction is only conferred where the Court is so satisfied. If this condition is not fulfilled, it is clear that the jurisdiction does not arise; Raj Kumar v. Ram Khelawan, 1 Pat 1920: (1922) Pat. 17. 3 Pat. L. T. 80 F. B.

The words " other sufficient ground " in Or. XXIII, r. 1 cl. (2) mean that the ground must be one ejusdem generis with the formal defect referred to in sub-cl. (a). Mere inability of a party to prove his case is not sufficient ground for permitting him to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Buratha Gunta v. Thurla patti, 8 I C. 868: 9 M. L. T. 204: (1911) M. W N. 105; Lala Punju Shet v Motiram, 50 B 192: 94 I. C. 777: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 315.

Absence or incompleteness of evidence is no sufficient ground for permitting a plaintiff to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Khub Chand v. Ajodhya, 11 A. L. J. 733.

Where a plaintiff asked for permission to withdraw his suit, on the ground that it would be out of his power to adduce the evidence, which he pointed out as existing in certain records, within the period fixed by the Court for hearing the case, the Court was competent to grant him permission to withdraw the case.—Paresh Narain v Sarat Soonduree, 16 W R. 100. But see, Bai Keshibai v. Shidappa, 15 Bom L R 823 37 B 682.

In a suit for enhancement of rent, the plaintiff also, claimed additional rent on account of excess area under s 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, but gave no evidence as was necessary under that section, held, that, under the circumstances of the case, the plaintiff could be allowed to withdraw the claim with regard to additional rent with respect to the additional area with liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject-matter; Indu Bhusan v Jath Mallik, 62 I C. 699.

The fact that notices on the heirs of a deceased defendant could not be served is no ground for allowing plaintiff to withdraw a suit with liberty to file a fresh suit, Lakshmibai Jagannath Joshi v. Yeshwant Vithal, 24 Bom L. R. 909

Change in substantive law during progress of a suit—Application for withdrawal in order to get benefit of the alteration in the substantive law Held, that permission should not be given by the Appellate Court —Prabhakar v Khandera, 10 Bom. L. R 625.

The omission by the plaintiff to include in his plaint all his causes of action, which are inconsistent with each other, cannot be said to constitute a formal defect in the plaint and is not a sufficient ground to al withdrawal of the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one.—Manbhari Sumer Chand, 12 A. L. J. 441 (7 M L. J. 288 referred to).

Where according to one of the plaintiffs, a pedigree filed is incorr in several particulars, there is no formal defect to allow the suit to withdrawn, with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Gulab Dei v Patam D 30 I. C. 351.

Where a plaintiff brought a joint suit against three sets of defend to set aside separate alienations made by a Hindu widow during her l time; and the suit was bad for misjoinder of parties and causes of acti the plaintiff was allowed to withdraw his suit against two sets of defenda with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Ganeshi Lal v. Khairati Singh, 16 279

Where it would be difficult to execute the decree against the defe ant on account of his absence, the plaintiff might be allowed to withd the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action Syed Ali v. Adib, 15 B. 160.

An order for withdrawal under Or. XXIII, r. 1, cannot properly made on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to produce evidence support of his claim Cl (b) of sub-rule (2) should be read in conjuncti with cl. (a) Hence the grounds included in cl. (b) must be of the sa nature as the ground specified in cl. (a).—Hriday Nath v. Akshaylal, C. L. J. 454. 39 I C 963 (11 C L. J. 45. 11 C. L. J 512: 23 C. L 489, referred to); Munna Lal v Chhabil Das, 46 I. C. 181; Mahendra R v Singi Mal, 3 Pat. L J 651 48 I C 197.

Plaintiff's inability to produce important evidence is not suffici ground within Or XXIII, r 1 (2) (b), C. P. Code, for permitting him withdraw the suit with permission to bring a fresh suit in respect of t same subject-matter, Uchant Ahir v. Basawan Ahir, 6 Pat L. J. 11 2 Pat L. T. 634

Where a suit is brought for the interest due on a mortgage, it is a sufficient cause for granting leave to withdraw the suit with libe to sue afresh that a subsequent suit for the principal would be barr by Or II, r 2, C P. Code, Parduman Chand v. Gangaram, 66 I. C. 2

In order to succeed in an application for withdrawal, the plaintiff mu specifically state the formal defect. A mere general statement that th are formal defects is not sufficient.—Pundalik v. Chandrabhan, 43 I. 346.

A special Judge appointed under s. 54 of the Dekkan Agricultur Relief Act (XVII of 1879) is not competent in the exercise of his revisi powers to allow a plaintiff to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring new one, merely on the ground that he has made some mistake in fil the suit.—Muktaji Bhagoji v. Manaji, 12 B. 684.

In a suit against a Ruling Chief, if the consent of the Governor-Gene in Council under s 433, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 86), has not been obta n before the commencement of the suit, the Court should allow the plai to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh suit under this section Chandu Lal v. Awad Bin, 21 B. 351.

Effect of Erroneous Grant of Leave to Withdraw.—An order for withdrawal of a suit with leave to institute a fresh suit made under Or. XXIII, r 1 but in circumstances not within the scope of the rule, cannot be treated as an order made without jurisdiction; such order is consequently not null and void A fresh suit instituted upon leave so granted is not incompetent. The Court trying the subsequent suit is not competent to enter into the question, whether the Court which granted permission to the plaintiff to withdraw the first suit had properly made such order.—Hriday Nath v Ram Chandra, 31 C L J 482 (23 C. L J 489: 20 C. W. N. 1000, overruled); Sammadi Shaikh v. Fulbash, 65 I C 704.

Assuming that a Court ought not, under Or XXIII, r 1 of the C P. Code, to grant permission to a plaintiff to consolidate the claim in the suit which is withdrawn with that in another suit pending at the time, the order granting the permission is not a nullity and the plaintiff cannot without complying with the terms of the order, maintain a fresh suit in regard to the same subject matter; Lakshmanan v Muttaya Chetty, 40 M L. J. 126: 29 M. L T 189

Where the Court allows some plaintiffs to withdraw with liberty to file a fresh suit without the consent of the others, the Court acts without jurisdiction and a fresh suit is barred, Mt Ram Dei v. Mt Bahurrani, 1 Pat. 228: A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 489.

Power to Allow Withdrawal of Appeal.—An Appellate Court has authority to permit an appeal to be withdrawn.—Ram Pershad v Bhurosa Koonwar, 9 W. R. 328.

The High Court allowed the appellant to withdraw his second appeal after it had been argued, though not decided, in order that he might apply to the lower Court for a review of its judgment on the ground of discovery of new evidence —Pandu v Deva, 7 B 287.

One of the appellants can withdraw from the appeal so far as his own interest in the appeal are concerned —Gopala v Hira Singh, 119 P W. R. 1908

When Permission Ought Not to be Granted.—Where all the evidence in the case have been adduced and the case almost finished, the Courts ought not to permit the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action more specially when it is not shown what defects there were in the plaint which necessitated such withdrawal —Rajendra Nath v Baikunta Nath, 34 I C. 934

On an application by plaintiff to withdraw a part of his claim with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the ground of misjoinder of parties and causes of action, the court found there was no misjoinder as alleged in the petition but still granted the leave without stating any grounds for allowing the same Held that the plaintiff ought not to have been allowed leave to withdraw a part of the claim; Gopalchandra v Benodi Behary, 64 I. C 82.

Permission Need Not be Express.—The permission mentioned in Or. XXIII, r 1, C P Code, need not be express and it is sufficient if the grant of permission can be implied from the order read with the application on which the order was passed; Banwari v. Kishen Devi, 2 Lah L J 242: 87 I. C. 1002.

Where the Court gave permission to withdraw the suit, but did not in terms give the plaintiff liberty to bring fresh suit, it was held that the order ought to be read along with the petition and construed as granting permission to file a fresh suit; Khudi Rai v. Lalu Rai, 5 Pat. 23: 93 I. C 1001: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 259.

After a suit has been referred to arbitration and a valid award has been made, it would be improper to allow withdrawal having regard to the provisions of para. 3 (2), Sch II. C .P. Code.—Abdul Karim v. Muhammad Hussain, 32 I. C. 347.

Form of Order Granting Permission to Withdraw.—Where leave is granted to the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, the order must not be one dismissing the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, but one granting permission to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit —Doucett v Wise, 1 W. R. 322; Banwari v Muhammad, 9 A. 690 Where permission to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit is refused, the Court should simply dismiss the application; Vohast v. Purshotam Das, 32 B 345

Dismissal of Suit Coupled with Liberty to Bring a Fresh Suit, Whether Permissible.—The Courts in India do not possess the power to dismiss a suit with liberty to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit for the same matter; Banwari v Muhammad, 9 A 690; Sukh Lal v. Bhikhi, 11 A 187; Fateh Singh v Jagannath, 52 I A 100: 47 A. 158: A. I R. 1925 P C 55, Watson v Collector of Rajshaye, 13 M. I A. 160.

Right of Appellant to Withdraw his Appeal Where Cross-objections have been filed.—Where no cross-objections under s. 561, C P. Code, 1882 (Or XLI, r. 22), have been filed by the respondent, an appellant has an absolute right to withdraw his appeal at any time before judgment; but where such objection has been filed, the appellant, if he wishes to withdraw his appeal, must do so before the hearing of the appeal has commenced.—Kalyan Singh v Rahmu, 23 A. 130. But after the hearing of the appeal has commenced, the appeal cannot be withdrawn so as to prevent the cross-objections being heard and determined —Dhondi Jagannath v The Collector of Salt Revenue, 9 B 28. In Jafar Husain v Ranjit Singh, 17 A. 518, it has been held that if an appeal in which objections have been filed under Or. XLI, r. 22 is withdrawn the objections cannot be heard

Withdrawal of appeal by the appellant, by which a respondent loses his opportunity of having his cross-objections heard, does not afford sufficient reason for enlarging the time for the cross-appeal which he might have presented. Chudasama Manabhai v. Mahant Isvargar, 16 B 249 (10 B. 308 referred to).

Order under this Rule, If Subject to Appeal or Revision.—An order under this rule permitting withdrawal of a suit with liberty to bring fresh suit is not a decree within the meaning of s. 2, and is therefore not appealable —Jugodindro Nath v. Sarut Sundari, 18 C. 322; Kalian Singh v Lekhraj, 6 A. 211; Dick v. Dick, 15 A. 169; Jogdesh Chaudhri v. Tulshi, 16 A. 19; Genda Lal v. Pirbhu Lal, 17 A. 97; Abdul Hossein v. Kasi Sahu

27 C. 362: 4 C. W. N. 41 But see Ganga Ram v. Data Ram, 8 A. 82; Sant Ram v. Mt. Sahib Kaur, A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 267: 65 I. C. 719. But such an order is open to revision if it falls within s. 115 of the Code. An order under this rule is open to revision if the Court acted illegally or with material illegality in making the order; Hira lal v. Udoy, 16 C. W. N. 1027; Hridoy v Akshay, 25 C. L. J. 454; Uchaut v. Basawan, 6 Pat. L. J. 112; Bai Kashi Bai v. Shidapa, 37 B 682; Isher Das v. Lal Singh, 7 L. L. J. 290: 90 I. C. 632· A. I R. 1925 Lah. 497; Aiya v Gopanna, 27 M. L. J. 480. 26 I C. 57. The High Court can also interfere in revision if the lower Court has not applied its mind to the circumstances of the case and the provisions of this rule; Ganga v Msst. Kishni, 47 A. 319 87 I C 175· A. I. R 1925 All. 466.

An order under this rule allowing withdrawal is subject to revision.—Dick v. Dick, 15 A 169 (6 A. 211 referred to) See also, Tirupathi v. Mutta, 11 M 322.

Applicability of this Rule to suits in Revenue Courts.—This rule does not apply to suits before the revenue authorities under Act (X of 1859), that Act being a complete Code in itself —Radha Madhab v. Lukhi Narain, 21 C. 428; Mokunda Ballav v Bhogaban Chunder, 21 C. 514. See also, Doyal Chunder v Dwarkanath, Marsh. 143: W. R., F. B. 47; Modhoo Soodun v. Panchcowree, 7 W. R. 302; Beer Chunder v. Tarinee Churn, 11 W. R 46; Rama Nath v. Jay Kishen, 11 W R. 3 and Golam Mahomed v. Shibendra, 35 C. 990. 12 C W. N. 893 (28 C. 532 distinguished); Sasi Kanta v. Salim Sheikh, 50 C. 626: 27 C. W. N. 987.

Held, that the procedure provided by sections 43 and 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2 and this rule), is applicable to suits under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1881 —Madho Prakash v. Murli Manohar, 5 A. 406 (9 C 295 followed).

Applicability of this Rule to Execution Proceedings.—This rule does not apply to applications for execution of decrees —Thakur Prasad v. Fakirullah, 17 A 106, P. C. (18 C. 635 approved; 10 A. 71 overruled; and 12 A. 179 reversed). See also, Wajihan alias Alijan v. Bishwanath, 18 C. 462 (10 B. 62 followed; and 12 A. 392 dissented from); Radha Kishen v. Radha Pershad, 18 C 515 (18 C. 462 followed; 12 A. 392 dissented from); Lakhmi Narasimha v. Atchanna, 15 M. 240 (12 A. 392 dissented from; 18 C 462 and 11 B. 467 approved). From the above rulings it would appear that there was a difference of opinion between the Allahabad and the other three High Courts on this point—the former holding that s 647, C. P Code, 1882 (s. 141), makes this rule applicable to proceedings in execution of decrees; while the latter holding that s. 141 does not operate to extend the rule laid down in respect of a suit in this rule to an application for execution of a decree. But the matter has been set at rest by the Privy Council case reported in 17 A. 106, overruling 10 A. 71, reversing 12 A 179, and approving 18 C. 635. The Privy Council case has impliedly overruled Sher Singh v. Daya Ram, 13 A 564, and Kishan Shahai v Aladad Khan, 14 A. 64.

An application to withdraw a pending proceeding for execution, with leave to institute another at some future time, is not a step in aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of the Limitation Act.—

Tarak Chunder v. Gayanada Sundari, 23 C. 817; contra in Ram Narain v. Bakhtu Kuar, 16 A. 75.

This rule, read with s. 647, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 141), applies to insolvency proceedings under the Civil Procedure Code.—Haidar Shah v. Jamna Das, 17 A. 156, p. 161.

Applicability of this Rule to Probate Proceedings.—This rule does not apply to probate proceedings, the provisions in s. 55 of the Probate and Administration Act being qualified by the words "so far as the circumstances of the case will admit."—Banwari Lal v. Krishnea Devi, 2 L. L. J. 242 (40 I. C. 345, 20 C. W. N. 986 and 21 B. 335, relied on; 33 B. 309, distd.). See also, Sarada v. Gobinda, 12 C. L. J. 91.

"On such terms as the Court thinks fit."—A plaintiff who is permitted to withdraw from his suit must pay the defendant's costs.—Donnell v. Wise, 4 W. R. 322, Khemchand v. Sabhagchand, 47 B. 559, 72 I. C. 321, A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 206.

It has been held by the High Court of Madras that where leave to bring a fresh suit is granted to the plaintiff on payment of the defendant's costs on or before a specified date, but no payment is made on or before that date, the plaintiff is precluded from bringing a fresh suit and if such suit is brought, it should stand dismissed.—Fisher v. Nagappa, 33 M. 258. The same High Court in another case has held that where leave to bring a fresh suit is given on payment of the defendant's cost, but no time is specified within which the payment is to be made, the plaintiff is similarly precluded from bringing a second suit unless the costs are paid before the institution of the second suit.—Seshayya v. Subbaya, 47 M. L. J. 646, 82 I. C. 499, A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 877. The Calcutta High Court, in Abdul Aziz v. Ebrahim, 31 C. 965, held that though payment of defendant's costs was a condition precedent to the institution of a second suit, non-payment of such costs before the institution of the second suit, did not render the suit ab initio void. The same High Court, in Shital Prashad v. Gaya Prasad, 19 C. L. J. 259, 23 I. C. 210, took the same view and held that before leave to withdraw a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, is given on payment of the defendant's costs within a fixed time, the non-payment of the costs within that time, does not operate as a dismissal of the suit or as a bar to the institution of a fresh suit, unless the order granting leave had itself provided that, on such non-payment, the suit should stand dismissed. It was also held that inasmuch as the permission to withdraw and bring a fresh suit was made conditional on a certain payment, the original suit could not be deemed to be withdrawn until those costs were paid, and it must therefore be deemed to be pending suit which became disposed of as soon as payment was made. The same view has been taken in Deb Kumar v. Deb Nath, 64 I. C. 738. The Patna High Court in Syed Quazi v. Lachman Singh, 5 Pat. 306: 96 I. C. 942: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 109, in Kuldip v. Kuldip, 3 Pat. L. J. 63; 44 I. C. 79, and in Ram Dayal v. Indra Sau, 95 I. C. 875, A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 472, has followed the Calcutta High Court decisions.

Where leave to withdraw a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit is given on payment of defendant's costs within a fixed time, the non-payment of the costs within that time does not operate as a dismissal of the suit or as a bar to the institution of a fresh suit, unless the order granting leave had itself provided that on such non-payment the suit should stand dismissed

The only case in which a Court may, under this rule, impose any condition upon a plaintiff, who seeks to withdraw, is where that plaintiff asks the Court for permission, not only to withdraw, but also for liberty to bring a fresh suit for the same subject-matter But where he asks leave to withdraw without permission to bring a fresh suit, the Court cannot make the payment of costs a condition precedent to the granting of such permission —Haidar Shah v Jamna Das, 17 A. 156 (161). See Syed Ali v. Adit, 15 B. 160.

The High Court has no power under the Civil Procedure Code to award costs to the defendant where the plaintiff withdraws, not having asked leave to do so with liberty to bring another suit for the same matter —Brass v Tiruvengada, 1 Mad H. C 247, dissented from in 1 B. L R. O. C 45.

Effect of Withdrawal or Abandonment of Claim With or Without Permission to Bring Fresh Suit.—Permission to bring a fresh suit under Or. XXIII, r 1, must be given in express terms and cannot be implied.—Jitu Singh v Hari Singh, 97 P R 1916 (21 C 265 4 C W N 110 distinguished). But see, Banwari Lal v Kishen Debi, 2 L. L J 242. In the absence of permission to bring a fresh suit, Or XXIII, r. (1), sub-rule (3), precludes the plaintiff from instituting any fresh suit, in respect of such subject-matter or such part of the claim from which he has withdrawn.—Aswini Kumar v Saradacharan, 24 C L J 79, Maung Mu v. Maung Kaw Gyi, 1 R 618 A I R. 1924 Rang. 127

Where a plaintiff brought a suit for partition of joint-property from which he withdrew without permission to bring fresh suit, and subsequently being dispossessed from the same joint-property, brought a suit for recovery of joint-possession of the same Held, that the second suit was not barred by this rule The mere fact of two suits being in respect of the same property would not be sufficient to make the latter suit one for the same matter as the former, when the state of facts leading to the two suits and the reliefs claimed under them are different.—Gopal Chandra v Purna Chandra, 4 C W N 110 (Juggobundho v Watson, Bourke A. O. C. 162, doubted) S 97 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule) only applied to cases where the plaintiff withdraws from the suit without the consent of the defendant —Juggobundho v Watson & Co, Bourke A. O. C. 162. See also, Kamini v Ram Nath, 21 C 265.

In a suit for ejectment on the ground that defendant was a trespasser and had no right whatever to the land, the defendant raised the defence that he had a tenancy right in the land, and could no be ejected. The suit was withdrawn without liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject-matter Held, that Or. XXIII, r 1 did not operate as a bar to a subsequent suit for possession in which tenancy of the defendant had been determined by service of notice to quit; Abdulla v. Akbal Chandra, 59 I. C. 81.

The plaintiffs sued the defendant upon a balance order, dated 24th February 1882, to recover a certain sum of money. They had previously sued the defendant to recover the said sum of money, but that suit was based upon a call order, dated 11th November, 1880, and they were permitted to withdraw it with liberty to bring fresh suit for the same cause of action Held, that the plaintiffs were not precluded from bringing the second suit upon the balance order.—London, Bombay and Mediterranean Bank v. Burjorji Sorabji, 9 B. 346.

An unsuccessful claimant brought a regular suit against a decree holder, who then released the property from attachment and the plaintiff withdrew his suit The same property was afterwards attached and sold in execution of the same decree Held, that the subsequent suit for possession of the property against the auction-purchaser was not barred by this rule.—Mukhoda Soondury v. Ram Churan, 8 C. 871 (11 M. I. A. 7 cited)

In 1893 the plaintiff sued to eject the defendants alleging that they were in occupation of the land under a lease of 1880 from the late Zamorin of Calicut The plaintiff's title rested on an instrument executed by him in 1892. It was objected that the instrument was not binding after the death of the grantor The plaintiff thereupon withdrew his suit without obtaining leave to sue again. He subsequenty obtained a like instrument from the present Zamorin and sued again to eject the defendants. Held, that the second suit was barred by this rule.—Achuta Menon v Achuta Nayar, 21 M. 35.

A Court after reference of arbitration cannot, pending the reference, grant permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit for same matter. Permission thus given to a plaintiff to withdraw, with liberty to bring fresh suit, is ultra vires, and does not save the fresh suit from being barred by this rule.—Sheoamber v Deodat, 6 A. 168

The dismissal of the former suit "in the form it was brought" does not amount to permission to sue againt as contemplated by this rule and such dismissal must be regarded as a "decision," thereof in the sense of s. 13, explanation iii, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 11), and therefore as a bar to the fresh suit.—Gonesh v Kalka Prasad, 5 A. 595; Muhammad Salim v Nabian Bibi, 8 A 282; Kudrat v. Dinu, 9 A. 155: and Banwari Das v Muhammad Masihat, 9 A. 690 (13 B. L. R. 48, P. C., referred to)

A suit for possession was wholly dismissed, on the ground that the plaintiff had not made out his title to the whole of the property claimed though he had proved title to a one-third share of it, the decree containing a clause that a fresh suit might be brought for one-third share. Subsequently the plaintiff brought another suit for possession of the one-third share. Held, that the Court in the former suit had no power to include in its decree any such reservation or order; that the fact that the decree was not appealed against did not give the order contained in it, which was an absolute nullity, any effect —Sukh Lal v. Bhikhi, 11 A. 187, F B (5 A. 595, 8 A. 282, and 9 A. 155 explained).

In a suit for partition both the parties having arrived at a compromise, filed a joint petition praying that the suit might be struck off; the terms of the compromise were however not inserted in the decree and were never carried out. Subsequently the plaintiff brought a second suit for partition of the same property; Held, that the suit was barred by this rule.—Gulkandi Lal v. Manni Lal, 23 A. 219.

Where the former suit was withdrawn with permission to bring fresh suit the subsequent suit is not barred.—Kunhan v. Sunkara, 14 M. 78, p. 80

A redemption suit was dismissed for want of necessary parties. In the Appellate Court, the plaintiff put in a petition saying that he did not wish to prosecute his " appeal or claim," the other side having given up his costs. The plaintiff then brought a second suit to redeem. Held, that the suit was barred by the last para. of this rule, the consideration for withdrawal being that the respondents gave up their costs.—Ram Prasad v. Dungar Singh, 4 A. L. J. 201: (1907), A. W N. 91

Where in a suit for partition, a defendant has, by concession of the plaintiff, acquired rights, which otherwise, could not have existed, it is not open to the plaintiff, who has made that concession, afterwards to annul its effect, by withdrawing the suit in the Appellate Court. Sections 373 (Or. XXIII, r. 1) and 582 (Or. XXII, r. 11), C. P. Code, 1882, do not support the conclusion that rights actually vested and created by the decree of the first Court can be afterwards annulled by the plaintiff's withdrawal of the entire suit, of his own free will and without the permission of the Court.—Satyabhamabai, v Ganesh Balkrishna, 29 B. 13: 6 Bom L. R. 533.

" In respect of such subject-matter."—The expression used in the corresponding s. 373 of the old Code, was " matter." It was held in Kamini v. Ram Nath, 21 C. 265 and Gopal v. Purna, 4 C. W. N. 110, that the word " matter," as used in the old Code, did not mean property, but that it referred only to right in the property. The terms " subject-matter " and the " same matter," which occurred in the corresponding s. 373 of the old Code, have not been defined, and must, we think, be construed strictly in a penal provision of this character. Without attempting an exhaustive definition of all that may be included in the term " subject-matter " we are of opinion that where, as in the present case, the cause of action and relief claimed in the second suit are not the same as the cause of action and the relief claimed in the first suit, the second suit cannot be considered to have been brought in respect of the same subject-matter as the first suit —(Per Wallis, C. J.) Saiga Reddi v. Subba Reddi, 39 M. 987. 35 I C. 185. A contrary view was taken by the Punjab Chief Court in Jita Singh v Hari Singh, 97 P R. 1916: 37 I. C. 128. See also, Maung Mu v Maung Kan, 1 Rang 618. A. I. R. 1924 Rang 127 The words " subject-matter " used in this rule are not to be identified with the " property " in the suit. They mean the cause of action for a claim A suit on a different cause of action though relating to the same property is not barred, if the suit is withdrawn without leave of Court; Putto Khan v Ahmad Zaman Khan, 9 O. & A L R. 978: 74 I. C. 56

Sub-rule (4)—Withdrawal by Co-plaintiffs.—Sub-rule (4) provides that nothing in this rule shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

One of several plaintiffs cannot withdraw from the suit without the consent of the others, Mahomed Ilyas v. Faquira, 10 O. and A.-L. R. 310: L. R. 5 A 78 (Rev.) Where the Court in contravention of this sub-rule, allows two out of four plaintiffs to withdraw from a suit without the consent of the other two, it acts without jurisdiction, and a second s[uit] in respect of the same subject-matter is barred.—Musst Ram Da[i] v. Musst Baku Kant, 1 Pat 228 A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 489.

Notice.—An order under this rule without notice to the oppo[site] party is bad —Rajendra v. Atal, 25 C. L. J. 456: 44 C. 454.

Withdrawal of Suit by Next Friend of Minor.—When a suit is fraud[u]lently withdrawn by the next friend of a minor plaintiff, without leave [to] bring fresh suit, it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the cons[e]quences of fraud in one of the three ways, viz. (1) by an application to t[he] Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by a regular s[uit] to set aside the judgment founded upon the withdrawal; or (3) by bring[ing] a fresh suit for the same purpose, and setting up the fraud as an answer [to] the statutory bar.—Eshan Chandra v. Nundamoni, 10 C. 357. In Ra[m] Sarup v. Shah Latafat Hossein, 29 C. 735, the withdrawal of a suit by t[he] next friend was treated as gross negligence. A withdrawal of a suit b[y] the next friend of a minor in pursuance of an agreement or comprom[ise] entered into with the defendant without the leave of the Court, is void[able] at the instance of the minor, under Or. XXXII, r. 7.—Dorasamy v. Thi[ru]gasami, 14 M. L. J. 159: 27 M. 377.

Power of Court of Small Causes to Allow Withdrawal.—The Court [of] Small Causes at Calcutta has jurisdiction to pass an order under this ru[le] after granting a new trial.—Jadu Mani v. Ram Kumar, 29 C. 239, but t[he] Judge of a Small Cause Court cannot allow withdrawal without record[ing] reasons.—Lachi v. Raghubir, 2 Pat L. J. 682. But in Yule and Co. v. Mahomed Hossein, 24 C. 129, it has been held that the Small Cau[se] Court Judge after receiving the judgment of the High Court, on a referen[ce] had no jurisdiction to allow the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with libert[y] to bring fresh suit, but was bound to enter judgment according to t[he] decision of the High Court.

Limitation law not affected by first suit.

2. In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted unde[r] the last preceding rule, the plaintiff shall b[e] bound by the law of limitation in the sam[e] manner as if the first suit had not been instituted. [S. 374.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 374, C. P. Code, 1882, with the modification that the word "instituted" has been substituted for th[e] word "brought" which occurred in the old section.

Limitation.—When a suit is withdrawn under Or. XXIII, r. 1 with permission to bring a fresh suit, the effect of this rule is, that limitation [is] to apply to the second suit, as if it was the first. Held also, that section 14 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a case.—Varadal v. Shomeshwar, 29 B. 219: 7 Bom. L. R. 90 (12 B. 625, followed). Where leave to withdraw was granted erroneously by a Court which had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the case will be governed not by the provisions of this rule but by those of s. 14 of the Limitation Act, and the term during which the first suit was prosecuted will be excluded in computing the period of limitation for the second suit, Ramdeo v. Gonesh, 35 C. 924: 12 C. W. N. 921.

The effect of withdrawal of a suit with permission to bring fresh suit, is to leave the parties in the same position as that in which they would have been if the suit had never been brought. A plaintiff, therefore, who has obtained permission under section 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 1), will not be debarred by s. 43, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2), from claiming in a subsequent suit a relief which he might have included, but did not, in the suit which he was permitted to withdraw.—Behari Lal v. Baran Mai Dasi, 17 A. 53. See also, Venkata Chetti v. Ranga Nayank, 10 M. 160. Followed in Syed Hossain Ali v. Hari Nath, 1 C. L. J. 29-n; Elahi Buksh v. Imam Baksh, 1 A. 324, Mul Chand v. Bhikari, 7 A. 624; and Sobhapathi v. Lakshmee, 24 M. 293.

Execution Proceedings.—The rule laid down in this rule does not apply to applications for executions.—Tara Chand Megh Raj v. Kashi Nath, 10 B. 62, Thakur Prasad v. Fakirullah, 17 A. 106, P. C. (10 A. 71 overruled; 12 A. 179 reversed, and 18 C. 635 approved); see Eshan Chunder v. Pran Nath, 22 W. R. 512. But see Pirjade v. Pirjade, 6 B. 681. See also, notes, under Or. XXIII, r. 1.

Withdrawal of appeal by the appellant, by which a respondent loses his opportunity of having his cross-objections heard, does not afford sufficient reason for enlarging time for the cross-appeal which he might have presented.—Chudasama Manabhai v. Mahant Ishwargar, 16 B. 219 (10 B. 398 referred to).

The effect of withdrawal of an appeal under a compromise estops the parties with regard to the points raised in the Lower Court's decision.—Vythilinga v. Vijayathammal, 6 M. 43.

Compromise of suit

3. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit has been adjusted wholly or in part by any lawful agreement or compromise, or where the defendant satisfies the plaintiff in respect of the whole or any part of the subject-matter of the suit, the Court shall order such agreement, compromise or satisfaction to be recorded and shall pass a decree in accordance therewith so far as it relates to the suit. [S. 375.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to section 375, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The words "where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit has been adjusted" have been substituted for the words "if a suit be adjusted," which occurred in the old section. The words "the Court shall order" have been added and the words "and such decree shall be final so far as relates to so much of the subject-matter of the suit as is dealt with by the agreement, compromise, or satisfaction" which occurred in the concluding part of the old section, have been omitted, having regard to cl. (3) of s. 96, which provides that no appeal shall lie from a decree passed by the Court with the consent of parties. But on account of the omission of the words "such decree shall be final," a review of a consent decree may be granted. Under the old law, review was prohibited (see 5 W. R. 226).

"The Committee have considered it expedient to alter the language of s. 375 so as to recognize the power of a Court to enquire into and to record a disputed compromise."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

"Has been adjusted wholly or in part."—An adjustment which is not bona fide and on the basis of which the Court was not asked to record satisfaction and pass a decree in accordance therewith does not comply with the provisions of Or. XXIII, r 3; Seth Kevaldoss v. Sanker Lal Bulakhidas 45 M. L J 763: 33 M L. T (P. C) 424.

"By any lawful agreement or compromise."—The language of this rule is wide and general and does not preclude parties from settling their disputes on such lawful terms as they might agree to, without being restricted to such relief as one only of the parties had chosen to claim in the plaint. In a suit for money, where the plaint prays for a simple money decree, an agreement, by which the parties agreed that the decretal amount should be a charge on certain properties, is lawful and "relates to the suit," so as to be embodied in the decree.—Joti Kuruvetappa v. Izri Sirusappa, 30 M 478.

A Hindu Father has full authority to act on behalf of his adopted son and to enter into a compromise in a suit on mortgage of joint family property so as to bind the son to the compromise in respect of the son's interest in the property; Saiyid Mehdi v. Chaudhri Ghanshiam, A. I. R. 1927 P. C 204

A compromise signed by a pleader who was not specially authorized for the purpose is bad and a decree in accordance with it should be set aside—Basangowda v. Churchigirigowda, 34 B. 408.

Where the parties to a suit themselves effect a compromise and the fact of the compromise is conveyed to the Court by means of a petition presented by the pleaders appearing on both sides, it is not open to the parties to question the compromise on the ground that the pleaders had no authority to compromise.—Pambayam Chetty v. Kandaswami, 12 L. W. 562: 60 I. C. 22.

It is incumbent on a Court to pass a decree in terms of a compromise only if the same is lawful, i.e., enforceable in law. One test to apply is, were the parties competent to enter into the agreement in order to achieve the purpose they had in view. When after a mortgage decree to which the puisne mortgagee was a party, the mortgagee and prior mortgagee put in appeal a petition of compromise which increases the amount payable to the latter, a decree cannot be passed in accordance therewith, as it undoubtedly prejudices the rights of the puisne mortgagee and hence cannot be said to be "lawful."—Mal Chand Boid v. Osman Ali, 38 C. L. J. 272.

The Court has no jurisdiction, under this rule, to pass a decree on a compromise, unless it is a lawful compromise. Any terms of a contract which are opposed to public policy, are invalid and will, therefore, not be enforced by the Courts and so far as a decree embodies unlawful terms of a compromise, it is inoperative and will not be enforced.—Lakshmanaswami v. Rangamma, 26 M 31 (24 M 265 referred to). No option is left to a Court to examine the terms of a compromise beyond seeing whether the agreement is lawful or not. An agreement which carries a penal clause such as may be covered by s. 74 of the Contract Act, is not in any sense of the term "unlawful" and hence it must be recorded and decree passed in terms thereof; Kishen Prasad v. Kunj Behari, 24 A. L. J. 210: 91 I. C. 790: A. I R. 1926 All. 278.

The legality of a provision for ejectment is to be tested in the light of the rules formulated in the Bengal Tenancy Act, even though the provision originally appearing in the petition of compromise has been incorporated in the decree. The Court will not in such circumstances, assist the decree-holder to achieve his illegal purposes in defiance of express statutory prohibition The circumstance, that a consent decree has been passed on the basis of a compromise, does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court to grant relief against forfeiture, and the Court must determine whether on equitable grounds, relief could have been granted against forfeiture if it had been called to enforce the agreement itself.—Gopal Krishna v. Hari Nath, 34 C L J. 157

A Court will not recognise any compromise of an action with the facts of which it is entirely unacquainted or if one of the terms of the compromise is a clear violation of a statutory rule.—Mussammat Sakli v. Ram Kishun, 55 I. C. 504.

A Court is not bound to pass a decree in accordance with a compromise which is shown to be fraudulent —Asan Pandey v Rajamon Missir, 52 I. C 105.

On an application to record an agreement, under Or XXIII, r. 3, C. P. Code, the Court has power to go behind the transaction and to enquire whether the admission is true and made by the debtor with a full knowledge of his legal rights as against the creditor.—Goturam Radha Kishan v. Barku Dodhu, 24 Bom. L R. 88: 46 B 560.

The plaintiff undertook to abide by the statement of a particular person and closed his case. The person was examined on solemn affirmation but denied any knowledge of the case, and plaintiff's suit was dismissed. Held, the proceedings were tantamount to a compromise of this suit; Chet Ram v. Bhup Singh, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 99: 98 I. C 861.

An agreement between the parties to a suit that it should abide and follow the result of another suit between the same parties is a valid and binding agreement. As soon as a decision is given in the second suit, there is a lawful adjustment of the first suit within the meaning of Or. XXIII, r. 3.—Sreenivasa Chariar v. Kumara Thatha Chariar, (1918) M. W. N. 740 (37 M. 408 distd.).

Where the claim is beyond the jurisdiction of the trial Court, it is not competent to the Court to pass a compromise decree; Govindasami v Kaliaperumal, (1922) M. W. N. 83: 66 I. C. 837.

The plaintiff (respondent) after obtaining a decree in the first Court compromised the suit in the Appellate Court and asked that a decree should be made in favour of the defendants (appellants) Held, that the High Court on an application to make a decree in accordance with the compromise, had acted properly in adding as plaintiffs, members of the temple community who opposed the application, and in refusing the application on the ground that the compromise was a breach of trust on the part of the respondent and therefore unlawful under Or XXIII, r 3.—Sankaralinga v Rajeswara Dorai, 31 M 236, P C. : 8 C L J 230 12 C W N 916.

Agreement that a suit may be decided in a manner different from that prescribed by law is void.—Raja of Venkatagiri v. Chinta Reddi, 37 M 408.

Unless a will is proved in some form, no grant of probate can be made merely on the consent of parties Hence an agreement or compromise as regards the genuineness and due execution of a will, if its effect is to exclude evidence in proof of the will, is not lawful within the meaning of this rule.—Monmohini v. Banga Chandra, 31 C 357: 8 C. W. N. 197 (9 B 241 and 21 B 335 followed)

The terms of this rule are imperative and a Court cannot refuse to record a lawful agreement or compromise and to pass decree in accordance therewith, merely because in its view it is too favourable to one of the parties.—Moti Ram v Yesu, 22 B. 238. But the Court must see that the compromise is a lawful agreement before it is recorded and a decree is passed in accordance with the terms thereof and will look into the merits when necessary to determine its bona fides.

Where after the hearing of an appeal and when it is pending for want of a delivered judgment, a petition for compromise is presented, the Court has to receive the petition and pass the necessary orders thereon.—Nagiah v Seshama, 41 M. L. J 385: 14 L. W. 514.

Where a Compromise Set Up by One Party is Denied by the Other.—When the parties to a suit have by an agreement adjusted the subject matter of the suit, the Court can by an order made in the suit, order such agreement to be recorded and make a decree in accordance with it notwithstanding that one of the parties to such agreement objects to the compromise being accepted.—Brojodurlabh v. Ramanath, 24 C. 908, F B. ; 1 C. W. N 597, F. B. See also, Karuppan v. Ramasami, 8 M 482 ; Ruttonsey Lalji v. Poonbai, 7 B. 301 ; Appasami v. Manikam, 9 M. 103 ; and Goculdas Bulabdas v. Scott, 16 B 202 ; Mahant Raghubir Singh v. Chanan Singh, 69 I. C. 395.

There can be no doubt that when one party alleges and the other denies that a suit has been settled by a lawful agreement out of Court the Court has power to decide whether there has been such a settlement and if this question is decided in the affirmative, to grant a decree in accordance with the agreement. The Full Bench decision in 24 C 908 1 C. W. N. 597 (given above) has been now given effect to by the alterations made in Or. XXIII, r. 3 from the language of s 375 of the old Code.—Anadi Krishna v. Priya Shankar, 21 C. W. N. 366: 36 I. C 375—Sital v. Lal Bahadur, 38 A. 75, 80-81.

Any party to a suit has the right to repudiate the action of an agent compromising it without his knowledge and consent, before an order is passed accepting the compromise as the final determination of the suit. —Monmohini v. Banga Chandra, 31 C. 357: 8 C. W. N. 197 (24 C. 908: 1 C. W. N. 597 referred to).

Where a party to a suit impugns an alleged agreement or compromise by which he would be bound, the Court must satisfy itself by evidence that the agreement or compromise is a lawful one, and that its terms have been consented to by the parties to the suit before it can proceed under this section, to record it and pass a decree in accordance therewith.—Sridharan v Puramathan, 28 M 101

The rule was intended to meet cases where the parties having agreed to compromise subsequently fall out The original Court has power to frame an additional issue to decide whether a lawful compromise has been effected between the parties subsequent to the institution of the suit.—Appasami v. Varadachari, 19 M. 419.

Held, that under this rule, the Court had jurisdiction to determine ether, as a fact, the alleged agreement adjusting the suit has been de, and if it was satisfied that it has been made, to record it. Whether it fact should be tried on affidavit or by oral evidence, is entirely in discretion of the Court —Samibai v Premji Pragi, 20 B. 304.

Compromise as Between Some of the Parties—Effect on Others.—The reement between the plaintiff and one set of defendants cannot affect position of the other defendants They can neither be prejudiced by nor can they take any advantage of that agreement. Musst. Bhagu v. Jaydam Sahai, 2 Pat. L T 471.

Submission and Award equivalent to " Adjustment of the suit by an reement " within the meaning of this Rule.—It was held by the Bombay gh Court, in two earlier cases decided under the old Code, that where e matters in difference in a pending suit are referred to arbitration witht the intervention of the Court and an award is made, the submission d the award may be treated as an "adjustment of the suit by agreeent " within the meaning of s. 373 of that Code, and it may be recordas an adjustment under that section., Prag Das v. Girdhar Das, 26 76, Samibhai v Premji, 20 B 304 The same High Court, in a case cided under this Code, took the same view and held that where in a pending suit the matters in difference are referred by the parties to arbitration ithout the intervention of the Court and an award is made, the provions of para 20 of Sch. II do not apply to the award, but that the subission and award may be recorded as an adjustment under this rule; aralhbai v Jamnabai, 37 B 639 19 I C 786. A contrary view was, wever, taken by Sir Norman Macleod, J, in Shavakshaw v Tyab Haji, B 386 37 I C 340, where it was held that, in view of the words any other law for the time being in force in s 89 of the Code and ving regard to the provisions of that section a submission and an award ade without the intervention of the Code could not be recorded as an ljustment under this rule and that the proper procedure was under ras 20 and 21 of Sch II, and that accordingly the matter should be ated as an application under those paragraphs and treated accordingly. ut in Mani Lal Moti Lal v Gokul Das, 45 B 245 A I. R 1921 Bom 10, Sir Norman Macleod and Mr Justice Fawcett reconsidered the atter and held that the submission and award could properly be recorded suit fails by reason of some point of form. Such liberty should not be given where, after issue joined, the plaintiff has failed to make out his case.—Watson v. Collector of Rajshahi, 3 B. L R. 48, P. C.: 13 M. I. A. 160, P. C. See also, Mona Bibee v. Oomed Ali, 16 W. R. 276: and Muddun Ram v. Israil Ali, 21 W. R. 291. See, however, Omesh Chunder v. Thakoor Dass, 23 W. R. 345

The circumstances contemplated by Or. XXIII, r. 1 of the Code are confined to those cases mentioned in cls. (a) and (b) of r. 1, sub-rule (2) of the order, and do not include a case where the Court making the order is not satisfied that the circumstances mentioned in cls. (a) or (b) exist. If the Court is not satisfied that the circumstances contemplated in the rule exist then it has no jurisdiction to make the order as the jurisdiction is only conferred where the Court is so satisfied If this condition is not fulfilled, it is clear that the jurisdiction does not arise; Raj Kumar v. Ram Khelawan, 1 Pat. 1920: (1922) Pat. 17: 3 Pat. L. T. 80 F. B.

The words " other sufficient ground " in Or XXIII, r. 1 cl. (2) mean that the ground must be one ejusdem generis with the formal defect referred to in sub-cl. (a). Mere inability of a party to prove his case is not sufficient ground for permitting him to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Buratha Gunta v. Thurla patti, 8 I. C. 868: 9 M. L. T. 204: (1911) M. W. N. 105; Lala Punju Shet v Motiram, 50 B. 192: 94 I. C. 777: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 315.

Absence or incompleteness of evidence is no sufficient ground for permitting a plaintiff to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Khub Chand v. Ajodhya, 11 A L J. 733.

Where a plaintiff asked for permission to withdraw his suit, on the ground that it would be out of his power to adduce the evidence, which he pointed out as existing in certain records, within the period fixed by the Court for hearing the case, the Court was competent to grant him permission to withdraw the case.—Paresh Narain v. Sarat Soonduree, 16 W R. 100. But see, Bai Keshibai v Shidappa, 15 Bom. L R 823. 37 B 682.

In a suit for enhancement of rent, the plaintiff also, claimed additional rent on account of excess area under s. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, but gave no evidence as was necessary under that section, held, that, under the circumstances of the case, the plaintiff could be allowed to withdraw the claim with regard to additional rent with respect to the additional area with liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject-matter; Indu Bhusan v. Jath Mallik, 62 I C. 699

The fact that notices on the heirs of a deceased defendant could not be served is no ground for allowing plaintiff to withdraw a suit with liberty to file a fresh suit; Lakshmibai Jagannath Joshi v. Yeshwant Vithal, 24 Bom. L. R. 909.

Change in substantive law during progress of a suit—Application for withdrawal in order to get benefit of the alteration in the substantive law. Held, that permission should not be given by the Appellate Court.—Prabhakar v. Khandera, 10 Bom. L R 625.

The omission by the plaintiff to include in his plaint all his causes of action, which are inconsistent with each other, cannot be said to constitute a formal defect in the plaint and is not a sufficient ground to allow withdrawal of the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one.—Manbhan v Sumer Chand, 12 A. L. J. 441 (7 M. L. J. 288 referred to).

Where according to one of the plaintiffs, a pedigree filed is incorrect in several particulars, there is no formal defect to allow the suit to be withdrawn, with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Gulab Dei v. Palam Das, 30 I. C. 351.

Where a plaintiff brought a joint suit against three sets of defendants to set aside separate alienations made by a Hindu widow during her life time; and the suit was bad for misjoinder of parties and causes of action, the plaintiff was allowed to withdraw his suit against two sets of defendants with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Ganeshi Lal v. Khairati Singh, 16 A. 279.

Where it would be difficult to execute the decree against the defendant on account of his absence, the plaintiff might be allowed to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action.—Syed Ali v. Adib, 15 B. 160.

An order for withdrawal under Or. XXIII, r. 1, cannot properly be made on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to produce evidence in support of his claim. Cl. (b) of sub-rule (2) should be read in conjunction with cl. (a). Hence the grounds included in cl. (b) must be of the same nature as the ground specified in cl. (a).—Hriday Nath v. Akshaylal, 23 C. L. J. 454: 39 I. C. 963 (11 C. L. J. 45: 11 C. L. J. 512: 23 C. L. J. 489, referred to), Munna Lal v. Chhabil Das, 46 I. C. 181; Mahendra Ram v. Singi Mal, 3 Pat. L. J. 651: 48 I. C. 197.

Plaintiff's inability to produce important evidence is not sufficient ground within Or. XXIII, r. 1 (2) (b), C. P. Code, for permitting him to withdraw the suit with permission to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject-matter, Uchant Ahir v. Basawan Ahir, 6 Pat. L. J. 112: 2 Pat. L. T. 634.

Where a suit is brought for the interest due on a mortgage, it is not a sufficient cause for granting leave to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue afresh that a subsequent suit for the principal would be barred by Or. II, r. 2, C. P. Code: Parduman Chand v. Gangaram, 66 I. C. 235.

In order to succeed in an application for withdrawal, the plaintiff must specifically state the formal defect. A mere general statement that there are formal defects is not sufficient.—Pundalik v. Chandrabhan, 43 I. C. 846.

A special Judge appointed under s. 54 of the Dekkan Agriculturist Relief Act (XVII of 1879) is not competent in the exercise of his revisional powers to allow a plaintiff to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a new one, merely on the ground that he has made some mistake in filing the suit.—Muktaji Bhagoji v. Manaji, 12 B. 684.

In a suit against a Ruling Chief, if the consent of the Governor-General in Council under s. 433, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 86), has not been obtained before the commencement of the suit, the Court should allow the plaintiff to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh suit under this section.—Chandu Lal v. Awad Bin, 21 B. 351.

Effect of Erroneous Grant of Leave to Withdraw.—An order for withdrawal of a suit with leave to institute a fresh suit made under Or. XXIII, r. 1 but in circumstances not within the scope of the rule, cannot be treated as an order made without jurisdiction; such order is consequently not null and void. A fresh suit instituted upon leave so granted is not incompetent. The Court trying the subsequent suit is not competent to enter into the question, whether the Court which granted permission to the plaintiff to withdraw the first suit had properly made such order.—Hriday Nath v. Ram Chandra, 31 C. L. J. 482 (23 C. L. J. 489, 20 C. W. N. 1000, overruled), Sammudi Shaikh v. Falbash, 65 I. C. 701.

Assuming that a Court ought not, under Or. XXIII, r. 1 of the C. P. Code, to grant permission to a plaintiff to consolidate the claim in the suit which is withdrawn with that in another suit pending at the time, the order granting the permission is not a nullity and the plaintiff cannot without complying with the terms of the order, maintain a fresh suit in regard to the same subject matter, Lakshmanan v. Muttaya Chetty, 40 M. L. J. 126: 29 M. L. T. 189.

Where the Court allows some plaintiffs to withdraw with liberty to file a fresh suit without the consent of the others, the Court acts without jurisdiction and a fresh suit is barred, Mt. Ram Dei v. Mt. Bahurrani, 1 Pat. 228: A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 489.

Power to Allow Withdrawal of Appeal.—An Appellate Court has authority to permit an appeal to be withdrawn.—Ram Pershad v. Bhurosa Koonwar, 9 W. R. 328.

The High Court allowed the appellant to withdraw his second appeal after it had been argued, though not decided, in order that he might apply to the lower Court for a review of its judgment on the ground of discovery of new evidence.—Pandu v. Devji, 7 B. 287.

One of the appellants can withdraw from the appeal so far as his own interest in the appeal are concerned.—Gopala v. Hira Singh, 119 P. W. R. 1908.

When Permission Ought Not to be Granted.—Where all the evidence in the case have been adduced and the case almost finished, the Courts ought not to permit the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action more specially when it is not shown what defects there were in the plaint which necessitated such withdrawal.—Rajendra Nath v. Baikunta Nath, 34 I. C. 931.

On an application by plaintiff to withdraw a part of his claim with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the ground of misjoinder of parties and causes of action, the court found there was no misjoinder as alleged in the petition but still granted the leave without stating any grounds for allowing the same. Held that the plaintiff ought not to have been allowed leave to withdraw a part of the claim, Gopalchandra v. Benodi Behary, 61 I. C. 82.

Permission Need Not be Express.—The permission mentioned in Or. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. Code, need not be express and it is sufficient if the grant of permission can be implied from the order read with the application on which the order was passed; Banwari v. Kishen Devi, 2 Lah L J 242 · 67 I. C. 1002.

Where the Court gave permission to withdraw the suit, but did not in terms give the plaintiff liberty to bring fresh suit, it was held that the order ought to be read along with the petition and construed as granting permission to file a fresh suit; Khudi Rai v. Lalo Rai, 5 Pat 23: 93 I C 1001: A. I. R. 1926 Pat 259.

After a suit has been referred to arbitration and a valid award has been made, it would be improper to allow withdrawal having regard to the provisions of para 3 (2), Sch. II. C .P. Code.—Abdul Karim v Muhammad Hussain, 32 I. C. 347

Form of Order Granting Permission to Withdraw.—Where leave is granted to the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, the order must not be one dismissing the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, but one granting permission to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit —Doucett v. Wise, 1 W. R. 822; Banwari v. Muhammad, 9 A 690 Where permission to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit is refused, the Court should simply dismiss the application, Vokual v. Purshotam Das, 32 B 345

Dismissal of Suit Coupled with Liberty to Bring a Fresh Suit, Whether Permissible.—The Courts in India do not possess the power to dismiss a suit with liberty to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit for the same matter, Banwari v Muhammad, 9 A 690; Sukh Lal v. Bhikhi, 11 A. 187, Fateh Singh v. Jagannath, 52 I A 100 · 47 A. 158: A I. R. 1925 P C. 55. Watson v. Collector of Rajshaye, 13 M I A. 160.

Right of Appellant to Withdraw his Appeal Where Cross-objections have been filed.—Where no cross-objections under s. 561, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or XLI, r. 22), have been filed by the respondent, an appellant has an absolute right to withdraw his appeal at any time before judgment, but where such objection has been filed, the appellant, if he wishes to withdraw his appeal. must do so before the hearing of the appeal has commenced.—Kalyan Singh v. Rahmu, 23 A. 130. But after the hearing of the appeal has commenced, the appeal cannot be withdrawn so as to prevent the cross-objections being heard and determined —Dhondi Jagannath v. The Collector of Salt Revenue, 9 B. 28. In Jafar Husain v. Ranjit Singh, 17 A. 518, it has been held that if an appeal in which objections have been filed under Or. XLI, r. 22 is withdrawn the objections cannot be heard.

Withdrawal of appeal by the appellant, by which a respondent loses his opportunity of having his cross-objections heard, does not afford sufficient reason for enlarging the time for the cross-appeal which he might have presented. Chudasama Manabhai v. Mahant Iswargar, 16 B 249 (10 B. 308 referred to).

Order under this Rule, If Subject to Appeal or Revision.—An order under this rule permitting withdrawal of a suit with liberty to bring fresh suit is not a decree within the meaning of s. 2, and is therefore not appealable.—Jugodindro Nath v. Sarut Sundari, 18 C. 322; Kalian Singh v. Lekhraj, 6 A. 211; Dick v. Dick, 15 A. 109; Jogdesh Chaudhri v. Tulshi, 16 A. 19; Genda Lal v. Pirbhu Lal, 17 A. 97; Abdul Hossein v. Kasi Sahu.

27 C. 362: 4 C. W. N. 41. But see Ganga Ram v. Data Ram, 8 A. 82; Sant Ram v. Mt. Sahib Kaur, A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 267: 65 I. C. 719. But such an order is open to revision if it falls within s. 115 of the Code. An order under this rule is open to revision if the Court acted illegally or with material illegality in making the order, Hira lal v. Udoy, 16 C. W. N. 1027; Hridoy v. Akshay, 25 C L. J 454; Uchaut v. Basawan, 6 Pat. L J. 112; Bai Kashi Bai v. Shidapa, 37 B 682; Isher Das v. Lal Singh, 7 L. L. J. 290: 90 I. C. 632: A. I. R 1925 Lah. 497; Aiya v. Gopanna, 27 M L. J. 480: 26 I. C. 57 The High Court can also interfere in revision if the lower Court has not applied its mind to the circumstances of the case and the provisions of this rule, Ganga v. Msst. Kishni, 47 A. 319: 87 I. C. 175 A I. R 1925 All. 466

An order under this rule allowing withdrawal is subject to revision.—Dick v. Dick, 15 A 169 (6 A 211 referred to) See also, Tirupathi v. Mutta, 11 M 322.

Applicability of this Rule to suits in Revenue Courts.—This rule does not apply to suits before the revenue authorities under Act (X of 1859), that Act being a complete Code in itself —Radha Madhab v. Lukhi Narain, 21 C. 428; Mokunda Ballav v Bhogaban Chunder, 21 C. 514. See also, Doyal Chunder v Dwarkanath, Marsh. 143: W. R., F B 47; Modhoo Soodun v. Panchcowree, 7 W R. 302; Beer Chunder v. Tarinee Churn, 11 W. R. 46; Rama Nath v Jay Kishen, 11 W R. 3 and Golam Mahomed v. Shibendra, 35 C. 990 12 C. W N. 893 (28 C. 532 distinguished); Sasi Kanta v. Salim Sheikh, 50 C. 626. 27 C. W. N. 987.

Held, that the procedure provided by sections 43 and 373, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2 and this rule), is applicable to suits under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1881.—Madho Prakash v Murli Manohar, 5 A 406 (9 C 295 followed)

Applicability of this Rule to Execution Proceedings.—This rule does not apply to applications for execution of decrees.—Thakur Prasad v. Fakirullah, 17 A. 106, P. C (18 C. 635 approved; 10 A. 71 overruled; and 12 A. 179 reversed). See also, Wajihan alias Alijan v. Bishwanath, 18 C. 462 (10 B 62 followed, and 12 A 392 dissented from); Radha Kishen v. Radha Pershad, 18 C. 515 (18 C. 462 followed; 12 A. 392 dissented from); Lakhmi Narasimha v Atchanna, 15 M. 240 (12 A. 392 dissented from, 18 C 462 and 11 B 467 approved) From the above rulings it would appear that there was a difference of opinion between the Allahabad and the other three High Courts on this point—the former holding that s 647, C P Code, 1882 (s. 141), makes this rule applicable to proceedings in execution of decrees; while the latter holding that s 141 does not operate to extend the rule laid down in respect of a suit in this rule to an application for execution of a decree. But the matter has been set at rest by the Privy Council case reported in 17 A. 106, overruling 10 A. 71, reversing 12 A 179, and approving 18 C. 635. The Privy Council case has impliedly overruled Sher Singh v. Daya Ram, 13 A. 564, and Kishan Shahai v. Aladad Khan, 14 A 64.

An application to withdraw a pending proceeding for execution, with leave to institute another at some future time, is not a step in aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of the Limitation Act, based upon a call order, dated 11th November, 1880, and they were permitted to withdraw it with liberty to bring fresh suit for the same cause of action Held, that the plaintiffs were not precluded from bringing the second suit upon the balance order.—London, Bombay and Mediterranean Bank v. Burjorji Sorabji, 9 B. 346.

An unsuccessful claimant brought a regular suit against a decree holder, who then released the property from attachment and the plaintiff withdrew his suit The same property was afterwards attached and sold in execution of the same decree Held, that the subsequent suit for possession of the property against the auction-purchaser was not barred by this rule —Mukhoda Soondury v. Ram Churan, 8 C. 871 (11 M I. A 7 cited)

In 1893 the plaintiff sued to eject the defendants alleging that they were in occupation of the land under a lease of 1880 from the late Zamorin of Calicut. The plaintiff's title rested on an instrument executed by him in 1892 It was objected that the instrument was not binding after the death of the grantor The plaintiff thereupon withdrew his suit without obtaining leave to sue again He subsequently obtained a like instrument from the present Zamorin and sued again to eject the defendants. Held, that the second suit was barred by this rule.—Achuta Menon v. Achuta Nayar, 21 M. 35

A Court after reference of arbitration cannot, pending the reference grant permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit for same matter Permission thus given to a plaintiff to withdraw, with liberty to bring fresh suit, is ultra vires, and does not save the fresh suit from being barred by this rule —Sheoamber v. Deodat, 6 A. 168

The dismissal of the former suit " in the form it was brought " does not amount to permission to sue again as contemplated by this rule and such dismissal must be regarded as a " decision," thereof in the sense of s. 13, explanation iii, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 11), and therefore as a bar to the fresh suit —Gonesh v. Kalka Prasad, 5 A. 595; Muhammad Salim v. Nabian Bibi, 8 A 282; Kudrat v. Dinu, 9 A. 155: and Banwari Das v. Muhammad Mashiat, 9 A. 690 (13 B. L. R. 18, P. C., referred to)

A suit for possession was wholly dismissed, on the ground that the plaintiff had not made out his title to the whole of the property claimed though he had proved title to a one-third share of it, the decree containing a clause that a fresh suit might be brought for one-third share. Subsequently the plaintiff brought another suit for possession of the one third share Held, that the Court in the former suit had no power to include in its decree any such reservation or order; that the fact that the decree was not appealed against did not give the order contained in it, which was an absolute nullity, any effect —Sukh Lal v. Bhikhi, 11 A. 187, F. B (5 A. 595, 8 A. 282, and 9 A. 155 explained).

In a suit for partition both the parties having arrived at a compromise, filed a joint petition praying that the suit might be struck off; the terms of the compromise were however not inserted in the decree and were never carried out. Subsequently the plaintiff brought a second suit for partition of the same property; Held, that the suit was barred by this rule —Gulkandi Lal v. Manni Lal, 23 A. 219.

Where the former suit was withdrawn with permission to bring fresh suit the subsequent suit is not barred.—Kunhan v Sunkara, 14 M. 78, p. 80.

A redemption suit was dismissed for want of necessary parties. In the Appellate Court, the plaintiff put in a petition saying that he did not wish to prosecute his "appeal or claim," the other side having given up his costs. The plaintiff then brought a second suit to redeem. Held, that the suit was barred by the last para. of this rule, the consideration for withdrawal being that the respondents gave up their costs.—Ram Prasad v. Dungar Singh, 4 A. L. J. 201: (1907), A. W. N. 91.

Where in a suit for partition, a defendant has, by concession of the plaintiff, acquired rights, which otherwise, could not have existed, it is not open to the plaintiff, who has made that concession, afterwards to annul its effect, by withdrawing the suit in the Appellate Court. Sections 373 (Or. XXIII, r. 1) and 582 (Or. XXII, r. 11), C. P. Code, 1882, do not support the conclusion that rights actually vested and created by the decree of the first Court can be afterwards annulled by the plaintiff's withdrawal of the entire suit, of his own free will and without the permission of the Court.—Satyabhamabai, v. Ganesh Balkrishna, 29 B. 13: 6 Bom. L. R. 533.

"In respect of such subject-matter."—The expression used in the corresponding s. 373 of the old Code, was "matter." It was held in Kamini v. Ram Nath, 21 C. 265 and Gopal v. Purna, 4 C. W. N. 110, that the word "matter," as used in the old Code, did not mean property, but that it referred only to right in the property. The terms "subject-matter" and the "same matter," which occurred in the corresponding s. 373 of the old Code, have not been defined, and must, we think, be construed strictly in a penal provision of this character. Without attempting an exhaustive definition of all that may be included in the term "subject-matter" we are of opinion that where, as in the present case, the cause of action and relief claimed in the second suit are not the same as the cause of action and the relief claimed in the first suit, the second suit cannot be considered to have been brought in respect of the same subject-matter as the first suit.—(Per Wallis, C. J.) Saiga Reddi v. Subba Reddi, 39 M. 987: 35 I. C. 185. A contrary view was taken by the Punjab Chief Court in Jita Singh v. Hari Singh, 97 P. R. 1916: 37 I. C. 128. See also, Maung Mu v. Maung Kan, 1 Rang. 618: A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 127. The words "subject-matter" used in this rule are not to be identified with the "property" in the suit. They mean the cause of action for a claim. A suit on a different cause of action though relating to the same property is not barred, if the suit is withdrawn without leave of Court; Putto Khan v. Ahmad Zaman Khan, 9 O. & A. L. R. 978: 74 I. C. 56.

Sub-rule (4)—Withdrawal by Co-plaintiffs.—Sub-rule (4) provides that nothing in this rule shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

One of several plaintiffs cannot withdraw from the suit without the consent of the others; Mahomed Ilyas v. Faquira, 10 O. and A. L. R. 210; L. R. 5 A. 78 (Rev.). Where the Court in contravention of this sub-rule, allows two out of four plaintiffs to withdraw from a suit without the consent of the other two, it acts without jurisdiction, and a second suit in respect of the same subject-matter is barred.—Musst. Ram Dei v. Musst. Bahu Rani, 1 Pat 228. A I R. 1922 Pat. 489.

Notice.—An order under this rule without notice to the opposite party is bad.—Rajendra v. Atal, 25 C L. J. 456: 44 C. 454.

Withdrawal of Suit by Next Friend of Minor.—When a suit is fraudulently withdrawn by the next friend of a minor plaintiff, without leave to bring fresh suit, it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the consequences of fraud in one of the three ways, viz. (1) by an application to the Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by a regular suit to set aside the judgment founded upon the withdrawal; or (3) by bringing a fresh suit for the same purpose, and setting up the fraud as an answer to the statutory bar.—Eshan Chandra v. Nundamoni, 10 C 357. In Ram Sarup v. Shah Latafat Hossein, 29 C. 735, the withdrawal of a suit by the next friend was treated as gross negligence. A withdrawal of a suit by the next friend of a minor in pursuance of an agreement or compromise entered into with the defendant without the leave of the Court, is voidable at the instance of the minor, under Or. XXXII, r 7.—Dorasamy v. Thangasami, 14 M. L J 159. 27 M 377.

Power of Court of Small Causes to Allow Withdrawal.—The Court of Small Causes at Calcutta has jurisdiction to pass an order under this rule after granting a new trial.—Jadu Mani v. Ram Kumar, 29 C 239, but the Judge of a Small Cause Court cannot allow withdrawal without recording reasons.—Luchi v. Raghubir, 2 Pat L. J. 682 But in Yule and Co. v. Mahomed Hossein, 24 C. 129, it has been held that the Small Cause Court Judge after receiving the judgment of the High Court, on a reference, had no jurisdiction to allow the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring fresh suit, but was bound to enter judgment according to the decision of the High Court Limitation law not affected by first suit.

2. In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted under the last preceding rule, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been instituted. [S. 374]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 374, C P. Code, 1882, with the modification that the word "instituted" has been substituted for the word "brought" which occurred in the old section.

Limitation.—When a suit is withdrawn under Or. XXIII, r 1 with permission to bring a fresh suit, the effect of this rule is, that limitation is to apply to the second suit, as if it was the first. Held also, that section 14 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a case.—Varajlal v. Shomeshwar, 29 B. 219: 7 Bom. L. R. 90 (12 B. 625, followed). Where leave to withdraw was granted erroneously by a Court which had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the case will be governed not by the provisions of this rule but by those of s. 14 of the Limitation Act, and the term during which the first suit was prosecuted will be excluded in computing the period of limitation for the second suit; Ramdeo v Gonesh, 35 C. 924: 12 C. W N 921.

The effect of withdrawal of a suit with permission to bring fresh suit, is to leave the parties in the same position as that in which they would have been if the suit had never been brought A plaintiff, therefore, who has obtained permission under section 373, C P Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 1), will not be debarred by s 43, C P Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2), from claiming in a subsequent suit a relief which he might have included, but did not, in the suit which he was permitted to withdraw.—Behari Lal v. Baran Mai Dasi, 17 A 53. See also, Venkata Chetti v. Ranga Nayank, 10 M. 160. Followed in Syed Hossain Ali v. Hari Nath, 1 C. L. J. 29-n; Elahi Buksh v Imam Baksh, 1 A. 321; Mul Chand v. Bhikari, 7 A. 624; and Sobhapathi v Lakshmee, 24 M. 293

Execution Proceedings.—The rule laid down in this rule does not apply to applications for executions.—Tara Chand Megh Raj v. Kashi Nath, 10 B. 62; Thakur Prasad v. Fakirullah, 17 A. 106, P. C. (10 A. 71 overruled; 12 A. 179 reversed, and 18 C. 635 approved); see Eshan Chunder v Pran Nath, 22 W. R. 512. But see Pirjade v. Pirjade, 6 B. 681. See also, notes, under Or XXIII, r. 1.

Withdrawal of appeal by the appellant, by which a respondent loses his opportunity of having his cross-objections heard, does not afford sufficient reason for enlarging time for the cross-appeal which he might have presented —Chudasama Manabhai v. Mahant Ishwargar, 16 B 249 (10 B. 398 referred to).

The effect of withdrawal of an appeal under a compromise estops the parties with regard to the points raised in the Lower Court's decision—Vythilinga v Vijayathammal, 6 M 43.

Compromise of suit

3. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit has been adjusted wholly or in part by any lawful agreement or compromise, or where the defendant satisfies the plaintiff in respect of the whole or any part of the subject-matter of the suit, the Court shall order such agreement, compromise or satisfaction to be recorded and shall pass a decree in accordance therewith so far as it relates to the suit. [S. 375.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to section 375, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The words "where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit has been adjusted" have been substituted for the words "if a suit be adjusted," which occurred in the old section. The words "the Court shall order" have been added and the words "and such decree shall be final so far as relates to so much of the subject-matter of the suit as is dealt with by the agreement, compromise, or satisfaction" which occurre in the concluding part of the old section, have been omitted, having regard to cl. (3) of s. 96, which provides that no appeal shall lie from a decree passed by the Court with the consent of parties. But on account of the omission of the words "such decree shall be final," a review of a consent decree may be granted Under the old law, review was prohibited (see 5 W. R. 226).

"The Committee have considered it expedient to alter the language of s. 375 so as to recognize the power of a Court to enquire into and to record a disputed compromise."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

"Has been adjusted wholly or in part."—An adjustment which is not bona fide and on the basis of which the Court was not asked to record satisfaction and pass a decree in accordance therewith does not comply with the provisions of Or. XXIII, r. 3; Seth Kevaldoss v. Sanker Lal Bulakhidas 45 M. L J 763 33 M L. T. (P. C) 424.

"By any lawful agreement or compromise."—The language of this rule is wide and general and does not preclude parties from settling their disputes on such lawful terms as they might agree to, without being restricted to such relief as one only of the parties had chosen to claim in the plaint. In a suit for money, where the plaint prays for a simple money decree, an agreement, by which the parties agreed that the decretal amount should be a charge on certain properties, is lawful and "relates to the suit," so as to be embodied in the decree—Joti Kuruvetappa v. Izari Sirusappa, 30 M. 478.

A Hindu Father has full authority to act on behalf of his adopted son and to enter into a compromise in a suit on mortgage of joint family property so as to bind the son to the compromise in respect of the son's interest in the property; Saiyid Mehdi v. Chaudhri Ghanshiam, A. I. R. 1927 P C. 204

A compromise signed by a pleader who was not specially authorized for the purpose is bad and a decree in accordance with it should be set aside—Basangowda v. Churchigirigowda, 34 B. 408

Where the parties to a suit themselves effect a compromise and the fact of the compromise is conveyed to the Court by means of a petition presented by the pleaders appearing on both sides, it is not open to the parties to question the compromise on the ground that the pleaders had no authority to compromise.—Pambayam Chetty v. Kandaswami, 12 L. W. 562: 60 I C. 22.

It is incumbent on a Court to pass a decree in terms of a compromise only if the same is lawful, i e., enforceable in law. One test to apply is, were the parties competent to enter into the agreement in order to achieve the purpose they had in view. When after a mortgage decree to which the puisne mortgagee was a party, the mortgagee and prior mortgagee put in appeal a petition of compromise which increases the amount payable to the latter, a decree cannot be passed in accordance therewith, as it undoubtedly prejudices the rights of the puisne mortgagee and hence cannot be said to be "lawful."—Mal Chand Boid v. Osman Ali, 23 C. L. J. 272.

The Court has no jurisdiction, under this rule, to pass a decree on a compromise, unless it is a lawful compromise. Any terms of a contract which are opposed to public policy, are invalid and will, therefore, not be enforced by the Courts and so far as a decree embodies unlawful terms of a compromise, it is inoperative and will not be enforced.—Lakshmanaswami v. Rangamma, 26 M 31 (24 M. 265 referred to). No option is left to a Court to examine the terms of a compromise beyond seeing whether the agreement is lawful or not. An agreement which carries a penal clause such as may be covered by s. 74 of the Contract Act, is not in any sense of the term " unlawful " and hence it must be recorded and decree passed in terms thereof; Kishen Prasad v. Kunj Behari, 24 A. L. J. 210: 91 I. C. 790: A. I. R. 1926 All. 278.

The legality of a provision for ejectment is to be tested in the light of the rules formulated in the Bengal Tenancy Act, even though the provision originally appearing in the petition of compromise has been incorporated in the decree. The Court will not in such circumstances, assist the decree-holder to achieve his illegal purposes in defiance of express statutory prohibition. The circumstance, that a consent decree has been passed on the basis of a compromise, does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court to grant relief against forfeiture, and the Court must determine whether on equitable grounds, relief could have been granted against forfeiture if it had been called to enforce the agreement itself.—Gopal Krishna v. Hari Nath, 34 C L. J. 157.

A Court will not recognise any compromise of an action with the facts of which it is entirely unacquainted or if one of the terms of the compromise is a clear violation of a statutory rule.—Mussammat Sakli v. Ram Kishun, 55 I. C. 504.

A Court is not bound to pass a decree in accordance with a compromise which is shown to be fraudulent.—Asan Pandey v. Rajamon Missir, 52 I. C. 105.

On an application to record an agreement, under Or. XXIII, r. 3, C P. Code, the Court has power to go behind the transaction and to enquire whether the admission is true and made by the debtor with a full knowledge of his legal rights as against the creditor.—Goturam Radha Kishan v. Barku Dodhu, 24 Bom. L R. 88: 46 B. 560.

The plaintiff undertook to abide by the statement of a particular person and closed his case. The person was examined on solemn affirmation but denied any knowledge of the case, and plaintiff's suit was dismissed. Held, the proceedings were tantamount to a compromise of this suit; Chet Ram v. Bhup Singh, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 99: 98 I. C. 864.

An agreement between the parties to a suit that it should abide and follow the result of another suit between the same parties is a valid and binding agreement. As soon as a decision is given in the second suit, there is a lawful adjustment of the first suit within the meaning of Or. XXIII, r. 3.—Sreenivasa Chariar v. Kumara Thatha Chariar, (1918) M. W. N. 746 (37 M. 408 distd.).

Where the claim is beyond the jurisdiction of the trial Court, it is not competent to the Court to pass a compromise decree; Govindasami v. Kaliaperumal, (1922) M. W. N. 83: 66 I. C. 837.

The plaintiff (respondent) after obtaining a decree in the first Court compromised the suit in the Appellate Court and asked that a decree should be made in favour of the defendants (appellants). Held, that the High Court on an application to make a decree in accordance with the compromise, had acted properly in adding as plaintiffs, members of the temple community who opposed the application, and in refusing the application on the ground that the compromise was a breach of trust on the part of the respondent and therefore unlawful under Or XXIII, r. 3 —Sankaralinga v Rajeswara Dorai, 31 M 236, P C · 8 C. L J 230 12 C W. N 916

Agreement that a suit may be decided in a manner different from that prescribed by law is void —Raja of Venkatagiri v. Chinta Reddi, 37 M. 408

Unless a will is proved in some form, no grant of probate can be made merely on the consent of parties Hence an agreement or compromise as regards the genuineness and due execution of a will, if its effect is to exclude evidence in proof of the will, is not lawful within the meaning of this rule —Monmohini v Banga Chandra, 31 C. 357: 8 C W. N 1[illegible] (9 B 241 and 21 B. 335 followed)

The terms of this rule are imperative and a Court cannot refuse to record a lawful agreement or compromise and to pass decree in accordance therewith, merely because in its view it is too favourable to one of the parties —Moti Ram v Yesu, 22 B. 238. But the Court must see that the compromise is a lawful agreement before it is recorded and a decree is passed in accordance with the terms thereof and will look into the merits when necessary to determine its bona fides.

Where after the hearing of an appeal and when it is pending for want of a delivered judgment, a petition for compromise is presented, the Court has to receive the petition and pass the necessary orders thereon Nagiah v Seshama, 41 M L J 385· 14 L W. 514.

Where a Compromise Set Up by One Party is Denied by the Other.— When the parties to a suit have by an agreement adjusted the subject matter of the suit, the Court can by an order made in the suit, order such agreement to be recorded and make a decree in accordance with it notwithstanding that one of the parties to such agreement objects to the compromise being accepted —Brojodurlabh v. Ramanath, 21 C. 908, F B. ; 1 C W N 597, F. B See also, Karuppan v. Ramasami, 8 M 482 ; Ruttonsey Lalji v Pooribai, 7 B 301 ; Appasami v Manikam ! M 103 , and Goculdas Bulabdas v. Scott, 16 B. 202 ; Mahant Rajbir Singh v Chanan Singh, 69 I C. 395.

There can be no doubt that when one party alleges and the other denies that a suit has been settled by a lawful agreement out of Court the Court has power to decide whether there has been such a settlement and if this question is decided in the affirmative, to grant a decree in accordance with the agreement. The Full Bench decision in 21 C 908 1 C. W. N 597 (given above) has been now given effect to by the alterations made in Or. XXIII, r 3 from the language of s. 375 of the old Code —Anadi Krishna v. Priya Shankar, 21 C. W. N. 366: 36 I C 375— Sital v. Lal Bahadur, 38 A. 75, 80-81.

Any party to a suit has the right to repudiate the action of an agent compromising it without his knowledge and consent, before an order is passed accepting the compromise as the final determination of the suit. —Monmohini v. Banga Chandra, 31 C. 357: 8 C. W. N. 197 (24 C. 908: 1 C. W. N. 597 referred to).

Where a party to a suit impugns an alleged agreement or compromise by which he would be bound, the Court must satisfy itself by evidence that the agreement or compromise is a lawful one, and that its terms have been consented to by the parties to the suit before it can proceed under this section, to record it and pass a decree in accordance therewith.—Sridharan v. Punamathan, 28 M 101

The rule was intended to meet cases where the parties having agreed to compromise subsequently fall out. The original Court has power to frame an additional issue to decide whether a lawful compromise has been effected between the parties subsequent to the institution of the suit.—Appasami v Varadachari, 19 M. 419.

Held, that under this rule, the Court had jurisdiction to determine whether, as a fact, the alleged agreement adjusting the suit has been made, and if it was satisfied that it has been made, to record it. Whether that fact should be tried on affidavit or by oral evidence, is entirely in the discretion of the Court.—Sambhai v. Premji Pragi, 20 B. 304.

Compromise as Between Some of the Parties—Effect on Others.—The agreement between the plaintiff and one set of defendants cannot affect the position of the other defendants. They can neither be prejudiced by it, nor can they take any advantage of that agreement.—Musst. Bhaguali v Jagdam Sahai, 2 Pat. L T 471.

Submission and Award equivalent to " Adjustment of the suit by an agreement " within the meaning of this Rule.—It was held by the Bombay High Court, in two earlier cases decided under the old Code, that where the matters in difference in a pending suit are referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court and an award is made, the submission and the award may be treated as an " adjustment of the suit by agreement " within the meaning of s. 373 of that Code, and it may be recorded as an adjustment under that section, Prag Das v. Girdhar Das, 26 B. 76, Sambhai v. Premji, 20 B 304. The same High Court, in a case decided under this Code, took the same view and held that where in a pending suit the matters in difference are referred by the parties to arbitration without the intervention of the Court and an award is made, the provisions of para 20 of Sch II do not apply to the award, but that the submission and award may be recorded as an adjustment under this rule; Harakhbai v Jamnabai, 37 B 639 19 I C 786. A contrary view was, however, taken by Sir Norman Macleod, J, in Sharafshaw v Tyab Haji, 40 B 386 37 I C 340, where it was held that, in view of the words " any other law for the time being in force " in s 89 of the Code and having regard to the provisions of that section a submission and an award made without the intervention of the Code could not be recorded as an adjustment under this rule and that the proper procedure was under paras 20 and 21 of Sch II, and that accordingly the matter should be treated as an application under those paragraphs and treated accordingly. But in Mani Lal Moti Lal v Gokul Das, 45 B 245 A. I. R. 1921 Bom 310, Sir Norman Macleod and Mr Justice Fawcett reconsidered the matter and held that the submission and award could properly be recorded under Or XXIII, r. 23, and that the previous judgment of Mr Justice Macleod, in Shavakshaw v. Tyab Haji, 40 B. 386, was incorrect It has recently been held by a Full Bench of the Bombay High Court in Channbasappa v. Basalingappa, 29 Bom. L. R. 1254: A. I. R. 1927 Bom 567 (following Mani Lal Moti Lal, v. Gokul Das, 45 B. 245) that where in a suit, parties have referred their differences to arbitration without an order of the Court and an award is made, a decree in terms of the award can be passed by the Court under Or. XXIII, r. 23, but not otherwise The Allahabad High Court, in Gajendra v. Durga Kunwar, 47 A 637 A I. R. 1925 All 503 F B , and the Madras High Court, in Chinnavenkatasami v Venkatasami, 42 M. 625, have taken the same view as the Bombay High Court in Mani Lal's case. The Calcutta High Court in Amar Chand v. Banwari, 49 C. 608 A I. R. 1922 Cal. 404, has dissented from the decision in Mani Lal's case and held that the award can't be enforced under Or XXIII, r 3, or under paras. 20 and 21 of Sch II The Lahore High Court, in Hari Prasad v. Soogni, 3 L. L. J. 162, has followed the Calcutta High Court decision in Amar Chand v. Banwari

Reference to Arbitration does Not Preclude Parties from Compromising.—Even after a reference to arbitration is made in a pending suit, the parties are not precluded from settling the dispute amicably by mutual agreement, and it is not therefore necessary to cancel the reference before accepting the compromise ; Mt Aishan v. Abdulla, 99 I C. 1002. A I R. 1927 Lah. 156.

Power of Court to Pass Decree on Partial Award.—Held that, it was open to the court to record the decision of the arbitrator and pass a decree thereon even though the award was partial. There is no rule of law that a partial award is invalid and the question has to be decided on the intention of the parties, the matter being a subject of contract between them ; Alagu-Pillai v Veluchmi, 45 M L. J. 76: 32 M. L T. (H. C.) 369 74 I. C 609.

Compromise Extending Beyond Scope of Suit.—A decree passed on a compromise cannot be regarded as ultra vires simply because it goes beyond the subject-matter of the suit and contains other conditions ; if these other conditions are the considerations for the compromise of the subject matter of the suit, they must be incorporated in the decree —Gobinda Chandra v Dwarka Nath, 7 C L. J 492 See also, Charu Chandra v Sambhu Nath 3 Pat. L J. 255 ; Hari Chand v. Maghi Mal, 95 P. W R 1917 78 P R 1917· 12 P L R. 1917 ; Purna Chandra v. Nilmadhab 5 C W. N 785, Anantha Narayana v. Abdul Karim, 30 M 421: 17 M L J. 255 and Joti Kururetappa v. Izari Sirusappa, 30 M. 478, where it has been held that a compromise decree containing reliefs not covered by suit is valid

When the compromise has been effected between the parties, the proper course to follow is not to recite the compromise in the decree in its entirety but to pass a decree in accordance there with only in so far as it relates to the suit ; Jiban Krishna v. Ramesh Chandra, 38 C L J 72 95 I. C. 47

The words " so far as it relates to the suit " in Or. XXIII, r. 3 show that the terms which form the consideration for the adjustment of the suit or matter in dispute, whether they form the subject-matter of the suit or not, become related to the suit and can be embodied in the decree.—Karu Mian v. Tejo Mian, 3 Pat. L. J. 43. 43 I C 282 (30 M. 478, 20 A. 78 referred to).

The only compromise which a Court can in any case be bound to enforce under this rule is one which adjusts, wholly or in part, the suit; matters going beyond the suit cannot, if included in a compromise, be so enforced. A Court, refusing to grant a decree on a compromise going beyond the suit, cannot however, grant a decree modifying the terms of the proposed compromise, but must leave the parties to proceed with the suit as they may be advised.—Fajaleh Ali Miah v Kamaruddin, 13 C 170. See also, Venkatappa v Thimma Nayaniam, 18 M 410. Purna Chandra v. Panchkori, 5 C L J 15; and Muthuvejaya Raghunatha v. Thandaaraya, 22 M 214.

By consent of parties and the leave of the Court, a suit may be amended to recover an increased claim, and there is nothing in the law which prevents the parties to a suit enlarging, by consent or compromise, the original claim, and getting or allowing a decree for a greater amount of money or land than that originally asked for —Monibullah v. Imami, 9 A. 229.

The terms of a solenama decree in so far as they cover matters not involved in the suit, cannot be enforced in execution of the decree but the decree is evidence of the agreement entered into as regards those matters Jagabandhu v Hari Mohan, 62 I. C. 653.

Compromise of Doubtful Claims.—An agreement entered upon a supposition of a doubtful right, though it afterwards comes out that the right was on the other side, shall be binding and the right shall not prevail against the agreement of the parties: for the right must always be on one side or the other and therefore the compromise of a doubtful right, is a sufficient foundation of an agreement.—Stapilton v. Stapilton, 2 White and Tudor's Leading Cases, 836 and 920, reported in I Atk. 2 (1739). See, Moidin Kutti v Beevi Kutti, 18 M. 38, in which compromise of doubtful claims by adult members was held binding on minor members. See also, Helan Dasi v. Durga Das, 4 C. L. J. 323; Rameshwar v. Lachmi Parasad, 31 C. 111; 7 C. W. N. 688: Auidh Sarju Parasad v. Sitaram, 37 A. 37; Pulliah Chetti v. Varadarajulu, 31 M. 474 and Ram Nirunjun v. Prayag Singh, 8 C. 138 (141-142): 10 C. L. R. 66.

Compromise made by Hindu Widow or Daughter.—A compromise made by a Hindu widow or daughter is not binding on the reversioners.—Gobind Krishna v. Kunni Lal, 29 A. 487: Mahadie v. Baldeo, 30 A. 75; Asharam v. Chandi Churn, 13 C. W. N 147; Imrit Kunwur v. Roopnarain, 6 C. L. R. 76; Shew Narain v. Bishen Prosad, 10 C. L. R. 337. But in Sankar Nath v. Bejoy Gopal, 13 C. W. N. 201, a different view seems to have been taken.

In addition to the cases noted above, see the rulings in 18 C. W. N LXXXVI (86-n).

Authority of Counsel or Pleader to Compromise.—It is not comp[illegible] to a counsel or pleader to enter into a compromise on behalf of his cl[illegible] without his express authority to do so.—Jagapati v. Ekambara, 21 [illegible]

Carrison v Rodrigues, 13 C. 115 ; and Nunda Lal Bose v Nutan Dassi, 27 C. 428 4 C. W. N. 169. But a counsel has, by virtue of his retainer, and without further authority, full power to compromise a case on behalf of his client —Jang Bahadur v. Sankar Rai, 13 A 272 (F B).

When a case is compromised by a counsel or vakil on the instruction of a person who watches the case on behalf of the party: Held that, even if the person instructed has no authority to bind the party, the com*promise is binding on the latter if he ratifies and acts on the compromise*. The appointment of a counsel or a vakil by a party to conduct a case does not necessarily authorize him to make a binding compromise on behalf of his client unless there is express authority for it.—Bhut Nath v. Ram Lall, 6 C W. N. 82.

See notes under section 2, and the cases collected in 13 C W N at p. 86-n

Compromise by Minor's Guardian.—A compromise by a guardian ad litem without the express sanction and approval of the Court will not bind the infant, and will be set aside at his instance —Sharat Chunder v Kartick Chunder, 9 C 810 12 C L R. 455 ; Rajagopal v Subramanya 3 M 103 See also, Karmali v Rahimbhoy, 13 B. 137 ; Mani Sirdar v Bibi Muli, 12 B. 686 ; and Virupakshappa v. Shiddappa, 26 B 109 In order to make a compromise binding on the minor, the guardian must ask and obtain the express permission of the Court.—Kalarati v Chet Lal, 17 A 531 It must be proved that the attention of the Court was directly called to the fact that a minor was a party to the compromise and it ought to be shown by an order on petition or in some way not open to doubt that the leave of the Court was obtained —Monohar Lal v Jadu Nath, 28 A 585, P C 4 C L J 8 10 C W N 898 16 M L J 292 8 Bom L R 489 See also, Govindaswami v. Alagirisami, 29 M 104 (26 B 199 followed) and Krishna Pershad v. Ramesh Chander, 8 C L J 274 13 C W N 163 See, however, Amar Singh v Narain Singh 20 A 98 Sital Das v Bult Nath, 62 I C. 688

A guardian or manager appointed by the Court of wards or by the Civil Court under any local law on behalf of infants has power to compromise proceedings in a Civil Court to which the infants are parties, though the guardian entered into the compromise without the leave of the Court and such compromise has to be registered by the Court without the necessity of the Court examining and assenting to the terms. Nakimo Dewan v Musammat Pemba Dichen, 27 C. W N 707 : 33 C L J 211 28 C 469 48 I A 27 P C

A certificated guardian can compromise a suit without obtaining the sanction of the District Judge, under s. 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890).—Biku Halwai v Mohesh Halwai, 8 C. L. J. 266

Held that, the agreement to refer to arbitration had not been lawfully entered into, as the submission related to the rights of minors, who were parties to the suit, and leave of the Court had not been obtained under s 462, C P Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 7), either before the submission to arbitration or after the award; and that adjustment was in consequence not binding on the minors.—Lakshmana v. Chinathambi, 24 M. 326

Consent by the guardian of a minor defendant to accept the oath of the plaintiff Held that, the minor defendant was bound by the consent of his guardian, since there was no evidence of fraud or negligence on the part of the latter, although the Court had not sanctioned the agreement under s 462, C P Code, 1882 (Or XXXII, r 7)—Chenglreddi v Venkatareddi, 12 M 483

Where a compromise of a suit is made, it ought to be carried out by proper deeds and filed in Court, particularly where infants are concerned, so as to have the assent of the Court at the time, instead of its being totally concealed from them —Abdool Ali v. Muzuffar Hossein, 16 W. R 22, P C

Where a suit was compromised by the next friend of a minor plaintiff and it appeared that the infant had no separate interest from the adult members of the family, who took part in the compromise and assented to it and the Court having had its attention drawn to it, approved of it. Held that, the compromise cannot be set aside—Rameswar Pershad v. Ram Bahadur, 34 C 70, P. C 11 C W N 178 5 C L. J 175 ; 17 M L J. 59

Besides the cases noted above, see also the cases noted under Or XXXII, r 7

Agreement to be Bound by Oath is not Compromise.—The mere agreement of one of the parties to a judicial proceeding to be bound by oath of the other, is in itself no adjustment of the suit.—Konnapalen v. Perotta, 4 M. H. C 422 and Ap. 3 ; Vasudeva Shanbog v. Naraina, 2 M. 356 ; and Muhammad Zahur v Cheda Lal, 14 A 141 See also, Thoyi Ammal v Subbaroya, 22 M 234

Consent Decree—Its Effect and Admissibility in Evidence.—When a state of facts is accepted as the basis of a compromise, whereby a suit pending decision is amicably adjusted, and when the compromise is not vitiated by fraud, those who are parties to it and their privies should not afterwards be heard to say, for the purpose of reviving the controversy, that the real state of things was otherwise —Nilakandhen v. Padmanabha, 18 M. 1, P C, page 7 (6 B. L R 202· 13 M I A. 497, referred to). See also, Nicholas v. Asphar, 24 C. 216, where it has been held that a consent decree is as binding on the parties to the proceedings in which it is made as a decree made after a contentious trial (18 M. 1, P. C., followed, and 6 B L R. 202. 13 M I A. 497, referred to) ; and Lakhshmishankar v Vishnuram, 24 B. 77.

A consent decree does not stand on a higher footing than a contract between the parties ; and the Court has jurisdiction to set aside a consent decree upon any ground which would invalidate an agreement between the parties, and as it is essential to the validity of a contract that all contracting parties should be competent to contract, and as a person, who by reason of infancy is incompetent to contract, cannot make a contract within the meaning of the Contract Act, it follows that a compromise entered into with a minor is entirely void and cannot be given effect to in a Court of law ; Gangan and v. Rameshwar Singh, 6 Pat. 388 : 102 I. C. 419· A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 271.

Where the parties to a suit have by mutual agreement, made certai terms, and informed the Court of them, and the Court has sanctioned th agreement, and made an order in conformity with it, and the agreeme has been acted upon, neither party is at liberty to resile from it.—Sh Golam v Beni Prosad, 5 C 27 4 C. L R 29

A consent decree in a previous suit to which the parties in a subseque suit are parties, being a decree of a Court having jurisdiction over th subject-matter of the suit and over the parties, is admissible in eviden in the latter suit —Lala Shib Lal v. Lala Gouri Prasad, 2 C W N 17

In a suit for rent, the plaintiff landlords are entitled to rely upon compromise decree in a previous title suit brought by a third party again the tenants and to which the landlords were parties Such a comprom cannot be said to have been beyond the scope of the former suit merel because the money was payable to a third party and not to the plaintif in that suit—such a decree is inter parties and is admissible in evidence —Ramdhari Koer v Ramakanta, 9 C L J. 16· 13 C. A bond-fide purchaser pendente lite is not bound by the consent decre —Kishory Mohun v Mahommed Muzaffar, 18 C 188 (8 B. L R 474 and 8 C 79 referred to)

A tenant compromised a case with his landlord agreeing to pay ren at a certain rate The jote was sold in execution of the consent decre and purchased by the defendant In a suit by the landlord against th auction-purchaser,—held, that the solehnama was binding upon the defend ant, and he was liable for rent under its terms irrespective of any questio as to whether the quantity of land mentioned therein was correct or not —Satyendra Nath v Nilkantha, 21 C 383.

A compromise decree in so far as it gives effect to the settlemen touching properties in suit operates as res judicata.—Gurdeo Singh v Chandrika Singh, 5 C L J 611 36 C 193 But any thing which form part of the compromise, but which is not part of the subject-matter of the suit, cannot be regarded as finally settled between the parties —Pur Chandra v Panchkowri, 5 C. Held that the razinama, in so far as it was submitted to and was acted upon judicially by the Court, was itself a step of judicial procedure not requiring registration, and any order pronounced in terms of it, constitu ted res judicata binding upon the parties.—Pranal Anne v. Lakshi Ann, 3 C. where it has been held, that if a compromise goes beyond the subject-matter of the suit and a decree is made on the basis of it, the terms of the compromise are binding upon the defendant, although the decree in respect of the surplusage cannot be enforced in execution.

A petition of compromise, in so far as it relates to the properties in suit, does not require registration But if it relates to extraneous properties, the parties must fall back upon the petition itself, which without registration cannot declare or create title to immoveable properties.—Gudeo Singh, v. Chandrika Singh, 36 C 193 · 5 C. L J. 611 (22 M 508, 1 C L J. 388, 30 C. 783, 20 M 365, 25 M. 7 and 553, referred to, and 28 A 78, disapproved)—Sashi Bhusan v Hari Narayan, 25 C W N 890

A razinama does not require registration only in regard to such of its stipulations and provisions as are incorporated with and given effect to by the order of the Judge.—Patha Muthammal v. Esup Rawthu, 29 M 365 (22 M. 508, P. C., followed) But see, Raghubans v Mahabir, 28 A 78, where it has been held that a compromise relating to the land in suit as well as relating to other lands, which had been incorporated in the decree of the Court in the previous suit, does not require registration.

When a suit is properly compromised but the adjustment consists of an agreement relating to matters outside the scope of the suit and the Court is invited in consequence to dispose of the suit and the Court does dispose of the suit accordingly, the agreement is exempt from registration although the decree deals only with the subject-matter of the suit and does not deal with the portion of the compromise which lies outside the suit —Musst. Arunbati v Ram Niranjan, 2 Pat L. T. 38: 58 I C. 299

An unregistered compromise petition, which was the root of the plaintiff's claim to an increased rent and was filed in previous criminal proceedings, was not incorporated in the order in such proceedings Held, it was not admissible in evidence in a latter civil suit —Biraj Mohinee v. Kedar Nath, 35 C. 1010 · 12 C W N 854

Where a petition of compromise merely contained a recital of a previous oral agreement to lease, it does not require registration or stamp It is evidence of oral agreement but not an agreement in itself —Pitambar Gain v Uddhab Mondal, 12 C W N. 59

Compromise entered into between the parties to mutation proceedings before the Court of Revenue, purporting to vary the terms of a registered mortgage deed is inadmissible in evidence.—Sadaruddin v. Chajju, 31 A. 13.

Stamped Paper, Whether Necessary.—When the parties to a suit compromise, all that the Court is required to do under Or XXIII, r. 3 is to ascertain that the suit has been adjusted by a lawful compromise, and to put the fact on record. It is not necessary that a solehnama on stamped paper should be filed —Mahadeo Prasad v Basdeo Tewari, 29 I. C. 511.

Mode of Enforcing Compromise Decree.—Where a compromise is filed in Court and a decree is passed in accordance therewith, the remedy is by execution and not by a fresh suit.—Ram Mohan v. Lakhi Narayan, 4 B. L. R. A. C. 207; 13 W. R. 151.

A compromise must be treated as a new and positive contract breach of its stipulations may be a ground in a suit for its enforcement, but not for a revival of the original right.—Ram Sahai v. Dhunookdharee, W R 266, Bishun Coomar v. Hurish Chunder, 2 W R 209 See also Ameer Begum v Noor Begum, 1 Agra F B. 1.

Where a plaintiff in seeking to enforce by original suit a right of forfeiture contained in a consent decree passed under s. 375, C. P. Code 1882 (Or. XXIII, r 3), whereby the status of a landlord and tenant is established between the plaintiff and the defendant, the Court is not precluded from granting such relief against forfeiture, as it might have granted had the status arisen from contract or custom. The difference between a consent decree and the agreement of the parties themselves, where the one or the other is sought to be enforced, goes no further than this, that in the former case it would not be open to a party to question the accuracy of the decree, as expressing what at the time was the contract which had been made.—Krishnabai v Hari Govind, 31 B 15 F B . 8 Bom L R. 813· 1 M L T 370 (10 B. 435 dissented from)

Mode and Effect of Setting Aside a Consent Decree.—For the purpose of setting aside a consent decree on the ground that it was obtained by fraud and misrepresentation, there are two available modes of procedure (1) by suit, (2) by review of judgment sought to be set aside; the latter being the more regular mode of procedure.—Ashootosh v. Taraprasanna, 10 C. 612 (6 B L R 649, and 13 B L. R. Ap 11 followed) See also Biraj Mohini v Chinta Moni, 5 C W N. 877 Followed in Rakhalmoni v Adoitya Prosad, 30 C 613 7 C W. N. 419· Foolcoomary v. Woodoy Chunder, 25 C. 649, Mirali Rahimbhoy v. Rehmoobhoy, 15 B 594 (affirming 13 B 137), and Virupakshappa v. Shidappa, 23 B 629 See also, Surendra Nath v. Hemangini, 34 C. 83, and Barhamdeo Prasad v Baranasi Prasad 3 C L J 119 (13 B. 137 followed, 6 C. 687· 10 C 357 13 B L R. Ap 11, dissented from). Where a decree is passed on adjudication, no separate suit lies to set aside the decree except on the ground of fraud, but where it is passed simply upon compromise, a suit lies upon ground other than fraud —Bihu Halwar v. Mohesh Halwar, 8 C L J 266 (34 C. 83 followed)

Principles upon which the Court acts in setting aside compromise considered.—Ram Niranjan v Prayag Sing, 8 C. 138· 10 C. L R 66

Held that, the effect of setting aside a compromise was to remit both parties to their original rights and if the plaintiff was allowed to be heard against so much of the original judgment as was unfavourable to her, the defendant must similarly be heard against so much of the same judgment as was unfavourable to him —Khajooroonnissa v. Roushan Jehan, 2 C 184, P. C.: 26 W. R. 36.

A suit will lie to set aside a compromise sanctioned by the Court under a misapprehension of material facts, and when the compromise is set aside the parties are restored to their original rights in the former suit at the time it was effected.—Solomon v Abdool Azeez, 6 C 687· 8 C. L R 169

The mode of setting aside a compromise decree is either by an application for review or by a suit to set it aside. (10 C. 612, referred to) When however, a party has elected to proceed by way of review and the matter has been decided against him, he cannot be allowed to have recourse to the remedy by way of suit. The decision in the review proceedings is res judicata.—Ram Gopal v. Prasanna Kumar, 2 C. L. J. 508: 10 C. W. N. 529 (5 C. 571 and 28 C. 78 relied on).

Appeal.—An order under this rule recording or refusing to record a compromise is appealable under Or. XLIII, r 1, cl. (m).

An appeal lies from an order recording an agreement, on the ground that (a) there was no compromise at all, Gocul Das v James Scott, 16 B 202; Talamand v. Fateh Din, 88 P. R. 1918; (b) the compromise was not lawful, Gocul Das v. James Scott, 16 B 202; Shridharan v Puramathan, 23 M. 101; or (c) the compromise contains matters extraneous to the suit; Venkatappa v. Thimma, 18 M. 410; Pragdas v Girdhardas, 26 B 76, Manager of Sri Meenakshi v. Abdul Kasim, 30 M 421. The fact that a decree has been passed in terms of the compromise does not preclude an appeal from the order recording the compromise; Megh Raj v. Tulsi Ram, 6 L. L. J. 187: 80 I. C. 696: A. I R. 1924 Lah 466; Satyanarayana v. Butchayya, 48 M L. J. 249: 87 I. C. 124: A. I. R 1925 Mad. 606. But the Calcutta High Court held that an appeal is incompetent after the passing of the decree, Bengal Coal Co. v. Apcar Collieries, 29 C. W. N. 928

An order passed by the lower Court holding that there has been no compromise is not an order under Or. XXIII, r 3, and is not appealable; Shanti Sarup v. The Firm of Jahangir Lal Bansi Mal, 73 I. C. 177.

Review and Amendment of Consent Decree—No review can be admitted of a judgment passed on a compromise.—Purmessuree Narain v Rameezooddeen, 5 W. R. 226.

Amendment of consent decree after 18 years disallowed—Rameshwar Prosad v. Chandreshwar Prosad, 7 C W. N 880.

Proceedings in execution of decrees not affected.

4. Nothing in this Order shall apply to any proceedings in execution of a decree or order. [S. 375-A]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 375-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, with material alterations and omissions. The explanation attached to section 375-A has been omitted. The old section is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison and to mark the distinction between the present and the past law:—

"Nothing in this chapter shall apply to any application or other proceeding in any suit subsequent to the decree."

"Explanation.—An application to the Appellate Court pending on appeal is not application subsequent to the decree appealed from within the meaning of this section."

Proceedings in Execution.—The present rule expressly provides that nothing in this order shall apply to proceedings in execution of a decree or order; or in other words, that there may be successive applications for execution of decrees within the prescribed period of limitation and any such subsequent application for execution will not be barred by rule 1 of this order on the ground that the previous application was withdrawn or dropped without express leave of the Court It was to prevent this hardship caused by the Allahabad rulings that the present rule has been framed adopting the law as laid down in the Privy Council case of Thakur Prasad v Fakirullah, 17 A. 106, which overruled 7 A. 359 10 A. 71: 2 A. 179 and 892 and 6 B 681 and approved 18 C. 635. It is worthy of note that the old section contained the word "suit" and hence there were conflicting rulings, but in the present rule, the word "suit" has been omitted In Pragdas v Girdhardas, 26 B 76 (81), the old s. 375-A was explained in this way It must be admitted that the first clause of s 375-A may be read in two ways, (1) that no application is to be made after a decree under ss 373 to 375; (2) that if any other application is made or proceeding taken after a decree, the provisions of ss. 373 to 375 are not to be applicable to that application or proceeding

Rule (3) of its own force applies to suits only and not to execution proceedings. It refers to compromise of suits and the passing of a decree in accordance therewith. If a decree is once passed in a suit, no compromise of that suit can again be made in the execution proceedings superseding the previous decree Hence rule (3) is not applicable to execution proceedings. In this connection Pragdus v. Girdhardas, 26 B. 76, may be consulted In this case it has been held that if any petition of compromise superseding the previous decree be filed in execution proceedings, it can only be enforced by a fresh suit and not in execution See, Hari Raghunath v. Krishnaji. 19 B. 546

The provision as to withdrawl of a suit with permission to bring a fresh suit did not permit the withdrawal of an application for execution with permission to make a fresh application.—Mata Palat v. Beni Madhab. 36 A. 172.

Order XXIII, r. 1, C. P. Code, does not in terms apply to withdrawal and abandonment of execution proceedings but there is nothing to prevent a decree-holder from withdrawing his execution application; Chaudhury Ram Prasad v Mahesh Kant, 1 Pat 232: 3 Pat. L. T. 415

A proceeding under Order XXI, r. 90, is not a proceeding in execution and a compromise relating to it does not come under s. 47 and Or XXI, r. 2, but is covered by Or. XXIII, r. 3 and the Court has power to record or inquire into an alleged compromise entered into privately between the parties; Chaudhury Jagadish Misser v. Chaudhury Sureswar Misser, 6 Pat. L. J. 253 · 2 Pat. L T. 273.

Order XXIII, r. 4 is explicit in its terms and declares Or. XXIII to be inapplicable to proceedings in execution of a decree or order. Consequently an arrangement entered into after decree for payment of the sum decreed in instalments is not binding and limitation for execution of the decree runs nevertheless; Banarsi Das v. Ramzan, 72 C. 747.

According to the clear wording of rule (4) the explanation attached to the old section has become unnecessary and hence it has been omitted

ORDER XXIV.

PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Deposit by defendant of amount in satisfaction of claim.

1. The defendant in any suit to recover a debt or damages may, at any stage of the suit, deposit in Court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the claim. [S. 376.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s 376, C P Code, 1882

" Suit to recover a debt or damages."—A suit for injunction for obstruction to light and air is not a suit " to recover a debt or damages " within the meaning of this rule —Luxmon Nana v Moraba, 21 B 502

" May deposit in Court."—A deposit in Court, before due date, of money due upon a bond, is not a valid tender of the debt —Eshahuq Molla v. Abdul Bari, 31 C. 183 A mere allegation of willingness to pay, made in the written statement, is not equivalent to payment in Court, and it does not stop interest from running; Haji Abdul v Haji Noor, 16 B 141 The provisions of Or XXIV contemplate an unconditional deposit of a sum of money in Court by defendant, which sum of money is at the disposal of the decree-holder if he desires to withdraw it, K M Bose & Co. v Allen Bros., 97 I. C 479

Order in execution directing defendant to pay money into Court—Appeal by plaintiff against the order—Payment into Court by defendant—Refusal of plaintiff to take money out of Court pending appeal—Attachment of the money so paid by another creditor of the defendant and payment of the money to him—Subsequent application by plaintiff in execution for payment of the money. Held, that the plaintiff's refusal to take money out of Court did not justify the Court in treating the money as the defendant's, and in ordering it to be paid to another creditor of the defendant.—Lakshman Dadai v Damodar, 15 B. 681.

Notice of deposit.

2. Notice of the deposit shall be given through the Court by the defendant to the plaintiff and the amount of the deposit shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid to the plaintiff on his application. [S 377.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 377, C. P. Code, 1882, with the omission of the words " in writing " which occurred in the old section after the word ' notice.'

The omission seems to have been made in view of s. 142 of the present Code which requires that all orders and notices under the Code shall be in writing. Form of notice is given in schedule I, Appendix II, Form No. 8.

"Unless the Court otherwise directs."—The words "unless the Court otherwise directs" mean that the Court has a discretion to refuse to allow the plaintiff to withdraw the money deposited by the defendant and it should be exercised only when there are conflicting claims. But where the defendant admits liability in part and deposits the money, the money cannot be kept in Court.—Dwarka Dass v. Girish Chunder, 26 C 766 3 C. W N cclxii (262-n). See also, Haji Abdul Rahaman v. Haji Noor Mohamed, 16 B 141

3. No interest shall be allowed to the plaintiff on any sum deposited by the defendant from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited is in full of the claim or falls short thereof. [S. 378.

Interest on deposit not allowed to plaintiff after notice.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to section 378, C. P. Code 1882

Tender and Payment—Effect of Refusal to Accept.—A mere offer by a debtor by letter to pay an amount cannot be treated as a tender either in law or in equity In order to stop interest, a strict tender should be proved —Kamaya v Devapa, 22 B. 440.

A plea of tender before action must to stop interest be accompanied by a payment into Court after action, otherwise the tender is ineffectual—Haji Abdul Rahaman v Noor Mahomed, 16 B. 141

If rent is tendered and not accepted, then deposit should be made under s 61 of the B. T. Act, otherwise the defendant will be liable for interest—Raja Ranjit Singh v Bhagbutty Charan, 7 C W. N. 720 But see, Jagat Tarini v. Nabagopal, 34 C. 305. 5 C. L. J. 270, where it has been held that valid tender if improperly refused, stops payment. In this case the question of valid tender has been fully discussed.

Deposit in Court, before due date, of money due upon a bond, is not a valid tender of the debt.—Prayaga v Shyam Lal, 31 C. 138

Payment to one of several co-mortgagees, who gives a discharge without the knowledge of the other mortgagee, is a full discharge of the entire mortgage debt.—Barber Maran v Rama Gounden, 20 M 461· 7 M. L J. 269 But this case has been doubted in Ahinsa Bibi v. Abdul Kader, 25 M. 26, where it has been held that the principle is not applicable to the case of co-heirs, who are not joint promisees

Execution Proceedings.—A decree-holder is not bound to accept a sum tendered to him in part satisfaction of his decree He is entitled to require payment of the principal and interest in full, and the refusal to receive a part of what is due to him will not deprive him of his right to interest.—Kanhya Singh v. Tooydun Singh, 7 W. R 20 But when money is paid into Court by the judgment-debtor in satisfaction of decree, interest on the decree will cease from the date of payment in proportion to the amount paid, although such payment may not in fact be the whole amount due under the decree, Amtul v. Muhamad Yusuf, 40 A. 125

Or. XXIV, rr. 1, 2 and 3 do not apply to proceedings in execution. Primarily they would seem to apply to original suit in which, in order to save costs, an opportunity in given to the defendant to deposit so much of the claim as he admits in Court, and in such a case, the plaintiff will not be allowed costs; K. M. Bose & Co., v. Allen Bros, & Co., 97 I C 479

Procedure where plaintiff accepts deposit as satisfaction in part.

4. (1) Where the plaintiff accepts such amount as satisfaction in part only of his claim, he may prosecute his suit for the balance; and, if the Court decides that the deposit by the defendant was a full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff shall pay the costs of the suit incurred after the deposit and the costs incurred previous thereto, as far as they were caused by excess in the plaintiff's claim.

Procedure where he accepts it as satisfaction in full.

(2) Where the plaintiff accepts such amount as satisfaction in full of his claim, he shall present to the Court a statement to that effect, and such statement shall be filed and the Court shall pronounce judgment accordingly; and, in directing by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, the Court shall consider which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation. [S. 379.]

Illustration.

(a) A owes B Rs. 100 B sues A for the amount, having made no demand for payment and having no reason to believe that the delay caused by making a demand would place him at a disadvantage. On the plaint being filed, A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim, but the Court should not allow him any costs, the litigation being presumably groundless on his part.

(b) B sues A under the circumstances mentioned in illustration (a). On the plaint being filed, A disputes the claim. Afterwards A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should also give B his costs of suit, A's conduct having shown that the litigation was necessary.

(c) A owes B Rs. 100, and is willing to pay him that sum without suit. B claims Rs. 150 and sues A for that amount. On the plaint being filed A pays Rs. 100 into Court and disputes only his liability to pay the remaining Rs. 50 B accepts the Rs. 100 in full satisfaction of his claim The Court should order him to pay A's costs.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule—This rule corresponds to s. 379, C P. Code 1882, with some verbal changes only.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if," the word "only" has been added in sub-rule (1) after the words, "in part, and the word "shall" has been substituted for the word "must," which occured in the old section

In sub-rule (2) the words "where" and "pronounce" have been substituted for the words "if" and "pass" respectively

"Prosecute his suit for the balance."—Under this rule, the plaintiff is entitled to draw out the money paid into Court by the defendant as part satisfaction of his claim, and may prosecute the suit for the balance, notwithstanding the objection of the defendant —Dwarka Dass v Girish Chunder, 26 C 766 3 C W N cclxii. (262)

Apportionment of Costs.—At the settlement of issues the defendant paid money into Court, which plaintiff took out in part satisfaction of his claim and raised an issue as to damages' The plaintiff subsequently accepted the sum paid in full satisfaction, and withdrew the suit. Held that, the plaintiff was entitled to his costs up to and including those of the settlement of the issues.—Ardesir Limji v. Sorabji, 1 Bom H C 70

In cases, not being suits to recover a debt or damages, where money is paid into Court, the principle underlying this rule ought to regulate the discretion of the Court in directing the payment of costs —Luxmon Nana v. Moroba, 21 B. 502

Under sub-rule (2) the Court must, before making an order as to costs, distinctly find as to which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation, Jayantin v Yayanthi, (1912) M. W. N 38: 13 I C 188

ORDER XXV.

SECURITY FOR COSTS.

When security for costs may be required from plaintiff.

1. (1) Where, at any stage of a suit, it appears to the Court that a sole plaintiff is, or (when there are more plaintiffs than one) that all the plaintiffs are, residing out of British India, and that such plaintiff does not, or that no one of such plaintiffs does, possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India other than the property in suit, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any defendant, order the plaintiff or plaintiffs, within a time fixed by it, to give security for the payment of all costs incurred and likely to be incurred by any defendant. [S. 380, Para. 1.]

Residence out of British India.

(2) Whoever leaves British India under such circumstances as to afford reasonable probability that he will not be forthcoming whenever he may be called upon to pay costs shall be deemed to be residing out of British India within the meaning of sub-rule (1). [S. 382.]

(3) On the application of any defendant in a suit for the payment of money, in which the plaintiff is a woman, the Court may at any stage of the suit make a like order if it is satisfied that such plaintiff does not possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India. [S. 380 Para. 2.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of s. 380. C. P. Code, 1882, with the following alterations:—The words "where at any stage of a suit" have been substituted for the words "if at the institution or at a subsequent stage of a suit," the words "other than the property in suit," have been substituted for the words "independent of the property in suit," and the words "within a time fixed by it," have been substituted for the words "within a time to be fixed by the order," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (2) exactly corresponds to section 382, C. P. Code, 1882.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 2 of section 380, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

The words "suit for payment of money" have been substituted for the words "suit for money" which occurred in the old section; and the words "independent of the property in suit," which stood after the w..' "British India" in the old section have been omitted.

" The Committee have deleted the last words of this sub-rule because the nature of the suit excludes the possibility of the property in suit being immoveable "—See, the Report of the Special Committee.

Except the change of some words and phrases, no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Object of the Rule.—The object of the rule is to provide for the protection of the defendants in cases specified in the rule where, in the event of success, they may have difficulty in realizing their costs from the plaintiff; Prem Chand, In the goods of, 21 C. 832.

When Security for Costs may be Required from Plaintiff.—A plaintiff may be required to give security for the costs of a defendant: (1) where the plaintiff is residing out of British India, or, where there are more plaintiffs than one, all the plaintiffs are residing out of British India and none of the plaintiffs has sufficient immoveable property within British India other than the property in suit; (2) where the plaintiff is a woman and where her suit is for the payment of money, and she does not possess sufficient immoveable property within British India.

Meaning of the Words " Immoveable property " in this Rule.—Leasehold property is " immoveable property " within the meaning of this rule— Ullaman v. Justices of the Peace of Calcutta, 7 B. L. R. Ap 60.

The provisions of s. 34, Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), were not intended to apply to a case where the plaintiff brought a suit for administration and partition of property in which they were entitled to a share, the extent of the share being in dispute.—Russick Lall v. Jadub Ram, 10 B. L. R. Ap 25.

" Resides."—The " residence " intended in this rule, is residence under such circumstances as will afford a reasonable probability that the plaintiff will be forthcoming when the suit is decided—Mahomed Shuffi v. Laldin Abdula, 3 B. 227.

When an inhabitant of foreign territory sues within British territory, it is imperative on the Court to demand security from him for the payment of all costs that may be incurred by the defendant in the suit, even though the defendant also is a resident of foreign territory.—Koroonamoyee v. Ooma Churn, 12 W. R. 465.

The plaintiff who resided in a Native Indian State arrived in January 1921 in Bombay to file a criminal complaint against the defendants. In July of the same year he filed a suit in the Bombay High Court against the defendants. The defendants having applied in October 1921, under O. XXV, r. 1, C. P. Code, for security for their costs from the plaintiff. Held making the order, that inasmuch as the plaintiff was staying in Bombay only for the purpose of taking proceedings against the defendants, such residence of his would not enable him to escape the application of O. XXV, r. 1 of the C. P. Code.—Hanif Maula Baksh v. Kulsum, 23 Bom. L. R. 1253: 64 I. C. 703: A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 290.

" British India."—For the purposes of this rule, Aden is within British India; Aden Laws Regulation, 1891, s. 2; but the cantonment of Secunderabad is not within British India; Hossain Ali v. Abid Ali, 21

C. 177; nor is the Civil Station at Rajkot, Queen-Empress v. Abdul, 10 B. 186; nor is the cantonment of Wadhwan, Emperor v Chimanlal, 14 Bom. L. R. 87, dissenting from Triccam v. B B & C I. Ry. Co., 9 B 244; nor are the Kathiawar States, Hem Chand v Azam, 33 I. A 1 8 Bom L R. 129.

Leaving British India.—Where a plaintiff leaves the country before the case is decided, the proper course for the defendant is to apply to the Court to take security for costs before the case is decided, and if no security be furnished, the Court will pass judgment against the plaintiff by default But if the defendant neglects, the Appellate Court cannot call for security for the costs of the lower Court —In the matter of the petition of Calcutta S E Ry Co, 8 W. R 217.

In a Suit for Money where the Plaintiff is a Woman.—Sub-rule (3) has been enacted in view of the provisions of s. 56 of the Code, which provides that no woman can be arrested or detained in the Civil prison in execution of a decree for the payment of money.—Prem Chand, In the goods of, 21 C. 832 Suits which are not exclusively for money, but which will result in a decree for money on the relief sought, come within the purview of this rule —Sonabai v. Tribhawan Das, 32 B. 602: 10 Bom. L. R. 337

A suit to recover certain specified articles and money or to recover the value thereof, is a suit for money within the meaning of this rule. The term " suit for money " as there used being wider than a suit for debts.—Digambari v. Aushootosh, 17 C. 610.

A suit for dissolution of partnership and account and for the recovery of the stridhanam property belonging to a female plaintiff is not a suit for payment of money within Or. XXV, r. 1 (3), C. P. Code —Amulyasundari v. Syama Sundar, 68 I. C. 607.

A suit for recovery of ornaments or in the alternative for their value is a suit for payment of money.—Ananda v. Gokul, 16 C. W. N. 763.

The power given to the Court under this rule, to order security for costs, is [illegible] the Court ought, or ought not to exercise [illegible] each case, and unless it is shown that the [illegible] y for the protection of the defendant, the Court ought not to interfere. In a suit by a female plaintiff against the executors for amount of legacy under a will, the Court would not order the plaintiff to give security for costs, although she was not in possession of any immoveable property within British India. The meaning of the words " may " and " shall " explained.—Bidhatree Dassee v. Mutty Lall, 21 C. 832. In Shama Sundary v. Rash Behary, 3 C. W. N. 753, it has been held that the Court has a discretion in exercising the powers conferred by this rule, and it will not order the plaintiff to give security for costs unless grounds are shown tending to shew that the defence is true. In Bai Porebai v. Debji Meghji, 23 B. 100, it has been held that unless in exceptional cases, neither an infant female plaintiff nor her next friend ought be required to give security for costs. Followed in Mani Bai v. I. Govind Das, 18 M. L. J. 155. In Bomanji v. Nussernanji, 27 B. the Court distinguishing (23 B. 100) directed the plaintiff to give for defendant's costs But in the exercise of its discretion, the Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 381, with some alterations and omissions.

The words " under the provisions of s. 373, or shown good cause why such time should be extended, in which case the Court may extend it " which occurred in the concluding portion of para. 1 of the old section have been omitted. The reasons for the omissions are that the words "under the provisions of s 373," are superfluous ; and the remaining words have been omitted in view of section 148 of the present Code by which the Courts are authorized in their discretion, to enlarge time.

Sub-rule (2) exactly corresponds to para 2 of the old section

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para 3 of the old section with the omission of the words " in writing ' which occurred in the old section after the word " notice " in view of section 142 of the present Code, which provides that all orders or notices shall be in writing

Para 4 of the old section which contained the provision for limitation for an application to set aside a dismissal for default to furnish security for costs, has been omitted, as art. 163 of the present Limitation Act IX of 1908, contains the period of limitation (30 days).

COMMISSIONS.

COMMISSIONS TO EXAMINE WITNESSES.

Cases in which Court may issue Commission to Examine witness.

1. Any Court may in any suit issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person resident within the local limits of its jurisdiction who is exempted under this Code from attending the Court or who is from sickness or infirmity unable to attend it.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 383, C. P. Code, 1882. The rule contained in this Order are to be read with the provisions of sections 75, 76, 77 and 78 of the Code, which are subject to the conditions and limitations prescribed by the rules of this Order.

Meaning of the words " May issue " in Rules 1 and 4.—Ordinarily, in the case of a witness not under the control of the party asking for a commission, who resides beyond the limit fixed under Or XVI, r. 19 (b), a commission should issue as a matter of right, unless the court is satisfied that the party is merely abusing the Court's authority to issue process It is not for the Court to decide whether the party will be benefited or not, that is a matter entirely for the party.—Jagannatha Sastry v. Sarathambal Ammal, 46 M. 574: 44 M. ORDER XXVI.

COMMISSIONS.

COMMISSIONS TO EXAMINE WITNESSES.

Cases in which Court may issue Commission to Examine witness.

1. Any Court may in any suit issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person resident within the local limits of its jurisdiction who is exempted under this Code from attending the Court or who is from sickness or infirmity unable to attend it.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s 383, C. P. Code, 1882 The rule contained in this Order are to be read with the provisions of sections 75, 76, 77 and 78 of the Code, which are subject to the conditions and limitations prescribed by the rules of this Order

Meaning of the words " May issue " in Rules 1 and 4.—Ordinarily, in the case of a witness not under the control of the party asking for a commission, who resides beyond the limit fixed under Or XVI, r 19 (b), a commission should issue as a matter of right, unless the court is satisfied that the party is merely abusing the Court's-authority to issue process. It is not for the Court to decide whether the party will be benefited or not, that is a matter entirely for the party.—Jagannatha Sastry v. Sarathambal Ammal, 46 M 574 44 M L J 202 71 I. C 530. A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 321.

When Court may Issue a Commission.—The Courts should not allow witnesses to be examined on commission without adequate reason. The grounds upon which Courts can issue commission to examine witnesses are ordinarily those specified in Or XXVI, r 1.—Panchand v Manoharlal, 42 B. 136 · 20 Bom L. R 1. 43 I C 729

The issue of a commission for the examination of a witness is discretionary with the Court, and where it appeared that the lower Court in the proper exercise of its discretion refused to issue commission for the examination of a pardanashin lady, the defendant in the suit, and where it also appeared that the refusal to issue the commission did not affect the merits of the case, both the High Court and the Judicial Committee declined to interfere with the discretion exercised by the lower Court.—Akikunnissa Bibi v Ruplal Das, 25 C 807, P. C. See also, Mouji v. Nemchand, 23 B 626

A commission should not be issued for the examination of the head of a mutt, though it may be alleged by him that it is derogatory to a person in his position to appear personally in Court as a witness; Veerabadram v. Nataraja, 28 M 28.

The Court can issue a commission for the examination of witnesses though the matters in dispute in the suit have been referred to arbitration under Sch. II of this Code.—Robiabai v. Rahimabai, 7 Bom. L. R. 560.

"Who is exempted under this Code."—Amongst those exempted from personal appearance are women who according to the custom and manners of the country, ought not to be compelled to appear in public (see s. 132). Such women should be examined on commission, even though they may have appeared in public before.—Mohesh Chunder v. Manick Lall, 26 C. 650; Chamatkar v. Mohesh, 26 C. 651, Balakeshwari v. Jnanananda, 41 C. 697, 41 I. C. 610 and though an allegation of immorality is made against them.—Benodini v. Kala Chand, 5 C. W. N. ccxxxii (232). A lady belonging to a high family, who has entirely abandoned the protection of the purdah and who has no intention of resuming it, ought not to be compelled, having regard to her social position and the feelings of her class, to appear in the witness-box, but should get the privilege of being examined on commission; Solomon v. Jyotsna, 44 C. 492; 44 I. C. 157. But a purdanashin woman has no right to be examined on commission as a witness at a place of her own choice or where she happened to be at the time of the issue of the commission, Kshitipati v. Dharani, 48 C. 418.

"Sickness or Infirmity."—If sickness or infirmity is alleged, the character and gravity of that sickness or infirmity have got to be assessed and the risk consequent upon a refusal to issue a commission will have to be taken into consideration. At the same time the importance of having the witnesses present before the Court, the advantages that would follow from their examination and cross-examination in the presence of the Court and the emergency which might arise of having them confronted or identified, should not be altogether lost sight of, Panch Kari v. Panchanan, 39 C. L. J. 598, 84 I. C. 9, A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 971.

Arbitration.—It is competent to the Court to issue a commission for the examination of witnesses, even in cases referred to arbitration under Sch. II, Rabiabai v. Rahimabai, 7 Bom. L. R. 560.

Order for commission

2. An order for the issue of a commission for the examination of a witness may be made by the Court either of its own motion or on the application, supported by affidavit or otherwise, of any party to the suit or of the witness to be examined. [S. 384.]

COMMENTARY.

This section corresponds to s. 384, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations. The words "an order for the issue of a commission for the examination of a witness" have been substituted for the words "such order" which occurred in the old section. No other change has been made.

It is competent to a Court acting under Or. XXVI, r. 2, C. P. Code, to issue a commission for the examination of witnesses acting suo motu. Nanhu v. Abdus Samud Khan, 4 A. 81 (Rev.).

An application for the issue of a commission should be supported by some reason other than the mere distance of place of residence of the witness. If the witness is a stranger, a commission will be right and reasonable, but not if he is a servant of the party applying.—Amrit Nath v. Dhunput Singh, 20 W. R. 253.

When the party obtains a commission for the purpose of examining a witness on interrogatories, he is entitled to get a copy of the cross-interrogatories filed by the opposite party before such commission issues. It is reasonable that each side should know the questions the other proposes to put.—Application by Bibi Saran, 10 S. L. R. 210: 30 I. C. 944.

Where witness resides within Court's Jurisdiction.

3. A commission for the examination of a person who resides within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same may be issued to any person whom the Court thinks fit to execute it. [S. 385.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 385, C. P. Code, with some verbal changes. The words "the same" which stood after the words "to execute" in the old section have been omitted.

A Deputy Collector is competent to depute an officer of his Court to take evidence on commission if the place where the witness is examined is within his jurisdiction.—Ram Chan v. Kaminee Debea, 10 W. R. 236.

Where the examination of a witness was taken de bene esse pursuant to an order of Court and the examination took place before the Deputy Registrar, though no commission was issued to him under Or. XXVI, r. 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and no objection, though in form one of jurisdiction, was taken before the examination commenced. Held, that the objection was capable of being waived: Dina Nath v. Metharam Navalrai & Co., 33 C. L. J. 577.

Persons for whose examination commission may issue.

4. (1) Any Court may in any suit issue a commission for the examination of—

(a) any person resident beyond the local limits of its jurisdiction;

(b) any person who is about to leave such limits before the date on which he is required to be examined in Court; and

(c) any Civil or Military Officer of the Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Court, attend without detriment to the public service.

(2) Such commission may be issued to any Court, not being a High Court, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person resides, or to any pleader or other person whom the Court issuing the commission may appoint.

(3) The Court on issuing any commission under this rule shall direct whether the commission shall be returned to itself or to any subordinate Court. [S. 386.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 386, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The alterations made in sub-rule (1) are merely verbal.

In sub-rule (2) some important alterations have been made. The words "or the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon" and the words "subject to any rules of the High Court in this behalf," which occurred in para 2 of the old section, have been omitted. The other changes are merely verbal.

"May."—For the meaning of the word "may," see notes under Or. XXVI, r. 1.

"Court may issue a commission."—The issue of a commission to examine a witness or witnesses in a suit is a matter of judicial discretion. An application for the examination of a witness on commission will not be granted unless the Court is satisfied: first, that the application is made bona fide; secondly, that the issue in respect of which the evidence is required is one which the Court ought to try; thirdly, that the witness to be examined would give evidence material to the issue; and fourthly, there are some good reasons why the witness cannot be examined in Court.—A. E. Saleji v. A. Musaji Saleji, 19 I. C. 643; Huree Das v. Meer Moozum 15 W. R. 447; Mowji v. Nem Chand, 23 B. 626: Panchkari v. Panchanan 89 C. L. J. 598. 84 I. C. 9: A. I. R. 24 Cal. 971. The words "may issue a commission" are used in this rule in the same sense in which they are used in r. 1, and mean "is given authority to issue a commission."—Jagannatha v. Sarathambal, 46 M. 574: 71 I. C. 530: A. I. R. 1923 Mad 321.

The provisions of this rule are exhaustive and where the conditions enumerated therein exist, it is competent to the Court to issue the commission. But the Court has power to prevent abuse of its process. Order under this rule is appealable.—Veerabadran v. Nataraja, 28 M. 28 (7 W. R. 349 referred to).

An order under this rule for the examination of a witness on commission, can only be made on one of the grounds mentioned in the Code, and a Court usurps a jurisdiction not vested in it by law when it orders such examination in the absence of any such ground. The High Court can interfere with such order.—Somasundaram v. Manikaravaka, 31 M. 60.

A commission will be granted as a matter of course to examine a material witness who is out of the jurisdiction of the Court if the witness cannot be brought into Court by its ordinary process. But the commission will not be granted for the examination of a party, except under very strong circumstances, such as serious illness.—Doucett v. Wise, Ind. Ju. N. S. 957.

A party to a suit has a legal right to apply to a Court for a commission to examine a witness The Court should grant the application as a matter of course, without considering whether the applicant can derive any advantage therefrom.—Hari Das v. Moozam Hossein, 8 B L. R. Ap 16: 15 W. R 447.

A de bene esse examination of a witness about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court must be taken by the Court, unless the parties consent to the evidence being taken under a commission.—Edwards v Muller, 5 B. L R. 252.

Discretion as to Granting of Commission, How should be Exercised.— A Court of appeal should exercise great caution when invited to interfere with an order of the trial Court made with jurisdiction in the exercise of its discretion as to granting a commission. Each case depends on its own circumstances and no rule as to the exercise of that discretion could be laid down If the appellate Court deems that the discretion was wrongly exercised, if it deems that the case in all its bearings was not laid before the Court below, if it sees that the Court below misapprehended an important part of the case, the Court will interfere. The High Court in revision set aside the order of the lower Court, where that Court overlooked the distinction which should be observed in the treatment of an application by the defendant as distinguished from a similar application by the plaintiff and ordered the defendant to be examined on commission on payment of costs to the plaintiff for cross-examination; Kumar Sarat Kumar Roy v Ramchandra, 35 C. L J 78

The plaintiff and the defendant in a suit instituted in the court of the District Munsif of Devakottah were both residents of Rangoon, and the defendant was served with summons at Rangoon. The plaintiff was allowed to examine himself on commission at Rangoon An application by the defendant to examine himself on commission at Rangoon was, however, disallowed by the Munsif on the ground that his demeanour could not be watched by the Court. Held, that the Munsif acted with material irregularity in disallowing the application and that his order was liable to be set aside in revision.—Visvanatha v. Somasundaram, 46 M. L. J 131.

Commission to Examine Plaintiff or Defendant as his Own Witness.— The Court will refuse the application of a plaintiff asking for a commission to examine himself unless a very strong case is made out; Ross v. Woodford, (1894) 1 Ch. 38; Nawab Saiyid v. Herbert, 8 Pat. 603: 84 I. C. 993: A. I. R. 1925 Pat, 125. But where an application is made by a defendant, and specially by a defendant who lawfully resides out of the jurisdiction of the Court, according to the ordinary course of his life and business, the Court will not regard the case with the same strictness as the case of the plaintiff who has instituted his suit in a forum of his choice; Ross v. Woodford, (1894) I Ch. 38; New v. Burns, (1894) 64 L. J. Q. B. 104; Sarat v. Ram, 35 C. L. J. 78: 68 I. C. 9: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 42; Visvanatha v. Somasundaram, 46 M. L. J. 131: 78 I C 407: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 541

Appeal.—It has been held by the Bombay High Court that an order directing the issue of a commission for the examination of a witness, is not a "judgment" but an interlocutory order, and therefore no appeal lies from such order; Miya v. Zorabai, 11 Bom. L. R. 241: 2 I. C. 157 On the other hand, it has been held by the Madras High Court that an order refusing to issue a commission or directing issue of the same for the examinations of a witness is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and is therefore appeable; Marutha Muthu v. Krishnamachariar, 30 M 143, dissented from in Tuljaram v Alagappa, 35 M. 1

Commission or Request to examine witness not within British India.

5. Where any Court to which application is made for the issue of a commission for the examination of a person residing at any place not within British India is satisfied that the evidence of such person is necessary, the Court may issue such commission or a letter of request. [S. 387.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 387, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations The words "or a letter of request," in the concluding part of this rule, have been added

A Commission for the examination of a witness in Chandernagore (French territory) was rightly issued under this rule—Kadambini v Kumudini, 30 C 934; 7 C W. N. 806

Where the application of a party to have the evidence of witness residing beyond the British territories taken under a commission failed owing to circumstances beyond his control a subsequent application to have other witnesses examined within British territories ought to have been complied with—Mulluk Ali v. Meher Banoo, 8 W. R. 418

A commission may be issued to England to examine a witness, and the bill should be taxed on the same scale and principle, as would be adopted in England—Goculdas Bulabdas v. Scott, 15 B 209

" Or a letter of request."—These words are new. For form of letter of request, see App. 4 Form No. 8.

Court to examine witness pursuant to commission.

6. Every Court receiving a commission for the examination of any person shall examine him or cause him to be examined pursuant thereto. [S. 388.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 388, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "cause him to be examined" which did not occur in the old section.

A Magistrate is not bound to execute a commission of a Small Cause Court, directing him to take the evidence of prisoners in jail in a case in which none of the circumstances existed authorising that Court to issue the commission—Gopal Chunder v. Kurnodhar, 7 W. R. 310

7. Where a commission has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the evidence taken under it, to the Court from which it was issued, unless the order for issuing the commission has otherwise directed, in which case the commission shall be returned in terms of such order; and the commission and the return thereto and the evidence taken under it shall (subject to the provisions of the next following rule) form part of the record of the suit.

Return of commission with depositions of witnesses.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 389, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

" Duly executed."—The examination of witness under a commission is of the same nature as an examination in open Court. The return should show on the face of it that the oath was administered to the Commissioner as well as to the interpreter —Pran Krishna v. Bisso Nath, 8 B. L. R. Ap. 101.

It is the duty of the party obtaining a commission for the examination of witnesses to take such steps as may be necessary to secure the attendance before the Commissioner of the witnesses he desires to examine.—Lekhraj v. Palee Ram, 2 N. W P 210.

A party who has not joined in a commission is entitled to cross-examine the witnesses who are examined under the commission.—Gregory v. Dooley Chund, 14 W R. O. C 17.

Evidence taken on commission, though not read over and signed by the witness, is not alone sufficient to make it inadmissible ; but evidence taken on commission without full opportunity for effectual cross-examination is inadmissible in evidence.—J. Boisagomoff v The Nehapiet Jute Company, 5 C W N (N.) cexxx

" Shall form part of the record."—Evidence taken on commission shall subject to rule 8, form part of the record in the suit and any party is entitled to refer to such evidence as a matter of record —Man Gobinda v. Sashindra Chandra, 35 C 28

8. Evidence taken under a commission shall not be read as evidence in the suit without the consent of the party against whom the same is offered, unless—

When depositions may be read in evidence.

(a) the person who gave the evidence is beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, or dead or unable from sickness or infirmity to attend to be personally examined, or exempted from personal appearance in Court, or is a civil or military officer of the Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Court, attend without detriment to the public service, or

(b) the Court in its discretion dispenses with the proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in clause (a), and authorizes the evidence of any person being read as evidence in the suit, notwithstanding proof that the cause for taking such evidence by commission has ceased at the time of reading the same [S. 390.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 390, C P Code, with the addition of the words "or is a civil or military officer of the Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Court, attend without determent to the public service" in clause (a), which did not occur in the old section

" Shall not be read as evidence."—The evidence taken on commission on behalf of the defendant was allowed to be read on behalf of the plaintiff without the deposition being put in as part of plaintiff's case, as being part of the record —Nistarini Dassi v. Nundo Lall, 26 C. 591. 3 C W N 239-n (Dwarka Nath v Gunga Dayi, 8 B. L. R. Ap 102, followed) See also, Man Govinda v Shashindra Chandra, 35 C 28 and Dhanram v Murli Lal, 13 C W N 525, 36 C. 566. According to the practice prevailing on the original side of the High Court of Calcutta, evidence taken on commission is not treated as evidence in the suit until the same has been tendered and read as evidence in the suit by the party on whose behalf it has been taken. Kusum v Satya Ranjan, 30 C. 799: 7 C W N 784, Hemanta Kumari v Banku Behari, 9 C W. N. 794

The practice in the mofussil Courts of treating the deposition of a witness examined on commission as evidence in the case even though it has not been formally tendered is not only consistent but also in strict accordance with the provisions of rules 7 and 8—Nistarini v. Nundolal, 26 C. 591, Man Govinda v Sashindra Chandra, 35 C 28, Dhanuram v. Murli, 36 C 566 13 C W N 525.

Where the defendant did not consent to the evidence of the plaintiff taken on commission being read against him, but on the contrary insisted all along upon the presence of the plaintiff in Court, it is for the plaintiff to show that he was beyond the jurisdiction of the Court at the time when the evidence was going to be read in Court; Mahim v Naba Chandra, 44 C. L J 288 A I R 1927 Cal 43.

A Court may legally refuse to hear the deposition of a defendant taken by commission read in evidence, where there is no evidence to prove that the defendant was from sickness unable to attend personally at the time of the trial, or the Court declines to dispense with the proof of such circumstances —Prittee Bullubh v Haradhun, 22 W. R. 331.

Evidence taken in the absence of the other side is not enough to make the deposition of a witness taken on commission inadmissible—Ram Chand v Kaminee, 10 W. R. 236.

Admissibility of Documents.—Where a document is produced before a Commissioner and no objection is taken as to its admissibility, no such objection can be taken before the Court hearing the suit to which the commission is returned—Struther v. Wheeler, 6 C. L. R. 109. But if the admissibility of the documents is objected to before the Commissioner on any ground, the party so objecting is not precluded from objecting to its admissibility at the trial on any other ground—Ralli v. Gaukim Swee, 9 C. 939

"Unless the Court in its discretion dispenses."—The Court has a discretion under clause (b) of r. 8 to dispense with proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in cl. (a) and allow evidence on commission being read as evidence in the suit, but it is necessary that the Court must have applied its mind to the matter and exercised its discretion; Mahim v. Nabu Chandra, 44 C. L. J. 288. A. I. R. 1927 Cal 43.

COMMISSIONS FOR LOCAL INVESTIGATIONS.

Commissions to make local investigations.

9. In any suit in which the Court deems a local investigation to be requisite or proper for the purpose of elucidating any matter in dispute, or of ascertaining the market-value of any property, or the amount of any mesne profits or damages or annual net profit, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such investigation and to report thereon to the Court.

Provided that, where the Local Government has made rules as to the persons to whom such commission shall be issued, the Court shall be bound by such rules. [S. 392.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 392 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions

The words "or proceeding" which stood after the words "in any suit" and the words "and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person" which occurred in the old section after the words "annual net profits" have been omitted. The word "proceeding" has been omitted in view of s. 141 of the Code, which covers proceedings; and the words "and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person," have been omitted probably to enlarge the Court's power, as they imposed upon the Court a condition precedent to the issuing of a commission

Commission to Make Local Investigation.—A Commission for the purpose of local investigation is to issue only when such investigation cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person.—Raikishori v. Kumudiny, 15 C. L. J. 138

*Order XXVI, r 9, gives no power to a Court to itself hold a local in*vestigation A Judge can hold such inspection for the purpose of understanding the evidence and for no other purpose. He must decide the case on the evidence adduced before him, and, if he finds that complete justice cannot be done without a local investigation, he has power, under the rule above quoted, to appoint a Commissioner for this purpose ; the fact that the plaintiff had not applied for this to be done, does not relieve the Judge of the duty imposed upon him of having before him all the materials available which is necessary for the determination of the point at issue between the parties.—Dwarka Prasad v Makhulal, 52 I. C. 241 ; Ananta Lal Saha v. Gokul Sahu, 35 I C. 344 See also, Raikishori v. Kumudiny, 15 C L J 138.

It is within the discretion of a Judge to order or refuse local enquiry — Rash Beharee v. Saheb Roy, 12 W R. 76 ; and Graham v. Lopez, 1 W R. 141.

When neither of the parties desire to have a local investigation, the Court has no power to direct investigation, nor can the Appellate Court remand the case for that purpose, but is bound to decide the case upon the evidence before it —Jatinga Valley Tea Company v. Chera Tea Company, 12 C. 45.

In a suit for possession of land, the boundaries of which were disputed, the Sub-Judge directed a local investigation, but the District Judge refused to allow the investigation to proceed Held, that the District Judge had no authority to stay an investigation. All that the District Judge was entitled to do under Circular Order No 25, dated 25th August 1870, was to express his opinion as to the propriety or otherwise of the Sub-Judge's order The Subordinate Court should record a proceeding according to the H C Circular Order, and forward a copy of the proceeding to the District Judge —Nirod Krishna v Wooma Nath, 4 C 718: 3 C. L R. 234

In suits for enhancement of rent, it is a proper course of procedure to appoint an Amin to make a local investigation in order to enquire as to the description of the land and as to the rates paid in the neighbourhood for similar land —Gaur Chandra v. Rash Behari, 1 B. L. R. S N 1; 10 W. R 43

A Commission for local investigation cannot be issued after the evidence is closed and the case is ready for judgment.—Sundar Lal v. Sita Ram, 51 I. C. 399.

Necessity and Object of Local Investigation.—The object of local investigation is not so much for the purpose of collecting evidence which can be taken in Court, as to obtain evidence which, from its peculiar nature can only be obtained on the spot.—Bhawanee Dutt v. Beer Singh, 2 N W. P. 196.

An Amin should be appointed to hold a local investigation only when it is necessary to inspect the land which is the subject of dispute, to take maps of localities, to obtain information with regard to the physical features of the place, to identify the land in maps with parcels which are the subject of the suit, and to identify the maps with one another with the aid of objects to be found on the land When, however, any fact can be proved by evidence taken otherwise than on the spot, that evidence ought to be taken by the Court itself in a regular manner and not by an Amin. —Brindabun Chunder v Nobin Chunder, 17 W. R 282

The local investigation referred to in this rule presupposes the existence on the record of independent evidence which requires to be elucidated, but it does not authorise a Court to delegate to a Commissioner the trial of any material issue which it is bound to try—Sangili v. Mookan, 16 M. 350.

Local Investigation by Judge.—A judgment based on knowledge gained by the Judge during local inspection is illegal An inspection which a Judge makes should be used by him only to test the accuracy and value of the evidence let in He should not without submitting himself to the test of cross-examination, make his knowledge the sole evidence for determining the question raised before him.—Syed Ahmed Sahib Shustari v. Magnesite Syndicate Ltd, 28 M L J 598: 17 M L. T. 387 2 L. W. 460: 29 I C 60

Order XXVI, r 9 gives no power to a Court to itself hold a local inspection. A Judge can hold a local inspection for the purpose of understanding the evidence and for no other purpose, Dwarka Prasad v. Makhulal, 52 I C 241 It is doubtful whether under the provisions of the present C. P. Code it is legal for the Court in person to hold any local investigation In case the court holds any local investigation, the result of such investigation should be made a matter of record and should be used only for the purpose of enabling the judge to understand the evidence; Anant Lal v. Gokul Sahu, 35 I C 344 See, Sabapathy v. Perumal, 44 M. 640: 62 I C. 790, where it was held that a Judge has power to make a local investigation in person in any case in which he sees fit to do so.

Order XXVI, r 9, does not prohibit a local inspection by the Judge himself in person The effect of the omission, in r. 9 of the present Code, of the words "and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person," which occurred in the old section is that, under the new Code, the issue of the commission is not restricted to cases where the Judge is unable conveniently to make the investigation himself. It therefore follows that a Judge has power to make a local investigation in person in any case in which he sees fit to do so, or he can issue a commission for local investigation if he thinks fit, irrespective of the question whether it is convenient for himself to conduct the investigation in person; Sabapathy v. Perumal, 44 M. 640. 62 I C. 790: 40 M. L. J. 554.

Appeal from Orders Directing Local Investigation and Power of Appellate Court to Interfere.—No appeal lies from the order of a Judge directing a local investigation by an Amin.—Bahadur Ali v Bhabo Soondurec, 7 W. R. 425.

Directing a local investigation or not is a mere discretion in which no special appeal will lie of right—Graham v. Lopez, 1 W. R. 141; Poorna Pershad v Chunder Nath, 1 W. R. 249; Bykunt Nath v. Pearcemonee, 1 W R 196; and Raj Kishen v. Huro Mohun, 5 W. R. 248

An Appellate Court should not interfere with the result of a local investigation or enquiry except upon very clearly defined and grounds.—Sarat Sundari v. Prasanno Coomar, 6 B. L. R. 677, 15 W. R. 20, P. C.; Monkee Dumbar v. Monkee Bhullunder, 15 W. R. 423

Interference by a Court with a long and careful local investigation except upon clearly defined and sufficient grounds is to be deprecated (13 M. I. A. 607: 15 W. R. 423: 60 I. C. 434 relied on). It is not safe for a Court to act as an expert and to overrule the elaborate report of a Commissioner for local investigation whose report is unquestioned whose careful and laborious execution of his task was proved by his report and who had not blindly adopted the assertions of either party; Ram Amrita Sundari v. Munshi Serajuddin, 28 C. W. N. 318.

An Appellate Court ought not to reverse the decision of a first Court based upon a very careful inspection of the land in dispute, except under a very clear and strong opinion upon the evidence, and upon recording sufficient and satisfactory reasons for such opinion.—Brindabun v. Dunnunjoy, 18 W. R. 452

The deputation of an Amin to ascertain the respective liability of several judgment-debtors is not an improper course for a Court to pursue, and at all events is not a ground for interfering in special appeal.—Kristo Chunder v. Brojo Mohun, 22 W. R. 183

Commission Report.—In a suit as to a right of way, a Commissioner was appointed under this rule, to prepare a map of the locality in question. Held, that the statements of the village officers made to him with regard to the right of way were inadmissible in evidence.—Shittwa v. Bhimappa, 34 B. 43

The report of a Commissioner appointed by a Court of Revenue to ascertain the amount of actual collection in a suit for profits under s. 164 of the Agra Tenancy Act, is admissible in evidence; Bakhtawar Lal v. Sheo Prasad, 39 A. 694. 15 A. L. J. 766. 42 I. C. 720

10. (1) The Commissioner, after such local inspection as he deems necessary and after reducing to writing the evidence taken by him, shall return such evidence, together with his report in writing signed by him, to the Court.

Procedure of Commissioner.

(2) The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be evidence in the suit and shall form part of the record; but the Court or, with the permission of the Court, any of the parties to the suit, may examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or as to his report, or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation.

Report and depositions to be evidence in suit.

Commissioner may be examined in person.

(3) Where the Court is for any reason dissatisfied with the proceedings of the Commissioner, it may direct such further inquiry to be made as it shall think fit [S. 393.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 393 C P Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The words " or as to his report have been added in the concluding part of sub-rule (2)

Sub-rule (3) is new There was no similar provision in the old section

Functions and Powers of Commissioners Appointed to Hold Local Investigation.—The functions of an Amin appointed to hold a local investigation under the Civil Procedure Code discussed —Iswar Chandra v Jugul Kishore, 4 B L R Ap 33, 21 W R 281-note

It is the duty of the Amin to return his report to the Court ordering the investigation —Lalliec Sahoo v Rajender Pertab, 14 W. R 418

It is not the intention of the Legislature to allow witnesses to be examined out of Court by Amins, except with reference to points for the determination of which local investigation is required.—Sadhoo Singh v Ramanoograha, 9 W. R 83

A Civil Court is not warranted in deputing its functions to an Amin, and an Amin is bound not to go beyond the points referred to him for inquiry.—Ram Dhun v Ram Monee, 21 W R 280 , Iswar Chandra v Jugal Kishore, 4 B L R Ap 33, 21 W R 281-note; and Buroda Churn v. Ajoodhya Ram, 23 W R. 286.

Where an Amin was improperly deputed to inquire into the facts of possession Held, that even if the Court's order was improper, the deputation of the Amin was legal, and the evidence taken by him was legal evidence to be considered on its own merits.—Ram Churn v. Surabjit, 9 W R. 491

An Amin deputed to make a measurement under the provisions of the Bengal Rent Act, 1869, is bound to record the state of things as actually existing, and has no business to record what he thinks ought to be the rates —Bala Thakoor v Meghburn Singh, 14 W. R. 269.

An Amin, when directed to make an inquiry as to mesne-profits, ought not, in the execution stage of the suit, to enter into inquiries as to the dates of possession, which must be taken to have been determined by the decree —Bejoy Gobind v Kali Prosonno, 16 W R. 291.

Report of Local Investigation and its Evidentiary Value.—(a) Report of a Commissioner appointed by the Court.—When a Court Amin is appointed a Commissioner under the Civil Procedure Code, his report is only evidence on the points to which the commission refers ; any report he chooses to make on any other point is no legal evidence in the case —Abdool Ali v. Mullick Sudderoodeen, 14 W. R. 493 ; and Door[illegible] v. Nem Chand, 24 W. R. 298.

Report of a Commissioner not challenged in the first Court and acted upon by it without further corroborative evidence, should be accepted as correct by the Appellate Court. The Appellate Court ought not to go behind that report and examine materials on which the report was founded and come to a different finding.—Govinda Priya v. Ratan Dhupi, 4 C. L. J. 37: 10 C. W. N. 88-n.

The report of an Amin upon a local investigation is sufficient evidence to support a decree, if it is believed by the Court, and considered sufficient without further evidence to corroborate it.—Seetaram v. Ram Narain, 6 W. R. 51.

The report of the Civil Court Amin and the depositions taken by him are admissible as evidence under the provisions of this rule.—Nathoo v. Ghunessam, 8 W. R. 267; Abdool Ghunnee v. Buttoo Sheikh, 22 W. R. 350; Bhyrub Roy v. Nobin Roy, 9 W. R. 601; Dole Gobind v. Chamee Singh, 10 W. R. 312; Sarat Chandra v. Collector of Chittagong, 2 B. L. R. Ap. 3. But depositions of the witnesses without the report of the Amin are not admissible in evidence.—Debnarayan v. Kali Das, 6 B. L. R. A. P. 70: 14 W. R. 397 (affirming on appeal, 13 W. R. 412)

When the local inquiry is ordered by a lower Court, and evidence is taken by an Amin and a report made, the return made by the Amin becomes legal evidence which the appellate Court is not justified in refusing to consider.—Rajnath v. Doorga Lall, 12 W. R. 186; and Sheo Doyal v. Hodgkinson, 24 W. R. 324

An Amin's report is evidence without any specific documents corroborating his finding.—Eshan Chunder v. Huree Churn, 2 W. R. 278; and Gouree Narain v. Modho Soodun, 2 W. R. Act X, 1.

The report of an Amin under section 73 of Act X of 1859 is receivable as evidence, and a decision can be legally based upon it.—Sujan Koer v. Heithoo 1 N. W. P. 165, Ed (1873), 224

Where an order for a local investigation is not objected to by the opposite party at the time it is made, the Court is justified in receiving as evidence the report of the Commissioner, and the depositions taken by him, being a part of the record.—Ram Rugha Roy v. Gobind Dass, 15 W. R. 291

The report of an Amin as to local inquiry upon a matter which no personal inspection on his part could decide, and in regard to which the depositions of parties acquainted with the place could afford proper information, was held to be in no way irregular, simply by reason of his having examined witnesses on the spot.—Sheo Narain v. Budh Singh, 11 W. R. 423.

The report of an Amin, and the depositions of parties and witnesses examined by him, must be considered, even though the Court exercised its discretion unwisely and wrongly in giving him too extensive powers.—Umbica Churn v. Coluck Chunder, 9 W. R. 596.

Unless there be good grounds for dissenting and differing from reports made upon local investigations, the Courts, even in India, and, a fortiori, the Privy Council in England, in dealing with boundary questions, ought to give great weight to, and be guided by them.—Ram Gopal v. Gordon, Stuart & Co, 17 W. R. 285, P C 14 M I A. 453; Portap Chunder v. Surnomoyyce, 19 W. R. 361.

As to the value of a local inquiry report made by a competent official See, Sarut Sundari v. Prossono Coomar, 6 B L R 677, P. C.: 15 W R 20, P. C.; Kalee Doss v. Khetro Pal, 17 W R 472; and Chunder Coomar v. Joy Chunder, 19 W. R. 213.

It is necessary that oral testimony should be taken in order to effect a measurement, or that an Amin's report must have depositions attached to it to make it legal evidence.—Chundermonee v. Nilambur, 7 W. R. 43.

When an Amin's map is received in evidence by consent and admitted by both parties to be topographically correct, the Court is entitled to look at the Amin's report as explanatory of the map.—Mahomed Anwar v. Raj Chunder, 17 W. R. 522

It is not compulsory on the Appellate Court to direct a fresh investigation when it is dissatisfied with the map and report of the Amin No error of law is committed in deciding on the other evidence before it.—Maharajah Sir Manindra Chandra Nandi Bahadur v. Kumar Saradindu Ray, 27 C. L J 509: 45 I. C. 408 (30 C. 291 referred to).

A lower Appellate Court was held to have erred in law in taking an Amin's report and map as its sole guide, and making them the sole basis and foundation of its decision to the total disregard of the other evidence on the record.—Bustee Sahoo v. Jeo Narain, 24 W. R. 338.

In a suit for rent upon a jungleburi lease, which provided that the area of land brought under cultivation should be ascertained by measurement, the only evidence of measurement was a report of an Amin in a previous suit, the accuracy of which was not proved in the present suit. Held, that the report itself was not admissible in evidence.—Denobundhu v. Nistarini, 12 C. L. R. 50

Amin giving credit to local rumour.—Held, that the Judge had no right to take the report of an Amin who gave credit to defendant's witnesses on account of something he heard in the neighbourhood, but that he ought himself to have examined those witnesses.—Tweedie v Poorno Chunder, 12 W. R. 136.

(b) Report of Amin on question of possession.—The report of Amin, however valuable in clearing up difficulties as to the identity and position of land, is, generally speaking, of no value in determining questions connected with the possession of land in dispute in past times.—Pran Nath v. Mrinmoyee, W. R. (F B.) 39. Amin's report held not sufficient of itself to prove possession.—Ameenooddeen v. Asgar Ali, 8 W. R. 464. A Judge is bound to take notice of and pronounce an opinion upon evidence taken by an Amin as to possession.—Jannobee Chowdhrain v. Collector of Mymensingh, 8 W. R. 287.

(c) Report of local investigation by Judicial Officers.—Under the present Code, the Court has power to inspect any property or thing at any stage, see Or. XVIII, r. 18.

A Munsif's report of a local investigation, when not shown to be substantially erroneous in its data or reasoning, should convey the greatest weight as evidence of the facts it sets forth.—Wise v. Ameeroonissa [illegible] W. R. 219

Facts observed by a Judge, but not proved by any evidence, should be taken notice of, and the Judge should put the result of his investigation upon paper.—Joy Coomar v Bundhoo Lall, 9 C 363: 12 C L R 4[illegible]

The information derived from a local investigation by a Judge, though not evidence as defined in the Evidence Act, is a matter which he can take into consideration, in order to determine whether a fact is "proved" within the meaning of the Act —Dwarka Nath v. Prosonno Kumar, 1 C W. N. 682 (9 C. 363 referred to)

A Judge is at liberty himself to inspect the property in dispute and inform himself by the observation of his senses of matters which may help him in understanding the evidence and in deciding the case, and specially such matters which do not require scientific knowledge. He can do so without giving notice to the parties It is generally desirable that a Judge should place upon record the result of his investigation.—Moran v Bhagbat Lal, 33 C 133 2 C L J. 100-n (9 C. 363; 1 C. W N 682, referred to)

At the desire of the parties, the Judge proceeded to the spot, made inspection and examined witnesses on the spot. The depositions of the witnesses were taken by a clerk in vernacular. Held, that the procedure was not illegal Ramaya v Derappa, 30 B. 109: 7 Bom. L. R 812

(d) Report of investigation by Ministerial Officers.—The report of a Nazir deputed to inquire into the condition of property in dispute is admissible in evidence, although he was not an Amin appointed under Act XII of 1856 —Buzlal Rohim v. Latfat Hossein, W. R (1864) 171

The report of a Sheristadar, after local investigation, cannot be legal evidence unless it is shown that no Civil Court Amin was available for the duty in the district —Goluck Chunder v. Dookhee Ram, 12 W. R 29; Byjnath Singh v. Indurjit Kooer, 8 W. R 331.

The proviso to r. 9 has made it imperative on a Court to employ in the first instance the regular officer of the Court to hold a local inquiry—Ern Doss v. Nil Kant, 8 W R 6; Byjnath v. Indurjit, 8 W. R. 331; Bahadur Ally v. Doomnun, 7 W R. 27 But since the repeal of the Civil Court Amin's Act (XII of 1856) by Act II of 1899, B. C., the Courts are not bound to employ the Civil Court Amins for the purpose of local investigation.

"May examine the Commissioner personally."—A Court cannot arbitrarily withhold permission to examine a Commissioner for accounts asked for by one of the parties to the suit. The object of the Legislature in enacting r. 10 (2) of Or XXVI is to afford protection to the Commissioner who is a quasi-judicial officer. Such protection is afforded on grounds of public policy, so as to make it impossible for either of the parties to subject the Commissioner to a vexatious examination —Sitaram v Ramprosad Ram, 19 C L. J. 87-18 C. W. N. 697-22 I. C 858

It is within the discretion of a Judge to accept the Commissioner's Report. A Court is bound to see that there is some real ground for examining a gentleman who had undertaken the duty of a Commissioner. It has a discretion in such matter to permit or refuse a party to examine the Commissioner.—Chowdhury Jadavendra v Gajendranarain, 28 C. L. J 203-47 I C. 650.

Objections to Commissioner's Report.—A Court is bound to inquire into charges against a Civil Court Amin (such as can be readily inquired into and their truth either disproved or proved).—Abdool Kureem v Campbell, 8 W R 172

Objections to the Amin's report should be inquired into if taken within a reasonable time from the return of the report, even when the case has been struck off the file —Issur Chunder v Syam Khan, 11 W. R. 95.

When clear instructions as to a local inquiry ordered by the Court are given to an Amin in the presence of both the parties, and no objection is made to them by either party then and there, they have no ground of complaint, after the Amin has carried out his instructions, if the Court acts upon his report —Bissessur Roy v Kanchun Roy, 11 W. R. 155.

A party who refuses to appear before an Amin at the time he holds his local inquiry is not at liberty afterwards to take any objection to the Amin's report.—Ramun Das v Brojo Kishore, 6 W. R. 130

Reasonable notice must be given of the time fixed for hearing objections to the report —Ram Narain v. Goverdhan Lall, 21 W R 2.

Report of the Commissioner is Not Binding.—A Commissioner's report is only evidence in a case, but it is no way binding on the Court If such report is not satisfactory, it is in Court's discretion to order another Commissioner to be appointed; 7 Pat L T. 795 96 I. C. 327: A I. R. 1926 Pat 462.

" Where the Court is for any reason dissatisfied with proceedings of the Commissioner."—It is not compulsory on the Appellate Court to direct a fresh investigation when it is dissatisfied with the map and report of the Amin. No error of law is committed in deciding on the other evidence before it; Mahárajah Sir Manindra Chandra v. Kumar Saradindu Roy, 27 C. L J 599· 23 C W N. 593 (30 C 291 refd. to) Where the result of a local investigation is unsatisfactory, the Court is not bound to order another inquiry. It can decide the case or the evidence; Goribullah v. Madhu, 50 I. C 301; Jadavendra v Gajendra, 28 C. L J. 203: 47 I. C. 650.

Further Evidence after Commissioner's Report.—Under Or. XXVI, rr. 9 and 10 there is no absolute right in any party to a local investigation, to adduce evidence before the Court after a Commissioner's report, and the question of adducing further evidence must be decided on general principles according to the facts of each case —Girish Chunder v. Soshee Shekhareswar, 27 C. 951, P. C.: 4 C. W. N. 631 P. C (17 W. R. 270, commented on).

Disregard of report on local investigation is not any error or defect in the procedure within the meaning of s. 584, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 100)—Lakhi Narain v. Jadu Nath, 21 C. 504, P. C.

COMMISSIONS TO EXAMINE ACCOUNTS.

Commission to examine or adjust account.

11. In any suit in which an examination or adjustment of accounts is necessary, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such examination or adjustment. [S. 394.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 394, C. P. Code, 1882

"Is necessary."—The words of this rule clearly show that no order can be made for the appointment of a Commissioner unless the examination or adjustment of accounts is considered necessary; Bharat Chandra v. Kiran Chandra, 52 C. 766 · 90 I. C. 944: A. I. R. 1925 Cal 1069.

Commissioner to Take Accounts—Procedure on Taking Accounts.—Commissioner appointed to examine accounts—Duty of Commissioner pointed out—Commissioner when to take evidence—Commissioner is not a Judge or an arbitrator—Value of the decision of the Commissioner—Tincowri Debi v. Suttya Doyal, 6 C L. J. 105.

As a general rule, it is better for the Court itself to settle the exact terms of the order to the Commissioner, that is, not to make him a sort of inferior Judicial officer It is generally the business of the Court to ascertain which books are true or false, which party is or is not keeping back the books, what documents are relevant and the like and it is as a general rule desirable that these matters should be decided before a commissioner is appointed; Assarmal v. Handomal, 91 I. C. 706: A. I. R. 1925 Sind 265.

A question whether a certain contract is authorized or not cannot be referred to a commissioner for taking accounts under Or. XXI, r. 11. C. P. Code The report of a Commissioner is only to be treated as evidence in the case and is not a decision which has to be accepted; Firm of Seth Vishindas Nihal Chand v. Nazarali Samji, 75 I. C. 1014.

In a suit by a principal against his agent for account and for recovery of money that may be found due: Held, that no decree could be made for the sums mentioned, or any other sum, until an account had been taken and the amount due from the defendant ascertained. Method to be followed on taking accounts in the mofussil stated —Annoda Pershad v. Dwarka Nath, 6 C. 754: 8 C. L. R. 321.

In a suit for an account by a principal against his agent, the procedure prescribed by ss. 394 and 395, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXVI, rr. 11, 12) should be followed. If the defendant is found liable to render account for a certain period, the Court should make an interlocutory decree declaring that he is so liable and direct him to file an account within a fixed period. This decree may be enforced under s. 260, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 32). When the accounts have been taken the Court must determine the amount due, and the final decree should be for the payment of this amount, and also, if necessary, for the delivery of any papers, vouchers or other documents which have come into the hands of the agent in the course of his employment —Degamber v Kaley Nath, 7 C. 654 9 C. L. R. 265.

In a suit against a gomasta to obtain accounts of moneys which had come into his hands, it was held that it was not enough for the lower Courts to make a decree ordering the defendants to render nikash papers to plaintiff; it was the business of the Court to have these papers brought before it and examined, and to determine whether they were correct and fair accounts between the parties —Shushee Shekhur v. Suleem Biswas, 22 W. R. 191.

Where a decree requires an agent to render accounts, he can only discharge himself, by accounting for all the moneys that have come into his hands, and it is always open to the decree-holder to show that this has not been done —Wooma Nath v. Sree Nath, 15 W. R 260

Suit by principal against his agent for account—Object of a decree for an account as distinguished from a decree made upon the hearing—Method to be followed in taking accounts.—Hurri Nath v. Krishna Kumar, 14 C. 147, P. C.

Observations on the procedure to be adopted and the burden of proof on the taking of the account.—Thiru Kumaresan v. Subbaraya, 20 M. 313.

Where a defendant refused to render accounts and there was evidence of the destruction of the account-books, the Court charged him with the principal sum for which he was accountable, with interest at 12 per cent, per mensem in lieu of the profits he failed to account for.—Ram Pershad v. Sheo Churn, 10 M. I. A. 490.

Where the plaintiff had filed his account books in Court, and did not allege that they had been falsified, he should have balanced the account himself, and the lower Court should not have deputed an Amin to investigate the accounts.—Chand Ram v. Brojo Gobin, 19 W. R 14.

Form.—For form of commission to examine accounts, see, App. H. form No. 9.

Court to give Commissioner necessary instructions.

12. (1) The Court shall furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such instructions as appear necessary, and the instructions shall distinctly specify whether the Commissioner is merely to transmit the proceedings which he may hold on the inquiry or also to report his own opinion on the point referred for his examination.

Proceedings and report to be evidence, Court may direct further inquiry.

(2) The proceedings and report (if any) of the Commissioner shall be evidence in the suit, but where the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, it may direct such further inquiry as it shall think fit. [S. 395.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 395, C. P. Code, with some additions and alterations

The only change made in sub-rule (1) is the omission of the word "detailed" which stood before the word "instructions" in the third line.

In sub-rule (2) the word "report" has been added after the word "proceedings," and the words "but where the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, it may direct such further enquiry as it shall think fit," have been substituted for the words "unless the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, in which case the Court shall direct such further inquiry as is requisite." By this substitution no change has been made in the meaning, but provisions have been made more clear. Under the provisions of this sub-rule, the proceedings and report of the Commissioner shall be only evidence in the suit if the Court has no reason to be dissatisfied with it; but his report cannot be considered as a decision.

Report of Commissioner to Examine Accounts and its Value.—Duty of Commissioner appointed to examine accounts—Value of his report—Commissioner is not a Judge or arbitrator.—Tincouri Devi v. Sattya Dyal, 6 C. L. J. 105.

Although a Commissioner's report should have very great weight attached to it, it is not absolutely binding.—Kanketala v. Pobshetti, 6 Mad. H. C. 36 (Venkata Reddi v. Venkataramaiya, 1 Mad. H. C. 418, dissented from).

An error in the principle on which an account is taken is not the only ground on which a Court should enquire into the correctness of the report of a Commissioner. It is competent to an Appellate Court to examine the accounts even if no exception has been taken to them in the Court appointing the Commissioner.—Ahmad Valad v. Khasaji Valad, 6 B. H. C. 849 (Sarapu v. Malai 1 Mad. H. C. 1; and Venkata Reddi v. Venkataramaiya, 1 Mad. H. C. 418, dissented from).

The report of the Commissioner, if accepted by the Court, is only evidence in the suit of facts found by him, but is not a decision upon it. It requires affirmation by an order of Court to make it operative as a judgment of a Court. In an appeal from an order confirming the report of the Commissioner, it is open to the Appellate Court to deal with the report on matters of fact, and its powers are not limited to questions of principle when examining such report.—B. M. S. Chetty v. Mohamed Esa, 5 C. W. N. 692.

The nature of a certificate or report of the Commissioner appointed to examine accounts and what it should contain, considered.—Rustomji v. Kessowji, 3 B. 161.

Quaere.—Whether it would be competent to the Court to reopen a question of account against a clear finding upon a question of fact relating to the account, and made by the Commissioner upon the evidence properly before him.—Watson v. Mehedee, L. R. 1 I. A. 346.

Motion to vary or discharge Commissioner's Report.—In moving to discharge or vary the report of the Commissioner for taking accounts, the right practice is to move on a memorandum of objections filed in the Prothonotary's office, and upon the evidence taken by, and the proceedings before the Commissioner, and not on affidavit made for the purpose of the motion. In such a motion, affidavits should only be filed (a) when ordered by the Court if it desires fresh evidence, or (b) by special leave of the Court for the purpose of advancing a fact which does not appear on the face of the proceedings before the Commissioner.—Sumar Ahmed v. Ismail Haji, 1 B 158

A party desiring to move to vary a report made by the Commissioner must not only file his exceptions to such report, but must also make his motion to vary it within 20 days after the filing of the report, or, if the Court have allowed him further time for such application, then within further time so allowed.—Narottam v Hari Chand, 13 B. 368

In making an application to discharge or vary a report, it is necessary that notice should be given within the time required by Rule No. 565 of the Rules of the High Court, and that such notice should be accompanied with the grounds of exceptions relied on by the party objecting to the report.—Lutchmee Narain v Byjnauth, 24 C. 437.

Appeal against Order directing Accounts to be Taken.—In a suit for dissolution of partnership and an account, an order directing accounts to be taken is a decree within the meaning of s 2, Civil Procedure Code, and is therefore appealable.—Biswa Nath v Banikanta, 23 C. 406. See also, the observations of Maclean, C. J., in Khadem Hossein v Emdad Hossein, 5 C W N 617, F. B ; p. 619 But an order directing an account in an administration suit is not an order in the nature of a final decree and is therefore not appealable.—Siee Nath v. Radha Nath, 9 C. 773.

Order of a Judge confirming the report of the Commissioner for taking accounts by which he refused to require the defendants to give inspection of certain books, is not appealable as a decree.—Rustomji Burjorji v. Kisowji, 8 B 287.

During the pendency of an appeal against a preliminary order directing accounts to be taken, the High Court has jurisdiction to make an order staying the carrying out of such order.—Balkishen v. Khungu, 31 C. 722, F. B : 8 C. W. N 572, F. B.

As for costs of Commission, see, notes under rule 15.

COMMISSIONS TO MAKE PARTITIONS.

Commission to make partition of immoveable property.

13. Where a preliminary decree for partition has been passed, the Court may, in any case not provided for by section 54, issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit to make the partition or separation according to the rights as declared in such decree. [S. 396, para. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to para. 1 of s. 396, C. P. Code, 1882 The language of the present rule is quite different from that of the old section; but no change seems to have been made in the meaning. In the old section the word "person" was used in the plural number and hence there was diversity of judicial opinion regarding its meaning The old section ran as follows:—

"In any suit in which the partition of immoveable property not paying revenue to Government appears to the Court to be necessary, the Court after ascertaining the several parties interested in such property and their several rights therein, may issue a commission to such persons as it thinks fit to make a partition according to such rights."

"Issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit."—The singular "person" has been substituted for the plural "persons" which occurred in the corresponding s. 396 of the old Code. Under the old section it was held that the use of the plural "persons" showed that the Court could not issue a commission to make partitions to a single commissioner; Mul Chand v. Muhammad Ali, 29 A 235; Bhimaji v. Narayan, 6 Bom L R. 586; Kanshi Nath v Balaki Das, 124 P. R. 1893. The present rule makes it clear that a commission to make a partition may be issued to a single commissioner

14. (1) The Commissioner shall, after such inquiry as may be necessary, divide the property into as many shares as may be directed by the order under which the commission was issued, and shall allot such shares to the parties, and may, if authorized thereto by the said order, award sums to be paid for the purpose of equalizing the value of the shares.

(2) The Commissioner shall then prepare and sign a report or the Commissioners (where the commission was issued to more than one person and they cannot agree) shall prepare and sign separate reports appointing the share of each party and distinguishing each share (if so directed by the said order) by metes and bounds. Such report or reports shall be annexed to the commission and transmitted to the Court; and the Court, after hearing any objections which the parties may make to the report or reports, shall confirm, vary or set aside the same.

(3) Where the Court confirms or varies the report or reports, it shall pass a decree in accordance with the same as confirmed or varied; but where the Court sets aside the report or reports, it shall either issue a new commission or make such other order as it shall think fit. [S. 396, paras. 2 & 3.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to paras. 2 and 3 of s 396 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1), which corresponds to para. 2 of the old section, the words "after such enquiry as may be necessary" have been substituted for the words "ascertain and inspect the property" which occurred in the old section. The other changes are merely verbal.

In sub-rule (2), which corresponds to para. 3 of the old secion, the words "or the Commissioners (where the commission was issued to more than one person and they cannot agree) shall prepare and sign separate reports" have been added; and the words "shall confirm, vary or set aside the same," have been substituted for the words "shall either quash the same." Under the wording of the old section it was held that the Court must either accept the report or reject the report and that it had no power to vary it; Janki v. Gouri, 28 A. 75. The word "vary" has been added into sub-rule (2) to enable the Court to modify the report in a proper case.

Sub-rule (3) is almost new with the exception of the words "pass a decree in accordance" and the words "either issue a new commission" which occurred in the concluding part of para. 3 of the old section. The object of the above amendment is to meet the case of Janki Prasad v. Gouri Sahai, 28 A. 75: 2 A. L. J. 709; A W. N. (1905) 188, where it has been held that in a suit for partition of immoveable property where a Commissioner has been appointed to ascertain the shares of the parties, the Court when passing its final decree must either accept or reject the report of the Commissioner in toto, but is not competent to modify it. The old section was rather defective and in order to remedy the defect, sub-rule (3) has been inserted.

Resistance to Commissioner.—Where a Commission has been issued to make a partition, the circumstance that the plaintiff or his agent resists the Commissioner is not sufficient to justify the dismissal of a suit.—Masumunissa v. Latifan, 32 A. 319: 5 I. C. 872.

Partition of Non-revenue Paying Immoveable Property.—The intention of this rule is that, upon the first hearing of a suit, the Court shall determine whether the plaintiff is entitled to a partition, and shall ascertain the several persons interested in the property, and their rights therein, and shall direct by a preliminary decree or order that Commissioners be appointed to make the partition. The word "Commissioners" in this rule may be read in the singular number. Gyan Chunder v. Durga Churn, 7 C. 318; 8 C. L. R 415. In the present rule (r. 14) the word "Commissioner" has been used in the singular and thereby 29 A. 235; 4 A. L. J. 76, in which a contrary view was taken has been rendered obsolete.

Mode of Effecting Partition.—In making partition of joint family property, if it appears that some of the members have enhanced the value of a portion of the lands of the joint estate and that other lands of similar description are not available, compensation should be allowed to each co-sharer for any private expenditure — Kallian Banerji v. Modhu Sudan Banerji, 8 C. L. R. 259.

It is a well-known principle of equity, which must be adopted in all partition cases that where it is inconvenient, it must be left in the possession of the person in occupation, and the other person who cannot conveniently get actual possession, compensated.—Basanta Kumar v. Mati Lal, 6 C. L. J. 8-n.

Where, in a suit for partition, possession was sought of a definite share of a property consisting of a number of houses: Held, that the principle in such cases is, that if a property can be partitioned without destroying the intrinsic value of the whole property or of the shares, such partition ought to be made; but where partition cannot be made without destroying the intrinsic value of the property, then a money compensation should be given.—Ashanullah v. Kali Kinkur, 10 C. 675.

The casting of lots by a Commissioner appointed to make a partition for the purpose of allotting shares to the parties, is not opposed to the provisions of Or. XXVI, r. 14, and is the most equitable way of assigning properties to co-parceners in a division.—Ananta v. Subraya, 2 L. W. 430: 29 I. C. 245.

In execution of a decree for partition of family dwelling-house, the Court, with the consent of all the co-parceners, is competent to order that any part of the property should remain joint.—Raj Coomaree v. Gopal Chunder, 3 C. 514.

In a suit for partition, the land in dispute being in the exclusive possession of a single co-sharer, should fall as a whole in the share of one or other of the co-ownears, and not be sub-divided among them.—Ful domonee v. Dwarka Nath, 25 W. R. 335.

Where a party concerned objects to a partition of land fairly allotted according to value, as not having consulted convenience, it is not enough to show that his own convenience would have been better consulted by a different arrangement. He is bound to show some arrangement which would better satisfy all parties and be more equitable for all.—Summun Jha v. Bhooput Jha, 18 W. R. 498.

Where A mortgaged to the plaintiff his undivided share in certain land which he held jointly with B, and subsequent to the mortgage, by a decree in a partition suit, to which the plaintiff was not a party, the mortgaged property was allotted to B, other property in substitution being allotted to A. Held, in a suit to recover the sum due on the mortgage by sale of the mortgaged property, that the plaintiff could not proceed against the mortgaged property, which had been allotted on partition to B, but should be allowed to proceed against that which had been allotted in substitution to A, his mortgagor.—Hem Chunder v. Thako Moni, 20 C. 533, (Byjnath v. Ramoodin, 21 W. R. 233, P. C., followed).

Partition Act IV of 1893—Partition of Joint Family Dwelling-house—Muhammadans are not excluded from the benefit of s. 4 of the Partition Act IV of 1893.—Sultan Begam v. Debi Prasad, 30 A. 324, F. B.: 5 A. L. J. 352 (29 A. 308, overruled; 13 A. 282, referred to).

Where, in a suit for partition, a Commissioner appointed under this rule to make a partition after the preliminary decree had been passed.

submitted a report and the Court, in consideration of the report, was of opinion that the land in suit was very small and could not be conveniently partitioned, and then passed an order for sale of the property under s 2 of Act IV of 1893 Held, that the Court could pass an order under s 2 of the Act for sale of the property, and the fact that a preliminary decree had been passed was no bar to his proceeding under that section —Hiramoni Dosi v. Radha Churn, 5 C. W. N 128.

Section 2 of the Partition Act applies not only where a Court has to pass a decree for partition, but also where, after the Court has passed such a decree directing the partition to be effected in a particular mode, it is found that that mode is impracticable or inexpedient and one of the parties asks the Court to modify the decree by passing an order under this rule.—Bai Hira Koer v Trikamdas, 32 B. 103 · 10 Bom. L R. 23 (24 M 639: 5 C W. N 153, followed)

Section 2 of the Partition Act (IV of 1893), which empowers a Court to order a sale of property instead of a division, in partition suits, may be applied though a preliminary order defining the share of a plaintiff and directing partition has been passed.—Kadir Bacha Saheb v. Abdul Rahiman Saheb, 24 M. 639.

It is only in the event of a suit being one for partition, and the person desirous of buying being a member of the family, that the privilege conferred by s 4 can be rendered available —Kali Kumar v. Brahmandee, 7 C. L. J. 98. 12 C W N. XVI (16-n)

Section 4 of the Partition Act (IV of 1893), applies only where the transferee sues for partition. Where the suit is brought by the sharer against the transferee, s. 2, must be applied. In cases where the section applies the Judge should make a valuation of the share of the transferee only, and direct its sale Balshet v Miranshet, 23 B. 77

Section 4 of Act IV of 1893 applies to a dwelling-house belonging to undivided joint family; but re-acquisition by members of such family after it has been sold to a stranger, does not give any right under that section as against such stranger.—Vaman v Vasudev, 23 B 73.

Held, that section 10 of Act IV of 1893 would apply to a suit for partition in the stage where an interlocutory decree for partition has been made, but that decree had not become final by the Court's acceptance of the lots prepared by the officer appointed for that purpose.—Abdus Samad v. Abdur Razzaq, 21 A. 409.

Partition Decree is Pending Litigation—Final Decree to be Engrossed on Stamped Paper.—It is not obligatory, but discretionary with the Court in a partition suit to appoint a Commissioner under r. 13; and such a decree is not, in all cases, to be considered pending till action is taken under that rule.—Krishnama Chariar v. Kuppammal, 31 M. 510.

A suit for partition is a pending litigation, until the Court signs the final decree A decree for partition to be operative must be engrossed on stamped paper, as required by the Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 2 (15), Sch. I, Art. 45, and until the Judge signs the decree so engrossed, it cannot be said that the suit has terminated; and an order directing a party to be added under s 32, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. I, rr. 8, 10, 11) can be made in such a suit before it has actually terminated —Jotindra Mohan v. Bejoy Chand, 32 C. 483.

A decree for partition must be stamped as an instrument of partition under sec. 2 (15) of the Indian Stamp Act (II of 1899).—Balaram v. Ram Krishna, 29 B. 366; 7 Bom. L. R. 508

Preliminary Decree in a Partition Suit—Appeal.—Where a preliminary decree in a partition suit not followed by action under rule 13, is treated by the Court and by the parties as a final decree in execution proceedings, it is not open to a party subsequently to contend that the decree had not become final —Krishnamachariar v. Kuppammal, 31 M 540.

Order declaring the rights of parties to a partition suit in certain specific shares is a decree within the meaning of s. 2 of the C. P. Code, and is therefore appealable.—Dulhin Golab Koer v. Radha Dulari, 19 C 463; followed in Boloram Dey v. Ram Chundra, 23 C. 279, F. B. See also, Bhola Nath v. Sonamoni, 12 C 273; Bipin Behari v. Lall Mohun, 12 C. 209; Krishna Sami v Rajpala, 18 M. 73; and Khadem Hossein v Emdad Hossein, 5 C. W. N. 617, F B.: 29 C. 758, F. B.

Where in a partition suit an order was made in the course of such proceedings by which the position of some of the parties to the suit was determined, but no declaration was made of the exact rights of each of the parties: Held that it was a mere interlocutory order and no appeal would lie from it —Bhoobun Moyi v. Sharut Sundary, 12 C. 275

An order passed in a suit for partition, subsequent to the preliminary decree appointing a commissioner to make the partition, is an interlocutory order pending the suit which has not been finally decided, and is not an order in execution, and is therefore, not appealable under s. 244, C P. Code, 1882 (s. 47). In an appeal against the final decree the appellant can take objection to such an order.—Jogodishury v. Kailsh Chundra, 24 C. 725, F. B : 1 C. W. N. 374 (16 C. 203 followed; 23 C. 679 overruled)

The definition of the expression " preliminary decree " is given in the explanation attached to s. 2. Section 97 of the present Code provides that if no appeal is preferred against the preliminary decree, the party aggrieved by such a decree shall be precluded from disputing its correctness in an appeal preferred against the final decree —See notes under s 97.

Objection to Commissioner's Report.—An Appellate Court has the same powers in dealing with objections to the report of a Commissioner as the Original Court, and a party cannot be heard in the Appellate Court unless he had filed his objections before the Original Court.—Ma Dwe v Ma Tin Lun, 12 Bur. L T. 228 (5 C. W. N. 692 followed)

In a partition suit, the Court has inherent power to fix a time within which objections to the Commissioner's report are to be filed, and if the order is not complied with, the Court is justified in refusing to hear the objections.—Sheikh Serajuddin v. Sheikh Sharfuddin, 17 A. L. J 483. 50 I. C. 152.

Appeal.—No appeal lies against an order of Court confirming or varying report of a Commissioner made in a partition suit under Or. XXVI, r. 14 (3); Pirthipal v. Bhaskor, 91 I C. 317: A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 195.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Expenses of Commission to be paid into Court.

15. Before issuing any commission under this Order, the Court may order such sum (if any) as it thinks reasonable for the expenses of the commission to be, within a time to be fixed, paid into Court by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit the commission is issued. [S. 397.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s 397, C. P Code, 1882.

Expenses of Commission—Mode of Payment and Realization.—The Court will not order the costs of a commission to examine a defendant, who is a pardanashin lady, to be paid by her, or order the estimated cost of the commission to be paid into Court, although the application for the commission is made by the lady herself.—Monindro Bhoosun v. Shoshee Bhoosun, 5 C. 866.

When after the issue of a commission it is found that the work is in excess of the amount paid in for the costs of commission, and the party at whose instance the commission was issued is not willing to pay, the only way in which the additional costs can be realized is by making the amount of costs of the suit and entering the same in the decree.—Tadhun Proshad v Sardar Coomar, 10 C. W. N 234.

The Commissioner's fee in a partition suit should be realised from the decree-holder and the decree should not be drawn up until such sum had been deposited.—Nanda v. Benode, 15 C. W N 221

Where a Commissioner was appointed to take accounts at the request of the plaintiffs and his costs were not prepaid· Held, in a suit by the Commissioner against the plaintiffs for remuneration of his labour, that the plaintiffs were liable.—Gopalaratnamayyar v. Bupala Narasimma, 4 M. 399.

Where, in a suit in India, a commission to take evidence has been issued in England, costs of such commission to be taxed on the same scale, and on the same principle as would be adopted in England.—Goculdas Bulabdas v. Scott, 15 B. 209.

A Court cannot refuse to use the Amin's reports and the evidence taken by him as evidence in the suit for failure of a party to pay the Amin's fees, inasmuch as a commission issued to an Amin to hold a local investigation is not a process within the meaning of s. 20 of the Court Fees Act; and, therefore, the rules framed by the High Court under that section regarding process fees are ultravires, and cannot be enforced.—Jugal Kishore v. Dina Nath, 17 C. 281.

The Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the dismissal of on refusal or failure of a party to deposit the amount ordered by the as remuneration to a Commissioner appointed under s 391, C. P 1882 (Or. XXVI, r. 11), to examine accounts. The remuneration Commissioner, appointed by the Court to examine accounts should, rule, be a definite amount and not at a monthly allowance.—R Chariar v. Vedanta Chariar, 3 M. 259

Under s. 36 of the present Code, the order of the Court regarding ment of Commissioner's costs may be executed as a decree There no such express provision in the old Code.

Reduction of Commissioner's Bills, When Justified.—There mu some confidence reposed in the Commissioners, who are pleaders officers of the Court, and their report as to the amount of work don them can only be set aside on substantial and definite grounds, Bha Sahai v. Brijbhusan Prasad, 1 Pat L T. 171 : 57 I. C. 291.

The District Judge has no power t tion claimed by a Commissioner for k a suit pending in the Court of the one which must be dealt with by the Subordinate Judge in whose C the suit is pending —Panchanan v Madhu Sudan, 44 I. C. 496

Powers of Commissioners.

16. Any Commissioner appointed under this Order m unless otherwise directed by the order appointment.—

(a) examine the parties themselves and any witness wh they or any of them may produce, and any ot person whom the Commissioner thinks proper call upon to give evidence in the matter referred him;

(b) call for and examine documents and other things re vant to the subject of enquiry;

(c) at any reasonable time enter upon or into any land building mentioned in the order. [S. 39[cut off]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to section 398, C. P. Code, 1882

Powers of Commissioner.—There are no limits to the powers conf by the Code on a Commissioner for the purpose of making an inve tion.—Mohun Lall v. Urnopoorna, 9 W. R. 566. He has the [illegible] power and discretion to enquire into the matters referred to him for i vestigation unless limited by the wording of the commission; Shib Soo duree v. Ram Chunder, 17 W. An Amin appointed to hold a local investigation has power to examine witnesses relative to the matter he has to enquire into, but Court has no power to direct the Amin to try the whole case.—Raghu Nath v Raj Krishna, 1 B. L R. S N 2 A Commissioner has power under this rule to take evidence in the matter referred to.—Tincowri v Suttya Doyal, 6 C. L. J. 105.

It is the duty of the party obtaining a commission for the examination of witnesses to take such steps as may be necessary to secure the attendance before the Commissioner of the witnesses he desires to examine —Lekhraj v. Palee Ram, 2 N W P 210

Attendance and examination of witnesses before Commissioners.

17. (1) The provisions of this Code relating to the summoning, attendance and examination of witnesses, and to the remuneration of and penalties to be imposed upon, witnesses, shall apply to persons required to give evidence or to produce documents under this Order whether the commission in execution of which they are so required has been issued by a Court situate within or by a Court situate beyond the limits of British India, and for the purposes of this rule the Commissioner shall be deemed to be a Civil Court

(2) A Commissioner may apply to any Court (not being a High Court) within the local limits of whose jurisdiction a witness resides for the issue of any process which he may find it necessary to issue to or against such witness, and such Court may, in its discretion, issue such process as it considers reasonable and proper.

COMMENTARY.

Alteration in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to s 399, C P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only

Sub-rule (2).—Sub-rule (2) is new There was no similar provision in the old section. It has been framed to meet the case reported in 23 C. 404, noted below. Under the old section although the Commissioner had all the powers of a Civil Court to summon witnesses and to examine them, he had no machinery to cause the service of processes, etc , and hence sub rule (2) has been inserted

On an application to the High Court to authorize a Commissioner to issue process for the purpose of compelling the attendance of witnesses before him: Held, that the Commissioner should return the commission to the High Court. The High Court may then send the commission to a Civil Court within the limits of whose jurisdiction the witnesses to be examined reside.—Mohomed Ali v. Wazid Ali, 23 C. 404.

Where statements recorded on commission were not read over to the witness they are admissible in evidence and it is open to the Court to grant sanction for perjury in respect of such statements; Mt Feroza Jan v. Mian Amir Ali, 9 O. L. J. 593: 74 I. C. 445.

18. (1) Where a commission is issued under this Order, the Court shall direct that the parties to the suit shall appear before the Commissioner in person or by their agents or pleaders.

Parties to appear before Commissioner.

(2) Where all or any of the parties do not so appear, the Commissioner may proceed in their absence. [S. 400.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 400, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

In sub-rule (2), the words "where all or any of the parties" have been substituted for the words "if the parties," and the words "in their absence" have been substituted for the word "ex parte" which occurred in the old section

Parties to Appear before the Commissioner.—Though there is no express provision in the Code to that effect, yet it is necessary to give notice to parties of the time when a local investigation ordered by the Court is to be held.—Kistomonee v. Bglinton, 12 W. R. 139.

A party who refuses to appear before an Amin at the time he holds his local investigation, is not at liberty afterwards to take any objection to the Amin's report.—Bamun Dass v. Brojo Kishore, 6 W. R. 199

A party who has not joined in a Commission is entitled to cross-examine the witnesses who are examined under the commission—Gregory v. Dooley Chund, 14 W. R. O. C 17.

Evidence taken in absence of other side.—Held, that the evidence given in the absence of other side is not enough to make the deposition of a witness taken on commission inadmissable.—Ram Chand v. Kamini Debea, 10 W R 236

When the Commissioner examined the witness ex parte in the absence of the defendant, the Court ordered the issue of a fresh commission for the examination of the witness, on conditions that the costs of such commission and the costs of the plaintiff attending the commission are to be borne by the defendant.—Khan Mohammed Kassim v. Bridhi Chand, 9 C W N cclxviii (268-n.).

Non-attendance at a local investigation.—The Judge's order should contain a distinct direction to the Commissioner to proceed ex parte in the event of the non-attendance of the parties.—Essan Chunder v. Soorjo, 1st. W. R. (F. B.) 1: 1 Ind. Jur. O. S. 3; Marsh 139.

In a suit to recover possession of some land in which a local enquiry was ordered to ascertain the boundaries of the land in dispute, the judgment of the High Court, upholding the decision of the lower Court which dismissed the suit, because the plaintiff failed to appear or take proper steps before the Amin at the local investigation, and because he omitted to give formal proof of his deed of purchase, confirmed.—Mahomed Tuque v. Judonath Jha, 16 W. R. 29, P. C.

Where statements recorded on commission were not read over to the witness they are admissible in evidence and it is open to the Court to grant sanction for perjury in respect of such statements; Mt. Feroza Jan v. Mirza Amir Ali, 9 O. L. J. 593: 74 I. C. 445.

18. (1) Where a commission is issued under this Order, the Court shall direct that the parties to the suit shall appear before the Commissioner in person or by their agents or pleaders.

Parties to appear before Commissioner.

(2) Where all or any of the parties do not so appear, the Commissioner may proceed in their absence. [S. 400.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 400, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

In sub-rule (2), the words "where all or any of the parties" have been substituted for the words "if the parties," and the words "in their absence" have been substituted for the word "ex parte" which occurred in the old section

Parties to Appear before the Commissioner.—Though there is no express provision in the Code to that effect, yet it is necessary to give notice to parties of the time when a local investigation ordered by the Court is to be held.—Kistomonee v. Bglinton, 12 W. R. 139.

A party who refuses to appear before an Amin at the time he holds his local investigation, is not at liberty afterwards to take any objection to the Amin's report.—Bamun Dass v. Brojo Kishore, 6 W. R. 139.

A party who has not joined in a Commission is entitled to cross-examine the witnesses who are examined under the commission.—Gregory v. Dooley Chund, 14 W. R. O. C. 17.

Evidence taken in absence of other side.—Held, that the evidence given in the absence of other side is not enough to make the deposition of a witness taken on commission inadmissable.—Ram Chand v. Kamini Debea, 10 W. R. 236.

pleader to appear and answer on behalf of the said Secretary of State for India in Council or the Government and may extend the time at its discretion. [S. 420.]

Attendance of person able to answer questions relating to suit against Government.

6. The Court may also, in any case in which the Government pleader is not accompanied by any person on the part of the the Secretary of State for India in Council, who may be able to answer any material questions relating to the suit, direct the attendance of such a person. [S. 421.]

Extension of time to enable public officer to make reference to Government.

7. Where the defendant is a public officer and, on receiving the summons, considers it proper to make a reference to the Government before answering the plaint, he may apply to the Court to grant such extension of the time fixed in the summons as may be necessary to enable him to make such reference and to receive orders thereon through the proper channel.

(2) Upon such application the Court shall extend the time for so long as appears to it to be necessary. [S. 423.]

Procedure in suits against public officer.

8. (1) Where the Government undertakes the defence of a suit against a public officer, the Government pleader, upon being furnished with authority to appear and answer the plaint, shall apply to the Court, and upon such application the Court shall cause a note of his authority to be entered in the register of civil suits. [S. 426.]

(2) Where no application under sub-rule (1) is made by the Government pleader on or before the day fixed in the notice for the defendant to appear and answer, the case shall proceed as in a suit between private parties:

Provided that the defendant shall not be liable to arrest nor his property to attachment, otherwise than in execution of a decree. [S. 427.]

These rules are almost similar to the corresponding sections of the old Code. The changes introduced in these rules are of a mere verbal character.

ORDER XXVIII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST MILITARY MEN.

1. (1) Where any officer or soldier actually serving the Government in a military capacity is a party to a suit, and cannot obtain leave of absence for the purpose of prosecuting or defending the suit in person, he may authorize any person to sue or defend in his stead.

Officers or soldiers who cannot obtain leave may authorize any person to sue or defend for them.

(2) The authority shall be in writing and shall be signed by the officer or soldier in the presence of (a) his commanding officer, or the next subordinate officer, if the party is himself the commanding officer, or (b) where the officer or soldier is serving in military staff employment, the head or other superior officer of the office in which he is employed. Such commanding or other officer shall countersign the authority, which shall be filed in Court.

(3) When so filed the countersignature shall be sufficient proof that the authority was duly executed, and that the officer or soldier by whom it was granted could not obtain leave of absence for the purpose of prosecuting or defending the suit in person

Explanation.—In this Order the expression "commanding officer" means the officer in actual command for the time being of any regiment, corps, detachment or depot to which the officer or soldier belongs. [S. 465.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 465, C. P. Code, 1882, with verbal changes only.

A Court of Small Causes has no jurisdiction to try an action brought against a military officer in a military cantonment where a Court of Requests is established.—Aboo Sait & Co. v. Arnott, 2 M. 430

A non-commissioned officer or soldier, not serving in the army, but employed in the Civil Department and residing beyond military cantonments, is amenable to the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Courts as a Civil Court, even in cases below thirty pounds.—Cohen v. McCarthy 11 W. R. 231.

A European soldier doing duty as an army schoolmaster, [illegible] liable to a Court of Requests, is not exempted from liability to a [illegible] ment Court of Small Causes. The Military Acts give soldiers no privileges as to liability to jurisdiction on actions.—Marmady Beejarajoo v. Haynes, 6 M. H. C. 83.

The 99th section of the Military Act (30 and 31 Vict., cap 13) exempts officers in all places in India, where anybody of Her Majesty's force may be serving, from the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in respect of personal actions.—Hossein v Dickenson, 2 B. L R. S N. 3. 9 W. R 113.

COMMENTARY.

Reference to the High Court regarding the amenability of European soldiers and their native wives to Small Cause Courts in actions for debt.—Kefee v. Christie, 5 W R S C. C Ref 21.

Person so authorized may act personally or appoint pleader.

2. Any person authorized by an officer or a soldier to prosecute or defend a suit in his stead may prosecute or defend it in person in the same manner as the officer or soldier could do if present; or he may appoint a pleader to prosecute or defend the suit on behalf of such officer or soldier. [S. 466.]

Service on person so authorized or on his pleader to be good service.

3. Process served upon any person authorized by an officer or a soldier under rule 1 or upon any pleader appointed as aforesaid by such person shall be as effectual as if they had been served on the party in person. [S. 467.]

COMMENTARY.

The provisions of section 468 of the C. P. Code of 1882, which prescribed the rules for service of summonses on a military officer, have been embodied in Or. V., rr. 28 and 29.

ORDER XXIX.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST CORPORATIONS.

Subscription and verification of pleading.

1. In suits by or against a corporation, any pleading may be signed and verified on behalf of the corporation by the secretary or by any director or other principal officer of the corporation who is able to depose to the facts of the case. [S. 435.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to section 435, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The words "or by company auhorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of trustee," which occurred in the old section, have been omitted and the reason of such omission, as stated in the Report of the Select Committee is that "companies authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee must be very few, if, indeed, any exist, and they do not appear to call for special treatment."

The above omission seems also to have been made on the ground that the word "corporation" includes a company registered under the Indian Companies Act of 1882, and most companies are now-a-days registered.

The words "or against" have been added so as to include a defendant corporation; hence the word "pleading" has been substituted for the word "plaint" which occurred in the old section.

The word "corporation" has not been defined in this Code. It means "a fictitious body invested by law with the attributes of a person having a corporate name, by which it can sue and be sued and hold property, and enjoying immortal existence by reason of a perpetual succession of its members"—See Williams on Real Property 20th Ed., pp. 295-96.

Form of Suit By or Against Corporations.—A corporation or company should be sued in its corporate name, and not in the names of its agents or servants.—Ram Das Sen v. Collector of Moorshedabad, 2 B. L. R. S. N. 6; 10 W. R. 336; and Nubeen Chander v. Stephenson, 15 W. R. 34.

Order XXIX, r. 1 applies only to corporations strictly so called, i.e., to bodies authorized by law to act as a person in law and not to unincorporated bodies or associations of men; Ma Gyi v. Pat Lon, 9 Bur. L. T. 27: 38 I. C. 572.

In the case of an unincorporated or unregistered company, the plaintiff if he does not know of what persons the company is composed, may sue the company by the name under which they are carrying on business, stating in his plaint his inability to describe them better.—Kaylash Chunder v. Ellis, 8 W. R. 45. But see, Ganesha Singh v. Mundi Forest Company, 21 A. 340; and Panchaili Akhara, etc. v. Gouri Kuar, 20 A. 167, in which it has been held that where a company is not registered under Act VI of 1882, a plaintiff bringing a suit against such company must make each individual member of the company a defendant in the suit, and he cannot escape from this obligation by stating his inability to do so. See also, The Mahomedan Association of Meerut v. Bukhi Ram, 6 A. 284.

When a suit is brought against two companies, they should be described by their proper names.—India General S N R. Co v. Lalmohon Saha, 43 C 441: 22 C. L. J 241.

Unless a company is incorporated under Act VI of 1882, and authorized to sue or be sued in the name of an officer, it cannot sue by any of its officers.—Campbell v. Jackson, 12 C. 41. See also, Ghulam Muhammad v. The Himalaya Bank, 17 A. 292.

The Cantonment Committee of Poona is a body corporate, and is liable to be sued for damages in its corporate name on contracts entered into in its corporate character.—Cantonment Committee, Poona v. Barjorji Bamanji, 14 B 286.

An action to recover the price of goods supplied to a member of a non-proprietary club, or on his responsibility, cannot be brought in the name of the Secretary of the club.—Michael v. Briggs, 14 M. 362.

The Secretary of a Government aided school can maintain an action for the benefit of the school —Sreehury Roy v Hills, 6 W R. Civ Ref. 21. See also, 22 B. 754.

Foreign Corporation.—A foreign corporation is entitled to sue in its corporate character in this country without being registered under the Indian Companies Act of 1913 or an Act of Parliament. Thus a plaint filed in the Delhi Court on behalf of the Singer Manufacturing Company, which is incorporated in the United States of America, may be verified by an agent holding a general power of attorney from the Company as a "principal Officer" of the Company within the meaning of this rule;—Singer Manufacturing Co. v Baijnath, 30 C. 103; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Yar Mahummad, 8 P. R. 1912.

Subscription and Verification of Pleadings.—S. 51, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. VI, rr. 14, 15), regulating proceedings by or on behalf of ordinary plaintiffs, does not apply in the case of a corporation or company, but this rule is applicable. An acting manager of a corporation or company is a principal officer within the meaning of this rule, and can subscribe and verify the plaint on behalf of the company or corporation.—Delhi and London Bank v. Oldham, 21 C. 60, P C

Order XXIX of the C P. Code deals with the subscription and verification of pleadings in suits by or against a corporation. They say nothing about the manner in which the suit itself is to be framed: Sinchi Ram Bihari Lall v. The Agent East India Ry. Co., 2 P. L. T. 679.

This rule does not require a "principal officer" of a corporation to verify a plaint from actual personal knowledge. The rule shows that a verifier may depose upon his information and belief.—The Port Canning and Land Improvement Co. v. Dharnidhar, 9 C. W. N. 608.

In a suit by an agent of unincorporated society: Held that, inasmuch as the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church of New York was not a corporation or company authorized to sue or be sued in the name of an officer or trustee within the meaning of this rule, and also as the person signing the plaint did not profess to be suing on his own possessory title to the land in respect of which ejectment was claimed, the suit must be dismissed.—Yusuf Beg v Board of Foreign Missions, 16 A 420

Held, that a plaint in a suit by a bank in liquidation in which the plaintiff was described as "The Official Liquidator, Himalaya Bank," and which was also subscribed and verified in the same terms was not a valid plaint.—Ghulam Muhammad v. Himalaya Bank, 17 A. 292.

Signing of plaint by the principal officer of a corporation is, notwithstanding that he is an Ammuktear, a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this rule.—Chandra Sekhar v. Ram Koomar, 20 C L J. 89

"Who is able to depose to the facts of the case."—Where a petition by the Bank of Bengal was verified by a person described as the officiating Inspector of Branches, Bank of Bengal, and there was nothing to show that he was not the officer authorized to sue or verify the petition on behalf of the Bank at Chittagong, or that he was not able to depose to the facts of the case Held, that the petition was properly verified under this rule.—Ram Komal v Bank of Bengal, 5 C. W. N. 91.

A plaint or a written statement may be signed and verified on behalf of the corporation by the secretary or by any director or other principal officer of the corporation who is able to depose to the facts of the case; Sreenath v. East Indian Railway Co , 22 C. 268.

Dismissal of Suit.—Where the plaint is signed and verified by an officer other than the principal officer of the corporation, the suit ought to be dismissed; Yusuf Beg v. The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, 16 A. 420

Service on corporation.

2. Subject to any statutory provision regulating service of process, where the suit is against a corporation, the summons may be served:

(a) on the secretary, or on any director, or other principal officer of the corporation, or

(b) by leaving it or sending it by post addressed to the corporation at the registered office, or if there is no registered office then at the place where the corporation carries on business. [S. 436.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to the first part of s 436, C P Code, with some omissions and alterations. The section has been re-arranged, and except the change in its wording and phraseology, no other material change has been made.

Service by Post.—The Committee have enlarged the language of the Code so as to allow of service by post on corporations having a Registered Office, and by this means the rule is brought into line with the provisions of the "Indian Companies Act."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Service on Corporation.—An Executive Engineer of a Railway Company is not an officer on whom a service may be made under this rule; and for the purposes of summons, a Railway Company must be deemed to dwell at its principal office —Hanion v. Indian Branch Railway Company, 1 Hyde. 197.

The Traffic Superintendent is not the Manager's Agent, and notice to him is not notice to the Railway Administration within the meaning of s. 77 of the Indian Railway Act (IX of 1890).—Secretary of State v. Dipchand, 24 C. 306. See also, Periannan Chetti v. South India Railway Company, 22 M. 137.

3. The Court may, at any stage of the suit, require the personal appearance of the secretary or of any director, or other principal officer of the corporation who may be able to answer material questions relating to the suit. [S. 436, last para.]

Power to require personal attendance of officer of corporation.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to the last para of s 436, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "at any stage of the suit."

In a suit by an agent of unincorporated society: Held that, inasmuch as the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church of New York was not a corporation or company authorized to sue or be sued in the name of an officer or trustee within the meaning of this rule, and also as the person signing the plaint did not profess to be suing on his own possessory title to the land in respect of which ejectment was claimed, the suit must be dismissed.—Yusuf Beg v. Board of Foreign Missions, 16 A. 420

Held, that a plaint in a suit by a bank in liquidation in which the plaintiff was described as "The Official Liquidator, Himalaya Bank," and which was also subscribed and verified in the same terms was not a valid plaint.—Ghulam Muhammad v. Himalaya Bank, 17 A. 292

Signing of plaint by the principal officer of a corporation is, notwithstanding that he is an Ammuktear, a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this rule.—Chandra Sekhar v. Ram Koomar, 20 C. L. J. 89.

"Who is able to depose to the facts of the case."—Where a petition by the Bank of Bengal was verified by a person described as the officiating Inspector of Branches, Bank of Bengal, and there was nothing to show that he was not the officer authorized to sue or verify the petition on behalf of the Bank at Chittagong, or that he was not able to depose to the facts of the case. Held, that the petition was properly verified under this rule.—Ram Komal v. Bank of Bengal, 5 C. W. N. 91.

A plaint or a written statement may be signed and verified on behalf of the corporation by the secretary or by any director or other principal officer of the corporation who is able to depose to the facts of the case, Sreenath v. East Indian Railway Co., 22 C. 268.

Dismissal of Suit.—Where the plaint is signed and verified by an officer other than the principal officer of the corporation, the suit ought to be dismissed; Yusuf Beg v. The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, 16 A. 420.

Service on corporation.

2. Subject to any statutory provision regulating service of process, where the suit is against a corporation, the summons may be served:

(a) on the secretary, or on any director, or other principal officer of the corporation, or

(b) by leaving it or sending it by post addressed to the corporation at the registered office, or if there is no registered office then at the place where the corporation carries on business. [S. 436]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to the first part of s. 436, C. P. Code, with some omissions and alterations. The section has been re-arranged, and except the change in its wording and phraseology, no other material change has been made.

India. "Carrying on business" means the possession in British India of a place of business held in the name of the firm, whether business is carried on behalf of the firm by a partner or by a person or persons in the pay of the firm. It makes no difference whether the partners are or are not out of British India, or whether or not they have another place out of British India. If they are carrying on business in British India in the firm's name, they can be sued as an Indian firm; Worcester & Co. v. Fir Bank Pauling & Co., (1894) 1 Q B 784; Shepherd v. Hirsch & Co., 45 C. D. 231; Lysaght v. Clark, 1 Q B. 552

"At the time of the accruing of the cause of action."—These words indicate that a suit contemplated by this rule may be brought by or against a firm in the firm's name, even though the firm may have been dissolved before the date of the suit, provided the cause of action arose before the dissolution, Pulin v. Mahendra, 34 C L. J 405; Harjibandas v. Bhagwandas, 49 C 394: 69 I C 236· A. I R. 1922 Cal. 390.

Suing of Partners in Name of Firm.—The effect of the provisions regarding suits against partners in the firm's name is merely to give a compendious mode of describing in the writ the partners who compose the firm; in effect the partners are sued individually. The firm's name is a mere expression and not a legal entity, Ramprasad Chimonlal v. Anundji & Co, 49 C. 524. A. I R. 1922 Cal. 408; Gopaldas v. Baijnath, 48 A. 239: A. I R. 1926 All. 238.

Where a suit is filed against a firm, but the defendant is also described as the owner of the firm and a question of limitation is pressed by the heirs of the defendant who are subsequently impleaded, the suit must in effect be treated as one against a firm and the subsequent words of description mere surplusage; Motilal Jasraj v. Chand Mal Hindu Mal, 25 Bom. L. R. 1081.

Under the old law in suits by or against a firm, all persons who are members of it were necessary parties, that is, in suits concerning partnership business, all the members of the firm were necessary parties. See, 25 W. R. 118; 7 C L J. 266; 31 C. 487, P. C.: 8 C. W. N. 442. In Yeknath Babaji v. Gulab Chand, 1 Bom H C. 85, it was held that in an action against a firm, the names of the partners should be specified in the plaint To remove all these technical obstacles the present rules have been framed.

Under the present rule a firm may sue or be sued in the name of the firm, without first ascertaining the names of all the members of the partnership. But at the same time it has been provided in sub-rule (1) that any party to a suit may in such case apply to the Court for a statement of the names and addresses of the persons, who were, at the time of accrual of the cause of action, partners in such firm, that is, who were partners of the firm before the dissolution of the partnership

Sub-rule (2) provides that in suits concerning partnership business, pleading, etc., may be signed and verified by one of the members of the firm.

Where a suit is instituted by one of the partners on behalf of the firm as its agent, the suit cannot be dismissed on account of the non-joinder of the other parties. All that the defendant is entitled to is the disclosure of the names of those parties. If the other partners are added, as plaintiffs even after the period of limitation, the suit cannot be held to be barred by s 22 of the Limitation Act.—Marayya Chetti v. Sami Chetty, 2 L W 289 · 28 I. C. 210.

Minor.—Where a suit is brought against a firm, the mere fact that there is a minor member of the firm, does not bring the suit within the purview of Or. XXXII Where the matter is referred to arbitration it is not necessary that the Court should give assent under Or. XXXII r 7; Sukha Nand v Beharram, 68 I. C. 750

Where a suit is brought by one firm against another through their representatives, they can agree to refer the dispute to arbitration and the validity of the award is not affected by the fact that the minor members of the firm did not sign the reference to arbitration; Firm of Bishambar Mal Pale Mal v Firm of Ganga Sahai Nihal Chand, 5 Lah. L. J. 5: 71 I. C. 734.

Suit Against Firm—One Partner Cannot Refer the Case to Arbitration so as to Bind Others.—Or XXX, r. 1, sub-cl. (2) does not empower one partner to refer a case to arbitration so as to bind the other partners who have not agreed to or joined in the application for reference It could never have been in the contemplation of the Legislature to make an agreement for reference to arbitration by only one of the partners binding on all the partners, merely because the suit is against the firm as such, Gopaldas v. Baijnath, 48 A. 239: 24 A. L. J. 235. 91 I C. 930. A. I. R 1926 All 238.

Title of Suit.—The plaintiff who was a minor was described in the title of the plaint as "owner of the shop C" It was stated in Para 4 of the plaint "As the plaintiff the owner of the shop is a minor, the suit is not barred by limitation." The suit was dismissed by the trial Court holding that the plaintiff was the shop and not the minor. Held the dismissal was wrong —Chambassappa v. Mal Kappa, A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 368.

Verification of Plaint.—Two or more persons carrying a business in the name of a firm can institute a suit in the name of the firm itself When a suit is brought in the name of the firm any of the partners can sign and verify the plaint It is not necessary that all or even two partners should sign or verify it.—Swarath Ram Saran Ram v Sarup Lal Ram, 12 A. L J. 1020.

2. (1) Where a suit is instituted by partners in the name of their firm, the plaintiffs or their pleader shall, on demand in writing by or on behalf of any defendant, forthwith declare in writing the names and places of residence of all the persons constituting the firm on whose behalf the suit is instituted.

Disclosure of partner's names.

(2) Where the plaintiffs or their pleader fail to comply with any demand made under sub-rule (1) all proceedings in the suit may, upon an application for that purpose, be stayed upon such terms as the Court may direct.

(3) Where the names of the partners are declared in the manner referred to in sub-rule (1), the suit shall proceed in the same manner, and the same consequences in all respects shall follow, as if they had been named as plaintiffs in the plaint:

Provided that all the proceedings shall nevertheless continue in the name of the firm. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule is new It has been taken from English Or. XLVIII-A, r. 2.

Under this rule, where a suit is instituted in the name of a firm, the plaintiffs or their pleaders shall, on demand by or on behalf of any defendant must disclose the names of the partners and in default the proceedings in the suit may be stayed.

Disclosure of Partner's Names.—If the plaintiff firm has not made a full disclosure of their partners, the proper procedure is not to dismiss the suit, but allow the firm to put in a further declaration making a full disclosure and thus remedy the defect —Imperial Pressing Co. v. British Crown Assurance Corporation, 41 C 581, 585

3. Where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm, the summons shall be served either —

Service.

(a) upon any one or more of the partners, or

(b) at the principal place at which the partnership business is carried on within British India upon any person having, at the time of service, the control or management of the partnership business there, as the Court may direct; and such service shall be deemed good service upon the firm so sued, whether all or any of the partners are within or without British India:

Provided that, in the case of a partnership which has been dissolved to the knowledge of the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, the summons shall be served upon every person within British India whom it is sought to make liable. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule is new, it has been taken from English Or. XLVIII-A, r. 3.

This rule provides the mode of service of summons, notices, etc, in suits concerning partnership business. Its provisions are somewhat similar to the proviso to s. 74, C. P. Code, 1882.

Service of Summons.—This rule prescribes two alternative modes of service of summons in suits instituted against firms The first mode is by service upon any one or more of the partners. The second mode is by service at the principal place of business of the partnership, within British India, upon the person who has the control or management of the partnership business. If service is effected, in either of these modes, in accordance with law, there is good service upon the firm as a corporate entity and it is immaterial whether all or any of the partners are within or without British India; Baisnab Charan v. Bank of Bengal, 19 C. W. N. 1008; Adiveppa v. Pragji, 26 Bom. L. R. 388 It must be remembered, however, that in the case of service on a partner, it is good service not only upon the firm but also upon the partner personally, though it is not service upon any other member of the firm so as to make such member not served liable in execution proceedings under Or. XXI, r. 50 (1) (c). On the other hand if there has been a service upon the person who has the control or management of the business but is not a partner himself, such service is good service upon the firm but it is not service on any member of the firm so as to make him liable in execution proceedings under Or. XXI, r. 50 (1) (c); In re Ide, 17 K. B. D. 755. Where the mandate to bailiff is to serve the summons under Or XXX, r. 3 (b), on the manager or the managing partner of the firm at the place where the firm is carrying on business, and the name of the person to be served is not specified in the summons, it is no duty of the bailiff to deviate from this mandate and attempt to ascertain for himself who the managing partner is or to attempt to serve the summons on such managing partner by affixing it to his residence. Such a service is not proper service under Or. XXX; Manji Mal v. Khub Chand, 95 I C. 149· A. I. R. 1926 Sind 208.

Sections 74 and 76, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r. 11 and Or. V, r. 13), do not apply, where some of the defendants who are interested in the partnership are minors. Those sections are controlled by s. 443, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or XXXII, r. 3).—Jotindra Mohun v. Srinath Roy, 26 C 267: 3 C. W. N. 261 (14 C. 204 referred to).

In a suit instituted against a partnership firm, all the members whereof were non-residents at the place in which the business was carried on, service of summons could not be made under s. 80, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r. 17), on the refusal of the manager of the firm to accept service, by affixing a copy of the summons on the outer door of the house in which the business was located. S. 80, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r 17), contemplates that the persons sought to be served should be residing at the house But service so effected was properly made under s. 74, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r. 11), which contemplates, service on the person having management of the business, unless the Court otherwise directs —Akhoy Kumar v. Nagendra Lal, 13 C. W. N. 400.

Service in Case of Suit Against a Dissolved Firm.—An ex parte decree was obtained against a firm which had been sued in the firm's name and served as such with the leave of the Court by registered post. It was alleged in an application to set aside the ex parte decree by the applicant that the summons was not duly served and that the firm had long ceased to carry on business as such firm but was being wound up by the applicant. Held, a suit can be brought against a firm in its firm name even if it be a dissolved firm provided only that the liability arose at a time when the firm was in existence. Under Or. XXX, r. 3, the only way in which such writ can be served is by serving it either upon a partner or by serving it at the principal place at which the partnership business is carried on in British India on a person having at the time of service control or management of the partnership business. If r. 11 of Chapter VII of the High Court rules is applied, it is necessary that it should be so applied as to comply with Or. XXX, r 3; Herjibandas Govardhandas v. Bhagwandas Pursram, A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 390.

"May direct."—The words "may direct" do not indicate express permission.—Akhoy v. Nagendra, 13 C. W N. 490.

Right of suit on death of partner.

4. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 45 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, where two or more persons may sue or be sued in the name of a firm under the foregoing provisions and any of such persons dies, whether before the institution or during the pendency of any suit it shall not be necessary to join the legal representative of the deceased as a party to the suit.

(2) Nothing in sub-rule (1) shall limit or otherwise affect any right which the legal representative of the deceased may have—

(a) to apply to be made a party to the suit, or

(b) to enforce any claim against the survivor or survivors. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Object and Scope of the Rule.—This rule is new. Section 45 of the Indian Contract Act IX of 1882, to which reference has been made in this rule, runs as follows: "When a person has made a promise to two or more persons jointly, then, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract, the right to claim performance rests, as between him and them, with them during their joint lives, and, after the death of any of them, with the representative of such deceased person jointly with the survivor or survivors, and after the death of the last survivor, with the representatives of all jointly"

This rule has been framed to meet the following rulings under s. 45 of the Indian Contract Act in which it has been held that s. 45 of the Contract Act relates to partners as well as to other co-contractors. In Moti Lal Bechardas v Ghellabhai, 17 B 6 (11), (following 6 B. 700), it has been held that the right to performance of the contract, as far as the other contracting party is concerned, rests just as much with the representative of the deceased partner as with the surviving partner. Th case has been approved in Aga Gulam Hussain v. A. D. Sassoon, 21 B 412 (421). See also, Gobind Prasad v. Chander Shekhar, 9 A. 486, and Debi Das v. Nirpat, 20 A. 365. In Vaidyanath v. Rangasami, 17 M 108 (117), it has been held that a surviving partner can sue alone for the recovery of a partnership debt. In Ram Narain v. Ram Chander, 18 C 86 (90), it has been held that the representatives of a deceased partner must always be made parties to suits as plaintiffs with the surviving partners.

On the death of a partner the right to sue in respect of debts due to the firm survives to the surviving partners.—Bal Kissen v. Kanhya, 17 C. L J. 648: 21 I. C 569

One of several joint contractees may sue to enforce his share of the obligation, if the other co-contractees are joined as defendants As a general rule all co-contractors ought to be joined as plaintiffs A suit by one would not be bad, if others are joined as defendants, and if there are good reasons for not joining them as plaintiffs.—Shital Chandra v. Manik Chandra, 9 C L. J 331 13 C. W. N 509 (26 C. 409 followed, 6 C. L. J 558, 25 C 787 referred to).

Applicability of the Rule.—Or. XXX, r. 4 of the C. P. Code, applies only to a case where the suit is brought in the name of the firm.—Monmohan v Bidhubhusan, 28 C L. J. 268: 48 I. C 309.

Rule 4 is limited in its operation to suits instituted by or against partners in the name of their firm and not in their individual names Hence in a suit filed by two partners individually, if one of them dies pending suit, but his legal representatives are not brought on the record, the suit shall abate; Dost Mahomed v. Mohandas, 91 I C 573: A. I R. 1926 Sind 81

Notice in what capacity served.

5. Where a summons is issued to a firm and is served in the manner provided by rule 3, every person upon whom it is served shall be informed by notice in writing given at the time of such service, whether he is served as a partner or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business, or in both characters, and, in default of such notice, the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule has been taken from English Or. XLVIII-A, r. 4

This rule mentions three capacities in which notices may be served (1) Notice may be as a partner; (2) or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business; (3) or in both characters If the above provisions are not complied with, the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner

Notice in What Capacity Served.—The present rule provides that the person served with a summons under 3 should be informed by notice in writing given at the time of the service, whether he is served as a partner of the firm or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business or in both characters. In default of notice, the person served will be deemed to be served as a partner.

Appearance under Protest.—See r. 8, below.

In the absence of a written notice as to the capacity of the person on whom summons is served, the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner and if he wants to contest that, he must appear under protest under r. 8: Baisnab v Bank of Bengal, 19 C W. N. 1008: 19 C. L. J. 581.

Appearance of partners.

6. Where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm, they shall appear individually in their own names, but all subsequent proceedings shall, nevertheless continue in the name of the firm. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule has been taken from English Or XLVIII-A, r. 5.

"Individually."—Under Or. XXX, r 1 of the C P Code, a plaintiff suing a firm is entitled to know who the persons are who constitute that firm and the information cannot be withheld. Held also, that the word "individually" in r 6 is not synonymous with "in person". no partner can be forced under this rule to appear in person, but in his absence, after service of summons he will be dealt with ex parte And if appearance is put in for him, it will be reckoned as his individual appearance —Bridges and Co v. Shamas Din & Co, 78 P R 1918 P W R 1918 47 I. C 422

"All subsequent proceedings shall continue in the name of the firm."—In every suit against partners sued in the firm's name, the plaint and all subsequent proceedings must be headed with the firm's name as defendants; Ajit Sing v. Grunning, 27 Bom L R 998 A. I R 25 Bom. 494; Pulin v Mahendra, 34 C. L J 405 67 I. C 10

No appearance except by partners.

7. Where a summons is served in the manner provided by rule 3 upon a person having the control or management of the partnership business, no appearance by him shall be necessary unless he is a partner of the firm sued [New.]

This rule has been taken from English Or XLVIII-A, r. 6.

Appearance under protest.

8. Any person served with summons as a partner under rule 3 may appear under protest, denying that he is a partner, but such appearance shall not preclude the plaintiff from otherwise serving a summons on the firm and obtaining a decree against the firm in default of appearance where no partner has appeared. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule has been taken from English Or. XLVIII-A, r. 7

Appearance under Protest.—The plaintiff filed a suit a defendants and served the summons on one N as a partner in t ants' firm N entered an appearance under protest and filed statement denying that he was a partner in the defendants' plaintiffs got an ex parte order for adjournment of the suit in they might serve dupilcate writ of summons on the defen applied that the order should be vacated and that the suit placed on board for trial of the issue whether he was a part defendant's firm. Held, that the order for adjournment sh in order to enable the plaintiff to serve the summons on the t firm, and that N had the right to have the question whether partner in the defendants' firm decided by the Court.—Vithaldas v. Hansraj, 23 Bom L R 1249.

Suits between co-partners.

9. This Order shall apply to suits between a firm or more of the partners therein and between firms having one or more pa common; but no execution shall be such suits except by leave of the Court, and, on an ap for leave to issue such execution, all such accounts and may be directed to be taken and made and directions give be just.

COMMENTARY.

This rule has been taken from English Or. XLVIII-A, r. 1

Rules 6, 7, 8 and 9 are to be read with r. 50 of Or. X prescribes the mode of execution of a decree against a firm.

Suit against person carrying on business in name other than his own.

10. Any person carrying on business in a name other than his own name may be sued name or style as if it were a firm na so far as the nature of the case will all rules under this Order shall apply.

COMMENTARY.

This rule has been taken from English Or. XLVIII-A, r. 1

Scope of the Rule.—This rule applies to a single indivi carries on business under an assumed or trading name other that name; and in such case the foregoing rules of this Order will such individual, who may be sued either in his own name, o trade name.

Application of the Foregoing Rules.—All the rules of this order relating to suits against firms have been made applicable by the latter part of this rule to suits against a person trading in the name other than his own, so far as the nature of the case will permit.

ORDER XXXI.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

Representation of beneficiaries in suits concerning property vested in trustees, etc.

(1) In all suits concerning property vested in a trustee, executor or administrator, where the contention is between the persons beneficially interested in such property and a third person, the trustee, executor or administrator shall represent the persons so interested, and it shall not ordinarily be necessary to make them parties to the suit. But the Court may, if it thinks fit, order them or any of them to be made parties [S. 437.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 437, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "where" for "when."

The word "trustee" has not been defined in this Code. For the definition of "trustee," see, the Indian Trust Act (II of 1882)

For the definition of the words "executor" and "administrator," see, s 3 of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865)

This rule applies only when the contention is between the persons beneficially interested and a third party, but it does not apply where the contention is beween beneficiaries and trustees or between the beneficiaries themselves See, 18 M. 266 (272), noted below.

Scope of the Rule.—This rule applies only where the dispute is between the beneficiaries and a third person. It does not apply where the contention is between beneficiaries inter se. This rule does not purport to have been enacted for the purpose of enumerating the cases in which suits may be brought by or against a person in a representative character, they merely provide a mode of disposing of suits concerning property vested in trustees, executors, or administrators.—Raghunandan v Parmeshwar, 2 Pat. L. J. 306: 39 I. C 779.

Representation of Beneficiaries.—Held that, having regard to this rule the persons acting as trustees in succession under the will of a Parsi testator, made before Act X of 1866 came into operation, but proved subsequently, adequately represented all persons beneficially interested in the estate in all suits relating to it.—Ardesir Jehangir v. Hira Bai, 8 B 474

Under the provisions of the C. P. Code, the representatives of trustees are necessary paries to a suit for the recovery of trust property —Annapurna Dabee v Moni Mohun, 7 C. W. N. (S. N.) lxviii (68).

A trustee represents the persons beneficially interested, when the suit is concerning property vested in the trustee, and the contention is between the persons beneficially interested and a third party.—Sathianama v. Saravanabagi, 18 M. 266 (272)

A trustee sufficiently represents the beneficiaries for the purposes of a suit, and the beneficiaries entitled under the declaration of trust need not be made parties.—Beresford v. Ramasubba, 13 M. 197.

An executor of the will of a deceased Mahomedan, since the coming into operation of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), cannot claim to represent the estate of his testator until he has taken out probate. Fatema v. Essa, 7 B 266. Reserved in appeal. See, 8 B. 241.

Where a suit for possession was brought by an executor in September 1898 and the names of the beneficiaries who took possession of the estate during the pendency of the suit were substituted as plaintiffs in November 1900: Held, that no new plaintiffs were substituted within the meaning of s 22 of the Limitation Act —Janhabi Chowdhurani v Brojo Mohini, 7 C. W. N. 817

The representatives of a testator are entitled to sue for the enforcement of the due performance of the trusts created by him for religious and charitable purposes, and in which they are not personally interested, but their suit will be dismissed, unless upon their plaint they substantially allege a state of circumstances which, if proved, will constitute a distinct breach of trust.—Brojo Mohun v Hurro Lall, 6 C. L R. 58· 5 C 700

Where a decree for foreclosure was obtained, against S who was the executor of his father's estate, and subsequently A, brother of S, and M, a purchaser of some of the mortgaged properties from A, made an application to be made parties and to redeem· Held, that they were not entitled to be made parties —Mohanand v Akhoy Kumar, 6 C W. N. 488.

A creditor of a deceased debtor cannot sue a person named as executor in the will of the deceased unless he has either intermeddled with the estate or proved the will An action commenced against the heir-at-law cannot be continued against him after the grant of probate, but the executor must be added as defendant.—Dhirendra Kanta v. Kumar Saradindu, 1 C. L. J. 29-n.

A beneficial owner is not a necessary party for setting aside an execution sale It is competent to the Court to set aside the sale finally and conclusively as against the beneficial owner although his benamidar only, and not he, is made a party to the proceedings.—Barada Kanta v. Chunder Kanta, 29 C. 682 6 C. W N 706.

In the absence of fraud or collusion the decree obtained against an executor or administrator and the sale thereunder, are binding upon their successors.—Bai Meherbai v. Magan Chand, 29 B. 96.

Section 85 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), by reference to this rule, indicates, in very clear terms, who are to be regarded as representatives of persons, and they are trustees, executors, and administrators, —Lala Surje Prosad v. Golab Chand, 28 C. 517 (528): 5 C. W. N. 640,

In a suit by one legatee for legacy bequeathed to him, the executor may apply for his protection that other legatees may be made parties, and in such a case it is discretionary with the Court to make the addition of parties — Purshottam v Kala Govindaji, 26 B. 301.

When a suit for rent was brought against two persons as mutwallis, but one of them who was a minor was not properly served and no guardian was appointed on his behalf: Held, that the mutwallis are trustees and the presence of all of them in the suit was essential, and the suit was properly dismissed for defect of parties.—Syed Abdul Rab v. H. C. Egan, 12 C. W. N. 160.

So long as letter of administration, which was obtained by fraud, is not revoked, the guarantee to all intents and purposes alone represents the estate, and his receipts are valid discharges for all monies received by him as administrator.—Debendra Nath v. Administrator-General, Bengal, 12 C. W. N. 802, P. C.

When Beneficiaries may be Added as Parties.—Beneficiaries are made parties when the trustee is either wholly uninterested or has an interest adverse to their interest.—Beresford v. Ramasuba, 13 M. 197; Clegg v. Rowland, L. R. 3 Eq. 368. Where a suit for recovery of possession was brought by an executor, and the names of the beneficiaries, who took possession during the pendency of the suit, were subsequently substituted as plaintiffs, it was held that no new plaintiffs were substituted within s. 22 of the Limitation Act; Jahnabi v. Brojomohini, 7 C. W. N. 817. The beneficial owner can sue to get the benefit of a decree obtained by his trustee; Juggobundhoo v. Nil Comul, W. R. (1864) 190; but he is not a necessary party to a proceeding for setting aside an execution sale, Baroda v. Chunder Kanta, 29 C. 682.

Joinder of trustees executors and administrators.

2. Where there are several trustees, executors or administrators, they shall all be made parties to a suit against one or more of them:

Provided that the executors who have not proved their testator's will, and trustees, executors and administrators outside British India, need not be made parties. [S. 438.]

COMMENTARY.

This section corresponds to section 438, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations

The word "where" has been substituted for "when" and the word "trustees" has been added before the word "executors" and the words "outside British India" have been substituted for the words "beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court." By the above substitutions the scope of the section has been enlarged

"Several trustees, executors or administrators."—Under this rule where there are several executors, they must all be made parties, subject to the proviso that the executor living outside British India need not be made parties. The onus is upon the defendant to show that the executor is living within British India.—Kumar Saradindu v. Dhirendra Kant, 2 C. L. J. 484.

Where a Mahomedan testator had by his will appointed three executors only one of whom had acted and got possession of the estate, a suit by the testator's widow for administration of the estate was held sufficiently well constituted for the purpose of a motion for receiver, although only the executor who had acted was made defendant, the other two executors not being parties to the suit.—Hafizabai v. Abdul Karim, 19 B 83

In a suit against a temple, all the trustees are necessary parties even though there is an agreement between them authorizing one of them to represent the temple, Adiraju v. Pattu, A. I. R. 1922 Mad 405· 77 I. C. 942

Husband of married executrix not to join.

3. Unless the Court directs otherwise, the husband of a married trustee, administratrix or executrix shall not as such be a party to a suit by or against her. [S. 439.]

ORDER XXXII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST MINORS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND.

Minor to sue by next friend.

1. Every suit by a minor shall be instituted in his name by a person who in such suit shall be called the next friend of the minor. [S. 440, para. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to para 1 of s 440, C. P. Code, 1882 with some omissions The last sentence of para. I of the old section which ran as follows "And may be ordered to pay any costs in the suit as if he were the plaintiff," has been omitted.

The second para. of s. 440, was added by s. 53-A of Act VIII of 1890, but that section has been repealed by the present Code, and the provisions contained in ss 53, 53-A, 53-B 53-C, 53-D, and 53-E, by which ss 440, 443, 446, 461 and 464 of the old Code were amended, have been now incorporated in the present Code in an amended form.

Minor.—S 3 of the Indian Majority Act (IX of 1875) enacts that every person domiciled in British India who has not completed the age of 18 years is in law deemed a minor; but a minor of whose person or property a guardian has been appointed by the Court of Justice or whose property is under the superintendence of a Court of Wards shall attain his majority on completing the age of 21 years

The age of majority of a European British subject not domiciled in British India is 21 years —Rohilkhand and Kumaon Bank v. Row, 7 A 490

When a person, who by his father's will is made a guardian of his minor brother, and obtains probate of the will, such a guardian is not one "appointed by a Court of Justice" within the meaning of s 3 of the Majority Act (IX of 1875), and the minor attains majority on his completing the age of 18 years —Jogesh Chunder v. Umatara, 2 C. L R 577

The appointment of a guardian ad litem is sufficient to make the minor party subject to s. 3, Act IX of 1875, and to constitute his period of majority at 21, at any rate so far as relates to the property in suit, notwithstanding that such minor would, but for such appointment, have attained majority at 18 —Suttya Ghosal v. Suttyanund, 1 C. 388

The intention of the Legislature to be gathered from s. 3 of the Majority Act (IX of 1875) would appear to be to extend minority to 21 years of age in cases where at the time the minor reaches the age of 18, his person or property is in the hands of a guardian.—Yeknath v. Warubai, 13 B 285

When a guardian has once been appointed to a minor under the provisions of Act XL of 1858 or Act VIII of 1890, the disability of infancy will last till the age of 21 whether the original guardian continue to act or not—

Rudra Prokash v Bhola Nath, 12 C. 612: Joyram v. Mahadeb, 13 C. W. N. 643; Guardhan Das v. Harivalubh Das, 21 B 281; Sadho Lal v. Murlidhar, 29 A. 672· 4 A. L. J. 597; Khawahish Ali v. Surju Pershad, 3 A. 598. But see, Birj Mohan Lall v. Rudra Prokash, 17 C. 944. But where the order of appointment is subsequently set aside, the period of minority does not extend to 21 years.—Nagardas v. Anandrao, 31 B. 590: 9 Bom. L. R. 495.

When an order is passed appointing a person to be guardian of a minor, the minor becomes a ward of the Court, even though no certificate be taken out by the person so appointed, and the period of this minority is extended to 21 years —Girish Chunder v. Abdul Selam, 14 C 55 (8 C. 714, and 9 C. 901 dissented from; 8 C 967 followed). See, Shivram Konda v. Krishnabai, 31 Bom. 80. 8 Bom. L. R. 897.

The words " any other person who has not completed the age of 18 years " in s 3 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), read with s. 3 of the Majority Act (IX of 1875), mean any other person not domiciled in British India Section 3 of Act V of 1881 therefore fixes the limit of the period of disability for the purpose of the Act, not only for persons domiciled in British India, but any other persons whether they be aliens or not.—In the goods of Sew Narain, 21 C. 911

Evidence of Minority.—The minority should be decided on positive evidence, and not merely on the appearance of the alleged minor.—Khetter Mohun v. Ramessur, W. R. (1864) 301, Kalee Halder v. Sree Ram, W. R (1864) 830

Certificate of guardianship is not evidence of minority when the question of minority is in issue —Gunjra Kuar v. Ablakh Pande, 18 A. 478; and Satis Chunder v Mohendro Lal, 17 C 849 Followed in Hem Chundra v. Bhobo Prosad, 2 C. L J 69-n.

In a suit to set aside a decree on the ground of minority, the plaintiff relied upon a horoscope to prove his age Held, that the horoscope was not admissible under s 32 (b) of the Evidence Act.—Satis Chunder v. Mohendro Lall, 17 C. 849, and Ram Narrain v. Monee Bibee, 9 C. 613. These cases have been distinguished in Goundan v. Goundan, 17 M 134, where a horsoscope which had been a public record from ante litem motam was admitted in evidence as an " Admission " under sections 17 and 18 of the Evidence Act, to prove the plaintiff's age.

An entry in a school register as to the age of a boy is not admissible in evidence to prove the age.—Amrita Lal v Jatindra Nath, 32 C. 165 (168).

Object of having Next Friend or Guardian Ad Litem.—As a minor is considered incapable of prosecuting or defending a suit himself, it is necessary that his interests in the suit should be watched by an adult person. Such person is, in the case of a minor plaintiff, called his next friend, and in the case of a minor defendant, his guardian ad litem. But it must be remembered however that neither the next friend nor the guardian ad litem is a party to the suit.—Rupchand v. Dosadha, 30 A. 55.

Representation of Minors in Suits.—Where a suit was brought by a minor without a next friend, and the objection was not taken until the case came on in appeal, when the plaintiff had attained majority. Held, th the irregularity was waived.—Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127

Where a suit was brought by a manager appointed by the Court Wards, on behalf of an infant who had a right to sue, an objection to t manager's authority was disallowed as merely technical —Hardi Narain Rudra Prokash, 10 C. 627, P. C.

Where the manager of the estate of a minor authorized the plaint in order to save limitation to institute a suit on behalf of the Court Wards, which refused afterwards to sanction the proceeding with the su Held, that the Judge rightly ordered that the suit be rejected —Bisesw v Shosi Sikareswar, 17 C. 688, P. C.

Where a suit was filed on behalf of two minors by a person who w not the certificated guardian of the minors, there being a guardian du appointed by a competent Court in existence at the time, it was held th the suit was wrongly brought, having regard to this rule and that the pla should have been returned for amendment —Sham Krishna v. Ram Di 20 A 162 (13 C 189 referred to).

The rule of Mahomedan law, that an uncle cannot be the guardian o the property of a minor, does not prevent an uncle representing his infan nephew, under the Code of Civil Procedure as next friend in a suit— Abdulbari v Rash Behari, 6 C. L R. 413.

A minor may sue for possession in the Mamlatdar's Court by his nex friend although the Mamlatdar's Courts Act (III of 1876) makes no pro vision for such a suit —Dattatraya Keshab v. Vaman Govind, 21 B 8

A minor is not bound by the decree passed in a suit in which he wa not properly represented as required by section 2 of the Bombay Minor Act (XX of 1864).—Vishnu Keshav v. Ram Chandra, 11 B. 130 See also, Guru Churn v Kali Kissen, 11 C. 402, and Sham Lal v Ghasit 23 A. 459

The eldest male member of a joint Mitakshara family, who is of fu age, and who may have power to manage the estate, is not the guardia of the minor co-proprietors for the purpose of defending a suit brough against the minors, unless he has obtained a certificate under Act XL o 1858, s. 3.—Durga Pershad v. Kesho Pershad, 8 C. 656, P. C ; 11 C. L R 210, P C., and Sham Lal v. Ghasita, 23 A 459. But see, Palmakar v Mahadev, 10 B. 21.

Defendant improperly impleaded as a minor—No objection raised b the defendant during suit. Held, that it was not competent to the defend ant to sue subsequently for a declaration that decree was not bindin upon him, he is estopped from so doing —Gangaram v. Mihire Lal, 29 A 416.

Where a guardian had not obtained a certificate under the Bombay Minors Act (XX of 1864), the minor was held to be not properly represent ed in a suit in which a decree had been obtained against the guardian purporting to represent the minor —Daji Himat v. Dhirajram, 12 B 18

No judgment or order passed in a suit, to which a minor, subject to

ing majority, unless he is represented in the suit by some person who has taken out a certificate, or has obtained the permission of the Court to sue or defend on his behalf without a certificate.—Mrina Moyi v. Jogodishuri, 5 C. 450: 5 C. L. R. 361.

Suit on Behalf of a Person Alleged to be, but Not in Fact, a Minor.—Where in a suit instituted, on behalf of a person alleged to be a minor, through his next friend, it is found that the plaintiff was not in fact a minor at the date of the institution of the suit, the suit should not be dismissed but the plaint should be returned for amendment.—Taqui Jan v. Obaidullah, 21 C. 866; Shamuga v. Narayana, 40 M. 743: 41 I. C. 510. A contrary view was taken by the Allahabad High Court, in Sheonama v. Bharat Singh, 20 A. 90; Ruhul Amin v. Shankar Lal, 45 A. 701: 77 I. C. 30: A. I. R. 1924 All. 54, where it was held that, in such circumstances, the suit should be dismissed.

Where in a suit it was through bona fide belief that the plaintiff was described as a minor and was represented by his mother as his next friend, held, that inasmuch as the suit was instituted by the right person, thoug[illegible] 'o act as his next friend, the suit was [illegible] 100 I. C. 469: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 477; [illegible] 366. But see, 20 A. 9 where a contrary view was taken.

Decree Against a Major, Treating him as a Minor.—A decree obtained against a person treating him as a minor, while in reality he was a major at the date thereof, is not a nullity, consequently, a sale in execution of a decree cannot be set aside on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction to pass the decree.—Seshagiri v. Hanumantha, 39 M. 1031.

Sufficiency of Representation and Frame of Suits.—Where in a suit the plaint was headed "S. B., widow of the late C. B., mother and guardian on behalf of the minors, S. and K., plaintiff." Held, that the plaint not having been framed in accordance with the provisions of this rule, proceedings were bad in law.—Shonai Bewa v. Monoram Mundul, 11 C. L. R. 15.

Where a suit is brought in violation of this rule or of the provisions of Act XL of 1858, the proper course for a Court to pursue is to return the plaint in order that the error may be rectified.—Russick Das v. Preonath, 10 C. 102: 12 C. L. R. 405.

Where a suit against minors was improperly framed, the proceedings in the suit were held null and void, and the suit was dismissed as against the minors.—Guru Churn v. Kali Kissen, 11 C. 402. See also, Mongola Dossee v. Saroda Dossee, 12 B. Where, on a construction of the plaint, it is found that the minor is the real plaintiff, the mere fact of the improper description of the minor is not ground for setting aside the decree, but the decree must be taken to be in favour of the minor as if the suit had been properly framed.—Alim Buksh v. Jhalo Bibi, 12 C. 48; Bhaba Pershad v. Secretary of State, 14 C. 169; Jogi Singh v. Kunj Behari, 11 C. 509: Kedar

Prosanno v Protap Chunder, 20 C. 11; Suresh Chunder v. Jugut Chunder, 14 C 204 But see, Ganga Prasad v Umbica Churn, 14 C 754

Estoppel.—A minor, who, representing himself to be a major and competent to manage his affairs, collects rents and gives receipt therefor, is estopped by his conduct from recovering again the money once paid to him, by instituting a suit through guardian —Ram Rutun v. Shew Nandun, 29 C 126 6 C W N 132. Similarly, a minor, who, representing himself to be of full age, sells certain property and executes a registered deed of sale, is estopped from seeking to have the sale set aside on the ground of his minority at the time of the sale.—Ganesh v Bapu, 21 B 198. A Court of equity will deprive a fraudulent minor of the benefit of the plea of infancy, but one who invokes the aid of the Court, must prove not only that the minor practised a fraud on him, but also that he was deceived into action by such fraud.—Brohmo Dutt v Dharmo Das, 26 C. 381

Applicability of Order XXXII to Execution Proceedings.—The provisions of Or XXXII, C. P Code, relating to "suits by or against minors" have no direct application in proceedings in execution after the rights of the parties have merged in a good and valid decree The lis in respect of which it is essential that a minor defendant should be represented by a duly appointed guardian is at an end after the decree is passed In determining whether a minor was sufficiently represented in the execution proceedings, Courts are at liberty to look at the substance of the transaction; Fani Bhusan v. Surendra Nath, 35 C L. J. 9

Liability of Next Friend for Costs of the Suit.—Where a suit brought by a minor through his next friend is dismissed and the Court finds that the suit was not for the benefit of the minor, the Court may direct the next friend to pay the costs personally.—Girbala v. Chandrakant, 11 C 213. But in such a case if the Court finds that there were reasonable grounds for instituting the suit and the next friend has acted in good faith the Court will not make the next friend liable for costs but direct its realisation out of the minor's estate.—Devkabai v. Jefferson, 10 B. 248

Where suit is instituted without next friend, plaint to be taken off the file.

2. Where a suit is instituted by or on behalf of a minor without a next friend, the defendant may apply to have the plaint taken off the file, with costs to be paid by the pleader or other person by whom it was presented.

(2) Notice of such application shall be given to such person, and the Court, after hearing his objections (if any), may make such order in the matter as it thinks fit. [S. 442]

COMMENTARY.

This section corresponds to s. 442, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the words "where a suit is instituted" for the words "if a plaint be filed" which occurred in the beginning of the old section.

Taking the Plaint Off the File.—This rule refers to a case where the plaint on the face of it appears to have been filed by a person who was a minor.—Béni Ram v. Ram Lal, 13 C. 189 (relied on in 44 M. L. J. 515); Rattonbai v. Chabildas, 13 B. 27.

Where the plaintiff who was a minor brought a suit without a next friend and his minority was not apparent on the face of the record but is proved on the trial of an issue in the suit itself, the Court ought not to dismiss the suit at once but should allow a reasonable time for a next friend to come on the record and go on with the suit and it is only if no one comes forward that it should reject the plaint (13 C. 189 relied on). It is no doubt open to the minor on attaining majority to drop the suit as not properly instituted but he is not bound to do so, he could affirm the previous proceeding and continue the suit; Ranchan v. Manakkal, 44 M. L. J. 515 74 I. C. 309 A. I. R. 1925 Mad 553.

The Courts, as a rule, only strike the plaint off the file where it appears, on the face of the plaint, that it was filed by a person who was a minor, or when it is proved that it was filed with the knowledge that the plaintiff was a minor, and with the intention of deceiving the Court, and evading the payment of costs in case the plaintiff fails in the claim. When the fact of minority is a bona fide question of evidence, and the defendant's allegation is found correct, then the usual course is to suspend all proceedings, and to allow sufficient time to enable the minor to have himself properly represented by a next friend.—Rotonbai v. Chabildas, 13 B. 7; Mt. Durga Devi v. Gur Narain, 69 I. C 401.

Where a minor plaintiff sued without next friend and the defendant had not appeared but the irregularity was apparent on the examination of the plaintiff; held, that it was the duty of the Judge to take notice of the disregard of the provisions of Or. XXXII, r 1 and to refuse to proceed farther with the case so illegally commenced; Maung San v. Maung Nyi, 3 R. 239: 89 I. C. 870: A I R 1925 Rang. 325. If the defendant appears and does not object, the Court should not reject the plaint but would allow the plaintiff time to get himself properly represented; Ali Ahmad v. Said Mian, 4 L. 390; 75 I. C. 1028: A. I. R. 1924 Lah 188

Costs to be Paid by the Pleader, etc.—Where the plaint in a suit was not framed in accordance with the provisions of s. 440, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 1), the High Court, on special appeal, directed that the pleaders of the original and of the lower Appellate Court, should be called upon to show cause why they should not be ordered to pay the costs of the suit and the appeal.—Shonai Bewa v. Monoram, 11 C. L. R 15.

When a suit is instituted by a minor without a next friend, the pleader or any other person presenting the plaint is liable for costs but the Court should not make a minor's estate liable for costs.—Ami Chand v. Collector of Solapur, 13 B. 234.

Decree in Suit Instituted by Minor Without Next Friend.—Where, in a suit instituted by a minor without next friend, no objection as to the plaintiff's minority is taken by the defendant and a decree is passed, the defendant will be deemed to have waived his objection. The institution of a suit by a minor without a next friend is not a nullity but is merely an irregularity which can be waived by the conduct of the defendant; Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127

Guardian for the suit to be appointed by Court for minor defendant.

3. (1) Where the defendant is a minor, the Court on being satisfied of the fact of his minority, shall appoint a proper person to be guardian for the suit for such minor. [S. 443.]

(2) An order for the appointment of a guardian for the suit may be obtained upon application in the name and on behalf of the minor or by the plaintiff.

(3) Such application shall be supported by an affidavit verifying the fact that the proposed guardian has no interest in the matters in controversy in the suit adverse to that of the minor and that he is a fit person to be so appointed. [S. 456. para. 1.]

(4) No order shall be made on any application under this rule except upon notice to the minor and to any guardian of the minor appointed or declared by an authority competent in that behalf, or, where there is no such guardian, upon notice to the father or other natural guardian of the minor, or, where there is no father or other natural guardian, to the person in whose care the minor is, and after hearing an objection which may be urged on behalf of any person served with notice under this sub-rule. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para 1 of s 443, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The last sentence of para 1, and the whole of para. 2 of the old section have been omitted.

Sub-rules (2) and (3) correspond to para 1 of s 456, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes.

Sub-rule (4) is new. This rule has been inserted to protect the interests of the minor. No order under this rule shall be made unless some one interested in the welfare of the minor is served with notice. It seems to have been framed adopting the principle of 11 C. 204, noted below

"This is based on section 443. The Committee think it necessary to ensure that notice should reach one, interested in the minor's welfare, and this rule aims at securing this result. The form of application and notice in conformity with this sub-rule will be inserted in the Schedule of Forms"—See the Report of Special Committee.

Duty of Court to Appoint Guardian Ad Litem.—It is the duty of the Court to appoint a guardian ad litem for a minor defendant under

Or XXXII, r 3, C. P. Code. No person can be appointed guardian without his consent At the same time where the Court has given sanction and approval for the appearance of a person as guardian, the absence of formal order of appointment is not always fatal to the proceedings. A mere irregularity in the appointment of a guardian ad litem will not render the decree passed against the minor null and void, unless it is proved that the minor's interests have suffered thereby At the same time where no notice or summons is served on the guardian of the minor, and no order was made appointing a guardian for the minor, and there was no appearance by the so-called guardian at any stage of the proceedings, a decree passed against the minor is not binding on him -Ram Chattra Kumari v Panda Radha Mohan, 3 Pat. L T 451· 66 I C 137 (26 C. L J 258, 37 A 179, 20 C L. J 469, 2 P L T 617 relied on) It is the duty of the Judge himself to decide who is the proper person to be appointed as guardian ad litem, Ram Chandra v Jati Prasad, 29 A 675.

Guardian Ad Litem.—Appointment of guardian ad litem other than the certificated guardian is a mere irregularity and would not of itself vitiate either the decree passed or a sale consequent upon such a decree. Jogeshwar Narain v. Lala Moorlidhar, 7 C. L. J. 270, Dammar Singh v. Pirbhu Singh, 29 A 290; Midnapur Zemindary Co v Gobindo, 8 C. L. J 31 and 31 A 7.

When the Court is satisfied of the fact of the defendant's minority, it should follow the procedure laid down in this rule instead of dismissing the suit.—Rohilkhand and Kumaon Bank v. Row, 7 A 490.

Where no administrator of the estate of a minor is appointed under Act XX of 1864, there is no objection to the appointment of a guardian ad litem for the purpose of defending a suit against a minor.—Jadow Mulji v. Chhagan Raichand, 5 B 306

Where a guardian ad litem has once been appointed, his appointment enures the whole of the lis in the course of which it has been made, including proceedings in execution and appeal —Jwala Dei v. Pirbhu, 14 A. 35 See also, Venkata v. Alakara Jamba, 22 M. 187, where it has been held that the appointment of a guardian ad litem in a Court of first instance ensures not only for the term of the proceeding in that Court, but also for purposes of appeal, and Krishna Pershad v. Gosta Behari, 5 C. L. J. 434; Shamboo v. Kanhaya, 44 A. 619: 20 A. L J. 599; Bhagelu v. Dharma, 45 A. 623: 21 A. L. J. 591

A guardian ad litem is not a party to a suit or appeal. He is merely named in the record as the person appointed by the Court to look afte the interest of the minor. So, where a guardian ad litem of a defendant-respondent is not made a party to an appeal filed by the plaintiff, until after the period of limitation for filing such appeal has expired, the appeal is not for this reason time-barred; Rup Chand v. Dasodha, 30 A. 55; Khem Karam v Hardyal, 4 A. 37.

In a suit by a husband for divorce under the Parsi Marriage Act (XV of 1865), a guardian ad litem must be appointed, if the defendant be under 21 years.—Sorabji Cowasji v Bachoo Bai, 18 B. 366.

When Defendant Pleads Minority.—When minority is pleaded as a defence to an action, a guardian should be appointed for the defendant, and a preliminary issue should be framed and tried as to whether defendant is or is not a minor. If the defendant is found to be a minor, a guardian ad litem should be appointed for him; but if he is found to be a major, the guardian appointed for the enquiry should cease to act and then he may conduct his own case.—Kasi Dass v. Kassim Sait, 16 M 344. See also, Purno v. Maharaja of Burdwan, 18 C. L. J. 18: 17 C W. N. 549 Similarly if a dispute arises as to whether a minor is the legal representative of a deceased party, the Court should appoint a guardian ad litem and decide the matter; Ruckmani v. Veerasami, 47 M L J 370· 80 I. C 942· A I R. 1924 Mad. 813.

If there is any doubt as to the minority of the defendant, that question ought to be made an issue in the case and the Court ought to decide whether it is a case in which a guardian ought to be appointed It is not sufficient for the Court by just looking at the defendant to come to a conclusion that he is not a minor; Ram Gobind v. Sital, 96 I. C 273 A. I. R 1926 Pat. 489.

Estoppel.—When a person was sued as a minor by his guardian ad litem, and it appeared that he was in fact a major at the date of the suit, and that he knowingly allowed the guardian ad litem to conduct the defence on his behalf Held that he was bound by the decree passed in the suit, and cannot afterwards sue to set aside the decree and the sale thereunder —Ramachari v Durai Sami, 21 M. 167.

Where No Guardian Ad Litem Appointed.—Where there is no appointment of a guardian ad litem of a minor defendant in the manner prescribed by this rule and a decree is passed against him, the decree is a nullity and it cannot be enforced against him —Bhura Mal v Har Kishan, 24 A 383, F B. (14 C. 204 referred to). Dakeshwar Prosad v. Rewat, 24 C 25; Hanuman v Muhammad, 28 A. 137; Daji v. Dhirajram, 12 B 18; Rasihdunnissa v Muhammad 36 I. A. 168; Balkissen v. Tapesur, 17 C. W N 219, Lala Rampirit v. Thakursaran, (1921) Pat 335. 2 Pat L. T. 617, Pande Satadeo v Ramayan, 4 Pat L. T. 147: 2 Pat. 335· 71 I. C. 705; Purna v Bijoy, 17 C. W. N. 549: Narendra v. Jogendra, 17 C W N 537, Surendra v Aghore, 25 C. W. N. 625; Umapati v. Sheikh Masitulla, 37 C L. J. 496· 72 I. C. 475: A I. R. 23 Cal. 692.

Where one of the defendants in a suit for a declaration of a right of way is a minor, and he is not represented by a guardian, the suit ought to be dismissed. No effective decree can be made in the absence of one of the persons jointly interested in the serveint tenement; Sadhu Charan v. Indra Mohan, 64 I C. 90 (25 C. W. N. 249 folld.).

Formal Order for Appointment Not Absolutely Necessary.—Under this rules the Court is bound, after satisfying itself to the fact of minority, to appoint a proper person to act on behalf of a minor in the conduct of a suit; and this rule should be strictly followed. But where the Court by its action has given its sanction to the appearance of a person as such a guardian, the absence of a formal order of appointment is not necessarily fatal to the proceedings.—Walam v. Banke Bihari, 30 C. 1021: 7 C W. N. 774, P. C. (14 C. 204 and 16 C. 40, P. C., approved). Partly

Though the matter of the appointment of a guardian ad litem is left to the discretion of the Court, it is always desirable that the appointment at the instance of the plaintiff should not be made, unless the minor or his friends and relatives, in whose care he may be, failed to move the Court for that purpose within a reasonable time after receiving notice of the institution of the suit.—Suresh Chunder v Jugut Cunder, 14 C. 204

Procedure in Appointing Guardian Ad Litem Illegal—Effect.—Where a Court after knowing of the existence and address of the guardian of the minor defendant in a suit, did not order fresh notice to the guardian but made the head clerk of the Court, the guardian of the minors and proceeded with the suit in consequence of which there was not proper defence to the plaintiff's suit, held, that the decree the execution and sale which followed it were illegal and not binding on the minor and that the Court had inherent power to set aside the decree and the execution sale after impleading the auction purchaser as a party, Jambu Ammal v. Minor Natarajam, 31 M. L. T. 215 (H. C.)

Such Application shall be Supported by an Affidavit.—The absence of an affidavit such as is required under r 3, cl. (3) is not sufficient to render the proceedings illegal and void as against the minor on the ground that he was not properly represented —Munnoo v. Gholam, 32 A. 287 P. C.; Imamdin v Puranchand, 55 I. C. 833; Ramaswami v. Doraiswami, 44 M. L. J. 299.

Service of Summons.—There are no special provisions as to service of summons on infants. Where the defendant is a minor, the summons should be served upon him in the ordinary way. —Jatindra Mohan v. Srinath, 26 C. 267: 2 C. W. N. 261; Abdul v. Eggar, 35 C. 182, 184; Sures Chunder v. Jugut Chunder, 14 C. 204, 215. But under Or. XXXII, r 5, all notices of application and other process in a suit should be served on the guardian ad litem.

Notice to Minor and his Guardian.—Where the appointment of Court guardian to a minor party is proposed, notice must always go to the natural guardian of the minor or the person with whom he lives—Nachiappa v. Chinniap, 4 L. W. 362: 36 I. C. 791.

An order appointing a guardian ad litem of a minor defendant without giving notice to the minor as required by Or. XXXII, r. 3 (4) is without jurisdiction and is liable to be set aside; Rajendra Prasad v. Probodh, 2 Pat. L. T. 116: 6 Pat. L. J. 82; Rani Chattra Kumari v. Panda Radha Mohan, 66 I. C. 187: 3 Pat. L. T. 451.

Or. XXXII, r. 3 (4) applies only to cases where an application is made for the appointment of a guardian in the name of or on behalf of the minor or the plaintiff but when on the death, retirement or removal of a guardian, another guardian is appointed in his place, no such notice is necessary; Sri Thakur Radha Krishna v. Babu Lakshmi Narayan, 1 Pat. L. R. 86: 2 P. 273: 4 Pat. L. T. 329: 71 I. C. 341; Phulli v. Debi Pershad, 1923 Lah. 575: 75 I. C. 449.

No irregularity by way of an omission to send a notice as required by Or. XXXII, r. 3 (4) will operate to render void the presumed representation of the minor in a suit by a guardian ad litem appointed for him, unless such an omission has in fact prejudiced his defence; Kidambi Tirumala Charyulu v. Ammisetti, 46 M. L. J. 363.

4. (1) Any person who is of sound mind and has attained majority may act as next friend of a minor or as his guardian for the suit;

Who may act as next friend or be appointed guardian for the suit.

[Ss. 445 and 457.]

Provided that the interest of such person is not adverse to that of the minor and that he is not, in the case of a next friend, a defendant, or, in the case of a guardian for the suit, a plaintiff.

(2) Where a minor has a guardian appointed or declared by competent authority, no person other than such guardian shall act as the next friend of the minor or be appointed his guardian for the suit unless the Court considers, for reasons to be recorded, that it is for the minor's welfare that another person be permitted to act or be appointed as the case may be. [Ss. 440 and 443.]

(3) No person shall without his consent be appointed guardian to the suit. [New.]

(4) Where there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit, the Court may appoint any of its officers to be such guardian, and may direct that the costs to be incurred by such officer in the performance of his duties as such guardian shall be borne either by the parties or by any one or more of the parties to the suit, or out of any fund in Court in which the minor is interested, and may give directions for the repayment or allowance of such costs as justice and the circumstances of the case may require. [S. 456, para. 2.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to ss. 445 and 457 of the C. P. Code, 1882 The provisions of those two sections have been amalgamated in this sub-rule with some alterations and omissions. The words "nor a married woman can be so appointed," which occurred in the concluding part of s 457 of the old Code, have been omitted, the omission seems to have been made adopting the views in 17 C. 488, F B. and 29 M. 58, and to set at rest the conflicting rulings on the point. The cases (29 A. 28, 6 C. L. J 36; 11 C. W. N 176-n) in which a contrary view was taken have been overridden by the above omission. Under the present Code, a married woman may be next friend and may also be appointed as guardian ad litem

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of ss 440 and 443, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The provisions of those two paras. have been amalgamated in this sub-rule with some modifications.

Sub-rule (3) is new. It is based on the principles laid down in 7 C. 242: 9 C. L R 13 and in 5 B 306.

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to para 2 of section 456, with some modifications.

Construction and Scope of Rule.—Or. XXXII, r. 4 and other rules as to the appointment of guardian must be read with the provisions of r. 3 which provides for applications for appointment of guardians —Natchiappa v. Chinniah, 4 L W. 362: 36 I. C. 794.

Who may be Next Friend or Guardian Ad Litem.—If in a suit the personal interest of the next friend of a minor conflicts with his duty towards the minor, he is not competent to act as his next friend unless he shows uberrima fides In such a case the minor is not properly represented and so the decree in the suit is not binding on him.—Bejoy Singh v. Mathuriya Debya, 56 I. C. 97.

A person who is to succeed to the property of minor on his death has an interest adverse to the minors; and, if he is not a blood relation of the minor, he is not fit to be a guardian of the minor's person, although appointed by the will of the minor's father to be guardian of both the person and property.—Sami Raw v Elaianatha Raw, 16 M. L J. 357.

On the re-marriage of a Hindu widow if neither she nor any other person has been specially constituted by the will of the deceased husband the guardian of the child, a proper male relative of the deceased husband, should ordinarily be appointed guardian of such child in preference to his re-married mother.—Khusali v. Rani, 4 A. 195.

The rule of Mahomedan law, that an uncle cannot be the guardian of the property of a minor, does not prevent an uncle from representing his infant nephew under the C. P. Code as next friend in a suit.—Abdul Bari v. Rash Behari, 6 C. R 413.

A married woman may act as the next friend of an infant plaintiff.—Asiru Bibi v. Sharip Mondal, 17 C. 488, F. B (11 C. 733 overruled)

Guardian Ad Litem with Adverse Interest—Decree If Binding on Minor.—A minor defendant represented in a suit by a guardian ad litem whose interest is adverse to that of the minor, is not represented at all, and any decree passed in the suit is a nullity so far as the minor is concerned, Sellapa Goundan v. Masa Naiken, 47 M 79: 76 I. C 1018 A I R. 1924 Mad 297 A mere defect in following the rule as to representation of minors is not necessarily fatal to the proceedings so as to render void a decree against the minor; Kuppusami v. Kamalammal, 42 M. 842, 39 M L J 375, Ramaswami v. Doraiswami, 44 M L J 20 73 I C 409 A I R 1923 Mad 465; Venkata Chalam v. Paramasivam 52 M L J 709 A I R 1927 Mad. 668

Where in a suit to enforce a mortgage executed by the manager of a joint Hindu family he is himself appointed guardian ad litem of the minor members impleaded in the suit, and a decree is passed on confession of judgment, the decree is a nullity as against the minors for the manager was not a proper person to be appointed as a guardian; Murlidhar v. Pitambar Lal, 44 A 525 20 A L J. 320: 66 I. C. 372

"Guardian appointed or declared by competent authority."—S 47 of the Indian Succession Act not being applicable to Hindus, a Hindu father had no statutory power to appoint a guardian to his son after his death The words "competent authority" in this rule do not include the case of a Hindu father purporting to appoint a guardian under his will Or XXXII rr 1 and 4 do not apply to all guardians, as they cannot apply to natural guardians —Budhi Lal v. Moraji, 31 B. 413: 9 Bom L R 553 See, however, Shahu v Habija, 17 B 560, and In the matter of Srish Chandra Singh, 21 C. 206. In Midnapore Zemindari Co., Ltd v Gobinda Mahato, 8 C L J 31, and in Dammar Singh v. Pirbhu Singh 21 A 290 4 A L J 155, it has been held that where the Court acts in contravention of the provisions of rule 4 and overlooking the claims of the certificated guardian appoints some body else guardian of the minor it is a mere irregularity and the decree and sale thereunder is not void But it was held in Pyari Bhimaji v. Hussain Saheb, 39 M. L J. 29 (following 31 A 572 and 32 C. 296), that a decree passed against a minor defendant is illegal and liable to be set aside where in spite of the fact that he had already a court guardian validly appointed for him the Court appointed another person as his guardian ad litem and passed the decree See also, Sridhar Rao v Ramlal, 31 A. 7, and Jageshwar Narain v Jeta Mooralidhar, 7 C L J 270; Bhimaji v. Rajabhai Sahib, 50 I. C. 842

The omission to record reasons under Or. XXXII, r. 4 (2) for the appointment of a Court guardian is only an irregularity and will not by itself vitiate the decree if the minor is in fact properly represented by a guardian appointed by Court Where, however, the appointment of a guardian is secured by fraud and by false statements and concealment of material particulars, the minor is not bound by the decree passed in the suit or by the sale held in execution of the decree (37 A. 179 followed) Raichan v Manakkal, 44 M. L. J. 515: 74 I C. 309: A. I R 1923 Mad 553.

"Another person be permitted to act."—It is not necessary that the permission should be express.—Sridhar Rao v. Ramlal, 31 A. 7.

No Person can be Appointed Next Friend or Guardian Without his Consent.—No person can be appointed a guardian ad litem without his express consent. The question whether the person so appointed consented to act will always be one of importance on the merits.—Radhasyam v Rangasundari, 24 C. W. N. 541. Where the mother of an infant is appointed guardian ad litem without her consent the decree obtained in the suit is liable to be set aside on appeal.—Narendra v Jogendra, 19 C W. N. 537 20 C L J 469. Umapati v Shaikh Moseetullah, 72 I C. 475: 37 C. L J. 496; Shroof Sahib v Ragunatha Sivaji, 18 M. L T. 401 (17 C W N 219, 35 A. 487 followed). A guardian who has not consented to act as such, is no guardian at all, and the decree is invalid irrespective of any question of prejudice, because the minor has not been represented in the suit, Narendra v Jogendra, 19 C. W N 537, Surendra v Aghore, 25 C W N 525. 62 I C. 464, Shaikh Sujjad v Sakai Rai, 2 Pat. 7. A I R 1922 Pat 448, Jagadis v Harihar, 40 C. L J. 39: 78 I. C. 219: A. I. R 1924 Cal 1042; Sriramulu v Lakshminarayana, 47 M. 783: A I R. 1925 Mad 30

Where the proposed guardian of a minor does not signify his consent, the Court should not, in contravention of the express direction of Or. XXXII, r 4 (3), C. P Code, appoint him as guardian for the suit. When a person has been appointed guardian without his consent, the infant is not represented and a decree made in a suit so constituted has no binding effect (32 C 296). The provision as to the consent of the person proposed to be appointed guardian of the suit is mandatory and imperative Or XXXIV, r 4 (3) controls both sub-rule (1) and (2) and place a material restriction upon the power which the Court may exercise thereunder. Or XXXII, r 4 (3) is applicable as well, to cases under sub-rule (1) as to cases under sub-rule (2). No person who is competent to act as guardian of an infant either under sub-rule (1) or under sub-rule (2) shall be appointed guardian of the suit without his consent; Annada Prasad v Upendra Nath, 34 C L J 293 26 C W N 781 68 I. C 18.

The consent referred to in this rule may be either express or implied. —Baij Nath v. Radharaman Prasad, 43 I. C 563; Chatter Singh v. Tej Singh, 43 A 104 18 A. L. J 956; Jawahar Singh v Sewa Singh, 5 Lah L. I R 1927 Mad. 668 Consent being a question of fact, evidence as to consent may be indirect and circumstantial, or it may be proved by conduct; Sriramulu v. Lakshminarayana, 47 M 783 83 I C 312 A I R 1925 Mad 30 F B, Jawahar Singh v Sawa Singh, 5 Lah L J 487 79 I C 572 A I R. 1924 Lah 97.

Under Or I, rr 8, 10, 11 no person can be added as a plaintiff unless he has previously consented thereto.—Uma Sundari v Ramji Haldar, 7 C. 242: 9 C L R 13

In the absence of a provision in the old C P. Code of 1882, corresponding to Or. XXXII, r. 4 (3) of the present Code, where a certificated guardian was proposed for appointment as guardian ad litem, the Court might unless he declined the appointment, presume his consent.—Sarat Chandra v. Bibhabati, 34 C. L. J. 302; Thakur Tyishwar v. Lakhan Prasad, 4 Pat. L. T 127. 1 Pat. L. R. 59: (1923) Pat. 68

The contravention of the provisions of Or. XXXII, r. 4 (3), does not deprive the Court of its jurisdiction to decide the case.—Pande Sidha Narain v. Ramayan Tewari, 4 Pat. L. T. 147: 2 Pat. 335

Neither Act XX of 1864 nor the C. P. Code, empowers any Court to appoint a person against his will to be a next friend, guardian ad litem or guardian of the person of a minor.—Jadav Mulji v. Chhaganlal Chand, 5 B 306.

Wishes of Minor—Whether should be Considered.—In appointing a guardian ad litem for a minor defendant, it is desirable if possible, that the Court should consider the wishes of the minor as to the person who should be appointed, Rajendra Prasad v. Probadh, 2 Pat. L. T. 116 Pat. L. T. 52, Sori Thakur Radha Krishna v. Babu Lakshmi Narain 1 Pat. L. R. 86: 4 Pat. L. T. 329: 2 Pat. 273

" Where there is no other person fit and willing to act."—Where the Court appointed a Court guardian without funds, to represent a minor defendant when there was a natural guardian available, and ordered the minor to deposit all the costs of the plaintiff before his application to set aside the ex parte decree passed against him could be considered, held that the order was bad and must be set aside; Rajamanicka v. Venkataramana, (1926) M. W. N. 8 93 I. C. 84: A. I. R. 1926 Mad 970

Court Can Appoint Any of Its Officers Guardian Ad Litem.—An officer of the Court who has been appointed guardian ad litem should not be paid for his trouble.—Keralcoose v. Serle, 3 M. I. A. 329. But where the Court appoints an officer of the Court as guardian ad litem of the minor defendant, it must require the party who gets him appointed, to make a deposit for the purpose of defending the case; Raja Manicka v. Venkataramana, (1926) M. W. N. 8: 93 I. C. 84: A. I. R. 1926 Mad 950; Mohan Lal v. Ganga Prasad, 45 A. 395. 71 I. C. 975: A. I. R. 1923 All 298

A Court can appoint an officer of Court as guardian, only when there is no other person willing to act as guardian.—Nachiappa Chetty v. Chinniah Ambalam, 4 L. W. 362: 36 I. C. 794 (37 A. 179 followed)

The Court has power to relieve the nazir of his position as a guardian when the nazir has no funds for the purpose of conducting adequately the defence of the minor.—Gopi Lal v. Agarsingji, 28 B. 626.

A Vakil is an officer of the Court for purposes of Or. XXXII, r. (4); Mohan Lal v. Ganga Prasad, 45 A. 395: 71 I. C. 975

Where a clerk of the Court is appointed as a Court Guardian of a minor defendant after his father's expression of unwillingness to act as guardian on an affidavit to the effect that there were no other proper guardian for the minor defendant, a decree obtained against the minor is not bad on the ground of his non-representation if it is not shown that the plaintiff procured the appointment of the Court guardian by collusion and false affidavit, Sri Rajah Dantuluri v. Peda Venkata, 46 M. L. J. ...

In a suit against several defendants one of whom was an infant, the mother on being proposed as guardian appeared through a pleader and stated that she could not act unless the name was corrected which ...

being done, she did not defend the suit on behalf of the infant. Held, the mother could not be forced to accept the guardianship (15 C L. J 3 followed). If she declined to accept the guardianship for reasons, technical or otherwise, the proper course to follow was to appoint an officer of the Court to conduct the defence on behalf of the infant: Birendra Nath v. Aghorenath, 25 C W N 525. 62 I C 461.

A Sub-Judge who, under this rule appoints the nazir or any other officer of his Court to act as a guardian of a minor plaintiff or defendant in a suit in his Court, has no jurisdiction to hear it, and pass a decree against that officer as guardian ad litem of the minor.—Mohan Iswar v. Haku Rupa, 4 B.638 (4 Bom. 642-note, followed But see, Issur Chunder v Nobo Kristo, 7 C L. R 407; Babaji v. Maruti, 11 Bom. H C R. 182.

There is no power in the Court to order a plaintiff to pay a fee for the purpose of enabling the nazir who has been appointed guardian ad litem, to put himself in communication with the natural guardians and other friends, but the Court may refuse to go on with the suit, if it should be of opinion that the nazir has been unavoidably prevented from making himself acquainted with the case against the minor.—Narayan Das v. Saheb Hussain, 12 B 553.

Whether Or. XXXII, r. 4 Applies to Non-contentious Probate Proceedings.—Or. XXXII, r 4, does not apply to a non-contentious proceeding in Probate But where minors are concerned and citations are issued to them, it is necessary for the protection of their interest for the Court to be satisfied not only that a guardian has been appointed but also that he has consented to accept the appointment and take upon himself the onus that by virtue of the appointment falls upon him on behalf of the minors; Sachindra Narain v Hironmoyee, 59 I C. 435, Radha Shyam v. Rangasundari, 24 C. W. N 541 59 I. C. 664

Leave to Sue or Defend on Behalf of a Minor.—The effect of s 3 of Act XL of 1858, read with Or XXXII, rr. 1 and 4, is that a minor plaintiff must not only always sue by his next friend, but the person representing the minor must either be a certificated guardian, or must obtain the sanction of the Court for the suit to proceed The mere admission of a plaint by the Court does not sufficiently indicate that sanction is accorded—Durga Churn v. Nilmoney, 10 C 134. 13 C L R. 369. Permission granted to sue or defend on behalf of a minor should be formally placed on the record The mere admission of a plaint by the Court does not sufficiently indicate that sanction is accorded—Mrinamoyi v. Jogodishuri, 5 C. 450; 5 C L. R. 361; Ganga Prosad v Umbica Churn, 14 C. 754; Russick Das v Prio Nath, 10 C 102; 12 C. L. R 405 But see, Bhoba Pershad v. Secretary of State, 14 C. 159; Parmeshar Das v. Bela, 2 A. 503; Pirthi Singh v. Sobban Singh, 4 A. 1; Luchmiput v. Amir Alum, 9 C. 176; 12 C. L. R 22, Suresh Chunder v. Jugut Chunder, 14 C. 204; Jogi Singh v. Kunj Behari, 11 C. 509; Newaj v. Maksud Ali, 12 C. 131; Kedar Nath v. Debidin, 4 A. 165; Janki v. Dharam Chand, 4 A. 177; Akhil Chunder v. Tripoora Soondurce, 22 W. R. 525. In all these cases it has been held that a written permission to sue is not absolutely necessary; but the admission of the plaint by the Court sufficiently indicates that sanction has been given.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES OF LAW AS TO THE DISABILITY OF MINORS.

Minor's Right to Sue and the Effect of his Disability.—A suit by a guardian on behalf of a minor is that of the minor, and is governed by the law of limitation applicable to the minor.—Khodabux v Budree Nara... 7 C 137, 8 C L R 306 See also, Sufturoonissa v Noorul Hossein, ... W R. 419 See also, Shama v. Kanangai Chaitan, 7 C W. N 34... The fact that a minor is for a time represented by a guardian does not remove the disability of the minor.—Annantharama v Karuppanan 4 W... 119

Where a right of action accrues to a minor, the fact that his guardian might have maintained a suit during his minority does not deprive him of the protection given to him by s 6 of Limitation Act —Jagadindra Nath v Hemanta Kumari, 32 C. 129, P. C : 8 C W. N. 809, P. C ... also, Harek Chand v. Bejoy Chand, 9 C. W. N 795

It was held that the limitation of one year provided for by Art 11 of the Limitation Act, for suits under s. 283, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or XXI r 63), was subject in the case of a minor, to be modified by ss 6 and ... of the Limitation Act The benefit of s. 6 of the Limitation Act is not limited to the period when the disability of minor has ceased, but applies also to the period during which the disability continues; and, therefore during the latter period, it is open to the minor to sue by his guardian Phoolbas Koonwar v. Lalla Jogeshur, 1 C. 226, P. C. 25 W R 2... P C Relied upon in Shama Churn v. Kananagai Chaitan, 7 C W N 591.

It has been held that the period of limitation provided for an application to set aside a sale under s 311, C P. Code, 1882 (Or XXI, r 90) was subject, in the case of a minor, to be modified by the provisions of s 6 of the Limitation Act —Baldeo Singh v Kishan Lal, 9 A 411 (1 C 226 referred to) See also, Maharajkumar Guneshawr Singh v Jagodhis Pershad, 8 C. W N 34.

Section 6 of the Limitation Act, only applies to cases dealt with by that Act itself. The provisions of the C. P. Code must, in the absence of anything to the contrary, be deemed to be subject to the general principle of law as to the disability of minor, which is that time does not run against a minor, and the circumstances that a minor has been represented by a guardian does not affected the question —Maro Sadashiv v Visaji Raghunath, 16 B 538.

Suit by minor for declaration of invalidity of widow's alienation— Omission by minor's father to sue—Father's right to sue barred Held that where there are several reversioners entitled successively to succeed to an estate held for life by a Hindu widow, no one of such reversioners can be held to claim through or derive his title from another reversioner but each derives his title from the last full owner and the plaintiff was therefore entitled to the benefit of s. 6 of the Limitation Act, and the suit was not barred —Govinda Pillai v Thayammal, 28 M 57 (22 ... referred to)

When a suit was filed by a minor represented by a wrong person as next friend and another person was afterwards substituted as the next friend in his place, it was held that the suit as originally filed was not faulty in its citation of plaintiff even though the substitution was made after the expiry on the period prescribed for the filing of the suit.—Ishwari v. Dukhi, 54 I. C. 575.

Representation of minor by next friend or guardian for the suit.

5. (1) Every application to the Court on behalf of a minor, other than an application under rule 10, sub-rule (2), shall be made by his next friend or by his guardian for the suit. [S. 441.]

(2) Every order made in a suit or on any application, before the Court in or by which a minor is in any way concerned or affected, without such minor being represented by a next friend or guardian for the suit, as the case may be, may be discharged, and, where the pleader of the party at whose instance such order was obtained knew, or might reasonably have known, the fact of such minority, with costs to be paid by such pleader [S. 444.]

Effect of an Application Without Next Friend or Guardian.—Under Or. XXXII, r. 5, no order affecting a minor can legally be made without such minor being represented by a next friend Neither r 2 nor r 5 gives any authority to a Court to make a minor's estate liable for costs —Amichand v. Collector of Sholapur, 13 B 234.

The words "may be discharged" imply that the Court's power is discretionary.—Doorga Mohun v Tahir Ally, 22 C 274

A next friend of an infant is entitled to an order for change of attorney on the same terms as any other litigant sui juris. So long as he continues to be the next friend, he is entitled to appoint and change his own solicitor.—Dinendra Nath v. T. H. Wilson & Co., 5 C. W. N. 434

The Court has no authority to make a minor's estate liable for costs when such minor is unrepresented or not properly represented.—Ami Chand Talak Chand v. Collector of Sholapur, 13 B. 234

Pleader's Liability for Costs.—Where the plaint in a suit by minors was not framed in accordance with the provisions of rr. 1 and 4, the High Court directed that the pleader who filed the original suit, and the pleaders who filed the appeal in the lower Court, should be called upon to show cause, why they should not be ordered to pay the costs of the suit and of the appeal.—Shonai Bewah v. Monoram Mundul, 11 C. L. R. 15

Receipt by next friend or guardian for the suit of property under decree for minor.

6. (1) A next friend or guardian for the suit shall not without the leave of the Court, receive any money or other moveable property on behalf of a minor either—

(a) by way of compromise before decree or order, or

(b) under a decree or order in favour of the minor.

(2) Where the next friend or guardian for the suit has not been appointed or declared by competent authority to be guardian of the property of the minor, or having been so appointed or declared, is under any disability known to the Court to receive the money or other moveable property the Court shall, if it grants him leave to receive the property, require such security and give such directions as will, in its opinion, sufficiently protect the property from waste and ensure its proper application.

COMMENTARY.

This section exactly corresponds to s. 461, C. P. Code, 1882.

Joint Hindu Family.—The managing member of a joint Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara School, who is also appointed guardian ad litem of his minor brother for the purpose of a rent suit, in which the brothers obtained a decree for arrears of rent against their tenant, is exempt from the restrictions imposed by this rule.—Harihar Persad v. Mathura Lal, 35 C. 561: 12 C. W. N. 598: 8 C. L. J. 256. But on the other hand, a later decision of the Privy Council has decided that a managing member of a joint Hindu family, if he is also a next friend or guardian, is subject to the control of the Court, and that he cannot do any act in his capacity of manager for which the leave of the Court would have been necessary if he had acted as next friend or guardian; Ganesh v. Tuljaram, 36 M. 295, 40 I. A. 132: 19 I. C. 515. So where payment under a decree passed jointly in favour of a minor and of the manager of a joint Hindu family was certified by the manager alone as the next friend of the minor, the Court refused to record the payment on the ground that the leave of the Court had not been obtained; Pitchakuttiya v. Doraiswami, 47 M. L. J. 498: 82 I. C. 588: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 230.

A Court cannot, under this rule, order payment of money to a person not appointed guardian ad litem by any competent authority without demanding security from him.—Krishna Iyer v. Chakrapani, 29 I. C 475 (31 B 413: 9 Bom. L. R. 553 followed).

"The Court shall give such directions."—The order for attachment of a surety's property under Or. XXXII, r. 6 cannot fall within the words "such directions as will, etc." The legislature could not have intended to include such a large power as that of attaching the property of a person not a party to any suit or decree within the cognizance of the Court under the category of mere directions.—Nadanaligi v. Angadi, (1917) M. W. N. 490: 22 M. L. T. 320, 39 I. C. 928.

Agreement or compromise by next friend or guardian for the suit.

7. (1) No next friend or guardian for the suit shall, without the leave of the Court expressly recorded in the proceedings, enter into any agreement or compromise on behalf of a minor with reference to the suit in which he acts as next friend or guardian.

(2) Any such agreement or compromise entered into without the leave of the Court so recorded shall be voidable against all parties other than the minor. [S. 462.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 462, C P. Code, 1882, with this modification, that the words "expressly recorded in the proceedings" have been added after the words "without the leave of the Court" The above addition has been made in accordance with several rulings of the Privy Council and of the High Courts noted below. By the addition of the above words the case in which it was held that when the Court permits a compromise, it must be presumed in the absence of the evidence to the contrary that it gave due consideration to the matter, have been superseded.

Object and Scope of the Rule.—The provisions of this rule have been adopted from the rule previously laid down by the Privy Council and are intended to protect the interests of minors.—Rajagopal v. Subramanya, 33 M. 103, 104; Sharat Chunder v. Kartik Chunder, 9 C 810; Moulvi Abdool v. Mozuffer Hossein, 16 W. R. P. C. A suit relating to the estate or person of a minor and for his benefit has the effect of making him a ward of Court and no act can be done affecting the minor's property unless under the direction of the Court, express or implied—Dora Swami v. Thunga Swami, 27 M. 377. Before a compromise decree can be passed in a suit to which a minor is a party it is necessary to take the following steps viz., (1) an application by the next friend or guardian ad litem to compromise the suit (2) the granting of permission by the Court to so compromise and (3) the consent of the next friend or guardian to the proposed compromise after the Court's leave is obtained; Aman Singh v. Narain, 20 A. 98. The Court cannot force a compromise upon a minor against the wishes of the guardian ad litem or next friend; Hemangini v. Bhagwati, 27 C. W. N. 792: 75 I. C. 682: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 685, but if the guardian or next friend appears to be refusing to consent to an arrangement which is likely to prove beneficial to the interests of the minor, the Court may take steps for his removal and appoint some other person; Hemangini v. Bhagwati, 27 C. W. N. 792.

"Without the leave of the Court expressly recorded in the proceedings."—In giving permission to compromise a suit on behalf of a minor, it is usual and desirable that the Court should record an order stating that it considers the compromise to be for the benefit of the minor, but such an order is not essential to the validity of the compromise. The addition of the words "expressly recorded in the proceedings" in Or. XXXII, r. 7 has not changed the pre-existing practice under s. 462 of the old Code—Bejoy Singh v. Mathuriya Debya, 56 I. C. 97; Ishan Chandra v. Nil Ratan, 2 Pat. 538: 4 Pat. L. T. 311: 1 Pat. L. R. 217. But see, Hanuman Rai v. Jagdas Rai, 35 I. C. 675. The leave must be express, not implied, Raja Gopal v. Muttipalem, 3 M. 103; Sharat v. Kartik, 12 C. L. R. 455, 9 C. 810; Rameswar v. Ram Bahadur, 5 C. L. J. 175: 11 C. W. N. 178. The sanction of the Court to a compromise cannot be inferred merely from the fact that the Court passed a decree in accordance with the compromise, Manohar Lal v. Jadunath, 28 A. 385; Parlab v. Bhabuti Singh, 35 A. 487: 40 I. A. 182; Sharat v. Kartick, 9 C. 810; Ram Gulam v. Durga Prasad, 6 Pat. L. J. 190: 60 I. C. 980. But an order of the Court sanctioning a compromise need not, on the face of it, state in so many words that the Court had considered the terms of the compromise and regarded them to be beneficial to the minor; Janki v. Nanni Lal, 36. P. R. 146: 39 I. C. 53; Rajagopalam v. Subbarama, (1919) M. W. N. 356: 53 I. C. 354.

Compromise under Misapprehension of Material Facts.—Where it appears that the compromise has been entered into by the parties and sanctioned by the Court, under a misapprehension of material facts, the minor is entitled to have the compromise set aside, and the parties are entitled to be restored to their rights in the former suit as at the time it was effected.—Bibee Solomon v. Abdool Azeez, 6 C. 687: 8 C. L. R. 169; Jhanda Singh v. Lachmi, 56 I. C. 878.

Materials to be considered by Court in Sanctioning a Compromise on Behalf of a Minor.—The Court must exercise its discretion in a judicial manner when sanctioning a compromise on behalf of a minor. If it does, it cannot be set aside in a subsequent suit. What materials the Judge must consider before sanctioning the compromise will depend upon the facts of each case. There is no general rule.—Dhairya Singh v. Kissandas, 28 Bom. L. R. 362: 94 I. C. 404: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 291.

Compromise of Execution Proceedings.—This rule applies to a compromise of execution proceedings Hence an adjustment of a decree to which a minor is a party requires under this rule the sanction of the Court.—Virupakshappa v. Shidappa, 26 B. 109; the provisions of this section apply to compromises after decree and no adjustment by compromise of a decree by the guardian of a minor can be certified under s 258, C. P. Code, 1882, (Or. XXI, r. 2) without the leave of the Court under this rule.—Arunachellam v. Rama Nadhan, 29 M. 309; David Rowther v. Paramasami, 31 M. L. J 207 35 I C. 270. See also, Ramgulam v. Shamsahai Dass, 5 Pat. L J. 379; Gurumallappa v. Mallappa, 22 Bom. L. R. 725; and Sadashiv Ram Chandra v Trimbak, 40 B. 202 · 22 Bom L. R. 266.

Sanction of Court If Necessary to Transfer of Decree in Favour of Minor by Guardian or Next Friend.—The next friend of a minor cannot transfer a decree which he had obtained on behalf of the minor, to a third party without obtaining the leave of the Court; Kancherla Kanakayya v Mulpuree Kottayya, 41 M. L. J 75 · 13 L. W. 637. But see Govindarajulu v Ranga Row, 40 M L. J. 124; 13 L W 97 where a contrary view was taken.

Agreement to be Bound by Oath under Indian Oaths Act., 1873, Not Within this Rule.—An agreement by the guardian on behalf of the minor to be bound by the statement, on oath, of a certain witness does not amount to a compromise requiring sanction of the Court for its validity, and is binding upon the minor without such sanction, in view of the provisions of s 11 of the Oaths Act of 1873.—Deoraj v Musst Abhai Raji, 102 I C. 38: A I R 1927 All 584. Similarly an agreement by the next friend of minor that an issue in the suit should be determined by the oath of the defendent, does not come within the purview of this rule, and the sanction of the Court is not necessary; Chengal v Venkata, 12 M 483 · Sheo-nath v Sukh Lall, 27 C. 229

Conditions Necessary to Make Binding Compromise by Minor's Guardian.—When a compromise of the suit is made, it ought to be carried out by proper deeds and filed in Court, particularly when infants are concerned, so as to have the assent of the Court at the time, instead of its being totally concealed from them —Abdool Ali v Mozuffer Hussein, 16 W. R 22 P C

In order that a compromise may be binding upon a minor the leave must be express and the Court in sanctioning a compromise under this rule should record the fact that the application was made to it by the next friend or guardian, that the terms of the compromise were considered by it, and should in terms state that the question whether the compromise was for the benefit of the infant was considered From the mere fact that the Court passed the decree in accordance with the compromise it cannot be inferred that any of those steps preliminary and necessary to the making of the decree had been taken by the Court.—Biku Haluai v Mohesh Halwai, 8 C L J 266 (16 W R 232 26 B 109, followed) See also, Virupakshappa v Shidappa, 26 B 109; Govindasami v Nagusami, 29 M. 101, Krishna Persad v Romes Chandra, 8 C L J 271 13 C. Effect of Compromise Without Leave of Court.—In cases to which this rule applies it should be clearly shown that the leave of the Court was obtained and that the attention of the Court was drawn to the fact that there was a minor.—Pratab Singh v. Bhabati Singh, 35 A. 487 P C. 18 C. L J 384 17 C W. N. 1165; Ishar Chandra v. Nilratan, 2 Pat 538 4 Pat. L T. 311 Otherwise the compromise is not enforceable against the minor.—Subramaniyam v. Rajeswara, 39 M. 115: 20 C W N. 201 (P. C.); Jawa labai v. Vasanto Rao, 39 M. 409: 39 M. 83. 34 M. 315.

Where the guardian of a minor litigant fails to obtain the leave of the Court to enter into a compromise on behalf of a minor, it is open to the minor under Or XXXII, r. 7 to avoid the compromise. In the absence of an order granting permission to the guardian to enter into a compromise, the presumption is that no such permission was granted —Badra Prashad v Gopal Behari Lal, 41 All 653: 17 A. L. J. 789: 50 I. C. 752· 29 M L J 856.

A compromise in a suit made without the leave of the Court though not binding on the minor will be binding on the other parties —(1918) Pat 193: 3 Pat. L J 255 · 4 Pat. L W 393

If a compromise is entered into by a guardian on behalf of a minor without the leave of the Court and a decree is passed in accordance with the terms of the compromise, such a decree is not a nullity but is voidable at the instance of the minor, Jita Singh v. Man Singh, 2 Lah. 161· 62 I C. 791 (26 B. 109 95 P R. 1912, folld; 28 A. 187, 35 A 487 P. C. distd.), Chellaram v Kimatram, 14 S L R. 245: 61 I. C. 118

Compromise of suit by guardian ad litem—Leave of Court not obtained—Withdrawal from compromise by the guardian—Suit to have the compromise enforced Held, that inasmuch as leave of the Court had not been asked for, and the guardian had objected to the Court passing a decree in terms of the compromise, the Court had no power to enforce compromise, even though the terms of it might appear to be beneficial to the minor —Ranga Rao v Rajgopala Raju, 22 M. 378

Compromise When can be Set Aside.—A compromise sanctioned by a Court under this rule cannot be set aside merely on the allegation that the compromise was not in the interest of the minor and unconscionable The Court has to consider the question whether the compromise is for the benefit of the minor before it sanctions it, and so there must be something amounting to fraud before the Court can set it aside —Maharaj Bhanudas, v. Krishnabhai, 28 Bom. L. R. 1225: 50 B. 716: A. I. R 1927 Bom. 11.

Agreement to Refer to Arbitration, Whether under this Rule.—An agreement entered into by a next friend or guardian ad litem to refer any matter in dispute in the suit to arbitration is an " agreement " falling within this rule and the Court's sanction is therefore necessary; Lakshmana v. Chinnathami, 24 M. 326; Vijaya v. Venkatasubba, 39 M. 853; Atmaram v. Bhila, 15 Bom. L. R. 223; Ganesha v. Mul Chand, 95 P. R. 1912; Muhamad Ibrahim v. Allah Baksh, 145 P. R 1919; Chhajjumal v Tarloki Nath, 8 Lah. L. J. 414: 96 I C. 748, A I. R 1926 Lah. 666 It has been held by the Allahabad High Court that such an agreement is not within this rule, and the sanction of the Court is not necessary.—Hardeo v Gauri Shanker, 28 A. 35, Latawan v Lachya, 36 A 69: 21 I. C 989 F B.

The agreement contemplated in Sch II, C. P Code, para 1, et seq, is an "agreement with reference to the suit" under Or XXXII, r 7, and it is not validly entered into on behalf of a minor where the guardian of the minor purports to bind the minor without the leave of the Court expressly recorded and thus exceeds the authority given to him by the said rule —Davuluru Vijava v Davuluru Venkatasubha, 39 M 853 30 M L. J 465 See also, Baktawar v Kesarsingh, 59 I. C. 31. But the Allahabad High Court, in Hardeo v. Gouri Shankar, 28 A. 35, has held that such an agreement is not within this rule, and the Court's sanction is therefore not necessary This was approved by the Calcutta High Court in Annada Krishna v Jogendra Nath, 8 C L. J. 294

Withdrawal of Suit by Next Friend.—When a person acting for a minor has fraudulently withdrawn the minor's suit, without obtaining leave to bring a fresh suit, it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the consequences of fraud in one of three ways, viz (1) by an application to the Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by a regular suit to set aside the judgment founded upon the withdrawal, (3) by bringing a fresh suit for the same purpose, and setting up the fraud as an answer to the statutory bar.—Eshan Chundra v. Nundamoni 10 C. 357 Approved in Virupakshappa v. Shidappa 23 B. 620. See also, Ram Sarup v. Shah Latafat Hossein, 29 C. 735; Rajada v. Ghulia, 59 P. R. 1919. In Doraswami v Thungasami, 27 M. 377, the order of withdrawal was set aside by the High Court on revision.

Power of a Guardian to Bind the Minor by the Oath of the Opposite Party or by Reference to Arbitration.—The offer of the guardian of a minor defendant to be bound by the oath of the opposite party, stands on a very different ground from an agreement or compromise contemplated by this rule. In such a case, the minor is bound by the consent of his guardian, although given without the leave of the Court, provided that there is no fraud or gross negligence on the part of the guardian.—Sheo Nath v. Sukh Lal, 27 C. 229: 4 C. W. N. 327. Followed in Hardeo Sahai v. Gouri Shankar, 28 A. 35: 2 A. L. J. 493. See also, Chengal Reddi v. Venkata Reddi, 12 M. 483, and Ananda Krishna v. Jogendra Nath, 8 C. L. J. 294.

A manager of a joint Hindu family has the power to bind the family by reference of a dispute with any outsider regarding any family property to arbitration. Minors in the family are bound by the reference and consequently the award made upon it—Balaji v. Nana, 27 B. 287. See also, Vithaldas v. Dattaram, 26 B. 298.

Whether the Court can Force Compromise Against the Wishes of the Guardian ad litem or Next Friend.—Although the Court can and must approve of a compromise on behalf of infants, it cannot and will not force one upon them against the opinion of the next friend or guardian ad litem in the action. No doubt if the Court found that a guardian or next friend was acting improperly and against the infants' interest in refusing to assent to an arrangement which appeared clearly beneficial to them, steps might be taken to remove him and substitute some other person.—Hemangini Dasi v. Bhagwati Sundari, 27 C. W. N. 792: 75 I. C. 682.

Gross Negligence or Fraudulent Conduct of Next Friend or Guardian Ad Litem Vitiates Proceedings.—An infant has remedy either by application for review of judgment or by separate suit when either gross laches or fraud or a collusion is found in the next friend. The result appears to be that the negligence or laches of the guardian which entitles the minor to avoid the decree must be of a gross character.—Ram Sarup v. Shah Latafat Hossain, 29 C. 735. It is not every kind of negligence nor any amount of negligence which would render proceedings, otherwise regular and proper, liable to be opened. It must be such negligence as leads to the loss of a right which, if the suit had been conducted or resisted with due care, must have been successfully averted. It is not sufficient to show that the guardian ad litem absented himself, it must also be proved that there was an available good ground of defence which was not put forward owing to the default of the guardian ad litem to appear at the trial. The test in such a case is whether or not there has been culpable neglect of the interests of the minor. Has there been in the conduct of the suit, any act or omission on the part of the guardian ad litem which, in the result, has brought prejudice to the minor's interests.—Brijraj v. Ram Sarup, A. I. R. 1926 All. 36; Parmeswari v. Sheo Dat, 6 C. L. J. 448; Lekhraj Roy v. Mahtab Chand, 14 M. I. A. 393: 17 W. R. 117.

A suit by minor to set aside a compromise decree on a ground other than fraud is maintainable. When and under what circumstances such a suit is maintainable explained and pointed out.—Surendra Nath v. Hemangini, 34 C. 83 (10 C. 612: 2 C. L. J. 508, referred to). See also, Brahmdeo v. Banarasi, 3 C. L. J. 119, and Baranasi v. Ram Narain, 30 A. 105.

The proper course for a minor to set aside a compromise entered into by his guardian without the leave of the Court and the decree based upon it, is by way of an application for review in the first Court or by a separate suit, but not by an appeal from the compromise decree.—Rakhalmoni v. Adwyata Prosad, 30 C. 613: 7 C. W. N. 410. See also, Biraj Mohini v. Chinta Moni, 5 C. W. N. 877.

In addition to the cases noted above, see the cases noted under Or. XXIII, r. 3 on this point, under the heading "COMPROMISE BY THE MINOR'S NEXT FRIEND AND GUARDIAN AND ITS EFFECTS."

Retirement of next friend.

8. (1) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, a next friend shall not retire without first procuring a fit person to be put in his place and giving security for the costs already incurred.

(2) The application for the appointment of a new next friend shall be supported by an affidavit showing the fitness of the person proposed, and also that he has no interest adverse to that of the minor. [S. 447.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to section 447, C. P. Code, 1882.

Retirement of Next Friend.—This rule directs that a next friend shall not retire at his own request without first procuring a fit person to be put in his place and without giving security for the costs, already incurred. Where the same person is both certificated guardian and guardian ad litem to minor plaintiff, the fact that one of such plaintiffs has come of age and been appointed certificated guardian of the persons and property of the others would not relieve the original guardian of his duties as guardian ad litem: to do this requires a special order under this rule.—Banarasi Prasad v. Ram Narain, 30 A. 105: 5 A. L. J. 35.

9. (1) Where the interest of the next friend of a minor is adverse to that of the minor or where he is so connected with a defendant whose interest is adverse to that of the minor as to make it unlikely that the minor's interest will be properly protected by him, or where he does not do his duty, or, during the pendency of the suit ceases to reside within British India, or for any other sufficient cause, application may be made on behalf of the minor or by a defendant for his removal; and the Court, if satisfied of the sufficiency of the cause assigned, may order the next friend to be removed accordingly, and make such other order as to costs as it thinks fit.

Removal of next friend.

(2) Where the next friend is not a guardian appointed or declared by an authority competent in this behalf, and an application is made by a guardian so appointed or declared, who desires to be himself appointed in the place of the next friend, the Court shall remove the next friend unless it considers, for reasons to be recorded by it, that the guardian ought not to be appointed the next friend of the minor, and shall thereupon appoint the applicant to be next friend in his place upon such terms as to the costs already incurred in the suit as it thinks fit. [S. 446.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of s. 446, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" wherever it occurred in the old section, and the words "and make such order as to costs as it thinks fit," have been added

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of section 446 of the C. P. Code 1882, with the addition of the following words. "and shall thereupon appoint the applicant to be next friend in his place upon such terms as to the costs already incurred in the suit as it thinks fit."

"The Committee think it expedient that where a guardian insists on his right to be appointed next friend in the place of another there should be power to require him to become liable or give security for costs in the suit previously incurred"—See the Report of the Special Committee

"Where the next friend does not do his duty."—Where a Court finds that a next friend does not do his duty in relation to a suit, it is its duty not to permit him to prejudice the interests of the minor, but to adjourn the suit in order that some one interested in the minor may apply on his behalf for removal of the next friend and for the appointment of a new next friend, or in order that the minor plaintiff himself may, on coming of age, etc., proceed with the suit or withdraw from it; Doraswami v Thungasami, 27 M 377

Where charges of immorality were brought against the holder of a certificate under Act XL of 1858, it was held to be the duty of the Judge to enquire into the truth of the charges and fitness of the certificate holder —Mohunuddy Begam v Oomdultanessa, 13 W. R. 454

Adverse Interest.—When the next friend or guardian of the minor has, for his own advantage or by negligence, allowed time for appeal to run out, the Court may enlarge time for appeal in the minor's favour—Gursandas v Ladhavahoo, 20 B 104. If a Court considers that the interest of a next friend of a minor plaintiff is adverse to that of the minor, it should remove the next friend under this rule and then stay further proceedings under the next rule until the appointment of a fresh next friend; Kirit Narayan v Chanchal, 6 Pat. L. J. 317: 63 I. C. 736

In a case where the guardian, without any sufficient cause or justification, and without legal advice, withdrew an appeal made to set aside a sale of the estate of the minors, the certificate of guardianship was cancelled —Pitamber Dey v Ishan Chunder, 18 W. R. 169

An application for the removal of guardians must be supported by proof of malversation or misconduct such as would afford sufficient ground for removal.—Rajessurge Debia v. Jogendra Nath, 23 W. R. 278.

Stay of proceedings on removal, etc., of next friend.

10. (1) On the retirement, removal or death of the next friend of a minor further proceedings shall be stayed until the appointment of a next friend in his place. [S. 448.]

(2) Where the pleader of such minor omits, within a reasonable time, to take steps to get a new next friend appointed, any person interested in the minor or in the matter in issue may apply to the Court for the appointment of one, and the Court may appoint such person as it thinks fit [S. 449.]

COMMENTARY.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to s. 448, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the word "retirement" before the word "removal."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to s. 449, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "where" for the word "if" which occurred in the old section.

Death of Next Friend.—On the death of a minor plaintiff's next friend, the suit does not abate, and, therefore, should not be dismissed If, however, an order of dismissal is passed, it is a nullity and can have no effect upon the rights of the plaintiff. The duty of the Court is either to appoint a new next friend or to allow the suit to be pending till the minor attains majority.—Venkateswara v. Cherrseri, 27 M L. J. 405. 25 I. C. 597.

Retirement, removal or death of guardian for the suit.

11. (1) Where the guardian for the suit desires to retire or does not do his duty, or where other sufficient ground is made to appear, the Court may permit such guardian to retire or may remove him and may make such order as to costs as it thinks fit. [S. 458.]

(2) Where the guardian for the suit retires, dies or is removed by the Court during the pendency of the suit, the Court shall appoint a new guardian in his place. [S. 459.]

COMMENTARY.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to s. 458, C P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations The old section is reproduced below to observe the changes introduced in this rule: "If the guardian for the suit of a minor defendant does not do his duty, or if other sufficient ground be made to appear, the Court may remove him, and may order him to pay such costs as may have been occasioned to any party by his breach of duty."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to s 459 C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The word "retires" has been added before the word "dies."

The other changes are merely verbal.

Retirement of Guardian.—It is not open to a guardian appointed by the Court to retire at his own sweet will without the permission of the Court. It is a matter of discretion for the Court to permit the guardian to retire —Narendar Singh v Chatrapal, 91 I C 840 A I R 1926 All 437

"May remove him."—The power of the Court to remove the guardian ad litem and appoint a new guardian instead may be exercised at any time during the pendency of the suit and the same is not taken away by the fact that an order to try the suit ex parte had previously been passed.—Ayya Nadan v. Thennammal, 27 M. L. T. 171 (1920) M W N. 241 55 I C 945.

"Court may make such order as to costs as it thinks fit."—The C. P Code does not authorize a Court to decree costs against the guardian of a defendant except in the case referred to in this rule.—Narasimha Rau v Lakshmipati Rau, 3 M. 263

Where a guardian ad litem of an infant had been guilty of gross misconduct in putting executors to proof of a will which he wished to upset for his own private purpose, and which, the evidence showed, was to his knowledge duly executed by the testatrix in a sound state of mind Held that he was liable for the costs of the suit.—Goolam Hossain v Fatmabai, 8 B 391

After the dismissal of an administration suit brought by the next friend of a minor plaintiff, the Court ordered the next friend to pay the costs, being of opinion that he was the real actor in the suit, and that the suit was unnecessary —Devkabai v. Jefferson, 10 B. 248.

This rule is not, so far as regards payment of costs, applicable to any person appointed to act as guardian ad litem with his previous assent —Jadow Mulji v. Chhagan Raichand, 5 B. 306.

Death of Guardian Ad Item.—Where death of guardian ad litem takes place pending appeal, and judgment is passed without a new guardian, it is a mere irregularity.—Ramdayal v. Ajudhia, (1906) A. W. N 40, Gobardhan v Mahabir, 34 A. 321.

Where a guardian ad litem died during the pendency of the appeal and the appeal was disposed of without a fresh guardian being appointed but a new guardian was appointed in execution proceedings. Held, that no guardian for the minors having been appointed they were to all intents and purposes not parties to the appeal at all and therefore the decree and sale in execution were as against them a nullity.—Chundury Krishnayya v Koripalli Raju, 31 M L J 39 35 I. C. 154.

Where a minor filed an objection in execution proceedings with a particular person as next friend and in the appeal against the order in those proceedings, the minor was represented by another person and no objection was raised as regards the guardianship. Held, it was only a minor irregularity and s 99 of the C P. Code precluded the Court from reversing the decree on that ground; Abdul Gani v. Barkia, 61 I C 605.

Course to be followed by minor plaintiff or applicant on attaining majority.

12. (1) A minor plaintiff or a minor not a party to a suit on whose behalf an application is pending shall, on attaining majority, elect whether he will proceed with the suit or application. [S 450]

(2) Where he elects to proceed with the suit or application, he shall apply for an order discharging the next

(3) The title of the suit or application shall in such case be corrected so as to read thenceforth thus :—

"A. B., late a minor. by C. D., his next friend, but now having attained majority." [S. 451, Para. 2.]

(4) Where he elects to abandon the suit or application, he shall, if a sole plaintiff or sole applicant, apply for an order to dismiss the suit or application on repayment of the costs incurred by the defendant or opposite party or which may have been paid by his next friend. [S. 452.]

(5) Any application under this rule may be made ex parte : but no order discharging a next friend and permitting a minor plaintiff to proceed in his own name shall be made without notice to the next friend. [S. 453.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—The provisions contained in ss. 450, 451, 452 and 453 of the C P. Code, 1882, have been amalgamated in this rule with some additions and alterations.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to s 450, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations The words "shall" has been substituted for the word "must" and the words "on attaining majority" have been substituted for the words "on coming of age," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 1 of s 451 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if"; and the words "with the suit or application" have been substituted for the words "with it," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 2 of s. 451 of C. P Code, with this modification, that the words "having attained" have been substituted for the words "but now of full age," which occurred in the last part of para. 2 of the old section.

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to s 452, C. P Code, 1882, with slight modification. The words "or opposite party" have been added after the word "defendant."

Sub-rule (5) corresponds to s. 453, C P Code, with some additions and alterations. The words "and it must be found by affidavit that the late minor has attained his full age," which occurred in the old section have been omitted ; and the words "but no order discharging a next friend and permitting a minor plaintiff to proceed in his own name shall be made without notice to the next friend" have been added

When a suit is instituted on behalf of a person alleged to be, but not, in fact, a minor, and the suit is brought through a next freind, the Court should not dismiss the suit In such a case the proper remedy is for the defendant to apply to have the plaint taken off the file or amended, and if it be not amended, the next friend's name may be treated as a mere surplusage, and the suit should be allowed to proceed.—Tagui Jan v Obaidulla, 21 C 860 Contra in Sheorania v. Bharat Singh, 20 A. 90

Title to be Corrected.—The provision in this rule requiring the title to be corrected, would apply to a pending suit, and not to a suit in which a final decree has been passed, and in which it only remains to proceed in execution.—Doorga Mohun v. Tahir Ally, 22 C. 270.

Where minor co-plaintiff attaining majority desires to repudiate suit.

13. (1) Where a minor co-plaintiff on attaining majority desires to repudiate the suit, he shall apply to have his name struck out as co-plaintiff; and the Court, if it finds that he is not a necessary party, shall dismiss him from the suit on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

(2) Notice of the application shall be served on the next friend, on any co-plaintiff and on the defendant.

(3) The costs of all parties of such application, and of all or any proceedings theretofore had in the suit, shall be paid by such persons as the Court directs.

(4) Where the applicant is a necessary party to the suit, the Court may direct him to be made a defendant. [S. 454]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 454, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of s. 454. The words "where a minor co-plaintiff on attaining majority desires to repudiate the suit, he shall apply" have been substituted for the words "a minor co-plaintiff, on coming of age, and desiring to repudiate the suit, must apply," which occurred in the beginning of the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds with the first part of para 2 of the old section with the addition of the words "on any co-plaintiff." The words "and it must be proved by affidavit that the late minor has attained his full age," which occurred in the middle of para 2 of the old section, has been omitted.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to the last part of para 2 of the old section with some verbal changes.

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to part 3 of the old section with change of some words, without any change in the meaning.

Unreasonable or improper suit.

14. (1) A minor on attaining majority may, if a sole plaintiff, apply that a suit instituted in his name by a next friend be dismissed on the ground that it was unreasonable or improper.

"(2) Notice of the application shall be served on all the parties concerned; and the Court, upon being satisfied of such unreasonableness or impropriety, may grant the application and order the next friend to pay the costs of all parties in respect of the application and of anything done in the suit or make such other order as it thinks fit. [S. 455.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 455, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of the old section, which is reproduced here to mark distinction "If any minor, on attaining majority, can prove, to the satisfaction of the Court, that a suit instituted in his name by a next friend was unreasonable or improper, he may, if a sole plaintiff, apply to have the suit dismissed"

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of s 455, C. P Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "or make such other order as it thinks fit" in the last part.

After the dismissal of an administration suit brought by the next friend of a minor plaintiff, the Court ordered the next friend of the minor to pay the costs of the suit, being of opinion that he was the real actor in the suit, and that the suit was unnecessary.—Devkabai v. Jefferson, 10 B. 248.

When a person acting for a minor has fraudulently withdrawn the minor's suit, without obtaining leave to bring a fresh suit, and by such withdrawal an absolute statutory prohibition is imposed on the minor, from bringing a fresh suit it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the consequences of the fraud in one of the three ways, viz, (1) by an application to the Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by a regular suit to set aside the judgment founded upon the withdrawal; or (3) by bringing a fresh suit for the same purpose, and setting up the fraud as an answer to the statutory bar.—Eshan Chundra v. Nandamoni, 10 C. 357.

Application of rules to persons of unsound mind.

15. The provisions contained in rules 1 to 14, so far as they are applicable, shall extend to persons adjudged to be of unsound mind and to persons who though not so adjudged are found by the Court on inquiry, by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, to be incapable of protecting their interests when suing or being sued. [S. 463.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 463, C P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations The old section is reproduced below to observe the changes introduced by the present rule. "The provisions contained in sections 440 to 462 (both inclusive) shall mutatis mutandis, apply in the case of persons of unsound mind adjudged to be so under Act No. XXXV of 1858, or under any other law for the time being in force"

It would appear on a comparison that the words "and to persons who though not so adjudged are found by the Court on enquiry, by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, to be incapable of protecting their interests when suing or being sued" have been added. The additions seem to have followed the principles laid down in 16 B 13, 24 M. 504, and in 33 C. 1904: 10 C. W. N. 517: 4 C. L J. 306, and to set at rest the conflicting rulings, all of which have been considered and discussed in the above Calcutta case. The above amendment has overridden 6 M 380 and 13 B 656 and the other cases in which a contrary view was expressed

"Mental Infirmity."—By the addition of the words "or mental infirmity," the scope of the present rule has been enlarged The old section was applicable to persons of "unsound mind" only; but the present rule applies to persons of unsound mind as well as to persons who are suffering from any mental infirmity in consequence of which he is incapable of protecting his own interests. In this connection 4 C. L J 11 should be consulted in which the words "lunacy, weakness of intellect and unsoundness of mind" have been clearly explained and distinguished

"The Committee have extended this rule so as to cover the case of a person incapacitated from protecting his interests by reason of his mental weakness or of his being a deaf mute"—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Meaning of the Term "unsound mind."—The term "unsound mind" comprehends imbecility, whether congenital or arising from old age, as well as lunacy or mental alienation resulting from disease —In re Cursetji Beramji, 7 B. 15.

Distinction between lunacy with lucid intervals, and a state of sound mind, subject to occasional unsoundness arising from accidental and temporary causes, considered.—In re Nagappa Chetti, 18 M. 472 (6 C S and 543 referred to)

Mere weakness of intellect is not unsoundness of mind. The distinction between the words lunatic, weakness of intellect, and unsoundness of mind explained —Mazaharuddin Khan v. Serajuddin Khan 4 C L J 115 (24 W. R 124 approved).

"Persons adjudged to be unsound mind."—Under the Lunacy Act IV of 1912 a person may be adjudged to be of unsound mind The old Act was Act XXXV of 1858.

Appointment of Next Friend or Guardian Ad Litem of Persons of Unsound Mind.—A person alleged to be a lunatic, though not adjudged to be so under Act XXXV of 1858, may sue through a next friend, and defend through a guardian ad litem.—Nabbu Khan v. Sita, 20 A. 2. In Uma Sundari v. Ramji Haldar, 7 C. 242. 9 C. L. R. 13, and in Brindaban Chunder v. Kali Dass. W. R. (1864) 268, it has been held that a p son alleged to be a lunatic though not found so under Act XXXV of 1858, may appear either by vakeel or in person See also, Pransukhram v. Bai Ladkor, 23 B. 653 Although s 443 (Or. XXXII, r. 3), read with s. 463, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), does not oblige a Court to appoint a guardian ad litem for a defendant of unsound mind, except when he has been adjudged to be of unsound mind under Act XXXV of 1858, still upon general principles, and in conformity with the practice of the Court of Chancery, the Court should assign a guardian ad litem for the defendant if it finds, on enquiry, that he is of unsound mind so as to be unfit to defend the suit —Venkataramana v Tumappa, 16 B 132. This case has been followed in Kadala Reddi v Narisi, 24 M. 504. See also, Lakhya Dasya v. Umakanto, 14 C. W. N. 256 ; Kamini Kumar v Shib Sundari, 62, I. C. 770 ; Rasik Lal v. Bidhumukhi, 33 C 1094. 10 C W. N. 719: 4 C. L. J. 306, where all the cases on this point have been referred to. But in Subhaya v Buthaya, 6 M. 380 and in Tukaram Anant v. Vithal Joshi, 13 B 656, a contrary view was taken by holding that provisions of s. 463 of the C P. Code (this rule) applied only to those who were previously adjudicated lunatic under Act (XXXV of 1858) These latter cases have been superseded by the amendment.

A guardian of the person only of a lunatic is not competent to sue in respect of the lunatic's estate The manager of the lunatic's estate is the only person who can institute such a suit The word " guardian " in s. 440, C. P Code, 1882 (Or XXXII, rr. 1, 4), when applied to a lunatic, means the manager of his estate Under this rule a person other than the guardian of the estate can also sue with the leave of the Court —Bai Divali v Hira Lal, 20 B. 403

The mere absence of a formal adjudication of lunacy under Act XXXV of 1858, cannot invalidate the charge assumed by the Court of Wards, and a lunatic is properly represented in a suit brought by the Collector as guardian of the lunatic —Sanku v Puttama, 14 M. 289 (13 M. 197 referred to).

Power of Guardian of Persons of Unsound Mind.—Lunacy Act (XXXV of 1858) does not affect the general provisions of Hindu law, as to guardians who do not avail themselves of the Act, and the managing member of a joint Hindu family, one of the members of which is a lunatic, may, in case of necessity, sell joint family property including the lunatic's share, although he does not hold a certificate under the said Act.—Kanti Chunder v Bisheswar, 25 C. 585, F B. 2 C. W N. 241 F. B. (4 C. 929 followed in principle , 10 B L. R. 364 · 19 W R. 163 disapproved)

When a person is appointed manager of a lunatic's estate under Act XXXV of 1858, he can only make a valid alienation in accordance with the provisions of that Act, although he may be a de facto manager of the family property.—Anpurna Bai v. Dargapa, 20 B. 150.

A guardian of a lunatic's person is, in matters connected with the guardianship, subordinate to the District Court which appointed him — In the matter of Basharat Ali, 24 C. 133.

A District Judge has power to make an order requiring the guardian to obtain his permission before marrying the lunatic —Chellahammal v. Ammayappa, 32 M. 253 (21 C. 133, 32 B 50, 12 B 480, referred to).

below to observe the changes introduced by the present rule "The provisions contained in sections 440 to 462 (both inclusive) shall mutatis mutandis, apply in the case of persons of unsound mind adjudged to be so under Act No XXXV of 1858, or under any other law for the time being in force"

It would appear on a comparison that the words "and to persons who though not so adjudged are found by the Court on enquiry, by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, to be incapable of protecting their interests when suing or being sued" have been added These additions seem to have followed the principles laid down in 16 B 1[illegible] 24 M. 504, and in 33 C. 1904. 10 C. ORDER XXXIII.

SUITS BY PAUPERS.

Suits may be instituted in forma pauperis.

1. Subject to the following provisions, any suit may be instituted by a pauper.

Explanation.—A person is a "pauper" when he is not possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee prescribed by law for the plaint in such suit, or, where no such fee is prescribed, when he is not entitled to property worth one hundred rupees other than his necessary wearing-apparel and the subject-matter of the suit. [S. 401.]

COMMENTARY.

The rule corresponds to s 401, C. P. Code, 1882, with slight modifications The word "provisions" has been substituted for the word "rules" after the word "following," and the word "institute" has been substituted for the word "brought" which occurred in the old section.

Object and Scope of the Order.—A person instituting a suit in a Civil Court is bound, according to the ordinary rules, to pay the Court-fee prescribed by law for the plaint and subsequent proceedings in the suit. The object of this order is to enable a person, who is too poor to pay the Court-fee, to institute and prosecute suit without payment of Court-fees —Jotindro v. Dwarka, 20 C 111 The exemption does not extend to fees for service of process and such fees must under r 8 be paid by him

"Pauper."—Pending the investigation into pauperism under rr 6, 7, the defendant appearing deposited in Court some of the articles claimed by the petitioners to which he admitted they were entitled. The value of the articles deposited was Rs 100. The petitioners admitting that the articles were their property declined to take possession of them. Held, that petitioners were not "paupers" as defined in this rule, being possessed of property worth Rs 100, other than the subject-matter of the suit —Dwarka Nath v. Madhavarav, 10 B 207, Mahalakshmi Ammal, In re, 50 M. L. J. 114: 94 I. C 337 A. I. R 1926 Mad 567. But see, Fatmabai v. Dossabhoy, 34 B 608, in which it was held (per Macleod, J.) that in such a case the petitioners could not be said to be entitled to property worth Rs. 100 inasmuch as every application to sue as a pauper may be defeated by the respondent paying into Court Rs 100 out of the amount claimed.

A Hindu widow applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis for the recovery of maintenance and her stridhanam jewels and cash withheld by the defendant. The defendant admitted liability for the jewels and cash and produced them in Court. It was found that the jewels and cash were more than sufficient to pay the Court fee and the Court dispaupered her. Held, on revision, that the order of the Court was improper and it not be said that owing to the defendants' offer the plaintiff was possessed of sufficient means to pay the prescribed Court-fee—Bai Balagirn v Motilal, 47 B. 523 25 Bom L. R. 199: A. I R. 1923 Bom 217

In an application to file a suit in forma pauperis on a claim which required the Court-fee of Rs. 1,775 on the plaint, it was found that the applicant had property worth Rs 1,600 Held, that the possession of Rs 1,600 would not enable the applicant to pay Rs. 1,775 which was the fee prescribed by the law for the plaint.—Ganga Bai v. Shridhar Annaji, Bom. L R. 642.

The mere fact that the applicant's husband has property is not a sufficient reason for disallowing her application for leave to sue as a pauper—Sharfunnessa v Nazni Khandun, 3 Pat L. J. 178 44 I. C 723

A person who applies for permission to sue as a pauper is not bound to try and raise funds by mortgaging his claims. Notwithstanding that he might do so, he may be a pauper under this rule.—Vedanta v. Perindevamma, 3 M. 249.

On an application to sue in forma pauperis, the Court is required to deal with the question of the applicant's pauperism, with reference to the definition as given in this rule, and in deciding it, to ascertain the exact property, its market value and the title thereto, and then to deal with the case under Or. XXXIII, r 5, irrespective of any surmises as to the reason why the applicant has valued his claim at a high figure.—Mahammad Hussain v. Ajudhya Prasad, 10 A. 497.

On proof of pauperism, a company represented by its liquidator can be granted leave to sue in forma pauperis for the recovery of a debt due to the company. The word " person " in the Explanation to Or. XXXIII r 1, includes a company or association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not.—Perumal Gounden v. Thirumalarayapuram J. D Ld, 41 M 624 34 M L J. 421 45 I C. 164.

" Is not possessed of sufficient means."—A debt which is due to the applicant from a third person cannot be said to be means of which the applicant is possessed The words " is not possessed of " must mean that the applicant has no actual control over it.—Mamia Khatun v Sheikh Satkari, 45 C L J. 68 A I R. 1927 Cal. 309: 100 I. C 264.

" Other than his necessary wearing apparel."—Ornaments which a woman ordinarily wears are of the same class of personal property as her wearing apparel and cannot be taken into consideration in determining whether he has sufficient means to pay the Court-fees —Mabia Khatun v Sheik Satkari, 45 C. L J. 68: A. I. R 1927 Cal. 309: 100 I. C. 264

Subject-matter of the Suit.—The words " other than his necessary wearing apparel and the subject-matter of the suit " in the explanation do not qualify that part of the explanation which requires that the person should not be possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee prescribed by law, but only the condition that the applicant is not entitled to property worth Rs 100.—Krishnabi Janardan v. Manohor Sundaram, 30 B. 593: 8 Bom. L R. 671.

Where a mortgagor sues the mortgagee for redemption of the mortgage, his equity of redemption is no part of the subject-matter of the suit and its value therefore should be taken into consideration in determining whether he is a pauper.—Kapil Deo v. Ram Rikha, 33 A. 238; Achal Singh v. Seth Jibandas, 19 N. L. R. 165.

Suit Instituted in the Ordinary Form may be Continued In Forma Pauperis.—A Court has power under this Chapter to allow a suit, instituted in the ordinary form, to be continued in forma pauperis.—Thompson v. Calcutta Tramway Co, 20 C. 319 See also, Nirmul Chunder v Doyal Nath, 2 C. 130: and Revji Patil v Sakha Ram, 8 B. 615

Pauper Defendant.—Although this Chapter of the C. P. Code only provides for suits to be brought by a pauper, the Court has power to allow a defendant to defend in forma pauperis—Doorga Churn v. Nitta Kally, 5 C. 819: 6 C L. R. 120. But see, Coates v. Secretary of State, 54 P R. 1905: 121 P. L R. 1905, where it has been held that the defendant cannot be allowed to defend a suit in forma pauperis, inasmuch as there is no provision in the Code authorizing such a course

Suit by Next Friend, Administrator, Executor, Trustee, or Legal Representative.—The next friend of a minor who is not himself a pauper may sue in forma pauperis on behalf of a pauper minor—Venkatanarasayya v. Achemma, 3. M 3. Nanibala v Jamini Sundari, 37 C. L J 394; Nemi Chand Bhick Chand v. Keval Chand, 26 Bom L. R. 380. A suit can be brought in forma pauperis by a next friend who is also a pauper—Galaupmonee v Prosonnomoye, 11 B L. R 373

Where a guardian obtains permission to sue in forma pauperis on behalf of minor, the dismissal of the suit is no ground for throwing the costs of the suit on the guardian.—Brijessuree v Kishoro Dass, 25 W. R. 316.

A Shebait who is not possessed of sufficient means to pay Court-fees both personally and as a shebait may apply for leave to sue in forma pauperis for recovery of certain endowed properties from his co-shebaits.—Nanda v. Dwarka, 16 C. W. N 93.

The administrator of the estate of a deceased person may apply to sue in forma pauperis under the provisions of this Chapter.—In re Bill, 7 M. 390.

Where an executor is not in possession of the property of his testator, and cannot get possession of it, and he has not himself the means of paying the necessary fees, he may be allowed to petition for, and, if entitled thereto, to obtain probate in forma pauperis—In the matter of the Will of Dawabai, 18 B. 237.

The provisions of this Chapter do not preclude a person, who has obtained leave to sue under s. 18 of the Religious Endowment Act (XX of 1863), for the removal of the trustees of a temple, from being permitted to sue in forma pauperis.—Gurusami v. Krishna Sami, 24 M. 419.

There is no necessity for an enquiry, whether an alleged legal representative of an admitted pauper plaintiff is a pauper or not. The Court, if satisfied that he is the legal representative, ought to admit him to carry on the suit.—Bhagbut Dass v. Buloram Dass, 3 W. R. Mis. 20. But see, Manaji v. Khandoo, 36 B. 279, in which it was held that in such a case, the legal representative may be permitted to continue the suit in forma pauperis if he himself is a pauper. See also, Lalit Mohun v. Satis Chandra, 33 C 1163: 4 C. L. J 234, followed in Farzand Ali Khan v Mir Ameer Haidar, 26 I. C. 714: 18 O. C. 64, where it was held that the right to apply for leave to sue in forma pauperis being a personal right, if the applicant dies before the leave is granted, his legal representative is not entitled to continue the application. See also, Rao Saheb Manaji Rajuji v Khandoo, 13 Bom. L. R. 577.

The plaintiff in a suit brought in forma pauperis died, but in ignorance of her death the Court passed a decree in her favour. The defendant appealed, making respondent a lady who he alleged was the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff and an order was passed by consent of the parties sending back the suit for retrial on the merits On re-trial the suit was again decreed. Held, that the defendant was estopped from disputing the right of the representative of the original plaintiff to sue as a pauper —Akbar Husain v Alia Bibi, 25 A. 137.

Plaintiff Suing in Representative Capacity—His Personal Property should Not be Taken into Account.—When a plaintiff sues in a representative character, such as a mutwalli, trustee or a Shebait, unless it is shown that the plaintiff has in his possession property belonging to the wakf estate or trust or the idol for whom he sues, sufficient to enable him to pay the requisite Court-fee prescribed by law, he may be allowed to sue as a pauper even if it is shown that he has sufficient personal property of his own The capacity of a person suing in a representative character must be kept distinct from his personal capacity.—Mabia Khatun v. Sheik Sathan, 45 C. L J. 68 A I R 1927 Cal. 309: 100 I. C. 264.

Formerly Excepted Suits.—S. 402, C. P. Code, 1882, Which ran as follows. "No suit shall be brought by a pauper to recover compensation for loss of caste, libel, slander, abusive language, or assault," have been omitted.

" The Committee have not preserved s. 402 In the light of the case law it is misleading so far it suggests that a suit will lie for loss of caste or abusive language, and they can see no sufficient reason for withholding from a pauper a right to sue as such in respect of a defamation or assault " —See the Report of the Special Committee.

Contents of application.

2. Every application for permission to sue as a pauper shall contain the particulars required in regard to plaints in suits: a schedule of any moveable or immoveable property belonging to the applicant with the estimated value thereof, shall be annexed thereto; and it shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed for the signing and verification of pleadings. [S 403.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 403, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only. Some of the words of the old section have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words. The procedure laid down in r. 2 is to be followed when a suit is proposed to be instituted in forma pauperis

Contents of Application.—Where a pauper applicant omits to mention his immoveable property and also fails to submit a list of such property when required, the application is not in proper form.—Sheo Narain Lal v. Mt. Munaqqa, 9 O. L. J. 610: 74 I. C. 344.

Verification.—Where the petitioner did not verify the contents of the petition at the foot of the petition, but he did so by a separate affidavit in which the statements contained in the several paragraphs of the petition were said to be true and no part of them was false and nothing had been concealed. Held, this affidavit being annexed to the petition must be treated as a part of it; Pirji Ashraf Ali v. Rameshwar Nath, A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 684.

Death of Applicant.—The right to obtain permission to sue as a pauper is only a personal right, and on the death of the applicant his legal representative cannot come in as such and be substituted in his place but if he is a pauper himself he can file a fresh application for leave to sue in forma pauperis.—Lalit Mohan v. Satish Chandra, 33 C. 1163, 4 C. L. J. 234.

Presentation of application.

3. Notwithstanding anything contained in these rules the application shall be presented to the Court by the applicant in person, unless he is exempted from appearing in Court, in which case the application may be presented by an authorized agent who can answer all material questions relating to the application, and who may be examined in the same manner as the party represented by him might have been examined had such party attended in person.

[S. 404.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 404, C P Code, with some alterations of a verbal character

The words "in these rules" have been substituted for the words "in s. 30," the words "under ss 640 or 641," which stood after the words "from appearing in Court," and the word "duly" which stood before the word "authorized agent" in the old section have been omitted.

"Shall be presented in person."—The provisions of this rule requiring the petition for permission to sue in forma pauperis to be presented by the petitioner in person is imperative and must be held to control the provisions of Or. III, r 1—Ex parte Dergir, 4 Bom H C 91

Presentation need not be to the Court itself Presentation to the proper officer of the Court is sufficient —Chidambaram v. Kadar Mohideen, 48 M 785 A I R 1921 Mad 901

This rule which requires an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis to be presented (except in certain circumstances) by the appl[illegible] in person, does not apply to an application under s 592, C. P. Code, I- (Or XLIV, r 1), to be allowed to appeal as a pauper.—Maithi v. S

Baruta, 26 M. 309 But see, in re Narise, 8 M. 504 (21 W. R. 308 referred to).

Authorized Agent.—" Authorized Agent " in r. 3 clearly does not include a recognised agent or pleader. In order to bring him within the rule he must be specially authorized for the purpose.—Sakina Bibi v. Charanjit Singh, 20 P. L. R. 1915. 28 I. C. 448 (21 W. R. 308 referred to)

The Court rejected a petition of appeal presented on behalf of a pauper by a pleader who was retained under an ordinary Vakalatnama, but was not specially authorized to sign as attorney for the applicant.—Bhugobutty v. Ganesh, 21 W R. 308

The mere fact that sveral persons jointly present an application for permission to sue as pauper, does not authorize the Court to entertain it on behalf of the applicants who do not appear in person.—Burgess v Sidden, 10 M. 193

Pardanashin Woman.—Where an appeal in forma pauperis by a pardanashin woman, who had sued as a pauper in the first Court, was presented by a person, other than an advocate, vakil or attorney, or by the suitor, but by her duly authorized agent, held, that was a good presentation.—Wazirunnissa v. Ilahi Baksh, 24 A 172.

See Or XLIV, as to Appeal in forma pauperis.

Examination of applicant.

4. (1) Where the application is in proper form and duly presented, the Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant, or his agent when the applicant is allowed to appear by agent regarding the merits of the claim and the property of the applicant.

If presented by agent, Court may order applicant to be examined by commission.

(2) Where the application is presented by an agent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order that the applicant be examined by a commission in the manner in which the examination of an absent witness may be taken. [S. 406]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 406, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations. Some of the words of the old section have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words.

Scope of the Enquiry.—In an enquiry under Or. XXXIII, C. P. Code, [illegible] evidence of the applicant himself [illegible] s power to the Court to examine the applicant [illegible] claim and the property of the applicant, so that there is no doubt that the applicant himself can be examined not only with reference to the question of pauperism but also with reference to the merits of the claim.—Jogendra Narayan v Durga Charan, 46 C. 651: 52 I. C. 610.

The Court when making an enquiry under Or. XXXIII, rr. 4 and 7, cannot take any evidence except that of the applicant himself on the merits of the claim. The Court has to determine whether the allegation in the petition and the examination of the petitioner himself discloses a cause of action.—Sitanath v. Radharaman, 50 I. C 676.

Examination of Applicant.—The C P Code does not authorize the rejection of an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for want of merits when the applicant is found to be a pauper, and his allegations disclose a right to sue. When an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is made, the Court should not go into evidence as to the merits of the claim.—Ranganavaka Ammal v. Venkata Chellapati, 4 M. 323; Narani Kuar v. Makhan Lal, 17 A. 526; and Abbasi Begam v. Nanhi Begam, 18 A. 206. See also, 2 C W. N. 474 and 8 C. W. N. 70, noted under r. 5 (b) and (d).

When a plaintiff applies for permission to sue in forma pauperis and is examined under Or. XXXIII, r. 4, the opposite party is entitled to cross-examine the applicant on the merits of his claim to test the statements he makes in his examination; Radha Raman v. Sitanath, 60 I. C. 738.

Rejection of application.

5. The Court shall reject an application for permission to sue as pauper—

(a) Where it is not framed and presented in the manner prescribed by rules 2 and 3, or

(b) Where the applicant is not a pauper, or

(c) Where he has, within two months next before the presentation of the application, disposed of any property fraudulently or in order to be able to apply for permission to sue as a pauper, or

(d) Where his allegations do not show a cause of action, or

(e) Where he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the proposed suit under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject-matter. [Ss. 405 and 407.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule has embodied the provisions of ss. 405 and 407 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

Clause (a) corresponds to section 405 of the old Code with some verbal changes only.

Clause (b) is similar to cl. (a) of the old section.

Clause (c) is similar to cl. (b) of the old section with change of some words and phrases.

Clause (d) has been substituted for clause (c) of the old section, which ran as follows: "That his allegations do not show a right to sue in such Courts." These words gave rise to several conflicting rulings, and in order to set at rest the several conflicting rulings, the words "cause of action" have been substituted for the words "right to sue in such court" which occurred in the old section. The conflicting rulings have been noted under clause (d). For the meaning of the words "cause of action," see notes under s 20 and Or. XI, r 2.

Scope of Rule.—By the above amendment the scope of the present rule has been enlarged, as the words "cause of action" are wide enough to include the cases mentioned in 7 A. 661, 20 A. 299, 19 M. 197, 13 B. 126 and 27 M. 37. The object of the amendment will be clearly understood on reference to the above cases.

Clause (e) corresponds to cl. (d) of the old section.

Clause (a). Where Application Not Properly Framed.—If an application is improperly framed through misjoinder of causes of action and reliefs, the Court has got the power to amend the application under s. 141, of the C P Code —Kanakammal v. Panchapakesa, 26 M. L J 343· (1914) M. W N 329 23 I C. 82. But see, Kalikumar v. N. N. Burjorjee, 20 I C 640· 7 B L. R 60 6 Bur L. T. 141, where it was held that an application ought to be rejected as being improperly framed, where it is not accompanied by a schedule of the applicant's moveable and immoveable properties Clause (b). Where Applicant Not a Pauper.—On an application to sue in forma pauperis, the Court is required to deal with the question of the applicant's pauperism with reference to the definition of that word as given in the explanation to Or XXXIII, r. 1 and, in deciding it, to ascertain the exact property, its market-value, and the title thereto, and then to deal with the case under r. 5, irrespective of any surmises as to the reason why the applicant has valued his claim at a high figure.—Muhammad Husain v Ajudhia Prasad, 10 A. 467

The Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the rejection of an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for want of merits when the applicant is found to be a pauper, and his allegations disclose a right to sue When an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is made, the Court should not go into the evidence as to the merits of the claim —Benji-nayaka Ammal v Venkata Chellapati, 4 M. 323. See also, Debo Dai v Mohunt Ram Charan, 2 C. W. N. 474. Followed in Gopal Chandra v Bigoo Mistry, 8 C W. N 70.

Where an application is made for leave to sue in forma pauperis, the Court is bound to proceed on the valuation put upon the suit by the plaintiff and to investigate whether he has sufficient means to enable him to pay the Court-fee on the plaint as presented by him It is not open to the Court to investigate his claim in order to enable him to sue as a pauper; Tulsi Mahatani v Gajedhar, 61 I. C. 891.

At an enquiry under this rule, if it be found that the petitioner is possessed of property which is within his reach and can be made use of by him to carry on his litigation, such property cannot be excluded from consideration.—Dwarka Nath v. Madhavrav, 10 B. 207.

The father as next friend of a minor applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis for damages for serious bodily injuries received by her. The Court rejected the application under Or. XXXIII, r. 5, on the ground that the next friend, the father of the plaintiff was not a pauper Held, that the order should be set aside and the matter inquired into under Or. XXXIII, r. 6 of the C. P Code —Mussammat Imirmon v Secretary of State, 23 C. W. N. 955

Clause (d). Where Allegations do Not Show Cause of Action.—It is open to the Court to consider not only the statement made in the plaint but also the statements made in his examination by the applicant before the Court, in determining whether his allegations disclose a cause of action as laid down in Or XXXIII, r 5, cl. (d) But the Court cannot examine the witnesses for deciding the question of limitation or any other question other than the pauperism of the applicant —Jogendra Narayan v. Durga Charan, 46 C 651 52 I C 610 See also, Sita Nath v Radharaman, 50 I. C. 676, Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad v Harish Chandra, 13 C. L J. 563 .

The non-existence of a cause of action should appear clearly on the face of the application itself, which alone would justify the Court in rejecting the application The Court would be acting without jurisdiction if it should travel beyond the four corners of the application and take into consideration matters not stated therein or consider any document or other evidence in order to determine whether there is a cause of action or not; Rama Chandra v. Venkiah, 52 M L J 380 A I R 1927 Mad. 441

Clause (d) does not refer solely to a question of jurisdiction, but the applicant must make out that he has a good subsisting prima facie cause of action capable of enforcement in Court and calling for an answer, and not barred by res judicata, limitation, or any other law —Chattarpal Singh v. Raja Ram, 7 A. 661 (followed in 134 P R. 1919 : 53 I C. 441) See also, Kamarak Nath v Sundar Nath, 20 A. 299 (4 M 323 dissented from); Vijendra Tirtha v. Sudhindra Tirtha, 19 M. 197; Dulari v. Vallab Das, 13 B. 126; and Amritham v Alwar Manikkam, 27 M. 37 (20 A. 299 followed)

A Court shall reject an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis, if it finds the claim barred on the face of it by limitation. The words "cause of action" in r. 5 mean a good and subsisting cause of action.—Govindasami v. The Municipal Council, Kumbakonam, 33 M. L. J. 577 (1917) M. W. N. 585. But it has been held in ... v. Vadamalai, A. I. R. 1926 Mad 135, the ... lication for leave to sue in forma pauperis, ... on of limitation.

Where application is made for leave to sue in forma pauperis, the Court is not bound to give the leave if the allegations made by the petitioner are such that, if true, they would show a good cause of action.—Sankarama Ayyar v Subramania Ayyar, 27 M. 120.

In an enquiry under Or. XXXIII, r. 5 (d), if there is nothing to show from the allegations in the plaint as they stand, that the petitioner has no right to sue, then the Court is justified in rejecting the application. But where a Judge in making an enquiry, finds that the applicant is a pauper and then addresses himself to the merits of the case, to the rights of parties, and to matters which are entirely foreign to the enquiry that he has to make, he exceeds his jurisdiction, and the High Court has power to interfere under s. 622, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 115).—Debo Das v. Mohunt Ram Charan 2 C. W. N. 474 (Followed in Gopal Chundra v. Bigoo Mistry, 8 C. W. N. 70); Natesa Ayyar v. Manogya Ayyar, 10 L. W. 589 (2 C. W. N. 474 relied on). It is not permissible in a pauper petition to go into an elaborate enquiry on the merits of the plaintiff's case; Charukonda v. Lakshmarri 97 I. C. 349. A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1160.

Where an application is made for leave to sue in forma pauperis it is open to the Court to dismiss the application on the ground that though the plaint disclose a cause of action, the plaintiffs' case would fail on the merits.—Polimati Munigadu v. Nalla Bapadu, 18 L. W. 53. 73 I. C. 946 (1923) M. W. N. 412; or that the claim is doubtful, Mt. Rujibai v. Sadashib, 75 I. C. 744.

Where a petition in a suit in forma pauperis had been admitted and the case came on for hearing under Or. XXXIII, r. 7, it was proposed for the defendant to show by examination of the plaintiff that on the facts stated in the petition, she had no cause of action. The Court allowed the plaintiff to be examined to show that, on her own evidence, she had no cause of action, but refused to allow other witnesses to be called upon.—Taramoney ... 11 B. L. R. ... Hurro Mohun, 11 B. L. R. Ap. 28. But In re Ganga Dass, 11 B. L. R. ... note 14 W. R. 281, it was held that where, on the day fixed for hearing evidence on the question of pauperism, the defendant brings to notice of the Court any ground on which it would have been bound to refuse to admit the petition, it is in the discretion of the Court to admit or refuse to receive evidence of such ground. Approved in Vijendra Tirtha v. Sudhindra Tirtha, 19 M. 197.

An application by a Mahomedan woman for leave to sue her husband for exigible dower in forma pauperis, may be taken to express her intention of bringing an action for dower only if she obtains leave to do so as a pauper. Until she has the Court's permission to sue, her application does not amount to a demand by way of action. A counter-petition by the husband objecting to the pauper suit being allowed, and denying his liability to pay the dower does not alter the character of the proceedings, since no opposition on his part can constitute a cause of action, unless there has been a previous demand by the wife.—Khajarunnissa v. Saifulla Khan, 15 B. L. R. ... 13 W. R. ... P. C., 24 W. R. 163, P. C. (reversing 5 B. L. R. 84; 13 W. R. ...).

The subsequent insolvency of the petitioner is no ground for rejecting the application.—Chidambaram v. Kother, 48 M. L. J. 491. 87 I. C. 720. A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 791.

Clause (e). Transfer of Interest in Subject-matter—Whether Benamidar Plaintiffs can be Allowed to Sue as Paupers.—The provisions of Or. XXXIII of the C. P. Code have been designed to aid bona fide litigants and must be strictly confined to such litigants. It cannot have been the intention of the Legislature that a litigant, fully able to comply with the terms of the fiscal law, should, by setting up a pauper as a nominee, be entitled to evade the claim of the State. The effect of permitting a benamidar to sue as a pauper would be to give a person who is not a pauper the right to evade the fiscal law and to infringe the provision of Or. XXXIII, r 5 (e) of the C. P. Code.—Srimoti Charusila v. Haran Chandra, (1919) Pat. 232: 50 I. C. 520.

On an application by two persons for permission to sue in forma pauperis, it appeared that they had entered into an agreement with the pleader to pay his remuneration out of the proceeds of the property in dispute after its recovery. Held, that such an agreement was within the scope of clause (e), and their application to sue as paupers was rejected —Monohar Ram Chandra v. Lakshman, 9 B. 371 No leave to appeal in forma pauperis can be given when at the date of suit there was subsisting an agreement falling within this clause —Hamja Bai v Haji Seddik, 30 M 547. 17 M. L J 447.

Revision.—A revision petition lies against an order of the Court rejecting an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis—Secy of State v. Jillo, 21 A. 133. Muhammad v. Ajudhia, 10 A. 467; Debo Das v. Mohunt Ram Charan, 2 C. W. N. 474 (folld in Gopal v Bigoo, 8 C. W. N. 70); Rama Chandra v. Venkiah, 52 M. L. J 380, A. I. R 1927 Mad 441.

Doctrine of Lis Pendens.—Doctrine of lis pendens applies to an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis, although the application was not numbered and registered as a suit —Ambika Pratap v Dwarka Prasad 30 A 95.

6. Where the Court sees no reason to reject the application on any of the grounds stated in rule 5, it shall fix a day (of which at least 10 days' clear notice shall be given to the opposite party and the Government pleader) for receiving such evidence as the applicant may adduce in proof of his pauperism, and for hearing any evidence which may be adduced in disproof thereof. [S. 408.]

Notice of day for receiving evidence of applicant's pauperism.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 408, C P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

"Notice shall be given to the opposite party."—Where a Munsif disposed of an application for leave to sue as a pauper, without taking such evidence as the opposite party had offered before the Court, and without notice to the opposite party and the Government: Held, the Court acted without jurisdiction in dealing with the pauper application, and a revision lay; Nonikrishna v. Nabamonjuri, A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 461. 100 I. C 720

Evidence in Disproof of Applicant's Pauperism.—A defendant is entitled at the hearing to adduce evidence in disproof of the alleged pauperism of the plaintiff Therefore a Court should not allow a plaintiff to sue in forma pauperis, without opportunity afforded to the defendant to prove that the plaintiff is not a pauper.—Zillar Rahman v Gaufar Hossain, 22 I. C 974 (10 B 207., 30 B 593 8 Bom L. R. 671 relied on).

The only matter in regard to which evidence may be taken is the question of the pauperism or otherwise of the applicant. R 6 does not empower the Court to try the question of the plaintiff's title after taking evidence on that question and in fact to try the suit on the merits before the application for leave to sue is granted (46 C. 651 applied; 20 A 299 distd), Mt Shauran Bibi v Abdus Samad, 45 A 518. 21 A L J 441

7. (1) On the day so fixed or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Court shall examine the witnesses (if any) produced by either party, and may examine the applicant or his agent and shall make a memorandum of the substance of their evidence.

Procedure at hearing.

(2) The Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the application and of the evidence (if any) taken by the Court as herein provided, the applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in rule 5.

(3) The Court shall then either allow or refuse to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s 409 of the C. P. Code, 1882

Scope of Enquiry.—In an enquiry on an application to sue in forma pauperis under Or XXXIII, rr. 4, 5 and 7, C. P. Code, the primary question which the Court should consider is the fact of the petitioner's pauperism and the Court should not go into the merits of the petitioner's claim and determine a complicated question of law such as limitation —Kalliani Amma v Matathil Veetil, 37 M L J. 309. (1919) M W N 573 53 I C 239 See also, Sitanath v. Radharaman, 50 I. C 610; Jogendra Narayan v Durga Charan, 46 C. 651: 52 I. C. 610, Bhagwanti v Bua Ditta, 76 I. C 40.

that he has to make, he exceeds his jurisdiction.—Deba Das v. Mohunt Ram Charan, 2 C. W. N. 474; Gopal Chandra v. Bigoo Mistry, 8 C. W. N. 70.

"The Court shall hear argument."—Or. XXXIII, r. 7 which provides that "the Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether on the face of the application and of the evidence the applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in r. 5," enable the parties to argue the question if they so desire but does not preclude the Court if no argument is offered, from considering that question of its own motion.—Amirtham v. Alwar Manikkam, 27 M. 37.

Evidence.—The evidence to be taken under r. 7 is confined to the evidence which may be adduced by the applicant in proof of pauperism and any evidence which may be adduced in disproof thereof as laid down in r. 6.—Jogendra v. Durga Charan, 46 C. 651: 52 I. C. 610 (20 A. 299: 13 B. 126: 13 C. L. J. 598, followed). See also, Srimati Charusila v. Haran Chandra, (1919) Pat. 232: 50 I. C. 520.

"The applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in rule 5."—On this point see notes under clauses (b), (d), and (e) of r. 5.

Where an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis was rejected for want of prosecution, the order rejecting the application is an order under this rule, and operates as a bar under s. 413, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXIII, r. 15), to the entertainment of the second application in the same right.—Ranchod Morar v. Bezanji Edulji, 20 B. 86. But in Kedar Nath v. Tula Bibi, 10 C. W. N. civ (104-n), it was held (dissenting from 20 B. 86) that there having been no adjudication on the former occasion on the question of pauperism, this rule was no bar.

Limitation Where Application Refused.—Where an application to sue as a pauper is refused, and a suit in the ordinary way in respect of the same subject-matter is subsequently instituted by the applicant, the suit, for the purposes of limitation, will be deemed to have been instituted on the date on which the plaint is presented, and not the date on which the rejected application was filed.—Narami v. Mohanlal, 17 A. 526; Abhoya v. Bissesswari, 24 C. 889; Keshav v. Krishna Rao, 20 B. 508.

Limitation Where Application is Converted into a Plaint on Payment of Court-fees.—Where a person applies for converting his application for leave to sue as a pauper into a plaint on payment of the necessary Court-fees, the suit will be deemed to have been instituted, for the purposes of limitation, on the day on which the application for leave to sue as a pauper was filed, and not the day on which the Court-fees were paid.—Sooklal v. Dalchand, 1 Rang. 196: 74 I. C. 835: A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 256; Janakdhary v. Janki, 28 C. 427; Narami v. Makhanlal, 17 A. 526.

Appeal from Orders under this Rule.—An order rejecting an application for permission to sue as a pauper, and striking the case off the Court's file, on the ground that the applicant had previously withdrawn the application and entered into a new contract with the defendants, is appealable as a decree.—Baldeo v. Gula Kuar, 9 A. 129. Referred to in Ranchod

Morar v Bezanji, 20 B 86 But see, The Secretary of State v. J?? 21 A 133, where it has been held that no appeal lies from an order rejecting an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis.

Where after consideration of an application for leave to sue as a pauper, the Court of first instance has allowed the suit to be instituted in forma pauperis, and has passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff, it is not open to the defendant in appeal to question the propriety of the first Court's order permitting the plaintiff to sue as a pauper.—Mumtazan v Rasulan, 23 A 364.

Order under this Rule is Subject to Review.—An order under this rule refusing leave to sue as a pauper is subject to review under s 623, C P Code, 1882 (s 114 and Or. XLVII, r. 1)—Adarji v. Manikji, 4 B 415 See also, In the matter of the petition of Umasundari, 5 B. L R App 29; and Mahomed Gazee v. Dullab Bibee, 5 B. L R. 318-note 11 W. R. 22.

Procedure if application admitted.

8. Where the application is granted, it shall be numbered and registered, and shall be deemed the plaint in the suit, and the suit shall proceed in all other respects as a suit instituted in the ordinary manner, except that the plaintiff shall not be liable to pay any Court-fee (other than fees payable for service of processes) in respect of any petition, appointment of a pleader or other proceeding connected with the suit. 9. The Court may, on the application of the defendant, or of the Government pleader, of which seven days' clear notice in writing has been given to the plaintiff, order the plaintiff to be dispaupered—

(a) if he is guilty of vexatious or improper conduct in the course of the suit ;

(b) if it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper ; or

(c) if he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the suit, under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject-matter. [S. 414.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 414, C. P. Code, 1882, with change of some words and phrases. No change has been made in the meaning.

Object and Scope of Rule.—The object of this rule is, that if after the permission to sue in forma pauperis has been granted, it is found that, [on] the grounds mentioned in the rule, the applicant should not be allowed to continue the suit in forma pauperis, then on the application of the defendant or of the Government pleader, the Court may order the plaintiff to be dispaupered.

"If it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper."—The word "means" in this clause is to be interpreted with the help of the definition of "pauper" in Or. XXXIII, r. 1. To apply clause (b) of r. 9, the Court could dispauper her when her means are such as to enable her to pay the Court-fee of Rs. 3,000 upon the plaint in the case.—Srimati Savitri v. Secretary of State for India, 2 Pat. 879: 4 Pat. L. T. 538.

The mere fact that the plaintiff was appearing through eminent counsel would not be sufficient to dispauper the plaintiff.—Srimati Savitri v. Secretary of State for India, 2 Pat. 879: 4 Pat. L. T. 538.

Where a person found to be a pauper on the date of her application had received a large sum immediately after, which she alleged, she had paid away to a creditor. Held, that having been in possession of funds after her application, her plea as a pauper failed and it was not relieved by her paying the money away. The court had no jurisdiction to grant her leave to sue in forma pauperis, once it had ascertained that she had ceased to be a pauper after the date of her application.—Gadigi Muddappa v. Rudramma, 13 L. W. 76: 61 I. C. 958.

"Vexatious or improper conduct."—Though concealment of property may amount to improper conduct which by itself would entitle the Court to dispauper a plaintiff under Or. XXXIII, r. 9, the facts which came to light in this case only demanded a further scrutiny by the Court to ascertain whether the plaintiff had means so that he ought not to be allowed to continue the suit as a pauper.—Shankarabhat v. Shankarabhat, 24 Bom. L. R. 734.

"Agreement with reference to subject-matter of suit."—This provision is not limited to an agreement by way of champerty or maintenance, but is intended rather to prevent a party continuing his suit as a pauper after a third party, not necessarily a pauper had for any cause whatever obtained an interest in the subject-matter of the suit and consequently an interest in paying the Court-fees due to Government.—Edulji Cowasji v. Dadabhoy, 7 S. L. R. 52 (18 B. 464 referred to)

Appeal in forma pauperis.—Compromise of suit pending appeal and withdrawal of appeal—Application by Government pleader for payment of all costs payable to Government on account of institution fees, etc —Opposition by parties to [illegible] by Government pleader to dispau[illegible] Held, that the appeal having been [illegible] either under s. 412 (Or XXXIII, r. 11) or under s 414 (Or XXXIII, r 6), C P Code, 1882.—Bai Chandaba v Kuver Saheb, 18 B 464

10. Where the plaintiff succeeds in the suit, the Court shall calculate the amount of court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; such amount shall be recoverable by the Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same, and shall be a first charge on the subject-matter of the suit. [S. 411.]

Costs where pauper succeeds.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s 411, C P Code, 1882

Right of Government to Realize Court-fees.—The Crown has the first claim to the proceeds of a pauper suit to the extent of the amount of the Court-fees that would have been payable at the institution of the suit had the plaintiff not been a pauper —Ganpat Patya v Collector of Kanara, 1 B. 7: followed in Gayanoda Bala v Butto Krishna, 33 C. 1010 10 C. W. N. 857; Gulzari Lal v Collector of Bareilly, 1 A 596 But in the Full Bench case of Dost Mahommad v Mani Ram, 29 A 537 4 A L J. 720, it has been held that the sale subject to a mortgage of property belonging to the defendant in a suit brought in forma pauperis for the purpose of realizing the Court-fee payable to Government by the plaintiff, does not preclude the mortgagee from bringing to sale the same property in execution of a decree for sale on his mortgage (2 A 196 overruled, 1 B. 7 distinguished)

Where a pauper plaintiff succeeded only partially in the suit he brought and the amount decreed to him was less than what he had to pay the defendant as costs under the decree Held, that the Government could recover nothing out of the amount decreed towards the Court-fees due to it.—T. V Chakrapani v The Government of India, (1921) M W N 805: 14 L W 529

Costs Where Plaintiff Succeeds.—The defendant is liable to pay Court-fees proportionately where plaintiff succeeded only in part and failed as regards the rest of the claim.—Ganga Dahal v Gaura, 14 A L J 657 38 A. 469

Mode of Recovery of Court-fees by Government.—The amount of stamp in a pauper case cannot be claimed as a lien or charge upon the decree in favour of Government, but is recoverable in the same manner as the costs of the suits—Government being, as regards its claim in such a case, in no higher position than an ordinary judgment-creditor —Prankrista v Collector of Moorshidabad, 15 W R 205 But in Puthia Valapil v Veloth Assenar, 25 M 733, a contrary view seems to have been taken in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay the court-fee or postal charges (if any) chargeable for such service, or the Court shall order the plaintiff, or any person added as a co-plaintiff to the suit, to pay the court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper. [S. 412.]

(b) because the plaintiff does not appear when the suit is called on for hearing.

COMMENTARY.

Alteration in the Rule.—The word "withdrawn" has been newly added, and para. 2 of the old section, which contained the provision for the punishment of the pauper, has been omitted. The old section is reproduced here for observing the changes introduced by this rule.—"If the plaintiff fails in the suit, or if he is dispaupered, or if the suit is dismissed under section 97 or 98, the Court shall order the plaintiff or any person made, under section 32, co-plaintiff to the suit, to pay the Court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; and if it finds that the suit was frivolous or vexatious, it may also punish the plaintiff with fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to a month, or with both."

"Where the suit is withdrawn."—The above change has been introduced on account of several conflicting rulings regarding the meaning of the expression "if the plaintiff fails in the suit," as will apear from the cases noted below. In some of the Bombay cases, it was held, that section 412 of the old Code applied only to cases of adjudicated failure (15 B. 77 and 17 B. 464); and in some cases doubts were expressed as to whether "failure" includes withdrawal of suits With a view to clear away this conflict, the word "withdrawn" has been added in the present rule, adopting the law as laid down in the Full Bench case in 31 B 10, by which 15 B 77 and 18 B. 464 have been overruled

Where a pauper plaintiff withdraws from a suit without permission under s. 373, C P. Code, 1882 (Or XXIII, r. 1) as the result of a compromise, by which he obtains a substantial part of the relief claimed, he fails in the suit within the meaning of this rule —Secretary of State v. Bhagirathi Bai, 31 B 10, F. B . 8 Bom. L. R 689 (15 B 77 and 18 B. 464 overruled)

The words "if the plaintiff fails in the suit" in s 412, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXIII, r 11), apply to the withdrawal of a suit under s. 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 1) Where a pauper plaintiff withdraws a suit with liberty to bring fresh suit, he is liable to pay to Government Court-fees —Secretary of State v. Narayan Balkrishna, 29 B 102 (15 B. 77 and 18 B 464 distinguished; 21 M 113 referred to)

If the plaintiff fails in his suit brought in forma pauperis, he is liable to pay Government the amount of Court-fees.—Balwant Singh v. Roshan Singh, 18 A. 253, p. 255

"The Court shall order the plaintiff to pay the Court-fees."—The terms of this rule are mandatory, and it is obligatory upon the Court when passing the decree, to provide in the decree for the payment of Court-fees —Secretary of State v. Bhagwanti Bibi, 13 A. 326, 329 When the Court omits to pass such an order, it is now provided by r 12 that the Government has the right to apply to the Court for an order as to costs at any time Under the old Code it was [illegible] party to the suit, it had no right of [illegible] could proceed only by an application [illegible] v. Janardan, 6 B 590, Collector of Canara v. Krishnappa, 15 B [illegible] Chandara v. Kuver, 18 B. 464.

Where an application to sue in forma pauperis was rejected solely on the ground of the minority of the plaintiff, and that such minor was not properly represented by a next friend or guardian, without any enquiry as to his pauperism, and the Court ordered all costs to be paid out of the minor's estate Held, that, as no enquiry was made as to the pauperism of the minor, the order for costs against the minor's estate could not be passed under this section, and that the order was illegal and ultra vires —Amichand Talakchand v. Collector of Sholapur, 13 B 231

Costs.—This rule does not deal with the cost of successful defendant in a pauper suit The costs of defendant in such a case are to be dealt with under s 35, C P Code, and the Court of original or appellate jurisdiction has full power to give and apportion costs in any manner it thinks fit.—Jetha Mulchand v Gulraj Jasrup, 8 B. 577.

Government may apply for payment of court-fees.

12. The Government shall have the right at any time to apply to the Court to make an order for the payment of court-fees under rule 10 or rule 11. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule is new It has been framed to meet the following case In 4 M 155, it was held that an application by Government for the payment of Court-fees is governed by three years' rule of limitation But under the present rule the Government shall have the right to apply at any time No question of limitation will arise.—See, Shaw Mohammed v Mohammed Ali Khan, 2 B. L R App 22; 11 W. R 6[illegible] where it has been held that the right of Government to recover the stamp fees in pauper suits is not affected by the rule of three years' limitation laid down in the Limitation Act.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is appealable as an order under s 47 —Secretary of State v. Narayana, 35 B 448· 13 Bom. L R 686.

13. All matters arising between the Government and any party to the suit under rule 10, rule 11 or rule 12 shall be deemed to be questions arising between the parties to the suit within the meaning of section 47. [New.]

Government to be deemed a party.

COMMENTARY.

Object and Scope of Rule.—This rule is new. It has been framed to set at rest the following conflicting decisions under the old Code by providing that though the Government is not actually a party to the suit, it shall be deemed to be a party to the suit for the purposes of s. 47 of the C. P. Code.

Where a decree in a pauper suit did not contain any order as to the payment of stamp-fees, and the Government applied to have the decree amended in that respect. Held, that the Government, not being a party to the suit, had no right to be heard in the matter.—In the matter of the petition of Secretary of State, 2 C. L. R. 461. But see, Collector of Kanara v. Krishnappa, 15 B. 77, where it has been held that the Government, though not a party to the suit, was entitled to move the High Court under section 622, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 115), on the question of Court-fees. See also, Collector of Kanara v. Ram Bhat, 18 B. 454 (6 B. 590 followed).

In a suit in forma pauperis the Court decreed the plaintiff's claim in part and dismissed it in part, but omitted to make any provision for payment to Government of the Court-fee on the portion dismissed. The Government preferred an appeal in respect of the Court-fee on the portion of the claim dismissed. Held, that such an appeal would lie.—Secretary of State v. Bhagwanti Bibi, 13 A. 326 (9 A. 64 referred to). But see, Collector of Kanara v. Ram Bhat, 18 B. 454, where it has been held, on the authority of The Collector of Ratnagiri v. Janardan, 6 B. 590, that no appeal by Government would lie in such a case, and that in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction, the High Court would rectify the decree by directing the plaintiff to pay the costs of Government. The Bombay cases have been followed in Collector of Trichinopoly v. Sivarama Krishna, 23 M. 78.

14. Where an order is made under r. 10, r. 11 or r. 12, the court shall forthwith cause a copy of the decree to be forwarded to the Collector. [New.]

Copy of decree to be sent to Collector

COMMENTARY.

This rule is new.

Under the old Code the copy of the decree had to be given to the Government pleader. A copy of a decree passed in favour of a pauper should be delivered to the Government pleader within seven days from the day the decree is signed.—See, Calcutta High Court's Circular Order No. 4, dated 16th February, 1878.

Refusal to allow applicant to sue as pauper to bar subsequent application of like nature

15. An order refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper shall be a bar to any subsequent application of the like nature by him in respect of the same right to sue; but the applicant shall be at liberty to institute a suit in the ordinary manner in respect of such right, provided that he first pays the costs (if any) incurred by the Government and by the opposite party in opposing his application for leave to sue as a pauper. [S. 413]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 413, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The words "an order refusing to allow" have been substituted for the words "an order of refusal made under s. 409" which occurred in the old section; and the words "and by the opposite party" have been added after the word 'Government,' as there was no express provision in the old Code for the payment of costs of the successful defendant. See, 8 P. 577, noted under r. 11.

Object and Scope of Rule.—Order XXXIII, r. 15 is to be read along with the provisions of rr. 5, 6 and 7. Rule 5 contemplates a summary rejection by the Court at the earliest stage of the proceedings. Rule 7 contemplates a refusal of the application to sue as a pauper on the fourth ground mentioned in r. 5, namely, that the allegations of the petitioner do not show a cause of action. Rule 15 contemplates the refusal of a second application when it is in respect of the same right to sue; that is, the right to sue which formed the basis of the previous application.—Ratnamala v. Kamalshyanath, 31 C. L. J. 351.

Subsequent Application.—An application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for redemption of a mortgage was rejected with costs for want of prosecution. Subsequently the plaintiff applied for leave to sue as a pauper for the redemption of the same mortgage. The application was granted, and was registered as a suit. Held, that the order rejecting the plaintiff's first application was an order under Or. XXXIII, r. 7, and that it operated as a bar under this rule to the entertainment of the second application.—Ranched Morar v. Bezanji Edulji, 20 B. 86. (Followed in Mt. Begum v. Jafar Hassan, 73 I. C. 897)

This rule does not bar a second application when the first application was rejected under r. 5 (a) as not having been accompanied by a schedule of moveable and immoveable property.—Mussammat Bal Kaur v. Sh. Das, 1 Lah. 151 (42 I. C. 803) F. B.; referred to, 33 I. C. 812 dissd.

Where an application to sue in forma pauperis is summarily rejected under Or. XXXIII, r. 5 (a), a second application to sue as a pauper is not barred by the provisions of this rule.—Chinnammal v. Papathi Ammal, 71 A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 986; Krishnamoorthy v. Ramayya, 51 M. L. J. 71, 96 I. C. 962. A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 875.

Where an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis was dismissed on the ground that the application was not framed and presented in accordance with the rules, and a subsequent application for the same purpose was dismissed for default, neither side appearing at the hearing Held, that a third application to sue as a pauper was not barred by the two earlier applications because they had not reached the stage of refusal within the meaning of this rule, and that such an application is expressly provided for by Or. IX, r. 4.—Ma Sein v. Ma Kya Hmyin, 4 Rang 245 · A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 200

A dismissal of an application to sue in forma pauperis for default is not an order refusing permission to sue as a pauper and hence is no bar to an application —Maung Aung Tun v. Ma. E. Kin, 2 Bur. L J. 217

Where the petitioner claims maintenance from the opposite party, her husband, and applies for leave to sue in forma pauperis but her appplication is dismissed under r 5 (d) as disclosing no cause of action and she applies more than two years after such dismissal for leave to sue in forma pauperis to recover maintenance for a period subsequent to the date when her first application was filed Held, that the subsequent application to sue in forma pauperis was not barred under this rule.—Ratnamala v Kamalshya, 31 C L J. 351 Though in such a case it was open to the applicant to file a suit in the ordinary way on payment of costs —Srimati Barada Dasi v Upendranath, 52 I C. 562.

Where there has been no refusal of the application to sue as a pauper, but it was dismissed for default by non-appearance, the applicant may revive his application for leave to sue.—Bhoj Singh v Mahakonwer, 3 Agra Mis 1

A Court has power to entertain an application under s 114 to review an order refusing under r 7 a petition for leave to sue in forma pauperis The provisions of this rule do not affect the right of a person, against whom such order has been made, to obtain a review.—Adurji Edulji v. Manickji Edulji, 4 B 414; In the matter of the petition of Umasundari, 5 B. L R. App. 29, and Mahomed Gazee v. Dullab Bibee, 5 B L R. 318-note.

There is a marked distinction between " a right to sue " and a right to make an application for permission to sue as pauper; and this distinction is clearly indicated in this rule The right to make such an application is obviously a personal right, and cannot survive in the legal representative who may or may not be a pauper himself.—Lalit Mohan v. Satish Chandra, 33 C. 1163 · 4 C L J 234

The bar to a subsequent application being a bar to the jurisdiction of the Court, the Court is competent and bound to take notice of it at any stage of the suit —Ramchod v Bezanji, 20 B. 86; Ali Afzal v. Purna, 40 C L J 188 84 I C. 703. A. I R. 1924 Cal. 1039.

Costs Incurred.—Under this rule, a person whose application to sue in forma pauperis has been rejected, must, in order to institute a suit in the ordinary way in respect of the same right, first pay the costs due to Government, but the suit ought not to be dismissed for default in payment of such costs unless demand for payment has been made either on behalf of the Government or by the Court —Mrinalini v. Tinkauri, 16 C. W N 641.

The following sections of the Transfer of Property Act IV of 1882 have been repealed: Sections 85 to 90, inclusive, 92 to 94 inclusive, 95, 97, 99, and in s. 100 the words: "and all the provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagee instituting a suit for the sale of the mortgaged property."—See, the Fifth Schedule.

The word "shall" has been substituted for the word "must," which occurred in the old section; and the reason for the omission will appear from the following cases:—In Bhawani Prasad v. Kallu, 17 A. 537 (555) it was held that the word must is one of the strongest words of compulsion which a Legislature can employ, and the Courts are bound to give effect to it and not to ignore it or its significance. Again in Matadin v. Kazim Husain, 13 A. 432, in Janaki Prasad v. Kishendat, 16 A. 478, and in Ghulam Kadir v Mustakin Khan, 18 A. 109, it was held that non-joinder of persons interested in the mortgaged property is a fatal defect in the suit, unless cured by the action of the Court under s 32, C. P. Code, 1882 [Or. I, r. 10 (2)]. Under the present rule, the Court may, acting under the rules contained in Or. I, add necessary parties in mortgage suits at any stage of the proceeding.

From the language of the old section it would appear that it was only subject to the provisions of s. 437 of the Code of 1882 (Or. XXXI, r. 1), but in the present rule the words "s 437" have been omitted, and by the omission all the rules of the present Code relating to the addition, substitution, and transposition of parties will be equally applicable to and control all mortgage suits. Therefore under Or. I, r. 9 of the present Code, a mortgage suit is not liable to be dismissed for non-joinder or defect of parties but under s 85 of the T. P. Act, non-joinder of necessary parties in mortgage suits was a fatal defect, if the plaintiff had notice of such interest

The cases above referred to, in which it was held, that non-joinder of necessary parties in mortgage suits was a fatal defect, have been to that extent overridden by the present rule. The Legislature seems to have adopted the views expressed in Kundan Lal v Faquirchand, 27 A. 75; 2 A. L. J 476, and in 21 M 22 and 22 M. 207.

The explanation attached to this rule is new. It has been inserted to meet the several conflicting rulings on the point, adopting the principles laid down in the cases of Debendra Narain v. Ram Taran, 30 C. 599 F. B.; 7 C W N 766; Ram Narain v. Bandi Pershad, 31 C 737, Sarju Ram Marwari v Barmadeo Pershad, 1 C. L. J. 337 (351), and G[illegible] Singh v Chandrika Singh, 36 C. 193: 5 C. L. J. 611. In all these cases it has been held that in a suit to enforce a second mortgage, the first mortgagee is not a necessary party.

The expression "all persons having an interest" in this rule, includes persons in an undivided Hindu family governed by Mitakshara, a prior or subsequent mortgagee or any person who may sue for redemption.—Bhawani Prasad v Kallu, 17 A. 537 (555).

Object of the Rule.—The object of this rule in requiring all persons having an interest either in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption to be joined as parties is to avoid multiplicity of suits—

Lala Suraj Prosad v. Golab Chand, 28 C. 517, 529, 530; Venkataramona v. Comperty, 31 M. 425: 18 M. L. J. 298; Gokul Chandra v. Rasheswari, 14 C. L. J. 108; Parshadi Lal v. Laiq Singh; 21 A. L. J. 701.

Necessary Parties in Suits for Sale.—In a suit to enforce a second mortgage, the first mortgagee is not a necessary party.—Gurdeo Singh v. Chandrika Singh, 36 C 193: 5 C. L J 611 (1 C L. J. 337 (351), followed). See also, Ram Narain v. Bandi Pershad, 31 C 737; Debendra Narain v Ram Taran, 30 C. 599, F B : 7 C W N. 766, F. B.; Raj Coomary v. Preo Madhub, 1 C. W. N 453; Srinivasa v Vemunabhai, 29 M. 84 · 16 M. L. J. 50; Nawab Waziri Begunm v Sashi Bhusan, 4 Pat L T 546 · 74 I. C. 820.

Under s. 85, T. P. Act, a plaintiff mortgagee was not so allowed to frame his suit as to draw into controversy the title of a third party, who is in no way connected with the mortgage, and who has set up a title paramount to that of the mortgagor and mortgagee —Jati Prasad v. Aziz Khan, 31 A. 11: (1908), A W. N. 263; but Or. XXXIV, r. 1, C. P Code, does not prohibit a person claiming a title paramount or opposed to that of a mortgagor being made a party to a mortgage suit —In re Obalampalli, (1914) M. W N. 623: 22 I C 976 · 4 P. L W 417; Jaggessor v. Bhuban, 33 C 425; Gobardhan v. Mannalal, 40 A 584 .16 A. L. J. 639; Hari Das v. Girindra, 33 C. L J 301; Galstaun v. Mirza Abid Husain, 10 O L J 263: 73 I. C. 428; Nirode Knata v Nripendra, 96 I. C. 698: A I. R 1926 Cal. 1192

Order XXXIV, r. 1 requires that not only a person having an interest in the mortgage security but also a person having an interest in the right of redemption shall be joined as a party to any suit relating to the mortgage But s 85 of the T P. Act which is repealed by Or XXXIV, r 1 required that a person having an interest in the mortgage security only should be made a party to such a suit —Shanabda Chandra v Srinath, 17 C. W. N 871 17 I C 432

Whether or not s 85 of the T P Act 1882, refers solely to persons interested in the equity of redemption, it is not essential to join a party defendant, in a suit for sale on a mortgage, a person whose interest in the mortgaged property, if it exists, would be antagonistic to the claims of both mortgagor and mortgagee —Khairati v Banni Begam, 30 A 240 · 5 A. L. J 604 (33 C 425 followed) But see, Gokul Chandra v Rasheswari, 14 C. L J 108, in which it has been held that the rule laid down in Jaineswar v Bhoobun Mohan, 33 C 425, that in a suit to enforce a mortgage, persons claiming under a title adverse to that of both the mortgagor and the mortgagee are not proper parties, is not inflexible

Not only the mortgagor but all persons deriving title from him subsequent to the mortgage and bound thereby as holders of different fragments of the equity of redemption are necessary and proper parties to a suit to enforce the mortgage. The only persons who are proper parties to a suit to enforce a mortgage are persons having an interest in the property comprised in the mortgage, that is, the interest which a mortgagor is competent to transfer by way of mortgage at the date of the transaction.—Jajneswar Dutt v Bhoobun Mohun, 33 C 425 3 C. L. J. 205.

Where a mortgagee brings a suit for sale upon his mortgage without impleading as party to the suit a purchaser of a portion of the equity of redemption, he cannot by purchasing the property in execution claim possession as against the purchaser of the equity of redemption.—Kristo-pada v. Chaitanya, 49 C. 1048: 28 C. W. N. 92.

Omission to join all the heirs of a purchaser of the mortgaged property within the period of limitation, is no ground for dismissal of a suit, unless it is found that the mortgagor was aware, at the date of the suit, of the interest of those persons in the mortgaged property. The proper procedure was to add those heirs as parties, and, if it appeared, that at the date of the suit, the plaintiff was not aware of their interest in the property to ascertain what proportion of the debt was due by the heir who had been made a party in time, and to pass a decree against his share for that amount.—Basiruddin v. Debendra Nath, 12 C. W. N. 911 (18 A. 1045, 30 C. 755, 7 C. W. N. 723, referred to); Har Chandra v. Mahomed Husain, 25 C. W. N. 594. See also, Shahasaheb v. Sadashiv, 43 B. 575: 21 Bom. L. R. 369, in which it has been held that the test both under Or. XXXIV, r. 1 and s. 22 of the Limitation Act is the same: Was the suit properly constituted at date of the plaint so as to enable the Court to adjudicate as between the parties impleaded?

A decree obtained by a prior mortgagee who had no knowledge of puisne mortgagees is not bad because the latter were not made parties.—Bunwari Jha v. Ramjee Thakur, 7 C. W. N. 11.

In a suit on a mortgage of joint family property by the managing members of a joint Hindu family, the remaining members of the family are proper parties to a suit for sale based on such mortgage.—Jai Ram v. Sher Singh, 25 A. 162 (21 A. 301; 22 A. 307 and 391, referred to) and 25 A. 407, P. C. See also, Sidheshuri Prasad v. Dharamjit, 41 C. 727: 19 C. L. J. 437: 22 I. C. 570. But see, Baijnath v. Dalup Narain, (1917) Pat. 261.

In a suit for sale on a mortgage of joint family property executed by the father and three of his sons, the plaintiff made defendants, besides the executants, the fourth son, who was a minor, and four grandsons, also minors. Held, that the non-executant members of the family were properly arrayed as defendants in the suit.—Debi Dat v. Jadu Rai, 24 A. 459 (9 A. 493 held to be no longer law). See also, Suraj Prasad v. Golab-chand, 28 C. 517; Dharam Singh v. Angan, 21 A. 301; Rama Chandra v. Kandyya, 24 M. 555 and Badri Prasad v. Madan Lal, 15 A. 75, F. B.

The object of making a second mortgagee a party defendant in the suit of the first mortgagee, is that the property may be sold free of his incumbrance, not to enable him practically to obtain a decree against the principal defendant (mortgagor) without bringing a suit properly framed for that purpose.—Mackintosh v. Watkins, 1 C. L. J. 31. See also, Mewa Singh v. Gokul Singh, 35 A. 484: 11 A. L. J. 749, in which it has been held that the second mortgagee having an interest in the equity of redemption is a necessary party to the suit within the meaning of Or. XXXIV, r. 1.

The rule that all persons interested in the actual subject of the suit should be before the Court, in order that, as between them, complete justice might, as far as possible be done, cannot be taken as authorising

Court to complicate a suit by a mortgagee, by introducing into it controversy, in which the mortgagee is not really interested —Krishna Ayyar v. Muthukumarasawmiya, 29 M. 217.

Quaere—Whether this rule requires such persons whose rights are admitted to be made parties?—Srinivasa v. Vemunabhai, 29 M. 84: 16 M. L. J. 50.

Where in a suit upon a mortgage the purchaser of one of the mortgaged properties from the mortgagor, was not made party having been released by the plaintiff mortgagee. Held, that the suit could not be dismissed The mortgage should be treated as having been split up and the release of one of the properties by the mortgagee should be held to have the same effect as if the mortgagee had himself bought it and the mortgage debt apportioned between that property and the other mortgaged property —Hari Kissen v. Seikh Velait Hossein, 30 C. 755. 7 C. W. N 723. See also, Ponnusami v Srinivasa, 31 M 333.

A mortgagee is not bound to sue in respect of the whole of the mortgaged property. He may confine his suit to a portion of the property, by giving up his claim to the rest, and implead those only interested in that portion.—Sheo Tahal v. Sheodan, 28 A 174. 2 A L J 630 But by so doing he cannot release his lien upon one, so as to increase the burden upon the other —Hakim Lal v Ram Lal, 6 C L. J 46

This rule does not require the joinder in a suit on a prior mortgage of a subsequent mortgagee whose mortgage was only executed subsequent to the filing of such suit —Ishaq Ali v Chunni, 21 A 149

In a suit on a mortgage executed by the father of a joint Mitakshara family, the sons are necessary parties The sons who are not made parties to the suit are not bound by the decree obtained against the father, and are entitled to sue for a declaration of their rights to and to recover possession of their shares in the mortgaged properties —Ramasamayyan v Virasami, 22 M 222; Palani v Rangayya, 22 M 207, Hira Lal v Parmeshar Rai, 21 A 356; Kanhaia Lal v. Raj Bahadur, 24 A 211

A suit by a Karta of a Mitakshara joint family on behalf of all the members is a valid suit under Or XXXIV, r 1, and it is not necessary that the Karta should mention expressly that the suit is instituted by him in his capacity as Karta, provided the fact that the suit is brought by him in his representative capacity is obvious from the pleadings in the case —Jag Sah v Ramchandra, 2 Pat L T 553 63 I. C 664, Shaikh Abdul Rahman v Shib Lal, 2 Pat L T 572

In a suit to enforce a mortgage, the mortgagee made one only of two persons, who represented the estate of the mortgagor, a party defendant, not having notice of the existence of the other Held that the latter was bound by the decree obtained by the mortgagee and his interest passed at the sale held in execution of the mortgage decree —Ram Taran v Rameswar Malia, 11 C W N 1078 6 C L J 716 See also, Ram Autar v Nursing Narain, 3 C L J 12

Where property belonging to a joint Hindu family has been sold in execution of a decree obtained upon a mortgage executed by the father of the joint family it is open to the sons to sue for the recovery of their shares in the property sold, if they were not made parties to the suit in which the decree against the father was obtained, provided that the mortgagee had notice of their interests in the property.—Debi Singh v Jia Ram, 25 A. 214, F. B (22 A. 377 overruled). Sons are not necessary parties to suits on mortgages of self-acquired properties executed by the father. In a suit on such a mortgage, the other members are not necessary parties.—Vadi Lal v. Shah Kausal, 27 B. 157.

A subsequent purchaser of the mortgaged property either at an execution or at a private sale is a necessary party to a mortgage suit See, 22 A. 212, 21 A. 235, 19 A. 541, 17 A. 48, and 21 M. 64. But when in the course of a mortgage suit, the purchaser of a portion of the mortgaged property is made a party defendant after the prescribed period of limitation, the suit as against him is barred by limitation. Quaere—Whether the portion of the mortgaged property in the hands of the added defendant is thereby exempted from liability under the mortgage —Ram Kinkar v Akhil Chunder, 11 C. W. N. 35, F B : 5 C. L. J. 242

Subsequent to the execution of a simple mortgage, the mortgagor sold the property to defendants who remained in possession Thereafter the mortgagee brought a suit on the mortgage without impleading the defendants and in execution of the decree purchased the property. Held, that the mortgagee purchaser was not entitled to possession of the property against the defendants —S P. S Chetty Firm v. Maung Pyan Gyi, 60 I. C. 562.

A person who is named in a mortgage deed as a mortgagee although in fact merely a benamidar for those beneficially interested can institute a suit in his own name, either for foreclosure or sale and the suit should not be dismissed merely because the beneficial owner is not added as a party The principle extends to a mortgage taken by some only of the members of a joint Hindu family who unlike as in the cases of a benamidar have a beneficial interest themselves in addition to their authority to act on behalf of the family.—Hij Lal v. Jiboo Mahton, 75 I. C 378

The real owner as well as the benamidar is a necessary party to a mortgage suit See, 18 A. 69, 21 A. 380, 24 C 34 and 644, 22 B 672 See also, the cases noted under Or. I, r. 1.

A putnidar is a necessary party to a mortgage suit, so that he may have a right of redemption —See, 8 C. 79, 9 C. L R 173, 10 C. L R 11, 21 C 116, noted at page 120. See also, Kokil Singh v. Dul Chand 5 C L R 249 But see, Sripati v. Mohip Narain, 9 C. 643: 13 C L R 119 A zurpeshgidar of the mortgaged property is also a necessary party — Radha Pershad v Manohar Das, 6 C. 317: 7 C. L. R. 293. A permanent lessee is also a necessary party.—Raghunandan v. Ambika, 29 A 677 A. L. J. 703 A person having merely a raiyati interest is not a necessary party, as his interest is not such as will entitle him to redeem —G ... Chunder v Juramoni De, 5 C W N 83

Having regard to the provisions of Or. XXXI, r 1, C P Code Trustees, Executors and Administrators may now bring suits for foreclosure, sale, or redemption without making their beneficiaries parties made a party, his right to redeem is not affected by the decree.—Hetram v. Shadiram, 40 A. 407, P. C.: 22 C. W. N. 1033: 35 M. L. J. 1; Ram Narain v. Bandi Pershad, 31 C. 737; Umesh Chundra v. Zahur Fatima, 18 C. 164, P. A puisne mortgagee who has also a prior mortgage when impleaded as a necessary party as puisne mortgagee is bound to appear and to set up his prior mortgage as well as his subsequent mortgage.—Kishen Dayal v. Mahomed Amirul Hussain, 19 C. W. N. 942. 26 I C. 673 (39 C. 527: 22 M. L. J 468, distd.).

A puisne mortgagee is a necessary party to a suit by a prior mortgagee to enforce his mortgage, as he is entitled to redeem and ...

It is obligatory upon a mortgagee to bring before the Court all persons interested in the equity of redemption, of whose interest he has notice; if he omits a party of whose interest he has no notice, the decree obtained by him, does not thereby become infructuous A party excluded from a mortgage suit and who has not been afforded opportunity to redeem, is entitled to exercise his right of redemption upon the same terms, as if he had been made a party to the original suit The principles upon which a puisne mortgagee, who has been left out of a prior mortgagee's suit, is entitled to have his liability determined, are explained.—Ganga Das v. Jogendra Nath, 5 C. L J. 315. See also, Ganpat Lal v. Bindabasini, 18 M L. J. 555 P. C. 12 L W 59. 56 I. C. 274; Musst Sukhi v Munshi Ghulam Sajdar Khan, (1921) M. W N. 445 43 A 469. 48 I A. 465 P. C, Prabhulinappa v. Gurunath Balaji, 22 Bom L. R. 389 45 B 453.

If a person interested in the mortgaged property has not been joined as a party to the suit by the mortgagee and he comes in before foreclosure or sale, he has all the right of redemption that his interest in the property gives him. In a suit for sale under a mortgage the mortgagee failed to effectively implead certain persons, interested in the mortgaged property A decree was passed and the mortgaged property was sold under it and was purchased by the mortgagee In a suit by the persons who should have been impleaded for a declaration that their right to redeem was not extinguished. Held, that after the sale has taken place, the mortgagee held as purchaser and was entitled to raise all the defences that belonged to him as such and that unless the claim to set aside the sale were made in a properly constituted action and properly raised, the Court could not interfere with the possession which had been given him by the purchase; Ganpat Lal v Bindbasini Prasad, 47 C 924 P C 24 C W. N 954 47 I A. P. C., Sheikh Kalu Sharif v Abboy Charan, 25 C. W N. 253

If a puisne incumbrancer is not made a party to a suit upon prior incumbrancer, the puisne incumbrancer's right to redeem will not thereby be affected by the decree in the suit —Namdar Chaudhri v Karam Raji, 13 A. 315. See also, Sital Prasad v Asho Singh, (1922) Pat 326

Suit by first mortgagee—Failure to join second mortgagee as party—Decree and sale thereunder—Purchase by first mortgagee—Subsequent suit for partition and possession Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to obtain possession without paying off the second mortgage, and it was immaterial whether the plaintiff's failure to join the second mortgagee as a party of the previous suit was wilful or due to ignorance of the fact that a second mortgage existed.—Rangasamy v. Kommarammal, 26 M 4; Mt Dhanwanti v. Hargobind, 5 Pat. L. T. 103. As to puisne mortgagee's right of sale, see Debendra Narain v. Ram Taran, 30 C. 599, F. B.; 7 C. W. N 766 (4 C W. N. 541 overruled); Jageshwar v Moti, 66 I. C 637.

In a suit by sub-mortgagee for sale of the mortgaged property, the mortgagor and the mortgagees are necessary parties.—Ahmed Ali v. Bihu Rai, 5 A. L. J. 402: (1908) A. W. N. 191.

A sub-mortgagee may sue to enforce the original mortgage against the mortgagor, impleading the mortgagee as a party.—Muthu v Venkatachallam, 20 M 35; Ram Subhay v. Nursingh, 27 A. 472

Necessary Parties to Suits for Foreclosure.—The object of a suit for foreclosure being to put an end to the equity of redemption only those persons are necessary parties to the suit, who have the right of redemption of the property sought to be foreclosed. A plaintiff in a foreclosure suit is entitled to exempt from his claim the portion of the property which belongs to persons, who are not impleaded in the suit. He is not bound to attempt to enforce a claim against property, the title of which was in dispute or was doubtful There is no obligation on him to proceed against the whole of the property; he is equally competent to sue for foreclosure of a part of the mortgaged property; in the same way as a simple mortgagee can omit from his suit any part of the mortgaged property and the owners of the equity of redemption of the property omitted need not be made parties.—Sheo Tahal v Sheodan Rai, 28 A. 174: 2 A. L. J. 630

Order XXXIV, r. 1 does not prohibit the joinder of any person as a party but merely lays down that subject to the provisions of this Code all persons having an interest either in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption shall be joined as parties. The transferee of mortgaged property in breach of a covenant against alienation may be made a party to a foreclosure suit.—Vej Singh v. Patiram, 55 I. C. 433.

In a suit for foreclosure by a puisne mortgagee, the prior mortgagee should be made a party to the suit. Where a prior mortgagee was not a party, the Court at the hearing of the suit ordered that he should be made a party.—Sorabji v. Rattonji, 22 B 701.

A mortgagee of a joint family property obtained a decree for foreclosure against the father who alone executed the mortgage. At the time of the suit the mortgagee knew that there were sons and grandsons jointly interested with the mortgagor in the mortgaged property, but, notwithstanding this, the mortgagee omitted to make them parties Held, that the sons and the grandsons were not precluded from instituting a suit for redemption.—Ram Prasad v. Manmohan, 30 A. 256: 5 A. L. J 267 (17 A 537 referred to; 25 A. 214 distinguished).

Where a decree for foreclosure was obtained against S. who was the executor of his father's estate, and subsequently A, a brother of S. and M, a purchaser of some of the mortgaged properties from A, made an application to be made parties and to redeem. Held, that they were not entitled to be made parties.—Mohanand v. Akhoy Kumar, 6 C W. N 488

"A creditor who purchases under an execution against the general assets of a testator's estate, takes subject to a mortgage created in pursuance of a power contained in the will; and in a suit to foreclose, the purchaser is rightly made a party.—Nil Kant v. Peary Mohun, 3 B. L R 7 11 W. R. 21.

An attaching creditor has a right to redeem and is a necessary party to a suit for foreclosure or sale —Ghulam Husain v. Dina Nath, 23 A. 467 and 26 A. 464.

Necessary Parties to a Suit for Redemption.—Under Or. XXXIV, r. 1, in a suit for redemption of a mortgage only those parties should be joined who claim an interest in the mortgage security or in the right to redeem, outsiders who claim a title to the property independently of the rights of the mortgagor and the mortgagee need not be made parties —Satagauda v. Satappa, 22 Bom L. R 815.

Every attaching creditor under a money decree against mortgagor is entitled under Or XXXIV, r 14, to redeem the mortgage —Maghraj Marwari v. Kesheo Gopal, 6 N. L J 181 73 I C 8.

A co-heir of the plaintiff having an interest in the mortgage at the time of the redemption suit, is a necessary party to it, but not otherwise.—Trimbak Jivaji v. Sakharam Gopal, 16 B 599

In a suit for redemption, all persons jointly entitled to the right of redemption, e g, all the heirs of a mortgagor, must be joined —Bhandin v. Ismail, 11 B. 425.

In a suit for redemption of a mortgage, persons who are alleged to be the tenants of the mortgagee are proper parties —Krishna v. Vithal, 28 Bom. L. R 759 96 I C 843 A I R 1926 Bom 522

Where in a suit for redemption of a mortgage effected in favour of three persons, the mortgagor-plaintiff withdrew the suit as against one of them, held, that the suit was liable to be dismissed under Or XXXIV, r. 1, for non-joinder of parties —Dhuri Patak v Timal Sing, 4 Pat L W 391: 45 I. C 650.

Where a joint family property, though held in certain shares by the several co-parceners, was mortgaged as a whole and redeemable on payment of the whole sum Held, in a suit by one of joint tenants, or tenants in common to redeem the whole estate, that all persons in whom portions of equity of redemption were vested must be made parties to the suit.—Naro Hari v Vithalbhai, 10 B 648

Where out of three properties subject to one mortgage two had been redeemed by payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage-debt and the third alone was the subject of a suit for redemption upon payment of the balance of the mortgage money, a person, having an interest in one of the properties already redeemed, is not a necessary party to such a suit —Nazir Husain v Nihalchand, 2 A. L J 628 (1905), A W N 156

Part owners of a mortgaged property who did not execute the mortgage deed nor received the mortgage money are not necessary parties to a suit for redemption, as they were not interested in the equity of redemption of the mortgaged property.—Monmohini v Parvati Nath, 32 C 716

In a suit for redemption where there are several persons ... entitled to redeem, they are all necessary parties, either as plaintiff or defendant, provided that they can be ascertained —Ram Baksh v. Ram Lal, 21 W .R. 428. But see, Hurdeo v. Guneshee Lall, 1 Agra 36, where it has been held that any one of the mortgagors or his legal representative is, if the mortgage-debt has been repaid, entitled to sue for redemption, and to be put in possession of his own share of the estate, whatever his co-parceners may choose to do in the matter.

A sub-mortgagee may be impleaded as a defendant in a suit for redemption by the mortgagor, to which the mortgagee or his legal representatives are necessary parties —Padgaya v. Baji, 20 B 459.

The general rule is that the mortgage-debt being indivisible and the mortgaged property being held in its entirety as security for the debt and every part of it, the property can only be redeemed in its entirety on payment of the whole debt. If the right of redemption is vested in several persons, one of them may redeem the whole mortgage on payment of the whole debt.—Narohari v Vihtalbhai, 10 B. 648, Mora v. Ram Chandra, 15 B 24 (referred to in 21 B. 619, distinguished in 20 M. 295) But one of them cannot, on offering to pay his share of debt claim to recover a proportionate share of the property.—Nil Kant v. Suresh Chandra, 12 C 422, P C.: 20 A. 23

The reversionary heirs of the deceased husband of a Hindu widow, in possession of the husband's property are not persons who have such interest in the mortgaged property, as would entitle them during the lifetime of the widow to redeem the mortgage made by the husband.—Ram Chandar v. Kallu, (1908), A. W. N. 225: 5 A. L. J. 631.

Any person entitled to a maintenance charged upon the property should be made a party The mere fact that a person is entitled to be maintained out of the income of the property is not sufficient.—... Singh v Balwant Singh, 22 A. 191, P. C. (affirming 18 A. 253).

Preliminary decree in foreclosure suit.

2. In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree—

(a) ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage, and for his costs of the suit (if any) awarded to him on the day next hereinafter referred to, or

(b) declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree

and directing—

(c) that if the defendant pays into Court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall deliver up to the defendant, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property to the defendant free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the plaintiff or any person claiming under him, or, where the plaintiff claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall also, if necessary, put the defendant in possession of the property, but

(d) that, if such payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall be debarred from all right to redeem the property.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 86 of the T. P. Act, IV, of 1882, with some alterations and additions The old section is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison.—"In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall make a decree, ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage, and for his costs of the suit, if any, awarded to him, on the day next hereinafter referred to, or declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree, and ordering that, upon the defendant paying to the plaintiff or into Court, the amount so due, on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall deliver up to the defendant or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall transfer the property to the defendant free from all incumbrances created by the plaintiff or any person claiming under him, or, where the plaintiff claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims; and shall, if necessary, put the defendant into possession of the property; but that, if the payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the property."

Clauses (a) and (b) correspond to the first para of the old section with some change of words only

Clause (c) corresponds to para 2 of the old section with some modifications The words "that if the defendant pays into Court the amount so due" have been substituted for the words "that upon the defendant paying to the plaintiff or into Court the amount so due," which occurred in the beginning of para 2 of the old section, and the words "and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property" have been substituted for the words "transfer the property" which occurred in the old section after the words, "mortgaged property", and the words "free from mortgage" have been added before the words "all incumbrances" The other changes are merely verbal

Clause (d) is almost similar to para 3 of the old section with the omission of the word "absolutely" which stood before the word "debarred" in the old section The omission seems to have been made in view of sub-rule (3) of r. 69, Or. XXI, which is applicable to all s under this Code including sales of mortgaged property

"The Committee have inserted the words 'if necessary' before 'transfer,' as, according to muffasil practice, a re-transfer is not ord[illegible] required and they think this practice should be altered."—See, the Re[illegible] of the Special Committee

"The Committee have omitted the provisions as to the defen[illegible] paying money to the plaintiff. They think it better that in every ca[illegible] should pay it into Court."—See, the Report of the Special Committ[illegible]

Right to Foreclosure or Sale.—A suit to obtain a decree that the [illegible] gagor shall be absolutely debarred of his right to redeem the mortg[illegible] property, is called a suit for foreclosure. A suit to obtain a decree t[illegible] the property be sold, is called a "suit for sale."—See, s 67, Tra[illegible] of Property Act Rules 2 and 3 relate to decree in suits for forecl[illegible] Rules 4 and 5 relate to decrees in suit for sale. A suit for forecl[illegible] can only be brought where the mortgage is an English mortgage [illegible] mortgage by conditional sale. A suit for sale can only be brought w[illegible] the mortgage is an English mortgage or a simple mortgage A mortg[illegible] by conditional sale cannot institute a suit for sale. A simple m[illegible] cannot institute a suit for foreclosure. An usufructuary mortgagee ca[illegible] not institute a suit either for foreclosure or sale.—See, Transfer of P[illegible] perty Act, s 67.

Right to Redemption.—The mortgagor has, at any time after th[illegible] mortgage money has become payable by him, a right, on payment [illegible] tender of the mortgage money, to require the mortgagee to deliver up [illegible] him all documents in the mortgagee's possession relating to the mortg[illegible] property, and to re-transfer the property to him. The right is call[illegible] "right to redeem" A suit to enforce this right to redeem is call[illegible] suit for redemption Rules 7 and 8 porvide for decrees in suits for r[illegible] demption.—See, Transfer of Property Act s. 60.

"That an account be taken of what will be due."—The scheme [illegible] intention of the T P. Act IV of 1882, was that a general account sh[illegible] be taken once for all, and an aggregate amount be stated in the d[illegible] for principal, interest and costs due on a fixed day, and that after th[illegible] expiration of that day, if the property should not be redeemed, the p[illegible] should pass from the domain of contract of that of judgment, and th[illegible] rights of the mortgagee should henceforth depend, not on the contents [illegible] the bond, but on the directions in the decree.—Sundar Koer v Rai S[illegible] Kishen, 34 C. 150, P. C.: 11 C. W. N. 249: 5 C L J. 106

When a mortgagee undertakes to collect rents from the tenants [illegible] the property compromised in his security and to apply them in sa[illegible] tion of his dues, if he himself is one of the tenants he must, when accounts are taken, allow credit for the rents payable by him, although, if, at the time, a suit was brought for recovery of the rent, it might be held [illegible] be barred by limitation —Ram Nath v. Brahmamoyi, 1 C L J [illegible] See also, Sheo Saran Singh v. Mahabir Pershad, 32 C. 567. 2 C. Where a mortgage deed is silent as to possession, and there is [illegible] agreement to the contrary, a mortgagee, who takes possession, takes the the obligation upon him to account for the rents and profits [illegible] time he is in possession.—Madari v Baldeo Prasad, 27 A 351, F. B. See also, Ganga Mulk v Bayaji, 6 B 669, 670.

Where a person who had an interest in the mortgaged property was not made a party in the suit brought by the mortgagee, his rights are not affected and he is still entitled to redeem In allowing him to redeem, accounts must be taken on the footing of a mortgage which subsists and which it is sought to redeem and not merely on payment of the decretal amount. In calculating the amount payable, interest should be made payable at the mortgage rate up to the date fixed in the decree for redemption — Janendra Nath v Shorashi Charan, 49 C 626

In a suit for redemption of an usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagee is not responsible for the amount of the gross rental as shown in the jamabandi, but only for such sums as were actually received by him or on his behalf and such sums, if any, as might have been received by him, but for his own neglect or fault —Banarasi Parshad v. Ram Narain, 7 C. W. N. 514, P. C.

In a suit for redemption, mode of taking accounts and calculating interest pointed out.—Nandu Sahu v Ram Lakan, 9 C L. J. 633.

A mortgagor seeking to redeem must prove how much of the debt and interest has been repaid The duty of the mortgagee in possession is to keep a full, true and accurate account of the actual receipts and disbursements The mode of taking accounts pointed out.—Kundar Mal v. Kashibai, 26 B. 363.

Ordinarily, a suit for an account upon a mortgage cannot be maintained by a mortgagor unless he asks for redemption also.—Hari v Lakshman, 5 B 614 and Shankarapa v Danapa, 5 B. 604.

The fact that a purchaser of the equity of redemption received a certain sum for payment to the mortgagee does not preclude him from claiming from the mortgagee an account of the income of the mortgaged property —Jafree Begum v Gunga Ram, 3 Agra 91

In a redemption suit, a mortgagee is entitled to credit for reasonable costs of repairs, if he renders an account of rents and profits.—Lakshman v. Hari, 4 B 584

Under the ordinary law of mortgage, the mortgagor is bound, so long as the equity of redemption remains with him, to indemnify the estate against expenses incurred in protecting the title.—Damodar v Vamanrav, 9 B. 435 See, Pokree Saheb v Pokree Beary, 21 M. 34.

In a suit for account and redemption, if the mortgagee, on taking the accounts, is found to have been overpaid, the general practice is to order the payment, by him, of the balance due to the mortgagor with interest from the date of the institution of the suit —Janoji v Janoji, 7 B. 185.—See also, Ram Chandra v. Janardan, 14 B. 19

In a suit by a mortgagor for redemption, the assignee of a mortgagee is bound by the state of the account between the mortgagor and the mortgagee, where the assignment was made without the knowledge of the mortgagor.—Chinnayya v. Chidambara Chetti, 2 M. 212.

Where a mortgagee in possession pays the Government revenue which was payable by the mortgagor, he has a right to tack on the amount so paid in his mortgage debt —Imdad Hasan v. Badra Prasad, 20 A 4[illegible]. Kamaya Naik v. Devapa, 22 B. 440.

A mortgagee in possession is bound to produce the accounts of collection and disbursement and to swear to them —Makund Lal v. Goluck Chunder, 9 W. R. 592; Goluck Chunder v. Mohun Lal, 5 W. Principal and Interest on the Mortgage.—In a suit on a mortgage bond the plaintiffs are entitled to recover the agreed rate of interest without any deduction.—Fattehma Begum v. Mohamed Ausur, 9 C [illegible]

Interest on money lent was contracted to be payable, "even if a suit should be instituted," at the rate fixed for the period for which the money was lent Held, the interest must be decreed at this rate, according to the contract, down to the institution of the suit.—Balgobind Das v. Narain Lal, 15 A 339 P C (p. 352).

Interest after due date of suit is in the discretion of Court, notwithstanding that a fixed rate [illegible] payable up to realization in the bond sued [illegible] Roy, 12 C [illegible] See also, Deendoyal Lall [illegible] W. R 189 [illegible] see, Rama Chandra v Devu, 12 M. 485, and Surya Narain v Jogendra Narain, 20 C. 360, in which it has been held that the terms of s [illegible] Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), exclude the discretion conferred on the Court by s. 209, C. P. Code, 1882, in cases coming under the Transfer of Property Act, and that interest at the stipulated rate must be computed down to the date fixed for payment. In Achalabala Dasi v Surendra Nath, 24 C 766. 1 C. W. N 550 (dissenting from Amrit Ram v Lachmi Narain, 19 A. 174), it has been held that the Court has power under a decree in a mortgage-suit to allow interest subsequent to the date of decree, and the date fixed by the decree for payment, until realization This case has been followed in Bakar Sajjad v. Udit Narain, 21 A 361, F B (over-ruling 19 A 174). See also, Subbaraya [illegible] mindu v Ponnusami Nadar, 21 M. 364 and Jogendra Nath v. [illegible] Abraham, 6 C W N 769; Rameswar Prosad v. Rai Sham Kishen, [illegible] 43 The same principle has been laid down in Commercial Bank of India v. Attendrulayya, 23 M 637; Saminathan v. Senappa, 29 M 170; 16 [illegible] L J 133, Rameswar Kaer v. Mahomed Mehedi Hossein, 26 C 39 P C 2 C W N. 633, P. The prevailing practice in mortgage cases is to allow interest at the contract rate up to the date fixed for payment by the decree and thereafter interest at the usual Court rate of six per cent per annum

The words " the date of realization " in the decree mean the date fixed for payment by the decree that is, a date within and not after the period of grace.—Maha Pershad Singh v. Surendra Mohan, 9 C L J. 288. See also, Rani Sundar Koer v. Rai Sham Kishen, 34 C. 150, P. Interest at the stipulated rate should be allowed up to the date fixed for payment in the decree, and after that at the contract rate.—Rameswar Prasad v. Rai Sham Kishen, 29 C. 43, Jogendra Nath v Methana Abraham, 6 C. W. N. 769.

In a suit by a mortgagee to recover the money due on his mortgage the plaintiff is entitled to interest at the rate specified in the mortgage-deed up to date of decree, and a Court has no discretion to refuse to award such interest —Chaturbhai Karsan v. Harbhanji, 20 B. 744.

The discretionary power as to awarding interest conferred on the Courts by s. 209, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 34), may be exercised without reference to the law of damdupat.—22 B 86 (20 B 721 referred to).

Where there is an express covenant to pay interest at a certain date after the stipulated date of payment, the Court is bound to allow interest at that rate up to the date of decree —Chab Nath v Kamta Prasad, 7 A. 333 (1 A. 603 referred to)

A puisne mortgagee seeking to redeem prior incumbrances must pay the interest at the rate agreed upon in the mortgage; there being no authority under s 209, C P Code, 1882 (s 34), to reduce it to the Court rate —Umes Chandra v Zahur Fatima, 18 C. 164, P C.

A usufructuary mortgagee who allows his mortgagor to retain possession of a part of the mortgaged property and makes no claim in respect of the stipulation in the mortgage-deed which provides for payment of interest, his claim, for interest is barred by acquiescence —Jhenku Singh v. Chhotkan Singh, 31 A 325 (6 A L J. referred to).

See, the cases noted under s 34

Interest Post Diem.—Where there is no agreement fixing the rate of interest after due date, the question as to the amount of interest to be allowed after that date should be treated as one of damages —Jaula Prasad v. Khaman Singh 2 A 617 See also, Bishen Doyal v. Udit Narain, 8 A 486; Mansab Ali v Gulab Chand, 10 A. 85, Bhagwant Singh v. Daryao Singh, 11 A 416; and Niwas Ram v Udit Narain, 13 A. 330.

Where the decree nisi in a mortgage suit allowed no interest after the expiry of the period of grace, it is not open to the Court, upon the application of the decree-holder to insert any provision for further interest which was not made in the decree nisi —Maha Prasad v. Ramani Mohun, 13 C. W. N 741. See also, Udit Narayan v. Jasoda, 27 C. L J. 578.

When a mortgage bond contains no stipulation for the payment of interest after due date, interest is payable by virtue of the Interest Act (XXXII of 1839)—Moti Singh v. Ramo Hari, 24 C 699, F. B (19 C [illegible] approved, 19 C. 39, P C, and 21 C 274 referred to) Considered in Ghantayya v Papayya, 23 M 534.

Where a mortgage-bond does not provide for interest post diem, the mortgagee is entitled to receive such interest by way of damages—[illegible] mal Das v Brij Bhukhan, 17 A 511, P. C. (1 A. 603, and 7 A [illegible] referred to) See also, Badi Bibi v. Sami Pillai, 18 M. 257; [illegible] Ammal v Lakshmi Ammal, 18 M 331; Nityananda v. Radha [illegible], 20 M 371, Pedda Subbaraya v Ganga, 20 M. 149. But whether such post diem interest would constitute a charge on the mortgage property or not, there is a difference of opinion In Bikramjit Tewary v. Durga Dyal, 21 C. 274, in Rama Reddi v Appaji Reddi, 18 M. 248; in Kristna Reddi v Varadarajul Reddi, 18 M 338-note, it has been held that such post diem interest would constitute a charge on the mortgaged property But in Narindra Bahadur v Kadim Husain, 17 A. 581; in Gudre Koer v Bhubaneshwari Coomar Singh, 19 C 19; in Rikhi Ram v. Sheo Prakash, [illegible] A 316, it has been held that such post diem interest does not constitute a charge on the mortgaged property. These latter cases seem to have been disapproved by the Judicial Committee in Mathura Das v [illegible] Bahadur, 19 A 39, P C followed in Sarada Dasi v. Jogendra [illegible], 28 C. 246 See also, Bindeshri Naik v Ganga Saran, 20 A 171, P C

Interest Subsequent to the Date Fixed for Payment.—There is no provision made in this rule for interest after the date fixed in the decree for payment, as there is in rule 4, which relates to a decree for sale. The reason is to be sought in the difference between a foreclosure and sale. In the former case interest stops because the mortgagee gets the property in lieu of his debt, whereas a sale must be subject to some substantial delay and in many cases is subject to long delays —Maharaja of Bharatpur v Kanno Dei, 23 A. 181 · 28 I. C 35

Where in a decree for foreclosure, interest subsequent to the [illegible] was included in the amount made payable to the plaintiff Held, [illegible] such future interest supposing it could be properly payable, could not be treated as a charge upon the land —Bhawani Prasad v Brij Lal, 16 A 269 See also, Rajkumrai v Bisheshar, 16 A. 270

Besides the cases noted above, see the cases under s 31

Costs.—Whether the suit be one for foreclosure, sale or redemption, the mortgagee is entitled to all costs properly incurred by him, including costs subsequent to the decree; Maharaja Bahadur Singh v [illegible] 41 C L J 607 A I R 1925 Cal. 1135

In a mortgage suit it is open to a Court of appeal to direct that [illegible] costs as it may award against the unsuccessful appellant may be [illegible] able from him personally, but if there is no such express direction the costs are, as a matter of ordinary practice, sanctioned by Or XXXIV rr. 2, 4, and 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, added to the mortgage money and are in the first instance recoverable from the mortgaged property after the decree is made final —Mahomed Hidullah v [illegible] Lal 15 A. 630, 21 A L J. 617.

Preliminary Decree in Foreclosure Suit.—The decree passed under this rule is not a money decree. The order absolute for foreclosure, so far from directing the payment of the mortgage-debt, has the effect of discharging the debt. If, in a foreclosure suit, the mortgagor thinks fit to pay the mortgage-debt, and thus save his interest in the property, he does so by reason of the obligation, which he undertook when he executed the mortgage security, and with a view to preserve the property, and not in obedience to the order of the Court. Any payment made by him will not be in execution of the decree The decree nisi puts him under no obligation to pay the debt, but simply declares what the consequences of the non-payment will be.—Sham Sunder v. Mohammad Iptisam Ali, 27 A. 642: 2 A L. J. 180 F. B.

Where in a suit upon a mortgage by conditional sale, the plaintiff mortgagee prayed that the defendant should be debarred from the right to redeem in case the money was not paid within a certain time and the Court passed a decree in the following terms, " that the claim be decreed with costs and interests and that the defendant do pay to the plaintiff the decretal money within two months " Held, that the decree though irregular as to the form, was, in effect, a decree for foreclosure within the meaning of this rule and that after the decree had been made absolute, it was not open to the defendant to object to the delivery of possession. Jogendra Chandra v. Rama Nath, 4 C. L. J. 533.

Pendency of an appeal against a preliminary decree made under this rule does not prevent the Court which passed the decree from making it absolute.—Madan Mohan v. Ram Hari, 1 C. W. N. 197.

A foreclosure decree obtained by a prior mortgagee was redeemed by a puisne mortgagee, who was party to the suit. Held, that the puisne mortgagee acquired all the rights and powers of the prior mortgagee as such; but the rights so acquired were not such as could be worked out in execution of the decree made in favour of the prior mortgagee, that decree having been discharged by payment. A separate suit to enforce the rights was not barred by s 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 47). The form of order given in this rule contemplates a suit between one mortgagee and the mortgagor only and should be treated as a common form not to be literally followed in every suit for foreclosure, but to be adopted to the particular circumstances of each case.—Gopi Narain v. Babu Bansidhar, 9 C. W. N. 577, P C. L. R. 32 I. A. 123 (24 A. 179 reversed).

The object of this rule is to prevent mortgagees from realizing their securities, except in the way prescribed by the Act. Sections 86 and 88, T. P. Act, 1882, prescribe for the nature of decrees that should take place in each particular form of mortgage. In respect of a mortgage by conditional sale, foreclosure is the only remedy, and in respect of an English mortgage, foreclosure and sale are alike open, while in a simple mortgage, sale is the only remedy.—Chunder Nath v. Barroda Sundary, 22 C. 813

A suit for foreclosure was partly decreed and partly dismissed, and the plaintiff appealed against the portion of the claim dismissed. The appeal was also dismissed and within three years from the dismissal of the appeal the decree-holder applied for an order absolute for foreclosure. Held, that the application was not barred; the proceedings to foreclosure must be proceedings to foreclose the mortgage as a whole. There can be no partial foreclosure.—Sahm Sundar v. Muhammad Ihtisahm, 27 A. 91; 2 A. L. J. 110.

In case of several incumbrancers, the second mortgagee has the first right to redeem, and is liable to be foreclosed in default of payment. After the foreclosure of the second mortgagee, the third mortgagee is entitled to redeem on payment of the amount originally certified to be due to the first mortgagee together with the subsequent interest and costs due to the first mortgagee. In default, he is foreclosed. The process continues in this way until the mortgagor is reached, and if the mortgagor fails to redeem, the mortgaged property becomes vested in the mortgagee free from all incumbrances.—Narayan Venkoba v. Pandurang, 7 B. ...; Tulsa v. Khub Chand, 13 A. 581; Auhindra v. Chunnoo Lal, 5 C. 101 and Narayan v. Ganoji, 15 B. 692; Muthu Vejia v. Venkatachellam, 20 M. 35, 22 C. 100 and Gokul Das v. Debi Prasad, 28 A. 638, 3 A. L. J. 518.

Sub-mortgagee.—A sub-mortgagee may sue for foreclosure or sale to the same extent as the mortgagee himself; Muthu Vijiya v. Venkatachallam, 20 M. 35.

Six Months' Time to Run from the Date of First Court's Decree—Where, in a suit on a mortgage, the decree of the Appellate Court simply dismisses the appeal, leaving the decree of the first Court untouched, the time for redemption would run from the date of the decree of the first Court.—Bhola Nath v. Kanti Chundra, 25 C. 311 (11 B. 172 distinguished) Approved in Faizuddi Sardar v. Asimuddi Biswas, 11 C. W. N. 679 Basanta Kumar v. Sri Radharani, 26 C. W. N. 410; 36 C. L. J. 159

When a decree gives a right of redemption within a certain specified period with a certain specified result to follow, if redemption is not made within such period, the mere fact of an appeal being preferred against it will not suspend the operation of such a decree, and, unless the Appellate Court extends the period limited by the original decree, the right of redemption will be barred if not exercised within the period so limited. Chiranji Lal v. Dharam Singh, 18 A. 455 (18 A. 223 applied)

Final decree in foreclosure-suit.

3. (1) Where, on or before the day fixed, the defendant pays into Court the amount declared due as aforesaid, together with such subsequent costs as are mentioned in r. 10, the Court shall pass a decree—

(a) ordering the plaintiff to deliver up the documents which under the terms of the preliminary decree he is bound to deliver up, and, if so required,

(b) ordering him to retransfer the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree,

and also, if necessary,

(c) ordering him to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(2) Where such payment is not so made, the Court shall, on application made in that behalf by the plaintiff, pass a decree that the defendant and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred from all right to redeem the mortgaged property and also, if necessary, ordering the defendant to put the plaintiff in possession of the property :

Power to enlarge time.

Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shown and upon such terms (if any) as it thinks fit, from time to time postpone the day fixed for such payment.

Discharge of debt.

(3) On the passing of a decree under sub-rule (2), the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged. [S. 87.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 87 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, with several additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced below for comparison: "If payment is made of such amount and of such subsequent costs as are mentioned in s 94, the defendant shall (if necessary) be put into possession of the mortgaged property. If such payment is not so made, the plaintiff may apply to the Court for an order that the defendant and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred absolutely of all right to redeem the mortgaged property, and the Court shall then pass such order, and may, if necessary, deliver possession of the property to the plaintiff Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shewn, and upon such terms, if any, as it thinks fit from time to time postpone the day appointed for such payment. 'On the passing of an order under the second paragraph of this section, the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged. In the Code of Civil Procedure, Schedule IV, No. 129, for the words 'Final decree,' the words 'Decree absolute' shall be substituted."

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of the old section, with several additions and alterations Clauses (a) and (b) are new.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of the old section with several modifications. The most important change seems to be the omission of the word "absolutely" which stood after the word "debarred" in the old section. The omission seems to have been made in view of sub-rule (3) of r. 79, Or. XXI, as that rule is applicable to all sales under this Code. The proviso is almost similar to the proviso to the old section; the only change made in it is the substitution of the word "fixed" for the word "appointed," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 4 of the old section with some verbal changes only.

The last para. of the old section has been omitted as unnecess

Cl. 1 (a). Delivery of Title Deeds.—Where the preliminary the final decree in a mortgage suit directed defendants to deliver plaintiffs all documents in their possession or power relating to the property but did not provide for an alternative relief, viz., payme damages, in the event of non-delivery. Held, that the Court could grant such alternative relief by way of execution; Marath Sivaram Sesha Pattar, 42 M. L. J. 356: 16 L. W. 589

Partial Foreclosure.—Where several parties have an interest mortgage, it is not competent for one of them to foreclose in resp his fractional share.—Bhora Ray v. Alilach Roy, 10 W. R. 476.

Where the whole of mortgage debt was due to the persons cl under the mortgage jointly and not severally, and a person entitle one moiety of the debt foreclosed the mortgage as to that moiety, sued the different mortgagors for possession of a moiety of their inte in the mortgaged property in virtue of the mortgage and foreclos Held, that the foreclosure was invalid and the suit was not mainta —Bishan Dial v. Manee Ram, 1 A. 297. See also, Ohadika Singh Phokar Singh, 2 A. 906. But see, Bisheshar Singh v. Laik Singh, 257.

Redemption of Mortgage Before Order Absolute.—In a forecl action the mortgagor can redeem at any time until the order absolu made under this rule—Paresh Nath v. Ram Jadu, 16 C. 246; Sumer Ram Krishna, 27 C. 705 4 C. W. N. 690; Narayana v. Papayya, 2 133; Nihali v. Mittar Sen, 20 A. 446; Ali Mea v. Roshun Ali, 3 C 533. Ysaf Ali v. Kasim Ali, 26 C. W. N. 532 In Salig Ram v. dan, 25 A. 231 (following 20 A. 446 and 27 C. 705), it has been held that the mortgagor is not deprived of his right to redeem by that under an order of the Court, not being an order under s. 87 of T. P. Act, the mortgagee has been put into possession of the mortg property.

If an Order Absolute for Foreclosure or Sale can be Made With Notice to the Mortgagor.—An order absolute for the foreclosure this rule cannot be made without previous notice to the mortg Venkata Narayana, v. Papayya, 22 M. 133: 8 M. L. J. 205; Tara Pr v. Bhobodeb, 22 C. 931. But see Krishna v. Muthusami, 23 M Pandu Prabhu v. Jule Lobo, 27 M. 40; Tarapada v. Kamini, 29 C and Malikar Junadu v. Linga Murti, 25 M. 244 and 300; Mahs Soba Nath, 24 A. L. N. 81, it has been where an order absolute has been made under s. 87 or s. 89 of the T Act, without notice to the mortgagor, the Court has an inherent to deal with an application to set aside the order made ex parte, and set it aside upon proper case being substantiated (29 C. 611 d from) Followed in Suderi Debi v. Soraram, 10 C. W. N. Hira Lal v. Premmoyee Debi, 2 C. L. J. 306, p. 309 In v. W. A. Thomas, 4 C. L. J. 317, it has been held that no notice mortgagor is necessary before an order absolute for sale and that the Bench case of Bibee Tasliman v. Harihar Mahato, 32 C. 253, lay down any such rule. See, Bechu Singh v Bicharam Sahu, 10 C. L. J. 91, noted under rule 5.

Power to Enlarge Time.—In granting time, the Court should take into consideration the magnitude of the sum involved, the arrears of interest and the value of the security, and whether the mortgagor has prospects of raising the required money —See Fisher on Mortgages

In the case of a decree for redemption or for foreclosure, both of which decrees stand in this respect upon the same footing, no extension of time limited by the decree for payment of the decretal amount can be made except for good cause shown.—Ram Lal v. Tulsa Kuar, 19 A. 180 (16 C. 246 dissented from; 16 M. 214 distinguished) See also, Rajaram v. Chunni Lal, 19 A 205; Harjas Rai v. Rameshar, 20 A 354; Akkach Mondal v. Aminuddi Mullik, 23 C. An application to extend the time fixed by a preliminary decree for foreclosure made after the expiry of that time is entertainable. The question of the sufficiency of cause for granting an extension is a question of fact to be decided according to the circumstances of each particular case. —Kanhai Singh v. Karu, 54 I. C. 864.

Until an order for foreclosure absolute has been made under s. 87 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882 (this rule), the mortgagor may be allowed, on a proper application, to redeem the mortgaged property.—Narayana v. Papayya, 22 M. 133, Malkarjunadu v Lingamurti, 25 M 244, 289, Vedapurath v. Vallabha, 25 M 300, Nandram v Babaji, 22 B. 771; Ishwar v. Gopal, 28 B. 102; Shaik Somesh v. Ram Krishna, 4 C. W. N. 699 (16 C 246, 22 M. 133 referred to).

The proviso to Or. XXXIV, r. 3 (2) gives the Court a discretionary power to extend the time for the payment of the decretal amount, but a mortgagor has no absolute right to pay the money after the expiry of the specified period even though no final decree has up to the time of such payment been made.—Ratnakar v Chamra, 4 Pat L. J. 347, 51 I. C. 881; Muragesa v Ramasami, 39 M 882 31 I C 200

This rule does not allow the Court to postpone the date of payment on the application of an outsider The provision regarding the power of the Court to postpone the date of payment relates to matters as between the mortgagor and mortgagee.—Akshaya Kumar v. Surja Kumar, 6 C W. N. 654

The mere fact that an appeal has been lodged is not sufficient ground for enlarging the time.—Ishwargar v Chunda Sama, 13 B. 109; Aminabi v. Sidu, 17 B. 547 See also, Ram Golam v. Barsati Singh, 10 C W. N. 910, where it has been further held that a Court has no power, of its own motion, to extend the time provided in s 89 of the T. P. Act, for making an order absolute If the mortgagor deposits the redemption money into Court before the passing of the final decree, though after the date fixed for payment and the deposit is accepted by the Court it becomes an effectual deposit.—Bepin Behary v. Mokunda Lal, 36 C 122

Effect of Foreclosure Decree and Discharge of the Debt.—Foreclosure proceedings to which a purchaser from the mortgagor is not made a party, cannot affect the purchaser.—Braja Nath v. Khilat Chundra, 8 B L R 104 P. C · 16 W. R. 33 (on appeal from 6 W. R. 269)

Until foreclosure, the vendee, under a bond of conditional sale, holds the lands, the subject of the bond, only as a security for the money lent. The effect of foreclosure is to put an end to the original conditional sale and to make the property ab initio the immoveable property of the person who advanced the money —Sham Narain v. Roghoobur Dyal, 3 C 508 1 C. L. R 343.

The mortgage security does not lose its character until an order absolute for foreclosure is passed. It remains a debt secured upon the property It is only when the order absolute for foreclosure is passed that the debt is discharged and, in lieu of it, the mortgagee acquires the absolute ownership of the property.—Sham Sundar v. Mohammad Ihtisam Ali, 27 A. 632 F. B.: 2 A L. J. 180.

In the case of a mortgage by way of conditional sale until the order in terms of sub-rule (2) is made by the Court on an application by the mortgagee debarring the mortgagor absolutely from redeeming the property, the mortgagor is entitled to redeem, even though an order absolute in terms of s 89 of the T P Act, 1882, has been made.—Ali Mea v Roshan Ali, 3 C. L J. 533.

Where land was sold with an agreement to re-purchase, it was held to be a mortgage by the conditional sale. In such a mortgage it is not necessary that the mortgagor should make himself personally liable for the repayment of the loan. The mortgaged property is the only security which the mortgagee must look to for the satisfaction of his debt There is no covenant on the part of the mortgagor by conditional sale, to indemnify his creditor for the inadequacy of his security.—Balkishen Das v. W. F. Legge, 22 A. 149, P. C : 4 C. W. N. 153, P C. (19 A 43 confirmed).

Preliminary decree in a suit for sale.

4. (1) In a suit for sale, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree to the effect mentioned in clause (a), (b) and (c) of rule 2 and also directing that, in default of the defendant paying as therein mentioned, the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is declared due to the plaintiff as aforesaid, together with subsequent interest and subsequent costs, and that the balance (if any) be paid to the defendant or other persons entitled to receive the same.

Power to decree sale in foreclosure suit.

(2) In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds and the mortgage is not a mortgage by conditional sale, the Court may, at the instance of the plaintiff or of any person interested either in the mortgage-money or in the right of redemption, pass a like decree (in lieu of a decree for foreclosure) on such terms as it thinks fit including the deposit in Court of a reasonable sum, fixed by the Court, to meet the expenses of sale and to secure the performance of the terms. [S. 88.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 88 of the T P Act, 1882, with some modifications.

In sub-rule (1), the words, what is declared due to the plaintiff as aforesaid have been substituted for the words "what is found due to the plaintiff" which occurred in the old section; and the words, together with subsequent interest and subsequent costs, have been added before the words 'and that the balance (if any).'

In sub-rule (2) the words "if it thinks fit" which occurred after the word "including" in the old section have been omitted. The other changes are merely verbal The old section is reproduced here for comparison:—

"In a suit for sale, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree to the effect mentioned in the first and second paragraphs of section 86, and also ordering that, in default of the defendant paying as therein mentioned, the mortgaged property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court, and applied in payment of what is so found due to the plaintiff, and that the balance (if any) be paid to the defendant or other persons entitled to receive the same

"In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, and the mortgage is not a mortgage by conditional sale, the Court may at the instance of the plaintiff, or of any person interested either in the mortgage-money or in the right of redemption, if it thinks fit, pass a like decree (in lieu of a decree for foreclosure) on such terms as it thinks fit, including, if it thinks fit the deposit in Court of a reasonable sum fixed by the Court to meet the expenses of sale, and to secure the performance of the terms"

Who may Obtain Decree for Sale?—Only the simple mortgagee, the English mortgagee, the equitable mortgagee, and the holder of a charge as defined in s. 100 of the T P. Act, IV of 1882, can sue for sale. Under clause (a) of s 67 of the T P. Act, usufructuary mortgagee as such has no right to institute a suit for foreclosure or sale. There is, however, difference of opinion as to the right of a usufructuary mortgagee, to claim an order for sale. In Venkatasami v. Subramanya, 11 M 88; in Ramaya v. Guruva, 14 M. 232 and in Sivakami Ammal v. Gopala, 17 M 131 it has been held that a decree for sale may be obtained by usufructuary mortgagee. But these cases have been dissented from in Luchmeshwar Singh v Dookh Mochan Jha, 24 C. 677 (11 A. 367 referred to), and in Kashi Ram v. Sardar Singh, 28 A. 157, where it has been held (distinguishing 21 A 4) that a usufructuary mortgage with personal covenant to pay the mortgage debt on demand unaccompanied by any hypothecation of property cannot give the mortgagee a right to sell in the event of non-payment of the mortgage debt. In Kangaya Gurukul v. Kalimuthu, 27 M 526, F. B., it has been held that where there is a combination of simple and usufructuary mortgage and a covenant to pay personally or to realize the mortgage-money by sale, the mortgagee has a right to a decree for the mortgage-money and for sale.

Simple mortgage, mortgage by conditional sale, usufructuary mortgage, and English mortgage are all defined in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) of s 58 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882.

English Mortgage.—In English mortgage there is a conveyance by the debtor of his property to the creditor and a covenant to pay the debt within a certain time, and a proviso, that on this condition being fulfilled the property shall be reconveyed by the mortgagee to the mortgagor. The three essentials of an English mortgage, as defined in s 58 (e) of the T. P. Act, are: (1) that the mortgagor should bind himself to repay the mortgage-money on a certain day, (2) that the property mortgaged should be transferred absolutely to the mortgagee, (3) that such absolute transfer should be made subject to a proviso that the mortgagee will re-convey the property to the mortgagor, upon payment by him of the mortgage-money on the day on which the mortgagor bound himself to repay the same. See, Narayana Ayyar v. Venkata Ramana, 25 M. 220, F B. English mortgage is somewhat similar to mortgage by conditional sale. The main distinction between these two classes of mortgages is, that in English mortgage, the possession usually remains with the mortgagor and it is not essential to the mortgagee's title that he should take possession English mortgages made between Hindus in the mofussil have been treated as mortgages by conditional sale.—Shurnomoyee v. Srinath Das, 12 C 614.

Equitable Mortgage.—Equitable mortgage has not been defined in s 58 of the T. P Act, but its validity has been recognized in the towns of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Karachi and Rangoon in the last para. of s. 59 of the T P Act. An equitable mortgage is created by deposit of the title deeds of property, in order to secure the advance of money required to prevent the sale of such property. In order to give the creditor an equitable mortgage it must appear that money had already been advanced when the deposit took place, and then it is not material that they were deposited for the purpose of having a mortgage executed, nor is it necessary that all the title deeds should be deposited.

Where a loan is taken in Calcutta by deposit of title deeds of property, in order to secure the advance of money required to prevent the sale of such property. Held, there is an equitable mortgage in favour of the creditor.—Priority of a subsequent simple mortgage over a prior equitable mortgage.—Giridhari Lal v. Poresh Nath, 4 C. L. J. 495. 11 C. W. N. 1

The defendant borrowed money from the plaintiff by deposit of title deeds relating to immoveable properties situate inside and partly outside the town of Calcutta, as collateral security Held, that the mortgage was valid as an equitable mortgage, and the appropriate remedy for such a mortgage is a decree for sale —Raja Sreenath v. Gadadhar Das, 24 C. 348; 1 C W. N. 225 (14 B. 238 and 269, referred to). See also, Madho Das v. Ram Kishan, 14 A. 238, and Himalaya Bank v. Quarry, 17 A. 252.

In India, there is no such distinction between legal and equitable estates as is known in English law. The deposit of mortgage deeds by a mortgagee with the agent of his creditors at Calcutta as security for the debts due to the creditors created a good equitable sub-mortgage and the mortgage is concluded on the day the deposit is made and is a valid mortgage. A deposit of title deeds of certain property under a verbal arrangement to secure payment of a debt, is not an oral agreement or declaration within the meaning of s. 48 of the Registration Act. A letter containing an admission of a previous mortgage as having been already made does not require registration —Gokul Das v The E M. Co., Ltd, 33 C. 410. 10 C. W. N 276; 4 C. L J. 102 (31 C. 57, 8 C. W. N. 41, 11 C. 158, referred to as to registration, 20 W. R 150 followed).

Execution of mortgage deed for Rs. 21,000.—Subsequent advance of Rs. 8,000 on a promissory note and it was agreed that the said sum should constitute a further charge on the properties included in the mortgage, the title deeds of which were in the possession of the mortgagee. Held, that a mortgage with deposit of title deeds will cover future advances if such is the agreement when the first advance is made —Grinder Coomar v. Kumud Kumari, 25 C. 611· 2 C. W. N. 356

Anomalous Mortgage.—Besides the mortgages described in s. 58 of the T. P. Act, there is another class of mortgage called "anomalous mortgage" which has been defined in s 98 of the T P Act (IV of 1882) As to the nature and effect of such mortgages and the rights and liabilities of parties under them, see, Hikmatulla v. Imam Ali, 12 A. 203; Visvalinga v. Palaniappa, 21 M. 1, Amar Chand v Kila Morar, 27 B. 600; Neela Kandan v Anantha Krishna, 30 M 61 16 M L. J. 462; Gopalan Nair v. Kunpan Menon, 30 M. 300· 17 M L J 189, Tukaram Bin v. Ram Chand, 26 B. 252.

When a plaintiff, in the case of an anomalous mortgage providing both for foreclosure or for sale at his option, sues for foreclosure only, the mortgagor cannot compel him to accept a decree for sale There is nothing in Or. XXXIV, r. 1, cl. 2, which can override the provisions of s. 98 of the T P. Act.—Nawab Saiyad Baquar Hussain v Babu Balak, 18 I. C. 24.

Decree for Sale in a Foreclosure Suit.—The second paragraph of this rule has been borrowed from the English Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 and 45, Vict. cl. 41, s. 25) and can apply to English mortgages. Where there are several conflicting claimants to the mortgaged property the proper course is to direct a sale of the mortgaged property and to distribute the sale proceeds amongst the several incumbrancers according to their respective rights and priorities; the surplus, if any, being paid over to the ultimate owner of the equity of redemption.

In a suit upon an English or an equitable mortgage the Court may in its discretion order sale instead of foreclosure. The Court will direct a sale in cases where there is such a complication that the ordinary decree cannot conveniently be worked out; but not where it would likely cause injury or be oppressive to the mortgagor or to other person interested.

The instances in which the Court in the exercise of its discretionary power should pass a decree for sale instead of foreclosure, are clearly stated in Daniell's Chancery Practice, pp. 1409-1411.

Preliminary Decree in a Suit for Sale—Court's Power to Adjust Equities.—A bona fide purchaser for value of portion of the mortgaged property without notice of such mortgage, has no right, in a suit by the mortgagee to enforce his mortgage, to insist that the portion not sold to him must be proceeded against first, and the portion purchased by him must be sold only for the balance, if any due. But it is competent to the Court under s 88, T P Act, 1882 (r. 4), to order a sufficient part of the mortgaged property to be sold; and if the portion not sold by the mortgagor is sufficient, and if the mortgagee will not be prejudiced, the Court may by its decree direct such unsold portion to be sold first, and if the decree directs the sale of the whole property, the Court, in execution, may first bring to sale the portion unsold and if the sale proceeds be sufficient, stop the sale of the portion sold by the mortgagor.—Appa ... v. Rangayya, 31 M. 419: 18 M. L. J. 229 (29 M. 217 explained; 17 ... 435 referred to).

It is competent to the Court in executing a mortgage decree to exercise its control in bringing different items of the property comprised in the decree to sale in a particular order to adjust the equities of the parties before it who are interested.—Krishna Ayyar v. Muttu Kumaraswamy, ... 29 M. 117. See also, Jatadhari Singh v. Baldeolal, 3 Pat L J 2... 51 I. C 441

A decree on a simple mortgage directing the sale of mortgaged property on default of payment within a fixed period is substantially a decree nisi or a conditional decree and cannot be executed unless it is made absolute under rule 5.—Ram Lal v. Narain, 12 A. 539; Sira Persad v. ... Nundo Lal, 18 C 139; Paresh Nath v. Ram Jadu, 16 C. 246, ... 23 A 331 ... Prosad v Bhobodeb, 22 C 931; Chunni Lal v. Abdul Ali, ...

Though Or XXXIV, r. 4, contemplates the sale of the properties mortgaged, the decree must be suitably modified when the mortgaged properties have already been converted into money.—Narendra v. Jogendra ... 19 C. W. N 537 20 C. L. J. 469: 27 I. C. 139.

Until a final decree is passed, all proceedings following a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit are proceedings in a pending suit and an application made therein is not an application for execution.—Bhuteshwar v. Tarachand, 33 C L. J. 115: 25 C. W. N. 505

Order in which Properties should be Sold.—Power of Court to Direct.—rdinarily, the right of selling a property in a particular order rests with e decree-holder and in the absence of any contract between the parties, e decree-holder may proceed to sell the properties in whatever order he inks best so as to facilitate his realization of his mortgage-debt. But e Court can in the circumstances of a case and in view of the equities rising in various parties, direct the order in which the properties should sold; Raj Keshwar Prasad v Mahomed Khalil-ul-Rahman, 5 Pat. L 223

Award.—An arbitrator is not bound by this rule. A decree in terms f an award may order the sale of the property mortgaged, although no reliminary decree under this rule or final decree under rule 5 has been assed.—Nripendra v. Jhumak, 3 Pat. 221: 80 I C. 588. A. I R. 1924 Pat. 263

Consent-decree.—In the case of a consent-decree, an order for the of the mortgaged property may be made, although no preliminary ree under this rule or final decree under rule 5 has been passed—mendra v. Fakir Chand, 50 C. 650. 74 I C. 929: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. ; Ishan v. Nilratan, 2 Pat. 538: 72 I C 1049: A. I R 1923 Pat. ; Sital Singh v Baij Nath, 44 A. 368: 75 I. C 485: A. I R. 1922 . 383.

5. (1) Where on or before the day fixed, the defendant pays into Court the amount declared due as aforesaid, together with such subsequent costs as are mentioned in rule 10, the Court shall pass a decree—

(a) ordering the plaintiff to deliver up the documents which under the terms of the preliminary decree he is bound to deliver up,

d, if so required,

(b) ordering him to re-transfer the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree, d also, if necessary,

(c) ordering him to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(2) Where such payment is not so made, the Court shall, on plication made in that behalf by the plaintiff pass a decree that e mortgaged property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and at the proceeds of the sale be dealt with as is mentioned in rule 4. [S. 89.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 89 of the T. P. Act IV of 1882, with several lditions and alterations. The old section has been recast and re-arranged, and the changes introduced by the present rule will appear more [illegible] on comparison of this rule with the old section. The words "for an order absolute," which occurred in the old section, and the last sentence of the old section which ran as follows, "and thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished," have been omitted Section 89, T. P. Act, 1882, ran as follows: "If in any case under section 88, the defendant pays to the plaintiff or into Court on the day fixed as aforesaid the amount due under the mortgage, the costs (if any) awarded to him, and such subsequent costs as are mentioned in s. 94, the defendant shall (if necessary) be put in possession of the mortgaged property; but, if such payment is not so made, the plaintiff or the defendant, as the case may be, may apply to the Court for an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property, and the Court shall then pass an order that such property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale be dealt with as is mentioned in s. 88, and thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished."

The above omissions seem to have been made for the reason that the provisions of the C. P. Code of 1908, relating to execution and [illegible] shall now apply equally to mortgage decrees. The word "absolute" has been omitted because even after the final decree for sale, the defendant will be able to prevent the sale by paying the decretal amount under Or. XXI, r. 69 (3) to the officer conducting the sale (see 31 C 863 F B.; 31 M. 354 and 19 A. 205).

The concluding sentence of the old s 89 of the T. P. Act, 1882, has been omitted for the reason that even after the passing of the final decree under this rule, the judgment-debtor by making a deposit under s. 310 [illegible] of the C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 89), will be able to set aside the sale and get back the mortgage security, as by the wording of the present r. 5, the passing of the final decree will not deprive the judgment-debtor of the remedies provided by the rules above referred to. In this connection, see 19 A. 205, 20 A. 354, 25 B. 104, 28 A. 778, 31 M. 354, and 31 C. 863, F B The concluding words of s. 89 of the T. P. Act, (IV of 1882) were subject to much discussion in all the Indian High Courts, and they have agreed in holding that those words relate to the actual sale and distribution of the proceeds and not merely to the passing of the order absolute for sale. In other words, by the passing of a final decree for sale, neither the mortgagee's right to redeem nor the mortgage-security will be extinguished The Allahabad High Court, in Shiam Lal v. Fakir-uddin, 28 A 788, observed as follows: "It is not easy to say what was in the contemplation of the framers of the T. P. Act, in introducing the concluding word of s. 89 of the T. P. Act." In Krishnaji v. Mahadev, 25 B 104, it has been held that provisions of s. 310-A. of the C P. Code, 1882, are applicable to sales held in execution of mortgage decree passed under the T. P. Act; in Rajaram v Chunni Lal 19 A 205, it has been held that ss. 291 and 310-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, will apply to a sale held by virtue of an order absolute for sale passed under s 89 of the T. P. Act. This case has been followed in Harjas Rai v. Rameshar, 20 A 354. A similar view has also been taken in Adipuranam v. Gopalan, 31 M. 354 In Bibijan Bibi v. Sachi Bewaha, 31 C. 863, F. B., it has been held that the concluding words of s 89, T. P. Act, relate to the actual sale and distribution of the proceeds and not merely to the passing f the order absolute for sale. In view of the rulings mentioned above, ie Legislature has probably considered it useless to retain the words absolute " and the concluding sentence of s. 89 of the T. P. Act, and ence they have been omitted from the present rule. The effect of the mission is that the mortgage is kept alive for all purposes as regards ersons having an interest but not made parties to the mortgage suit.—'enkat Reddy v. Kunjappa, 46 M L. J. 391.

" The Transfer of Property Act does not contain any provision for he passing of a final decree in cases where payment is made in accordance rith the terms of the preliminary decree This is in our opinion an omission, and we have provided in r 3 (1), 5 (1) and 8 (1) for the passing of a nal decree in such cases."—See the Report of the Select Committee.

Scope and Object of Rule.—This rule prescribes the procedure to be dopted in the case of a decree for sale. If on or before the day fixed he defendant pays into Court the amount declared to be due under r , together with such subsequent costs as are mentioned in r. 10, the Court hall pass a decree in accordance with the directions contained in clauses a), (b) and (c) of this rule No attachment is necessary for the sale of he mortgaged premises, as the direction for sale in the decree is in itself ufficient authority for the sale.—See the cases noted under Or. XXI, . 54.

The sale will now be regulated under the Code of Civil Procedure nd it may be stopped on the amount of debt and costs being tendered o the officer conducting the sale. See Or XXI, r, 69 (3), which is now pplicable to all sales including the sales of mortgaged property This ule does not lay down, as rule 3 does, that on the passing of the final lecree the mortgage debt shall be deemed to be discharged Therefore, if he proceeds of the sale be found insufficient, then the mortgagee may roceed against the mortgagor personally or against his other properties y adopting the procedure laid down in r. 6

Difference between Order XXXIV, Rule 5, and Section 89, T. P. Act —There is a substantial difference between the provisions of s 89 of the r. P. Act and Or. XXXIV, r 5, C. P. Code, and the former provision overns sales held before the new C P. Code As soon as an order absolute was made, the mortgage security was extinguished and the relative ights of the mortgagor and the mortgagee were regulated by the decree But it does not follow that thereafter the mortgagee is debarred from roving that the description of the property mentioned in the schedule o the decree was itself erroneous —Nand Lal v Jogendra, 28 C W. N 103.

Final Decree When can be Passed.—A final decree in a mortgage suit can be passed only when the preliminary decree has become conclusive etween the parties If there is an appeal pending from the latter, the final decree should be passed only after the disposal of the appeal ; Lalman v. Shiam Singh, 92 I C 603 A I R 1926 All 291

Final Decree and Right of Mortgagor to Redeem.—The mere passing of a final decree in a mortgage suit does not extinguish the mortgagor's right to redeem until a sale has actually taken place in pursuance of the decree.—Syed Shah Mahdi Hasan v Ismail Hasan, 18 A L J. 622. 55 I. C. 172.

Under Or. XXXIV, r. 5, a mortgagor has no right to redeem the mortgage after a decree absolute for sale.—Dharam Singh v Gang Ram, 43 I. C. 399.

Notwithstanding the passing of a final decree in a mortgage suit it is open to the mortgagor to pay up the mortgage amount and redeem the mortgage until the sale is held and the proceeds distributed. It is settled law in equity that though a personal covenant is extinguished by a judgment a charge subsists notwithstanding the judgment which does not determine the security or put an end to the charge.—Maulvi Mahomed Musa v Edal Singh, 3 Pat. L. T 233: 65 I. C. 801

Right of Sub-mortgagee and Pulsne Mortgagee to Obtain a Decree for Sale.—Ordinarily the right to obtain a decree for sale belongs to an English and Simple mortgagee. The Madras High Court has held that a sub-mortgagee is entitled to a decree for the sale of the original mortgagor's interest in cases and in circumstances which would have entitled the original mortgagee on the date of the sub-mortgage to claim such relief.—Muthu Vija v. Venkatachallam, 20 M 35 In Matadin v. Kazim Husain, 13 A 432; in Ganga Prasad v Chunni Lal, 18 A. 113, it has been held that the term "property" as used in the T. P. Act, means an actual physical object and does not include mere right relating to physical objects and that bare equity of redemption cannot be sold A sub-mortgagee therefore has no right to obtain a decree for sale. In Ajudhia Prasad v Man Singh, 25 A. 46, a similar view seems to have been taken In Palgaya v. Baji, 20 B. 549, the right of sale is denied on the ground that there is no privity between the original mortgagee and the sub-mortgagee. But in Jageswar Dutt v Bhuban Mohan, 33 C. 425: 3 C L J. 25, it has been held that the term "property" as used in s. 85 of the T P Act, 1882, indicates not the actual physical object but denotes rather the rights in such object which form the subject-matter of the transaction (1 C. L. J. 337 followed, 13 A 432 dissented from). In Ramsaran v Ganesh Parshad, 29 A 385, F. B.: 4 A. L. J. 273, it has been held that a sub-mortgagee of mortgage rights in immoveable property is entitled to a decree for sale of the mortgage rights of his mortgagor. The words "mortgaged property" in the T. P. Act, mean the interest in specific immoveable property, which the mortgagor professes to transfer whatever that interest may be. If the mortgage be a mortgage of the absolute estate in the land, then the land itself, and if it be a puisne mortgage then the interest in the land of the mortgagor, that is, the equity of redemption. In this Full Bench case, all the rulings of the several High Courts have also been referred to, and discussed and several Privy cases have also been referred to It has overruled 13 A. 432 and 18 A. 113. It would thus appear that all the High Courts have now recognised the rights of sub-mortgagee and puisne mortgagee to bring the mortgaged property to sale.

The Allahabad High Court has also held that a puisne mortgagee has no right to obtain a decree for sale without offering to redeem all the prior [illegible] Harcharan, 12 A. 548; Kali Charan v. Abdul [illegible] v. Ghaffar, 21 A. 272. But in [illegible] 8 M 216, and in Gangadhar v. Sivarama, [illegible] 22 C. 33, it has been held that a puisne mortgagee is entitled to obtain a decree for sale subject to the right of the prior incumbrancer. It has also been held in 22 C. 33 that the words "immoveable property" in s. 58 of the T. P. Act, (IV of 1882), denote not only the property itself, but include the mortgagor's equity of redemption in such property.

One of the objects which a Court of equity ought always to have in view is to minimize the number of cases which may arise out of the relation between the parties to a mortgage The equities between the parties may be adjusted in one suit by allowing the sub-mortgagee to bring the property mortgaged to sale for the amount of the original mortgage —Bansi Lal v. Durga Prasad, 9 C. L J. 429 See also, Venkataramana Iyer v. Comperts, 31 M. 425.

In a properly constituted suit, a sub-mortgagee is entitled to a decree for the sale of the mortgaged property The mortgagor in a suit must be impleaded as also the mortgagees so that the former may have an opportunity to redeem and the latter may be able to safeguard their interests in regard to the claim put forward by the sub-mortgagee and see that the amount claimed is due —Ahmed Ali v. Bilas Rai, 5 A. L. J. 402: A. W. N. (1908) 191.

Application for an Order for Sale—General Cases.—Where a subsequent mortgagee seeks to bring to sale the property mortgaged to him and there are parties defendants to the suit, who have purchased the property and paid off prior mortgages, the plaintiff is not entitled to an order for sale unless he pays to such defendants the amount paid by them in respect of the prior mortgages together with the full amount due on such mortgages.—Sri Ram v. Kesri Mal, 26 A 185.

A prior mortgagee obtained a decree for sale upon his mortgage in a suit to which the puisne mortgagee was a party The prior mortgagee's decree being partly satisfied by sale of portion of the mortgaged property, the balance was paid by the puisne mortgagee, who then applied for an order absolute for sale of the property comprised in the prior mortgage and also of some other property comprised in his own mortgage Held that he was not entitled to any order in respect of his own mortgage —Jamna Das v. Misri Lal, 26 A 504 (24 A. 179 referred to)

One of joint decree-holders cannot alone certify satisfaction of the whole decree; if he does so, the other decree-holder can obtain an order absolute for sale in respect of his own share of the mortgage-debt —Tamman Singh v. Lachmin Kunwari, 26 A 318.

Applications for order absolute for sale under s 89, T. P Act are applications for execution of the decree under s 88, T. P. Act. To such applications section 258, C P Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r 2), is applicable, and bars recognition of payments made out of Court unless such payments are certified in the manner prescribed by the section —Halim Singh v. Ram Singh, 30 A. 218. 5 A L J 272 (28 M 473, F B, followed; 8 C W. N. 102 dissented from) See also, Harish Chundra v Jagabandhu, 12 C. W. N. 282: 7 C L J 581 But see, Pramatha Chundra v Khettra Mohan, 29 C 651.

So long as an order under s 89, T P Act, 1882, making a decree absolute for sale under s. 88 of the Act subsists, it is enforceable and its validity cannot be questioned by the judgment-debtor in execution proceedings. If the order under s. 89 is defective, the remedy of the judgment-debtor is to get it set aside in accordance with law.—Ramjas v. Sheo Prasad, 28 A 193 (3 A. 424, 13 A. 278, 21 C. 19 distinguished)

Form of Decree in a Suit for Sale.—In a suit by a mortgagee against the mortgagor and the purchasers of the mortgaged property, held, that the proper decree in the suit should be a money decree against the mortgagor only, with a declaration that the mortgaged property is liable to be sold free of subsequent incumbrances —Bhairub Chandra v. Nadyar Chand 3 B. L R 557; 12 W. R. 291.

In a suit for recovery of mortgage money by sale where it appeared that the decree was in substance a decree for sale of the mortgaged properties though not in the prescribed form, held, that the decree was to be regarded as a mortgage decree under the T. P. Act, IV of 1882—Lal Behari v. Habibar Rahaman, 26 C. 166 (24 C. 473, 25 C. 580 referred to).

A suit on a mortgage was adjusted and a decree made treating a salenamah filed by the parties as a part of the decree. It was agreed that the amount due should be paid in instalments and that the mortgaged property should be sold in default of payment. Held, that though the form of the decree is not strictly in accordance with the provisions of this section, still the decree is a valid one and the mortgaged property should be sold to satisfy the decretal amount Whether an order under s. 89 of the T P. Act, is necessary or not the Court has general jurisdiction to direct a sale of the property. Section 89 of the T. P. Act, contemplates a certain state of things, but where such a state of things does not exist that section does not exclude other ways of enforcing a decree, if such decree is otherwise valid in law —Abir Paramanik v. Jahar Mahammad, 34 C 856: 11 C. W. N. 879: 6 C. L J 95 A similar view has also been taken in [illegible] Singh v Becharam, 10 C L. J. 91 where it has been further held that the provisions of s. 89, T P. Act, are not applicable to consent decrees

A mortgage decree under s 88 of the T. P Act (r. 4), cannot impose personal liability for costs. It may contain a declaration of the personal liability of the defendant for principal or costs, but such a declaration is not part of the usual form of decree under the T. P. Act, and is enforceable only under r. 6.—Kamalamma v. Komandur, 30 M. 404. 17 M. L J [illegible]

In a suit by the mortgagee, against a Mitakshara father and son, to enforce a mortgage-bond executed by the father, within six years from the due date fixed by the mortgage, it was not proved that there was any legal necessity for the loan, or that the loan was contracted for illegal or immoral purposes Held, that the mortgagee was entitled to have the mortgage enforced as against the share of the mortgagor and also against the share of the son in the ancestral property.—Kishun Pershad v. Tipan Singh, 34 C 735; 11 C. W. N 613, 5 C L J. 569.

A combined decree under ss 88 and 90 of the T. P. Act (rr. 4 and 6) is contrary to the procedure prescribed by that Act Where such a decree is passed and the decree-holder proceeds to execute it for the realisation of the balance after the mortgaged property has been sold, the provisions of s 230, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 48), will apply.—Chandi Charan v. [illegible] haran, 31 C. 702 (25 A. 541 dissented from). See also, Damodar v. 'yaku, 31 B. 244: 9 Bom. L. R 109, and Sadho Singh v Maharaja of 'enares, 29 A. 12, in which it has been held that where a decree in suit for sale of hypothecated property is both a decree for sale and a per-)nal decree, there is no need for the decree-holder to apply for a separate ecree under s. 90 of the T. P. Act (1. 6), and if he does so and his appliation is rejected this will not operate as a bar to his executing the decree gainst the judgment-debtor personally.

In a mortgage suit a decree may be passed for the sale of the mortaged property subject to a charge for maintenance, in favour of a particular erson, the plaintiff in such a suit does not occupy the position of a second ortgagee.—Lalman v. Mohar Singh, 29 A. 205 3 A L J. 848 (13 A' 32 distinguished).

Form of decree discussed, where a person who at a sale in execution of mortgage decree has purchased a portion of the mortgaged property, ings a suit for that portion against the assignee in possession as mortgor.—Bepin Behari v Brojo Nath, 8 C. 357.

UNREGISTERED MORTGAGE INVALID—MONEY DECREE.

Where a mortgage is held invalid on the ground that the requirements s 59 of the T. P. Act, regarding registration were not complied with, a oney decree can be made upon the covenant in the bond.—Tofaluddin eada v. Maharali, 26 C. 78.

In a suit on a mortgage, for an account and sale of the mortgaged operty, where a puisne mortgagee, who is made a defendant appears and oves his mortgage and asks that the decree sought to be obtained by the aintiff may also provide for an account on the footing of his mortgage, id for payment of the amount found due to him out of the sale-proceeds, ie practice of the Court is, where no issue is raised as between the defenints and no question of priority arises, on proof of the subsequent mortige, to make a decree directing an account on the footing of each of the ortgages, and fixing one period of redemption for all the defendants.—issory Mohun v. Kally Churn, 22 C. 100 (5 C 101 referred to) See so, Kissory Mohun v Kally Churn, 24 C. 190. This case has been ex'ained and distinguished in Debendra Nath v Abdul Somad, 10 C. L 150.

In a suit on a mortgage by a second mortgagee, to which the prior ortgagee, was a party, and in which the plaintiff prayed that the amount ie to him might be realized by a sale of the mortgaged property Held, iat the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for sale of the mortgaged property ibject to the lien of the prior incumbrancer —Kanti Ram v Kudbuddin, 2 C. 33 Referred to in Madhub Mohapatra v Surendra Mohun, 23 C 15. See also, Durga Dharan v Chandra Nath, 4 C W N 541

First and second mortgagees—Second mortgagee not made party to suit by first mortgagee for sale of mortgaged property—Form of decree in such a suit —Muhammad Samiuddin v. Man Singh, 9 A. 125

In a suit on a usufructuary mortgage a decree was passed for the payment of the mortgage money, or in default for the sale of the mortgaged property. Held, that the decree for sale was the right decree —Venkatasami v. Subramanya, 11 M 88.

A sub-mortgagee is entitled to a decree for the sale of the original mortgagor's interest in cases and in circumstances which would have entitled the original mortgagee on the date of the sub-mortgage to claim such relief —Nathu Vipa Raghunatha v. Venkatachellam, 20 M 35

Decree on first mortgage, a puisne mortgagee not being joined—Purchase of mortgaged property by decree-holder for inadequate price—Rights of puisne mortgagee—Form of decree.—Rangyya v. Parthasarathi, 20 M 120

A mortgagor stipulated that if the mortgaged properties be sold for arrears of revenue, or for other causes, the money advanced might be recovered by execution against the person or other property of the mortgagor. Held, that no sale having taken place, the mortgagee could only obtain a decree against the mortgaged properties —Bunseedhur v Sujut Ali, 16 C 540 (10 C. 740 referred to).

Decree for sale—Provision in the decree for interest at contract rate until six months from date of decree is correct.—Commercial Bank of India v. Ateendrulayya, 23 M. 637 (26 C. 39, P. C., and 21 A. 261 referred to)

Construction of Mortgage Decree.—Where the plaintiff sued on a mortgage-bond by enforcement of lien on the property hypothecated, and obtained a decree in the following terms: "Decree for plaintiff in favour of his claim with costs" without any specification in it as to the relief being sought by charging the hypothecated property. Held, that the decree was to be regarded as a simple money decree, and not for enforcement of such lien —Thaman Singh v. Gangaram, 2 A. 342; Harsukh v. Majhraj, 2 A. 345, Janaki Prasad v Baldeo, 3 A. 216. But see, Debi Charan v. Pothi Din, 3 A 388, F B.; and Ram Prasad v. Raghunandan, 3 A 229, and Ramanath Das v Baloram, 7 C 714; 9 C. L. R. 353.

Where the decree contained the following terms: "The property hypothecated in the bond being also held liable for the whole amount thus awarded" Held, that the decree was in reality a decree for sale —Pillai v Thangathammal, 20 M. 78

A decree on a mortgage-bond ordered that the amount be realized from the mortgaged property without any provision to realize the money from any other property. Held, that the decree-holder's right was limited to the mortgaged property alone —Solano v. Moran & Co., 4 C. L. R. 11. See also, Pran Kuar v. Durga Prosad, 10 A. 127; Badan v. Ram Charan, 11 B. 537.

In a decree for sale of hypothecated property and against the judgment-debtor personally, the decree-holder is entitled to proceed either against the person or against the mortgaged property, whichever he may think best — Johari Mal v. Sant Lal, 9 A. 484 (4 A. 497 explained). See also, Luchmi Dai v. Asman Singh, 2 C. 213, 25 W R. 421 Followed in Ram Baran v. Gobind, 28 A. 295 4 A. The promise to repay the mortgage-money carries with it a personal obligation Where there is in the mortgage nothing to the contrary, the remedy of the mortgagee is not restricted to the mortgaged property only; the mortgage merely gives the mortgagee an additional security in the shape of the pledged property —Bhugwan Das v Parmeswari Prasad, 5 C. L J. 287. See also, Parbati Charan v Gobinda Chandra, 4 C L J. 246 (19 W R. 281, 12 C. 389 referred to, 10 C 740, P. C, 16 C. 540 distinguished); Abbakke Heggaddthi v Kinhiamma, 29 M 491 (22 A. 453, p. 461, referred to) and Mushab Zaman Khan v Inayatulla, 14 A. 513

In a mortgage decree, the debtor can at once pay off the mortgage debt before the expiry of 6 months to avoid payment of interest.—Chotoo Lall v. Miller, 7 C L R. 267, Monzoorad Dowlah v Mehidi Begum, 7 C. L. R 206

Where, in a suit on mortgage, the decree of the lower Court is confirmed in appeal, the time for redemption would run from the date of the decree of the first Court.—Bholanath v. Kanti Chandra, 25 C 311 · 1 C. W. N. 671 But see, Daulat Jugjivan v Bhukandas, 11 B. 172.

Where by consent decree in second appeal the time for redemption is extended from that fixed in the first Court, interest should be allowed up to the date of extension —Rafikunnissa Bibi v Tarini Churn, 20 C. 279.

On default in payment on a simple mortgage, a Court, instead of passing a decree for sale, passed a decree for possession by the mortgagee after a period of grace Held, that the decree for possession did not amount to a decree for foreclosure, or preclude redemption —Papamma Rao v. Vira Pratap, 19 M 249, P. C

Where a decree directs the payment of money into Court within a limited time, it is a sufficient compliance with such decree, if the judgment-debtor brings the money into Court within the time and takes the necessary steps required by the departmental rules for its actual payment into the treasury —Gujadhur v Naik Pauree, 8 C. 528.

Under the terms of a compromise decree in a mortgage suit the judgment-debtor was directed to pay the debt due to the decree-holder by certain instalments specified therein, and it was also further provided that in default of the judgment-debtor paying the money as therein mentioned, the property mortgaged by him to the decree-holder should be sold. Held, on a construction of the decree, that it was not a preliminary one within the meaning of Or XXXIV, r 4, C P. Code, but a final decree directing the sale of the property of the judgment-debtor on default of payment. Kora Lal v Punjab National Bank Ltd., 5 Lah L. J. 67.

Where a mortgage decree omits to reserve rights of such persons whose rights are admitted, it ought to be construed with reference to the admission contained in the pleadings or made in the course of the case and ought not to be so construed as to grant a larger measure of relief than is prayed for so as to negative rights admitted by all parties.—Srinivasa v. Yamunabhai, 29 M. 14.

A decree for sale under s. 88, T. P. Act, 1882 (r. 4), is a final decree and all subsequent proceedings are proceedings in execution of that decree and to them the provisions of the C. P. Code are applicable.—Adinarayana v. Gopalasami, 31 M. 354: 18 M. L. J. 239.

Application for final Decree If Necessary—Nature and Effect of such an Application.—An order absolute for sale is not indispensably necessary as a condition precedent for the sale of mortgaged property in execution of a mortgage decree; it is sufficient that there is an order for sale passed on the application of the decree-holder.—Phul Chand v. Nursingh Pershad, 28 C. 73 (18 C. 139, 22 C. 931 referred to).

An application for an order absolute for sale of mortgaged property under the provisions of s. 89, Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), is not an application for execution of decree, and need not therefore be in the form prescribed by s. 235, C. P. Code, 1882 [Or. XXI, r. 11 (2)].—Ajudhia Pershad v. Baldeo Singh, 21 C. 818 (16 C. 216 referred to). See also, Sir Jehangir Cowasji v. The Hope Mills Ltd., 33 B. 273. See, however, Oudh Behari v. Nageshar Lal, 13 A. 278 and Ali Ahmad v. Naziram Bibi, 24 A. 542, where it has been further held that such an application is governed by art. 181 of the Limitation Act.

A conditional decree for the sale of mortgaged property under s. 88, Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), cannot be executed unless and until it is made absolute by an order passed under s. 89 of the Act.—Ram [illegible] v. Narain, 12 A. 539; followed in Tara Prosad v. Bhobodeb Das, 22 C. 931 (18 C. 139 distinguished, 16 C. 216 referred to). See also, Mata Prasad v. Sital Singh, 10 A. 520 (13 A. 278 referred to); Jehangir Cowasji v. The Hope Mills Co., Ltd., 33 B. 273, and Har Dayal v. Chail Lal, 7 A. 194. See, however, Phul Chand v. Nursingh Pershad, 28 C. 73, where it has been held that an order absolute for sale is not indispensably necessary as a condition precedent for the sale of a mortgaged property in execution of a mortgage-debt (22 C. 931, and 1 C. It is open to the mortgagor to waive a final decree before execution can be levied. Where, pending an appeal from the preliminary decree in a mortgage suit, the parties compromised the suit and a decree for a smaller amount payable in two years was passed with a provision that the property was to be sold in default of payment. Held, it was the intention of the parties that the mortgagee should realise the amount by sale of the property immediately on the expiry of the two years.—Raja Hemendra Lal Singh Deo v. Fakir Chand, 27 C. In a suit for sale on a mortgage in which there were prior mortgages o be redeemed, the plaintiff obtained a decree for sale on condition of his edeeming the prior mortgages within two months, but he redeemed the prior mortgages after four months. Held, that the defendant having aken no steps to redeem, the plaintiff was entitled to an order for sale, although made after time.—Debi Prasad v Jaikaran Singh, 24 A. 479 (20 A. 375 and 446, 19 A 180, 24 A 44, distinguished).

If an order absolute for sale for a portion of the mortgaged property has been obtained and the sale-proceeds of that portion prove insufficient to satisfy the decretal debt, he can obtain on application for further order absolute for sale of another portion of the mortgaged property, provided that his application is made within the period of limitation.—Balkrishnaji v. Mithu Lal, 25 A. 212. Where an appeal is made against an order for sale of portion of the mortgaged property, the decree-holder, after the dismissal of the appeal, can obtain a further order for sale of the entire property for an amount including interest accrued pending the appeal —Satnarain v. Radha Krishna, 25 A. 264.

The pendency of an appeal against a decree under s. 88, T. P. Act (r. 4), is of itself, no ground for refusing to make an order absolute for sale under s. 89, T P. Act (r. 5).—Ram Gopal v. Barasati Singh, 10 C. W. N. 910.

An application by the holder of a mortgage for an order absolute under s. 89 of the T P. Act, 1882, is an application for execution of the decree and is subject to the provisions of s. 235, C. P. Recovery of balance due on mortgage.

6. Where the net proceeds of any such sale are found to be insufficient to pay the amount due to the plaintiff, if the balance is legally recoverable from the defendant otherwise than out of the property sold, the Court may pass decree for such amount. [S. 90.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 90 of the T. P. Act, (IV of 1882) with some additions and alterations. No material change has been made in the meaning as will appear on a comparison of this rule with the old section which ran as follows: "Where the net proceeds of any such sale are insufficient to pay the amount due for the time being on the mortgage, if the balance is legally recoverable from the defendant otherwise than out of the property sold, the Court may pass a decree for such sum."

The words "amount due to the plaintiff" have been substituted for the words "due for the time being on the mortgage," which occurred in the old section The reason for the substitution seems to be, that the costs incurred by the plaintiff in a suit for sale are not properly amounts due upon the mortgage (See Ram Lal v. Sil Chand, 23 A 439 and 26 A 507), and in view of the observations made in the above rulings, the words of the old section have been changed. From the above rulings it is also clear that the word "defendant" in this rule, means the mortgagor defendant, and not a puisne mortgagee or any other person who is made a co-defendant in the suit under r. 1.

Scope of the Rule.—The personal liability of a mortgagor arises only after exhausting all remedies against the property of the mortgagor but this does not mean that in a case where a portion of a mortgaged property is destroyed there can be no personal liability.—Chand Mall v. Ban behari, 50 C. 718.

Right to Personal Decree.—A mortgagee who obtains a decree for sale but fails to execute it is not entitled to apply under Or. XXXIV, r 6, to obtain a decree over, as that rule contemplates that the property should be put to sale in execution of the decree before an application under its provisions can be made.—Darbari Lal v. Moola Singh, 18 A L J. 628. 56 I C. 139 See also, Sham Lal v Sheobaran Singh, 20 I C 320 (29 A 260 referred to). The holder of a mortgage-decree can proceed against the other property of the mortgagor, only if the mortgaged properties do not belong to the mortgagor. A mortgage-decree directing payment within a fixed date and in default ordering the sale of the hypothecated property is a personal decree and the decree-holder can proceed against the person and other property of the judgment-debtor without obtaining a decree under Or XXXIV, r. 6—Periasami v. Muthia, 38 M 677: 15 M L T 232

Where the mortgagor covenants to transfer the hypothecated properties indefeasibly to the morgagee, with the usual clause for redemption and further covenants to pay the mortgage-debt with interest to the mortgagee, his heir and assigns, the latter clause is a personal covenant to pay out of properties other than the hypothecated properties, as the latter clause would be entirely superfluous, if the parties had no intention that the mortgagor should be personally liable to pay to the mortgagee the money due to him Therefore in such cases, the mortgagee is entitled to a decree for sale but also to a personal decree against the mortgagor—Asharan Boid v Gobordhan, 26 C. W. N. 318.

"The Court may pass a decree."—It is the decree that is passed under this rule that is executable against the mortgagors personally, and in the absence of such a decree, the mortgagee is not entitled to proceed against the property of the mortgagors other than those covered by the mortgage The preliminary decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 4 is not itself capable of execution and cannot therefore give a personal remedy against the mortgagors—Bullee Bee v. Kaka Haji Muhammad, 50 M L J. 30 93 I. C 99 A I R 1926 Mad. 415.

"Are found to be insufficient."—Where after sale of mortgaged property in execution of mortgage decree, the sale is set aside and mortgagee is required to refund the proceeds to the purchaser, he can apply under this rule, as the proceeds in such a case are nil and therefore insufficient —Badal Singh v. Debi Saran, 25 A. L. J. 485: 100 I. C. 775: A. I. R. 1927 All. 395 (Pirbhu Narain v. Baldeo, 29 A 260 not followed; Kedar Nath v. Chandumal, 26 A. 25 followed.)

The sale contemplated by s. 89, T P. Act, 1882 (r 5), is the sale of the whole or of a sufficient portion of the mortgaged property. A personal decree under this rule can only be made where the net sale proceeds are insufficient to pay the amount due on the mortgage. A mortgagee may release a portion of the mortgaged property from the debt, but he cannot by so doing impose upon the mortgagor a personal liability to which otherwise he would not be subject The condition precedent to enable a Court to pass a decree under this rule is the sale of the whole or a sufficient portion of the mortgaged property Where the mortgagee released substantial portions of the mortgaged property and also the purchasers of those portions from the mortgage debt, there being no consent or acquiescence on the part of the mortgagor and there being nothing to show that the amount which the purchasers paid to the mortgagee was the full and true value of the property, which they purchased Held, that the mortgagor was entitled to claim to have the mortgaged property sold before a decree could be passed against him under s. 90 T. P. Act —Ram Rajan v. Indra Narain, 33 C. 890· 16 C. W. N 862, 3 C L. J. 83-n; Satish Ranjan Das v Mercantile Bank of India, 45 C. 702. 48 I. C. 322. Badri Das v. Inayat Khan, 22 A 404 But see, Shew Prasad v Behari Lal, 25 A 79; Ghafur Hassan v Muhammad Kifayatulla, 28 A. 19: 2 A. L. J. 413, Shiam Sunder v. Ganesh Prasad, 28 A 674: 3 A. L. J. 465· 465 Kedarnath v Chandu Mal, 26 A 25, Pirbhu Narain v. Amir Singh, 29 A. 369 In these Allahabad cases it has been held that a mortgagee is entitled at any stage to abandon his claim against any portion of the mortgaged property and then obtain a decree under this section for any balance due It would thus appear that there is difference of opinion on the point. See also, Rakhal Chandra v Sidhinath, (1919) Pat 390 53 I C 922.

Where a mortgage decree-holder has, in execution of his decree, sold some of the properties covered by the decree but has not realised sufficient to pay off the amount due, and is unable to sell the remaining properties by reason of their being situated in a Native State which will not execute the decree of a British Indian Court, the decree-holder is entitled to a personal decree —Somanta Jagarnath v Lokenath, 2 Pat L. J. 106: 2 Pat L T 736

Recovery of Balance Due on Mortgage.—The holder of a mortgage decree, which simply directs the sale of the mortgaged property, and contains no other directions for realization of the balance from the person or other property of the mortgagor, in case the sale-proceeds prove insufficient to satisfy the decree, may on the proceeds proving insufficient, ask for and obtain a decree under this rule for realization of the balance from the other properties of the debtor.—Sonatun Shaw v. Ali Newas, 16 C. 123. Discussed in Musaheb Zaman v Inayatulla, 14 A. 513. See also, Lalla Tirhum v. Lalla Hurruck, 21 C 26.

The decree contemplated by this rule can be made in the suit in which the decree for sale was passed; and it is not necessary to institute a fresh suit to obtain such decree.—Rajsing v Parmanand, 11 A 486 See also, Durga Dai v. Bhagwat Prasad, 13 A. 356.

A decree for sale of the mortgaged property cannot be treated as money decree. The mortgagee must first sell the mortgaged property and if the sale-proceeds be insufficient, then the balance may be recovered and he can then recover the balance from the person or other property of the mortgagor, if it is legally recoverable —Gopal Das v. Ali Mohammad, 10 A. 632. See also, Surja Kumar v. Promada Sundari, 17 C W N. 1039. 20 I. C. 829, Arunachella v. Vekatarama, 38 M. L. J 93 26 M L T 192

In order to make the remedy provided by this rule available, it is necessary that the mortgaged property should have been sold by the decree-holder in execution of his own decree and not in execution of a decree of some other person —Badri Das v. Inyat Khan, 22 A 404

Mortgagee cannot sell the mortgaged property in execution of an ordinary money-decree in satisfaction of a claim not arising under the mortgage. Section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) limits the right of a decree-holder in such a case, and provides that he shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise by instituting a suit under s 67 of the Act.—Jadub Lall v Madhub Lall, 21 C 34; Karen v Ananthyya, 10 M 129, Azimullah v Najmunnissa, 16 A. 415.

Where the original decree is a mortgage decree as well as a personal decree against the mortgagor under which the mortgagee can, in execution proceed against the person or any property of the mortgagor, no supplemental decree under this rule is necessary —Dinanath v Bejoy Krishna, 7 C W N 744, Durga Dai v. Bhagwat Prasad, 13 A 356, Batak Nath v Pitambar, 13 A 360, Lalji Lal v. Barber, 15 A 334, Sadho Singh v. Maharaja of Benares, 29 A. 12. See, however, Lutshef Zaman v Inayutullah, 14 A. 513; and Lalla Trihim v Lalla Hurruck Narain, 21 C. 26

Where on a previous occasion a mortgage decree was executed against the other property of the judgment-debtor without an order under this rule, and the judgment-debtor after service of notice upon him did not raise any objection Held, that the judgment-debtor was estopped from raising the objection in a subsequent application for execution—Madhu Sudan v Kailash Chunder, 2 C. W. N. 254

Where there is nothing to show a contrary intention of the parties every mortgage carries with it a personal liability to pay the money advanced, but a mortgagee must sue for his remedy against the property first. In so doing it is immaterial whether or not he prays in his plaint for relief against non-hypothecated property. Unless in exceptional cases he can obtain such relief only under this rule, and if such relief is refused, the refusal will not bar a subsequent application under this rule. Observations on the meaning and application of ss. 88, 89 and 90 of the T P Act (rr. 4, 5 and 6).—Mushaheb Zaman Khan v. Inayatullah, 14 A 513 (16 C. 423 discussed) Every mortgage carries with it a personal liability See 5 C L J. 287: 4 C. L. J. 246: 29 M. 191, noted under rule 5 and Jangi Singh v Chandar Mal, 30 A. 388: 5 A. L J 670 (11 B 475 followed; 21 M. 242 referred to).

If a person promises to pay a certain sum of money with interest and hypothecates property as security without any express covenant that he would be personally liable, or without stating any mode of payment, he is personally liable, and a decree under s. 90, T. P. Act, should be passed against the mortgagor, if the sale-proceeds of the mortgaged property prove to be insufficient and the remedy is not time-barred.—Ram Kishore v. Surajdeo Pershad, 13 C. W. N. 138. 9 C. L. J. 5 (4 C. L. J. 246 approved ; 10 C W. N. 740· 16 C 540 referred to)

The holder of a charge is like a mortgagee suing for sale, entitled to ask for and obtain a decree under s 90 of the T P. Act, 1882 (r. 6). An unpaid vendor has not only a charge on the property sold in execution of his decree, but he has also a personal remedy under this rule against the vendees. S. 13, C P Code, 1882 (s. 11), does not apply to an application under s. 90 of the T. P Act —Uttam Ishlok v Phulman Rai, 2 A. L. J. 379. (1905), A. W. N. 144 (21 A 454 22 B. 846· 14 A. 513 referred to).

Where the decree is in substance a mortgage decree, though not in the prescribed form, it is not open to the decree-holder to proceed against non hypothecated property before exhausting the mortgaged property and without obtaining an order under this rule —Lal Behari v. Habibar Rahaman, 26 C 166· 3 C W. N 8 (24 C 4753: 25 C 580, referred to, 22 C 813 distinguished) See also, Karimulla v Mirza, 3 Pat. L J. 649: 48 I C 608

A decree which is a combined decree under ss 88 and 90 of the T. P. Act (rr. 4 and 6), cannot be treated as money-decree to which the provisions of s 230 of the C P Code, 1882, are applicable —Judunath v Jagmohan, 25 A 541 (16 A 418 27 C 285 referred to). But see, Chandi Charan v. Ambikacharan, 31 C 792, Damodar v. Vyanku, 31 B. 244; Sadho Singh v Maharaja of Benares, 20 A 12

A mortgagee obtained a decree for sale of properties partly in India and partly in England In pursuance of the decree some of the mortgaged property was sold in India, and at the request of the mortgagor some of it was subsequently sold in England Held, that the sale which took place in England must be treated as a sale held in connection with the decree passed in this country and that the mortgagee was entitled to a decree under this rule —Gajadhar v. The Alliance Bank of Simla, 28 A. 660

Where a part of the mortgaged property was sold privately by consent of the parties, and consideration went towards payment of the mortgage decree, and the sale-proceeds of the remaining mortgaged properties were found insufficient to satisfy the decree Held, that the decree-holder is entitled to a personal decree under this section The sale of the mortgaged property by public auction is not essential —Udit Narain v Baquar Sajjad, 2 A L J 353· (1905), A. W. N. 124.

A puisne mortgagee of property upon which there existed several incumbrances, obtained a decree for sale after redemption of prior incumbrances The prior incumbrances were redeemed and the mortgaged property was sold, but the sale-proceeds were insufficient even to cover the amounts due upon the prior incumbrances, not to mention the amount due upon his puisne mortgage.' Held, that the puisne mortgagee decree-holder is entitled to a decree under this rule in respect of the deficit due upon the prior incumbrances as well as in respect of the deficit upon his own mortgage —Ali Jan v Narain Bibi, 26 A 93.

A puisne mortgagee sued the prior mortgagees for redemption and a decree was passed for redemption or sale. He did not pay the decretal amount and the property was sold on the application of the prior mortgagees, but it failed to realize the full amount due to the prior mortgagees, who thereupon applied under s 90 of the T. P. Act, to recover the balance from the puisne mortgagee personally. Held, that this rule does not apply to such a case The word "defendant" which occurs in this rule does not include a puisne mortgagee —Mafa Amber v. Sudhar, 26 A. 507 See also, Ram Lal v Sil Dhand, 23 A 439, where it has been held that the word "defendant" in s 90 of the T P. Act, 1882, must mean the mortgagor defendant, and that the money recoverable, by reason of the proceeds of the mortgaged property proving insufficient to pay off the decree passed under s. 89, T P. Act (r. 5), from the person whose property had been mortgaged and sold, if legally recoverable from him

A purchaser of the equity of redemption is under no personal liability to the mortgagee though he agreed to pay off the mortgage —Vanku Prasad v Kampta Prasad, A I R. 1923 P C 54.

"If the balance is legally recoverable."—The words "balance is legally recoverable" mean that the balance must be a balance which the mortgagee is not precluded by the terms of the mortgage from realizing otherwise than out of the property sold, or a balance the recovery of which is not barred by limitation —Musaheb Zamnai Khan v Inayatulla, 14 A 513 followed in Bageshri Dial v. Muhammad Naki, 15 A 331 See also, Parbati Charan v Govinda Chandra, 4 C. L J 246 (28 B 639 referred to)

Where a mortgage decree gives the mortgagee a remedy against the mortgaged properties, the personal remedy on the money claim against the mortgagor being barred, the only way in which the mortgagee can recover the money is by sale of the mortgaged property.—Hanmant Timaji Desai v. Ragavandra Rao, 24 Bom. L. R. 410.

In making a supplemental decree under s. 90 of the T. P Act, 1882 (r 6), the Court has to consider whether the personal remedy was barred at the date of the institution of the suit and not whether it would be barred at the date of the application under this rule.—Sheik Rahamat v Sheik Abdul 34 C 672 11 C. W. N. 674: 6 C. L. J. 119 (22 C 921, 7 B. 213, 33 C 867 approved); Biswambhar v. Ramsundar, 42 C 294 30 I C 719; Jangi Singh v. Chandar Mal, 30 A. 388: 5 A. L. J. 670, Hamiduddin v Kedarnath, 20 A. 386

The balance is not legally recoverable if the personal remedy is barred by limitation, that is to say, if the suit is brought after the expiration of six years from the accrual of the cause of action —Chattar Mal v. Thakuri 20 A 512; Miller v. Runga Nath, 12 C. 389

Where a mortgage bond was payable by instalments, in default of which the creditor could enforce the whole bond and the instalments were not paid but no suit was brought within six years of default of payment of instalments. Held, that the creditor was entitled to a decree under s. 90 of the T. P. Act, 1882.—Basant Lal v. Gopal Parshad, 3 A. L J. 463

Application for Supplementary Decree—Service of Notice and Production of Succession Certificate, If Necessary.—A personal decree for a large sum should not be passed ex parte. The person against whom the decree is sought to be obtained, has a right to be heard as to his personal liability, whether his property is liable for the debt and whether the amount claimed is correct.—Abdul Sattar v. Sattya Bhusan, 35 C. 767.

Where a mortgagee died after preliminary decree and his heirs were substituted and a decree absolute for sale was made in their favour, but the sale proceeds of the mortgaged property proving insufficient they applied for a personal decree under this rule for the recovery of the balance. Held, that no such decree could be made in their favour until they obtained certificate under the Succession Certificate Act, VII of 1889.—Sahadev Sukul v. Sahamat Hossein, 12 C W N. 145 7 C L J. 658 and Abdul Sattar v Sattya Bhusan, 35 C. 767

Limitation for an Application under this Rule.—The limitation governing an application for a personal decree under this rule is that prescribed by Art. 181 of the Limitation Act.—Ram Sarup v. Ghauravi, 21 A. 453 See also, Sheo Charan v. Lalji Mal, 18 A. 371, Chunni Lal v Tikamdas, 39 I. Limitation for Execution of a Decree Passed under this Rule.—The limitation of three years for execution of a decree passed under this rule, will be counted from the date of the decree specifying the exact amount to be recovered, and not from the date of passing the order — Madan Mohan v Nobin Kishore, 3 C L. J 291

Preliminary decree in redemption suit

7. In a suit for redemption, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree—

(a) ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the defendant for principal and interest on the mortgage and for his costs of the suit (if any) awarded to him on the day next hereinafter referred to, or

(b) declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree, and directing—

(c) that, if the plaintiff pays into Court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall deliver up to the plaintiff, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property to the plaintiff free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the defendant or any person claiming under him, or, where the defendant claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall, if necessary, put the plaintiff in possession of the property, but

(d) that, if such payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall (unless the mortgage is simple or usufructuary) be debarred from all right to redeem or (unless the mortgage is by conditional sale) that the mortgaged property be sold. [S. 92.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 92 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, with some additions and alterations The old section is reproduced here for the purpose of comparision:—

"In a suit for redemption, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree ordering—

"that an account be taken of what will be due to the defendant for the mortgage-money and for his costs of the suit, if any, awarded to him, on the day next hereinafter referred to, or declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree;

"that, upon the plaintiff paying to the defendant or into Court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall deliver up to the plaintiff, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property and shall re-transfer it to the plaintiff free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the defendant or any person claiming under him, or, when the defendant claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall, if necessary, put the plaintiff into possession of the mortgaged property, and

"that if such payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall (unless the mortgage be simple or usufructuary) be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the property, or (unless the mortgage be by conditional sale) that the property be sold."

Excepting cl (d), the provisions of this rule corresponds with the provisions of r 2, which relates to a preliminary decree for foreclosure The Notes under r 2, apply mutatis mutandis to this rule.

Suit for Redemption—Procedure.—Under Or. XXXIV, r 7 of the C P. Code it is open to the Court either to order that an account be taken of what will be due to the defendant for principal and interest due on the mortgage and for his costs of the suit, if any, or to declare the amount due at the date of such order; but in either case, the Court should proceed to ascertain the amount which would be found due on the date which is to be fixed for payment and specify what the consequence of the payment of that amount or the non-payment thereof would be.—Mohkan Singh v. Thakur Chandra Pal, 10 O. L J 374.

Scope of the Rule.—There is a certain amount of inconsistency between Or. XXXIV, r 7 and Or. XXXIV, r 8, C P. Code. A preliminary decree in a mortgage suit ought not to direct more than this, that if a plaintiff makes a default then the mortgagee should have a right to ask for a final decree either for foreclosure or sale as is provided by Or. XXXIV, r. 8—Kushaba Ramji v. Budhaji Sakaram, 23 Bom L R. 1176.

A redemption decree provided that on payment of a certain sum of money within a certain time, possession of the land was to be given Held, it was not a preliminary decree under Or XXXIV, r 7, Mahabir v. Kartar Singh, 76 I C. 144

Clause (d).—Or XXXIV, r. 7 (d) applies to the case of a mortgage only and has no application to the case of a co-mortgagor who had redeemed the entire mortgage. Ali Akbar v Sultan-ul-Muluk, 69 I C. 653 1923 Lah 129.

Final decree in redemption-suit.

8. (1) Where, on or before the day fixed, the plaintiff pays into Court the amount declared due as aforesaid, together which such subsequent costs as are mentioned in r. 10, the Court shall pass a decree—

(a) ordering the defendant to deliver up the documents which under the terms of the preliminary decree he is bound to deliver up,

and, if so required,

(b) ordering him to retransfer the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree,

and, also, if necessary,

(c) ordering him to put the plaintiff in possession of the property.

(2) Where such payment is not so made, and the mortgage is not simple or usufructuary, the Court shall, on application made in that behalf by the defendant, pass a decree that the plaintiff and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred from all right to redeem the mortgaged property and also, if necessary, ordering the plaintiff to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(3) On the passing of a decree under sub-rule (2) the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged.

(4) Where such payment is not so made, and the mortgage is not by conditional sale, the Court shall, on application made in that behalf by the defendant, pass a decree that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is found due to the defendant, and that the balance (if any) be paid to the plaintiff or other persons entitled to receive the same:

Power to enlarge time.

Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shown and upon such terms (if any) as it thinks fit, from time to time postpone the day fixed for payment. [S. 93]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 93 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, with several additions and alterations as will appear on a comparison of this rule with the old section, which ran as follows:—

"If payment is made of such amount, and of such subsequent costs as are mentioned in s. 94, the plaintiff shall, if necessary, be put in possession of the mortgaged property.

"If such payment is not so made, the defendant may (unless the mortgage is simple or usufructuary) apply to the Court for an order that the plaintiff and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred absolutely of all right to redeem, or (unless the mortgage is by conditional sale) for an order that the mortgaged property be sold.

"If he applies for the former order, the Court shall pass an order that the plaintiff and all persons claiming through or under him be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the mortgaged property, and must, if necessary, deliver possession of the property to the defendant.

"If he applies for the latter order, the Court shall pass an order that such property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court, and applied in payment of what is found due to the defendant, and that the balance be paid to the plaintiff or other persons entitled to receive the same.

"On the passing of any order under this section, the plaintiff's right to redeem and the security shall as regards the property affected by the order, both be extinguished:

"Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shown, and upon such terms (if any) as it thinks fit from time to time, postpone the day fixed under section 93 for payment to the defendant."

Clauses (a) and (b) are new. There were no similar provisions in the old section. The word "absolutely" which stood after the word "debarred" in the old section has been omitted. Several other material alterations have been made in this rule, as will appear on comparison.

The Transfer of Property Act does not contain any provision for the passing of a final decree in cases where payment is made in accordance with the terms of the preliminary decree. This is in our opinion an omission and we have provided in rr. 3 (1), 5 (1) and 8 (1) for the passing of a final decree in such cases.—See the Report of the Select Committee.

It will be observed that under sub-rule (3), on the passing of a final decree in a redemption suit, the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged But under the old section (93), the effect of passing a final decree was to extinguish the mortgage security as well as the plaintiff's right to redeem.

The proviso attached to this rule is almost similar to the proviso attached to the old section. The indulgence allowed by the proviso is seldom required to be granted in a suit for redemption by the mortgagor, who generally comes into Court with his money ready and offers to pay the amount that will be found due to the defendant.

In a suit for redemption it is necessary to take accounts in order to ascertain whether or not the mortgage has been paid off.

It is noticeable that the payments under these rules are to be made into Court and not to the defendant. The provisions as to payment to defendant which were contained in the old sections have been omitted from these rules, the reason being that the Special Committee thought it better that in every case the payment should be made into Court

Right of Redemption.—No such general rule of law exists in India as would preclude a mortgagor from redeeming a mortgage before the expiry of the term for which the mortgage was intended to be made unless the mortgagee succeeds in showing that by reason of the terms of the mortgage itself, the mortgagor is precluded from paying off the debt due by him to the mortgagee.—Bhagwat Das v. Parshad Singh, 10 A. 602. See also, Rose Ammal v. Rajarathnam, 23, M. 33 (5 B. 22, 16 M. 486 considered). See, however, Raghubar Dayal v Budhu Lal, 8 A. 95 ; Setrucherla v. Vairi Cherla 2 M 314.

Section 93 of the T P. Act (IV of 1882) (r 7) does not, in its literal terms, apply to a case where there is no prior mortgage still in existence, but the principles there laid down ought to be followed in dealing with such a case. The position of the defendant who is in possession of the property under an obligation to re-transfer it, if the redemption money is paid on a fixed date, is analogous to that of a mortgagee by conditional sale —Bepin Behary v. Mukunda Lal, 8 C L J 517· 36 C. 122

A mortgagor who has made default in the payment of the mortgage money within the time limited by the decree in a suit for redemption is not entitled to apply for execution of the decree after the time limited —Vallabha Valiya v Vodapuratti 19 M. 40.

A mortgagor, who institutes a redemption suit, is entitled to put an alternative claim. He may aver that the mortgage money has been repaid, and, in the alternative in the event of the Court finding any sum to be still due under the mortgage that he is prepared to pay such further sum.—Butchanna v. Varahalu, 24 M. 408.

Where the mortgaged property was sold for arrears of Government revenue.—Held, that if the sale took place owing to the mortgagee's default, it would not affect the mortgagor's right to redeem. The general rule that a sale for arrears of Government revenue gives a title against all the world, is subject to the exception that, if it is caused by the default of the mortgagee, it does not take away the mortgagor's right to redeem. —Kalappa v. Shinaya, 20 B. 492. See also, Harshanka Prasad v. Sheo Gobind, 26 C. 966: 4 C. W. N. 317; Nazir Ali v. Ojoodhyaram, 5 B. R. 83. P. C: 10 M. I. A. 540; Bissesuar Prosad v. Lala Samam Singh, 6 C. L. J. 134, 140.

A Decree for Redemption If Bars a Subsequent Suit for the Same Relief.—A mortgagor who has obtained a decree for redemption which does not contain a proviso as to payment within the date fixed by the Court, and who has not enforced that decree and has not paid in the decretal amount within the time, can subsequently bring a second suit for redemption of the mortgage in respect of which such first decree was obtained.—Sitaram v. Madho Lal, 24 A. 44 F. B. (19 A. 202 overruled, 21 A. 251, 6 M. 119, 7 M. 423, 8 M. 478, 21 M. 18, 11 A. 386, 20 A. 375 and 446 referred to; 7 B. 467, 17 M. 96, 4 A. 481, 13 B. 567 not followed). But the Madras High Court, in the Full Bench case of Vedapuratti v. Vallabha Valiya Raja 25 M. 300 F. B., have held that where a suit for redemption has been instituted and a decree for redemption has been passed therein, but not executed, a subsequent suit is not maintainable for the redemption of the same mortgage (6 M. 119, 7 M. 423, 8 M. 478, 15 M. 366, overruled, 19 M. 40, F. B., explained. 21 M. 19 dissented from). See also, Lachman v. Madhusudan, 29 A. 481: 4 A. L. J. 447, in which a similar view seems to have been taken. It would thus appear that all the cases on the point have been referred to, discussed and considered in the above two Full Bench rulings of the Allahabad and Madras High Courts.

When, under a compromise arrived at in a redemption suit, the parties did not agree that the plaintiff's right to redeem could be extinguished absolutely, he is not prevented from bringing a second suit for redemption. The mortgagee is still a mortgagee and does not become the absolute proprietor of the property.—Mohamdi Begam v. Tufail Hasan, A. I. R. 1927 All. 20 (A. I. R. 1922 All. 377 and A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 31 refd. to).

A person who does not deposit the redemption money within the time allowed can redeem afterwards, before final order is made under this rule.—Bepin Behari v. Mukunda Lal, 36 C. 122: 8 C. L. J. 547 (22 B. 771, 15 C. 246, 19 M. 40, 19 A. 180, 24 A. 479, 11 C. W. N. 679, and 25 M. 300 referred to). Referred to in Krishna Chandra v. Jakeral Huq, 10 C. L. J. 115.

Enlargement of Time.—Order XXXIV, r. 8 applies to redemption suits only and time for payment fixed by a decree cannot be extended under that rule when the decree is not one for redemption.—Kur, Nardeo v.

Sujan Singh, 18 A. L. J. 771; Nand Kunwar v. Sujan Singh, 43 A. 25.

In redemption suits the decree passed under r. 7 is only in the nature of a decree nisi, and the order passed under this rule is in the nature of a decree absolute. Under the proviso to this rule, an application to extend the time for redemption fixed by the preliminary decree may be made at any time before the decree absolute is made.—Nanram v. Babaji, 22 B. 771.

Where a decree for redemption omitted to state what would be the consequence of the non-payment of the mortgage money within the time specified, it was held that such omission could not operate to extend the period available to the plaintiff, for payment beyond the maximum term provided by r. 7.—Wazir v Dhuman Khan, 16 A. 165 (14 A. 529 referred to; 14 A. 350 dissented from).

The plaintiff who did not deposit the redemption money within the time allowed by the Court can redeem afterwards, before a final decree is made under r. 8, that is, before the decree is made absolute. If a deposit of the redemption money is accepted by the Court before the final decree, but after the date fixed for payment, it becomes an effectual deposit although no formal order extending the time was passed.—Bepin Behary v. Mukanda Lal, 8 C. L. J. 547. 36 C 122 (22 B 771 and 25 M. 300, pp. 306-7, referred to). Referred to in Krishna Chandra v. Jakeal Huq, 10 C. L. J. 115.

Where a decree gives a right of redemption within a certain specified period with a certain specified result to follow, if redemption is not made within such period, the mere fact of an appeal being preferred against it will not suspend the operation of such decree and unless the Appellate Court extends the period limited by the original decree, the right of redemption will be barred if not exercised within the period so limited —Chiranji Lal v. Dharam Singh, 18 A. 405 (18 A. 223 applied) See also, Manavikraman v. Unniappan, 15 M. 170.

In a suit on a usufructuary mortgage, a decree for redemption was passed directing the plaintiff to pay a certain sum within six months. Against this decree there was an appeal, which was dismissed more than six months after the date fixed in the decree. Held, that as the mortgagee had never obtained an order for sale under s 93 of the T. P. Act, and as the mortgagee's equity of redemption had not become extinct, he was entitled to redeem on tendering the amount mentioned in the decree —Kanara v Govinda, 16 M. 214

An application for enlarging the time granted by decree for redemption may be made after the prescribed time has expired An order refusing the time is appealable under s 244, C P. Code, 1882 (s 47) —Rango v. Bhomshetti, 26 B 121.

Failure to pay money on or before the date mentioned in the redemption decree does not absolutely bar the mortgagor's right to obtain possession of the mortgaged property; since the Court may, under s 93 of the T. P. Act, upon good cause shown, enlarge the time for payment upon such terms as it thinks fit The plaintiff within three years of the date of the decree produced in Court the decretal amount and prayed for possession of the mortgaged property. Held, such an application could be treated as one for enlargement of time under s. 93 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882)—Iswar Lingo v. Gopal Jivaji, 28 B. 102 (26 B 121 followed)

A mortgagor who has obtained a decree for redemption may pay in the decretal amount, and obtain redemption at any time up to the making of an order absolute.—Saligram v. Muradan, 25 A. 231 (20 A. 446 and 2 C 705 followed). See also, Alimea v. Reshun Ali, 3 C. L J 533 (27 C 705, 16 C. 246, 22 M. 133 followed). See also, Maung Tun v. Ma ... 54 I. C. 507.

Although the Court of first instance is the proper Court for dealing with applications under this rule, the Appellate Court has nevertheless jurisdiction to allow the enlargement of time in cases where there has been an appeal.—Babu Parshad v Khiati Ram, 3 A. L J. 828: (1906) A. W. N. 203. See, however, Eheonarain v. Chuni Lal, 23 A. 88, where it has been held that such an application must be made to the Court of first instance and not to the Appellate Court. See also, Venkata v. Thiagarajan, 23 M. 521; Oudh Behari v. Nageshar Lal, 13 A. 278; Ramdhan v. L... Singh, 31 A 328 (23 A 88 followed; (1906) A. W. N. 203 dissented from).

Appeal.—An order under r. 3 or r. 8 of Or. XXXIV, refusing to extend the time for the payment of the mortgage money, is appealable. See Or. XLIII, (o) But no appeal lies against an order extending the time so fixed.—Dharmaraja v. Sreenivasa, 29 M. L. Clog or Fetter on the Equity of Redemption.—A mortgage is a conveyance of land or an assignment of chattels as a security for the payment of the debts or the discharge of some other obligation for which it is given. That is the idea of a mortgage and the security is redeemable on the payment or discharge of such debt or obligation, any provision to the contrary notwithstanding. Any provision inserted to prevent redemption on payment of the debt or performance of the obligation, for which the security was given is what is meant by a clog or fetter on the equity of redemption, and is therefore, void. It follows from this that once a mortgage always a mortgage; but this principle does not involve the proposition that the amount or nature of the further debt or the obligation the payment or performance of which is to be secured, is a clog or ... within the rule A lease which is to last as long as the pendency of the mortgage, is not bad as being for an indefinite period.—Mahomed C... v. Joseph Ezekiel, 7 Bom. L. R. 772.

Certain mortgagors, having taken a further advance on the security of a second mortgage of the same property, covenanted in the second mortgage that they should not be at liberty to redeem it, without, at the same time, redeeming the first. Held, that this was a valid covenant and did not amount to a clog or fetter on the right of redemption.—Muhammad Abdul v. Jairaj Mal, 3 A. L J. 768: (1906) A. W. N. 267 See ... Bhartu v. Dalip, 3 A. L. J 672: (1906) A. W. N. 278, and Seth C... Mal v. Lala Baij Nath, 28 A. 712: 3 A. L. J. 634 (26 A. 559 distinguished).

After the execution of a usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagor executed a bond, which in addition to the usual stipulation for repayment of the money secured thereby, contained a covenant to the effect that the mortgaged property should not be redeemed until principal money and interest due under the bond had been paid. Held, that such a provision was a clog or fetter on redemption placing in the way of the mortgagor a bar to the exercise of the right of redemption which the law gave him, and therefore a provision not to be enforced.—Sheo Shankar v. Parma Mahton, 26 A. 559 (4 A 85 not followed). See also, Rajmal Maliram v. Shivaji, 27 B. 154 (9 B 233, doubted), Rugad Singh v Satnarain, 27 A. 178 (26 A. 559 followed) In Durga Pershad v. Dukhi Roy, 9 C. W. N. 789, the meaning of the words clog or fetter on the equity of redemption " have been explained (9 B. 233 12 B. 231, 20 B. 346, 18 M. 368 referred to).

For the meaning of the expression " once a mortgage always a mortgage," see 9 C. W. N. 789 and 27 B. 154, noted above.

A covenant to renew perpetually a kanam mortgage is a clog on the mortgagor's right to redeem and is inoperative, if it is entered into simultaneously with the mortgage. According to the rules of equity, any agreement entered into at the time of the mortgage, having the effect of clogging the right of redemption is inoperative.—Neelakandan v. Anantha Krishna 30 M. 61: 16 M. L J. 462.

The right of redemption and the right of foreclosure are always co-extensive and from the postponement of the former, the Court will infer an intention to postpone the latter in the absence of express provision on the point; where there is express provision, giving the mortgagee power to foreclose at any time, any stipulation postponing the mortgagor's right to redeem is unilateral and void of consideration. A Court of equity will not enforce any agreement in restraint of the right of redemption which is oppressive and unreasonable. A mortgagor cannot by any contract entered into with the mortgagee at the time of the mortgage give up his right of redemption or fetter it in any manner by confining it to a particular time or a particular description of persons.—Abdul Hak v Gulam Jilani, 20 B 677. Followed in Sari v Moliram, 22 B 375. See also, Kanaram v Kuttooly, 21 M. 110; Bimal Jati v. Biranja Kuar, 22 A. 238 But see, Krishnaji v. Mahesavar, 20 B. 346.

Partial Redemption.—The mortgage-debt being indivisible and the mortgaged property being held in its entirety as security for the debt and every part of it, the property can only be redeemed in its entirety on payment of the whole debt The above principle has been enunciated in the last para of s. 60 of the T P. Act (IV of 1882)

Where the right of redemption is vested in several persons one of them may redeem the whole mortgage on payment of the entire mortgage-debt.—Naro v. Vithalrat, 10 B. 618; Mora v Chandra, 15 B 24; 21 B. 619; Kuppusami v Popathi, 21 M 369 See, however, 20 M. 295

Where the right of redemption is vested in several persons, one of them cannot, by offering to pay his share of the debt redeem a proportionate part of the property —Nilkant v Suresh Chandra, 12 C 414, P C · 20 A 23; see also, Grish Chundra v. Kedarnath, 33 C. 590 · 10 C W N. 592 (21 M. 61 referred to); 10 A 527, 28 A. 185 and 11 C. W. N. 403.

Where a mortgagee acquires a part of the mortgaged property, and thus a fusion takes place of the rights of the mortgagee and mortgagor in the same person, the indivisible character of the mortgage is broken up and one of several mortgagors, may in such case redeem his own share only on payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage money.—Kalan Khan v. Mardan Khan, 28 A. 155 (2 A. 565, 17 A. 63 followed; 15 B. [illegible] distinguished) See also, 3 C. L. J. 377, and Brij Kishore v. Madho Singh, 28 A. 279.

Where the equity of redemption in respect of a part of the mortgaged property becomes vested in the mortgagee whether by purchase or by inheritance or otherwise there is a merger of rights and the integrity of the mortgage is broken up.—Hamida Bibi v. Ahmad Husain, 31 A. 335 (17 A. 63 followed, 28 A. 155, 29 A. 362 referred to).

Where subsequent to the date of a mortgage, different persons had become interested in different fragments of the equity of redemption the owner of any portion of the equity of redemption is entitled to ask that not more than a relateable part of the mortgage-debt should be thrown upon the property in his hands. The mortgagees cannot claim to throw the entire burden upon a portion of the mortgaged premises, because by reason of their own laches they have lost their remedy against the remainder (31 C 755: 2 C. L. J 202, referred to). A mortgagee cannot release from his claim a portion of the mortgage security so as to prejudice the rights of others, who might have already acquired an interest in the released portion.—Imam Ali v. Baij Nath, 33 C. 613 · 10 C. W. N. 551 3 C L J 576 (2 C. L J. 202, 1 C L J. 337 followed; 18 W. R. 120, 25 A. [illegible] dissented from). See also, Debendra Nath v. Abdul Samad, 10 C. L. J. 150.

Where a mortgagee has gratuitously or otherwise released one of the joint mortgagors and his share of the property, the mortgage-debt is split up and redemption of a share is permissible, so that the other joint mortgagor is at liberty to redeem his share on paying a proportionate part of the mortgage money.—Hakim Lal v. Ram Lal, 6 C L. J. 46

Where a mortgagee has acquired in whole or in part, the share of a mortgagor, partial redemption may be allowed.—Surji Ram Marwari v. Burhamdeo Pershad, 2 C. L. J. 202 (4 C. W. N. 507, 5 C. W. N. 61, [illegible] C. 755 followed). See also, Inu Khan v. Naimuddin Sircar, 3 C. L. J. 377.

A purchaser of a part of the mortgaged property who was not made a party in a suit brought by the mortgagee for foreclosure is entitled to redeem that portion of the mortgaged property in which he has acquired an interest.—Brij Kishore v. Madho Singh, 28 A. 279: 3 A. L. J 27. See Azimut Ali v. Jawahir Singh, 14 W. R. 17, P. C.: 13 M. I. A 401; Bedan Singh v. Deen Doyal, 24 W. R. 47; Hirdy Narain v. Attaoollah, 4 C. [illegible] 2 C. L. R. 580, and Debendra Nath v. Abdul Samad, 10 C. L. J. 150.

Redemption of Whole Mortgage by a Part Owner of the Equity of Redemption.—By redeeming a mortgage of ordinary kind under which possession did not pass to the mortgagee, one of the several mortgagors becomes entitled to a charge on the interests of the other mortgagors for the amount payable by the latter.—Malik Ahmad v. Shamsi Jahan Begam

28 A. 482, P. C : 10 C. W. N. 626: 3 C. L. J. 481: 16 M. L. J. 269: 8 Bom. L. R. 397: 3 A. L. J. 360 See also, Asansale v. Vamana Rau, 2 M. 223; Vithal Nilkanth v. Vishwasrav Bin, 8 B. 497.

Decree where nothing is found due or where mortgagee as been overpaid.

9. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, if it appears, upon taking the account referred to in rule 7, that nothing is due to the defendant or that he has been overpaid, the Court shall pass a decree directing the defendant, if so required to re-transfer the property and to pay to the plaintiff the mount which may be found due to him ; and the plaintiff shall, f necessary, be put in possession of the mortgaged property.

COMMENTARY.

" This rule is new. It is a recognition of existing practice and remedies n obvious omission in the T. P. Act, 1882."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

It has been framed adopting the principles laid down in the following cases:—

In a suit for account and redemption, if the mortgagee on taking the accounts, is found to have been overpaid, the general practice is to order he payment by him, of the balance due to the mortgagor with interest rom the date of the institution of the suit.—Janoji v Janoji, 7 B. 185.

Where an usufructuary mortgagee has realised a sum of money in excess of the amount due to him, it is an equitable practice to allow to the mortgagor interest on such sum at the same rate at which interest has been allowed to the mortgagee on his mortgage debt.—Bechoo Singh v. Roy Sheo Sahoy, 1 N. W. 56: Ed. 1873, III.

If upon taking account between mortgagor and mortgagee it appears that the mortgage has been fully satisfied, the mortgagor is not only entitled to have the property back, but the Court is bound as a Court of equity and acting upon the principle that it is always the aim of a Court of equity to determine finally as far as possible all questions concerning the subject of the suit, to cause an account to be taken up to the time of the decree, the account so taken being considered binding, the parties not being at liberty, except under peculiar circumstances, to re-open it in any other suit.—Kullyan Das v. Sheo Nundun, 18 W R 65, Roy Dinkar Dyal v. Sheo Golam, 22 W. R. 172: Lutafat Hossein v Chowdhury Mahomed, 22 W. R. 269.

A mortgagee, who has obtained a decree for an account and sale, is not entitled to withdraw from the taking of accounts in his execution proceedings when those accounts appear to be going against him.—Doolee Chand v. Omda Khanum, 6 C. 377: 7 C. L. R. 373

Where it appears that there is nothing due to the mortgagee or that he has been overpaid, his suit will be dismissed with costs, and he should be also ordered to pay over the balance with interest from the date of the institution of the suit.—Ram Chandra v. Janardan, 14 B 19 (7 B 1 referred to).

The essence of a foreclosure and redemption suit is, that in such suits each party is entitled to enforce his rights, a plaintiff claiming a foreclosure is bound, upon accounts being taken, if the balance is against him, to pay that balance; on the other hand, a plaintiff claiming a redemption, must submit to a decree for sale or foreclosure, if he makes default in payment; and to avoid a multiplicity of suits, it is necessary under a decree for foreclosure or redemption that the accounts between the parties should be settled and discharged, if the balance is against any party he must pay it (6 C. 377, 16 C. 682 referred to). In a redemption suit, the mortgagor is entitled as in a question with his mortgagee, to have a general account taken of what is due upon the mortgage, and the fact that the mortgagor then declared in his pleading his intention of bringing a separate action for recovery of the profits received by the mortgagee after refusal of his tender, does not entitle him to maintain an action for damages for wrongful detention of property after the tender, which would have been wholly unnecessary, if the claim urged in the latter action, had been put forward and given effect to in that litigation.—Satyabadi Behera v. Hira Mati, 5 C. L. J. 192. 34 C. 223 (20 C. 322 referred to)

As to the mode of taking accounts, see Janjit Rai v. Gorind Tewari, 6 A. 303 and 310 and Madari v. Baldeo, 27 A. 351, F. B.

10. In finally adjusting the amount to be paid to a mortgagee in case of a foreclosure or sale or redemption, the Court shall, unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs, add to the mortgage-money such costs of suit as have been properly incurred by him since the decree for foreclosure or sale or redemption up to the time of actual payment. [S. 94.]

Costs of mortgagee subsequent to decree.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 94 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, with some additions and alterations, as will appear on a comparison of the rule with the old section which ran as follows:—

"In finally adjusting the amount to be paid to a mortgagee in case of a redemption or a sale by the Court under this chapter, the Court shall, unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs, add to the mortgage-money such costs of suit as have been properly incurred by him since the decree for foreclosure, redemption or sale, up to the time of actual payment."

In the first part of the old section there was no reference to a foreclosure; it was evidently an omission which has been supplied in the present rule by insertion of the words "foreclosure" before the words "sale or redemption."

This rule provides for the payment of costs incurred by the mortgagee subsequently to the decree. Under s. 35, C. P. Code, the Court has full discretion to award and apportion costs incurred in a suit before the decree and that section will still regulate such costs. But costs incurred after decree will be regulated by this rule. Such costs must be the costs of carrying out the directions of the decree, e.g., costs of a reconveyance, etc.

" Unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs."—The discretion given under s. 220, C. P Code, 1882 (s. 35), is one which is to be exercised with reference to general principles. Where a plaintiff comes to enforce a legal right and there has been no misconduct on his part, no omission or neglect which would induce the Court to deprive him of his costs, the Court has no jurisdiction and cannot take away the plaintiff's right to costs There may be misconduct of many sorts: for instance, there may be misconduct in commencing the proceedings or some miscarriage in the procedure, or an oppressive or vexatious mode of conducting the proceedings, or other misconduct which will induce the Court to refuse costs; but where there is nothing of the kind, the rule is plain and well-settled as stated above It is, for instance. no answer, where a plaintiff asserts a legal right, for a defendant to allege ignorance of such right and to say " if I had known of your right. I should not have infringed it."—Kuppuswami Chetty v Zamindar of Kalahasti, 27 M 341.

As a general rule, a mortgagee trying to enforce his rights upon the mortgage is entitled to costs in the absence of any misconduct or any other conduct which, in the opinion of the Court, disentitles him to the expenses.—Damodar Das v. Budh Kuar, 10 A. 179, and Rutnessur Sein v. Jusoda, 14 C 185.

A decree-holder in executing a mortgage-decree must, for the purpose of recovering costs awarded by the decree, proceed in the first instance against the property mortgaged; and in the event of the same being found insufficient, he can proceed against properties other than the mortgaged property. The order for costs is a part of the mortgage decree —Raj-Kumar v. Sheo Narain, 35 C 431 8 C. L J 152· 12 C. W N. 364 (20 A. 523 followed, 10 A. 179; 14 C 185 distinguished) See also, Sadiq Hussain v Umma-tul Fatima, 48 I C 329, Damber Singh v. Kalyan Singh, 40 A 109 15 A L J 914.

A decree for sale under s 88, T P Act, IV of 1882 (r. 4), can only be executed for the amount decreed or found on an account being taken to be due, and the order for sale cannot, except with regard to any additional costs which may be provided for by an order under s. 94 of the T. P. Act, extend in any way the liability of the judgment-debtor or his property under the decree —Kashi Prasad v Sheo Sahai, 19 A 186 (5 A 642 distinguished).

As to costs in mortgage suits generally see notes under s 35

" Such costs of suit as have been properly incurred."—The costs mentioned in this rule and costs which are properly incurred in the suit in carrying out the directions contained in the decree and are liable to be added to the mortgage-money. But costs incurred in subsequent objections to execution proceedings or in appeals from orders passed in execution are costs which are incurred in a proceeding separately numbered and treated as quite distinct and independent from the suit itself. These costs the decree-holder can realize separately by execution against the judgment-debtor personally and is not bound to add to the mortgage-money.—Het Ram v. Dal Prasad, A. I. R. 1926 All. 68.

Costs Awarded by the Decree—Mode of Realization.—The costs awarded by the decree directing the sale of the mortgaged property form part of the mortgage decree, the payment of which can be enforced personally against the mortgagor under this rule, if the sale-proceeds are insufficient to satisfy the mortgagee's claim.—Rajkumar v. Sheo [illegible], 35 C. 431: 12 C. W. N. 364: 8 C. L. J. 152 (20 A. 523 followed; [illegible] 185: 10 A. 179 distinguished). See also, Kamalamma v. [illegible], 30 M. 464: 17 M. L. J. 317, and Maqbul Fatima v. Lalla Prasad, [illegible] A. 523.

A mortgagee who has obtained an order absolute for foreclosure may proceed against the mortgagor personally for the costs of the suit.—Shaffar Khan v. Satyanunda Das, 13 C. W. N. 742 (14 C. 185; [illegible] 179 followed, 35 C. 431: 12 C. W. N. 364; 20 A. 523 distinguished).

11. Where property is mortgaged for successive debts to successive mortgagees, any mesne mortgagee may institute a suit to redeem the interest of the prior mortgagees and to foreclose the rights of those that are posterior to himself and of the mortgagor. [New.]

Right of mesne mortgagee to redeem and foreclose.

COMMENTARY.

This rule is new. The Committee have inserted this rule in compliance with the suggestion of the Privy Council in Gopi Narain [illegible] v. Bansidhar, 27 A. 325, P. C.: L. R. 32 I. A. 123: 2 C. L. J. 173: 9 C. W. N. 577: 15 M. L. J. 191: 7 Bom. L. R. 427: 2 A. L. J. 336.

This clause was in the Transfer of Property Act Bill, but was [illegible] by the Select Committee from that Bill on the ground that it [illegible] find a place in the Civil Procedure Code."—See the Report of the [illegible] Committee.

In the above Privy Council case the following rule has been laid down. A mortgage decree directed, that, in the event of the [illegible] amount not being paid within a certain time, the defendant should be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the mortgaged property. [illegible] puisne mortgagee who was a party to a suit by first mortgagee for foreclosure, and who satisfies the decree made therein and thus prevents foreclosure, acquires under s. 74 of the T. P. Act, all the rights and the powers of the first mortgage. He is not entitled, however, to ask the Court to work out under s. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 47), his rights as owner of the first mortgage and as second mortgagee, as against other incumbrancers who were parties to the suit. As soon as the money due under the foreclosure decree has been paid by the puisne mortgagee and withdrawn by the decree-holder it was discharged and satisfied and [illegible] is nothing to be done in the execution department. A new decree is required to work out the respective rights of the parties and s. 244, C. P. Code, 1882, (s. 47), is no bar to a separate suit, which is necessary to adjust the rights of the parties. Section 86 of the T. P. Act contemplates a suit between one mortgagee and the mortgagor only and should be treated as a common form not to be literally followed in every suit for foreclosure but to be adapted to the particular circumstances of each case. To regulate the rights of puisne mortgagees, in mortgage decree a form of order known in the Chancery Division of the High Court in England might be adopted in India.

See Forms Nos. 6, 7, 8 and 9, Sch. I, Appendix D.

Right of Mesne Mortgagee to Redeem and Foreclose.—A puisne mortgagee is entitled to redeem from the prior mortgagee who obtains a foreclosure decree in a suit to which a puisne mortgagee is not made a party or from the purchaser in the foreclosure suit; and it is immaterial whether the puisne mortgage is or is not registered, or whether the prior mortgagee at the date of the suit had or had not notice of the puisne mortgage.—Sankana Kalana v. Virupakshapa, 7 B 146.

A mortgagee created a sub-mortgage in favour of the plaintiff of land mortgaged to him The sub-mortgagor in express terms transferred his interest in the land to the sub-mortgagee The sub-mortgagor also left a portion of the consideration money in the hands of the sub-mortgagee for redemption of a prior mortgage The prior mortgagee refused to accept the sum due to him and deliver up possession. Held, that the sub-mortgagee is entitled to redeem the prior mortgage.—Ramsubhag v. Narsingh, 27 A. 473 2 A. L J 162

A perpetual lessee of the mortgaged premises from the mortgagor, holding under a lease granted upon a payment of the premium with a yearly fixed rental is entitled to redeem.—Raghunandan v. Ambika Singh, 29 A. 679. 4 A. L. J. 703.

Where the prior mortgagee purchased the property mortgaged to him in a suit in which the puisne mortgagee was not made a party, and the latter also purchased the same property subsequently in a suit in which the prior mortgagee was not made a party Held, that each party would be entitled to redeem the other; but the preferable right to redeem was with the puisne mortgagee —Kedar Prosanna v. Girindra Prasad, 8 C L. J. 173.

12. Where any property the sale of which is directed under this Order is subject to a prior mortgage, the Court may, with the consent of the prior mortgagee, direct that the property be sold free form the same, giving to such prior mortgagee the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold [S 96.]

Sale of property subject to prior mortgage.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 96 of the T P Act, (IV of 1882), with some alterations of merely verbal character The word "where" has been substituted for the word " if "; the words " this Order " have been substituted for the words " this chapter," and the word " direct " has been substituted for the word " order," which occurred in the old section. These are the only modifications made in this rule.

Compare this rule with clause (b) of s. 73 of this Code, which gives to the Court a similar power to that contained in this section. From the language of this rule and of s. 73, it is clear that property may be sold under a decree subject to a prior mortgage; but the Court may, with the consent of the prior mortgagee, direct the sale of the property free from his mortgage giving the prior mortgagee the same interest in the sale proceeds as he had in the property sold. Without the consent of the prior mortgagee the Court cannot direct such a sale.

This rule cannot be construed as implying that whenever a property is not to be sold free from a prior mortgage, the decree should reserve the prior mortgagee's right in express terms even when such rights have to be admitted and undisputed and his rights therefore will be left unaffected by the omission to make a special reservation of them in the decree itself.—Srinivasa v. Vemunabhai, 29 M. 84; 16 M. L. J. 50 (18 A 344 referred to).

The words " subject to a prior mortgage " in this rule, evidently refer to such mortgages under which the mortgaged property can be sold, they do not refer to usufructuary mortgages under which the mortgaged property cannot be sold. See, Bhagwandas v. Bhawani, 26 A. 14. But see Rangasami v. Subbaraya, 30 M. 408: 17 M. L. J. 403 (29 M 43 followed; 26 A 14 dissented from), noted under rule 13 below.

Application of proceeds.

13. (1) Such proceeds shall be brought into Court and applied as follows :—

first, in payment of all expenses incident to the sale or properly incurred in any attempted sale ;

secondly, in payment of whatever is due to the prior mortgagee on account of the prior mortgage, and of costs, properly incurred in connection therewith ;

thirdly, in payment of all interest due on account of the mortgage in consequence whereof the sale was directed, and of the costs of the suit in which the decree directing the sale was made ;

fourthly, in payment of the principal money due on account of that mortgage ; and lastly, the residue (if any) shall be paid to the person proving himself to be interested in the property sold, or if there are more such persons the one, then to such persons according to their respective interests therein or upon their joint receipt.

(2) Nothing in this rule or in rule 12 shall be deemed to affect the powers conferred by section 57 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. [S 97.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 97 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882). Except the second clause, all the clauses of this rule are almost similar to the corresponding clauses of the old section. The second clause of the old section ran as follows: "Secondly, if the property has been sold free from any prior mortgage, in payment of whatever is due on account of such mortgage." On comparison of the second clause of this rule with the second clause of the old section, the changes will be clearly understood.

The other changes are of a mere verbal character Compare this section with clause (c) of section 73 of this Code, in which there is a saving clause in favour of Government, but there is no such saving clause here. It will be observed that the provisions of rules 12 and 13 shall not be deemed to affect the powers conferred by section 57 of the T. P. Act, (IV of 1882), which under the terms of that section can be exercised by the High Court, District Court or by any other Court specially authorized by the Local Government

"Persons interested in the property sold" in the last clause of this rule would include the mortgagee or any subsequent mortgagees according to their respective priorities proved in the mortgage suit.

Sale of Property Subject to Prior Mortgage and Application of Proceeds.—From the language of rr. 12 and 13 it is clear that property may be sold under a decree subject to a prior mortgage But in the Full Bench case of Matadin v. Kazim Husain, 13 A. 432, it was held that the right of redemption left in the mortgagor after the execution of the first mortgage is not specific immoveable property and cannot be sold. The Court cannot direct the sale of any property subject to a prior mortgage at the instance of the puisne mortgagee. Similar view was also taken in 18 A. 113. But the Calcutta High Court have dissented from the Full Bench rulings of the Allahabad High Court in Kantiram v Kutubuddin, 22 C. 33 and also in Jaggeswar Dutt v Bhuban Mohan, 33 C. 425 3 C. L. J. 205. In Ram Shankar v Gonesh Parshad, 29 A. 385: 4 A L. J. 273, F B, the above Allahabad cases (13 A 432, F B, 18 A. 113) have been overruled.

In a suit on a mortgage by a second mortgagee to which the prior mortgagee was a party and in which the plaintiff prayed for sale of the mortgaged property, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to an order for sale of the mortgaged property subject to the lien of the prior incumbrancers. The words "immoveable property" in s 58 of the T P Act denote not only the property itself as distinguished from any equity of redemption which the mortgagor might possess but include the right of the mortgagor in the property mortgaged at the time of the second mortgage, or in other words, his equity of redemption in such property. A second mortgage therefore is, as well as the first mortgage, a mortgage of specific immoveable property.—Kantiram v. Kutubuddin, 22 C. 33 (4 M. 213, 1 A. 240, 8 A. 105, 8 M 246, 18 C. 164, P. C, approved as to the right of the second mortgagee to a sale subject to the lien of a prior mortgagee; 13 A. 432 dissented from). See also, Beni Madhub v. Sourendra Mohan, 23 C 795.

A person holding two mortgages on the same property, the first usufructuary and the second simple, can bring the property to sale in suit on the second mortgage free of the first mortgage. Sections 96 and 97 of the T P. Act do not in terms exclude usufructuary mortgages and their provisions may be applied to such mortgages —Rungasami v Subbarama 30 M. 408: 17 M. L. J. 403 (20 M. 424 followed; 26 A. 14 not followed. In Bhagwan Das v. Bhawani, 26 A 14, it has been held that where a mortgagee held several simple mortgages over properties A and B, and also a usufructuary mortgage of prior date over property B, he was not entitled to bring to sale the property covered by his simple mortgage subject to the usufructuary mortgage held by him, nor could he bring to sale the whole property for the aggregate amount of his mortgages, simple and usufructuary (13 A. 432, 20 A. 322 referred to) See also, Dorasami v. Venkataseshayyar, 25 M. 108 (20 A. 322 referred to)

If a mortgagee receives any money out of the surplus sale proceeds of a share of the property mortgaged to him, sold in execution of a decree on a prior mortgage from some of the mortgagors to whom the share belonged, and against whom the decree was obtained, he is bound to apply the money to the satisfaction of his mortgage-debt only in case he receives it by virtue of his security, and not otherwise, although the payment might be made to him by the said mortgagors in satisfaction of other debts due to him from them.—Gangaram v. Jaiballav Narain, [illegible] C. 953.

There is nothing in the C. P. Code or in the T. P. Act to prevent the holder of two independent mortgages over the same property, who is not restrained by any covenant in either of them, from obtaining a decree for sale on each of them in a separate suit.—Sundar Singh v. Bholu, 20 A. 322.

Where there exists a prior usufructuary mortgage, a subsequent mortgagee of the same property cannot bring the mortgaged property to sale in virtue of his incumbrance until such time as the usufructuary mortgage becomes capable of redemption —Akhora v. Suba Lal, 18 A 83 (13 A 432 explained and followed)

There is nothing in the T. P. Act, which requires that a decree in a mortgage suit should in terms reserve rights admitted by all the parties and order the sale to be subject to them and section 96 of the T. P. Act does not militate against this view.—Srinivasa v. Yamunabhai, 26 M 54: 16 M. L. J. 50

Where a mortgagee, with two mortgages on the same property, obtained a decree for sale of the mortgaged property in satisfaction of the first mortgage, he is debarred from bringing a subsequent suit for sale on the second mortgage if no mention is made of it in the plaint in the former suit. But it may be open to him, when the decree in the first suit is executed, to enforce his claim on the second mortgage under s. 97 of the T. P. Act, by proceeding against any surplus that remains after satisfying the decree.—Krishnamachariar v. Anangaracharlar, 30 M. 353: 17 M. L. J. 301 (24 A. 429, P. C. applied; 25 M. 108 referred to; 20 A. 322 dissented from).

Section 96 of the T. P. Act, 1882, does not support the view that the puisne mortgagee is not required to redeem the prior mortgagee when the latter is a party to the suit The prior mortgagee may no doubt consent to a sale free of incumbrances, but it is not impossible that the section was intended to cover cases in which the prior mortgagee is not a party to the suit but intervenes after the decree. Where the prior mortgagee sues for and obtains a decree for sale without making a second mortgagee a party and himself purchases the property, a purchaser of the property from him cannot claim the value of improvements from the second mortgagee under s 51 of the T. P Act in a suit by the second mortgagee to enforce the rights under his mortgage. A mortgagee of property has the right to bring to sale all buildings on such property whether erected before or subsequent to the mortgage —Cangayam v. Gomperts, 31 M. 425: 18 M. L. J. 298 (20 M 120 followed)

Suit for sale necessary for bringing mortgaged property to sale.

14. (1) Where a mortgagee has obtained a decree for the payment of money in satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage, he shall not be entitled to bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit for sale in enforcement of the mortgage, and he may institute such suit notwithstanding anything contained in Order II, rule 2.

(2) Nothing in sub-rule (1) shall apply to any territories to which the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, has been extended

COMMENTARY.

Scope and Object of the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 99 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882), with some additions, alterations and omissions, as will appear on a comparison of the present rule with the old section, which is reproduced here:—"Where a mortgagee in execution of a decree for the satisfaction of any claim, whether arising under the mortgage or not, attaches the mortgaged property, to sale, otherwise than by instituting a suit under s 67, he may institute such suit notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, s. 13"

It would appear on comparison that the omission of the words "or not" which stood after the words 'under the mortgage,' in the old section is most significant, inasmuch as the present rule does not preclude the mortgagee from bringing to sale the mortgaged property in execution of a money-decree unconnected with the mortgage-debt; in other words, a mortgagee who has obtained a money decree against the mortgagor in satisfaction of any claim not arising under the mortgage but quite unconnected with it, will be able to bring the mortgaged property to sale. But if he obtains a simple money decree upon his mortgage, he will not be entitled to sell the property comprised in the mortgage in execution of that decree, without instituting another suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act, and r. 2 of Or. II, will not bar such a suit.

Under the old section the mortgagee was precluded from selling the mortgaged property in satisfaction of any claim, whether arising under the mortgage or unconnected with it, without instituting a suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act.

The reasons for the amendment will appear from the following report of the Special Committee. "We approve of the proposal to repeal the provisions of s. 99 of the T. P. Act. We think that those provisions have worked considerable hardship and are not really needed." The first part of the section enacts that a mortgagee shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit under s. 67 of the Act. In so far as it precludes the mortgagee from selling the mortgaged property under a judgment unconnected with the mortgage-debt it is in our opinion inexpedient; it is beyond doubt competent to a mortgagee to purchase the equity of redemption from the mortgagor by an agreement subsequent to and distinct from the mortgage transaction, and we can see no reason why it should not be equally competent to him to have it sold in satisfaction of any claim which he may have against the mortgagor unconnected with the mortgage. (Khairajmal v. Daim, 32 C. 296, P. C., 1 C. L. J. 584. 9 C. W. N. 201: 7 Bom. L. R. 1: 2 A. L. J. 71, Lal v. Reew, 1902 A. C. 461).

"In so far as it precludes the mortgagee from selling the property under a judgment for the morgage-debt it serves no useful purpose. We understand that the provision was enacted to prevent mortgagees from suing their mortgagors on the debt as such and in execution selling the mortgagor's interest in the property; we, however, think that no such provision was needed, seeing that under the law as it stood prior to the Act, the Courts never allowed the sale of a bare equity of redemption under a judgment on the covenant. (Syed Emam v. Raj Coomar, 23 W. R. 187; Khairajmal v. Daim, 32 C. 296, P. C.)."

It would appear from the above report of the Select Committee that at first it was proposed to repeal s. 99 of the T. P. Act altogether, and not to insert any similar provision in the present Code, and s. 99 was, therefore, altogether omitted from the Bill. But subsequently r. 14 has been inserted in the present Code in an amended form, whereby a mortgagee has been empowered to bring the mortgaged property to sale in execution of any other money decree not arising on his mortgage and quite unconnected with and distinct from the same, without instituting a suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act. He is, however, precluded under the present rule from bringing the mortgaged property to sale without instituting a suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act, if he obtains a simple money decree upon his mortgage by relinquishing his mortgage security. But if the same time, he is entitled to bring a second suit under s 67 of the T. P. Act, for that purpose, and his second suit will not be barred by Or. II, r. 2.

The re-insertion of s. 99 of the T .P. Act in the Code in the amended form, has rendered para. 2 of the Select Committee's Report as obiter.

The obvious intention of this rule is to prevent the mortgagee from executing a money decree against the mortgaged property so as to deprive the mortgagor of his right of redemption conferred by law.

Meaning of the term "Mortgagee" in this Rule.—"Mortgagee" in Or. XXXIV, r. 14, was intended to mean the holder of a subsisting and effective mortgage which could still be set up by the mortgagee against a purchaser or would be purchaser of the mortgaged property. A mortgage which has become in-operative or time-barred should not be deemed to be a mortgage which should bar the sale of the property —Chedilal v Sadatunnissa, 39 All. 36. 14 A L. J. 902

Sale of Mortgaged Property in Satisfaction of a Claim Not Arising under the Mortgage and Unconnected with and Distinct from it.—The words "where a mortgagee has obtained a decree for the payment of money in satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage" in Or. XXXIV, r. 1, mean, that the decree should relate to the payment of money in satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage, i e, mortgage independent of the decree It can have no application where the charge of the mortgage is created by the decree and where the direction as to the payment of money is in no sense in respect of a claim arising under the charge of the mortgage —Ambalal v. Narayan, 43 B. 631 21 Bom. L R 698: 51 I. C. 929.

In order to escape the mischief aimed at by Or XXXIV, r. 14, the claim of the mortgage must be distinct from, that is to say, unconnected with the transaction The words "a claim arising under the mortgage" mean any claim under the mortgage.—Mussammat Kadma Pasin v. Muhammad Ali, 17 A. L J. 481 50 I C 134

Order XXXIV, r. 14 of the C P. Code, is confined to claims arising under the mortgage and does not apply to a case where the sale takes place in execution of a decree for money upon a claim not arising out of the mortgage —Raja Jagadish Chandra Dhabal Deo v. Bhubaneshwar Mitra, 27 C. W. N 38.

A mortgagee cannot sell the mortgaged property in execution of an ordinary money decree in satisfaction of a claim not arising under the mortgage. Section 99, T. P Act, limits the right of a decree-holder in such a case and provides that he shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit under s 67 of that Act —Jadub Lall v. Madhub Lall, 21 C 34 See also, Hanmant Timaji v Raghavendra, 22 Bom. L. R. 550.

Where the mortgagee being in possession gave the mortgaged property in lease to the mortgagor, it being stipulated that the rent payable under the lease would be taken in lieu of interest, and the equity of redemption having been sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained by the mortgagee on the basis of the lease and purchased by the mortgagee: Held, that the sale was not in execution of a decree for the satisfaction of a claim arising under the mortgage.—Uttam Chandra v. [illegible] Krishna, 47 C. 377 F. B.: 24 C. W. N. 229: 31 C. L. J. 99: 55 I. C. 157 (Followed in Ramnarayan v. Bishwanath, 1920 Pat 250). See also Kadma Pasin v. Mahomed Ali, 17 A. L. J. 481: 50 I. C. 134

A usufructuary mortgagee obtained, against his mortgagor, a [illegible] money decree which had nothing to do with the mortgage or the [illegible] secured thereby. The mortgagee transferred his money decree to a [illegible] party. Held, that there is nothing to prevent the transferee from [illegible] ing to sale the mortgaged property.—Banh Bal v. Mauni Lal, 27 [illegible] (22 C. 813 distinguished). Dissented from in 31 M. 33: 17 M. L. J. [illegible]

The claim of the plaintiff, under a money decree which he [illegible] by this suit to enforce was one which arose independently of a usufructuary mortgage held by him and in respect of which he had attached the [illegible] of the mortgagor. Held, that the suit under s. 67, T. P. Act, was [illegible] course to be adopted while there was a subsisting attachment of the [illegible] gagor's interest entitling the plaintiff to sue thereunder, and having [illegible] to the object of s. 99 of the T. P. Act, the decree to be made in [illegible] suit should not be merely for the sale of equity of redemption, but [illegible] be for the sale of the property free from the mortgage claim of the [illegible] and the sale-proceeds should be applied first to discharge the mortgage [illegible] the property in order of their priority, and the surplus towards the [illegible] faction of the plaintiff's claim under the attachment, so far as [illegible] necessary.—Govinda Bhatta v. Narain Bhatta, 20 M. 421: 16 M. Section 99 of the T. P. Act does not prevent a mortgagee from bring- the mortgaged property to sale in execution of a decree for interest ly obtained in accordance with the terms of the mortgage bond.—Kasi rshad v. Jamuna, 31 C. 922.

Sale of Mortgaged Property in Satisfaction of a Money Decree Obtained on the Mortgage.—A mortgaged property cannot be sold in execution a decree obtained not strictly in accordance with the provisions of the P. But in Lal Behari v. ibibur, 26 C. 166; Jogemaya v. Thakomoni, 24 C. 473; Fazil Hawladar Krishna Bandhoo, 25 C. 580, it has been held that a decree which is not ictly in accordance with the provisions of the T. P. Act, but is a mort- ge decree, may be regarded as a mortgage decree under the T P. Act.

A mortgagee who has obtained a simple money decree in satisfaction a claim arising under his mortgage is competent to bring the mortgage operty to sale in execution of his decree if the mortgage has ceased to enforceable. Or. XXXIV, r. 14 applies only where the decree obtained the mortgagee is for the payment of money in satisfaction of the claim ising under the mortgage; but the mortgage must be a subsisting mort- ge and not one which by the reason of flow of time or any other like cumstance has ceased to be enforceable by law —Tansukh Rai v. Sri opal, 63 I. The transferee of a money decree obtained by a mortgagee is prohibited om selling the mortgaged property in execution of such decree, as by rtue of ss. 232 and 233, C. P Code, 1882 (s 49), he takes the decree bject to the conditions prescribed by s. 99 of the T P. Act. There is othing in that section to prohibit the attachment of the mortgaged pro- erty.—Jeevarathanam v Srinivasa, 31 M. 33 17 M. M. L J 503 (27 . 450 dissented from; 9 Bom. In other cases, viz., Chundra Nath v. Bis 23 C. 813; Aubhoyessury v. Gouri Sankar, 22 C. 679, Ma Chooneymoney, 22 C. 903; Lachmi Narain, v. Nand Kishore, 543; Tokhan Singh, v. Girwar Singh, 32 C. 491; Hemban v. Beh 58, the principle has been laid down that a sale so held is null

In Azimulla v. Nujmunnissa, 16 A. 415; in Mahabir Singh v. Saira Bibi, 17 A. 520; in Gobinda Bhatta v. Narain Bhatta, 29 M. 424; Matangini v. Chooneymoney, 22 C. 903; and in Lachmi Narain v. Nand Kishore, 29 C. 537, it has been held that a suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act is necessary to enforce the mortgage or charge before the holder thereof can sell the property and obtain satisfaction of a money decree held by him.

It has been uniformly held that if a mortgagee in execution of a money decree, seeks to sell the mortgaged property in contravention of the provisions of s. 99 of the T. P. Act, and if an objection is taken before the sale, by the holder of the equity of redemption, the objection must be allowed, and the sale prevented. To this effect are the decisions in Chandra Nath v. Burroda, 22 C. 813; Aubhoyessury v Gouri Sankar, 22 C. 859; Rai Ramani v. Surendra, 1 C. W. N. 80, Tokhan Singh v. Girwar Singh, 32 C. 494; Hemban v. Behari, 28 A. 58; Madho Pershad v. Baij Nath, 2 A. L J. 356; Kaveri v. Ananthayya, 10 M 129; Kaji Inus v. Kaji Inus, 8 Bom. L R 576.

In the following cases it has been held that a sale of the mortgaged property by a mortgagee in execution of a money decree in contravention of the provisions of s. 99 of the T. P Act, passes no title to the purchaser. In other words, the purchaser acquires no title under the sale. —12 M. 325: 14 M. 74: 26 C. 164. 30 C. 463 33 C. 113 and 23 B. 119.

Where a mortgagee in contravention of s 99 of the T P. Act has attached the mortgaged property and brought it up to sale and purchased it himself, the mortgagor or his transferee cannot successfully maintain a suit for redemption of the property without first getting the sale set aside.—Uttam Chandra Daw v. Raj Krishna Dalal, 47 C. 377 F. B.: 24 C. W. N. 229 31 C. L. J 98. 55 I C. 157.

In the following cases it has been held that sale in execution of a money decree in contravention of s. 99, T P. Act, is an illegal sale, which requires to be set aside in order that it may cease to be operative, viz., 16 M. 436, 22 M 347, 22 M 372, 10 M. L. J. 110, 18 A 329, 27 A. 517, 33 C 283, and 17 M L. J. 217

In the following cases it has been held that a sale held contrary to provisions of s. 99, T P Act, is not a nullity and that though voidable, yet, if it is not formally annulled, it does not affect the right of redemption of the mortgagor, viz, 22 B 624, 23 M 377, 22 M. 347, 29 M. 421. But if such a sale does in fact take place and is confirmed and a certificate granted to the purchaser, it cannot afterwards be impeached.—Kishan Lal v. Umraj Singh, 30 A 146· 5 A L J 121 (12 C. W. N. I. 10 M. L. J. 110, 26 C 727, 29 A 612, 33 C 283 referred to)

On a reference to the Full Bench case of the Calcutta High Court (Ashutosh Sikdar v Biharilal, 35 C 61 F B) all the cases on the point, decided by any of the High Courts are to be found, and each case has been fully discussed and explained in the judgment of Mookerjee, J

The principle laid down in the above Full Bench case of the Calcutta High Court has also been adopted by the Madras High Court in the following case, viz., in Muthu v Karuppan, 30 M 313· 17 M L J 163, where it has been held that a sale in violation of s 99 of the T P Act is voidable only and not void (22 M 347, 22 B 624, 23 M 377 referred to) See, Venkayya v. Surayya, 30 M. 362: 17 M. L. J. 325, and the cases there referred to, and also Muhammad Abdul v. Dilsukh Rai, 27 A. 517, 21 L. J. 210. In these cases it has been held that a sale held in contravention of s. 99 of the T. P. Act is voidable only and not void. See also Bhaichand v. Ranchhoddas, 22 Bom. L. R. 670.

Order II, Rule 2, C. P. Code, is No Bar to a Subsequent Suit.—The effect of this rule is that if the mortgagee obtains a simple money decree upon his mortgage he cannot sell property comprised therein without instituting another suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act and such suit is not barred by s. 43, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2).—Bhola Nath v. Muhammad Sadiq, 26 A. 223 (16 A. 415 and 25 B. 161 referred to). See also Surajnarain v. Jagbali, 18 A. L. J. 677.

Section 43 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2), is directed against two evils: the splitting of claims and the splitting of remedies. If a man omits from his suit a portion of his claim, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of it: if he omits one of his remedies, he cannot afterwards pursue it, so that if a mortgagee sues on his personal security alone, he cannot afterwards sue on his real security. Section 99 of the T. P. Act is aimed at another distinct evil: the hardship inflicted on mortgagors by mortgagees proceeding to realize their claim by execution of money decrees passed in respect of the mortgagor's personal liability. Consequently, that section provides, that mortgaged property shall not be sold in execution of a decree otherwise than by an ordinary mortgagee's suit. It will be seen, therefore, that the primary purpose of s. 99 is not to protect but to curtail a mortgagee's powers; and to secure that end, and for that purpose alone, the bar imposed by s. 43, C. P. Code, 1882, has been relaxed.—Govind v. Prashram, 25 B. 161 (167).

Suit by mortgagee for personal decree in one Court—Subsequent suit against mortgaged property in another Court—Latter suit not within jurisdiction of former Court. Held, that the latter suit was not barred by reason of the former suit either under s. 13 or under s. 43 of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Narasinga v. Venkata Narayana, 16 M. 481.

This Rule If Applies to the Enforcement of Security Bond Given for Performance of a Decree.—Section 99, T. P. Act, has no application to the enforcement, by a process of the Court, of a security bond given to the Court, for the performance of its decree.—Janki Kuar v. Sarup Rani, 17 A. 99 (101).

A security bond given during the pendency of an appeal, creating a charge on the sureties' property, can be enforced by summary procedure, and this rule does not apply when no person is named as mortgagee, for the Court is not a juridical person.—Raghubar Singh v. Jai Indra, 47 I. A. 228: 42 A. 158. 55 I. C. 550; Official Receiver v. Nagiretnam, 49 L. J. 643. 92 I. C. 497: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 194.

Consent-decree.—This rule does not apply to consent-decrees. The mortgagee can waive the benefit of this rule.—Indramani v. Surendra, 35 C. L. J. 61. 64 I. C. 852: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 35; Kashi v. Priyanath, 28 C. W. N. 550. 83 I. C. 424: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 645.

The relationship between a decree-holder, and a judgment-debtor who has executed a security bond mortgaging certain properties, for the pformance of the decree, is not that of mortgagee and mortgagor; the decree-holder is therefore entitled to realize his decretal money by sale of the properties given in security, without instituting a suit under s. 67 of that Act.—Shyam Sundar v. Bajpai, 30 C. 1060: 7 C. W. N. 914. Indramani v. Surendra Nath, 35 C. L J. 61: 64 I. C. 852. But in Tokhan Singh v. Girwar Singh, 32 C. 494: 9 C. W. N. 372:1 C. L. J. 118, a contrary view has been taken. In this case it has been held that a security bond amounts to a mortgage and the properties comprised in the bond cannot be sold in execution without bringing a suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act (26 C. 246 relied on; 27 A. 99 and 30 C 1060: 7 C. W. N. 914, dissented from)

Miscellaneous Cases.—Part of mortgaged property was sold in execution of a decree for costs, otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of s. 99 of the T. P Act, and was purchased by the assignee of the mortgagee decree-holder, and sale was confirmed Held, that the mortgagor could not obtain redemption of the property so sold, although the integrity of the mortgage having been broken up it was possible for him to redeem the unsold portion —Madan Makund v Jamna, 1908, A. W. N 48· 2 A L J. 123

Section 99 of the T. P. Act contemplates attachment of property by a judgment-creditor (even if he be a mortgagee) and he is entitled to attach the property by an application in execution of the decree. The proper time to consider the applicability of s. 99, T. P. Act, is when an application for sale is made in execution —Nathubhai v Bai Ujam, 32 B. 205: 10 Bom. L. R 274.

Section 99 of the T P Act forbids the sale of the mortgaged property in execution of a decree at the instance of the mortgagee, but it is no bar to an attachment of the property.—Kaji Inus v Kaji Inus, 8 Bom. L. R 576.

Section 99 of the T P Act cannot be given retrospective effect so as to affect purchase by mortgagees in judicial sales perfected before the Act came into force —Nanuvien v Muthusami, 20 M 421· 15 M L J. 415. See also, Naranappa v. Samacharlu, 19 M. 382.

Where property was mortgaged to Government under the Agriculturists Loan Act (XII of 1884), but the Government, instead of proceeding under s. 67 of the T. P. Act, caused the property to be sold under the Public Demands Recovery Act. Held, that the Government as mortgagee could not sell the hypothecated property except under a decree passed under the T P Act —Lachmi Narain v. Nand Kishore, 29 C 537.

Where a mortgagee, instead of enforcing his mortgage and bringing the property to sale free of incumbrances (where such course is open) brings to sale the equity of redemption in part of the mortgaged property, and buys it himself, an equity arises which entitles the mortgagor to require satisfaction first out of the property bought by the mortgagee. Otherwise the action of the mortgagee in causing the sale subject to the mortgage might almost necessarily secure to him an undue profit at the expense of the mortgagor —Fakiraya v Gadigaya, 26 B 88.

The purchase by a mortgagee of portion of the mortgaged property at a Court sale in execution of a money decree of a third party involves a taking advantage by the mortgagee of his fiduciary position as gagee. Held, that the principle of the impossibility of a mortgage ing himself from his liability to be redeemed, as affirmed in M v. Dhondo, 22 B. 624 and Mayan Pathuli v. Pakuram, 22 M 34 applicable, even in the absence of fraud or collusion between the gagee and the third party in execution of whose decree the purch the equity and redemption had been made, and that such a pu contravened the principle underlying s. 99, T. P. Act.—Erusappa liar v. Commercial and Mortgage Bank, 23 M. 377.

The conditions under which a sale of mortgaged property is p sible under s 99 of the T P. Act are not satisfied unless there is a for sale, and in the absence of such decree, the sale is prohibited although a sale in contravention of the section is not absolutel for all purposes, it is at least void against all persons who are n t to the suit in which the decree of money was obtained —Muthurar Ettappasami, 22 M. 372

A third person purchasing mortgaged property bona fide at a s execution of a money decree obtained by the mortgagee against the gagor obtains a good title free from the mortgage lien, unless th is made subject to it.—Husain v. Shankargiri, 23 B 119 (22 B distinguished).

Section 99, T. P. Act, 1882 is as binding on a revenue Court is on a Civil Court —Tara Chand v. Imdad Husain, 18 A. 325

COMMENTARY.

This rule has been framed by taking a portion of s. 100 of the Act. The following words of s. 100 of the T. P. Act, viz., "And a provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagee instituting a su the sale of the mortgaged property." have been repealed by the Schedule of the C P. Code, of 1908, Section 100 of the T. P. A which the word "charge" has been defined, is reproduced below:—

"*Where immoveable property of one person is by act of parti operation of law made security for the payment of money to a and the transaction does not amount to a mortgage, the latter pers said to have a charge on the property, and all the provisions h before contained as to a mortgagor shall, so far as may be, apply t owner of such property, and the provisions of ss. 81 and 82 * * * shall, so far as may be, apply to the person having charge.*"

Distinction between Mortgage and Charge.—The main distinctio tween a charge and a simple mortgage is, that by a charge the cr becomes entitled to have his claim satisfied out of a particular pro out that property is not transferred to him. By mortgage the interest of the mortgagor in specific immoveable property is transferred to the mortgagee. (See s. 58 of the T P. Act). But a charge does not involve a transfer of an interest in specific immoveable property. (See s. 100 of the T. P. Act).

By sale, all the rights of the vendor in the property are transferred to the purchaser By mortgage an interest of the mortgagor in the mortgaged property is only transferred, whereby he is entitled to bring the mortgaged property to sale. By charge neither any right nor any interest in the property is transferred but the creditor is entitled to have his claim satisfied out of the particular property, but that property nor any interest in it is transferred to him

A simple mortgage is in the nature of equitable lien, it does not vest any estate in the mortgagee, but only creates a lien as incident to the debt. —Nadir Hossein v Pearoo Thovildarim, 19 W R 255 14 B L R 425-note. The mortgagor remains the owner of the property and may deal with it in any manner he pleases subject only to the conditions of the mortgage. For the distinction between simple mortgage and charge, see Rangasami v. Muttukumorappa, 10 M. 509 In Rayzuddi Sheik v. Kritarthanath, 33 C. 985 4 C L J. 219, the distinction between a charge and mortgage has been clearly pointed out by Mookerjee, J " There is a considerable difficulty, as is well known, in drawing a sharp line of demarcation between a mortgage and a charge, but there is this well-marked distinction between the two, that a mortgage does, whereas a charge does not, involve a transfer of an interest in immoveable property (Narayana v. Venkataramana, 25 M. 220, p. 237). A charge differs altogether from a mortgage by a charge the title is not transferred, but the person creating the charge merely says that out of the particular fund he will discharge particular debt. A mortgagee can follow the mortgaged property in the hands of a transferee from the mortgagor, whereas a charge can be enforced against a transferee only, if it is shown that he has taken with notice of the charge. (Kishan Lal v Ganga Ram, 13 A 28, p 44) A charge-holder cannot follow the property in the hand of an innocent purchaser for value without notice of the charge If a charge is created by operation of law, and the charge does not amount to a mortgage, any subsequent mortgage or sale of the property to a bona fide purchaser or mortgagor for value without notice will not be affected by the prior charge A charge-holder can, of course, follow the property if it remains in the hands of the person creating the charge (12 M 69)

A charge under this rule is created as soon as the document is executed. A document which is not creating any charge at the time of its execution but is to operate only as a charge upon the land on the non-payment of the principal money at a future date does not create any charge within the meaning of this rule —Madho Misser v Sidh Binail, 14 C 687 See also, Harjas Rai v Naurang, 3 A L J 220 (1906) A W N 82 Execution of an unregistered agreement stating that as a security for the loan, a mortgage deed will be executed whenever required by the plaintiff and also depositing some title-deeds, does not create any charge —Konchadi v Shira Rao, 28 M 51.

Creation of Charge by Act of Parties.—A Hindu executed a document attested by witnesses, whereby he agreed to pay to his sister and after her death to her daughter Rs. 10 per annum. from the produce of estate inherited by him from his maternal grand-mother. Held, the corrody or charge on the profits of the estate was created, which [illegible] the estate in the hands of the widow of the grantor.—Chatti v. Pen[illegible]; 7 M 23. See also, Ramnad Zemindar v. Dorasami, 7 M 311, [illegible] Collector of Thana v. Krishnanath, 5 B. 331.

A man by his will may charge his debts on his property either [illegible] express words to that effect or by giving to his executors, being [illegible] devisees of his estate, a direction to pay his debts. As against a purchaser from the executor such a charge cannot be made good unless it is shown that he had notice of the debts and of the intention to defeat them.—Greender Chunder v Mackintosh, 4 C. 807: 4 C. L. R. 193; Kher[illegible] Money v Doorgamoney, 4 C. 455; Anundmoye v. Girish Chunder, [illegible] C. 772; Hemangini v. Nabin Chand, 8 C. 788: 11 C. L. R. 370.

A charge may be created for religious purposes, and in such cases notwithstanding the religious declaration, the property descends beneficially to heirs subject to a trust or charge for the purposes of [illegible] —Ashutosh Dutt v. Doorga Churn, 5 C. 438, P. C. Approved in Jyotindra Nath v. Hemanto Kumari, 32 C. 129 P. C.: 8 C. W. N. [illegible]; [illegible] Bom. L. R. 765. See also, Sonatun Bysack v. Juggat Soondree, 8 M. I. A. 66.

Where having regard to all the circumstances of a transaction, there remains no doubt that a document shows an intention to make the [illegible] security for the payment of the money mentioned therein, the document does create a charge.—Janardana v. Anant, 32 B. 380. 10 Bom L. R. 575.

In a suit for declaration of right, for partition and account a decree was made which provided that a certain sum of money should be paid by the defendant to the plaintiff within a specified time, that the same should form a charge on certain property mentioned, and that in case of default the property should be sold for the realization of the [illegible] Held, that the decree was similar to a mortgage decree nisi directing property to be sold on non-payment of amount due within a specified time, that such a decree was not a final one, that the plaintiff [illegible] apply in the same suit for a sale order, and that the suit was a [illegible] one.—Kissory Lal v. Sewbux Bogola, 13 C. W. N. 787 (22 C. [illegible] C. W. N. 17 referred to).

Creation of Charge by Operation of Law.—Under s. 95 of the T. P. Act, 1882, a redeeming co-mortgagor has a charge on the share of each of the other co-mortgagors.—Vasudev v. Balagi, 26 B. 500, p. 503.

By redeeming a mortgage of the ordinary kind under which possession did not pass to the mortgagee, one of the several mortgagors became entitled to a charge on the interest of the other mortgagors for the [illegible] payable by the latter.—Malik Ahmad Wab Khan v. Shams Jehan Begam, 28 A. 482, P. C.: 10 C. W. N. 626. 3 C. L. J. 481: 3 A. L. J. 860: 16 M. L. J. 269: 8 Bom. L. R. 397.

Where one of two or more co-sharers owning an estate subject to the payment of revenue to Government pays the whole revenue, in [illegible] save and so does save, the estate from liability to be sold by Government for realizing the arrear of revenue, he is by operation of law entitled to a charge upon the share of each of the co-sharers for the realization of the latter's share of the revenue, as between the co-sharers.—Rajah Vizianagram v. Rajah Setrucherlu, 26 M 686, F. B. But this case is opposed to the Full Bench case of the Calcutta High Court (Kinu Ram v. Mozaffer Hosain, 14 C. 809), and of the Allahabad High Court (Sethchitor Mal v. Shiv Lal, 14 A. 273), and also of the Bombay High Court (Achut Ram Chandra v. Hari Kamti, 11 B 318). In the Madras Full Bench case all the rulings on the point have been referred to and discussed. See also, Ibn Hosain v Brijbhukan, 26 A 407, F. B., and the cases therein referred to.

On this point, see the cases noted under s 9

A mortgagor who discharges the whole mortgage-debt obtains thereby a charge on his co-mortgagor's share of the mortgaged property in respect of the amount paid by him in excess of the share of the mortgage-debt for which he is proportionately liable and that such charge takes priority over a subsequent mortgage on the same property created by one of the other co-mortgagors.—Har Prasad v Raghunandan, 31 A 166 (4 A. 58) See also, Bhagwan Das v Har Dei, 26 A 227 (11 M 416 referred to).

A person who is entitled to contribution also acquires, in the case of a mortgage, a charge upon the property of his co-mortgagors.—Ibn Hasain v. Brijbhukan, 26 A 407, F. B , where all the cases of the several High Courts have been referred to and discussed See also, Raushan Ali v. Kali Mohon, 4 C. L J. 79.

A mortgagee having obtained a decree on his mortgage the decretal amount was paid off by one of several representatives of the deceased mortgagor. Held, that the latter did not thereby acquire a charge on the mortgaged property within the meaning of s. 100 of the T P. Act, (IV of 1882) —Jahan Ali Begam v. Mirza Shujauddin, 9 C W. N 865 (26 A. 227 disapproved ; 26 B. 379 distinguished , 25 C. 565 referred to).

Charge under the Rent Act.—The charge referred to in s 65 of the B. T. Act, VIII of 1885, is not such a charge as that defined in s. 100 of the T. P. Act, 1882, and does not require to be enforced in the same manner ; the only consequence which follows from the provisions that rent is a first charge upon an undertenure, is, that a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, produces the effect described in Ch. XVI of the Bengal Tenancy Act —Royzuddi Sheik v. Kalinath,, 33 C. 985: 4 C L J 219 See also, Fatick Chundra v. Foley, 15 C 492, where it has been held that the charge under the B T Act is not a charge within the meaning of this Act Neither is a charge for rent created by s 5 of the Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908) a charge within the meaning of s 100 of the T P Act —Suramma v Suryanarayana, 42 M. 114: 48 I C 791

Where the plaintiffs and the defendants are co-tenants of certain jotes which were sold in execution of a rent decree and the plaintiffs by paying the decretal amount under s 174 of the B T Act, had the sale set aside, they did not by such payment acquire any charge on the shares of their defaulting co-tenants —Gopi Nath v Ishur Chundra, 22 C. 800;

Kinuram v. Mozaffur Hessein, 14 C. 809, F. B.; Upendra Lal v dra Nath, 25 C. 565: 2 C. W. N. 425. But see, Manindra Cha Jamabir Kumari, 32 C 463 (1 C. W. N. 458, 6 C W. N 794 fo The principle laid down in this latter case is not reconcilable w principles laid down in the former cases

Rent Decree and Mortgage Decree—Priority.—A purchaser in tion of a rent decree has priority over the purchaser in executio mortgage decree —Gopinath v. Kashinath, 9 C. L. J. 234: 13 C. 412; Meherunnessa v. Sham Sundar, 6 C. W N. 834

A vendor has a charge on the property sold for his unpaid p money See s. 55 (4) (b) of the T. P. Act, 1882.

The charge which a vendor obtains under s. 55 of the T P different in its origin and nature from the vendor's lien given by th lish Courts of Equity to an unpaid vendor. The English cases a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase money though useful for the p of illustration are not authoritative in the interpretation of law on th ject as laid down in s 55 of the T. P. Act.—Webb v. Macpherson, 37, P. C.: 8 C. W N 41, P. C. Followed in Ram Krishna v. mania, 29 M 305 In this case it has been also held (overruling 141: 24 M 233 and 27 M. 28) that Art 132 of the Limitati 1877, is applicable to a suit to enforce such a charge and not art 11

The lien of the unpaid vendor, under s. 55 (4) (b) of the T P is non-possessory He has only a right to retain the title-deeds a a charge for the unpaid purchase money, but he cannot retain pos of the property sold against the vendee.—Velayutha Chetty v. Go swami, 30 M 524

Mortgage being Invalid, Whether it Creates any Charge.—An ment which cannot operate as a mortgage by reason of its not ful the requirements of s 59 of T. P. Act, 1882, does not operate to a charge under s 100 of T. P. Act, IV of 1882.—Tofaluddi v. Mah 26 C. 78: Approved in Prannath v. Jadunath, 32 C. 729· 9 C W 637. In Bholanath v. Maqbulunnissa, 26 A. 28, it has been held that a widow's claim for dower though not a charge upon her husband's property, but her decree for dower is entitled to priority over the decree against the heir for the heir's personal debt.

The Provisions of this Order Apply to a Charge as well as to a Mortgage.—All the provisions contained in this order, as to sale or redemption shall apply to a charge within the meaning of s 100 of the T P. Act. See, Durgayya v. Anantha, 14 M 74, Vigneswara v Bepayya, 16 M. 436 and Girwar Singh v Thakur Narain, 14 C. 730

Charge on the Surplus Proceeds of Sale for Arrears of Revenue or Rent.—The proceeds of a sale for arrears of revenue or rent, being substituted for the mortgaged property, become subject to the lien to which that property was subject This principles is recognized in s 73 of the T. P. Act, (IV of 1882).

The surplus sale-proceeds whether in the hands of the Collector or of creditors of the mortgagor are available to satisfy the mortgagee's claim. See, Heera Lal v Janokeenath, 16 W R 222, Kristodas v Ram Kant, 6 C. 142, Gosto Behary v. Shib Nath, 20 C 241, Raja Gopal v. Subbaraya; 7 M. 31 (5 M 371 overruled); Subramanya v. Rajaram, 8 M. 573; Prem Chand v Purnima, 15 C 546 24 C 746; explained in 24 C. 642. See also, Jogeshur v Ghanasham, 5 C. ORDER XXXV.

INTERPLEADER.

1. In every suit of interpleader the plaint shall, in add to the other statements necessary for pl state—

Plaint in interpleader suit.

(a) that the plaintiff claims no interest in the sul matter in dispute other than for charges or co

(b) the claims made by the defendants severally; and

(c) that there is no collusion between the plaintiff and of the defendants. [S 4

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 471 of the C. P. Code, 1882, some modifications

In para 1, the word "shall" has been substituted for the " must," which occurred in the old section.

The language of clause (a) has been materially changed. Clause of the old section ran as follows: "That the plaintiff has no intere the thing claimed otherwise than as a mere stake-holder."

Clauses (b) and (c) are exactly similar to the corresponding cla of the old section.

See s 88 and notes thereto, where all the cases relating to i pleader suits are collected.

2. Where the thing claimed is capable of being paid i Court or placed in the custody of the Co the plaintiff may be required to so pay place it before he can be entitled to any or in the suit. [S 47

Payment of thing claimed into Court

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 472, C. P. Code, 1882, with the m fication that the word "where" has been substituted for the " when "; and the words "the plaintiff may be required to so pay" the words " the plaintiff must so pay," which occurred in the old

See notes under s. 88.

3. Where any of the defendants in an interpleader-suit is actually suing the plaintiff in respect of the subject-matter of such suit, the Court in which the suit against the plaintiff is pending, shall, on being informed by the Court in which the interpleader-suit has been instituted, stay the proceedings as against him; and his costs in the suit so stayed may be provided for in such suit; but if, and in so far as, they are not provided for in that suit, they may be added to his costs incurred in the interpleader-suit. [S. 476.]

Procedure where defendant is suing plaintiff.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 476, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

Alterations in the Rule.—The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" in the beginning; the word "plaintiff" has been substituted for the word "stake-holder" which occurred in the old section. The words "on being informed by the Court in which the interpleader-suit has been instituted," have been substituted for the words "on being duly informed by the Court which passed the decree in the interpleader-suit in favour of the stake-holder that such decree has been passed," which occurred in the old section The above change is material, because under the old section the proceedings in other Court could be stayed only after the passing of decree in the interpleader-suit; but under the present rule, the proceedings in another Court can be stayed after the institution of the interpleader-suit The object of the change is clearly explained in the following report of the Special Committee:—

"The Committee think that the institution of the interpleader-suit affords a sufficient reason for the stay of other litigation in reference to the same subject-matter and they have modified section 476 so as to give effect to this view."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Appeal.—Under Or XLIII, r 1, cl. (p), an appeal lies from an order under this rule.

4. (1) At the first hearing the Court may—

Procedure at first hearing.

(a) declare that the plaintiff is discharged, from all liability to the defendants in respect of the thing claimed, award him his costs, and dismiss him from the suit; or

(b) if it thinks that justice or convenience so require retain all parties until the final disposal of the suit.

(2) Where the Court finds that the admissions of the parties or other evidence enable it to do so, it may adjudicate the title to the thing claimed.

(3) Where the admissions of the parties do not enable the Court so to adjudicate, it may direct—

(a) that an issue or issues between the parties be framed and tried, and

(b) that any claimant be made a plaintiff in lieu of or in addition to the original plaintiff, and shall proceed to try the suit in the ordinary manner. [S. 473.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 473, C P Code 1882, with several additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced below to observe the changes introduced in the present rule—

"At the first hearing, the Court may—

"(a) declare that the plaintiff is discharged from all liability to the defendants in respect of the thing claimed, award his costs, and dismiss him from the suit,

"or, if it thinks that justice or convenience so require,

"(b) retain all parties until the final disposal of the suit; and, if it finds that the admissions of the parties or other evidence enable it,

"(c) adjudicate the title to the thing claimed; or else it may

"(d) direct the defendants to interplead one another by filing statements and entering into evidence for the purpose of bringing their respective claims before the Court, and shall adjudicate on such claims."

Procedure where Defendant does Not Appear.—The plaintiffs who were in possession of a sum of money, filed an interpleader-suit against the two rival claimant-defendants who did not appear at the trial—Held that the proper order would be to discharge the plaintiffs from all liability to the defendants in respect of the money and dismiss them from the suit and to direct them to pay the balance into the Court to the credit of the suit after getting their taxed rates —Khemchand Issardas v. Khimchand Ranglahi, 21 B L R. 948 53 I. C. 365.

Appeal.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (p), an appeal lies from an order under this rule

The adjudication upon the claims of the defendants in an interpleader suit is a decree and stands on the same footing as an adjudication of any other claims, and is appealable under the provisions of s. 540, C P. Code, 1882 (s. 96) The direction as to interpleading is an order appealable under s 588 (Or XLIII) —Maharaj Singh v. Chittar Singh, 30 A 22 : 4 A L J. 683

5. Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to enable agents to sue their principals, or tenants to sue their landlords, for the purpose of compelling them to interplead with any persons other than persons making claim through such principals or landlords. [S 474.]

Agents and tenants may not institute interpleader-suits.

Illustrations.

(a) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent C alleges that the jewels were wrongfully obtained from him by A, and claims them from B. B cannot institute an interpleader-suit against A, and C

(b) A deposits a box of jewels with B as his agent. He then writes to C for the purpose of making the jewels a security for a debt due from himself to C. A afterwards alleges that C's debt is satisfied, and C alleges the contrary. Both claim the jewels from B. B may institute an interpleader-suit against A and C.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 474, C P Code, 1882, with some modifications The words "nothing in this order shall be deemed" have been substituted for the words "nothing in this chapter shall be taken," which occurred in the old section No other change has been made

ORDER XXXVI.

SPECIAL CASE.

Power to state case for Court's opinion.

1. (1) Parties claiming to be interested in the decision of any question of fact or law may enter into an agreement in writing stating such question in the form of a case for the opinion of the Court, and providing that, upon the finding of the Court with respect to such question,—

(a) a sum of money fixed by the parties or to be determined by the Court shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(b) some property moveable or immoveable, specified in the agreement, shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them; or

(c) one or more of the parties shall do, or refrain from doing, some other particular act specified in the agreement.

(2) Every case stated under this rule shall be divided into consecutively numbered paragraphs, and shall concisely state such facts and specify such documents as may be necessary to enable the Court to decide the question raised thereby. [S. 527.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 527, C. P. Code, 1882, with a verbal change, viz., the words "specify such" have been added before the word "documents" in sub-rule (2). No other change has been made.

The parties to a suit for possession came to an agreement that they should ask the Court to decide the question of title on the basis of the thak-bust map only and the plaintiff agreed to abide by that decision. The Court decided accordingly. Held, that in deciding the question on the basis of the thak-bust map, in accordance with the agreement of the parties, the Court acted as arbitrator and hence no appeal lay from that decision.—Kumar Saradindu Roy v. Bhagobati Debya, 10 C. W. N. 835.

2. Where the agreement is for the delivery of any property or for the doing or the refraining from doing any particular act, the estimated value of the property to be delivered, or to which the act specified has reference, shall be stated in the agreement [S 528.]

Where value of subject-matter must be stated.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 528, C. P. Code, with this modification that the word "where" has been substituted for the word "when" in the beginning

3. (1) The agreement, if framed in accordance with the rules hereinbefore contained, may be filed in the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit, the amount or value of the subject-matter of which is the same as the amount or value of the subject-matter of agreement.

Agreement to be filed and registered as suit.

(2) The agreement, when so filed, shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties claiming to be interested as plaintiff, or plaintiffs, and the other or the others of them as defendant or defendants; and notice shall be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the party or parties by whom it was presented. [S. 529.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 529, C. P. Code, 1882

4. Where the agreement has been filed, the parties to it shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the Court and shall be bound by the statements contained therein. [S. 530.]

Parties to be subject to court's jurisdiction.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 530, C. P. Code, 1882, with the modification that the word "where" has been substituted for the word "when" in the beginning.

5. (1) The case shall be set down for hearing as a suit instituted in the ordinary manner, and the provisions of this Code shall apply to such extent as far as the same are applicable.

Hearing and disposal of case.

(2) Where the Court is satisfied, after examination of the parties, or after taking such evidence as it thinks fit,—

(a) that the agreement was duly executed by them,

(b) that they have a bona fide interest in the question stated therein, and

(c) that the same is fit to be decided, it shall proceed to pronounce judgment thereon, in the same way as in an ordinary suit, and upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow. [S. 531.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 531, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

In para 1, the words "in the ordinary manner" have been substituted for the words "under Chapter V" which occured in the old Code

The sentence, "and shall be enforced in the manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees," which stood after the words, "a decree shall follow," in the last para of the old section, has been omitted, probably, as unnecessary The other changes are merely verbal

Appeal.—Where both the parties to a suit referred the matters in dispute between them to the Court, and agreed to abide by the decision, and the Court passed a decree awarding a certain sum to the plaintiff; Held, that no appeal lay from the decree, the decision of the Court being in the nature of an arbitration award —Sayad Zaian v. Kalabhai, 23 B. 752.

Court-fee.—The written agreement must be on a Court-fee of Rs 10 [Sch II, Art. 19, Court Fees Act (VII of 1870)].

ORDER XXXVII.

SUMMARY PROCEDURE ON NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS

Application of Order. 1. This order shall apply only to—

(a) the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay;

(b) the Chief Court of Lower Burma;

(c) the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Sind; and

(d) any other Court to which sections 532 to 537 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, have been already applied. [S. 538.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 538, C. P. Code, 1882, with a few alterations and omissions.

Clause (c) and the last three paras. of the old section, relating to the power of Local Government to extend these rules to any other Court, have been omitted, and several alterations have been made in the wording and language of clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d), as will appear on comparison.

Small Cause Courts.—"As Chapter XXXIX of the Code is transferred into rules, the Committee have not reproduced paragraph (c) of s. 538, as its appropriate place will be in rules under the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Para (c) of the old section ran as follows "(c) the Courts of Small Causes in Calcutta, Madras and Bombay."

The sections have been applied to the following other Courts in—

(1) Burma—

(a) Court of the Judge of Maulmain, and see Burma Rules Manual, Ed. 1897, p. 110.

(b) Court of the Deputy Commissioner of Akyab;

(2) the Madras Presidency—

(a) District and Subordinate Judges' Courts, and see Madras List of Local Rules and Orders, Ed. 1898, Vol. I, p. 123.

(b) District Munsifs' Courts;

2. All suits upon bills of exchange, hundis or promissory notes may, in case the plaintiff desires to proceed hereunder, be instituted by presenting a plaint in the form prescribed; but the summons shall be in Form No. 4 in Appendix B or in such other form as may be from time to time prescribed.

Institution of summary suits upon bills of exchange, etc.

(2) In any case in which the plaint and summons are in such forms, respectively, the defendant shall not appear or defend the suit unless he obtains leave from a Judge as hereinafter provided so to appear and defend; and, in default of his obtaining such leave or of his appearance and defence in pursuance thereof, the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted, and the plaintiff shall be entitled to a decree :—

(a) for the principal sum due on the instrument and for interest calculated in accordance with the provisions of section 79 or section 80, as the case may be, of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, up to the date of the institution of the suit, or for the sum mentioned in the summons, whichever is less, and for interest up to the date of the decree at the same rate or at such other rate as the Court thinks fit; and

(b) for such subsequent interest, if any, as the Court may order under section 34 of this Code; and

(c) for such sum for costs as may be prescribed:

Provided that, if the plaintiff claims more than such fixed sum for costs, the costs shall be ascertained in the ordinary way.

(3) A decree passed under this rule may be executed forthwith. [S. 532.]

COMMENTARY.

Changes in the Rule.—This rule corresponds with s. 532 of the old Code except in the following particulars:—

(1) The Explanation to s. 532 has been omitted and in lieu thereof the words "the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted" have been added to sub-rule (2).

(2) The fourth paragraph of s. 532 has been omitted.

(3) The italicized words in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-rule (2) and in sub-rule (3) have been substituted by Amendment Act XXX of 1926 for the words beginning with the words " for any sum not exceeding " and ending with the words " executed forthwith " of the old rule

Object and Scope of the Rule.—" The explanation to s. [illegible] was inserted to negative the effect of the decision in 1 C. 130, but its meaning, as it stands, is obscure. The committee have therefore deleted the explanation, and added words in the body of the rule which will remove the doubts at which the explanation was aimed "—See the Report of the Special Committee. See also, 30 C. 446.

By the addition of the words " the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted," it has now been made clear that in default of defendants obtaining leave to appear and defend, the allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted. The provisions of this rule are therefore, not limited to those simple cases in which the bill itself together with mere lapse of time is sufficient to establish for the plaintiff a prima facie case to recover, as pointed in 1 C. 130; but they are applicable to suits on promissory notes in which there is no express stipulation to pay interest or there is provision for payment by instalments, as the allegations of those facts in the plaint will be deemed to be admission of the defendant, and no further evidence would be required to prove them.

Negotiable Instrument, Bill of Exchange, Promissory Note.—The term " Negotiable Instrument " has been defined in s. 13 and the terms " Promissory Note " and " Bill of Exchange " in ss. 4 and 5, respectively of the Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881). See also, s. 2, clauses (2), (3) and (22) of the Indian Stamp Act, (II of 1899)

As to " negotiable instrument," see also Jetha Parkha v. Ram Chandra, 16 B. 689; and Bharata Pisharodi v. Vasudevan, 27 M. 1, F. B. (16 M. 283 overruled; 23 M. 156-n., and 13 B. 669 approved)

An instrument signed bearing one anna stamp, was in the following terms, viz. " On deposit of title-deeds named therein below for safe custody received by me, I promise to pay three months after date, Rs. 100 to A. B. or order ", then followed the details of the title-deeds. Held, that the instrument was a negotiable instrument.—Rama v. Sesha, 17 M. 5[illegible]

Practice and Procedure in Suits under this Order.—A summary suit under this chapter differs from a suit instituted in the ordinary manner on negotiable instruments in the following respects: (1) A summary suit can only be instituted in the Courts mentioned in r. 1; (2) It must be brought within 6 months from the date on which the debt becomes due and payable, (3) The defendants in a summary suit is not, as in a suit brought in the ordinary manner, entitled as of right to put in a defence. He must in a summary suit apply for leave to defend and such application under Sch. I, Art. 159 of the Limitation Act must be made within 10 days from the service of summons on him. If no leave is granted the plaintiff is entitled to get a decree.

Interest.—In a suit instituted under this Chapter, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover, any interest unless such interest is specified in the note itself, or to give evidence regarding any agreement to interest.—Ela-pati v. Sourendra Mohan, 30 C. 446: 7 C. W. N. 412 (1 C. 130 [illegible]-to).

In a suit on a promissory note instituted under Chapter 37 of the C. P. Code, where no leave had been obtained to defend the suit, the plaintiff is not entitled to a decree for interest at 18 per cent. on the strength of an oral agreement alleged in the plaint. The plaintiff can only get interest at 6 per cent.—Kader Buksh Hazir Buksh v. Shaikh Sirajuddin, 49 C. 716.

"The allegations in the plaint shall be deemed to be admitted."—The effect of these words which have been substituted for the Explanation to s. 532 of the Old Code is to enable the plaintiff to succeed on his own allegations, though the allegations may be of such a nature that if the defendant appeared and denied them, they would have to be proved by the plaintiff. The fundamental principle of law is that the plaintiff, when he comes to Court, must prove his case and he must prove it to the satisfaction of the Court Under the C. P. Code such proof can be dispensed with and the allegations in the plaint considered as admitted only in undefended cases of Bills of Exchange, Promissory Notes and Hundis as contemplated in Or. XXXVII, r. 2 of the Code.—J. B Ross & Co v C R Scriven, 43 C 1001 · 20 C W. N 1192.

Decree.—A plaintiff suing on a bill of exchange, the drawer, acceptor and endorser, where the endorsement has been made before maturity and without restriction, is entitled to a decree against all the defendants; a decree containing a condition exempting the endorser from liability until the plaintiff has exhausted his remedies against the drawer or acceptor is therefore illegal —Bank of Bengal v Kartick Chunder, 16 C 804. After the usual return of service and the expiration of the period mentioned in the summons, an order of Court for a decree should be obtained —Schiller v. Marker, 1 Ind. Jur N S. 283

Summons.—In a suit under this Chapter, the Court has no power, after the time fixed by the summons for obtaining leave to appear and defend has expired, to extend the time.—Quazie Mahmudar Rahman v Sarat Chandra, 5 C W. N 259 (3 B. L. R. 83, and 3 C. 539 distinguished)

In a suit under the Chapter, the defendant is bound to make his application for leave to defend the suit within 10 days, from the date of service of summons as shown in the Sheriff's return He cannot be allowed extension of time on the ground of his absence from the dwelling house when the service is alleged to have been effected.—Madhub Lall v. Woopendra Narain, 23 C 573

The plaintiff is entitled to claim by his summons whatever sum, principal, or interest is, on the legal construction of the instrument, demandable, though as to interest beyond the scope of the instrument, the question is a different one and out of the scope of the Act.—De Souza v. Rangaian, 6 M. H. C. R. 257.

One who takes a promissory note in his own name benami for another is the only party entitled to sue thereon and that the true owner is precluded from maintaining an action in his own name for the amount thereof.—Ramanuja v. Sadagopa, 28 M. 205; Subba Narayana v. Ramaswami, 28 M. 244, where it has been further held that the defendant is precluded from pleading that the plaintiff is not the true owner of the note. See also, Subba Narayana v Ramaswami, 30 M. 88 (21 M. 391 overruled). An assignee of a negotiable instrument otherwise than by endorsement may sue.—Kuthar Sahib v. Kader Sahib, 28 A. 544.

No person can claim a title to a negotiable instrument through a forged endorsement. Such an endorsement is a nullity and must be taken as if no endorsement was on the instrument (32 C. 799, 815 not followed, 21 A. 65, 67 followed). Where a plaintiff establishes the fact that a negotiable instrument was obtained from its lawful owner by means of fraud, the onus of proving that a third party was a holder in due course lies on the defendant.—Bunku Behari v. Secretary of State, 36 C. 239

"Leave to defend."—See notes to next rule.

Limitation.—It is optional with the plaintiff to bring a suit under this order, or in the ordinary way. If he sues under this order then the period of limitation is 6 months from the date when the money becomes payable. See Art. 5 of the Limitation Act, IX of 1908. But when the plaintiff sues in the ordinary way then the limitation is 3 years. See Arts. 69 to 81 of the Limitation Act, (IX of 1908).

Defendant showing defence on merits to have leave to appear.

3. (1) The Court shall, upon application by the defendant, give leave to appear and to defend the suit, upon affidavits which disclose such facts as would make it incumbent on the holder to prove consideration, or such other facts as the Court may deem sufficient to support the application.

(2) Leave to defend may be given unconditionally or subject to such terms as to payment into Court, giving security, framing and recording issues or otherwise as the Court thinks fit. [S. 533.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 533, C. P. Code, with some additions, alterations and omissions.

The words "upon the defendant paying into Court the sum mentioned in the summons," which occurred in the old section after the words "Leave to defend the suit" have been omitted, and in sub-rule (2), the words "Leave to defend may be given unconditionally or subject to such terms as to payment into Court" have been added. Under sub-rule (2) discretion has been given to Courts to allow the defendant to defend the suit unconditionally or subject to such terms as to payment into Court, as the Court thinks fit. Under the old section it was obligatory upon the Court to grant leave

"Upon affidavits."—An affidavit in support of an application for leave to defend as required by Or. XXXVII, r. 3 (1) of the C. P. Code, must disclose facts sufficient to support the application.—Firm of Kewalram Sukhanand v. Firm of Madandas Siroomal, 19 I. C. 100; 12 S. L. R. 71

"Leave to defend."—The Court will give leave to a defendant to appear and defend a suit, where he shows a defence apparently real, to re there is a doubt as to the bona fides of the defence, payment of ey into Court will be ordered or security directed to be given.—lintagy v. Narayan Sing, 6 B L. R. App. 61.

As a rule, leave to defend should be given unconditionally if the defen- shows a prima facie case or raises a triable issue. Leave should be e conditional if the Court doubts the bona fides of the defendant or ks the defence is only put in to gain time.—Periya Miyana v. Subra-ia, 46 M L J 255 78 I. C 505: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 612.

In a suit under Act V of 1866 the summons should be returned in usual way; and after the expiration of the required time, an order of Court or a decree should be obtained.—Schiller v. Marker, 1 Ind. Jur. 5. 283.

The High Court has power to extend the time within which a defendant a suit brought under this Chapter, can come in and obtain leave to end: therefore, in a suit in which it appeared that a defendant resided Peshawar, the time for the defendant to obtain leave from the Court to ear and defend was extended to 28 days.—Groom v. Wilson, 3 C. 539. tinguished in Quazie Mahmudar Rahaman v Saral Chandra, 5 C. W. 259, where it has been held that the Court has no power to extend the e).

In a summary suit, if a defendant has been arrested before judgment claims compensation for such arrest under s. 491, C. P. Code, 1882, he entitled on the ground to apply for leave to defend the suit, and if a ma facie case is made out, leave to defend should be given.—Roulet v Merle. 18 B 717

"Subject to such terms as to payment into Court."—Where a decree a suit under the summary procedure described by Or. XXXVII is set de on the defendant depositing into court the amount sued for, the ount deposited becomes charged with the decretal amount and is avail-e for the satisfaction of any other decree passed. It is not com-ent to the Court passing the decree to enquire into the question whether amount deposited was or was not the defendants' own money.—Gopal r v. Tiruvengadam Pillai, 32 M. L. J. 503: 5 L. W. 407.

Where in a suit on a promissory note filed under Or. XXXVII, the fendant by his affidavits shows that he has a real defence to the suit, but sincerity of which may be open to doubt the proper course is to give defendant leave to defend on his bringing the suit money into Court.—Chakrapany Chettiar v. Kamalvalli Ammal, 12 L. W. 712.

Limitation.—Application for leave to appear and defend must under t. 159 of the Limitation Act be made within 10 days from the date of rvice of summons on the defendant. In determining any question as to nitation arising on an application under this rule, the date shown in the eriff's return as the date of service should only be referred to.—Madhub ll v. Woopendra Narain, 23 C. 573.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is not appealable. See, Sukhlal Eastern Bank Ld., 42 C. 735.

4. After decree the Court may, under special circumstances set aside the decree, and if necessary stay or set aside execution, and may give leave to the defendant to appear to the summons and to defend the suit if it seems reasonable to the Court so to do, and on such terms as the Court thinks fit. [S. 534.]

Power to set aside decree.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 534, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "to the defendant" after the words "may give leave". No other changes have been made.

Special Circumstances.—This rule gives the defendant a right in special circumstances to set aside the decree, and, if necessary, to stay or set aside execution, and where a defendant fails to obtain leave to defend on the ground of the expiration of 10 days from the date of service of summons his remedy is under this rule.—Quazi Mahmudar Rahman v. S... Chandra, 5 C. W. N. 259.

A defendant who has obtained no leave to defend a summary suit cannot be allowed to appear while the hearing is proceeding. Or. XXXVII contemplates that a decree should be passed in such a cases in accordance with the plaint. Thereafter the defendant can apply under Or. XX, r. 11 (2), for payment of the decretal amount by instalments or to grant him any of the reliefs in Or. XXXVII, r. 4.—Pestonji v. Jamshedji, 51 B. 2... 94 I. C. 9. A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 250.

An appeal lies from an order made under this rule, refusing to set aside an ex parte decree.—Luckmidas v. Ebrahim, 2 B. 644.

5. In any proceeding under this Order the Court may order the bill, hundi or note on which the suit is founded to be forthwith deposited with an officer of the Court, and may further order that all proceedings shall be stayed until the plaintiff gives security for the costs thereof. [S. 535.]

Power to order bill, etc., to be deposited with officer of Court.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 535, C. P. Code, 1882, with a few verbal alterations.

6. The holder of every dishonoured bill of exchange or promissory note shall have the same remedies for the recovery of the expenses incurred in noting the same for non-acceptance or non-payment, or otherwise, by reason of such dishonour, as he has under this Order for the recovery of the amount of such bill or note. [S. 537.]

Recovery of cost of noting non-acceptance of dishonoured bill or note.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 536, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

Procedure in suits.

7. Save as provided by this Order, the procedure in suits hereunder shall be the same as the procedure in suits instituted in the ordinary manner.

[S. 537.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 537, C P Code 1882, with some verbal changes only.

ORDER XXXVIII.

ARREST AND ATTACHMENT BEFORE JUDGEMENT.

Arrest before Judgment.

Where defendant may be called upon to furnish security for appearance.

1. When at any stage of a suit, other than a suit of the nature referred to in section 16, clauses (a) to (d), the Court is satisfied, by affidavit or otherwise—

(a) that the defendant, with intent to delay the plaintiff, or to avoid any process of the Court or to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him—

(i) has absconded or left the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(ii) is about to abscond or leave the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or

(iii) has disposed of or removed from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court his property or any part thereof, or

(b) that the defendant is about to leave British India under circumstances affording reasonable probability that the plaintiff will or may thereby be obstructed or delayed in the execution of any decree that may be passed against the defendant in the suit, [S. 477.]

the Court may issue a warrant to arrest the defendant and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not furnish security for his appearance : [S. 478.]

Provided that the defendant shall not be arrested if he pays to the officer entrusted with the execution of the warrant any sum specified in the warrant as sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim ; and such sum shall be held in deposit by the Court until the suit is disposed of or until the order of the Court. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to ss. 477 and 478, C. P. Code 1882 with several alterations and omissions.

The provisions of ss 477 and 478 have been amalgamated in this rule. Some of the words and phrases of s 477 have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words and phrases; and the last para. of s 477, which ran as follows: "The plaintiff may apply to the Court that security be taken for the appearance of the defendant to answer any decree that may be passed against him in the suit," has been omitted probably as unnecessary.

The last para only of s 478 has been embodied in this rule, and the other portions of the section, which contained provisions almost similar to s. 477, have been omitted, probably as redundant. Section 478, C. P. Code, is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison and to observe the changes introduced by the present rule —

"If the Court after examining the applicant, and making such further investigation as it thinks fit, is satisfied—

"that the defendants, with any such intent as aforesaid—

"(a) has absconded or left the jurisdiction of the Court, or

"(b) is about to abscond or to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, or

"(c) has disposed of, or removed from the jurisdiction of the Court, his property or any part thereof, or

"that the defendant is about to leave British India under the circumstances last aforesaid,

"the Court may issue a warrant to arrest the defendant, and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance"

On comparison it would appear that the first para. of s 478, which contained provisions for the examination of the applicant and for making further investigation before issuing warrant for arrest has been omitted, the last para. of the section has been retained and embodied in this rule, and the other portions of the section, the provisions of which were almost similar to s 477, have been omitted as redundant.

Clauses (a) to (d) of s 16 refer to the following classes of suits (a) for the recovery of immoveable property, (b) for partition of immoveable property, (c) suits for foreclosure, sale or redemption in the case of a mortgage of or charge upon immoveable property, (d) for the determination of any other right to or interest in immoveable property All these suits are excluded from the operation of this rule

The proviso is new, and it is similar to rule 38 of Or XXI

Under the present rule no further examination of the applicant or investigation, except the affidavit, is needed to take action under this rule But under the old s 478 it was necessary to examine the applicant and to make further enquiry before taking action under ss 477 and 478. The present rule has simplified the procedure to a certain extent

(2) Every surety for the appearance of a defendant shall bind himself, in default of such appearance, to pay any sum of money which the defendant may be ordered to pay in the suit.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 479, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions

In sub-rule (1), the words "or make such order as it thinks fit in regard to the sum which may have been paid by the defendant under the proviso to the last preceding rule," have been added The addition has been made on account of the addition of proviso to r 1

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of the section with change of some words only; no change has been made in the meaning

Deposit in Court.—Where after deposit in Court, other decree-holders of the defendant attach the money so deposited, or the defendant becomes an insolvent, the plaintiff on obtaining his decree is entitled to priority over the claims of the other attaching decree-holders and the Official Receiver —Ramiah v Gopalier, 41 M 1053

Security.—The object of a security bond executed under Or XXXVIII is merely to secure the rights of judgment-creditor. The Court has no power to declare forfeiture of the bond in favour of Government. The bond should be enforced only on the application of the judgment-creditor and only to the extent of the sums found payable under the decree —Hussain Ali v. Secretary of State, 28 I C. 92

Payment by Surety.—Money paid by a surety after decree, is liable to rateable distribution.—Ghisu Lal v Todarmull, 26 C W N 169 · 70 I. C. 539, A I R. 1922 Cal 19

Extent of Liability of Surety.—Where a person stands surety under Or. XXXVIII, r. 2, C P Code for another arrested before judgment, the surety is not discharged from liability unless at the time when the judgment-debtor is produced, he can be called upon to pay up the decretal amount or suffer imprisonment in default The mere production of the debtor with a production order does not absolve the surety —Subrahmania Iyer v. Abdul Rahman, 1 Bur. L J 196

Appeal.—An order under this rule is appealable, see Or XLIII, r. 1 (q)

3. (1) A surety for the appearance of a defendant may at any time apply to the Court in which he became such surety to be discharged from his obligation.

Procedure on application by surety to be discharged.

(2) On such application being made, the Court shall summon the defendant to appear or, if it thinks fit, may issue a warrant for his arrest in the first instance.

(3) On the appearance of the defendant in pursuance of the summons or warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Court shall direct the surety to be discharged from his obligation, and shall call upon the defendant to find fresh security. [S. 480.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 480, C. P. Code, 1882, with some [illegible] changes only.

Section 253, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 145), applies to cases such as [illegible] of parties who become sureties under this rule but not to parties who become sureties after the decree is passed.—Ram Kissen v. Hurkhoo Singh, 7 W. R. 329 (rejecting a review in Hurkoo Singh v. Ram Kuber, 6 W. R. Mis. 44).

Surety still remains liable although remedy against the principal is barred.—Kristo Kishori v. Radha Mohun, 12 C. 330 (5 B. 647 [illegible]).

"Voluntary surrender."—A defendant who appears in Court to defend his suit is exempt from personal arrest under s. 135 of the C. P. Code. A surety for the appearance of the defendant cannot therefore claim to initiate proceedings under this rule with a view to obtain his discharge when the defendant appears in Court to defend his suit. Nor does the appearance of the defendant on that occasion amount to a voluntary surrender within the meaning of Or. XXXVIII, r. 3.—[illegible] Mangalath v. Isack Mackadam, 37 M. L. J. 435: 63 I. C. 367.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is appealable, see Or. XLIII, r. 1 (q).

Form.—For form of summons to defendant, see App. F, Form No. 3.

Procedure where defendant fails to furnish security or find fresh security.

4. Where the defendant fails to comply with any order under rule 2 or rule 3, the Court may commit him to the civil prison until the decision of the suit, or where a decree is passed against the defendant, until the decree has been satisfied:

Provided that no person shall be detained in prison under this rule in any case for a longer period than six months, nor for a longer period than six weeks when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed fifty rupees:

Provided also that no person shall be detained in prison under this rule after he has complied with such order. [S. 4[illegible]]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 481, C P. Code, with some alterations and additions.

In the concluding part of para. 1, the words, "or where a decree is passed against the defendant, until the decree has been satisfied," have been substituted for the words "or if judgment be given against the defendant," until the execution of the decree," which occurred in the old section. The other changes are of a verbal character only

Section 482, C. P. Code, 1882, which contained provisions for payment of subsistence allowance, to defendants arrested under this Order, has been omitted, on account of insertion of the new section 134, in the body of the Code, which is applicable to all persons arrested under this Code.

Failure to Furnish Security.—A Judge of Small Cause Court in the Muffasil could direct the jailor to bring up before the Court, at the hearing of the suit, a defendant committed to custody under this rule, without having recourse to the procedure under Act XV of 1869 —Kilaram Maji v Narayan, 5 B. L R. 215 13 W R 278

Held, that imprisonment under this rule becomes, after decree, imprisonment in execution of the decree, and the imprisonment suffered after that date must consequently be taken into consideration in calculating the period of 6 months, which by section 58 of the Code is the limit allowed for an imprisonment in execution of a decree —Ghanasham Das v. Joharimull, 7 B. 431

Appeal.—An order under this rule for the arrest of the defendant is appealable under s. 104 (h) —Syed Hoossein v Chettiar, 2 R 362 84 I. C. 270 A I. R 1924 Rang 361.

Where defendant may be called upon to furnish security for production of property.

5. (1) Where, at any stage of a suit, the Court is satisfied, by affidavit or otherwise, that the defendant, with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him—

(a) is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property, or

(b) is about to remove the whole or any part of his property from the local limits of the jurisdiction of Court, the Court may direct the defendant, within a time to be fixed by it, either to furnish security, in such sum as may be specified in the order, to produce and place at the disposal of the Court, when required, the said property or the value of the same, or such portion thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the decree, or to app[ear] and show cause why he should not furnish security.

(2) The plaintiff shall, unless the Court otherwise direc[ts,] specify the property required to be attached and the estimated va[lue] thereof.

(3) The Court may also in the order direct the condit[ional] attachment of the whole or any portion of the property so spec[i]fied. [Ss. 483 and 484.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—The provisions of ss. 483 and 484, C. P. Code, 1882, have been amalgamated in this rule with several [...] alterations and omissions.

The reason for amalgamation seems to be that it has been [...] unnecessary to retain two separate sections containing almost [...] visions.—Hence the provisions of the two sections have bee[n] [...] in one rule.

The provisions contained in clause (a) of s. 483, and similar pro[visions] contained in s. 484, have been inserted in this rule by making two [...] clauses (a) and (b); and the provisions contained in clause (b) [...] and similar provisions contained in s. 484, which ran as follows, [...] quitted the jurisdiction of the Court, leaving therein, property be[longing] to him;" and the first part of s. 484, C. P. Code, 1882, which ra[n as] follows," if the Court after examining the applicant and making su[ch fur]ther investigation which it thinks fit," have been altogether omitte[d in] the present rule.

Under the present rule it is neither necessary to examine the ap[plicant] nor to make any further investigation before taking any action [under the] provisions of Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 but under s. 484 of the old Code [it was] necessary to examine the applicant and to make further investigat[ion be]fore proceeding under those sections.

The other changes introduced in this rule do not seem to be [...] Those changes are merely verbal.

Scope and Object of the Rule.—The main object of an attach[ment] before judgment is to enable the plaintiff to realize the amount [of the] decree, supposing a decree is eventually passed, from the defendant's [pro]perty.—Ganu Singh v. Jangilal, 26 C. 531. An attachment before [judg]ment is not an attachment for the enforcement of the decree [...] step taken merely for the purpose of preventing the defendant fr[om ob]structing or delaying such enforcement when the decree subsequ[ently pass]ed against him in the suit is sought to be executed.—Sai Kimar [...] Tincouri Rai, 4 B. L. R. 63, 67, 68, F. B.; Basiram v. Kattyay[ani], [...] C. 448. 15 C. W. N. 705. The scope and object of this and th[e follow]ing rules are merely to safeguard the plaintiff against any loss w[hich may] arise if the defendant disposes of or removes his property pen[ding the dis]posal of the suit. 4 B. L. R. 63, 68 and 74 F. B.

"The Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise."—In an applica- under this rule the Court must be satisfied that a removal of goods is g made or about to be made, with a view to evade the execution of cree in a specific suit, though it is not necessary that the suit should ictually commenced at the time of their removal.—Ram Narain v. l, 2 Hyde 183.

Before proceeding under this rule to attach property, the Court should horoughly satisfied that the defendant is really disposing of his pro- y with intent to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that be passed against him.—Soshee Sekoreswar v. Harogobind, 13 C. L. 356; Chandrika Prasad v. Hera Lal, 73 I. C. 721; Khoka Marwari Ramachander, 44 I. C. 40. Merely vague allegations that the defend- is about to remove the whole or any part of his property from the local ts of the jurisdiction of the Court are not sufficient.—Senaji Kapur nd v. Pannaji Devi Chand, 29 Bom. L. R. 1228; 46 B. 431: 64 580: A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 276.

"Is about to dispose of the whole or any part of his property."—The rt is not restricted to attempts at alienation made after the com- icement of the action. It is open to the Court to look to the conduct he parties immediately before the suit and to examine also surrounding umstances.—J. D. Mac Gregor v. Cawnpore Sugar Works, Ltd., 9 C. J. 86-n.

An order directing the issue of a notice upon the defendant to show se why attachment should not issue before judgment and at the same e directing the defendant not to part with the property in any way is an order in accordance with this rule.—Mahendra v. Gurudas, 23 C. J. 392.

The term "property" as used in this rule is wide enough to include perty of every description, moveable or immoveable, whether in the ual possession of the defendant or some other person on his behalf.— 'di Lal v. Kuarji Dichit, 17 A. 82.—Bishambar Sahi v. Sukhdevi, 16 186.

It does not apply to the joint property of a partnership, of which the gment-debtor is a member. In cases of this kind the proper order to ke is the appointment of a receiver.—Damodar v. Panna Lal, 9 Bom. R. 540.

Where a plaintiff has applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis an ler under this rule cannot be passed before the leave is granted.—Purna Tara, 21 C. W. N. 780: 25 C. L. J. 159.

The plaintiff in a mortgage suit who applies for attachment of certain ier properties of the defendant on the ground of insufficiency of the rtgaged security has a right to get an attachment before judgment der Or. XXXVIII, r. 5 of the C. P. Code.—Jogemaya v. Baidynath, C. 215.

(2) Where the defendant shows such cause or furnishes the required security, and the property specified or any portion of it has been attached, the Court shall order the attachment to be withdrawn, or make such other order as it thinks fit. [S. 485.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 485, C P Code, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (2) the words "or make such other order as it thinks fit" have been added after the word "withdrawn" The other changes are merely verbal "Property specified."—This means the property specified by plaintiff or required by r. 5 (2) Such property may be within or beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court. The words "property within the jurisdiction of the Court" which occurred in the penultimate para. of s 483 of the old Code, have been omitted. The reason for the omission has been clearly explained in the following report of the Special Committee. "The Committee have omitted the words "property within the jurisdiction of the Court," as they have caused a conflict of decisions and they think, as a matter of policy, there should not be the restriction these words suggest." The conflicting rulings referred to are—Kristnasami v. Engel, 8 M 20; Kedar Nath v. Deva Veyana, 1 C. L. R.; Balaram v Solana, 8 B. L. R. 335; Nur Muhammad v. Abbakar, 8 Bom. H. C. 29; in all these cases it was held that the property of the defendant which is not within the jurisdiction of the Court could not be attached before judgment Contra in Amaraveerayya v. Annamala Chetty, 11 M. 502; Ram Protap v Madho Rai, 7 C. W. N 216 and In re Abraham, 8 Bom H. C 170, where it has been held that the property of the defendant which is not within the jurisdiction of the Court can be attached before judgment The Legislature adopting the views expressed in the latter cases has omitted the words above referred to, and has removed the restriction which existed under the old Code, in attaching property situated beyond the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is instituted. See also, notes under rule 48 of Or. XXI.

Conditional Order of Attachment Before Judgment.—A conditional order of attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII, r 6 of the C. P Code can not be passed until after the defendant has either failed to show cause why he should not furnish security or has failed to furnish security A conditional order of attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII, r 5 (3) cannot be made without an accompanying order under cl. (1) directing the defendant to furnish security or to show cause. Abdul Karim Dhali v. Nur Mahomed, 57 I. C. 907. Or XXXVIII, r 6, cl 6 (1) contemplates an order of attachment. Or. XXXVIII, r 5, cl contemplates a conditional attachment made in terms of r 5, cl Where the Court issued notices upon the defendants to show cause why attachment before judgment should not be made and at the same time directed the defendants not to part with the properties in any way. Held that the order was not in accordance with Or. XXXVIII, r. 5, Makhan Narain v Gurudas, 23 C. L. J. 392.

An attachment before judgment under this rule issued by a Court at the instance of a third party, prohibited the creditor from recovering and the debtor from paying, the debt. Held, that an order in these terms was not an order staying the institution of a suit within the meaning of s. 15 of the Limitation Act.—Beti Maharani v. Collector of Etawah, 17 A. 198, P. C. (affirming 14 A. 162).

"The Court may order......be attached."—Where an order is passed to furnish security or to show cause why security should not be furnished within a date fixed, and no security is furnished, the Court would have first to determine judicially that there had been a failure before drawing up a writ of attachment —Sourendra v. Tarubala, 31 C. W N 432, A I R. 1927 Cal 354.

Appeal.—Under Or XLIII, r. 1 (q), an appeal lies from an order under this rule.—Janday Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A 291. See also, Mir Ali v. Behari Lal, 21 B. 273; Haji Mohamuddin & Co. v The Eastern Japan Trading Co., 50 C. 215: A. I. R. 1923 C. 639.

Form.—For form of attachment before judgment, see, App F, Form No. 7.

7. Save as otherwise expressly provided, the attachment shall be made in the manner provided for the attachment of property in execution of a decree. [S. 486.]

Mode of making attachment.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 486, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "save as otherwise expressly provided" in the beginning.

If the property of the defendant sought to be attached is outside the local limits of the jurisdiction of a High Court, the proper course for the Court to follow is to transmit the order for attachment before judgment to the Court in whose jurisdiction the property is situated, with a request that that Court should levy the attachment. It should not appoint the plaintiff's solicitor's clerk a special bailiff for the purpose of levying attachment.—Gajanan v. Bhaskar, 28 Bom L. R 380 : 94 I. C. 116 : A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 278

8. Where any claim is preferred to property attached before judgment, such claim shall be investigated in the manner hereinbefore provided for the investigation of claims to property attached in execution of a decree for the payment of money. [S. 487.]

Investigation of claim to property attached before judgment.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 487, C P. Code, 1882, with the change of the word "where" for "if," and the addition of the words "payment of" before the word "money"

Section 281, C P Code, 1882 (Or XXI, r 61), has not been applied to claims to property attached before judgment for this rule which prescribes the manner of investigation is silent as to the result.—Turner v Pestonji, 20 B 403, Mir Ali v Behari Lal, 21 B 273

Claim to Property Attached Before Judgment.—An assignee of a decree which is attached before judgment in another Court may prefer a claim to the latter for withdrawal of the attachment and the Court ought to withdraw it.—Sadagopachariar v. Raghunath, 33 M 62

Order XXI, r 63, C P Code, applies to orders on claims preferred to property attached before judgment.—Mallikarjuna v Mallapalli, 11 M. 849; 35 M L J 231 F B (11 M 23 overruled) 6 L W 518.

Order XXXVIII, r. 8 simply provides for the manner of investigation into claims to properties sought to be attached before judgment. An order passed is not final subject to a suit as provided in Or XXI, r 63 and a party against whom an order under this rule is passed in a claim case is not precluded from asserting his right to the property in any other proceedings.—Ramanamma v. Bathula, 5 L. W. 704: 39 I. C. 863 (37 A. 5 dissented from).

Removal of attachment when security furnished or suit dismissed.

9. Where an order is made for attachment before judgment the Court shall order the attachment to be withdrawn when the defendant furnishes the security required, together with security for the costs of the attachment, or when the suit is dismissed. [S. 488.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 488, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations only. The words "is made" have been substituted for the words "is passed"; and the words "to be withdrawn" for the words "shall remove."

Removal of Attachment.—It is obligatory upon the Court to withdraw the attachment when the suit is dismissed, and it does not revive on the suit being decreed on appeal.—Sasirama v. Meherban, 13 C. L. J. 243; Abdur Rahaman v. Amir Sharif, 45 C. 780: 22 C. W. N. 827.

When the suit is dismissed, the attachment before judgment terminates with the dismissal of the suit, and the attachment shall be withdrawn. A fresh attachment is necessary if the suit is decreed on appeal.—Ram Chand v. Pitam Mal, 10 A. 506.

Attachment before judgment not to affect rights of strangers, nor bar decree-holder from applying for sale.

10. Attachment before judgment shall not affect the rights, existing prior to the attachment, of persons not parties to the suit, nor bar any person holding a decree against the defendant from applying for the sale of the property under attachment in execution of such decree. [S. 489.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 489, C. P. Code.

Effect of Attachment.—The effect of an attachment of a property under the C. P. Code, whether made before or after decree is the same and any alienation of property attached before judgment, is ... void.—Raj Chunder v. Isser Chunder, Bourke, O. C. 130. See also Ganu Singh v. Jangi Lal, 26 C. 531, and Serdul Roy v. See ... C. 630: 10 C. W. N. 634, where it has been held that the object and effect of attachment before judgment is simply to safeguard the property attached so as to enable the plaintiff to realize the amount of his decree if he should get one. A plaintiff decree-holder who has attached before judgment has not by reason of such attachment or process identical thereto, any right to be treated preferentially to other judgment-creditors. There must be a realization in execution to give rights of priority.

An attachment before judgment does not by itself create any interest in the property attached.—Madhusudan v. Rash Mohan, 21 C. L. J. 654; Jogendra v. Monmotha, 16 C. L. J. 565; nor does it operate as an injunction —Munsoor v. Abhoy, 21 C. W. N. 1147

Where a defendant furnished security by paying money into Court in obedience to an order under Or. XXXVIII, r. 5, such payment will not create a charge in favour of the plaintiff.—Errikulapa v Official Assignee of Madras, 39 M 903. But see, Janaki v. Ramaswami, 41 L W. 5.

An attachment before judgment has no effect against the Official Assignee, who holds the property of the judgment-debtor under a vesting order of Court made before the order for attachment was passed —Millar v. Mon Mohan, 7 C 213 8 C L R 213. See also, Bank of Bengal v. Newton, 12 B L R App 1, Java Ramji v. Jadavji Nathu, 1 Bom. When a vesting order has been made, after attachment and before decree, the title of Official Assignee takes effect, and prevents the attaching creditor from obtaining satisfaction of his decree by sale—Sadayappa v. Ponnama, 8 M. 454; Shib Kristo v Miller, 10 C 150. 13 C L. R. 433; Turner v Pestonji, 20 B. 403; Kristnaswamy v. Official Assignee of Madras, 26 M. 673, where all the cases on the point have been referred to, discussed and explained See also, notes under s 64

In attachment before judgment, the Court does not interfere with the legal disposal of the property attached, beyond declaring that possession shall not be taken without its previous sanction, undertaking only that, if no subsequent order to the contrary be made, the property shall be forthcoming at the time of pronouncing of the decree to abide whatever order it shall make about it —Java Ramji v Jadhavji Nathu, 1 Bom. H. C. 224; Sava Ramji v Jadhabji Nathu, 2 Bom H C 150

Where in a suit against one member of an undivided Hindu family, not as representing the family, there is an attachment before judgment of family property, and the defendant dies before decree is passed, the right of survivorship takes effect before the attachment becomes effectual for the purpose of execution.—Ramanayya v Rangappayya, 17 M 144

Attachment Before Judgment Not to Affect Rights of Persons Not Parties to the Suit.—Where a judgment-debtor's interest in the joint family property is attached before judgment ,and after such attachment and decree he dies, his co-parcenary interest in the property passes by survivorship to the other members of the family, the decree-holder is not entitled to have his share sold in execution of the decree. —Subrao v Mahadvi, 38 B 105 21 I C 330, Sunderlal v Raghunandan, 3 Pat 250 A I R 1924 Pat 165 83 I C 113 But a contrary view was taken by the Madras High Court in Sankaralinga v Official Receiver, 49 M L J 616 A I R 1926 Mad 72 92 I C 504, where it was held (following 5 C. 148, P. C. and 26 M. L. J. 517) that an attachment before judgment has the effect of preventing the interest of the deceased judgment-debtor from passing by survivorship in a case where the judgment-debtor dies after decree.

Attachment Before Judgment Not to Bar Rights of Other Decree-holders.—Attachment before judgment does not prevent the property being attached and sold in execution of any other decree against the judgment-debtor.—Bishesar Das v. Ambika, 37 A. 575; Sewdut v. S... canto, 33 C. 639, 643; Madhusudan v. Rash Mohan, 21 C. Property attached before judgment not to be re-attached in execution of decree.

11. Where property is under attachment by virtue of the provisions of this Order and a decree is subsequently passed in favour of the plaintiff, it shall not be necessary upon an application for execution of such decree to apply for a re-attachment of the property. [S. 490.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope of the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 490, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The words "a decree is subsequently passed" have been substituted for the words "a decree is given", and the words "upon an application for execution of such decree to apply for a re-attachment of the property," have been substituted for the words, "to re-attach the property in execution of such decree," which occurred in the old section. By the addition of the words "upon application" it has now been made clear, that after obtaining a decree the plaintiff must apply for execution like any other creditor under s. ... C. P. Code, 1882 [Or. XXI, r. 11 (2)]. The above amendment has been made adopting the law as laid down in 12 B. 400 and 33 C. 639: 10 W. N. 634, noted below.

Re-attachment.—It is only when decree is subsequently given in favour of the plaintiff that re-attachment in execution of that decree becomes unnecessary. But when the suit is dismissed, attachment before judgment terminates with the dismissal of the suit; and if the suit is subsequently decreed on appeal, a fresh attachment is necessary for the validity of the sale in execution of that decree.—Ram Chand v. L... Mal, 13 A. 506.

When property is attached before judgment, the fact that a decree is made in the plaintiff's favour does not determine the attachment which continues in force.—Heramba Nath v. Surendra Nath, (1919) Pat. ...: 53 I. C. 20.

Under s. 490 (r. 11), read with s. 273 (Or. XXI, r. 53), the property of a judgment-debtor attached before judgment is brought into Court by stress of the attachment; and, where a decree follows the judgment, the creditor will be entitled, without fresh attachment to ...

tion out of the sale-proceeds of such property under s 295, C P. Code, 1882, (s. 73).—Amara Veerayya v Annamala Chetty, 31 M. 502: 4 M. L. T. 348.

A decree-holder who has attached before judgment is not entitled under s. 295, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 73), to a rateable distribution of the assets unless, subsequently to his decree, he has applied for execution under s. 235, C. P. Code, 1882, Or. XXI, r. 11 (2). Section 490, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 11), does not by implication confer upon a decree-holder who has attached before judgment, the right to come in under s. 295 (s. 73) and share in the distribution of the sale-proceeds of the property which he has attached.—Pallanji Sharpurji v. Jordan, 12 B 400 (Referred to in Sewdat Roy v Sree Canto, 33 C 639: 10 C W N 634). See also, Arunachellam v. Hajee Sheik Meera, 34 M 25

An attachment before judgment, though it gives a security, does not create any charge on the property attached, which remains that of the defendant. Nor does a decree following such attachment place ipso facto in a better position the creditor, who must apply for execution from which he is not exempted by s. 490, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 11) On such application for execution, the attachment before judgment enures and becomes an attachment in execution. But neither attachment before judgment nor process incidental thereto, such as sale of goods attached prior to decree under s 269, C P Code, (Or. XXI, r 43), gives a decree-holder applying for execution any right to preferential treatment over another judgment-creditor who has also before the date of such application himself taken execution of his decree —Sewdut Roy v Sree Canto, 33 C. 639: 10 C. W. N. 634.

The effect of this rule is to put a person attaching before judgment in the same position as if he had attached, after decree, if a decree is passed in his favour after attachment before judgment —Ramaswamy v Chakrapany, 17 M L. J. 488, Ram Piari Lall v Nathu Ram, 2 Pat L T. 719: 6 Pat. L J. 332

An attachment applied for before judgment but actually effected after decree has still the force of an attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII and the provisions of Or XXXVIII do not lay down imperatively that the attachment should be actually effected before judgment.—Rudravarain v Perla Lutchauna, 42 M 1 35 M. L. J. 387.

Objection by Defendant that Property Attached Before Judgment is Not Saleable.—The act that a defendant did not raise any objection under s. 60 on the ground that the property is not saleable when it was attached before judgment does not preclude him from raising that objection when application for execution of the decree is made after a decree is subsequently passed in the suit —Basiram v Kattyayani, 38 C 448.

Agricultural produce not attachable before judgment.

12. Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to authorize the plaintiff to apply for the attachment of any agricultural produce in the possession of an agriculturist, or to empower the Court to order the attachment or production of such produce. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

"This rule represents the views of the Government of India, as expressed in the former Bill."—See, the Report of the Special Committee

Compensation for Improper Arrests or Attachments.—Section 491, C. P. Code, 1882, which contained provisions for compensation for improper arrests and attachments has been relegated to the body of the Code as s 95, and all the cases bearing on the point have been noted under that section Besides the cases noted under s. 95, see also, the following cases.

An order under s. 483, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXVIII, r 5), where the application has been made on insufficient grounds must necessarily cause damages to the credit and reputation of the party against whom the order is made, and general and special damages are recoverable. Quaere—Whether it is necessary to prove that the defendant acted maliciously in the above case —Palani Kumarasami v. Udayar Nadan, 32 M. 170: 18 M. L. J. 490.

Pending a civil suit against him, the defendant was arrested before judgment, but was afterwards released. He then made a claim of Rs. 25,000 against the plaintiff as damages for his wrongful arrest and applied to include in the suit his counterclaim of Rs 25,000 Held, that the question which the defendant desired to be tried was not one which ought to be tried by counterclaim —Magoomal Jethanand v. Hamid Fez Ali, 10 Bom L R 1002

No appeal will lie from an order under s. 491, C. P Code, 1882 (s. 95), granting compensation to a person against whom an attachment has been obtained upon insufficient grounds —Loknath v. Amir Singh, 28 A. 81: 2 A. L J 602 (24 M. 62 followed)

Section 104 (g) of the present Code has given an appeal from an order under s 95. The cases (28 A. 81, and 24 M. 62) have been overruled by s 104 (g).

Small Cause Court not to attach immoveable property.

13. Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to empower any Court of Small Causes to make an order for the attachment of immoveable property.

COMMENTARY.

This is a new rule and was added by the Amending Act I of 1926 See, notes to r. 7, above.

ORDER XXXIX.

TEMPORARY INJUNCTIONS AND INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

Temporary Injunctions.

Cases in which temporary injunction may be granted.

1. Where in any suit it is proved by affidavit or otherwise—

(a) that any property in dispute in a suit is in danger of being wasted, damaged or alienated by any party to the suit, or wrongfully sold in execution of a decree, or

(b) that the defendant threatens, or intends, to remove or dispose of his property with a view to defraud his creditors, the Court may by order grant a temporary injunction to restrain such act, or make such other order for the purpose of staying and preventing the wasting, damaging, alienation, sale, removal or disposition of the property as the Court thinks fit, until the disposal of the suit or until further orders. [S. 492.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 492, C P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "when" in the beginning.

In clause (b), the word "intends" has been substituted for the words "is about," and the words "with a view" have been substituted for the words "with intent" which occurred in cl (b) of the old section.

In the last para. the words "or make such other order," have been substituted for the words "or give such other order" which occurred in the old section; and the words "until the disposal of the suit or until further orders," have been added, after the words "as the Court thinks fit."

Injunctions.—An injunction is an order or command preventing a party from doing that which he is under a legal obligation not to do Injunctions are of two kinds, temporary and perpetual Temporary injunctions are such as are to continue until a specified time, or until further order of the Court. They may be granted at any period of a suit and are regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure (s. 94 and Or. XXXIX, rr. 1 and 2 The object of the temporary injunction is to prevent mischievous malicious waste, unlawful alienation, fraudulent removal, disposal or wrongful seizure in execution of the property in dispute pending the trial of the suit, to preserve the property in dispute in statu quo until the further hearing of the case or until further order; it is provisional in its nautre and does not conclude a right; and it may be dissolved at any time under s. 95 and Or. XXXIX, r. 4 of the C. P. Code on defendant's showing sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the Court against the order granting the injunction. Before granting a temporary injunction it must be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that unless the defendant is immediately restrained by an injunction, irreparable loss or damage will be caused to the plaintiff, during the pending of the suit. A perpetual injunction can only be granted by the decree made at the hearing and upon the merits of the suit: the defendant is thereby perpetually enjoined from the assertion of a right, or from the commission of an act, which would be contrary to the rights of the plaintiff. It is regulated by ss. 55-57 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877).

Principles Governing Temporary Injunctions.—The granting of temporary injunction under the powers conferred by this rule is a matter of discretion. True, it is a matter of judicial discretion. But if the Court which grants the injunction rightly appreciates the facts and applies to those facts the true principles, then that is a sound exercise of judicial discretion.—Per White, C. J., in Subba Naidu v. Haji Badsha, 26 M. 1?

An interlocutory injunction should not be lightly granted because it would be a serious thing if the persons in possession were restrained from making use of the property merely because a suit has been instituted with reference to the property. It is only in cases where property which it is essential should be kept in its existing condition during the pendency of the suit is in danger of being wasted, alienated or damaged that the Court ought to interfere so as to restrain persons who may turn out at the final event of the litigation to be the actual owners of the property from proper enjoyment and possession of it.—Begg Dunlop & Co. v. S. Chandra, 46 C 1001: 23 C. W. N. 677: 29 C. L. J. 581.

The general principles applicable to cases of interim injunction is that where a permanent injunction cannot be given, no prayer for a temporary injunction will be allowed.—Bishnu Prasad v. Sashi Bhusan, (1923) P. 133: 2 Pt. L. R. 17.

The Court, in granting an ad interim injunction, will first see that there is a bona fide contention between the parties, and then consider which side, in the event of obtaining a successful result to the suit, will be the balance of inconvenience if the injunction do not issue, bearing in mind the principle of retaining immoveable property in status quo.—Gomes v. Chandra, 16 C. ...; 1 Ind. Jur., N. S. 411; Begg Dunlop & Co. v. Satish Chandra, 46 C. 1001: 23 C. W. N. 677, Krishna Chandra v. Hem Chandra, 21 C. L. J. ...; I. C. 855; Doherty v. Allman, 3 App. Cas. 709; Subba v. Haji Badsha, 26 M. 168, 175; Allah Din v. Shankar Das, 66 I. C. 500; Kasel... v. Sharf Din, (1922) Lah. 356: 66 I. C. 161; Kenneth Arthur ... v. ... Ranjan Basdhar, 75 I. C. 859.

This rule applies to a case where it is shewn to the satisfaction of the Court that the defendant in possession is likely to endanger or make away with any property in dispute in the suit, and empowers the Court in such a case to issue an injunction to the defendant to refrain from the the particular act complained of, and, in case of necessity, to appoint a receiver or manager of so much of the property only as is in dispute.—Joy Narain v. Ship Pershad, 6 W. R. Mis. 1. See also, Mun Mohine v. Ichamoyee, 13 W. R. 60.

The power of a Court to attach property and to appoint a receiver extends only to the better management or custody of any property which is in dispute and ceases when the suit comes to an end. An injunction in respect of property cannot be maintained after a claim is dismissed or pending an appeal.—Moheooddeen v. Ahmed Hossein, 14 W. R. 384.

A Civil Court has no right to issue an injunction which would have the effect of staying proceedings in a Criminal Court.—Nawab v. Seth Dooli Chand, 2 I. C. 266.

The distinction between a case in which a temporary injunction may be granted and a case in which a receiver may be appointed, is that, while in either case, it must be shown that property should be preserved from waste or alienation, in the former case it would be sufficient if it be shown that the plaintiff in the suit has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the right alleged; while, in the latter case a good prima facie case has to be made out.—Chandidat Jha v. Padmanand Singh, 22 C. 459; Guru Sami v. Chinna, 10 L. W 551 53 I. C 760. See also, Nasarvanji Cowasji Argani v. Shahjadi Begam, 24 Bom L. R. 378

No Court would grant an injunction against persons residing outside its jurisdiction and not subject to its jurisdiction in cases where they would have no means of enforcing the order. But where the acts complained of are acts taking place within the Court's jurisdiction and the party although a resident outside the Court's jurisdiction appears in the suit and submits personally to the jurisdiction of the Court (not under protest or to question the Court's jurisdiction) the Court has power to grant an injunction against him Before granting a temporary injunction the Court must be satisfied in the first instance that the plaintiff applicant has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the right alleged and further that the defendants have infringed or are threatening an infringement of these rights —Maharajah Bahadur Singh v Seth Hukum Chand, 4 Pat. L. T. 48 71 I C. 11

A obtained a decree against B and others (Hindus), on a title of purchase from them, for possession of an undivided moiety of a dwelling-house, to the remaining moiety of which C (a Hindu) was jointly entitled On A's proceeding to execute his decree, C brought a suit alleging that A had obtained no title under his purchase, and praying for partition of the property and for an interim injunction to restrain A from executing his decree pending the partition suit The Court granted the prayer —Anant Nath v Mackintosh, 6 B. L R. 571.

The plaintiffs being in possession of a dock used for docking and repairing vessels, and being threatened by the defendant with an ejectment suit, sued the defendant for specific performance of contract and for an injunction to restrain him from ejecting them until the completion of the repairs of their two vessels Both parties filed contradictory affidavits. Held, that, looking into the inconvenience of allowing the same matter to be litigated simultaneously in different Courts between the same parties, an interim injunction may issue although there is a contradiction of facts.—Mohan v. River Steam Navigation Company, 14 B L R 5.

The plaintiffs who were in possession of certain premises, brought a suit to restrain the defendant from selling a share in them which he had attached in execution of a decree upon a mortgage to him of the share, and to set aside the deed of mortgage, on the ground that the mortgagors to the defendant had no interest in the property at the time of their mortgage to him (defendant). The plaintiffs applied for an interim injunction and the Court granted the application.—Rup Lal v. Mahima Chunder, 5 B. L. R. 254; Sree Narain v. Miller, 5 B L R 254-note

In a suit to restrain the defendant from using plaintiff's alleged trade mark, the plaintiff applied for an ad interim injunction. Held, that the plaintiff's right to an ad interim injunction depended on his making a strong if not an overwhelming prima facie case.—Reddaway & Co v. Schroder Smidt & Co., 8 C. W. N. 151.

The Court has to be satisfied that the applicant has a prima facie case, and further that the protection of his interest requires the issue of a temporary injunction.—Vathiar Ramanuja v. Aiyanachariar, 23 M. L. J. 316; Kalidas v. Probat Chandra, 18 I. C. 394. See also, Sant Lal v. Ishar Das, 46 P. L. R. 1919: 51 I. C. 108; Begg Dunlop & Co v. Sarat Chandra, 46 C. 1001: 23 C. W. N. 677: 29 C. L J. 584; Sundar S... v. Ramsarandas, 5 Lah. L. J. 262; Upendra Nath v. Union Drug Co. Ltd., 43 C. L J 405: 95 I. C. 667: A. I R. 1926 Cal. 837.

In a suit for a permanent injunction, a temporary injunction ought not to be refused where the refusal would defeat the object of the suit and amount to denial of justice to the applicant.—Gunabala v. Hem..., 43 I. C. 24.

The defendant company acting under a bona fide claim of right commenced mining operations in a certain land and already finished constructing a railway siding, when the plaintiff sued for a declaration of their under ground rights in the said land and for permanent injunction restraining the defendant company from interfering with the same. It also applied for issue of temporary injunction. The first Court granted the temporary injunction. The High Court set aside the order granting the temporary injunction on the ground that the balance of the convenience was in favour of the defendant company being allowed to continue the mining operations, the plaintiff having stood by and allowed the defendant to spend a considerable sum of money. Principles on which temporary injunction should be granted pointed out.—Singaran Coal Syndicate v. Indra Nath, 10 C. W. N. 173

An application for a temporary injunction by the defendants that the plaintiffs should, pending the disposal of the suit, be restrained by injunction from interfering with the defendant's right to worship in and free access to, the temple does not fall either within cl. (a) or cl. (b) of Or. XXXIX, r 1, C. P. Code.—Karori Chand v. Maharaj Bal..., 1 P. L. J. 560.

An injunction cannot be issued on a mere allegation that the defendant wished to realize debts by bringing actions in Court, without ...

of an intention of waste, damage or alienation.—Prosunnomoyee v. Woomamoyee, 14 W. R. 409. There must be some evidence that the property in dispute in the suit is in danger of being wasted, damaged or alienated by any party to the suit.—Dhundiram v. Chander, 2 Bom. H. C. 103.

In a suit for the specific performance of an agreement to grant a lease, the Court should grant a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from granting a lease to any other person for the disposal of the suit.—Pramathanath v. Jagannath, 17 C. L. J. 427: 16 I. C. 357.

A Court cannot be asked to give the relief which forms the cause of action in the suit, under colour of temporary injunction.—Brajendra Kishore v. Nawab Abdus Sobhan, 21 C. L. J. 464.

An injunction although subsequently discharged when the plaintiff's case failed, must be obeyed while it lasts.—Eastern Trust Co. v. McKenzie Man & Co., 20 C. W. N. 457, P. C.: 35 I. C. 378.

During the pendency of an application to restore to file a suit which had been dismissed for default, a Court has no jurisdiction to pass an injunction order, as there is no suit pending then.—Ram Sarup v. Emperor, 77 I. C. 238.

Temporary Injunction in Suit for Declaration Only.—Although a hard and fast rule cannot be laid down that an ad interim injunction can never be granted in a suit for declaration, it should not be granted when in that suit there is no prayer for consequential relief or for a perpetual injunction and where the plaintiff, if successful in his suit for declaration, must bring another action for enforcing the right which he seeks to keep undisturbed by such injunction.—Shiroman v. Banta, 8 Lah. L. J. 289.

Against Whom Injunction can be Issued.—An injunction under this rule cannot be issued to a Court but only to a party, and an injunction to a party contemplates that some property, the subject-matter of the suit, is in danger of being wasted.—Raja Ram v. Dharam Das, 2 A. L. J. 601; Sant Lal v. Ishar Das, 46 P. L. R. 1919: 51 I. C. 108, Mahiuddin v. Ather Hossain, 44 I. C. 496.

During the pendency of an application by the mother for the guardianship of her minor girl, the Court on the application of the mother, granted an injunction restraining the bridegroom's brother and some other persons who were residing out of the jurisdiction of the Court, and who were not parties to the proceeding, from marrying or allowing the marriage of the minor. Held, that s. 12 of the Guardian and Wards Act (VIII of 1890) authorizes the Court to make such order for the protection of the person of the minor; and that the mere fact that a person resides outside the jurisdiction of the Court is not per se sufficient to prevent the Court from granting an injunction.—Harendra Nath v. Brinda Rani, 2 C. W. N. 521.

Injunction Against a Person Not a Party to the Suit.—No injunction can be granted under this rule against a person who is not a party to the suit.—Ram Sunder v. Ram Dheyan, 3 Pat. L. J. 456: 46 I. C. 224; Ram Saran v. Maulu, 27 P. L. R. 11: 96 I. C. 540: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 284.

"Property in dispute in a suit.—The property in respect of which an injunction may be granted under cl. (a) of this rule must be property in dispute in the suit and no other.—Joy Narain v. Shib Pershad, 6 R. Mis 1. No injunction can, therefore, be granted to restrain a person who is alleged to be a debtor from parting with his property.—S... Singh v. Ram Saran, 5 Lah. L. J. 262: 81 I. C. 322: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 227.

Power of Court to Issue Injunction where Defendant Resides Outside Jurisdiction but has Property within Jurisdiction.—On an application for a temporary injunction to restrain a sale in execution of a decree pending a suit, the applicant must show a prima facie case. A Court has jurisdiction to issue an injunction upon a person residing outside its territorial limits if he has property within the jurisdiction against which the Court could proceed in the event of any contempt of the Court's authority.—Maharajadhiraj Sir Rameshwar Singh v. Kumar G... Singh, 1 Pat. L. R. 462: 75 I. C. 381.

"Wrongfully sold in execution of a decree."—By these words the legislature intended that an injunction might be granted when property which the claimant claimed to be his was in danger of being sold in execution of a decree against another person or even against himself.—Abdul... lah v. Banke, 33 A. 79 (F. B.).

A prohibitory order by way of injunction can be issued so long as the property in dispute is in danger of being wrongfully sold in execution of a decree, but once it is sold no such order can be passed.—D... Chand v. Mitsui Bussan Kaisha & Co., 54 I. C. 928.

"With a view to defraud his creditors."—The threat or intention to remove or dispose of property with a view to defraud creditors must be proved by definite evidence.—Kalian Singh v. Musst. Shanno, 6 Lah. L. J. 298: 85 I. C. 88: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 718

Temporary Injunction to Restrain Execution of Decree Lawfully Obtained can Not be Granted.—A Court has no power to issue a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from executing a decree lawfully obtained by him.—Varada Charyulu v. Narasimha Charyulu, 23 L. W. 85. 92 I. C. 615: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 258.

Temporary Injunction to Stay Execution and Sale.—After rejection of a claim, the unsuccessful party may institute a suit under Or. XXI r. 63 of the C. P. Code and ask for a temporary injunction to stay sale, and a temporary injunction may be granted when the property which the claimant claimed to be his is in danger of being sold in execution of a decree against another person or even against himself.—Abdullah v. Banke Lal, 33 A. 79 F. B.: 7 A. L. J. 932 (10 A. 80 followed; ... 311 overruled); see also, Brojendra v. Rup Lal, 12 C. 576 ... Narendra v. Haji Abdul, 25 I. C. 9). As to principles which should ... disposal of application for temporary injunction to stay execution ... decree.—See, Bhabhikan Sing v. Chakradar Prasad, 9 I. C. ...

In execution of a money-decree certain property ... the judgment-debtor was attached, to which a claim under Or. XXI r. ... C. P. Code, was successfully preferred, and thereupon the decree-holder ... brought a suit under r. 63 for a declaration of the judgment-debtor's ...

to the property and the suit was decreed and against that decree the defendant preferred an appeal to the Court; pending the appeal, he applied for an injunction against the decree-holder. Held, that such an injunction could not be granted, inasmuch as it was impossible to say that the attached property was in danger of being "wrongfully" sold in execution of a decree within the meaning of this rule.—Chando Bibi v. Rai Kishen Chand, 26 A. 311 (10 A 80, overruled)

In a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 after rejection of a claim to establish right to the property attached, and advertised for sale, an injunction to stay execution proceedings should not issue. The proper course is to apply by petition for a postponement of the sale, the attachment continuing.—Luchmiput Singh v. Secretary of State, 11 B. L R. App. 28. 20 W. R. 11; Doorga Churn v. Ashutosh, 24 W. R. 70.

After rejection of a claim, when the unsuccessful claimant brings a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 to establish his title to the property, his proper course is to apply to the Court in which the suit is brought for an injunction to stay the sale; the Court executing the decree cannot stay the sale on his application.—Brojendra Kumar v. Rup Lall, 12 C. 515. Referred to in Amir Dulhin v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 23 C. 351, where it has been further held that a subordinate Court may issue an injunction restraining proceedings in execution pending before a superior Court.

After the dismissal of a suit brought by an unsuccessful claimant under Or. XXI, r. 63 for a declaration of his right to the property in dispute, the Court cannot grant a further injunction restraining the decree-holder from executing his decree, merely on the possibility of the Appellate Court reversing its decision.—Gossain Mony Puree v Guru Pershad, 11 C. 146.

The rule that a stay order issued by an Appellate Court suspends the power and jurisdiction of the executing Court to conduct further proceedings from the moment the order of the superior Court is passed, cannot be extended to the case of an injunction passed under Or. XXXIX, r. 1.—Dharam Chand v. Mitsui Bussan Kaisha & Co., 54 I. C. 928.

Where an ancestral property was attached in execution of a decree, and a son of the judgment-debtor instituted a suit to establish his right to the property, and made an application for a temporary injunction directing stay of sale pending the decision of the suit: Held, that what was advertised for sale was the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor in the property, and it could not be said that the property being "wrongfully sold in execution of a decree," the injunction prayed for could not be granted. Order granting an injunction without notice to the opposite party is irregular —Amolak Ram v. Sahib Singh, 7 A. 550.

In a case in which the defendants have submitted to the jurisdiction of a Court by entering appearance, the Court has jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining the defendants from executing in another Court, a decree which they had obtained against plaintiff; Kumar Ganga Singh v. Pirthi Chand, 1 Pat. 350 See also, Maharajah Bahadur Singh v. Seth Hukum Chand, 4 Pat. L. T. 48.

Stay of Sale in Execution of a Decree of Revenue Court.—The term "decree" as used in the Code of Civil Procedure does not include the decree of a Court of Revenue. Held, therefore, that an application under s. 492, C. P. Code, 1882, for stay of a sale in execution of a decree of a Revenue Court under s. 93 of Act XII of 1881, cannot be entertained by a Civil Court.—Onkar Singh v. Bhup Singh, 16 A. 496

The Revenue Courts are Courts of Civil jurisdiction within the meaning of the C P. Code, in that their decrees, when transferred in the regular course, are to be treated in all respects ,as if they were passed by a Court of the Civil jurisdiction. Held, therefore, that an application under this section for stay of a sale in execution of a decree of a Revenue Court can be entertained by a Civil Court.—Ram Lochan v. Beni Pr... 36 C. 252: 9 C. L. J. 125: 13 C. W. N. 791 (16 A. 496 dissented from, 9 C. 295, P. C : 5 A. 406 referred to); followed in Jit Lal v. Raja Kum... wari, 16 C. L. J. 555.

Injunction to Restrain Marriage.—An application for temporary injunction to restrain the marriage of a Mahomedan woman who is ... and who is alleged to have been married cannot be entertained ... against her relations or herself.—Mahammad Yamin v. Rezia Begam, A. L. J. 1818.

This rule is not applicable to a suit for specific performance of a contract to give in marriage, and the Court will not grant an interim injunction to restrain the defendant from making another marriage with a third person.—Gunput Narain v. Rajun Kooer, 1 C. 74; 24 W. R. 2... See, however, Nanabhai Ganpatrao v. Janardhan, 12 B. 110; Venkata Ch...ulu v. Ranga Charyulu, 14 M. 316; Harendra Nath v. Brinda B... C. W. N. 521; and Kanahi Ram v. Biddya Ram, 1 A. 549

Power of High Court to Restrain a Party from Proceeding with a Suit Pending in Another Court.—It has been held by the High Court of Calcutta that the powers of High Courts to grant a temporary injunction are not confined to the terms of rr. 1 and 2 of this Order, and that the Courts have inherent power, under their general equity jurisdiction, to grant such an injunction independently of the provisions of the Code, and further, that such power can be exercised by a single Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court.—Mungle Chand v. Gopal Ram, 34 C. 101; Rash Behary v. Bhowani, 34 C. 97; Mul Chand v. Gill & Co., ... 283: 53 I. C. 518 It has been held by the Bombay High Court that it has inherent power to restrain by injunction a defendant in a suit filed in the High Court from proceeding, in the Small Cause Court at Bombay, with a suit filed by the defendant referring to the same matter to which the High Court suit relates; Udcram v. Hyderally, 33 B. 460 (Jamnadas v. Zamonlal, 27 B 357 distinguished). As to the question whether the power of a Chartered High Court to restrain a party from proceeding with a suit pending in another Court is confined to suits pending in a Court subordinate thereto, or whether it extends to suits pending in any Court in British India, it has been held by the Bombay High Court (per Macleod, J.) that though Court has power to restrain a party from proceeding with a suit pending in a Court subordinate to it, it has no such power in respect of a suit pending in a Court not subordinate to it.— Narayan v. Jankibai, 39 B. 604.

The plaintiff, in a suit instituted in the High Court ... on a balance of account, sought for an injunction to restrain the d...

ants from proceeding with a suit previously instituted in the Court of the Sub-Judge at Bareilly, in which the present defendants sought to recover from the present plaintiff a sum of money as balance due to themselves on the same account. Held, that the High Court was competent to grant the injunction. The powers of the High Court to grant temporary injunctions are not confined to the terms of ss. 492 and 493, C. P. Code, 1882.—Mungle Chand v. Gopal Ram, 34 C. 101. But see, Vulcan Iron Works v. Bishumbhur Prasad, 36 C. 233: 13 C. W. N. 346, where it has been held (dissenting from 34 C. 101) that the High Court can only restrain a person from proceeding with a suit in a foreign Court if the person sought to be restrained is within the jurisdiction of the Court.

Effect of a Temporary Injunction.—The effect of a temporary injunction granted under Or. XXXIX, r 1 is not to make a subsequent alienation of the property in question illegal and void Hence if a party, against whom a temporary injunction is granted restraining him from alienating the property, sells or mortgages the property pending the injunction, the sale or mortgage is not void. The only penalty that he incurs by alienating the property inspite of the injunction is that prescribed by r. 2 (3), namely, that his other property may be attached and sold for awarding, out of the sale proceeds, compensation to the party on whose application the injunction was granted, and he may also be detained in the civil prison. But alienation after attachment has a different effect When a property is attached, any private alienation of the property contrary to the atachment is void under s 64—Delhi and London Bank v. Ram Narain, 9 A. 497, Manohar v Ram Autor, 25 A 431; Beli Ram v. Ram Lal, 6 L. 380: 90 I C. 937. A. I R 1925 Lah. 644.

Disobedience to Injunction.—In case of breach or disobedience of a temporary injunction, the Court which actually granted the injunction may punish the contempt under Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3), C. P. Code There is nothing in s 24, C. P. Code or in cl. IV of the Bengal Civil Courts Act authorizing a Court to which the suit may be transferred, but which did not grant the injunction, to exercise the special jurisdiction under Or. XXXIX, r 2 (3).—Sheikh Jaharudi v Hari Charan, 18 C. W. N. 470: 22 I. C. 499

Appeal.—An order refusing or granting an injunction is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (r), C P. Code—Lachmi Narain v. Ram Charan, 35 A. 425: 11 A. L. J. 613: Ottapurakkal v. Alabi Mashur, 27 I C. 131. An order refusing temporary injunction is appealable.—Harilal v Prayag Ram, 17 C. W. N. 996: 18 C L. J. 39.

Revision.—No appeal lies to the High Court from an order made by the lower appellate Court under this rule; see s. 104 (2). But where a temporary injunction was refused by the lower appellate Court, the Calcutta High Court made an order granting an injunction in the exercise of powers conferred upon High Courts by s. 15 of the Charter Act.—Israil v. Shamser, 41 C. 436; Hemanta v. Baranagore, 19 C. W. N. 412: 21 I. C. 318.

This Rule does Not Apply to Probate Proceedings.—An application by a caveator in probate proceedings, for temporary injunction, cannot be granted, as a probate proceeding is not a suit in which any property is in dispute.—Nirod v. Chamatkarini, 19 C. W. N. 205: 27 I. C. 617.

Valuation and Court-fee in Suits for Injunction.—In a suit for injunction the Court has no power to increase the valuation of the suit. Section 7, cl. (iv) (d) of the Court Fees Act requires that, in a suit for injunction, the plaintiff shall state the amount at which he values the relief sought, the Court has, therefore, no power to increase the valuation and to return the plaint for want of jurisdiction.—Guruvajamma v. Venkata Krishna, 24 M. 34.

In a suit for injunction and damages on the allegation of [illegible] the Court has no power to ascertain the value of the property for the purpose of jurisdiction but it should accept the value of the relief stated in the plaint, both for the purposes of Court-fee and jurisdiction.—Hara Sundari v. Kali Kumar, 32 C. 734: 9 C. W. N. 690 (17 B. 56, 18 B. [illegible], [illegible] 320, 15 A. 378, and 20 M. 289 referred to; 8 C. 757 and 17 C. 680 distinguished). Followed in Vachhani v. Vachhani, 33 B. 307.

As to Court-fee, see also, Manmatha Nath v. Rohilli Moni, 27 A. [illegible]

GENERAL PRINCIPLES GOVERNING GRANT OF INJUNCTIONS (TEMPORARY OR PERPETUAL)—SPECIAL CASES.

(a) Alienation by Hindu Widow—Prevention of Waste.—A [illegible] of a Hindu widow obtained a decree against her, whereupon the [illegible] reversioner brought a suit to set aside the decree on the ground of [illegible] and collusion. This suit was compromised on the reversioner's [illegible] up his reversionary interest to the widow for a consideration. Subsequently the more remote reversioners sued to set aside the decree [illegible] compromise as fraudulent and collusive, and prayed for an ad [illegible] injunction, which was granted.—Gopee Nath v. Kally Dass, 10 C. [illegible]

If there is any reasonable apprehension of waste by a Hindu [illegible] sufficient provision should be made in the final decree for partition [illegible] prevention of such waste, to safeguard the interests of the reversioners [illegible] a separate suit for injunction is unnecessary.—Durganath v. Chintamani, 31 C. 214: 8 C. W. N. 11 (6 M. I. A. 433, 2 C. 262, and 3 C. [illegible] referred to).

A suit by a heir presumptive against life-tenant to restrain waste [illegible] the life-tenant and for an injunction and appointment of receiver is [illegible] tainable upon a stamp of Rs. 10.—Manmatha Nath v. Rohilli Moni, [illegible] A. 406 (6 C. 764, P. C., followed; 10 M. 90 referred to; and 8 C. [illegible] dissented from).

(b) Breach of Agreement.—Where more than 20 artisans [illegible] agreement, whereby they constituted themselves an association for the purpose of enhancing the price of their work by bringing all the [illegible] of the trade into one shop, and dividing the prices amongst the [illegible] according to their skill, but which association was not registered [illegible] company under Act X of 1866. Held, that the Court could [illegible] injunction to restrain the breach of such agreement.—Bhikaji [illegible] v. Bapu Saju, 1 B. 550.

A Hindu widow in order to settle disputes with the relatives of [illegible] husband entered into an agreement with them that she would [illegible] a son. Subsequently her husband's relatives brought a suit [illegible] alleging that the widow, in violation of the agreement was about to [illegible] a son, and praying for an interim injunction to restrain the adoption, but the Court refused to grant the interim injunction.— Assur Purshotam v. Ratanbai, 13 B. 56.

The granting of an injunction under this rule, for breach of contract, is a matter of judicial discretion. Quære—Whether the principles which govern the grant of a temporary injunction under the C. P. Code are the same as those which are laid down in the Specific Relief Act to the grant of a perpetual injunction —Subba Naidu v Haji Badsha, 26 M. 168.

The defendant signed an agreement in England with a Railway Company contracting to serve the company for 4 years in India under a penalty of £ 100. The defendant having accordingly served it for two years, left its service for that of another employer, alleging ill-treatment. Held, that the plaintiff company was entitled to an injunction restraining the defendant from serving others on the terms that the plaintiff company should consent to retain him in its employ.—Madras Railway Company v. Rust, 14 M. 18.

Agreement not to work for a rival tradesman—Agreement made when under criminal charge—Suit for injunction to restrain the defendant from working for a rival tradesman Held, that in the exercise of the discretion given to the Court by section 22 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), the injunction should be refused, but the Court should award pecuniary compensation to plaintiff as his proper remedy.—Callianji Harjivan v Narsi Tricum, 19 B 764.

Injunction granted to restrain a partner from excluding his co-partner from the partnership business, and from doing any act to prevent its being carried on according to the articles —Virdachella v. Ramaswami, 1 M. 341.

Where a charter-party has been actually completed, the Court will, by injunction, prevent an employment of the ship inconsistent with the terms of the charter-party; but where there is only an agreement for a charter-party, no such injunction will be granted —Abdul Allarakhi v. Abdul Bacha, 6 B. 5.

(c) Collection of Rents.—Injunction to restrain the defendant from collecting without any title, from the ryots of the plaintiff's estate two annas rent over and above the full sixteen annas in the rupee, may be granted without proof of any actual damage.—Nadir Jumma v. Ram Chunder, W. R. (1864) 362

(d) Digging Well.—The digging of a well by a talukdar intermediate between the zemindar and the ryots, is not an act of waste to restrain which the Court will issue an injunction —Magneeram v. Gunesh Dutt, W. R. (1864) 275.

(e) Digging Close to a Neighbour's Land.—Where an act threatening danger to a person's land is such that injury will inevitably follow, a Court may grant perpetual injunction restraining the continuance of the Act.—Bindu Bashini v. Janhabi Chowdhrain, 24 C. 260. See, however, Moho Lal v. Bai Jivkore, 28 B. 472, where it has been held that a person has a right to build on his land and for the purpose of building to make ditches for foundations.

(f) Stay of Execution of Decree.—An injunction restraining a decree-holder from executing a decree against the person applying for the injunction was granted, on the ground that the proceedings by which the decree was obtained against him were altogether illegal.—Dhurondhur v. Agra Bank, 5 C. 86: 4 C. L. R. 434 (reversing in review 4 C. 380, 2 C. L. R. 283; 3 C. L. R. 421). See also, Amir-Dulhin alias Muhamdyan v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 23 C. 351; and Appu v. Raman, 11 M. 425. But see, Venkatesa Tawker v. Ramasami, 18 M. 338, where the suit for injunction to restrain execution of decree was dismissed on the ground that the injunction sought for was not necessary to prevent a multiplicity of proceedings within the meaning of section 56, cl. (a) of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877).

(g) Injury or Obstruction to Rights to Property.—A tank for the use of the public having been dug by the ancestor of the plaintiffs, claimed the exclusive conservancy and repairs, and prayed for an injunction restraining others from interfering with the general conservancy of the tank. Held, that whether or not they were entitled to exclude others from interfering with the repairs of the tank they were not entitled to an injunction prohibiting others from interfering with the general conservancy of the tank.—Muttaya v. Siviraman, 6 M. 229 (affirmed by the Privy Council in 12 M. 241).

The plaintiff's ancestor built a temple and a ghat close to it, to which persons on the point of death were removed and certain ceremonies performed. The defendants used the ghat for landing goods. Held, that if, when the plaintiff's ancestor erected the buildings he inteded to grant to the Hindu community merely a right of easement over the property and not to transfer the ownership to the community; the plaintiff was entitled to maintain a suit to restrain defendants from using the ghat for trading purposes.—Jaggamoni Dasi v. Nilmoni Ghosal, 9 C. 75: 11 C. L. R. 502.

Plaintiff's beams overhung defendant's soil and defendant [illegible] a building which overhung those beams. Held, that the defendant being the owner of the soil was entitled prima facie to all above it and [illegible] diminution in his rights by reason of the beams did not extend beyond the protrusion of the beams themselves.—Ranchod Shamji v. Abdulabhai, 28 B. 428.

Where a man erects a building overhanging the land of another, he commits a trespass for which an action will lie against him and he may by prescription acquire a right to the space occupied by such projection and the right to maintain it in its position. A cornice overhanging a neighbour's land cannot be removed by such neighbour, if it has been in existence for more than 12 years.—Rathinavelu v. Kolandavelu, 20 M. 511 (3 B. 174, followed).

If a stranger builds on the land of another believing it to be his own, the owner is entitled to recover the land and the party building on the land of another is allowed to remove the building, unless there are [illegible] circumstances amounting to a standing by so as to induce the belief [illegible] the owner intended to forego his right or to an acquiescence in [illegible] on the land.—Govind Venkaji v. Sadashiv, 17 B. 771; Premji v. [illegible] cassum, 20 B. 298.

Where the plaintiff's eaves had projected over the defendant's roof, which rested on a wall common between the parties for more than 30 years, and the plaintiff had thus acquired a right to have the water carried from his roof on to the defendant's roof, and where the defendants raised the common wall and removed the plaintiff's eaves. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to relief either by damages or injunction.—Nasarbhai Ahmedbhai v. Badruddin, 16 B. 533.

(h) Erection of Building.—Building erected after suit filed but before hearing—At the hearing the Court may grant mandatory injunction directing removal of the building, although only preventive relief was prayed for in the plaint.—Magan Lal v. Chhotalal, 26 B. 136. See, however, Sri Rangachariar v. Rungasami, 32 M. 231.

(i) Intrusion upon Office.—A Vatandar Joshi of a village has the right to recover damages from a person who has intruded upon his office and received fees properly payable to him, but the Court will not grant any injunction against such intruder which would have the effect of forcing upon any section of the community the services of a priest whom they are unwilling to recognize, and forbidding them to employ a priest whose ministrations they desire.—Raja Valad Shivapa v. Krishnabhat, 3 B. 232.

The plaintiff, who had bought a share in a Kulkarnivatan and Joshi Vritti was obstructed by the defendants in the performance of his duties. Held, that he was entitled to an injunction against the defendants.—Moro Mohadev v Anant Bhimaji, 21 B. 821.

Plaintiffs sued for an injunction to prevent defendant from interfering with their right to present to certain persons at a certain festival in a certain temple a crown and water. The lower Court found that the plaintiffs possessed the right claimed and granted the injunction Held, that the injunction was properly granted —Srinibasa v. Tiruvengada, 11 M 450.

The trustees of a temple may be restrained by injunction from making unjustifiable changes which would affect the character of the temple as a religious institution—Introducing a new metal idol in addition to the existing stone idol.—Krishnasami v. Samarav, 30 M. 158.

(j) Obstruction to Light and Air.—When the Court is asked to interfere by injunction to restrain the obstruction of light and air to a dominant tenement, the question to be determined is—Is the obstruction such as seriously to interfere with the comfort or enjoyment of the owners of the dominant tenement, or such as to cause material injury to it, an injury which cannot be completely compensated by damages? The Court will in such cases interfere as well by mandatory as by preventive injunction, provided that in the circumstances of the case there is nothing inequitable in putting in force the former remedy.—Ratanji Harmasji v. Edalji Harmasji, 8 Bom. H. C. 181.

The right of the owner of the dominant tenement is a right to the reception of light and air in a lateral direction; but to constitute an actionable obstruction the same must amount to a nuisance. The question that has to be decided, is not how much light is left in spite of the obstruction, but whether there has been such a diminution of light as to constitute an actionable nuisance.—Anath Nath v. Galstaun, 35 C ... 12 C. W. N. 519.

To constitute an actionable obstruction to light and air, it is not enough that the light is less than before and the plaintiff enjoys less ... of air. The test is whether the obstruction complained of is a nuisance. An injunction was granted where it was found that a wall built by the defendant on his own land would cause such privation of light and ... the flow of air to such an extent as would prevent the plaintiff's carrying on their business as beneficially as before.—Anderson v. Hardit ... 9 C. W. N. 543.

To establish that the plaintiffs have suffered substantial damage ... their rights to light and air they must show material diminution in the value of their heritage or material interference with their physical comfort. Meaning of the expression "physical comfort" explained.—Framji v. Framji, 30 B. 319.

In cases of obstruction to light and air, where the plaintiff prays for a perpetual injunction: Held, that, under section 54 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), an injunction is not to be given when the remedy by damages is considered adequate.—Dhunjabhoy Gowasji v. Lisboa, 13 B. 252, Ghansham Nilkant v. Moroba Ram Chandra, 18 B. 474, ... Nawazjung v. Rustomji Nanabhoy, 20 B. 704; Boyson v. Deane, ... 251; Kahan Das v. Tulsi Das, 28 B. 786; Delhi and London Bank v. Hem Lall Dutt, 14 C 839; and Chota Lal v. Lallubhai, 29 B 15 ... where the obstruction to light and air is of such a nature as to render the house quite unfit for the ordinary purposes of habitation or business, and renders it practically useless, an injunction and not merely damages is the only appropriate remedy.—Kadarbhai v. Rahimbhai, 13 B. 674, Delhi and London Bank v. Hem Lall, 14 C. 839; Yaro v. Sanaullah, 19 A. 2..; and Jethalal v. Lalbai, 28 B. 298.

Re-erection of his house by the defendant, notwithstanding ... from the plaintiff, so as to darken some of the principal rooms of the plaintiff's house, making them unfit for occupation during the day without artificial light, is an injury which cannot be redressed by award of damages and against which the Court will grant relief by issuing a mandatory injunction directing the defendant to pull down so much of the house as is necessary, to stop the injury.—Jamna Das v. Atmaram, 2 B. 1..

The plaintiff had two windows in his house. He rebuilt his house and opened new windows, which were of nearly the same size, but were ... higher than the old ones. Subsequently the defendant built his house and blocked up these two new windows. The plaintiff sued for injunction. Held, that where the position of the old windows has been changed the old easement is lost and the easement respecting the new windows can be acquired only by enjoying it for the required length of time.—Hariganga v. Tricamlal, 26 B. 374.

There are at least two necessary ingredients for a quia timet action. There must, if no actual damage is proved, the proof of imminent danger, and there must also be proof that the apprehended damage will, if it comes, be very substantial or irreparable.—Gangabai v. Patch..., 13 B. 146: 9 Bom. L. R. 912.

Where the defendant without leave or license took possession of the plaintiff's window as completely as if he had blocked it up altogether. Held, that no precedent warranted the substitution of damages for an injunction in such a case against the plaintiff's will.—Nandkishore v. Bhagubai, 8 B. 95. See also, Kunni Lal v. Kundan Bibi, 29 A. 571: 4 A. L. J. 477.

Where the plaintiff and the defendant, being owners respectively of two adjoining houses and the verandahs immediately in front of those houses, agreed that they should keep the verandahs open, and not build upon them or divide them by a wall Held, that the mere fact that the defendant, when rebuilding his house, built its new front wall in advance of the plaintiff's thus encroaching on the defendant's own verandah in breach of the agreement, is not sufficient in itself to justify the Court in granting a mandatory injunction ordering its removal.—Ranchhod Jamna Das v. Lallu Haribhai, 10 Bom H. C. 95

(k) Effect of Delay and Acquiescene.—Where a plaintiff has not brought his suit or applied for an injunction at the earliest opportunity, but has waited till the building has been completed, and then asks the Court for its removal, a mandatory injunction will not generally be granted. Mere notice not to continue building so as to obstruct a plaintiff's rights, is not, when not followed by legal proceedings, a sufficiently special circumstance for granting such relief —Benode Coomaree v. Soudaminey, 16 C. 252 (2 B. 133 referred to) Followed Ulagappan v Chidambaram, 29 M. 497, and in Haji Syed Muhammad v Gulab Rai, 20 A. 325. See, however, Provabutty v Mohendra Lal, 7 C 453, where a mandatory injunction was granted, although the plaintiff brought his suit two days after completion of the building, and also Maganlal v. Chottalal, 26 B. 136.

(l) Obstruction to a View of a Shop.—The defendants built a shed and put screens on their own land in front of the plaintiff's shop, the view to which was obstructed on account of these constructions Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to have the construction removed on the ground that the view to his shop was interrupted from the neighbouring road.—Gopi Nath v. Munno, 29 A 22 3 A L J 637

(m) Obstruction to Watercourse or Right to Flow of Water.—In cases of obstruction of right to an uninterrupted flow of water, it must appear from the circumstances in evidence in each case that the interference or obstruction complained of is not a trivial, but a substantial injury in order to warrant relief by way of injunction.—Ponnusawmi Tevar v. Collector of Madura, 5 M. H C. 6; Krista Ayyan v. Venkatachella, 7 M. H. C. 60.

Alteration of watercourse by opening a new channel—Where the new channel effected a material alteration in the mode of passage of the water from the defendant's land into that of plaintiff, the plaintiff was entitled to the injunction.—Raja of Venkatagiri v. Rajah Muddukrishna, 28 M. 15. See, Rama v. Subramania, 31 M. 171: 18 M. L. J. 179, where injunction was granted for blocking up the entrance of a channel; and Belbhadar Pershad v. Barkat Ali, 11 C. W. N. 85, where an injunction was granted restraining the defendant from interfering with the natural flow of water.

In a suit for an injunction to compel defendant to reduce to its original dimensions an embankment which he had recently raised to a greater height on the ground that the effect of defendant's act had been, and would be, to injure plaintiff's land by preventing the passage of water which used to overflow that land; Held, that the plaintiff was bound to establish an injury caused by infraction of some right which plaintiff possessed or by the omission of something which defendant was legally bound to do.—Prankisto v. Horo Chunder, 10 W. R. 435. See also Venkata Chelam v. Zamindar of Sivaganga, 27 M 409 (18 M. 158 distinguished).

Obstruction to plaintiff's right to have the water carried from his roof on to the defendant's roof. See, 16 B. 533.

(n)* Obstruction to Right of Way.—The defendants closed a gate leading across a level crossing of their railway over which there was a public right of way. The plaintiff alleged that by the closing of this way access to his bungalow during the monsoon was completely stopped, and he sued to have the gateway re-opened. Held, that the inconvenience caused to the plaintiff was real and substantial; that the plaintiff was entitled to the use of the right of way in question, and under the circumstances to an injunction against its obstruction.—G. I. P. Railway Company v. Nowroji, 19 B. 390.

Right of way—Ownership of soil—Suit for trespass, injunction and to close doors. Held, that the plaintiffs had not such a property in the soil of the lane as would entitle them to prevent the defendant from making new doors on the lane, and to restrain him using the doors so made; they had only a right of way, but an injunction was granted restraining the defendant from using his doorways for the purpose of cleaning his privies, or in any other manner so as to obstruct the free use by the plaintiffs of the lane.—Madan Mohan v. Chandra Kumar, 9 B. L. R. 828: 18 W. R. 379.

(o)* Right of Co-sharer to Deal with Joint Property.—Before a Court will, in case of co-sharers make an order directing that a portion of the joint property alleged to have been dealt with by one of the co-sharers without the consent of others should be restored to its former condition (as, for instance, where a tank has been excavated), a plaintiff must show that he has sustained, by the act he complains of, some injury which materially affects his position.—Joy Chunder v. Bipro Churn, 14 C. [illegible] Approved and followed in Atarjan Bibee v. Sheikh Ashak, 4 C. [illegible] See also, [illegible] 788 and in Ananda Chundra v. Parbati, 4 C. L. J. 198 See also Watson & Co. v. [illegible] nugger Jute Factory & Co. v. Ram Narain, 14 C. 189; Lachmi [illegible] Ram Chund Dutt, 18 C. 10 P. C. (reversing 15 C. 214); Lal [illegible] Singh v. Manowar Hossein, 10 C. 253 P. C.; and Paras Ram v. Sher [illegible] 661. In all these cases it has been laid down that there is no such broad proposition as that one co-owner is entitled to an injunction restraining another co-owner from exceeding his rights, absolutely and without reference to the amount of damages to be sustained by the one or the other from the granting or withholding of the injunction. See however, Shadi v. Anup Singh, 12 A. 436, F. B.; and Najju Khan v. Imtiaz-uddin, 18 A. 115 where it has been held that one of several joint owners is not entitled to erect a building upon the joint property without the consent of the other joint-owners, notwithstanding that the erection of such building may cause no direct loss to the other joint-owners.

In disputes between members of a joint Hindu family in respect of joint property, the exercise of a Court's discretion to grant relief by injunction should be confined to acts of waste, illegitimate use of the family property, or acts amounting to ouster.—Anant Ramrav v. Gopal Balvant, 19 B. 269. Followed in Soshi Bhusan v. Gonesh Chunder, 21 C. 600, where it has been further held that in a case where the act of the defendant amounts to an ouster of the plaintiff from his possession of joint property, pecuniary compensation not being an adequate relief, an injunction would be the proper remedy.

(p) To Restrain the Act of Public Functionaries.—The High Court has jurisdiction by proceeding in the nature of a quo warranto to restrain the functions of a municipal corporation in the matter of municipal elections—In the matter of Corkhill, 22 C. 717. See also, In the matter of Mutty Lal Ghose, 19 C. 192, 195-note and 198.

Suit for injunction restraining the Municipality from pulling down a house which is alleged to be in a ruinous condition—Meaning of dangerous structures—Power of Municipality to remove dangerous structures—Person affected by the action of the Municipality is entitled to be heard as a matter of common justice.—Lalbhai v. Municipal Commissioner of Bombay, 33 B. 334.

There is no authority for the proposition that an individual is entitled to protection by way of injunction against the act of a corporation, though in excess of their powers, which affects that individual's character and reputation whether private, professional or commercial, to which he would not have been entitled, had the act complained of been committed by an individual defendant, on the ground that the act in question was one which the corporation had no power to do under their instrument of incorporation.—Shepherd v. Trustees of the Port of Bombay, 1 B. 231.

A suit to restrain the Municipality from cutting off pipe water connection from the plaintiff's house is maintainable.—Surat Municipality v. Tyabli, 32 B. 460: 10 Bom. L. R. 622.

A suit does not lie against the corporation for an injunction restraining the same from causing portions of plaintiff's buildings to be demolished which had been erected without sanction from the Chairman or the General Committee in alleged breach of the building regulations.—Bholaram v. Corporation of Calcutta, 18 C. W. N. 740.

Where a public body has received by statute a discretionary power to buy, and is laid under an obligation to collect a rate, an injunction cannot be granted by a Court so as to deprive such public body of the power of exercising its discretion or to prohibit it from discharging the obligation.—Municipal Commissioners of Madras v. Branson, 8 M. 201.

(q) Trade Mark.—In an application for an injunction to restrain the use of a trade-mark, it is not a sufficient defence to say there was no fraudulent intention, and that is no reason for granting the application.—Graham v. Ker Dods & Co, 3 B. L. R. App. 4.

The defendants adopted a label, which though different in respects from the picture on the plaintiff's label, was in its general appearance so similar to plaintiff's trade-mark as to amount to a colourable imitation thereof, and to be likely to deceive purchasers: Held, the plaintiff were entitled to an injunction against the defendants.—B. Aniline v. Maneckji, 17 B. 584.

The right of exclusive user of a name or a number as a trade-mark is not an absolute and unqualified right which would entitle the [illegible] to prevent another person from using it under all circumstances; only when the use of that name or number deceives, or is reasonably likely to deceive the public that it can be interfered with or prevented; there must be a reasonable probability of purchasers being deceived: it is not enough to show a mere possibility of deception.—Barlow v. Gobind, 24 C. 364: 1 C W. N 281. See also, Reddaway & Co. v. [illegible] Smidt & Co., 8 C W. N. 151 (affirmed in 32 C. 401).

An importer and seller of matches bearing manufacturer's or producer's trade-mark is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the defendants from importing or selling in Bombay or other parts of India [illegible] similar in appearance to a certain class of matches imported [illegible] the plaintiff.—Heiniger v. Deoz, 25 B. 443.

(r) Copy Right.—The plaintiff brought out a new and [illegible] edition of a certain well-known Sanskrit work on religious [illegible]. The defendants printed and published one edition of the same [illegible] text of which was identical with that of the plaintiff's work, which, moreover, contained the same additional passages and the same [illegible] the same places, with many slight differences. Held, that the plaintiff's work was an original work and entitled to protection and that the defendants had pirated the plaintiff's work, they must be restrained by injunction.—Gangavishnu Srikisondas v. Mushra Bapuji, 13 B. [illegible]

Copy-right in a portion of a publication, how protected.—Lee v Bushnell, 12 C W N. 753.

(s) Landlord and Tenant.—Where land has been let out for agricultural purposes, the erection of an indigo factory on any part of the land renders it unfit for the purposes of tenancy and the landlord is entitled to a permanent injunction restraining the tenant from [illegible] the factory.—Surendra Narain, v. Hari Mohan, 31 C. 174: 9 C. W. N. Reversed in 34 C 718: 11 C. W. N. 791, P. C.

The tenant of an agricultural holding planted his jote with [illegible] trees to the knowledge, but without the consent of his landlord [illegible] changing the character of the land. More than three years after [illegible] the landlord sued for a mandatory injunction to have the [illegible] removed. Held, that having stood by more than three years, and [illegible] the tenant to spend his labour and capital, the landlord was not entitled to a mandatory injunction.—Nayna Mister v. Rupikhan, 9 C [illegible] C L. R 300 See, however, Lakshmana v. Ram Chandra, [illegible]

A landlord cannot have a mandatory injunction in respect [illegible] building erected by a tenant of an agricultural holding, if knowing [illegible] construction he does not object.—Ulagappan v. Chidambaram, [illegible]

A zemindar sued for an injunction to compel the defendant who held agricultural lands with occupancy rights, to demolish a dwelling-house which he had erected thereon for purposes not connected with agriculture, and to restrain him from altering the character of the land. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the injunction sued for.—Ramanadhan v. Zamindar of Ramnad, 16 M. 407. See, however, Prosunno Coomar v. Jagunnath, 10 C. L. R. 25 (reversing 9 C. L. R. 221).

In the absence of custom, the general rule is that the property in timber on a tenant's holding vests in the landlord, but the landlord has no right to interfere with the enjoyment by the tenant of the trees upon his holding so long as the relation of landlord and tenant subsists. Held, therefore, that a landlord is not entitled to an injunction restraining the tenant from offering obstruction to the cutting down and removal of the trees upon the holding.—Ganga Dei v. Badham, 30 A. 134: 5 A. L. J. 99 [W. R. (1864) 367 referred to].

(t) Nuisance.—Nuisance by erection of a privy close to plaintiff's house by order of Municipality—Injunction granted to remove the privy.—Jafir Shaheb v. Kadir Rahiman, 12 B. 634.

Where the defendant, the owner of a shellac factory, discharged into the municipal drain, which was not constructed or intended for carrying of such stuff, refuse liquid of offensive character which interferred with the ordinary comfort of the plaintiff's occupation of property and caused him special injury: Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to restrain him: that an injunction was the only effectual remedy in the case and substantial damages should be awarded against the defendant who has persisted in a nuisance causing material injury to plaintiff.—Galstaun v. Doonia Lal, 32 C. 697: 9 C. W. N. 612.

Nuisance for using land as a burial and burning ground.—Injunction refused as it was not proved to be actionable nuisance.—Mahammad Mohidin v. Municipal Commissioners of Madras, 25 M. 118.

The right of Muhammadans to slaughter kine is one to which they are legally entitled to irrespective of custom, and it is only when they abuse the right that its exercise can be interfered with.—Shahbaz Khan v. Umrao Puri, 30 A. 181: 5 A. L. J. 147.

Nuisance from cotton-mill—Noise, smoke, and fluff of mill—Damages—Combination of injunction and damages. The Court, after going into the evidence, considered that the case would be best dealt with by a combination of damages and injunction, and made an order for injunction to issue against noise, smoke, and cotton fluff so as to be a nuisance to the plaintiffs. Such injunction not to issue in case the defendants should pay to the plaintiffs the sum of Rupees 40,000 before the expiration of a fortnight from the date of the decree.—Land Mortgage Bank of India v. Ahmedbhoy Habibhoy, 8 B. 35.

(u) Trees Overhanging Neighbour's Land—Injunction.

It is competent to a Court to grant perpetual injunction directing the defendant to remove the branches of trees overhanging his neighbour's land and also to restrain him from planting trees so close to his neighbour's land that their roots may not extend or penetrate his land.—

Lakshmi Narain v Tara Prasanna, 31 C. 944: 8 C. W. N. 71 Lal v. Ghisa Lal, 24 A. 499; Hari Krishna v. Shankar Vithal, I In Ram Lal v. Dalganjan, 5 A. 369, it has been held that has no right to the removal of trees planted by the defendant land until the plaintiff's enjoyment of his own land is directly diately interfered with by the growth of the trees.

(v) Stay of Criminal Proceedings Pending Civil Suit.

Per Ghose, J.—The High Court has power to direct that proceedings in the Court of a Magistrate should be stayed, disposal of a Civil suit, in which the question at issue in the proceedings shall have been decided. Contra—Per Rampini, J ing B. No suit is maintainable for an injunction to restrain under an order made by Magistrate for maintenance But maintainable for a declaration that the defendant had no right in the maintenance out of plaintiff's properties.—Deraji Marati, 30 M. 400 (14 C. 276 followed, 18 A. 29 explained)

Injunction to restrain repetition or continuance of the breach.

2. (1) In any suit for restraining the defend committing a breach of contract or othe of any kind, whether compensation is in the suit or not, the plaintiff may, time after the commencement of the either before or after judgment, apply to the Court for a te injunction to restrain the defendant from committing th of contract or injury complained of or any breach of con injury of a like kind arising out of the same contract or to the same property or right.

(2) The Court may by order grant such injunction terms as to the duration of the injunction, keeping an giving security, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit.

(3) In case of disobedience, or of breach of any su the Court granting an injunction may order the propert person guilty of such disobedience or breach to be atta may also order such person to be detained in the civil pr term not exceeding six months, unless in the meantime t directs his release.

(4) No attachment under this rule shall remain in f more than one year, at the end of which time, if the dis or breach continues, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award such compensation as it thinks fit, and shall pay the balance, if any, to the party entitled thereto. [S. 493.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 493, C P. Code of 1882, with some additions and alterations

In sub-rule (1) the words "of any kind" have been added after the words "other injury."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of the old section with omission of the words "or refuse the same" which occurred after the words "thinks fit."

Sub-rule (3) has been substituted for para. 3 of the old section; the wording and the language of the old para. have been completely changed; para. 3 of the old section is reproduced below to observe the changes made in sub-rule (3): "In case of disobedience, an injunction granted under this section or s. 492, may be enforced by the imprisonment of the defendant for a term not exceeding six months or the attachment of his property or both."

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to para 4 of the old section with some alterations. The words "if the disobedience or breach continues" have been substituted for the words "if the defendant has not obeyed the injunction"; and the words "shall pay the balance to the party entitled thereto" have been substituted for the words "may pay the balance (if any) to the defendant," which occurred in the old section

Temporary Injunction to Restrain Breach of Contract.—To prevent the violation of contracts, the Court has the power to interfere by injunction and to compel parties to perform their covenants and agreements by injunction, temporary or perpetual, mandatory, or otherwise. This rule deals with temporary injunctions to restrain the breach of a contract. Perpetual injunctions to restrain the breach of a contract are regulated by s 56 (f) and s 57 of the Specific Relief Act, 1887. The ordinary remedy for breach of contract is damages Hence no injunction can be granted where damages afford adequate relief See also, Firm of Sopanlal Chiman Lal v Jai Narain Babu Lal, 54 I C. 546, where principles governing grant of temporary injunction to restrain breach of contract have been explained

"Or other Injury." The words "or other injury" in this rule mean any legal injury other than that arising from breach of contract, as in the case of obligation arising from transfer of property or trust or in cases of tort. The addition of the words "of any kind" in this rule makes it clear that injunction can be granted to prevent injury from any wrongful act whatever be its nature. The word "injury" in Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (1), C. P Code, means an act which is contrary to law. To justify a temporary injunction plaintiff must show irreparable injury or inconvenience likely to result to him before the disposal of the suit, if the opposite party were not restrained by injunction.—Firm of Manohar Lal

Notice.—This rule enacts that as a general rule where an a for the issue of an injunction is made, notice of the same must to the opposite party but such notice may be dispensed with cases where the Court thinks that the object of granting the i would be defeated by the delay. The power to issue an ex part tion no doubt exists, but the greatest care should be employe exercise, and it should be exercised only in cases where m mischief might ensue if the issue of the process were delayed un was given —Hari v. Secretary of State, 27 B. 424, 451; Amolak Sahib Singh, 7 A 530; *Burma Oil Co. Injunction to corportaion binding on its officers

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 495, C. P. Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "or public company" which occurred in the old section after the word "corporation"

Corporation.—There is no authority for the proposition that an individual is entitled to protection by way of injunction against the act of a Corporation, though in excess of their powers, which affects that individual's character and reputation, whether private, professional, or commercial, which he would not have been entitled to, had the act complained of been committed by an individual defendant, on the ground that the act in question was one which the Corporation had no power to do under their instrument of incorporation —Shepherd v Trustees of the Port of Bombay, 1 B. 132.

(b) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid authorize any person to enter upon or into any land or building in the possession of any other party to such suit; and

(c) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid authorize any samples to be taken, or any observation to be made or experiment to be tried, which may seem necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence.

(2) The provisions as to execution of process shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to persons authorized to enter under this rule. [S. 49?]

Inspection of Subject-matter of Suit.—In a suit for damages alleged to have been caused to plaintiff's house by the erection by the defendant of an adjoining house the defendant applied for an order allowing him to enter into the plaintiff's house for the purpose of inspecting, examining and surveying the alleged injuries. Held, that the house and the premises of the plaintiff formed the "subject of the suit," within the meaning of this rule and the Court had the power to make the order applied for.—Dharany Dhur v. Radha Gobind, 24 C. 117: 1 C. (2) An application by the defendant for a like order may be made after notice to the plaintiff at any time after appearance.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 500, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications.

In sub-rule (1), the words "after institution of the suit" have been substituted for the words "after service of summons" which occurred in the old section, and in sub-rule (2) the word "appearance" has been substituted for the words "after the applicant has appeared" which occurred in the old section. The other changes are merely verbal.

Notice.—An application under this rule can only be made by a plaintiff, after summons has been served, and after reasonable notice of the intention to apply for the order has been given in writing to the defendant. —Sengotha v. Ramasami, 7 M. 241

Appeal or Review.—If an interlocutory order is wrongly refused by the Judge, the proper course is to apply for a review or to appeal from it, not to seek to obtain the order by resorting to another Judge, even though arguments should then be forthcoming which were not put before the first Judge.—*Motiralu v. ORDER XL.

APPOINTMENT OF RECEIVERS.

Appointment of receivers.

1. (1) Where it appears to the Court to be just and convenient, the Court may by order—

(a) appoint a receiver of any property, whether before or after decree;

(b) remove any person from the possession or custody of the property;

(c) commit the same to the possession, custody or management of the receiver; and

(d) confer upon the receiver all such powers as to bringing and defending suits and for the realisation, management, protection, preservation and improvement of the property, the collection of the rents and profits thereof, the application and disposal of such rents and profits, and the execution of documents as the owner himself has, or such of those powers as the Court thinks fit.

(2) Nothing in this rule shall authorize the Court to remove from the possession or custody of property any person whom any party to the suit has not a present right so to remove. [S. 503.]

Remuneration.

2. The Court may by general or special order fix the amount to be paid as remuneration for the services of the receiver. [S. 503, Cl. d.]

Duties.

3. Every receiver so appointed shall—

(a) furnish such security (if any) as the Court thinks fit, duly to account for what he shall receive in respect of the property;

(b) submit his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs;

(c) pay the amount due from him as the Court directs; and

(d) be responsible for any loss occasioned to the proper by his wilful default or gross negligence.

[S 503, Para 2

COMMENTARY.

Section 503 of the C. P. Code, 1882, has been divided into these th rules.

The wording and the language of the first para of the old sect. have been materially changed, and several additions, alterations and om sions have been made

In sub-rule (1) the words "where it appears to the Court to be ju and convenient" have been substituted for the words "whenever appears to the Court to be necessary for the realization, preservation better custody or management of any property, moveable or immoveabl the subject of a suit, or under attachment," which occurred in the fir para of the old section.

By the above change the power of the Court in the matter of appoin ment of receivers has been enlarged. According to the language of sub rule (1), the Court can appoint a receiver where it appears to it to b just and convenient. The conditions attached to the para of the old sec tion are no longer necessary for the appointment of a receiver The omi sion of the words "the subject of a suit," or "under attachment," material, as the words "property the subject of a suit" were the subje of much discussion in 17 C. 61 and in 30 M. 155, noted below. By th omission of the above two expressions, a receiver can now be appointe where a personal remedy is sought against the defendant or the property not under attachment (30 M 255). The other alterations are mere chang of words and phrases.

Receiver in Proceedings Other than Suit.—S 503 of the Code o 1882 contained the words "subject-matter of a suit" Under the ol Code, therefore, a receiver could only be appointed in a suit By th omission of these words in the present rule, a receiver may now be appoint ed even in proceedings other than a suit.—Asadali v Mahomed, 43 C 986 36 I C. 177 A receiver may be appointed in a testamentary suit —Yeshwant v. Shankar, 17 B. 388; or in proceedings under the Guardia and Wards Act —In re Bai Jummabai, 36 B. 20. 11 I C 554; Chan drawati v Jagannath, 7 Lah L J. 281. 90 I. C 611: A I R 1925 Lah 489 But a Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver in proceeding under the Succession Certificate Act.—Kanhaiya v Kanhaiya Lal, 46 A 372 79 I C 363. A I R 1924 All. 376

"Just and convenient."—The words "just and convenient" have been taken from the English Judicature Act, 1873 They mean that th Court should appoint a receiver for the protection of property or the pre vention of injury, according to legal principle, and not that the Court can make such appointment because it thinks convenient to do so. The confer no arbitrary and non-regulated discretion on the Court.—Habibullah v Abtia Kallah, 23 C. L. J. 1567; Pana Seenee v. Ana, 8 I. C 1191 ... Court must take the whole circumstances of the case into consideration and then decide bether it would be "just and convenient" to appoint a receiver Priarily this discretion is to be exercised by the Court in which the case pending and to which the application is made. The Court has full scretion to appoint or remove a receiver and the Appellate Court will it as a rule when the first Court has acted after considering all the cirmstances, interfere with the exercise of that discretion —Haji Kadir akhsh v. Ghulam Mahomed, 55 I C 50, Amar Nath v. Mt Tehal Kaur, U. P. L. R. 73 67 I C 383; Dhumi v Nawab Muhammad Sajjad I. C. 600; Satis Chandra v Benoy Krishna, 96 I C 30 A I R 926 Cal 1092

The appointment of a receiver is a matter of judicial discretion and ourts should proceed cautiously viewing all the circumstances of the ise The words "just and convenient" mean that the Court should ppoint a receiver for the protection of property or prevention of injury ccording to legal principles and not because it thinks it convenient to do . They confer no arbitrary and non-regulated discretion on the Court he receiver appointed in an action should as a general rule be a disterested person, but it is competent to the Court upon the consent of arties and in a proper case without such consent, to appoint a person ixed up in the subject-matter of the litigation, if it will be beneficial to le estate —Bhupendra Nath v Manohar Mukerjee, 28 C W N 86

"May by order."—The order on an application under Or XL, r 1, hould not express an opinion on the merits of the case —Bhupendra Nath Manohar Mukerjee, 28 C W N. 86

The appointment of a receiver is a matter resting in the discretion of ie Court The powers of appointing a receiver conferred by this rule, iust be exercised with a sound discretion, upon a view of the whole cirumstances of the case, not merely the circumstances which might make he appointment expedient for the protection of the property, but all the ircumstances connected with the right which is asserted and has to be stablished The Court will not interfere by appointing a receiver where ight is asserted to property in the possession of a defendant claiming to old it under a legal title, unless a strong case is made out.—Sidheswari . Abhayaswari, 15 C 818, Meyappa Chetty v Narayourn Chetty, 43 . C. 550, Mt Ishri v Shib Ram, 71 I C 743: 1923 Lah. 239. Where roperty is shown to be in medio, i e., in the enjoyment of no one, the ourt can hardly do wrong in appointing a receiver, for it is the common nterest of all parties to prevent a scramble.—Alkama Bibi v. Syed Istak, 29 C. W N 836 89 I C 183 A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 970 The mere ircumstances that the appointment of a receiver will do no harm to any one is no ground for appointing a receiver.—Srimati v. Beni Madhab, 5 A. 556; Kunhan v. Mannan, 46 M L. J. 133: 79 I. C. 561: A. I. R. 1924 Mad 482. Neither can a receiver be appointed simply for the puriose of ascertaining the income of an estate in order to fix the amount of naintenance to be paid out of it.—Rajammal v. Tyaru, A. I. R. 1925 Mad 1245: 89 I. C. 913 In Chandidat v. Tadmanand, 22 C. 459, it has een further held that the distinction between a case in which a temporary injunction may be granted and a case in which a receiver may be appointed, is that, while in either case, it must be shown that the property should be preserved from waste or alienation; in the former case, it would be sufficient if it be shown that the plaintiff in the suit has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the right alleged, while in the latter case, a good prima facie title has to be made out.—Siragnunathammal v Aruna Chalam, 2 M. W. N. 75: 21 M. L. J. 821 See also, Mikasha v. Dassmal Gangaram, 45 I. C 224.

"Appoint a receiver of any property, whether before or after decree."—The power conferred by the Court by Or XL, r 1 (a) to appoint a receiver of any property whether before or after decree, refers only to the appointment of a receiver in respect of the property in regard to which, the litigation is pending that is to say as long as the suit before the Court remains lis pendens, the function of the receiver will continue until he is discharged by the Court.—Chandreswar Prasad v Bisheswar Pratap, 5 Pat. L. J. 513: 1 Pat L. T. 648.

Whether Issue of Notice to the Opposite Party Before Appointment of Receiver is Necessary.—Or. XL, r. 1, C. P. Code, does not lay down that notice to the opposite party should be issued before appointing a receiver and it is obvious that in many cases the object of the appointment might be nullified if notice were issued.—Mt. Ishri v Shibram, 21 I. C. 743 (22 C 459, 21 M. L. J. 821, 107 P. R. 1908 distd).

Courts Empowered to Appoint Receivers.—Another most important change in this order is the omission of s. 505, C. P. Code, 1882, under which only the High Courts and the District Judges were empowered to exercise the powers conferred by Chap. XXXVI of the C. P Code, 1882. The Subordinate Courts could only nominate a person and District Judge could authorize the Subordinate Courts to appoint the person so nominated or he could pass such other order as he might think fit

Having regard to the standard of efficiency, the Committee see no reason to withhold from Subordinate Judges, the power to appoint receivers. They therefore propose that s. 505 of the Code should no longer be retained for its effect in practise is often to defeat the purpose for which an application is made.'—See the Report of the Special Committee

Power of Court to Appoint Receivers and Grounds for Appointment.—The powers conferred by this rule are not to be exercised as a matter of course, and it is not a reason for allowing an application for the appointment of a receiver that it can do no harm to appoint one The discretion is one that should be exercised with greatest care and caution Because a plaintiff in his plaint makes violent and wholesale charges of waste and malversation against a defendant in possession of property as executor under a will or as the tenant for life, and upon this basis applies for a receiver to be appointed, it is not a necessary consequence that such appointment should be made —Prosonnomoye v Beni Madhab, 5 A. 556, Kumar Satya Narain v Srimati Rani Keshabaty, 18 C W N 537.—Mele Vittil Kunhan v. Kannan, 46 M. L J. 133

In an application for the appointment of a receiver, one has got to see the nature of the charges made, and if one finds that they are somewhat vague in character, it is a ground for declining to interfere on an interlocutory application for the appointment of a receiver.—Satis Chandra v Benoy Krishna, 96 I. C. 30: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1092.

When an application is made to the Court to take the property into its hands by appointing a receiver, the plaintiff must prove that prima facie he has a very excellent chance of succeeding in establishing the case made out in his plaint, and in the next place he must satisfy the Court that the property in possession of the opposite party is in danger of being wasted. The mere fact that there is dispute is no reason whatever for appointing a receiver.—Govind Narayan Rao v. Vallabhrao Narayan Rao, 22 Bom. L R 2 (7); 55 I C 827; Banwari Lal v. Mati Lal, 3 Pat. L. T. 466. 68 I C. 656; The Firm Raghubir Singh Jaswant v. Narijari Singh, 72 I C 569; 1923 Lah. 48.

Waste or misappropriation of property is a ground for appointing a receiver.—The fact that the acts complained of amount to misappropriation rather than waste makes no difference for the purposes of this rule — Hanumayya v Venkata Subbaya, 18 M. 23.

The mere fact that a Mahomedan widow is entitled to a lien, for dower on her husband's estate is no ground for refusing the appointment of a receiver summarily without enquiry into the merits of the application There is nothing in Or XL, r 1, to prevent the appointment of a receiver in such a case.—T Syed Ali v Ahmad Syed, 68 I. C 502: 1923 Nag. 21.

Where both the claimants are mendicants and have no worldly property of their own, the property in dispute is of considerable value and acts of waste have been found to have been committed by the defendant who is in possession. Held, that the appointment of receiver is the proper order.—Ram Sunder v Kamal Jha, 32 C. 741.

That the income of the property is very large and the defendant is a poor man from whom it would be impossible to realise any mesne profits which might be decreed without any allegation of misappropriation or waste by the defendant, are not adequate reasons for the appointment of a receiver —Mahomed Askari v. Nisar Husain, 43 A. 311: 19 A. L J. 50.

The removal of a large amount of property by the defendant and under circumstances which might fairly give rise to suspicion during the pendency of the suit in which the question of title to that property would be determined is a sufficiently strong ground for the appointment of a receiver —Sita Ram Das v Mahabir Das, 27 C. 279: 5 C. W. N. 362 (15 C. 818, and 22 C. 459 referred to). See also, Sham Chand Giri v. Bhaya Ram Pandey, 5 C W. N. 365.

Where the subject of dispute between the parties to a litigation was a large impartible zemindari with valuable forests, mines and minerals and the zemindari had long been under the management of the Court of Wards. Held, that the case was a fit one for the appointment of a receiver pending the appeal and for stay of execution of the decree by the successful claimant —Sri Pratap Chandra Deo v. Sri Raja Jagadish Chandra, 37 C L J 417: 75 I C. 417.

Or XL, r 1, of the Code prevents the Court from ejecting a person not a party to the suit unless one or other of the parties to the suit has such a right But the Court has always the power to appoint a receiver to take possession of the properties from the parties to the suit itself and be sufficient if it be shown that the plaintiff in the suit has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the right alleged; while in the latter case, a good prima facie title has to be made out —Sivagnanathammal v. Aruna Chalam, 2 M. W. N. 75: 21 M L J. 821 See also, Mikosha v. Dassimal Gangaram, 45 I. C 224.

"Appoint a receiver of any property, whether before or after decree."—The power conferred by the Court by Or. XL, r 1 (a) to appoint a receiver of any property whether before or after decree, refers only to the appointment of a receiver in respect of the property in regard to which, the litigation is pending that is to say as long as the suit before the Court remains lis pendens, the function of the receiver will continue until he is discharged by the Court.—Chandreswar Prasad v. Bisheswar Pratap, 5 Pat. L J. 513: 1 Pat L. T. 643.

Whether Issue of Notice to the Opposite Party Before Appointment of Receiver is Necessary.—Or. XL, r. 1, C. P. Code, does not lay down that notice to the opposite party should be issued before appointing a receiver and it is obvious that in many cases the object of the appointment might be nullified if notice were issued.—Mt. Ishri v. Shibram 71 I. C. 743 (22 C. 459, 21 M L J. 821, 107 P. R. 1908 distd.)

Courts Empowered to Appoint Receivers.—Another most important change in this order is the omission of s. 505, C. P. Code, 1882, under which only the High Courts and the District Judges were empowered to exercise the powers conferred by Chap. XXXVI of the C P Code, 1882. The Subordinate Courts could only nominate a person and District Judge could authorize the Subordinate Courts to appoint the person so nominated or he could pass such other order as he might think fit

Having regard to the standard of efficiency, the Committee see no reason to withhold from Subordinate Judges, the power to appoint receivers. They therefore propose that s. 505 of the Code should no longer be retained for its effect in practise is often to defeat the purpose for which an application is made.'—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Power of Court to Appoint Receivers and Grounds for Appointment.—The powers conferred by this rule are not to be exercised as a matter of course, and it is not a reason for allowing an application for the appointment of a receiver that it can do no harm to appoint one. The discretion is one that should be exercised with greatest care and caution. Because a plaintiff in his plaint makes violent and wholesale charges of waste and malversation against a defendant in possession of property as executor under a will or as the tenant for life, and upon this bases applies for a receiver to be appointed, it is not a necessary consequence that such appointment should be made.—Prosonnomoye v. Beni Madhab, 5 A 556; Kumar Satya Narain v. Srimati Rani Keshabaty, 18 C. W. N. 537.—Mele Vittil Kunhan v. Kannan, 46 M L. J. 133

In an application for the appointment of a receiver, one has got to see the nature of the charges made, and if one finds that they are somewhat vague in character, it is a ground for declining to interfere on an interlocutory application for the appointment of a receiver.—Satis Chandra v. Benoy Krishna, 96 I. C. 80: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1092.

must be had to the provisions of the Companies Acts.—Kailash v. Sadar Munsif, Silchar, 52 C. 513: 88 I. C. 826: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 817.

Receiver for Execution of Decree.—A receiver may be legally appointed for the purpose of executing a decree, even though the decree is one merely directing the payment of money It is not essential that the estate, the rents and profits of which are to be realised should itself be liable to attachment in execution.—Lahanu Bai v. Harak Chand, 11 N. L. R. 113: 31 I. C 285; Tikait Damodar Narain Singh v Gangaram, 1923 Pat. 372.

Where a decree-holder had in execution of his decree attached two decrees held by the judgment-debtor against third parties, it was held that this rule gave power to the Court to appoint a receiver to realize the amount of attached decrees where it appeared that by so doing the interests of both decree-holder and judgment-debtor would be better protected.—Partap Singh v Delhi and London Bank Ltd , 30 A. 593: 5 A. L. J. 583

In a decree for maintenance charged on immoveable property, a receiver should be appointed in the decree with directions to take possession in case of default and to pay the maintenance allowance —Hemangini v. Kumud Chunder, 26 C 441: 3 C W N 139.

In a testamentary suit, the High Court has power to appoint a receiver under the provisions of the C. P. Code, which by s. 55 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) have been made applicable to proceedings under the Act.—Yeshwant Bhagwant v. Sankar Ram Chandra, 17 B 388.

The rule of the Court of Chancery, that a receiver will not be appointed against an executor unless gross misconduct was shown, is not applicable to the case of an executor of the will of a Mahomedan —Hafizabai v. Abdul Karim, 10 B. 83.

Held, that a Court executing a simple money-decree obtained against a sonless Hindu widow was not competent to appoint a receiver of the rents accruing since her husband's decease, of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, then in the hands of the widow, such rents not being assets of the deceased, but the personal moveable property of the widow.—Rani Kanno Dai v B J Lacy, 19 A 235

Receiver of Property in Hand of Common Manager.—A receiver can be appointed in respect of property in the hands of a common manager appointed under s. 95 of the B. T Act —Madaneswar v Mahamaya Prasad, 15 C W. N 672 · 13 C. L J 487; and the fact that an application for the appointment of a common manager is pending before the District Judge does not preclude the Sub-Judge before whom the suit is from appointing a receiver, 17 C W. N 581

The District Judge has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of properties which are the subject of a suit or attachment in other Courts, even though such Courts may have been subordinate to his Court.—Latafat Hossein v Anunt Chowdhry, 23 C 517.

A Court of Small Causes cannot appoint a receiver —Nursing Das v. Tulsiram, 2 B 558.

It is within the discretion of a Court appointing a receiver in a s to order that the office should continue permanently after the decr when such continuance is necessary or for so long as it may be so decree of the High Court directing the permanent receivership was b not in variation of the judgment which it purported to follow; and t the Court had a discretion to make such an order when necessary for t preservation of the estate.—Mathusri Umamba v Mathusri Dimam 19 M. 120, P. C.

The words "the owner" in r. 40, cl. (1) (d), mean the whole bo of owners to whom the joint estate belongs. In a suit for partition of joint estate, the Court has jurisdiction to place the whole of a joint est out of which a plaintiff seeks to have his share partitioned in the hand of a receiver, and to order that the receiver shall be at liberty to ra money on the security of the whole joint estate.—Paresh Nath v Omr Nauth, 17 C. 614.

Receiver in Joint Family Partition Suit.—The Court will not app a receiver in a partition suit between members of a joint family except by consent and specially where the family property consists of land The in order that a receiver should be appointed of joint family property in a partition suit special circumstances will have to be proved before the Court will be entitled to appoint a receiver.—Govind Narayan Rao v Vallabh Rao, 22 Bom. L. R. 217: 55 I. C. 827.

Receiver in Mortgage Suit.—A receiver may be appointed at the su of a first mortgagee when there is reason to apprehend that the pro perty was insufficient to pay the incumbrances thereon Whether the mortgagee is or is not entitled to possession, he may invite the Court to appoint a receiver, if the demands of justice require that the mortgagee should be deprived of possession. A receiver can be appointed at the instance of a mortgagee who holds a simple mortgage.—Maharajah S Rameswar Sing Bahadur v. Chuni Lal Saha, 31 C. L J. 385; Gobind Ra v Jwala Pershad, 43 I. C. 533; Punjab National Bank Ld v 102 I. C. 353; A. I. R. 1927 Sind 230. The Court may appoint a receiver at the instance of a mortgagee where the action is either for foreclosure or sale, if there is reason to suspect that the security is insufficient or the interest is in arrear (7 C. W. N. 452, 16 C. W N. 997 referred to), and the right of the mortgagee to ask for a receiver is not affected by the fact that a decree for sale has been passed, because the suit cannot be said to terminate till the property is sold or the mortgage money paid.—Man dra v Suniti Bala; 95 I. C. 632; A. I. R. 1926 Cal 1006

A receiver can be appointed under this rule, in a suit to enforce mortgage.—Ghanshyam Misser v. Gobinda Moni, 7 C. W. N 452 (3 C 935; 1 C. L R. 295 declared obsolete). As regards Court's power to appoint receiver of mortgaged property, see also, Latafut Hossein v Anunt Chowdhry, 23 C. 517; and Jaikisson Das v Janabai, 15 B 431 Weatherall v Eastern Mortgage Agency Co, 13 C. L J. 495

Receiver of Future Earnings of Judgment-debtor.—The Court has no jurisdiction to enforce satisfaction of a judgment-debt by appointing a receiver of the future earnings of the judgment-debtor.—Asad Ali v Haidar Ali, 38 C. 13; Ranee Annapurna v. Swami Natha, 34 M 7 Likewise, no receiver can be appointed in respect of future allowance of maintenance payable to a judgment debtor.—Pali Kandy v. Krishnan, 40 M. 302.

"Remove any person."—The word "person" in rule 1 (1) (b) refers to a person other than the receiver.—Ramaswami v. Ayylu, 46 M. L. J. 196: 78 I. C. 625: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 614; Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C. 319: 92 I. C 940; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593. It refers to persons interested in the property and in possession or custody of it prior to the passing of an order appointing a receiver.—Sripati v Bhupati, 53 C. 319; 92 I. C 940: A. I. R 1926 Cal. 593.

The Court on an objection being made by persons who are not parties to the suit, claiming the properties to be theirs and in their possession, is bound by Or. XL, r. 1 (2), C P. Code to come to a definite finding as to the truth of these allegations before it can make an order directing the receiver to take possession of the property.—Hamida Rahaman v. Jamila Khatun, 34 C. L. J. 123.

A Civil Court has no power to appoint a receiver in supersession of a receiver appointed by a Magistrate under s 146, cl. (2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure.—Bidyaprasad v. Ashorafi, 40 C. 862, similarly when a Civil Court appoints a receiver, a magistrate has no jurisdiction under s. 145, Cr P Code, to interfere with him in respect of his possession of the property without the sanction of the Civil Court.—Dunne v. Kumar Chandra, 30 C 593 One subordinate Court has no power to restrain the action of another subordinate Court with co-ordinate powers. Therefore where a subordinate Judge had appointed a receiver; held, that it was not competent to another subordinate Judge to issue a rubkari to the first Court requesting it to restrain the receiver from taking possession of a part of the property in respect of which the receiver had been appointed.—Chaudhry Kidar Nath v Mahmood Ali Khan, 2 Pat. L. T. 716: 6 Pat. L. J. 268

The powers of a receiver are regulated by Or XL of the C P. Code, and the only ground upon which his possession can be resisted is under sub-clause (2) of r. 1 of Or. XL of the Code. Where a person who refuses to deliver possession to a receiver is ordered by the Court to do so, his remedy is by appeal under Or XLIII, r 1 (s) of the C P Code.—Mussamat Dulhin Sona Kuer v. Jamil Ahmad, 43 I. C 779

Where a creditor is put into possession of property for the purpose of enabling him to realise the proceeds and appropriate the same towards the repayment of his debt, his possession or custody is not protected by Or. XL, r. 1 (2) of the C P Code.—Hitendra Singh v Maharaja Sir Rameshwar Singh, 6 Pat L. J 37 2 Pat L T. 593

The receiver does not represent the estate for which he is receiver, but is merely an officer of the Court, and, as such, cannot sue and be sued except with the permission of the Court.—Miller v. Ram Ranjan, 10 C. 1014; Secunder v. J. A. M. Kasaiar & Co., 1 Rang. 188: 1923 Rang. 208. The receiver can neither sue nor be sued without the leave of the Court.—Dunne v. Kumar Chandra Kishore, 30 C 593. See also, Pramatha Nath v. Khetra Nath, 32 C 270: 9 C. W N. 247, where it has been further held that subsequent application for permission to continue the action brought without leave of Court cannot cure the defect. But see, Rustomjee Dhunkibhai v Frderick Gaebele, 46 C. 352: 23 C W. N. 496: 51 I. C. 486, in which it has been held (dissenting from 10 C. 1014, 32 C. 270, 30 C. 593) that it is competent for the Court to grant leave to continue a suit instituted by or against a receiver of the Court without such leave, provided a proper case is made out

This rule authorizes the Court to grant to the receiver all such powers as to bringing and defending suits as the owner himself has. It is competent to a Court to authorize a receiver to sue in his own name and a receiver who is authorized to sue, though not expressly in his own name, may do so by virtue of his appointment with full powers under this rule. See also, the cases referred to in this connection.—Jagat Tarini v. Naba Gopal, 34 C. 305: 5 C. L J. 270; Satya Kirpal v Satya Bhupal, 18 C. W. N. 146: 19 C. L J. 191 Cl. (d) of Or. XL, r 1, gives the Court complete discretion as to the powers to be conferred on a receiver.—Secy. of State v. Komaragiri, 30 M. L. J. 456.

A receiver appointed by the High Court, without special leave of the Court, served a notice to quit, on certain tenants of the estate, who claimed to hold a permanent lease, and afterwards instituted a suit to eject them. Held, that as the order appointing him did not give him power to serve such notice or to institute such suit without special leave of the Court, and as he was not vested with the general powers referred to in this rule, but only with limited power referred to in the order appointing him, and as a receiver is not otherwise authorized to institute such suits, the suit must be dismissed.—Drobomoyi v. Davis, 14 C. 323. But see, Meer Mahomed v. J. Homasji, 38 I. C. 92. But where under the terms of the order appointing the receiver he was authorized to sue to eject, without obtaining the permission of the Court, it was held that the receiver had a right to sue without permission of Court —Hari Dass v. Macgregor, 18 C. 477. The Court has authority, under this rule to confer on a receiver the power to sue in his own name, and if the order appointing the receiver gives him liberty, he may do so —Fink v. Moharaj Bahadur, 25 C. 642: 2 C. W N. 494. See also, The Oriental Bank v. Gobin Lall, 10 C. 713

Where a receiver is validly appointed on the ground that the property was the subject of the suit and it afterwards turns out in appeal that the decree only operates against the defendant personally, the A[illegible] Court has jurisdiction to maintain the receiver as a means of [illegible] the amount from the judgment-debtor personally, and the [illegible] considered under attachment, although not attached under s. [illegible] Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r 54) —Ramasami v. Ramasami, 30 M. L. J. 201

Although the dismissal of a suit may in some cases mean [illegible] of the receiver still the Court has jurisdiction over the rec[illegible] officer of the Court and the Court may require him to furnish accounts, allow parties to examine accounts, and to deal with all the matters connected with the management by the receiver.—Chandershwar Prasad v. Bisheshwar Pratap, 5 Pat. L. J. 513: 1 Pat L. T. 643

A zemindari having been attached by a creditor, a receiver was appointed with full powers under this rule, and he sued to recover rent at the rate reserved in the lease granted by the zemindar before his appointment. Held that the receiver was entitled to recover the rent claimed. The provisions of s. 503 of the Code, 1882 (this rule), were intended to declare that the receiver, in respect of all property which was or could be attached, had the powers of the owner as they existed at the time the property was brought under the orders of the Court by attachment, provided that they have not ceased by operation of law.—Gopala Sami v. Sankara, 8 M. 418

A zemindari was attached in execution, and the plaintiff was appointed receiver with full powers under this rule. Before the appointment of the receiver the zemindar had expended certain sums at the defendant's request to repair a tank for the irrigation of lands held by them in common with him. The receiver sued to recover the sum so expended. It was objected that the receiver could not sue as the sum sued for was neither the subject of a suit against the zemindar nor properly attached in execution against him. Held, that the receiver could maintain the suit.—Sundaram v. Sankara, 9 M. 334.

For the purpose of preserving property in the possession of a receiver from loss or injury, the Court may authorize the receiver to borrow money as first charge on the property. Where mortgage is executed by a receiver under an order of Court directing that such mortgage should be a first charge, it takes priority over any charge of earlier date. Contra in Rampini, J., Giridhari Lal v. Dhirendra Krista, 11 C. W. N. 1: 34 C. But when a suit in which a receiver has been appointed, has been dismissed, the Court has no jurisdiction to give the receiver any fresh power as, for instance, liberty to sell.—Rabcholme v. Smith, 34 C. 336

Where a receiver is given full powers under the provisions of Or. XL, r. 1 (d) of the C. P. Code, no special leave of the Court is necessary for giving notice to quit or for a suit for compensation for use and occupation.—Meer Mahomed v. J. Hormasji, 38 I. C. 92: 10 Bur L. T. 244

Possession of Receiver Enures for the Benefit of the True Owner.—Where the Court has appointed a receiver and the receiver is in possession, his possession is the possession of the Court and the possession of the Court by the receiver is the possession of all parties to the action according to their titles. The property passes into legal custody as the receiver is in the position of a stake holder and such custody is for the benefit of the true owner.—Dwijendra Narayan v. Joges Chandra, 39 C. L. J. 40 (22 C. L. J. 283, 30 M. 12: 17 C. 814, 5 C. L. J. 270 refd. to).

Duties and Liabilities of Receivers and of the Estate.—A creditor is entitled to proceed against the representative of an estate for recovery of debt incurred by the receiver during his management: the right to maintain such suit against the representative is founded on the just and equitable principle that as the acts of a receiver, acting within his authority, are the acts of the Court, the estate cannot be permitted to enjoy the benefit of those acts without being held responsible for the obligations arising out of them. A receiver occupies a position towards an estate in his hands different from an executor or trustee: the latter not acting through or under directions of the Court do not and cannot under ordinary circumstances create obligations binding on the estate in favour of creditors.—Mohari Bibi v. Shyama Bibi, 30 C. 937: 7 C. W N 799

In execution of a decree, a receiver was appointed to collect certain rents due to the judgment-debtor Some of the judgment-debtor's tenants paid the rents due by them into the hands of the receiver, but the receiver did not pay the monies collected by him into Court, but misappropriated them. Held, that the payment by the tenants to the receiver did not, pro tanto, discharge the judgment-debtor from liability under the decree —Orr v. Muthia Chettie, 17 M 501 (on appeal 20 M 224)

A receiver appointed under this rule to collect the rents of an estate, is bound to make good a loss caused to it by a breach of his duties A receiver is not justified in delegating or entrusting to another a duty entrusted to him by the Court. He should in all important matters apply for and obtain the direction of the Judge who appoints him A receiver is entitled to his costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in the discharge of his duties —Balaji Narain v. Ram Chandra Govind, 19 B 660

A Court has jurisdiction in special cases and on special conditions, to order a receiver to pay the pressing claims of creditors against the estate or part-owners thereof, out of the money in his hand.—Motivahu v. Premvahu, 16 B. 511. But the Court has no power to order that the receiver should, out of the estate, satisfy the claims of persons other than the decree-holders.—Thakoor Chunder v. Chowdhry Chotee Singh, Marsh, 261: 2 Hay 112.

Sale of Property by Receiver.—A sale of properties, the subject of a suit, by the receiver under the order of the Court, cannot, in the absence of fraud, be attacked collaterally by persons who were parties thereto or their representatives.—Gorachand v. Makhan Lal, 11 C. W. N. 489: 6 C. L. J. 401 (6 B. L. R. 486 referred to).

A sale of properties, the subject of a suit, by the receiver is not a sale by the Court. The fact that such person is the Court's receiver does not place him in a different position When the receiver sells under such an order, it is necessary that he, being in possession of the property, should be a party to the conveyance.—Chandra Nath v. Biswa Nath, 6 B. L. R. 492-note.

Receiver's Liability to Account.—A Court, having appointed a receiver in a suit, has authority, incidental to its jurisdiction, to order him to account, although the suit may be no longer pending. The estate is in its hands, and the receiver is its officer, and the dismissal of the suit by an Appellate Court does not alter that state of things. The Original Court in such a case may permit parties interested to intervene on questions as to the accounts, and may deal with costs and other matters.—Administrator-General of Bengal v. Prem Lal Mullick, 22 C. 788 P. C and 1011 P. C.

A receiver is responsible for all properties which comes to his custody or management, and he is responsible not only for actual sums received by him, but for those which might have been received by him, but for his wil ful neglect and default. The mode of examining and passing receiver's accounts pointed out.—Coomar Suttya Sankar v. Ranee Golap Monee, 5 C. W. N. 223 (19 B. 660 referred to). See also, Mohini Mohan v. Ram Narain and Barada Kanta, 14 C. L. J. 445, in which the duties of receivers and their liability to account have been fully stated.

A receiver is not liable to account for any period other than that for which he is appointed.—Sampautta Singh v. Bhagwari Singh, 5 Pat L. J. 97—55 I. C. 15

In all applications for payment of money by a receiver, the receiver ought to appear and give information to the Court about funds in his hands and whether there are any attachments or claims on the same.—Charu Charan v. Gocool Chandra, 1 C. W. N. 303.

The accounts submitted by the receiver should be supported by vouchers which will be admitted as evidence of payment unless reasonable ground for impeaching them is shown.—Teller v. Golam, 40 C. L. J. 23: 82 I. C. 419: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 1063.

Remuneration of Receivers.—Under this rule, the Court is to determine what fee or commission a receiver is entitled to by way of remuneration. The receiver is an officer of the Court, and the parties cannot by any act of theirs add to or derogate from, the functions of the Court without its authority. An agreement between a Receiver and a party regarding his remuneration without the knowledge of the Court is a gross contempt of Court and is void.—Prokash Chandra v. Adlam, 30 C. 696 (22 C. 648 referred to).

A receiver is generally remunerated by the method of percentage or commission, but there is no absoute rule that he should be so remunerated. The Court has a discretion, if it thinks fit, to allow him a remuneration at a fixed rate.—Srcpat Singh v. Ram Sarup Surya Prasad, 1923 Cal 516

A receiver appointed in insolvency proceedings under the C. P. Code is entitled to a lien for the amount of his commission on the net assets remaining after payment of the charges specified in s 356, cls (b) (c) and (d) of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Mahadeva v. Kuppusami, 15 M. 293

A receiver is entitled to his costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the discharge of his duties.—Balaji Narayan v Ram Chandra Gobind, 19 B. 660.

A receiver who is divested by an erroneous order, has a lien on the estate for his claims and allowances.—Prem Lall v. Sumbhoo Nath, 22 C. 960

The Court has inherent jurisdiction to order a plaintiff to refund to a party, whom he has wrongly impleaded in a suit, the commission and charges incurred by a receiver of the property of that party, when the suit as against him is dismissed and the receivership cancelled.—M S Naikwara v. Ma Aye Byu, A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 181· 79 I. C. 721

Suit By or Against Receiver.—Leave of Court.—A receiver cannot sue or be sued except with the leave of the Court by which he was appointed receiver.—Miller v. Ram Ranjan, 10 C. 1014; Dunne v Kumar

Chandra, 30 C. 593; Fink v. Corporation of Calcutta, 30 C. 721. The rule is firmly established that, as against a stranger to the action who is in actual possession, the appointment of a receiver is of no effect. But it is equally well-settled that you cannot sue a receiver except with the leave of the Court. The latter rule is founded upon the doctrine that a suit against the receiver is in substance a suit against the Court that appointed the receiver and that a suit against the receiver should not be permitted except upon leave duly obtained from the Court that appointed the receiver.—Amulya v Kashinath, 102 I. C 797. A I R 1927 Pat. 297.

Where a receiver appointed in a suit interferes with the possession of third parties, it is open to the latter to apply to the Court for redress and for an injunction restraining the receiver from such trespass It is not necessary for them to file a separate suit —Thavasimuthu v Balaguruswamy, 17 L. W. 64 · 70 I. C. 673

When a party feels aggrieved at the conduct of a Receiver, he should seek redress against him in the proceeding in which he was appointed If separate proceedings be taken against him, either in that Court or elsewhere they should be with the leave of the Court, under whose authority the receiver was acting.—Kamatchi v. Sundaram Ayyar, 26 M, 492. The Court will dispose of the matter summarily in simple cases.—K. K. Secunder v. J. A. N. Kasiyar, 1 Rang. 138: 76 I. C. 441: A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 308; and if the applicant has shown diligence.—Sreedhar v. Nilmoni, 41 C. L. J. 197: 86 I. C. 677. A I R. 1925 Cal 681 But if questions of title are involved, the Court will authorise a suit to be brought against the receiver. —Sreedhar v. Nilmoni, 41 C L. J. 197 86 I. C. 677: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 681. There is no statutory provision which requires a party to take the leave of the Court to sue a receiver It is a rule based upon public policy and has come down to us as a part of the rules of equity binding upon all Courts of Justice in this country.—Braja Bhusan v Sris, 4 Pat. L. J. 20: 47 I C. 719 In Pramathanath v Khetra, 32 C. 270, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the leave of the Court to sue a receiver was a condition precedent to the right to sue and that if the leave was not obtained before suit, it could not be granted subsequent to the institution of the suit and the suit should be dismissed. This decision was dissented from in Banku Behari v. Harendra, 15 C. W. N. 54, Sarat v. Apurba, 15 C. W. N. 925, Maharaja of Burdwan v. Apurba, 15 C. W. N. 872, where it was held that the leave may be granted even after the institution of the suit. The Bombay High Court, in Jamsedji v. Husseinbhai, 44 B. 903, also held that failure to obtain leave prior to the institution of the suit was cured by subsequent leave. As regards suits by a receiver, the Calcutta and Madras High Courts have held that if the suit is instituted without the leave of the Court, the Court may grant leave, after the institution of the suit, to continue the suit.—Rustomjee v. Frederic Garbele, 46 C. 352: 51 I C. 480; Ammukuthy v. Manarikraman, 43 M. 793: 59 I. C. 568

The omission to obtain the previous sanction of the Court appointing a receiver, for bringing a suit against the receiver, does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court trying the suit. It is a mere irregularity which can be effectively cured by the plaintiff obtaining the requisite sanction during the course of the litigation.—Karooth Parakoti v. Manarikraman, 43 M. 793: 12 L. W. 831

No summary order can be passed to set aside lease executed and gra ed by receiver. The proper course is to institute a regular suit against t receiver and lessees. Claims against a receiver cannot be decided in a sun mary proceeding, the aggrieved party must bring a regular suit—Kri Chandra v. Kristo Sakha, 12 C. W. N. 1023.

A receiver appointed by the High Court, who has under its order tak possession of property, cannot be prosecuted for criminal breach of trust respect thereof without first obtaining the leave of the Court.—Sant Chand v Emperor, 46 C. 422.

A receiver in a suit even though he may have been appointed with t consent of parties could be discharged before the termination of the pr ceedings if it appears that it could be done without injury to the estate Venkatalingama v. Venkatarama, 13 L. W. 367: 29 M L T. 175 6 I. C. 562.

A suit for accounts is not maintainable by the owner of an est against a Tahsildar appointed by a receiver in charge of the estate und an order of Court.—Harihar Mukerjee v. Jaharaddin, 62 I. C. 768

Receiver If Necessary Party to a Suit.—The receiver is not a nece sary party to a suit for possession of immoveable property or for declarati of title when the beneficial owner has been made a party.—Rodger v Ashutosh, 6 C W. N 829; Kumar Suttya Ghosal v. Rani Golap Moni, C. W. N. 27; Maharani Janki Koer v Sham Sivendra, 10 C. L. J. 2 Moos v. Abdul Husain, 27 Bom. L R. 1147: 90 I. C. 600: A. I. R 192 Bom. 523.

Where a receiver appointed under this rule, institutes civil proceeding and is then replaced by another receiver, it is necessary that the new re ceiver should be made a party to those proceedings.—Akula Paradesi v Dhelli Jagannadha, 28 M. 157.

Suit By or Against Receiver.—Leave of Court.—See notes under head ing "Position and Powers of a Receiver," above

Appointment of Receiver by Two Courts in Respect of the Same Property.—A receiver is merely the officer of the Court through whom the Court takes possession of property, the subject of a litigation Consequently where a receiver of certain properties had been appointed by a Court, it is inexpedient that another Court of independent jurisdiction should appoint another receiver for the same property.—Sridhar v. Mugniram, 192 Pat. 54.

Appeal from Orders under this Rule.—An order granting or refusing an application to appoint a receiver is appealable.—See Or. XLIII, r 1, cl (s) and Venkatsami v. Stridavamma, 10 M. 179 (6 M 350 overruled). See also, Khagendra Narain v. Shasadhar, 31 C. 495: 8 C. W N 6 Anonymous case, 10 M. 180-note; Gossein Dulmir Puri v. Tekait Het Narain, 6 C. An order appointing a receiver, but without specifying anybody by name and adjourning the application to a future date for so appointing somebody is not an order within the meaning of Or. XL, r. 1 and is therefore not appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (s).—Upendranath v. Bhupendra Nath, 13 C. L. J. 157; Narbadashankar v. Kevaldas, 17 Bom. L. R. 510, Ramji v. Komon, 13 A. L. J. 79; Tcoomal v. Giganomal, A. I. R 1927 Sind 202. But see, Palaniappa v. Palaniappa, 40 M. 18 (F B), and The Firm Raghbir Singh Jaswant v. Narijan Singh, 72 I. C 569; 1923 Lah. 48, where a contrary view has been taken

When a receiver has been appointed conditional on his furnishing security, the appointment is not complete till the security is furnished, and therefore the order is not appealable before the security is furnished. —Raja Shyam Lal v Raj Kumar, 31 C. W N. 235: 45 C. L. J. 63 A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 253 (14 C. L. J 489, 17 Bom. L. R 510, 13 A L. J. 79: 42 A. 227 folld.)

An order refusing to remove a receiver is appealable, being an order made in respect of a question arising between the parties to a suit relating to the execution of the decree —Mithibai v Limiji Nowroji 5 B. 45 But see, Ramaswami Naidu v Ayyalu Naidu, 46 M L J. 196, where a contrary view has been taken An order removing a receiver is also appealable even though another receiver is not appointed in his place.—Sripati v. Bibhuti, 53 C 319: 92 I. C 940: A I R. 1926 Cal. 593.

There is no appeal to Her Majesty in Council against an order refusing the appointment of a receiver in a suit —Chundi Dutt v. Pudmanund, 22 C. 928.

Where the Court appoints a receiver of the defendant's property in a suit and a third person not a party to the suit but who claims to be in possession of the property objects to [illegible] tion is dismissed, the order dismissing the [illegible] v. Morgan, 36 C. 713, Agabag v. Sundari, [illegible] na-swami v Janaki Ammal, 16 L W. 833: (1922) M. W. N. 725 (39 C. 713, and 3 Pat. L J 573 relied on).

An appeal lies from an order appointing a receiver pending an application for the appointment of a common manager under s. 93, B. T. Act, 1885, as falling under Or. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (s) —Asadali v. Mahomed, 43 C. 986

The directions which a Court gives in passing a receiver's account are not appealable as such directions do not come within any of the clauses of Or. XL, r. 1—Rani Keshabati v. MacGregor, 35 C. 568: 12 C. W. N. 618. See also, Samhautta Singh v. Bhagwan Singh, 5 Pat L. J 97: 55 I. C. 15

An order under r 1 or 4 of Or. XL is appealable, see Or. XL, r. 1, cl. (s)

Letters Patent Appeal.—An order directing a receiver in a suit to advance money to a guardian ad litem to enable him to conduct the defence on behalf of a defendant, is not a judgment within the meaning of article 15 of the Letters Patent, and no appeal lies therefrom —Kuppuswami v. Rathnavelu, 24 M. 511.

Revision.—Where a Court appoints a receiver in a case in which it has no jurisdiction to do so (as where a receiver is appointed in a proceeding under the Succession Certificate Act, 1889), the Court acts without jurisdiction, and the High Court may interfere in revision.—Kanhaiya v Kanhaiya, 46 A. 372: 79 I. C. 363: A. I. R. 1924 All 376

Bond.—For Form of bond to be given by receiver, see App F, Form No. 10, and for Form of appointment of receiver, see App F, Form No 9

Miscellaneous Cases.—Practice of the original side of the Court followed in recognising the right of a purchaser at a receiver's sale to obtain the assistance of the Court in obtaining possession under the provisions of the Code relating to sale in a suit.—Minatooneesa v. Khatooneesa, 21 C. 479.

Property in the hands of a receiver of the High Court cannot be proceeded against by attachment in the mofussil.—Hem Chunder v Pran Kristo, 1 C. 403. This case has been distinguished in Jogendra Nath v. Devendra Nath, 26 C. 127: 3 C. W. N. 90, where it has been held that a judgment-creditor can sell properties in the hands of the receiver of the Court in execution of a mortgage decree, although he cannot execute a decree against such properties by way of attachment and sale.—Semble—A proceeding by way of attachment is an interference with the possession of receiver.

The possession of a receiver should be regarded as possession for the party who might ultimately turn out to be the true owner and entitled to possession as such. The effect of such possession by the receiver is to destroy the adverse possession, if any, of either of the parties.—Sarda Sundari v Sarada, 2 C. L. J. 602 (11 C. 496, 17 M. 501, and 20 A 341 applied).

A servant of a firm, the business of which is being managed by a receiver appointed under this rule, has no preferential claim over the attaching creditor on the assets of the firm for wages due before the appointment of the receiver.—Short v. Pickering, 6 M. 188.

An attachment of money in the hands of the receiver made without previous permission or sanction of the Court is improper and irregular, for such an attachment is an interference with the Court's possession through its official receiver, and the Court will refuse to recognize it.—Mohammed Zohuruddeen v. Mahomed Nooroodden, 21 C. 85. See also, Khan v Ali Mohamed, 16 B. 577.

Under the Code of Civil Procedure, once a suit has been dismissed, the Court dismissing it is functus officio, save that it may stay execution of its own decree or order for costs. An application therefore made to a Court of first instance after dismissal of the suit, but before appeal filed, asking that the receiver may be restrained from parting with funds in his hands pending an appeal, cannot be granted.—Yaminuddowlah v. Ahmed Ali Khan, 21 C. 561.

Attachment by a judgment-creditor of a debt due to judgment-debtor by a third party. Where the existence of the debt is denied, there is no other course open to the judgment-creditor than to have it sold, or to have a receiver appointed under this rule.—Toolsa Goolal v. Antone, 11 B. 448.

Application for the appointment of a receiver on the retirement of another receiver should be made in Court and not in chambers.—Stalkartt v. Stalkartt, 28 C 250.

Where a Court executing a decree made an order directing the payment of the rents of certain property which had been attached as they became due from the tenant to the judgment-debtors; and subsequently default having been made by the tenant in the payment of the rents of certain years, the decree-holder applied for an order directing the payment of the rents which were in arrears to be made by the tenant in accordance with the previous order. Held, that the effect of the order in the execution proceedings was virtually to appoint the decree-holder receiver under the provisions of this rule.—Radha Kishore v. Aftab Chundra, 7 C. 61

The fact that there exists in respect of immoveable property an order of a Magistrate passed under s. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is no bar to the exercise by a Civil Court of the power conferred on it by s. 503, C. P. Code, 1882, of appointing a receiver in respect of the same property — Barkatunnissa v. Abdul Aziz, 22 A. 214

A receiver appointed in an administration suit, instituted by a creditor of a deceased, against his executor is not an agent of the executor and an [illegible] within the mean[illegible] er of the Court — [illegible] e effect of a payment or acknowledgment by receiver on the question of limitation, see also, Periasami v. Seetharama, 27 M. 243: 14 M. L. J. 85

4. When a receiver—

Enforcement of receiver's duties.

(a) fails to submit his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs, or

(b) fails to pay the amount due from him as the Court directs, or

(c) occasions loss to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence, the Court may direct his property to be attached, and may sell such property, and may apply the proceeds to make good any amount found to be due from him or any loss occasioned by him, and shall pay the balance (if any) to the receiver.

COMMENTARY.

"We have redrafted this rule on the lines of s. 18 (4) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907. We think that the power to imprison receivers is too wide and should be omitted."—See, the Report of the Select Committee.

"Occasions loss to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence."—"Property" includes also the income derived from it.—Raman v. Gopala, 30 M. 584. Where owing to the wilful default or gross negligence of the receiver any loss is caused to the property, the loss is to be made good out of the estate in the first instance and not by the party on whose application the receiver was appointed, failing which the party damnified by the loss may proceed against the receiver.—Orr v. Muthia, 17 M. 501; Muthia v. Orr, 20 M. 224.

Removal of Receiver.—A receiver should not be allowed to continue in office if he fails to comply with the order of the Court to submit his accounts.—Bihari Lal v. Shankar, 7 Lah. L. J. 6: 89 I. C. 80: A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 309.

The Court may Direct his Property to be Attached.—Where a receiver dies, the property may after his death be attached in the hands of his legal representatives.—Raman v. Gopala, 39 M. 584. "Property" means income derived from the property.

Appeal.—An order under r. 1 or r. 4 of this Order is appealable.—See, Or. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (s). But where an order declaring a receiver liable in respect of a sum of money does not contain any direction for the attachment of his property, no appeal lies from such order.—Ganesh Lal v. Kumar Satya Narayan, 4 Pat. L. J. 636; Gokal Chand v. Uddharam, 70 I. C. 224; Khan Chand v. Abdul Majid, 76 I. C. 203

When Collector may be appointed receiver.

5. Where the property is land paying revenue to the Government, or land of which the revenue has been assigned or redeemed, and the Court considers that the interests of those concerned will be promoted by the management of the Collector the Court may, with the consent of the Collector, appoint him to be receiver of such property. [S. 504]

The rule exactly corresponds with s. 504 of the C. P. Code, 1882

ORDER XLI.

APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES.

Form of appeal. What to accompany memorandum.

1. (1) Every appeal shall be preferred in the form of a memorandum signed by the appellant or his pleader and presented to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf. The memorandum shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed from and (unless the Appellate Court dispenses therewith) of the judgment on which it is founded.

Contents of memorandum.

(2) The memorandum shall set forth, concisely and under distinct heads, the grounds of objection to the decree appealed from without any argument or narrative; and such grounds shall be numbered consecutively. [S. 541.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 541, C P. Code, 1882, with some additions.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of the old section, with change of some words and phrases No alteration seems to have been made in the meaning The word "every" has been substituted for the word "the" in the beginning; the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made"; and the words, "signed by the appellant or his pleader and presented to the Court or to such officer as it appoints in this behalf," have been substituted for the words "in writing presented by the appellant." The first para. of s 541 ran as follows. "The appeal shall be made in the form of a memorandum in writing presented by the appellant, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed against, and unless the Appellate Court dispenses therewith of the judgment on which it is founded."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of the old section, with some verbal alterations only.

The provisions of this Order are subject to the general provisions contained in Part VII of the Code.

Presentation and Certification of Grounds of Appeal.—A vakalatnama executed in favour of two vakils was accepted only by one who presented the appeal. The appeal was subsequently transferred to the Sub-judge, who held that it had not been duly presented, and made an order rejecting it. Held, that the appeal had been duly presented —Ayyanna v. Nagarbhooshanam, 16 M. 285. But where a memorandum of appeal is presented by a vakil whose name does not appear in the vakalatnama throu-an oversight, it cannot be said to be properly presented In such a case the appeal should be dismissed though the objection as to its validity was taken at a very late stage of the proceedings (after the order of remand) —Muhammad v. Jas Ram, 36 A. 46. Presentation by a pleader other than the one duly authorized is not a valid presentation, Chittar v. Laxmi Narain, 62 I. C. 259 A power of attorney expressly authorizing presentation of the appeal is sufficient.—Kura v. Udmi, 7 Lah. L J 29 86 I C. 209: A I. R 1925 Lah. 331.

Where a pleader who has signed the memorandum of appeal refuses to argue the case on the ground of unpreparedness, he is liable to be either dealt with by the Court for neglect of duty, or sued by the client for neglect of his interests.—Buldeo Misser v Ahmed Hossein, 13 W. R 149.

A pleader is not guilty of grossly improper conduct, if he examines copies of the record, and not the original record, before he draws the grounds of appeal and certifies them.—In the matter of Noor Ahmed, 17 W R. 338.

Pleaders should see that the grounds of appeal they certify to are full, and need no addition.—Ram Kristo v. Raj Chunder, 11 W. R 246

The presentation of an appeal by a person who is not an advocate, vakil, or attorney of the Court, nor suitor is not a valid presentation in law.—Shiam Karam v. Raghunakdan, 22 A. 331.

Where a party appealing to the High Court is himself a vakil of the Court he is not at liberty to certify his own grounds of appeal —Thakur Dass v. Ameer Mundal, 14 W. R. 168.

Date of Presentation of Appeal for the Purposes of Limitation.—As to the period of limitation for appeals, see, Limitation Act, 1908, Sch I, Arts. 151, 152 and 156; see also, ss. 5 and 12.

The date of presentation of an appeal for the purposes of limitation should be reckoned from the date of the presentation of the memo of appeal and not from the date on which the deficit Court-fees are paid— See, s. 149, and the cases noted thereunder

An appeal under the C. P. Code, is not preferred within the meaning of s 3 of the Limitation Act unless it is accompanied by the copies required by the Code.—Balkaram Rai v. Gobind Nath, 12 A. 129 (2 A. 241, 832, 875, and 24 W. R. 258 referred to). See also, Yakutunnissa v Kishoree Mohun, 19 C. 747.

For the purposes of limitation, an appeal is preferred when the memorandum of appeal is presented to the proper officer, and not when, where the memorandu [illegible] stamped, and is returned to order that the [illegible] again presented When an Appellate ([illegible] mped memorandum of appeal, in order that it may be sufficiently stamped, it should fix a time within which the deficiency is to be supplied —Sheo Partab v. Sheo Gholam, 2 A. 875 (1 A. 16 referred to).

The words " where there has been an appeal," in Art. 182, clause 2, of Schedule II, of the Limitation Act, mean where a memorandum of appeal has been presented in Court. In execution of a decree against which an appeal has been presented, but rejected on the ground that it was after time, limitation begins to run from the date of the final decree or order of the Appellate Court.—Akshoy Kumar v. Chunder Mohun, 16 C. 250.

Where a guardian ad litem of a defendant-respondent was not made a party to an appeal filed by the plaintiff until after the period of limitation for filing such appeal had expired, the appeal was not barred for this reason.—Rupchand v. Dasodha, 30 A. 55 (4 A. 37 followed).

To be Accompanied by Copy of Decree and Judgment.—An appellant filed an appeal without a copy of the decree. Subsequently he filed the decree within the time allowed for appeal and the Judge accepted it. Held, that the irregularity was cured and the appeal should not have been dismissed on the ground of such irregularity.—Luller v. Ram Pershad, 2 Agra 84. But if a copy of the decree is filed after the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed for the appeal, the appeal is time-barred because there is no valid appeal until a copy of the decree is filed. —Quasin Ali v. Bhagwanta, 40 A. 62. On the same principle, the appeal must be dismissed as time-barred if the memorandum is not accompanied by a copy of the judgment.—Dhanput Mal v. Mela Mal, (1917) P. R. No. 67, p. 251: 41 I. C. 918.

A memorandum of appeal is not a good memorandum of appeal in law, unless it is accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed against. The Court cannot dispense with it and a copy of the judgment only is not sufficient.—Chamela Kuar v. Amin Khan, 16 A. 77; Bhawani v. Kallu, 17 A. 537 (553); Chaturbhuj Sahay v. Muhammad Habil, 54 I. C. 36; Quasim Ali v. Bhagwanta, 40 A. 12; Bashi Ram v. Municipal Committee Chiniot, 4 Lah. L. J. 193; Sundaram Aiyar v. Muthuramalinga, 44 M. L. J. 279: 72 I. C. 308: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 482; Mubarak v. Secy. of State, 6 Lah. 218: A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 438. A copy merely of the judgment is not sufficient even if the decree has not yet been drawn up.—Bashi Ram v. Chinot Municipality, 4 Lah. L. J. 193: A. I. R 1922 Lah. 191.

An order determining any question referred to in s. 47, is a decree under s 2; when therefore an appeal is preferred against such an order it is sufficient to attach to the memorandum of appeal a copy of the order itself and it is not necessary to attach to the memorandum a copy of the decree even though such decree may have been drawn up. In the case however of a suit or proceedings which have the character of a suit (e.g., contentious probate proceedings, etc), it is necessary to file a copy of the decree.—Khirod Sundari v. Jnanendra Nath, 6 C. W. N. 283 Distinguished in Gopal Chandra v. Preo Nath, 32 C 175

A second appeal filed without a copy of the trial Court's judgment within time is not competent inasmuch as Or. XLI, r. 1 C. P. Code, requires that only a copy of the lower Appellate Courts' judgment is to be filed and does not require the filing of the judgment of the trial Court.—Ramdeo Singh v Makhan Singh, (1923) Pat 19: 74 I. C. 330.

Under the rules of the Allahabad High Court, a copy of judgment appealed from is required to be presented with the memorandum of appeal under cl. 10 of the Letters Patent—Fuzul Mohammad v. Phul Kuar, 2 A. 192.

Where from the decree in a suit two appeals were preferred and two decrees were drawn up by the Appellate Court, Or XLI, r. 1, C. P. Code requires both decrees to be filed for the presentation of a second appeal to be valid.—Mahommad Dai v. Musst. Zerunnissa, 3 Lah. 215

An appeal if presented in time is validly presented for the purpose of the Limitation Act if it is accompained by copies required by the C P. Code. The High Court has no power to frame a rule modifying any rule or mode as to computation of limitation prescribed in the Limitation Act.—Shuni Lal v. Dahyabhai, 32 B. 14: 9 Bom L R 1138.

Delay in Presenting Appeal—Discretionary Power of Court to excuse —Sufficient Cause.—Section 5 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), provides that an appeal may be admitted after the period of limitation if the appellant satisfies the Court that he had " sufficient cause " for not preferring the appeal within such period.

Section 5 of the Limitation Act is a mandatory section, but does not exclude the discretionary power of the Court to excuse delay in presenting an appeal.—Shrimant Sagajirao v. Smith, 20 B. 736

The presentation of an appeal to a wrong Court under a bona fide mistake may be " sufficient cause " within the meaning of section 5 of the Limitation Act.—Dadabhai Jamsetji v. Maneksha, 21 B. 552 See also, Balaram v. Sham Sundar, 23 C. 526 (5 A. 591 followed). But see Dadabhai v. Emnabhai, 28 B. 235.

The time during which an appellant was prosecuting his application under s. 108, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r. 13), should not be excluded in computing the period of limitation for presenting an appeal Section 14 of Limitation Act does not apply to appeals but only to suits—Ardha Chandra v Matangini, 23 C. 325.

The words " sufficient cause " should receive a liberal construction, so as to advance substantial justice, when no negligence, nor inaction, nor want of bona fides, is imputable to the appellant Where the appellants being themselves pleaders, and well acquainted with the facts of the case, preferred the appeal to a wrong Court, they had not acted in good faith, but with gross negligence and carelessness and are not entitled to extension of time under s. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Sarat Chandra v Saraswati Debi, 34 C 216: 5 C. L J. 380. See also, Gobinda Lal v Shibdas, 33 C. 1323 · 10 C. W. N. 986: 3 C. L. J. 545.

When the time for appealing is once passed, the Court must be fully satisfied of the justice of the grounds on which it is sought to obtain an extension of time —Karsondas v. Gungabai, 30 B. 329: 7 Bom L R 965. See also, Bhim Rao v. Ayyappa, 31 B. 33: 8 Bom. L R 853

When owing to the mistake of the clerk of the appellant's pleader, certain persons were not added as respondents till after the period for preferring the appeal had expired. Held, that as the omission was not intentional, the appeal should be heard as duly filed.—Promoda Nath v Kinoo Mollah, 13 C. W. N. 167 · 8 C. L. J. 135. See also, Rup Chand v. Dasodha, 30 A. 55.

Where the original decree was signed on the 6th July, 1903, and the plaintiffs applied for amendment of the decree and the amendment was made on the 22nd August. Held, that the period of limitation for presentation of an appeal should be reckoned from the 22nd August as the date when the correct decree was prepared. Amar Chandra v. Asad Ali, 32 C. 908. Referred to in Brojo Lal v. Tara Prosanna, 3 C. L. J. 188. See also, Visvanathan v. Ramanathan, 21 M. 646, where the decree was amended and appeal was allowed to be preferred from the amended decree, though the appeal against the original decree was barred.

When a memorandum of appeal was filed accompanied by a copy of the judgment and by a translation of the decree in Urdu and where the attention of the counsel filing the appeal was drawn to the fact that a copy of the original decree in English should have been filed.—Held, that there was no sufficient cause for extending the time within the meaning of s. 5 of the Limitation Act inasmuch as counsel had been put on his guard and he was remiss in not making a further application for the copy of the decree in English.—Daim v. Hayat, 4 Lah. L J. 381.

Section 5 of the Limitation Act gives a discretion to a Court to admit an appeal filed out of time, for sufficient cause. Poverty is " not sufficient cause " within the meaning of that section.—Manickya Moyee v. Baroda Prasad, 9 C. 355 · 11 C. L R 430; Moshaullah v. Ahmedullah, 13 C. 78; Huro Chunder v. Surma Moyi, 13 C 266; Husaini Begum v. Collector of Muzaffarnagar, 9 A. 11 and 655.

The discretion conferred by s. 5 of the Limitation Act, is a discretion which the Court cannot exercise loosely, but which should be exercised on a consideration of the circumstances of each case as it arises. At the same time the words " sufficient cause " should receive a liberal construction, so as to advance substantial justice when no negligence, nor inaction, nor want of bona fides is imputable to the appellant.—Kichilappa Naicker v. Ramanujam, 25 M. 166.

When the High Court refused to admit an appeal filed out of time, the Judicial Committee refused to interfere with the discretion exercised by the High Court.—Ram Narain v. Parmeshwar Narain, 30 C 309, P. C. See also, Hamid Ali v Gaya Din, 26 A. 327.

When a lower Appellate Court admits an appeal filed out of time, the High Court ought not to interfere with the discretion exercised by the District Court in admitting the appeal under s. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Fatima Begum v. Hansi, 9 A. 244. See Parvati v. Ganpati, 23 B. 513

Presentation of an appeal within the period of limitation prescribed therefor to a wrong Court in ignorance of the provision of law, is not a sufficient cause within the meaning of s. 5 of the Limitation Act, for admitting the same appeal in the proper Court after the period of limitation prescribed therefor had expired.—Jog Lal v. Har Narain, 10 A. 524. and Ram Jiwan v. Chand Mal, 10 A. 587.

Delay in filing appeal—Sufficient cause—Deduction of time spent in another litigation in respect of the same subject matter—Mistake of law. Held, that the time spent in the actual proceedings in the suit to set aside the order in execution might be deducted in computing the delay that occurred before the appeal was filed. But the plaintiff was not entitled to a deduction of the time that intervened between the date of the ord appealed against and the date of filing the suit.—Siatram v. Nimba Valad, 12 B. 320. Explained in Dadabhai Jamsetji v. Naneksha, 21 B. 352

The mere presentation of an application for review where it is not shown that the grounds therefor are reasonable and proper, is not a sufficient reason for admitting an appeal after the period of limitation prescribed for such appeal has passed.—Ashanulla v. Collector of Dacca, 15 C. 242.

Where an appellant was misled by his legal adviser as to the course to be followed, he is entitled to the benefit of s. 5 of the Limitation Act—Kura Mal v. Ram Nath, 28 A. 414: 3 A. L. J. 218, followed in Anjora Kunwar v. Babu, 29 A. 638: 4 A. L. J. 515.

A mistake in law may be under some circumstances a "sufficient cause" for admitting an appeal presented out of time—Krishna v. Chathappan, 13 M. 269. But see, the judgment of Mahomood, J., in Bechi v. Ashanullah, 12 A. 461 (13 C. 266 dissented from).

Withdrawal of appeal by an appellant by which the respondent loses the opportunity of having his cross-objections heard affords no sufficient reason for enlarging the time for the cross-appeal which he might have presented —Chudasama v. Iswargar, 16 B. 249.

After admission and registration of appeal by District Judge, whether Sub-Judge can dismiss it on the ground of limitation —See notes under rule 9.

Time Requisite for Obtaining Copy—Exclusion of Time in Computing Period of Limitation for Appeals.—See, s. 12 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), by which the time requisite for obtaining copies of decree and judgment is excluded.

The time which intervenes between the putting in of stamps and obtaining a copy of the decree should be excluded from the time prescribed for the presentation of an appeal.—Lall Gopal Nath v. Pud... Koonwar, 5 W. R. Mis. 44; Gopee Nath v. Gopee Nath, 6 W. R Mis 116

Time requisite for copies of decree and judgment should be excluded from the computation of the time. The application for copy need not be made by the appellant or his authorized agent; it is not necessary to show for what purpose the copies were obtained.—Ram Kishen v. Kashi Ba... 29 A. 264: 4 A. L J. 152.

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal, the appellant is, as a matter of right entitled to deduct the number of days required for taking a copy of the decree only. The word "decree" in this rule does not include the "judgment."—Jagarnath v. Sheoratan 24 W. R 105; 15 B. L. R. 272, F. B.; Haril Pattuck v. Bhowaniram, 15 B. L R 273-note: 21 W. R. 308. See, however, Haji Hassum v. Nur Mahomed, 23 B. 643

Application for copy of decree—Delay in filing the papers and fees for the copy—The mode of computing the period of limitation for appeals—Nobin Chunder v. Brojendro Coomar, 12 C. L. R. 541. See also, Ramanuja v. Narayana, 18 M. 374.

So long as the right of appeal is subsisting, an appellant is entitled under s. 12 of the Limitation Act, 1877, to apply for the copy of the lower Court's decree. The time requisite for obtaining such copy should be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for the appeal — Tukaram v. Pandurang, 25 B. 584 (19 A. 342 followed). See also, Pandhari Nath v. Shankar, 25 B. 586 (19 A 342 followed)

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the judgment appealed from cannot be deducted, such copy not being required under the rules of the High Court to be presented with the memorandum of appeal.—Fazel Muhammad v. Phul Kuar, 2 A. 192.

When a decree for possession of immoveable property directs an enquiry into the amount of mesne profits under s. 212, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XX, r. 12), and an order is finally made determining the amount and formal decree is necessary to be drawn up. and when the final order or decree is appealed against, the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree shall be excluded, in computing the period of limitation prescribed for the appeal —Gopal Chandra v. Preonath, 32 C. 175 (6 C. W. N. 283 distinguished) See also, Beer Chunder v. Mohamed Asgur, W. R. 1864, 145.

Where a suitor is unable to obtain a copy of a decree from which he desires to appeal by reason of the decree being unsigned, he is entitled under s. 12 of the Limitation Act to deduct the time between the delivery of the judgment and that of the signing of the decree in computing the time taken in presenting his appeal.—Beni Madhaub v. Matungini, 13 C. 104, F. B. (10 C. 652 overruled; 11 W. R. 512 referred to). But see, Bechi v. Ahsanuulah, 12 A 461.

The " time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree " appealed against which under s. 12 of the Limitation Act, is to be excluded in computing the period of limitation for an appeal is determined when the copy is ready for delivery.—Gopal Chunder v. Brojo Behary, 9 C. L R. 293.

In computing the period of limitation for an appeal, a party is not entitled to deduct the period during which the lower Court was closed, when he could have made such application before the Court closed and where on the day he actually applied the period limited for appeal had expired.—Venkata Row v. Venkata Chella, 28 M. 452 (25 B. 584 and 586 distinguished).

Where a decree was passed on the 22nd September, an application for a copy was not made until the 29th, and then with insufficient folios, and the Court was closed for the vacation from 30th September to 1st November, the deficient folios being filed on the day it reopened, 2nd November, the copy delivered on the 6th, and the appeal filed on the 14th. Held, that the appeal was out of time, the appellant not being entitled to a deduction of the time occupied in ascertaining what the requisite number of folios was.—Gunga Dass v. Ram Joy, 12 C. 30. But see, Duldit Bewra v. Sardar Kinkar, 3 C. W. N. 55; Siyadatunissa v. Muhammad, 19 A. 342; Kali Sankar v. Baikanta Nath, 7 C. W. N. 109; Nawab Syed Amir Hossain v. Tulsi Dass, 8 C. W. N. 141; and Saminatha v. Venkatasubba, 27 M. 21.

On a petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council presented on the 8th April, it appeared that the period of six months from the date of the decree to be appealed against had expired on the 23rd of March, if the time occupied by the petitioner in getting a copy of the decree was to be computed in that period. Held, that the petition was barred by limitation.—Lakshmanan v. Periyasami, 10 M. 373.

Sections 5 and 12 of the Limitation Act apply to applications under s. 596 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 110), for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.—Shib Singh v. Gandhrup Singh, 28 A. 391: 3 A L J 109 (See s. 5 of the Limitation Act, 1908, as amended)

The provisions of s. 12 of the Limitation Act do not apply to appeals under s. 69 of the Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865)—Kumara v. Sithala, 20 M. 476.

The provisions of s. 5 of Limitation Act do not apply to Registration Act.—Baban Sahai v. Udit Narain, 5 C. L. J. 188. But see, Suraj Bux v. Thomas, 28 A. 48: 2 A. L. J. 714.

Exclusion of Time Occupied in Seeking Review of Judgment.—An appellant is not entitled as of right to the exclusion of the time occupied by him in seeking a review of judgment, in the computation of the time within which his appeal is preferred.—Govinda v Bhandari, 14 M 81 See also, Nobokissen v. Kaminee, B. L. R Sup. Vol 349: 2 W R Mis 35; Vasudeva v. Chunia Sami, 7 M. 584. But see, Kuller Singh v. Jewan Singh, 22 W R. 79; In the petition of Brojendro Coomar, B L. R. Sup. Vol 728: 7 W. R. 529; and Poresh Nath v. Gopal Krishto, 15 W. R. 61. Though, under certain circumstances, the presentation of an application for review may be considered as sufficient cause for delay in filing an appeal, the appellant is bound to satisfy the Court that such circumstances did exist in his case, and that he had sufficient cause for not presenting the appeal within the prescribed period.—Pundlik v Achut, 18 B. 84. The mere presentation of an application for review where it is not shown that the grounds therefor are reasonable and proper, is not a sufficient reason for admitting an appeal after the period of limitation prescribed for such appeal has passed.—Ashanulla v. Collector of Dacca, 15 C. 242.

The general rule for extending the time to prefer an appeal and for excluding the time taken up in prosecuting an application for review is, that the delay may be excused if the applicant can show that he had reasonable grounds for applying for review instead of preferring an appeal —Gobinda Lal v. Shibdas, 33 C. 1323: 3 C. L. J. 545: 10 C. W. N 986 (See the cases referred to in this case).

What is or what is not sufficient cause within the meaning of s 5 of the Limitation Act, depends upon the circumstances of each particular case Bona fide application for review is a sufficient cause for not presenting an appeal within the prescribed period. An application for review made without any good reason is not made bona fide merely because it was admitted in the first instance.—Haradhan v. Pran Krishna, 10 C L J. 39 (33 C. 1323: 3 C. L. J. 545: 10 C. W. N. 986 referred to)

Other Sufficient Cause for Delay.—Two suits brought at the same time by executors raising same questions of construction in respect of the same will—Similar decisions in both suits—On appeal in one suit the decree of the lower Court was reversed—Subsequent application for leave to appeal in the second after expiry of time. Held, that there was no sufficient cause for the delay.—Thucker Vussonji v. Canji, 14 B. 365.

A mistake in law is under no circumstances a sufficient cause within the meaning of s. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Krishna v. Chathapan, 13 M. 269 Referred to in 33 C. 1323: 10 C. W. N. 986: 3 C. L J. 545.

But where the guardian of a minor neglected to appeal, leave to appeal was granted to the minor under section 5 of the Limitation Act after attaining majority.—Cursandas v. Ladkavahoo, 20 B. 104. See, however, Thurai Rajah v. Jainilobdeen, 18 M. 484.

Stamp on Memorandum of Appeals.—The Court-fees which an appellant has to pay on a memorandum of appeal from a decree which gives him only partial relief are to be calculated upon the difference between the value of the relief which he claims and the relief granted by the decree appealed against.—Lukhun Chunder v. Khoda Buksh, 19 C. 279.

The Deputy Registrar has no authority to return an insufficiently stamped appeal The right course for that officer is to lay the matter before the Court. But if the appellant is ready to pay what is required, then, whether the time for filing the appeal has expired or not, the Deputy Registrar is bound to receive it if it was originally presented in time —Ambur Ali v. Kali Chand, 24 W. R. 258

The subject-matter of an appeal should be valued for the purpose of jurisdiction according to the law in force at the date of the appeal, and not of the suit which has led to it. For the purpose of jurisdiction, a claim under section 331, C. P Code, 1882, is a fresh suit, and not a continuation of the suit in which the claim is made —Mutummal v. Chinnana, 4 M. 220.

Petitions of appeals in cases to obtain an order for measurement may be written on the stamp used for miscellaneous petitions —Smith v Nundan Lal, 6 W. R., Act X., 13

Where a zemindar values his right to measure at a certain amount, the petition of appeal must be written on a regular stamp according to such valuation and not upon a stamp used for miscellaneous petitions —Ooma Churn v. Shib Nath, W. R. 14.

Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal from an order of reference under the Land Acquisition Act is that prescribed by art. 11 of Schedule II of the Court-fees Act —Harish Chandra v Bhoba Tarini, 8 C. W. N. 321.

In an appeal in a suit for recovery of profits under section 93 (h) of the North-Western Province Rent Act in respect of several years, the proper Court-fee leviable on the memorandum of appeal is one calculated on the aggregate amount of the profits claimed, and not one calculated separately on the amount of profits claimed for each year —Muhammad Malik v Nirhai Bibi, 7 A 761.

An appeal to the District Court from the rejection of a claim by a forest settlement-officer, under clause 2 of section 10 of the Madras Forest

Act of 1882, falls under Art. 17, clause 6, and not under Art 11 (a) of Schedule II of the Court Fees Act, 1870.—Kamaraja v. Secretary of State, 8 M. 22.

The Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal from an order under s. 523, C. P. Code, 1882, disallowing an application to file an agreement to refer to an arbitration, is ad valorem fee computed on the value of the subject-matter in dispute in the appeal.—Daya Nand v. Bakhtawar 5 A. 333.

An appeal from the decision of a dispute under s 332 B, C. P Code, 1882, falls directly within the exception of art. 11, Schedule II of the Court Fees Act, and the memorandum of appeal should therefore be presented as for a decree in a suit upon an ad valorem stamp —Ahmad Khan v. Madho Das, 7 A. 565 (4 M. 420 dissented from).

The stamp-fee payable on appeals to the High Courts in suits asking for "partition, the separation of a share, and for khas possession of the share after separation," is that leviable under art. 6, clause 17, Schedule II, of the Court Fees Act. For the purposes of jurisdiction the Court should be guided by the value of the property in suit, but the amount of the stamp-fee should be governed by a different principle —Kirty Churn v. Aunath Naih, 8 C. 757. 11 C. L. R. 95.

A memorandu [illegible] directing ejectment and awarding mesne-profits [illegible] lculated both on the land and on the [illegible] .Lakshminarasimham, 16 M. 310.

For the purposes of determining the stamp-fee payable on an appeal a suit for possession and mesne-profits is to be taken as one entire claim and not two distinct subjects.—Kishori Lal v. Sharut Chunder, 8 C 593 10 C. L. R. 359. See also, Reference under the Court Fees Act, 1870, 16 A. 401 and Bunwari Lal v. Daya Sankar, 13 C. W. N. 815

In a suit in the Court of a Sub-Judge to redeem certain land on payment of Rs. 1,625, being a quarter of a debt for which it had been mortgaged, together with other land, a decree was passed for redemption of part of the land, but the Court held the plaintiff had not established his right to the rest. The plaintiff appealed to the High Court, paying ad valorem Court-fees computed on the value of the land exonerated only. Held, that the ad valorem Court-fee should be computed one-fourth of the mortgage debt, and that the appeal lay to the District Court—Vasudeva v. Madhava, 16 M. 326.

Memorandum of Appeal to lower Appellate Court was insufficiently stamped—Up to the date of hearing the special appeal, the deficit Court-fee was not paid. Held, that the proper procedure was not to dismiss the appeal in the lower Appellate Court but to stay issuing of the decree until the deficit Court-fee is paid.—Mohan Lal v. Nand Kishore, 28 A. 270 (20 A. 362 followed).

Refund where Memorandum of Appeal is Overstamped.—Where in an appeal to the High Court the memorandum of appeal is overstamped that Court has no power to direct a refund of the amount paid in excess Such a refund can only be granted by the collector of the district on an application to him made in his behalf.—In re Lalta Prasad v. Sheoraj Singh, 57 I. C. 26.

Form of Memorandum of appeal.—For Form of Memorandum of Appeal, see App. G, Form No. 1.

Ground which may be taken in appeal.

2. The appellant shall not except by leave of the Court, urge or be heard in support of any ground of objection not set forth in the memorandum of appeal; but the Appellate Court, in deciding the appeal, shall not be confined to the grounds of objection set forth in the memorandum of appeal or taken by leave of the Court under this rule:

Provided that the Court shall not rest its decision on any other ground unless the party who may be affected thereby has had a sufficient opportunity of contesting the case on that ground. [S. 542.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 542, C P Code, with some alterations. Some of the words and phrases of the old section have been changed, but no change seems to have been made in the meaning. The language of the present rule has been made more clear by substitution of some appropriate words and phrases.

The words "except by" have been substituted for the word "without;" the words "any ground of objection not set forth in the memorandum of appeal," have been substituted for the words "any other ground of objection"; the words "grounds of objection set forth in the memorandum of appeal or taken by leave of the Court this rule," have been substituted for the words "grounds set forth by the appellant"

In the proviso the words "unless the party who may be affected thereby," have been substituted for the word "respondent" The other changes are merely verbal.

Grounds of Objection.—The grounds of objection must be such as are necessary for the decision of the case and arise from the pleadings and evidence—Nabar v. Ojoodhyaram, 10 M. I. A. 540, 558.

In an appeal the applicant must not be permitted to make out a new case or a case different from and inconsistent with the case set up by him in the lower Court.—Indur Chunder v Radha Kishore, 19 C. 507; Annamalay v. Pitchu, 28 M. 122; Gajapathi v Vasudeva, 15 M. 503; Ilahi Khan v. Sher Ali, 26 A 331; Puran Mal v Kran Singh, 20 A 8, 10; Ram Chand v. Ramanand, 3 Lah L. J. 392: 68 I. C. 227; Basant Ram v. Muhammad, 4 Lah. L. J. 293.

Grounds Not Set Forth in the Memorandum of Appeal.—Although, as a rule, the Court will not permit grounds of appeal to be taken in argument which have not been taken in the memorandum of appeal, yet, where a decree comes before it which is upon its very face illegal, the Court is bound to take up the point itself and rectify the mistake.—Paran Sookh v. Parbutty 3 C. 612: 1 C.L. R. 404. See also, Vemi Reddi v. Nallappa Reddi, 11 L. W. 611.

Held that, in disposing of a second appeal, the High Court is competent under this rule to consider the question whether the plaintiff has any cause of action of not although such question has not been raised by the defendant appellant in the Courts below, or in his memorandum of second appeal, but is raised for the first time at the hearing of such appeal.—Luchman Prasad v. Bahadur Singh, 2 A. 884.

Held, that not only may the plea of res judicata, though not taken in the memorandum of appeal, be entertained in second appeal under this rule but that even when such plea has not been urged in either of the lower Courts, or in the memorandum of appeal, if raised in the second appeal, it must be considered and determined either upon the record as it stands or after a remand for findings of facts.—Muhamad Ismail v. Chattar Singh, 4 A 69. See also, Koylash Nath v. Monmohiney, Marsh 276: 2 Hay 154; Mugnamoye v. Hur Chunder, 3 W. R Act X, 146

The principle that an Appellate Court should not go beyond the subject-matter of the appeal applies to an objection, called a cross appeal, which enables the respondent to take any objection to the decision of the lower Court which he might have taken if he had preferred a separate appeal. An Appellate Court was held to have acted without authority, and to have contravened the Court Fees Act, in having voluntarily suggested what it thought to be an error of the Court below, and allowed the respondent to take it as an objection, giving effect to the objection subject to the payment of the Court-fee stamp.—Soonduree Debee v Gobind Monee, 24 W. R. 179.

This rule was intended to confer upon the Court a power exerciseable by it alone; it was not intended to enable an appellant to take the respondent by surprise by urging a matter of which he had no notice.—Banarsi v. Sita Ram, 13 A. 381.

A ground not taken in the memorandum of appeal cannot be allowed to be urged successfully.—Gourmoni v. Jugul Chunder, 17 C. 57 (64)

Unless such objection is taken in his memorandum of appeal, it is not open to an appellant at the hearing of an appeal from the decree to question the validity of an order of remand previously made in the same suit under s. 562 of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Tilak Raj Singh v Chakradhari Singh, 15 A. 119

Where non-joinder of parties in a mortgage suit is brought to the notice of the Court, the Court will give effect to the objection and dismiss the suit even though such objection be raised for the first time in appeal.—Ghulam Kadir v. Mustakin Khan, 18 A. 109

Where the finding of the lower Appellate Court against the factum of adoption was not questioned in the grounds of second appeal, held, validity of the adoption could not be allowed to be urged at the further proceedings; Rajambal Ammal v. Shunmuga Mudaliar, 70 I. C. 653.

An objection to the jurisdiction of the Court was allowed to be taken r the first time in appeal.—Ranchod Morar v. Bezanji Edulji, 20 B. 86. :e also, Ramayya v. Subbarayudu, 13 M. 25 and Ajodhyanath v. Keshub iundra, 11 C. W. N. 1127.

Appellant not allowed to raise in appeal a contention inconsistent with e case relied upon in the Courts below.—Gajapathi Radhika v Vasu-va, 15 M. 503 (12 M. I. A 470 followed) See also, Ilthikhan v. Sher i, 26 A. 331.

Where a document was admitted in evidence by the first Court with-it any objection by the parties, but the Appellate Court rejected it on e ground that it was insufficiently stamped, although no objection was ade to it in the memorandum of appeal. Held, that the Appellate ourt ought not to have rejected it —Kastur Bhavani v. Appa, 5 B. 621.

An *objection to the form of the notice of sale under section 8 of Ben-*l Regulation VIII of 1819 was allowed to be taken for the first time in e Appellate Court —Ashanulla Khan v. Hari Charan, 20 C. 86 P. C.

Objection upon the Question of Limitation—Though an objection upon e question of limitation was not raised in the memo, of appeal, leave ould yet be given to argue it when the point arose on the face of the aint, and no question of fact had to be enquired into to enable the Court dispose of it and when the point was thus taken, the Court was bound give effect to it, the provisions of section 3 of the Limitation Act being andatory.—Balaram v Mangta Das, 34 C. 941 F. B.· 11 C. W. N. 9: 6 C. L. J 237 (13 A. 580, 15 A. 123, and several other cases ferred to in the order of reference).

An appellant in a second appeal raised orally at the hearing a plea t taken in his memorandum of appeal to the effect that the respondents' peal to the lower Court (where they had been appellants) had been rred by limitation when it was presented. Held that, even though the ea proposed to be raised was one involving a question of limitation, the pellant was not entitled as of right to be heard in support of it without e leave of the Court granted under this rule —Ahmad Ali v Waris osain, 15 A. 123 (8 B. 535, referred to). See also, Ram Kishan v. Dipa, A. 580; Deonarain v Webb, 28 C. 86; Venkata v. Bhasyakarlu, 25 367; Bhadai v. Shaikh Manwar, 4 Pat L J 645, 649-59

An appellant in regular appeal may not, at one hearing, raise a con-ntion of law expressly abandoned by him in the Court below, and not ntained in the memorandum of appeal —Pabitra Dasi v. Damudar, 7 . L. R. 697 24 W R 397-note. But see, Abdullah v Asraf Ali, 7 . L J. 152, where it has been held that the question of limitation, raised the written statement, but abandoned in the Court of the first instance in be raised in the Court of Appeal, as it is a clear question of law.

Court competent to raise question of limitation not raised by the arties—Time requisite for obtaining copy of decree—Exclusion of time etween delivery of judgment and signing of decree—Exclusion of time etween furnishing of estimate of costs of copy and compliance with esti-iate.—Bechi v. Ashanullah 12 A. 461 (7 W. R. 337· 13 C. 104 dissent-d from).

Effect of Not Raising or Waiving an Objection in the Lower Court.—As a general rule, objections not taken in the lower Court ought not to be allowed to be set up in the Appellate Court; but where the Judge in appeal had allowed such an objection to be taken, and had overruled it, the High Court allowed it to be raised in special appeal, and being of opinion that it was a valid objection, reversed the decision of the Court below.—Dinabandhu v. Surendra Nath, 3 B. L. R. A. C. 78-note: 10 W. R. 77.

The errors of procedure of the Court of first instance are not to be remedied when they have not been made a ground of complaint before the lower Appellate Court.—Anurup Chandra v. Hiramani, 3 B. L. R. Ap 35: 11 W. R. 418.

An objection which if taken might have been cured and which has not been taken in the Court below cannot be taken in the Court of Appeal.—Dhurm Dass v. Shama Soondery, 6 W. R. P. C. 43: 3 M L A 229. See also, Nural Hossein v. Sheosahai, 20 C. 1.

A plaintiff will not be allowed to raise any objection as to defendant's setting up alternative defences, at the appellate stage of the suit where no such objection was raised in the first court.—Purender Narain v. Devijendra Narain, 8 C. L. J. 289.

An objection as to the plaintiff having no cause of action may be taken at any stage of the suit.—Parbati Charan v. Kalinath, 6 B. L. R. Ap 73 See also Lachman v. Bahadur Singh; 2 A. 884. But see, Kalicoomar v. Bromomoyce, 1 W. R. 23; and Sudakhina v. Raj Mohan, 11 W. R. 330.

An objection as to non-joinder and defect of parties cannot be allowed to be raised in appeal. Such objection should be taken at the first hearing.—Paramasiva v. Krishna, 14 M. 498. But see, Ghulam Khadir v. Mustakim Khan, 18 A. 109 (13 A. 432, 16 A. 478, and 17 A. 537, referred to). An objection as to misjoinder of cause of action cannot be taken for the first time in appeal.—Maula v. Gulzari, 16 A 130 (5 B 554 followed)

An objection to the jurisdiction of the Court may be taken for the first time in appeal.—Ranchod Morar v. Bezanji Edulji, 20 B 86 But the objection cannot be taken in appeal, where the question is not a pure question of law, but depends upon facts.—Biru Mahata v. Shyama Charan, 22 C. 483.

An objection not raised in the lower Court cannot be raised for the first time in appeal.—Magon Lal v. Govind Lal, 15 B. 697.

Question of permanent tenancy cannot be raised for the first time in the appeal.—Mahabir Pershad v. Fox, 9 C. L. J. 467.

An objection not taken in cross-appeal before the lower Appellate Court cannot be taken in special appeal; but, if the case be remanded for new trial, such objection may then be taken before the Court of first instance.—Durgaram v. Norsing Deb, 2 B. L. R. A. C. 354: 11 W. R. 1[illegible]

An objection that an attachment under s. 240 of Act VIII of 1859 was invalid, because the formalities required by s. 239 had not been complied with was not allowed to be taken on appeal, it not having been raised in the Courts below.—Ram Krishna v. Sarfunnissa, 6 C. L. R. [illegible]

Where objection to the validity of the award, on the ground that it was made beyond the time allowed, was not taken by the defendant in the first Court, held, that he was not thereby estopped from raising the objection for the first time in appeal, inasmuch as it was not shown that, in the first Court, he was aware of the defect or had done anything to imply consent to extension of the time.—Chuha Mal v. Hari Ram, 8 A. 548.

If no objection is taken in the Court of first instance to the reception of a document in evidence, it is not within the province of the Appellate Court to raise or recognize it in appeal.—Chimnaji Govind v. Dinkar Dhondev, 11 B. 320. No objection should be allowed to be taken in the Appellate Court as to the admissibility of a copy of a document which was admitted in evidence in the Court below without any objection.—Kishori Lal v. Rakhal Das, 31 C. 142 (19 A. 76, P. C., distinguished); Hridoy Krishna v. Prasanna Kumari, 28 C. 142 (19 A. 76, P C., distinguished). See also, Shahazadi Begum v. Secretary of State, 34 C. 1059, P. C.: 6 C. L. J. 678: 9 Bom. L. R. 1192; and Ram Prasad v. Sham Narain, 6 C. L. J. 22.

Held, that the Court is bound in regular appeal to entertain an objection that a document is invalid for want of registration, even though no objection may have been raised to its admissibility in the Court below.—Basawa v. Kalkapa, 2 B. 489; Oomatool Fatima v. Vhunnoo, 19 W. R. 22. But see, Girish Chunder v. Amina Khatum, 3 B. L. R. Ap. 121.

Where a point is taken on appeal, the Appellate Court should consider and decide it, although the vakil may omit to argue it.—Dada Valad v. Bavasha Valad, 6 Bom. H. C. 9.

Where a judgment of the Appellate Court contained a statement that a particular point had been abandoned which statement was challenged, the Judicial Committee considering the surrounding circumstances, held that the point was not abandoned —Aalka Parshad v. Mathura Prasad, 13 C W. N. 1, P. C : 8 C. L. J 447.

Appellate Court shall Not Rest Its Decision on any Ground Not Set Forth in the Memo. of Appeal.—The appellate Court is not precluded from basing its decision upon a ground not set forth in the memorandum of appeal nor taken by leave of this Court under this rule —Thakuri v. Kundan, 17 A 280. This Power is however to be exercised by the Court alone and neither party can claim it as of right —Bunsidhar v. Sitaram, 13 A. 38.

The Appellate Court has no power to rest its decision on a ground not set forth in the memorandum of appeal if a particular point taken in the pleading has been deliberately abandoned by a party at the trial of the suit before the lower Court —Govindrav v Balu, 16 B 58

A Judge is not permitted to make, on appeal, a different case for the appellant from that which he alleged for himself in the Court of first instance.—Kachubhai v. Krishnabai, 2 B 635; Irangowda v Seshapa, 17 B. 772; Nathu v. Umedlal, 32 B 85.

An Appellate Court should not ordinarily travel beyond the record, or take up points which are not the subject of appeal before it —Kashinath v. Roy Dwarkanath, 7 W. R. 61.

A lower appellate Court is not justified in determining an appeal on issue which was not raised between the parties in the Court of first instance.—Ustoorun v. Mohun Lal, 21 W. R. 333. See also, Prankishore v. Mahomed Ameer, 21 W. R. 338; Rukmini v. Foodun Koomaree, 23 W. R. 408; Sookhanundamoyee v. Baney Madhub, 1 W. R. 73; Ramrao Khanderav v. Gobind Pandshet, 6 Bom. H. C 63.

A finding of the first Court not appealed against cannot be interfered with by the Appellate Court.—Kalee Das v. Khiroda, 16 W. R. 3...; Wadawa Singh v. Sunder Singh, 21 P. W. R. 1921: 59 I. C. 689.

In a suit for ejectment in which neither party set up a tenancy, the lower Appellate Court found that the defendant was a yearly tenant and hence dismissed the suit for want of notice to quit. Held, that the lower Appellate Court could not make for the defendant a case which was different from and inconsistent with that set up by him.—Sujjad Ahmad v. Ganga Charan, 9 C. W. N. 460: 1 C. L J. 116 (13 C. 248, 17 M. 218, 15 B. 47, distinguished).

Where a plaintiff has rested his case upon fraud, and the case of fraud has failed, he cannot be permitted to support it upon an entirely different and inconsistent ground.—Ghurphekni v. Purmeshar, 5 C L. J. 653 (9 C 631, 6 B. 110, 7 C. 381, referred to).

An Appellate Court can suo motu raise the question of limitation for the first time, where it appears on the face of the plaint that the suit is barred.—Mozaffar Ali v. Girish Chandra, 1 B. L R. 25: 10 W. R. 71

Power of Appellate Court to Take Cognizance of Facts which have Happened Since the Date of Judgment of the Lower Court.—See 11 C W. N. 732, 6 C. L J. 74, and 6 C. L. J. 92, 102 and 662, noted under r. 30 of this Order.

Rejection or amendment of memorandum.

3. (1) Where the memorandum of appeal is not drawn up in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, it may be rejected, or be returned to the appellant for the purpose of being amended within a time to be fixed by the Court or be amended then and there.

(2) Where the Court rejects any memorandum, it shall record the reasons for such rejection.

(3) Where the memorandum of appeal is amended, the Judge, or such officer as he appoints in this behalf, shall sign or initial the amendment. [S 543]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 543, C P. Code of 1882, with some alterations of verbal character.

The word " where " has been substituted for the words " if " and " when ", and the words " shall sign or initial " have been substituted for the words "shall attest by his signature," which occurred in the old section. No change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Under s. 107, sub-rule (2), read with Or. VII, r. 11 (c), an Appellate Court can reject a memorandum of appeal if it is insufficiently stamped, and the appellant fails to supply the deficit stamp within the time fixed by the Court.—See notes to Or. VII, r. 11.

Under s. 3 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), an Appellate Court can reject a memorandum of appeal if it is filed after the prescribed period of limitation. As to the discretionary power of the Appellate Court to excuse delay, see the cases noted under r. 1 of this order.

Returned for Amendment.—A memorandum of appeal containing language disrespectful to the Court of the first instance and containing allegations of bias and partiality against that Court should be returned for amendment.—Zamindar of Tuni v. Benaya, 22 M. 155.

Where a memorandum of appeal is returned for the purpose of being corrected, the Appellate Court should specify a time for such correction.—Jagannath v. Lalman, 1 A. 260. When an Appellate Court returns an insufficiently-stamped memorandum of appeal, in order that it may be sufficiently stamped, it should fix a time within which the deficiency is to be supplied.—Sheo Partab v Sheo Gholam, 2 A. 375 (1 A. 260 referred to).

" May be rejected."—Whenever a memorandum of appeal is rejected under the discretionary power vested in the Court, a judicial order to that effect, and the reasons for the same, ought to be recorded.—Lalla Jugesh v. Kassenauth, 1 Ind Jur. O. S. 121.

An Appellate Court should state its reasons for rejecting an appeal as barred by limitation.—Raghunath v. Nilu, 9 B. 452 (454).

When a memorandum of appeal is summarily rejected, under this rule, the reason for such rejection should be recorded —Rudra Prasad v. Baij Nath, 15 A 367.

The time for rejecting an appeal is when it is presented, and not after it has once been admitted.—Gopee Bullub v Goluck Proshad, W. R. 1864, (135) But registration of appeal is a ministerial act, so it can be rejected after registration —Jaffer Hossein v. Mahomed Amir, 4 B. L R App. 103: 13 W R. 351

There is no limitation as to the time when a memorandum of appeal may be rejected or ruturned for amendment —Damodar Das v Gokal Chand, 7 A. 79 (85).

Appeal.—A decision rejecting a memorandum of appeal on the ground that it is barred by limitation has the force of a decree and is therefore appealable —Gulab Rai v Mangli Lal, 7 A 42; Raghunath v Nilu, 9 B. 452; Gunga Dass v Ramjoy, 12 C 30 For the same reason, a decision that a memorandum of appeal is insufficiently stamped or that it was not duly presented, is appealable as a decree.—Rup Singh v. Mukhraj, 7 A. 887; Ayyanna v. Nagabhooshanam, 6 M. 285.

One of several plaintiffs or defendants may obtain reversal of whole decree where it proceeds on ground common to all.

4. Where there are more plaintiffs or more defendants th one in a suit, and the decree appealed fro proceeds on any ground common to all t plaintiffs or to all the defendants, any o of the plaintiffs or of the defendants may a peal from the whole decree, and thereupon t Appellate Court may reverse or vary the decr in favour of all the plaintiffs or defendants, as the case may be. [S. 544

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 544, C. P. Code, with the substitution the words "appealed from" for the words "appealed against," and of th word "very" for the word "modify," which occurred in the old sect. No other alteration has been made in this rule.

This rule is to be read with rule 33 of the order which has been take from English Or. LVIII, r. 4, and which has been inserted with the object that the Appellate Court should have the fullest power to do complete justice between the parties.

Any One of the Plaintiffs or Defendants may Appeal.—This rul relates only to cases where one or more of the parties arrayed on the same side appealed against a decree passed on a ground common to all, and n to cases where either of two opposite parties appealed from a part of the decree upon a Court-fee sufficient for an appeal from the whole.—Ch Lal v Badullah, 11 A 85 (7 M. I. A. 283, 10 M. I. A. 340, and 12 M I A. 157, referred to)

One of several defendants who appeals in respect only of the s decreed against her is not entitled to take advantage of this rule and qu tion the full amount claimed.—Sheeroo Comaree v. Mahatab Chand, W R. 1864, (380).

One of two defendants may appeal as respects the whole, and not h of the property in dispute in the absence of proof that they owned the pr perty in two equal shares.—Katyaney v. Madhub, 4 W. R 68.

Where one of several plaintiffs prefers an appeal in which the oth plaintiffs are also interested, Or. XLI, r. 4 does not authorize him to pr ceed with the appeal without making the other plaintiffs parties thereto.— Ambika Prasad v Jhinak Singh, 45 A. 286: 21 A. L. J. 91: 71 I C 2

In a suit for arrears of rent, an intervenor who alleged that he was receipt of the rents from the ryots was made a party. The first Court passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff, but the decree was reversed on appeal and the suit dismissed. On appeal to the High Court, held, th the intervenor was properly made a defendant to the suit, and that he could prefer an appeal from the decree of the Court of first instance, and that the Court of appeal could, on his appeal, set aside the whole decree Daya Chand v. Nobin Chandra, 8 B. L. R. 180: 16 W. R. 235

By consent of parties the High Court allowed an appeal by one plaintiff against another plaintiff, and adjudicated upon their rights.—Bhagirthibai v Baya, 5 B. 261.

In a suit in which the defence of two defendants was a common one to the extent of denying that the plaintiff had any such mokurrari ryoti title as he alleged, and the first Court's decision went on the ground that the plaintiff had a title against both, held, that one defendant alone might appeal —Mahomed Saefoolah v Anwar Ali, 21 W R. 112.

Reversal or Modification of Decree on Ground Common to All.—This rule applies as well to ex parte decrees as to other decrees, the only question being whether the decision of the lower Court proceeded on a ground common to all the defendants.—Sreenath v Grey, 13 W R. 114; Ram Tahal v. Sukeswar, 1 Pat. L. J 143.

A decree against several defendants, one of whom alone appeals, can be reversed as against the rest when it proceeds on any ground common to all.—Ram Kamal v. Ahmad Ali, 30 C. 429 (17 M. 265, dissented from); Annamalay Chettiar v. Pichu Ayyar, 28 M. 122 15 M. L. J. 28; Dhuttaloor v. Paidigantam, 30 M. 470, F. B : 17 M. L. J. 119; Kali Pada v. Mati Lal 9 C. L. J. 461, 20 A. 8, 28 A. 95, referred to); Asibunnessa v. Wali Ahammad, I C. L. J. 144; Somasundaram v. Vathilinga, 40 M. 846 (867); Ambika Prasad v Pardip Singh, 19 C. W N 233; Salaludin v. Afsar Begum, 39 C. L J. 590 · 84 I. C. 68 A I R 1925 Cal 23; Durga Kunwar v. Balwant Singh, 23 A. 478 (481); Sriram Ghatak v. Ratnam 13 M. 249 (252), Nagamma v Subba, 11 M 197; Seshadri v. Krishnan, 8 M. 192; Sindar Das v. Shajidur Rahman, 60 I C 460. If however, the appealing defendant values the appeal at a sum which represents the amount decreed against him alone, the appeal cannot be regarded as being against the entire decree so as to bring the case within Or. XLI, r 4 —Jogendra Nath v Rajenda Nath, 63 I C 95

The word " may " in this rule shows that the Appellate Court is given a discretion in the matter. It may therefore reverse the decree in favour of some only of the plaintiffs or defendants It is not bound to do so in favour of all of them.—Narain v Binaik, 36 A 510 An Appellate Court can reverse or alter a decree on appeal by one party only when it finds that the Lower Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit —Nagamma v. Subba, 11 M. 197.

A decree was passed for the plaintiff in a suit to redeem a kanom brought against various persons most of whom disclaimed all interest An appeal was preferred by one of the defendants who claimed to be the jenmi of the premises comprised in the kanom from him The first-mentioned appellant withdrew from the appeal, which however, was prosecuted by the other and the Appellate Court reversed the decree Held, that since the appellants were the only substantial defendants, the Appellate Court was right in allowing the appeal to proceed —Sri Mana Vikraman v Rayan, 16 M 293

In 1880, Z leased certain property to defendant, in 1892 the successor of Z leased the same property to plaintiff, who sued the defendant and Z's successor and obtained a decree for possession The defendant gave up possession. The successor of Z appealed making defendant a party The High Court reversed the decree and dismissed the plaintiff's suit, holding that defendant's lease was valid. Held that, under this rule, the decree of the High Court enured for the benefit of the defendant also and that he was entitled to restitution.—Erat Madhavan v. Venganat, 18 M L J 30

Where parties who have been made co-defendants do not appear, and the Court deals with the case under s. 116, C. P. Code, 1859, the decree given is not in the nature of an ex parte decree even as against the absent defendants; and proceeding as it does on a ground common to all the defendants, the decision may, under s. 337, be modified in appeal even in favour of defendants not before the Appellate Court.—Doorga Churn v. Sham nund, 12 W. R. 376.

Two suits brought by different parties claiming different interests in certain share to set aside the sale of that share having been dismissed, one of the plaintiffs appealed, and the sale was set aside. Held, that the decision must be considered as setting the sale aside as to the whole of the share, although the other parties did not appeal —Nagar v Shumutoolli 20 W R. 77.

Under Or. XLI, r. 4, C P. Code, an Appellate Court has power to reverse a judgment in favour of a deceased defendant as regards the whole of the plaintiff's claim and not only as regards that part of it in which the surviving defendant or defendants were particularly interested —Subbaraya Mudaliar v. Kandasami, 16 L. W. 330: (1922) M. W. N 674

Where certain tenants appealed making only some of the co-sharer landlords respondents, held, that as the respondents alone could not have sued for rent, the appeal impleading them without joining the other landlords as respondents, was unsustainable. Under Or I, r 9, C P Code a person who is a necessary party to the suit is a necessary party to the appeal —Jitendra Nath v Jhaker Mandar, 3 Pat L T 456: 66 I C 780

Decree Against Some of the Defendants—Alteration of Decree by Appellate Court.—When a decree has been given against one defendant only, an Appellate Court can alter the decree so as to render liable another defendant against whom the plaintiff has preferred no appeal—Rup Janu v Abdul Kadir, 31 C 643, F. B.: 8 C. W. N 490, F. B (2 C 565 approved; 26 C. 109, and 18 B 520 referred to, 7 W R 4 and 366 impliedly overruled) Dissented from in Farzand Ali v. Bismilla Begum, 27 A 23 (following 2 A. 487, and 5 A. 266), and also in Kuli Kada v Viswanatha, 28 M 229: 15 M L. J. 212 (7 M. 214, 18 B 52 26 C 109 (144), 31 C. 643, distinguished). In these latter cases it has been held that an Appellate Court is precluded from modifying the decree of the lower Court in favour of a party who has filed neither an appeal nor a memorandum of objection under r. 22 of this Order

Where it is necessary for a proper decision of an appeal before it, it is competent to an Appellate Court to take into consideration objections filed under s 561, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 22), by one of the respondents not only as against the appellant, but, it may be, as against the co-respondents with the objector also, and to modify the decree as against them accordingly.—Abdul Ghani v Muhammad Fasih, 28 A 95: 2 A L J 667 (26 C 114 followed; 21 W. R 338 referred to, 23 A 6 distinguished).

If, in a mortgage suit, in which the plaintiffs ask for relief against two sets of defendants in the alternative, the first Court gives a decree against one set of defendants and dismisses the suit as against the other, the Appellate Court has, on appeal by one set of defendants, in which the other set of defendants is made a party respondent, power to alter the decree, so as to make the latter liable, the real contest in the case being between the defendants.—Iswardhari Singh v Sahebzadi, 35 C. 538: 12 C. W. N. 720 (25 C. 565, 26 C. 109, 31 C. 613 followed, 26 C. 114 does not lay down any different principle) In this connection, see r. 33 of this Order, which virtually supersedes 27 A 23, 28 M. 229, and other cases, in which similar view has been taken.

In a suit against A and B for recovery of possession of property, the Court gave a decree against A and in favour of B The plaintiff appealed from that part of the decision which was in B's favour Held, that the Judge on appeal had no jurisdiction to reverse the decision of the Court below against A, he being no party to the appeal —Hurro Chunder v Lall Chand, Marsh. 256: 2 Hay 48 See also, Lalla Ramsurun v Lokabas Kooer, 18 W. R 39

A and B were sued on a joint liability to pay rent A did not defend, B did; and a decree was passed against both B appealed. Held, that it was competent to the Judge on appeal to reverse the decree, on the ground that there was no joint liability, but that B occupied a separate estate at a separate rent —Lukhee Kant v Ram Dayal, Marsh 281 2 Hay 288

Altering decree against defendant on co-defendant's appeal It was considered, under the circumstances of this case, not consistent with the principles of equity and good conscience to refuse a clearly proved right on the technical ground that on one co-defendant's appeal, no decision adverse to another co-defendant can be come to.—Oodoy Singh v. Poluck Singh, 16 W. S. 544, C. P Code, 1882 (this rule), does not enable an Appellate Court to decide, upon a ground which it considers to be common to all the defendants, an appeal preferred by one only of such defendants, and to that defendant's lease was valid Held that, under this rule, the decree of the High Court enured for the benefit of the defendant also and that he was entitled to restitution —Erat Madhavan v. Venganat, 18 M. L. J. 39

Where parties who have been made co-defendants do not appear, and the Court deals with the case under s 116, C. P. Two suits brought by different parties claiming different interests in a certain share to set aside the sale of that share having been dismissed, one of the plaintiffs appealed, and the sale was set aside. Held, that the decision must be considered as setting the sale aside as to the whole of that share, although the other parties did not appeal.—Nagar v. Shurjutoolah, 20 W R. 77

Under Or XLI, r 4, C P Code, an Appellate Court has power to reverse a judgment in favour of a deceased defendant as regards the whole of the plaintiff's claim and not only as regards that part of it in which the surviving defendant or defendants were particularly interested —Subbaraya Mudaliar v Kandasami, 16 L W 330 (1922) M W. In these latter cases it has been held that an Appellate Court is precluded from modifying the decree of the lower Court in favour of a party who has filed neither an appeal nor a memorandum of objection under r. 22 of this Order

Where it is necessary for a proper decision of an appeal before it, it is competent to an Appellate Court to take into consideration objections filed under s. 561, C P Code, 1882 (r. 22), by one of the respondents, not only as against the appellant, but, it may be, as against the co-respondents with the objector also, and to modify the decree as against them accordingly —Abdul Ghani v. Muhammad Fasih, 28 A. 95: 2 A L J. 667 (26 C. 114 followed; 21 W. If, in a mortgage suit, in which the plaintiffs ask for relief against two sets of defendants in the alternative, the first Court gives a decree against one set of defendants and dismisses the suit as against the other, the Appellate Court has, on appeal by one set of defendants, in which the other set of defendants is made a party respondent, power to alter the decree, so as to make the latter liable, the real contest in the case being between the defendants.—Iswardhari Singh v. Sahebzadi, 35 C. 538: 12 C. Death of One of Several Joint Appellants or Respondents does Not Cause the Appeal as a Whole to Abate.—Where several plaintiffs or defendants jointly appeal against a decree to which this rule applies the death of one of such appellants, if no legal representative of the deceased appellant is brought upon the record within limitation, can only have the effect of causing the appeal to abate so far as the deceased appellant was concerned, it cannot have the effect of causing the appeal as a whole to abate.—Ram Sewak v Lambar Pande, 25 A. 27; (22 A. 222 overruled; 16 A. 211 distinguished) See also, Chandar Sang v. Khimabai, 27 A. 22; 22 B. 718; Chintaman v Gangabai, 27 B. 284; 5 Bom. Application for Execution by Non-appealing Parties and the Time from which Limitation Runs.—A suit brought against several defendants was dismissed with costs The plaintiffs appealed, and the case was remanded under s 526, C P Code, 1882 One of the defendants appealed to the High Court against the order of remand, and the High Court set aside the remand order and restored the decree of the first Court. Held, that the defendants who had not appealed were entitled to take out execution of that decree for the costs awarded to them, by the first Court, notwithstanding that they were not parties to the decree of the High Court —Mulchand v Ram Ratan, 20 A 493.

Where only some of several persons affected by a decree have appealed against it, the date of the appellate decree forms the basis from which the period of limitation should be computed, even in the case of those who have not appealed against the original decree.—Shivaram v. Sakharam, 33 B 39 · 10 Bom L R 939. But where a decree for possession was passed, not jointly but severally, as against all the defendants individually, and specifically stated the portions of which they were severally in possession, as also the costs separately payable by each of them; and where two only of the defendants appealed on pleas which did not assail the decree in respect of any right or ground common to the appellants and all or any of the non-appealing defendants, but referred merely to the specific property alleged to be in the appellant's hands. Held, by the Full Bench, that a first application for execution of the original decree against those defendants who had not appealed from it, and which was made five years after the date of the decree was barred by limitation.—Mashiatunnissa v. Rani, 13 A 1 (10 W R. 30, 6 C. 191: 6 C. L R 573 , and 8 A. 573, approved and followed).

A suit having been dismissed by the first Court, which ordered that the costs of all contending defendants were to be borne by the plaintiff, the plaintiff appealed to the High Court which reversed the decree. One of the defendants appealed to the Privy Council, which reversing the decree of the High Court restored that of the first Court. Held, that the decree of the first Court by being restored was re-affirmed in its integrity, and the defendants generally were entitled to execute it, though only one had appealed to the Privy Council.—Luchmeeput Singh v. Khoobunnissa, 14 W. R. 280.

A District Court gave the plaintiff a decree against all the defendants All the defendants except one, B, appealed to the High Court, which reversed the decree. The plaintiff appealed to the Privy Council, all the defendants except B being respondents. Her Majesty in Council reversed the decree of the High Court, and restored that of the District Court. Held that, notwithstanding that B was not a party to the appeals to the High Court and to the Privy Council, the decree was a valid decree, could be executed against B.—Kishen Sahai v. Collector of Allahabad, 1 A. 137.

Where a decree for possession of certain property is made against three persons jointly, one of whom appeals against the decree only so far as it affects himself and not against the whole decree, and the decree does not relate to property in respect of which the defendants have a common interest and a common defence, so that an appeal by one would imperil the whole decree, then the fact of one defendant having appealed will not prevent limitation running in favour of the others, against the execution of the decree.—Hur Proshad v. Enayet Hossein, 2 C. L. R. 471.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS AND OF EXECUTION.

Stay by appellate Court.

5. (1) An appeal shall not operate as a stay of proceedings under a decree or order appealed from except so far as the Appellate Court may order, nor shall execution of a decree be stayed by reason only of an appeal having been preferred from the decree; but the Appellate Court may for sufficient cause order stay of execution of such decree.

Stay by Court which passed the decree.

(2) Where an application is made for stay of execution of an appealable decree before the expiration of the time allowed for appealing therefrom, the Court which passed the decree may on sufficient cause being shown order the execution to be stayed.

(3) No order for stay of execution shall be made under sub-rule (1) or sub-rule (2) unless the Court making it is satisfied—

(a) that substantial loss may result to the party applying for stay of execution unless the order is made;

(b) that the application has been made without unreasonable delay; and

(c) that security has been given by the applicant for the due performance of such decree or order as may ultimately be binding upon him.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rule (3), the Court may make an ex parte order for stay of execution pending the hearing of the application. [S. 515.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 545, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1) the words "an appeal shall not operate as a stay of proceedings under a decree or order appealed from except so far as the Appellate Court may order," have been added, adopting the law as laid down in the Full Bench case reported in 31 C. 722: 8 C. W. N. 572. Before the Full Bench case was decided there was a diversity of judicial opinions as to whether an Appellate Court has power to stay proceedings under a decree or order. In 1 C. W. N. 264, it was held that there is no provision in the C. P. Code which authorizes a Court to which an appeal is preferred against a preliminary decree, to stay proceedings pending the hearing of the appeal, s. 545 of the old Code (this rule), only authorizes the Appellate Court to stay execution of decrees, but there is no provision in it to stay interlocutory order in a proceeding in the suit, previous to the passing of the final decree. In 5 C. W. N. 781, a contrary view was taken. Then the question was referred to a Full Bench, which (overruling 1 C. W. N. 264) held that apart from s. 545 (this rule), the Appellate Court has inherent power to stay such proceedings. Thus the above addition has been made adopting the law as laid down in the Full Bench case quoted above empowering the Appellate Court to stay proceedings after an appeal is preferred against a preliminary decree. The object of the amendment will be clearly understood from the following report of the Special Committee —

"The Committee have added words to s. 545 in order to make it clear that proceedings under a decree as well as execution can be stayed by an Appellate Court, the recognition of preliminary decrees makes it the more necessary to have an express power to this effect instead of resting on an inherent power —Bal Kishen Sahu v. Khugnee, 31 C. 722. The committee have introduced express words authorizing an ex parte stay, as the need for such order constantly arises in practice."

Sub-rule (4) is new and the object of its introduction has been explained in the above report of the Special Committee —It has been inserted to meet the case in 15 B. 536 where it was held that final order staying execution should not be made without giving notice to the decree-holder. But the application should be supported by an affidavit as pointed out in the Bombay case above referred to.

The other changes introduced in this rule are merely verbal changes.

" Shall not operate as a stay of proceedings."—Rule 5 (1) of Or. XLI, provides that an appeal shall not operate as a stay of execution; so that where a decree is under appeal, a Court may proceed with its execution and may, in the course of execution, do all such things as may be legal and just as it might do if no appeal had been preferred.—Bala Krishna Chettiar v. Krishnamurthi Aiyar, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 416.

Stay of Execution by Appellant Court.—When an appeal is pending to the High Court against a preliminary order made in a subordinate Court in an account or partition suit, the High Court can make an order staying proceedings pending its hearing.—Balkishen Sahu v. Khugnee, 31 C. 722, F. B. : 8 C. W. N. 572, F. B. (1 C. W. N. 264 overruled; 5 C. W. N. 781 approved). See also, Panchanan v. Dwarkanath, 3 C. L. J. 29.

Order XLI, r. 5 provides in express terms under what conditions the proceedings under a decree can be stayed. The Privy Council which has seisin of the appeal and not the High Court which passed the decree, has power to stay proceedings in a partition suit after a preliminary decree. Under Or. XLV, r. 13, the High Court which passed the decree may stay execution of the final decree on special cause being shown.—Laliteswar v. Bhabeswar, 9 C L. J. 591: 13 C. W. N. 690

Sections 545 and 546, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, rr. 5 and 6), clearly imply that an appeal incapacitates the inferior Court from dealing with the litigation since even the power of staying execution is, once an appeal is made, taken away from the Court and is exerciseable by the Appellate Court only.—Ramanadhan v. Narayanan, 27 M. 602, (606) See, however, 12 C. W N. 885, (on appeal, 13 C. W N. 846); Firm Gobindram Ramchandar v Firm Ruliaram Nauta Ram, 76 I. C. 174.

Section 545, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 5), has no application where no appeal has been preferred against the decree in the original suit An Appellate Court cannot stay proceedings in execution of a decree of a subordinate Court, merely by reason of an appeal having been preferred against an order of refusal of the Court below to set aside the decree under s. 108, C P. Code (Or IX, r. 13) —Bragwat Raj Koer v. Sheo Golam, 31 C. 1081: 9 C W. N. 123 (28 C. 734, 8 C. W. N. 572, and 5 C W. N. 781, distinguished).

An Appellate Court has no jurisdiction under Or. XLI, r 5, to grant a stay of execution of a decree of a subordinate Court unless it has seisin of an appeal against such decree. Where no appeal has been preferred; the Court which passed the decree alone has power to grant a stay, on sufficient cause being shown during the time provided by law for presenting an appeal.—Parshotam Saran v. Hargoolal, 43 A. 198: 18 A. L. J. 1121.

Where the defendants in an original suit applied to the Appellate Court for stay of execution of the decree pending the appeal. Held, that the applicant who asked for the indulgence must pay the costs of the application.—Chuni Lal v. Anantram, 25 C. 893.

An order of an Appellate Court under s. 545, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r 5), to stay execution of a decree pending appeal, is in the nature of a prohibitory order, and as such, would only take effect when communicated If a property is sold before such an order is communicated to the Court holding the sale, such sale is not void and cannot be treated as nullity —Bissesswari v. Hurro Sundar, 1 C. W. N. 226 (4 N. W. P. 398, 6 N. W. P. 354, and 2 A. 686, distinguished).

An Appellate Court has authority under this rule to take security from a decree-holder even after execution of the decree under appeal has been completed —Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927: 3 C. L J. 67.

A stay of execution cannot be directed where there is no application for execution pending before the executing Court.—Nawab v. Hukam Din, 63 I. C. 897.

Effect of Uncommunicated Order Staying Execution.—Where an order is made by an appellate Court staying execution of a decree, but before the order is communicated to the Court executing the decree, the property of the judgment-debtor is sold in execution, the sale is invalid and cannot stand, the reason being that when an unconditional order for stay of execution is made, the order becomes operative the moment it is made and suspends the power of the lower Court to continue the proceedings in execution.—Hukum Chand v. Kamalanand, 33 C. 927; Sati Nath v. Ratanmani, 15 C. L. J. 335: 14 I. C. 808; Sahu v. Shadi Ram, 24 A. L. J. 519: A. I. R. 1926 All. 457. It has, however, been held by the Madras High Court in Muthukumarasami v. Kuppusami, 33 M 74, Venkatachalapati v. Kameswaramma, 41 M 151, that such sale is valid

All Proceedings by Executing Court After Communication of Stay Order by Appellate Court, Void.—When an appellate Court orders stay of execution pending an appeal, the Court before which the execution proceedings are pending has no power to proceed with the execution after the receipt of the order. It would be opposed to all principle to hold that, because the stay order was not perused by the Court executing the decree or that it had no time to pay any attention to it, the attachment and other proceedings subsequent to the receipt of the order are good. Anything done during the trial when the stay order is in force is not only irregular, but is altogether void, as the Court has no jurisdiction to do anything after it is prohibited from doing it.—Venkatappayya v Venkatachalapathi Rao, 99 I. C. 989: A I. R 27 Mad. 450

Rule 5, Clause 3 (a). Substantial Loss.—In order to obtain a stay of execution of decree directing payment of money, the applicant must satisfy the Court by affidavit that substantial loss may result to him unless execution is stayed —H. H The Gaikwar Sirkar v. Ghandi, 25 B. 248. See Nazar Ali v Ojoodharam, 1 Ind Jur. N. S 185. Dhira Mal v Hadar Shat, 2 Lah 61. 61 I C. 77; Harnhar Prasad v. Maharaja Bahadur Kesho Prasad, 61 I. C. 9; Rajendra Singh v. Umrao Singh, 61 I. R. 393, In re Ahmed Reza, 13 W. R 281

In cases relating to immoveable property where the decree is under appeal, the disturbance of status quo ante does result in substantial loss to the party in possession. In a suit for pre-emption, the defendant vendee is in possession of the property under a perfectly valid title obtained for consideration from the original owner. Such possession should not be disturbed till the plaintiff has finally established his title and the vendee has exhausted all his remedies for retaining such possession·—Fateh Khan v. Daim, 9 L. L J 130 A I R 1927 Lah 169 99 I. C. 767.

The Court declined to stay the execution of a decree (1) because the applicant has not shown, as he was bound to show, something beyond the mere fact of an appeal having been preferred against it; and (2) because there seemed to have been great delay on his part —Leslie v. Land Mortgage Bank of India, 17 W. R. 160

It is not open to the Court to refuse to execute a decree against which no appeal has been preferred, and the time for appealing against which has expired.—Ishan Chunder v. Ashanoollah, 10 C. 817.

If the proceedings are bound to be protracted and the expense involved in the taking of accounts is likely to be great, the Appellate Court will exercise a proper discretion in staying proceedings.—Nena Ojha v. Sarbhoo Dutt, 2 Pat. L. T. 70: 59 I C. 883.

Section 647, C. P. Code, 1882 (s 141), provides for the procedure to be followed in miscellaneous matters other than suits and appeals, and its provisions, read with ss. 515 and 546 give no power to the Court after the passing of final unappealable decree and before the granting of an application for review of judgment, to order a stay of execution of the decree.—Amir Hasan v Ahmad Ali, 9 A 36.

A decree directing the issue of a probate to the propounder of a will is one that is capable of execution and stay of execution of such decree can be granted under s 545, C P Code, 1882 (this rule) —Luchminarain Bogla v. Brij Coomaree, 5 C W. N 781, P C

The Court should not accept a security the validity of which is not free from reasonable doubt and the enforcement of which may lead to protracted litigation.—Srinibash Prasad v Kesho Prasad, 38 C 754 (775)

"That the application was made without unreasonable delay."—Applications for stay of execution in the original side of the High Court pending an intended appeal must ordinarily be made to the judge who tried the case and such an application must be made without unreasonable delay. —Chaturbhuj v. Basdeo Lal, 25 C W N. 98.

Where Decree has been Executed.—Execution completed by appointment of manager Held that, under this rule, the Court had power only to stay execution, and that the words " stay execution " could not be extended to a case in which execution was completed, as in the case before it —Dharram Singh v Kishen Singh, 12 C L R. 532.

Notice to Decree-holder.—A final order for staying the execution of a decree should not be made without giving the decree-holder notice of the judgment-debtor's application The application should be supported by an affidavit.—Multanchand v Kharsedji, 15 B 536 But see, Mulchand v Tarni Prasad, 4 Pat L J 642, in which a different view has been taken.

Obligation of Surety and his Right of Appeal.—The nature and extent of the liability of a surety under this rule depends on the words of the surety-bond —In the matter of Ameer Ali, 13 W R 403.

On the reversal of the decree, the liability of the surety ceases, and of surety-bond becomes a dead letter —Ameer Ali v. Kassim Ali, 13 W. R. 403

Where a judgment-debtor asks for stay of execution-proceedings pending appeal, and his request is granted on condition of his giving security, he is entitled to have a reasonable opportunity for showing that the sum demanded as security is considerably more than the amount awarded by the decree —Bahoona Doohma v Lalla Jowahur Lall, 23 W. R 52.

When immoveable property is given by a judgment-debtor as security for the due performance of a decree under Or. XLI, r. 5 (3) (c), it can be realised in execution without attachment. The provisions of Or. XXXIV, r. 14, do not apply to such a case, and, further, the matter being one relating to execution within s. 47, a separate suit does not lie.—Subramania v. Raja of Ramnad, 41 M. 327; Shyam Sundar v. Bajpai, 30 C. 1060; Mukta Prasad v. Mahadeo, 38 A. 327.

Right of Sureties to Appeal—Extent of their Liability.—Held that, as soon as the decree of the Court of first instance was made, the liability of the sureties was fully incurred, and they were severally bound to place at the disposal of the said Court, when required, the property specified in their bond, or, in default, to pay such sum as the said Court should adjudge against the defendant. The liability having been incurred, was not extinguished by the fact that an appeal had been brought against the decree. If the amount adjudged by the decree was reduced in appeal, their liability would be diminished to a like extent, or, if the decree was reversed, their liability would be reduced to nothing, but their liability did not cease, because the decree of the first Court merged in that of the Appellate Court.—Suleman v. Shivram, 12 B. 71.

The sureties who would be considered parties to the suit with reference to it, are sureties who have rendered themselves liable for the amount of the decree whether during the course of the suit or an application under this rule for stay of execution.—Bannamal v. Jamna Das, 15 A. 183 (184).

When the bond was to perform all orders and decrees passed in appeal, it was held that the obligation of the sureties to fulfil the decree of the Appellate Court was not confined to the first decree of that Court, but extended to the final decree which it passed upon the case being remanded by the High Court in special appeal.—Shivlal v. Appaji, 2 B. 654 (on appeal, 3 B. 204).

A security bond executed in consideration of temporary stay is binding on the surety for the period during which it is allowed to operate for the benefit of the principal. It is binding pending the discharge of the rule and its operation during the period cannot be cancelled by the Court. —Pandu Laxman v. Balu Mahadu, 8 Bom. L. R. 557.

The holder of a decree affirmed on appeal by the District Court took out execution to recover costs awarded. Costs were deposited by the judgment-debtor and paid to the decree-holder, and a surety gave bond by which he undertook to refund the amount to the judgment-debtor in the event of the latter succeeding in appeal to the High Court and of the decree-holder failing to repay him. The judgment-debtor subsequently filed an appeal to the High Court, and was successful, and he then applied in the execution department to recover the amount from the surety. Held, that the Court executing the High Court's decree had no jurisdiction to execute it against the surety.—Hardeo Das v. Zaman Khan, 8 A. 639.

Mode of Enforcement of Security Bond.—See Notes under s. 145, and Or. IV, r. 6.

Form.—For form of Security Bond, see App. G. Form No. 2.

Costs.—The costs of the application to stay execution should as a rule, be paid by the applicant who prays for such stay even if the application is unsuccessful.—Chunilal v. Anantaram, 25 C. 893.

Appeal from Orders Staying or Refusing to Stay Execution.—An order refusing to stay execution of a decree under this rule is not appealable, as such an order is not "a decree," within the meaning of s. 2, cl. (2).—Ram Chandra v. Balmukund, 29 B. 71 Malamal v. Kevalappara, 27 M. L. J. 171. The Calcutta, Madras and Lahore High Courts have held that such an order is a "judgment" within the meaning of cl. 15 of the Letters Patent and therefore appealable as such.—Brij Coomaree v. Ramrick Dass, 5 C. W. N. 781; Sona Chalam v. Kumaravelu, 47 M. 316: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 597; Tuljaram v. Alagappa, 35 M. 1 F. B.

Where the amount of security demanded under this rule is excessive, an appeal lies from the order.—Udeyadeta Deo v. Gregson, 12 C. 621.

Where an order for stay of execution is made on security being furnished by the judgment-debtor and such security is furnished, no appeal lies from the order at the instance of the decree-holder as such an order does not come within s. 47 and s. 2, cl. (2).—Saraswati v. Golap Das, 41 C. 160.

Review.—An order under this rule may be cancelled or varied at any time by the Court making such order.—Amir Hasan v. Ahmad, 9 A. 36.

Security in case of order for execution of decree appealed from.

6. (1) Where an order is made for the execution of a decree from which an appeal is pending, the Court which passed the decree shall, on sufficient cause being shown by the appellant, require security to be taken for the restitution of any property which may be or has been taken in execution of the decree or for the payment of the value of such property and for the due performence of the decree or order of the Appellate Court, or the Appellate Court may for like cause direct the Court which passed the decree to take such security.

(2) Where an order has been made for the sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree, and an appeal is pending from such decree, the sale shall, on the application of the judgment-debtor to the Court which made the order, be stayed on such terms as to giving security or otherwise as the Court thinks fit until the appeal is disposed of. [S. 546.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 546, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to paras. 1 and 2 of the old Code with the following modifications. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" in the beginning; the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against", and the words "or has been taken" have been added after the words "may be," to give effect to the case (33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67), where it has been held that the Court has inherent power, notwithstanding that the decree has been executed and the property has been taken in execution, to call upon the respondent to furnish security for due performance of any decree which may be made on such appeal. By the above addition, Mansukhram v. Parshotam, 7 Bom H. C. 122, and Joynarain v. Russick Mohan, 8 W. R. 144, have been overridden. In 33 C. 927: 3 C. L. J. 67, all the cases on the point have been referred to and fully discussed.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to the last para. of s. 546, C. P Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The words "for money," which stood after the word " decree " in the old section, have been omitted, and effect of the omission is that the provisions of this sub-rule are no longer confined to money decrees only. The words " to the court which made the order " have been added after the word " judgment-debtor," in order to make it clear that the application under this sub-rule is to be made to the Court which made the order for the sale of immoveable property. It would appear from the Full Bench case reported in 34 C. 1037: 6 C. L. J. 298: 11 C. W. N. 1030, that there was a difference of opinion with regard to the terms of s. 546, para 3 of the Code, as to whether the power for staying the sale of immoveable property was exercisable by the Court which passed the decree, or that the Appellate Court had similar power, as the words of that clause were not very explicit and were somewhat vague. In the third clause no Court was specified as the Court which is empowered to pass the order under that clause. Hnce the words " to the Court which made the order " have been added, and by the above addition, an ambiguity which hitherto existed has been removed. The object of the addition will clearly appear from the Full Bench case above referred to

" The Committee have modified this rule in order to make it clear that security may be required though the property has previously been taken in execution (Hukum Chand Baid v. Kamalanand Singh, 33 C. 927) "—See the Report of the Special Committee

Security in Case of Execution of decree Appealed from.—The Appellate Court having seizin of the appeal, has an inherent power over the subject of litigation, and can, in the exercise of the power, and notwithstanding that the decree has been executed, call upon the respondent to furnish security for the due performance of any decree which may be made on such appeal (7 Bom H. C 122 8 W R. 144, dissented from) An order for stay is made on the day that it is pronounced, and not on the day on which it is drawn up or communicated —Hukum Chand v Kamaland, 33 C 927; 3 C L J 67

Before staying execution of a decree and preventing the decree-holder from receiving the fruits of his decree, or before requiring him, to give security for its restitution, probable cause must be shown of the judgment-debtor's liability to recover the money if the decree be reversed —Sughee Monee v. Brojoraj, 17 W R 69.

An Appellate Court cannot pass an order under this rule, for a stay of execution of a decree under appeal until an order has been made for the execution of the decree —Janardan v. Nilkanth, 25 B. 583

It is only the decree, against which an appeal is pending, of which execution may be stayed. A court has no power to restrain a decree-holder from executing his decree merely on the possibility of the Appellate Court reversing its decision.—Gossain Money Puree v. Guru Pershad, 11 C. 146

An application, under this rule, to stay the sale of immoveable property, in execution of a decree for money against which an appeal has been filed, must be made to the Court which passed the decree, and not to the Appellate Court.—In the matter of Muraduddissa, 15 A. 196 (11 C. 146 referred to). Followed in Kunj Lal v. Bahitram, 8 C. W. N. 381. But see, Tribeni Sahu v. Babu Bhagwat Bux, 34 C. 1037, F. B.: 11 C. W N. 1030. 6 C. L J. 298, where it has been held that where an appeal has been preferred against a decree for money, the Appellate Court has jurisdiction, pending the disposal of the appeal to pass an order staying the sale of immoveable property of the judgment-debtor in execution of the decree (8 C. W. N. 381 overruled). See also, Lakshmanan v. Palaniappa, 41 M. 813: 34 M. L. J. 470, where the same view has been taken

A party appealing against a decree, which directs him to pay money may obtain stay of execution of the decree, so far as it directs payment, on his lodging the amount in Court, unless the other party gives security for the repayment of the money in the event of the decree being reversed If such security be given by the successful party, then stay of execution should not be granted —Dhunjibhoy Cawasji v. Lisboa, 13 B. 241.

Section 326, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 72), does not apply to a decree which directs the sale of land or of a share in land in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same. The Court therefore, cannot authorize the Collector to stay the sale in such a case under that section.—Bhagwan Prasad v. Sheo Sahai, 2 A. 856

A decree for arrears of rent is a " decree for money " within the meaning of this rule.—Banku Behary v. Syama Churn, 25 C 322 By the omission of the words " decree for money," this ruling has been rendered obsolete.

See notes under rule 5.

Effect of Stay of Sale.—An order under this rule, directing stay of sale of immoveable property, does not bar the decree-holder from proceeding against the moveables of the judgment-debtor —Sukhdayal Gopichand v. Jawahir Singh, 93 I C. 897: A. I R. 1926 Lah. 463

Mode of Enforcement of Security Bond.—The mode of enforcing payment against a surety is by summary process in execution and not by separate suit.—Jamsedji v. Bawabhai, 25 B. 409, Kusaji v. Vinayak, 23 B 478; Janki Kuar v. Sarup Rani, 17 A. 99; Thirumalai v. Ramayyar, 13 M 1, Venkapa v. Basilingapa, 12 B. 411 But see, Radha Pershad v. Phuljuri Koer, 12 C 402; Kali Charan v. Balgobind, 15 C. 497; Tokhan Singh v. Udwant Singh, 22 C. 25; Surjoo Das v. Balmakund, 23 C 212; and Aruna Chellam v. Aruna Chellam, 15 M. 203, where it has been held that a surety bond cannot be enforced in execution, but a separate suit must be brought against the surety. But where the surety waives his right then the surety bond may be enforced in execution.—Kazimuddi v. Fauzdar Khan, 10 C. W. N. 830 (8 C. W. N. 672 relied on). These latter cases have been overridden by s. 145

The relationship between a decree-holder and a judgment-debtor who has executed a security bond under s. 545, cl. (c), C. P. Code, 1882 (Or.

XLI, r. 5), mortgaging certain properties for the due performance of the decree or order that may ultimately be passed by the Appellate Court, is not that of a mortgagee or mortgagor; and in the event of the appeal being dismissed the decree-holder is entitled to realize his decretal money by sale of the properties given in security without instituting a suit under s. 67 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882).—Shyam Sundar v. Bajpai Jainarain, 30 C. 1060; 7 C. W. N. 914, and 17 A. 99 (101).

See also the cases noted under s. 145.

Registration and Attestation of Security Bond.—A security bond accepted by a Court does not dispense with the necessity for registration. —Nagaruree v. Tanjatur, 31 M. 330; 3 M. L. T. 317 (31 C. 404 followed). See the cases noted under section 145.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order made under this rule.

No security to be required from the Government or a public officer in certain cases

7. No such security as is mentioned in rules 5 and 6 shall be required from the Secretary of State for India in Council or, where the Government has undertaken the defence of the suit, from any public officer sued in respect of an act alleged to be done by him in his official capacity. [S. 547.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 547, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "rules" for "sections," which occurred in the old Code.

Exercise of powers in appeal from order made in execution of decree.

8. The powers conferred by rules 5 and 6 shall be exerciseable where an appeal may be or has been preferred not from the decree but from an order made in execution of such decree. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope and Object of the Rule.—This rule is new. It has been framed to give effect to the cases noted below.

"The Committee have added this clause to meet particularly the case where the litigant does not quarrel with the decree, but appeals from an order passed in execution of that decree."—See the Report of the Special Committee. In such a case this rule gives the appellant the power to apply for a stay of execution of the decree under r. 5 or for security for restitution under r. 6.

Pending the determination of the appeal against an order passed in execution of decree, the Appellate Court has power to stay execution.—In the matter of Harshankar Parshad, 1 A. 178; Pasupati Nath v. Nanda Lall, 28 C. 734.

PROCEDURE ON ADMISSION OF APPEAL.

Registry of memorandum of appeal.

9. (1) Where a memorandum of appeal is admitted, the Appellate Court or the proper officer of that Court shall endorse thereon the date of presentation, and shall register the appeal in a book to be kept for the purpose.

Register of Appeals.

(2) Such book shall be called the Register of Appeals. [S. 548.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to section 548, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "where" for "if" in the beginning.

Registry of Appeal.—The registration of a petition of appeal is a proceeding of a purely ministerial character.—Jaffer Hossein v. Mahomed Amir, 4 B. L. R. Ap. 103; 13 W. R. 351.

Held, by the majority of the Court, that an Appellate Court after admitting and registering an appeal and serving notice on the opposite party has no power at the hearing to reject the appeal upon the ground that it was not preferred within the prescribed period.—Bharut Chunder v. Issur Chunder, 8 W. R. 141.

Admission of Appeal by District Judge Ex Parte—Power of Sub-Judge to Dismiss it on the Ground of Limitation.—Where a District Judge, by an ex parte order, admitted an appeal filed after time and transferred it to the Sub-Judge for disposal. Held, that the Sub-Judge had power to dismiss the appeal on the ground of its presentation after time.—Manick Dukhandar v. Naibulla Sircar, 2 C. W. N. 461 (5 C. 1 not followed; 8 C. 251, and 14 B. 494 approved). See also, Krishna Bhatta v. Subraya, 21 M. 228, and Sarat Chandra v. Saraswati, 5 C. L. J. 380; 34 C. 216 (9 A. 11, and 13 W. R. 245 referred to).

An order, made ex parte under s. 5 of the Limitation Act, permitting an appeal to be registered although filed beyond time, may, on proper cause being shown, be set aside by the Court which made it; but such an order made by a District Judge cannot be afterwards cancelled by a Sub-Judge upon the appeal coming on for hearing before him.—Jhotee Sahoo v. Omes Chunder, 5 C. 1. See also, Dubey Sahai v. Ganeshi Lal, 1 A. 34; Venkatrayudu v. Nagadu, 9 M. 450; Moshaulla v. Ahmedulla, 13 C. 78; Bishendut v. Nandan Pershad, 12 C. W. N. 25. But see, Mulna Amad v. Krishnaji, 14 B. 594.

Appellate Court may require appellant to furnish security for costs.

10. (1) The Appellate Court may in its discretion, either before the respondent is called upon to appear and answer or afterwards on the application of the respondent, demand from the appellant security for the costs of the appeal or of the original suit, or of both :

Provided that the Court shall demand such security in all cases in which the appellant is residing out of British India, and is not possessed of any sufficient immoveable property within British India other than the property (if any) to which the appeal relates.

Where appellant resides out of British India.

(2) Where such security is not furnished within such time as the Court orders, the Court shall reject the appeal. [S. 549.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 549, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only. The last para. of the old section which contained provisions regarding enforcement of the security bond, has been omitted in view of s. 145 of the Code, as that section, as amended, prescribes the mode of enforcing all surety bonds.

Application of the Rule.—The application of the rule is not confined only to appeals from substantive decrees, but also to appeals from interlocutory orders under s. 104 and to appeals from orders in execution under s. 47.—Dagdu v. Chandrabhan, 24 B. 301. It does not, however, apply to appeals preferred to the High Court under cl. 15 of the Letters Patent from the judgment of one of its own Judges.—Sesha Ayyar v. Nagarathna, 27 M. 121. The Privy Council have, however, recently decided that it applies also to appeals under cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Sabitri v. Sabi, 48 I. A. 76 : 48 C. 481 : 60 I. C. 274.

Neither this rule nor any other rule of this order has any application to a decree passed by a single Judge of a chartered High Court in the exercise of ordinary original civil jurisdiction, because " the Code makes no provision for an appeal from a single Judge of the High Court. This right of appeal depends on cl. 15 of the Charter."—Per Jenkins, C. J., in Debendra Nath v. Bibudhendra, 43 C. 90, (93-94).

The mere fact that a plaintiff is a poor man, and has parted with a portion of his interest in the subject-matter of the suit for the purpose of obtaining funds to carry on the suit, is no sufficient ground to ask that security for the costs of the suit may be required of him, it is otherwise where he is not the real litigant but a mere puppet in the hands of others.—Khajah Assenoolla Joo v. Solomon, 14 C. 533; Lakhmichand v. Gatto Bai, 7 A. 542 (3 B. 241, 3 M. 66, and 18 W. R. 102, referred to). See also, Jiwan Ali v. Basamal, 8 A. 203, Hewetson v. Deas, 21 C. 526; Mahanth Raghunath v. Sheokumar, 1 Pat. L. T. 115; Mahant Raghunath Das v. Sheo Kumar, (1921) Pat. 359, Konammal v. Annadana Jadaya, (1922) M. W. N. 801.

Where a Court, acting under this rule orders an appellant to give security for costs, it is not necessary that any specific sum for which security is required should be named in the order for security.—Lekha v. Bhanna, 18 A. 101, F. B. (9 A. 164 overruled on this point).

As a general rule a Court is loth to prevent an appellant from pursuing the remedy allowed to him by law merely on the ground of property,

But each case must stand on its own facts and there may be cases in which a party should be directed to give security, at any rate for the costs of the appeal, before he is allowed to go further.—Gulab Rao v. Vinayak, 25 Bom L. R. 195: 72 I. C. 285.

An appellant (residing within the jurisdiction), who has been ordered to pay the costs of the original hearing, and has not done so, cannot be required to furnish security for such costs before he is allowed to prosecute his appeal, unless his conduct be shown to be vexatious, that is, such as indicates a wilful determination on his part not to obey the order of the Court. His not paying, if it be caused by inability to pay, is not vexatious.—Ahmed Bin v Essa Bin, 18 B 458; Ramsing v Balubhai, 5 Bom L R. 661.

Restoration of Appeal.—An appeal although it may have been rejected by the Appellate Court upon failure by the appellant to furnish security demanded under this rule, may be restored, on sufficient grounds at the Court's discretion —Balwant v Deulat, 8 A 315. But no appeal lies from an order refusing to restore it —Firozi Begum v. Abdul Latif, 30 A. 143

When should Application for Security be made.—An application for security for costs already incurred and estimated costs of appeal should be made promptly.—Bhobonath v Radha Prasad, 5 C. W N. 119; Wise v. Jugbundoo, 7 M. I. A 431; Thakur Das v. Kishori Lal, 9 A. 164.

" The Court shall reject the appeal."—Where security is not furnished within the time fixed by the Court, the appeal should be rejected.—Parma Nand v. Ram Parkash, 2 Lah. L. J. 391. See also, Lekha v. Bhauna, 18 A. 101. But if the order for security has been made without notice to the appellant, the appeal should not be rejected —Timmu v Deva Rai, 5 M 265; Sirajul Huq v Khadim, 5 A 380

When Appellant Resides Out of British India.—A plaintiff, who resided out of India, paid a sum of money into Court as security for costs. He subsequently obtained a decree against the defendant; and the defendant appealed against that decree Held, that the defendant was not entitled to an order detaining in Court, pending the appeal, the money which had been paid in.—Fleming v Shearman, 4 B L. R O. C. 92; Dittia Hurruchman v. Modhoosoodun, 3 B L R, F B, 45: 12 W. R., F. B., 16.

Quaere—Whether in a case in which the appellant is not residing out of the British territories in India, the High Court has authority to demand security for costs from the appellant after the issue of notice of the appeal. —Hufazulloolah v Humeedhur Rohmru, 6 W R Mis 123

Power of Court to Extend Time fixed for Furnishing Security.—The Court cannot lay down a hard and fast rule that in no case after the time for giving security has expired can an appellant be allowed further time In exceptional circumstances, the Court can extend the time for furnishing security.—Jumanabai v. Vissondas, 21 B. 576

Once an appeal has been dismissed for failure of the appellant to give security for costs within the time fixed, it is not thereafter open to the Court to extend the time for giving security.—Srimati Hari Bhabini v. Narendra Nath, 67 I. C. 883.

Where the Appellate Court dema ... ity for costs, the Court may extend the time ... but if no application is made for extension ... is not furnished within the time ordered, it is imperative on the Court to reject the appeal.—Haidri Bai v. E. I. Ry. Co., 1 A. 687. See also, Badri Narain v. Sheo Koer, 11 C. 716; and Shrajudin v. Krishna, 11 M. 190.

Where the High Court under this rule has demanded security from an appellant, it has power to extend the time for complying with this order on application made, as well after as before the time first fixed has expired; and may nevertheless reject the appeal if the security is not in the end furnished.—Badri Narain v. Sheo Koer, 17 C. 512, P. C. (1 A. 687 overruled).

An original Court rejected, as insufficient, security offered for the purpose of conforming to an order of the High Court under this rule; and refused to receive other security offered, in lieu, after the time fixed by the order had expired This was affirmed by the High Court. Held, that as the High Court had a discretion to enlarge the time allowed for finding security, and to accept other security in lieu of that rejected, or to refuse to do either, it had, under the circumstances, judicially exercised that discretion in refusing.—Rajab Ali v. Amir Hossein, 17 C. 1 (1 A. 687: 8 A: 315 referred to).

The security for the respondent's costs which the High Court had demanded under this rule not having been furnished within the time fixed and the Court, in the exercise of its discretion, having refused to extend the time, the appeal was rejected Held, that this was not a case for interference.—Modhusudan v. Adhikari Propanna, 17 C. 518.

See s. 148 of the Code, which expressly empowers Courts to extend time.

Applicability of this Rule to Appeals In Forma Pauperis.—The provisions of this rule, which make it discretionary for the Appellate Court to demand security for costs, are not applicable to appeals in forma pauperis —Nuseeroodeen v. Ujjul Biswas, 17 W. R. 68, Nazim v Abdul Hamid, 8 Lah. 30 67 I. C 256

The provision in Or XLI, r. 10, to reject an appeal where the security is not furnished, is mandatory, the Court could not after that stage grant permission to withdraw the appeal in forma pauperis —Sabitri Thakurain v. Sabi, 48 C 481 P C., 19 A. L J 281: 48 I. A. 76 P. C

A suitor in forma pauperis may be called on to give security for costs under this rule but every special ground must be shown to support such an application —Seshayyanagar v Jamulavadin, 3 M 66, Maneckji v Goolbai, 3 B. 241 (17 W R 68 dissented from) See also, Seldanna v. Hart, (1920) M. W N. 534; Srinivasa v Subramania, 17 M L. J 58 The High Court of Calcutta, in Nasseeroodin v Ujjul, 17 W R 68, and Musammat Hafiza v Abdul Karim, 12 C. W N 163, and the Bombay High Court, in Khemraj v Kishanlal, 42 B 5, have held that this rule does not apply to appeals in forma pauperis

Mode of Enforcement of Security Bond.—See the cases noted under s. 145, where the overridden rulings have also been noted

Appeal from Orders under this Rule.—An order rejecting an appeal under this rule is not appealable either as an order or as a decree.—Lekha v. Bhauna, 18 A. 101, F B. (5 A. 380 overruled). Rames v. Manindra, 49 C. 355: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 246

No appeal lies against an order refusing to re-admit an appeal on the ground of the failure of the appellant to furnish security for the costs of the respondent under this rule.—Firaz Begum v. Abdul Latif, 30 A 143: 5 A. L. J. 100 (18 A. 315 referred to); Sundar v Habib, 42 A. 626: 18 A L. J. 838

As there is no provision in this rule similar to that contained in s. 381, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXV, r. 2), permitting an appellant whose appeal has been rejected under this rule to apply for an order setting the dismissal aside, application for restoration of the appeal does not lie.—Sankaralinga v. Annama Lal, 4 M. L T. 416 (30 A. 143 followed, 18 A. 315 considered).

As regards Insolvency Appeals, the decisions of the High Courts are not unanimous. The Calcutta High Court, in Lakhipriya v. Raikishori, 43 C 243, has held that this rule applies to the case of an appeal from an order passed by a Judge in insolvency under the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1908), but the Madras High Court, in Sesha Ayyar v. Nagarathna, Report Reference has held that it does not apply.

Although no appeal has been given by Or. XLIII against an order under this, yet s 145 gives appeal from any order passed against a surety, who shall be deemed a party within the meaning of s. 47.

Form.—For Form of security for costs of Appeal, see App G, Form No 4

Power to dismiss appeal without sending notice to Lower Court.

11. (1) The Appellate Court, after sending for the record if it thinks fit so to do, and after fixing a day for hearing the appellant or his pleader and hearing him accordingly if he appears on that day, may dismiss the appeal without sending notice to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred and without serving notice on the respondent or his pleader.

(2) If on the day fixed or any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned the appellant does not appear when the appeal is called on for hearing, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed.

(3) The dismissal of an appeal under this rule shall be notified to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred.

[S. 551.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 551, C. P. Code, 1882 with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1), the words "after sending for the record" and the words "so to do" have been added.

In sub-rule (2), the words "does not appear when the appeal is called on for hearing, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed" have been substituted for the words "does not attend in person or by his pleader, the appeal shall be dismissed for default," which occurred in the old section. The substitution of the word "may" for the words "shall" is material. The other changes are mere change of words and phrases

In sub-rule (3), the alterations are merely verbal.

This rule applies to appeals which have been admitted and registered.—Rudra Prasad v Baijnath, 15 A 367.

"May dismiss the appeal."—If a memorandum of appeal is drawn up in proper form, it cannot be rejected under Or. XLI, r 3 of the C. P. Code, but if the appeal is barred by limitation, it has to be dismissed under Or. XLI, r. 11. The rejection of an appeal on the ground of limitation, therefore, amounts to a dismissal thereof, and such order of rejection is appealable.—Farzand Ali v Sheikh Abdul Hamid, 60 I. C. 493.

Whether Court should Write Judgment on Dismissal of Appeal.—The dismissal of an appeal under sub-rule 1, by a Court whose decision may be the subject of an appeal, does not relieve the Court from the necessity of writing a judgment which, according to Or XLI, r 31, should show the points raised, and the reasons for deciding them.—Ram Dela v Brojo Nath, 65 C 97; Mgsaw v Ma Bwin Byu, 4 R 18 95 I. C. 521 A. I. R. 1926 Rang 129, Hari Dasi v. Godadhar, 43 C L J 409 96 I C 136 A. I. R 1926 Cal. 992; Surendra Nath v. Raghu Nath, 27 C W. N. 501; Hanmant v Annaji, 37 B 610 (F. B.). Approved in Pachi Dassi v. Bala Das, 13 C W. N 1031. Dissented from in Samin Hasan v Piran, 30 A. 319. 5 A L. J 300, where it has been held that the provisions of s. 574, C P Code, 1822 (r 31), are not applicable in their entirety to the case of an appeal dismissed under this rule.

The order of adjudication made under this rule is a decree, and the procedure authorized under that rule does not dispense with the necessity of drawing up a judgment.—Royal Reddi v Linga Reddi, 3 M 1. See also, Puttappa v. Yellappa, 5 Bom L R. 233; Rakhal Chandra v Satindra Deb, 5 C. L. J 348.

Dismissal of Appeal under this Rule is a Decree.—The dismissal of an appeal under this rule is a decree within the meaning of s 2 (2), and the expression of opinion dismissing the appeal is a judgment.—Atap Ali v. Jamsur Ali, 30 C. W. N 334 93 I C. 909 A I R. 1926 Cal 638; Umasundari v Bindu Bashini, 24 C 759, Muniswami v Muniswami, 22 M. 293, Chandra Kanta v Lakshman, 21 C W N 430 24 C L J. 517.

Amendment of the Decree on Dismissal of Appeal.—The dismissal of an appeal under this rule leaves the decree of the lower Court untouched, and it remains the decree of the lower Court, which can amend it under s 206, C. P Code, 1882 (s 152).—Bapu v Vajee, 21 B 548. But see, Umasundari v Bindu Bashini, 24 C 759, where it has been held that the High Court can amend such a decree. See also, Munisami Naidu v. Munisamy Reddi, 22 M. 293 (18 M 214 followed). Followed in Asma Bibi v Ahmed Husain, 30 A. 290: 5 A. L J 584, where it has been held that the dismissal of an appeal under this rule is a decree and supersedes the decree of the Court below; and the Court which has taken action under this rule is the only Court which has jurisdiction to amend the decree (21 B. 548 dissented from).

Summary Dismissal of Appeal—Effect on Mortgage Decree.—Where an appeal from a mortgage decree is summarily dismissed under Or. XLI, r. 11, the time for payment of the mortgage money is not extended, as the decree appealed from cannot be taken to have been confirmed under Or. XLI, r. 32.—Dattatraya Vithal v. Vasudeo, 47 B. 956: 25 Bom. L. R. 990.

Reference.—The proceeding under this rule is a trial of an appeal, and any question arising in the course of such trial may be properly referred to the High Court.—Thakur of Masuda v The Windows, 2 A. 819

Sub-rule 2. Dismissal of Appeal for Default.—When an appeal is dismissed for default, it is only the decree of the Lower Court which can be enforced in execution.—Shyam Mandal v. Satinath, 44 C. 951.

Review.—Dismissal of an appeal under this rule bars a review of the judgment appealed against See Notes under Or XLVII, r. 1 The order under this rule dismissing the appeal, is itself subject to review, and the practice of the Calcutta High Court is to grant a review and order the rehearing of the appeal ex parte.—Official Trustee v. Benode, 51 C. 943: 84 I. C 147: A. I. R 1925 Cal 114. When a second appeal is dismissed under this rule, the High Court has no power to review its judgment on the ground of the discovery of new and important matter.—Rajani v. Kali, 41 C. 809: 26 I. C. 281; Sailabala v. Gadadhar, 36 C. L. J. 76: 70 I. C. 408: A. I R. 1922 Cal. 165.

Re-admission of Appeal Dismissed for Default under Sub-rule (2).—An appeal dismissed under sub-rule (2) may be re-admitted under r. 19.

Dismissal After Issue of Notice Whether Legal.—After issue of notice on respondent, an appeal cannot be dismissed under this rule. This rule empowers an Appellate Court to dismiss an appeal without and before, but not after, sending notice of the appeal to the Court against whose decree the appeal has been made and without service of notice on the respondent, the procedure of this rule was not applicable —Hamid Husain v. Bholanath, (1906), A. W. N. 186

Day for hearing appeal.

12. (1) Unless the appellate Court dismisses the appeal under r. 11, it shall fix a day for hearing the appeal.

(2) Such day shall be fixed with reference to the current business of the Court, the place of residence of the respondent, and the time necessary for the service of the notice of appeal, so as to allow the respondent sufficient time to appear and answer the appeal on such day. [S. 552.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 552, C. P. Code, 1882.

13. (1) Where the appeal is not dismissed under r. 11, the appellate Court shall send notice of the appeal to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred.

Appellate Court to give notice to Court whose decree appealed from.

(2) Where the appeal is from the decree of a Court, the records of which are not deposited in the Appellate Court, the Court receiving such notice shall send with all practicable despatch all material papers in the suit, or such papers as may be specially called for by the Appellate Court.

Transmission of papers to Appellate Court.

(3) Either party may apply in writing to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, specifying any of the papers in such Court of which he requires copies to be made; and copies of such papers shall be made at the expense of, and given to, the applicant. [S. 550.]

Copies of exhibits in Court whose decree appealed from.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 550, C P Code, 1882, with the change of some words and phrases. No alteration seems to have been made in the meaning.

If the appellant desires to bring before the Appellate Court any part of the record not sent up, it is his duty to ask the Court to send for it before the date fixed for trial.—Buksh Ali v Joyanut Khan, 11 W. R 248.

Form.—See Appendix, G, Form No. 5, for Form of intimation to lower Court of admission of appeal.

14. (1) Notice of the day fixed under rule 12 shall be affixed in the Appellate Court-house, and a like notice shall be sent by the Appellate Court to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, and shall be served on the respondent or on his pleader in the Appellate Court in the manner provided for the service on a defendant of a summons to appear and answer; and all the provisions applicable to such summons, and to proceedings with reference to the service thereof, shall apply to the service of such notice.

Publication and service of notice of day for hearing appeal.

(2) Instead of sending the notice to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, the Appellate Court may itself cause the notice to be served on the respondent or his pleader under the provisions above referred to. [S. 553.]

Appellate Court may itself cause notice to be served.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 553, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character Only some words have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words.

Service of Notice.—When a notice of appeal is transmitted by the High Court to a Court below, with instruction to make a return within a specified time, the appellant is entitled to the whole of the time allowed, and may deposit his tulubana, and cause service of the notice any time within the period limited.—Rungo Debee v. Huree Naraın, 11 W. R. 138.

Service upon a respondent's pleader is good service upon himself, so far as notice of the appeal is concerned.—Issur Dutt v. Shib Pershad, 15 W. R. 280.

In a case where there has been a guardian ad litem appointed by the Court on behalf of the minor, service of notice on the guardian ad litem is sufficient. The language of the Code does not admit that there should be service on both these persons, and therefore, notice to the minor need not be given.—Rasik Mohan v Kumar Jyotish Kanta, 30 C W. N. 949. 97 I. C. 614: A I. R. 1926 Cal. 1106.

Where a respondent resides in Chandernagore, i e., out of British territory, the summons or notice of appeal should be forwarded to him by post, under a registered cover; and if he does not appear, a verified statement should be put in to show that he is at present, or has recently been, residing there.—Sonatun Bukshee v. Gopal Chunder, 15 W. R. 31.

Where an appellant to the High Court was unable to serve notice on the plaintiff (respondent), because of inability to trace the plaintiff in the place given as his place of residence, when he (plaintiff) commenced the suit, and sent in his petition of appeal to the Zillah Court. Held, that the case might be dealt with in analogy to the procedure in respect of summons under s. 57, C. Where an appellant failed for twelve months to serve notice of appeal upon his respondent, the Court refused to allow him the opportunity to have a fresh summons issued and served Where the party serving a notice of appeal finds the respondent absent from home, and is told where he is, and yet affixes the notice to the door of his house, such service is void and of no effect.—Doolee Chund v. Nirban Singh, 20 W. R 62.

No appeal against an order made in the matter of the winding up of a company under the Indian Companies Act of 1882, shall be heard by an Appellate Court unless notice of the same is given within three weeks after any order complained of has been made.—Prosanna Kumar v. Bani

PROCEDURE ON HEARING.

16. (1) On the day fixed, or on any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the appellant shall be heard in support of the appeal.

Right to begin.

(2) The Court shall then, if it does not dismiss the appeal at once, hear the respondent against the appeal, and in such case the appellant shall be entitled to reply. [S. 555.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s 555, C. P. Code, 1882

Right to Begin.—The respondent has no right to begin simply because he disputes the right of the appellant to appeal —Rustomji v Kessowji, 8 B. 287.

It is the duty of the appellant to satisfy the Court of appeal that the decision of the trial Court is erroneous —Sec. of State v Bejoy Kumar, 40 C. L. J. 303: 84 I. C. 732 A I R 1925 Cal 224. In every appeal it is incumbent upon the appellant to show some reason why the judgment appealed from should be disturbed There must be some balance in his favour to justify the alteration of the judgment as it stands.—Musst Fakrunissa v Moulavi Lzarus, 25 C. W. N. 866. A. I. R. 63 I C. 898 P C.

Hear the Respondent against the Appeal.—Though a respondent has not appeared on the date specified in the notice to him, he can appear on the date on which the appeal is notified for hearing on the Court's board —Hanmantbhat v. Basappa, 28 Bom L R. 738· 96 I. C. 326· A I. R 1926 Bom. 424

Procedure—Whether Counsel for One Party can be Heard in the Absence of Counsel for the Other Party.—A Court heard counsel for one of the parties after the case had been closed and in the absence of the counsel for the other party Held, that the Court acted illegally, and its judgment was not valid —Keso Das v. Ram Narain, 63 I C 945.

Dismissal of appeal for appellant's default.

17. (1) Where on the day fixed, or on any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the appellant does not appear when the appeal is called on for hearing, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed.

Hearing appeal ex parte

(2) Where the appellant appears and the respondent does not appear, the appeal shall be heard ex parte. [S. 556.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to section 556, C. P. Code 1882, with some alterations The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if", the words "appellant does not appear" have been substituted, in sub-rule (1) for the words "if the appellant does not attend in person or by his pleader", the word "apear" has been substituted for the word "attend", and the words "in his absence," which stood after the word "ex parte" in the second para. of the old section, have been omitted The words "the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed" have been substituted for the words "the appeal shall be dismissed for default."

The words "appear" and "appearance" have been substituted for the words "attend in person or by pleader" in view of Or. III, r. 1, which provides that appearance may be in person, by recognized agent, or by pleader.

Dismissal of Appeal for Default.—Where neither the appellant nor his pleader was present, but the Appellate Court, instead of dismissing the appeal for default, disposed of the appeal on the merits and dismissed it Held, that the dismissal was for default, and the appellant's proper course was to apply under s. 558, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 19), for re-admission of the appeal.—Kanahai Lal v. Naubat Rai, 3 A. 519; Zainab Begam v. Manawar Husain, 8 A. 277.

Where, when an appeal is called on, the pleader is not absent, but is unprepared to go on with the case, the dismissal is a dismissal for default within the meaning of this rule, and the appeal can therefore be re-admitted under s 558, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r 19).—Shibendra Narain v. Kinoo Ram, 12 C. 605 (15 W. R. 143 followed). But see, Ram Chandra v. Madhav, 16 B. 23; Chiranji Lal v. Kundan Lal, 20 A. 294; and Robert Watson & Co v. Ambica Dasi, 27 C. 529: 4 C. W. N. 237.

An application by a counsel or pleader, who is instructed only to apply for an adjournment, which is refused, is not an appearance within the meaning of the C. P. Code. When in such circumstances an appeal is dismissed, the dismissal is one for default under this rule, entitling the appellant to apply for re-admission under this s. 558, C. P. Code, 1882

(Or. XLI, r. 19).—Satish Chandra v. Apara Prasad, 34 C. 403, F. B. 11 C. W. N. 329: 5 C. L. J. 247: 2 M. L. T. 123 (27 C. 529: 4 C W. N. 237 overruled; 8 C. W. N. 621 approved); Nogendra Kumar v Nabin, 36 C. 189. Munsee Devjee & Co. v. Maung Than, 62 I. C. 57; Musaliarakath v. Maniavkrama, 43 M. L. J. 317: 16 L. W. 484; Firm of Jei Narain Ramjesh v. Sitaram Marwari, (1923) Pat. 175; Pazhaniandi v. Naku, 51 M. L. J. 684. In the above Full Bench case, all the rulings regarding the meaning of the word " appearance," have been referred to, discussed and explained.

Appellant's pleader appeared and asked for adjournment. He did not withdraw from the case but merely urged that, as the records were in possession of his leader (counsel) who was absent, he was unable to argue the appeal. The Appellate Court refused to grant the adjournment and dismissed the appeal Held, that although it was open to the Judge to refuse the adjournment, he was bound to write a judgment and dispose of the appeal He could not dismiss the appeal for default —Patinhare Tarakatt v Vellur Krishnan, 26 M. 267 (16 B 27 followed).

Where a Judge on the non-appearance of the appellant in person or by pleader, instead of observing the discretion of the law, goes into the merits and gives a judgment against the appellant, the appeal must be considered as dismissed for default of the appellant in appearing; and an application for re-admission and rehearing cannot be treated as one for review, but must be entertained under this rule.—Mohesh Chunder v. Thakoor Dass, 20 W. R 425.

If an appellant is appearing through a pleader and on the day of hearing the pleader is absent but the appellant is present in Court and states that his pleader is engaged elsewhere, the mere presence of the appellant is not an appearance within the meaning of Or. XLI, r. 17 — Ramdhan v. Bishun Pragash, 5 Pat L J. 17. 1 Pat. L. T. 156 (30 M 274 followed).

Section 346, Act VIII of 1859 (providing for the dismissal of an appeal for default), even if it applies to miscellaneous cases, does not apply to a case in which it is not shown distinctly that the appellant had any notice that his appeal would be heard on the day to which the case was adjourned, and on which the Judge disposed of it.—Shib Chunder v Allad Monee, 5 W. R. Mis 22.

One of the pleaders for the appellant opened the case, and then he went to another Court The other pleader for the appellant refused to address the Court, and the Court dismissed the appeal under this rule Held, that the Court below had acted illegally in dismissing the appeal for default —Jowahir Singh v Debi Singh, 18 A 119

An Appellate Court has power in an appeal in which the appellant has failed to appear, to enter into the merits of the case and to decide the appeal upon the merits.—Doulat Singh v Srinivas, 57 I C 75· 2 Pat L. T 86

Where both parties make default in appearance at the hearing of an appeal, the Court must dismiss the appeal ,and not to go into the merits, and reverse the decree —Manickram v. Roop Narain, Marsh, 5: 1 Ind. Jur O. S 36.

Dismissal of Appeal for Default—Compromise Thereafter.—Where an appeal has been dismissed for default of appearance of both the parties and both the appellant and the respondent within a month of the dismissal file a petition of compromise settling their disputes, with an additional application for restoration of the appeal. Held, that in the circumstances of the case, the Court ought to have restored the appeal and passed a decree in terms of the compromise —Aswini Kumar v. Sukhoda Sundari 68 I. C. 448.

Non-appearance of Respondent.—The absence of the respondant on the day of hearing is no justification by itself for decreeing the appeal —Mussammat Raj Rani v. Ram Kishore, 56 I. C 386

For the meaning of the word "appearance," see the cases noted under Or. IX, r. 13.

Appeal from Order of Dismissal for Default.—No appeal lies from an order of dismissal for default —Rukminimayi v. Paran Chandra, 39 C. 841.

Where no date was fixed for the hearing of an appeal and the Court purported to dismiss the appeal for default, held, that the dismissal was without jurisdiction and that an application to set aside the dismissal was not governed by Art. 168 of the Limitation Act.—Ata Mahomed v. Shankar Das, 69 I. C. 618.

See notes under r 19 of the Order.

18. Where on the day fixed, or on any other day to which the hearing may be adjourned, it is found that the notice to the respondent has not been served in consequence of the failure of the appellant to deposit, within the period fixed, the sum required to defray the cost of serving the notice, the Court may make an order that the appeal be dismissed :

Dismissal of appeal where notice not served in consequence of appellant's failure to deposit costs.

Provided that no such order shall be made although the notice has not been served upon the respondent, if on any such day the respondent appears when the appeal is called on for hearing. [S. 557.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 557, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

In sub-rule (2), the words "the respondent appears when the appeal is called on for hearing," have been substituted for the words " respondent appears in person, or by pleader, or by duly authorized agent." The alteration seems to have been made in view of the provisions of r. 1, Or III, in which the meaning of the word "appearance" is given.

Dismissal for Non-service of Notice.—The order of dismissal should not as indicated by the language of the rule, be made before the day fixed for the hearing of the appeal.—Chandra Nath v. Kaliprasanna, 35 C. 535.

Before dismissing a case under this rule the Court should fix a time within which process fees should be paid into Court.—Lalla Prasadi Lal v. Lalla Ambika Prasad, 11 W. R. 290: 3 B. L. R. App. 25.

Where an appeal is dismissed against one of three respondents for non-service of notice on him, the appellant cannot proceed with the appeal as against the two respondents, if the decree appealed against was a decree for joint possession.—Baset v. Fazle, 19 C W. N 290. 28 I. C. 703.

An appeal is liable to be dismissed for default in depositing costs for notice to respondent The fact of its having been committed by an ignorant karparadaz is no excuse.—Pran Chunder v. Juggesur, 11 W. R. 417.

An appeal cannot be dismissed under Or XLI, r. 18, C P. Code on account of the omission of the appellant to provide a person to identity the respondent.—Nagendra Nath v. Shambhu Nath, 3 Pat. L T 498; 65 I. C. 49.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order under this rule. The proper remedy is by an application for re-admission under r 19.—Attar Singh v Karm Chana, P. R (1919) p 418; but it does not take away any other remedy that might be available.—Surajdeo v. Partap, 2 Pat L. T. 405.

Re-admission of appeal dismissed for default.

19. Where an appeal is dismissed under r. 11, sub-rule (2), or r. 17 or r. 18, the appellant may apply to the Appellate Court for the re-admission of the appeal; and, where it is proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the appeal was called on for hearing or from depositing the sum so required, the Court shall re-admit the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit. [S. 558.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 558, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character The words "to impose upon him," which stood after the words "thinks fit" in the old section, have been omitted, and the words "shall re-admit the appeal" have been substituted for the words "may readmit the appeal" in the old section

For the meaning of the words "prevented by any sufficient cause," see notes under Or IX, rr 9 and 13, as the principles laid down in the rulings under those rules will also apply to the rule where the similar expression, "prevented by any sufficient cause," occurs

Re-admission of Appeal Dismissed for Default.—The affirmative provisions in this rule, that an appellant may prove that he was "prevented by any sufficient cause" from attending when his appeal was callled on and dismissed, do not imply the negative, namely, 'that an application for restoration cannot be granted unless sufficient cause is shown. The effect of the enactments is that, if sufficient cause is shown, restoration is made obligatory on the Courts, there being no discretion in the matter; whereas, in other cases the merits of the appellant's case will form an important element for consideration when the Court is asked to exercise its discretion.—Sommayya v. Subbamma, 26 M. 599.

Absence of knowledge of the date fixed for the hearing of the appeal, due to non-service of notice on the appellants, is a sufficient cause for failure to appear when the appeal is called on for hearing within r. 19—Muhammad Sharif v. Din Muhammad, 101 I. C 203: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 365 Where the appellant did not know the date of hearing of the appeal and the Vakil with whom he had entrusted the case had died, and in these circumstances the subordinate Judge held there was sufficient reason to excuse appellant's absence. Held, that the restoration of the after-default was justified —Ananthalakshmi v. Narasimha, 97 I C. 687: A. I. R. 1926 Mad 1210.

Appeal dismissed for default—Prevented by sufficient cause from attending when appeal was called on for hearing—Judge's discretion to restore appeal.—Dakshinamurthy v. Municipal Council of Trichinopoly, 31 M. 157: 3 M. L. T. 336

A decree of a Division Bench of the High Court, dismissing an appeal for default in depositing the estimated costs of preparing paper-book, can only be set aside by an order under s. 626, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLVII, r. 4) and not by an order under this rule —Fatimunnissa v. Deoki Persad, 24 C. 350; F B.: 1 C. W. N. 21, F. B. (23 C. 339 partly overruled).

Where an appeal is dismissed on account of unpreparedness of the pleader, the dismissal is a dismissal for default under s. 556, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 17), and the appeal can therefore be re-admitted under this rule.—Shibendra Narain v. Kinno Ram, 12 C. 605 (15 W. R. 143 followed). See, however, Ramchandra v Madhav, 16 B. 23; Chiranji Lal v. Kundan, 20 A. 294; Robert Watson & Co. v. Ambica Dasi, 27 C. 529: 4 C. W. N. 237; and Jawahir Singh, v. Devi Singh, 18 A. 119. The Full Bench case of Satish Chandra v. Apara Prasad, 34 C. 403: 11 C. W. N. 329: 5 C. L. J. 247, noted under r. 17, has set at rest all the conflicting rulings on the point, and all rulings have been referred to, discussed, and explained there (overruling 27 C. 529: 4 C. W. N. 227, and following 8 C. W. N. 621) See notes under r. 17.

An appeal dismissed on account of failure to pay printing charges cannot be restored under Or. XLI, r 19.—Chennarayappa v. Muniappa, 1 Mys L. J. 44.

Where when an appeal was called on in the lower appellate Court, the pleader for the appellants was not present and the appeal was consequently dismissed for default, and subsequently the appellants put in a petition for restoration on the ground that the pleader was, at the time when the appeal was called on, engaged in another Court arguing another appeal, and the application was rejected 'Held, in second appeal, that under these circumstances, the lower Court ought to have re-admitted the appeal as a matter of course, because there was no wilful default or real carelessness, such as would justify the order refusing to restore the appeal, and that the High Court has ample powers to restore an appeal for sufficient cause.—Mrigendra v. Dibakar, 44 C. L. J. 165: 97 I. C. 573: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1231.

The fact that the counsel was engaged in another court when the appeal was called on and had sent word to the Reader of the Court for a short pass over, is not sufficient to set aside the dismissal for default and readmitting the appeal.—Saif Ali v. Chirag Ali Shah, 68 I. C. 785. But where the appellant's pleader appeared soon after the appeal was dismissed, it was restored on the ground that the failure to appear was unintentional.—Balmokund v. Wazir, 5 Lah. L. J. 89: 79 I. C. 279.

On an application under this rule for the re-admission of an appeal which had been decided ex parte against the applicant, it appeared that he had been misled by reason of the appeal having been transferred from the file of one Court to another, no notice of the transfer having been given to him by the pleaders in the case Held that, under the circumstances, the applicant was entitled to have the appeal re-admitted —Narain Singh v. Bhairup Churn, 8 C. L. R. 350

An application for re-admission of an appeal dismissed under this rule should be made to the Sub-Judge or to the Assistant Judge who disposed of it and not to the District Judge.—Sakharam Lakshman v Govind Joti, 15 B. 107

The carelessness of an advocate's clerk does not costitute " Sufficient cause."—Maung Than v Zainat Bibi, 3 R 488: 92 I C 208 A. I. R 1926 Rang. 50.

The excuse that it was raining and hence the appellant's pleader was a little late in coming to Court, is not a sufficient reason within this rule for restoration of appeal dismissed for default, Kumar Satya Ram v. Mhd. Hamedulla, 96 I. C. 377: A. I R 1926 Cal 1152.

Where a memorandum of appeal was insufficiently stamped and the deficiency not having been made up within the time allowed, the appeal was wrongly dismissed for default instead of being rejected; held, that it could not be restored under Or XLI, r 19, which has no application to such a case; Surajpal v Utim Pandy, 63 I. C 99; 6 Pat. L. J 625.

Where at the time of the hearing of a case transferred lower down in the list by the trying Judge without notice to the appellant, the appellant's counsel was not present in court and the appeal was consequently dismissed for default, held, that there was no cause for restoration of the appeal; Nanak Chand v. Sajjid Hussain, 71 I C 813

" Shall re-admit the appeal."—The word " shall " has been substituted for the word " may," which occurred in the old Code

Other Remedy.—The applicant, if he is still within the period of limitation, may file another appeal and is not bound to confine himself to the remedy of restoration —Suraj Deo v Partab Rai, 2 Pat 739 75 I C 284: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 213

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order of refusal to re admit an appeal under Or. XLIII, r 1, cl (t), but an order under this rule re-admitting an appeal is not appealable.—Gulab Kunwar v. Thakur Das, 24 A. 464 (22 C. 981 followed).

An application for restoration of an appeal dismissed for default should not be rejected without giving the applicant an opportunity of substantiating the facts on which he relies.—Hemanta Kumar v. Punchanan, 57 I. C. 762.

Power to adjourn hearing and direct persons appearing interested to be made respondents.

20. Where it appears to the Court at the hearing that any person who was a party to the suit in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, but who has not been made a party to the appeal, is interested in the result of the appeal, the Court may adjourn the hearing to a future day to be fixed by the Court and direct that such person be made a respondent [S. 559.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 559, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations only.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" in the beginning, and the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made," which occurred in the old section

Two conditions are necessary to enable the Appellate Court to exercise the power conferred by this rule: (1) that the person was a party to the suit in the original Court, and (2) that he is interested in the result of the appeal

Applicability of the Rule.—This rule does not only apply to cases where there is any doubt as to a party being a necessary party but also applies to persons who are admittedly necessary parties; so also it not only applies to cases where the Court itself discovers the defect as to the non-joinder of parties but also to cases where the appellant applies for the addition of a party.—Chiraj Din v. Samanda, 8 Lah L. J. 473: 97 I. C. 223: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 689.

Adding of Parties under this Rule.—It is a question for the Court in its discretion to determine in each case whether or not it will make an order for the addition of a party as contemplated by this rule.—Amlook Chand v. Sarat Chunder, 38 C. 913, (919).

A respondent is entitled to attack an adverse finding of the lower Court in support of the decree and the Appellate Court must consider the correctness of the finding and for that purpose has power to add a party respondent whose interests are effected by the finding. The powers of the Appellate Court to add parties in appeal are not confined to Or. XLI, r. 20, but are also governed by Or. XLI, r. 22.—Baluswami Iyer v. Lakshmana Aiyer, 44 M. 605: 41 M. L. J. 129; 29 M. L. T 386

The Court will not under this rule add representatives of a deceased party to save an appeal that has abated.—Kali Dayal v. Nagendra, 24 C.

W. N. 44: 54 I. C. 822; Manindra v. Bhagabati; 30 C. W. N. 45: 90 I. 986 A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 335.

"Is interested in the result of the appeal."—A person against whom a suit has been dismissed and who is not a party to the appeal, is not "interested in the appeal" for the purposes of Or. XLI, r. 20. That rule contemplates a person being made a party to the appeal at the time of the hearing of the appeal, because it contemplates that the Court must be in full possession of the facts so that it may be in a position to say whether or not any person is interested in the result of the appeal. The rule does not contemplate that a person should be made a party to the appeal simply in order to enable one of the respondents to prefer a cross-objection against him.—Rajendra v. Moheshata, 53 C 270: 91 I. C. 649: A. I. R. 1926 Cal 533.

It is not competent to an appellate Court to implead, under Or. XLI, r. 20, a person who had not been made a party to the decree though he had been a party to a suit, as the person is not "interested in the result of the appeal." To hold that an appellate Court can implead a person who has acquired an absolute right by the lapse of time or by the omission of the name from the decree, would amount to denying all finality to litigation.—Maharajah Sahib, Faridkote v. Kanshi Ram, 8 Lah. L. J. 333: 97 I. C. 338: A. I. R. 1926 Lah 499.

Joinder of Respondents in Appeal.—It is quite open to the Appellate Court, with reference to the terms of this rule to add a party as respondent to an appeal, when no appeal had been made against him.—Hudson v. Basdeo Bajpye, 26 C 109: 3 C. W. N. 76. Bishun Churn v. Jagendra Nath, 26 C 114. See also, Upendra Lal v. Girindra Nath, 25 C 565: 2 C. W. N. 425; approved in Rup Jauni v. Abdul Kadir, 31 C. 643, F B.: 8 C. W. N. 496 F. B., Soiru Padmanabh v. Narayanrao Bin, 18 B 520; and Kanagappa v. Sokkalinga, 15 M. 362. But See, Atma Ram v. Balkishen, 5 A. 266, followed in 31 M. 442: 18 M. L. J. 452, noted below. This Madras case has been commented on in 13 C. W. N., at page lxxviii (78).

Where through a mistake on the part of an appellant's legal adviser, the names of certain defendants who are interested in the result of the appeal are omitted from the memorandum of appeal, the Court has power to add them as parties under Or. XLI, r. 10.—Deokaran v. Nathu, 63 I. C. 352.

An Appellate Court has power to implead only such persons as parties to the appeal as were parties in the trial Court and were not made parties to the appeal but not those who are complete strangers to the suit.—Musst. Haliman v. Nur Mahommed Khan, 73 I. C. 136 (18 A. 133 refd. to).

Looking at the language of this rule apart from authority it would appear to have been inserted to protect parties to the suit who had not been made respondents in the appeal, from being prejudiced by modifications made behind their back in the decree under appeal. The party whom it is sought to bring on is required to be interested in the result of the appeal, that is to say, he must be shown to be interested in the result of the appeal before he is brought on for once he is brought, he may be said to acquire an interest as a result of being brought on. When a defendant has been exonerated and there is no appeal against so much of the decree as exonerates him, no decree can be passed against him in an appeal by any of the party to a suit as he is no party to such appeal and he cannot be said to be interested in the result of such appeal by another party unless the decree sought to be obtained against the respondents in the appeal would have the effect of prejudicing him in some way or other. A decree having been made against a wrong party, it is not competent for the Appellate Court, in appeal by that party in which the decree-holder alone is made respondent, to bring on the record those persons against whom the Court of first instance should have made the decree —Subramaniam v. Veerabhadram, 31 M. 442: 18 M. L J. 452 4 M. L. T. 104 (5 A. 267 followed; 25 C. 569 not followed; 31 C 109 and 643 referred to).

In a rent suit one of the tenants had not been joined as a party, but he had received a copy of the summons and had been represented by a pleader after he had filed a written statement. In the appeal also the said defendant was not made a party but the District Judge after he had delivered judgment issued notice to him informing him that his name had been added as a party defendant Held, that no useful purpose could be served by adding in the appellate stage, a party defendant if he had not been made a party to the appeal and after judgment in the appeal had been delivered, he could not be bound by the insertion of his name on the record as a defendant —Surendra Nath v. Aghore Nath, 25 C W N. 525.

Joinder of Co-respondent.—The Appellate Court has jurisdiction under Or. XLI, r. 20 to add a defendant as co-respondent when the plaintiff, the sole respondent in the appeal, preferred a memo. of cross-objections against him —Ponnuswami v Palaniandi, 11 L W. 602 .

Order XLI, Rule 20 and order XXII.—Or. XLI, r. 20 is not intended to override the provisions of Or. XXII; the right obtained by a respondent when the appeal abates as against him, is a valuable right and should not be lightly treated. Or. XLI, r 20 will only apply where there is an appeal pending in the Court on which a decision may be given by the Court, and there is no power in a Court to revive a dead appeal or to give power to an appellant to present an appeal where there is none at all in the file of the Court —Badri Narain v. E. I Ry Co, 5 Pat. 735: A I. R. 1927 Pat. 23.

Adding of Parties in Second Appeal.—The Court in second appeal is competent to bring on the record persons who had been originally joined in the suit, but were not joined in the lower Appellate Court.—Paya Matathil v. Koumel, 19 M. 151, Durgacharan v. Lakhi Narain, 47 I. C 917; Padarath v Hitan Singh, 82 I. C. 600 But the Allahabad High Court has taken a contrary view in Chunni v. Lala Ram, 16 A. 5 and in Pichhauri v. Ram Khilawan, 37 A 57.

Power of Appellate Court to Add Respondent—Limitation.—The power of the Appellate Court to make a person respondent under this rule is not affected by the Limitation Act.—Sohna v. Kalak Singh, 13 A. 78; Bindeshri Naik v. Ganga Saran, 14 A. 154, F. B.; Manickya Moyee v. Baroda Prosad, 9 C 355; 11 C L R. 430; Upendra Lal v Girindra Nath, 25 C. 565; 2 C. W. N. 425. Approved in 31 C. 643, F

B.: 8 C. W. N. 496, F. B..Not followed in 31 M. 442: 18 M. L. J. 452. See also, Maung An Gale v. Ma Min Dun, 66 I. C. 305; Municipal Committee Bhera v. Shivram, 75 I. C. 90; Amar Singh v. Kanshi, 76 I. C. 285; Wazir Singh v. Janki Das, 97 I. C. 174: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 679

The Limitation Act does not contract the power of the Court under this rule to allow persons, who were parties to the proceedings in the Court below but were not made respondents at the time when the appeal was presented, to be added as respondents, and it makes no difference whether an application is made by the appellant to bring in those persons as respondents or the Court considers it necessary for the ends of justice that they should be added as respondents.—Girish Chandra v. Sasi Sekhareswar, 33 C. 329 (9 C 355: 12 C. 612 referred to).

Inherent Power of Court to Add Parties.—Powers of a Court to implead parties under s. 151, C. P. Code, are circumscribed by Or. XLI, r. 20, and it is only in exceptional circumstances that the inherent powers under s 151 could be invoked —Musst. Haliman v. Nur Mahommed Khan, 73 I. C. 136: 1923 Lah. 490

Form.—For Form of notice to a party to a suit not made a party to the appeal, see Appendix G, Form No. 7.

Re-hearing on application of respondent against whom ex parte decree made.

21. Where an appeal is heard ex parte and judgment is pronounced against the respondent, he may apply to the Appellate Court to rehear the appeal; and, if he satisfies the Court that the notice was not duly served or that he was prevented by sufficient cause from appearing when the appeal was called on for hearing, the Court shall re-hear the appeal on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit to impose upon him. [S. 560.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 560, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations.

The words "in the absence of the respondent," which stood after the word "ex parte" in the old section, have been omitted; and the word "pronounced" has been substituted for the words "is given," after the word "judgment" The other changes are merely verbal

"Sufficient cause."—For the meaning of the words "he was prevented by sufficient cause," see, notes under Or IX, rr. 9 and 13, as the principles laid down in the rulings under those rules, are equally applicable to this rule, in which the similar expression, "prevented by sufficient cause" occurs

Appeal Heard Ex Parte—Application for Re-hearing—Sufficient cause.—Where a respondent had received no intimation of the date of hearing of an appeal from his pleader's clerk who owing to his illness had been compelled to go home, the papers of the case being with him, and who did not give information to the clients of the day fixed for hearing, and the appeal was heard ex parte on the date of hearing. Held, that it was a sufficient cause within the meaning of this rule for the re-hearing of the appeal.—Kailash Chunder v. Rama Nath, 2 C. W. N. 414.

Notice was given to the respondent's pleader of the day fixed for hearing, but he refused to accept service and did not inform his client that such notice was given. The appeal was heard ex parte no one appearing for the respondent; held, that the laches of the pleader is not a sufficient ground for restoration of the appeal.—Har Prosad v. Abdul Rahman, (1905) A. W. N. 44.

An applicant presenting a petition for the re-hearing of an appeal, decided ex parte, must, at the time of making such application, be prepared to satisfy the Court that the notice of appeal was not duly served upon him, or that he was prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on for hearing.—Anunda Shaha v. Kima Bebee, 6 C. 548.

Where an appeal has been heard ex parte, a re-hearing cannot be granted by the Court on an application under s. 560, C. P. Code, 1882, except upon legal evidence produced by the respondent of the facts necessary to entitle him to such re-hearing.—Mahomed Kalun v. Dinomoyee, 8 C. L. R. 112.

A respondent engaged two pleaders on the day of hearing; the senior pleader being ill, transferred his brief to another pleader, whom the judge declined to hear as his name did not appear in the vakalatnama. The junior not being instructed to argue applied for a day's postponement to get himself ready. This was refused and the appeal decreed ex parte. Held, that the Judge ought either to have allowed the pleader who appeared, to argue the case or allowed an adjournment, making if necessary an order for costs in favour of the appellant.—Hari Krishna v. Bishnu Chandra, 35 C. 799: 12 C. W. N. 888: 7 C. L. J. 426.

Where counsel for respondent was unable to appear at the hearing because the respondent's agent had taken away the papers, it was held that this was not "sufficient cause" for re-hearing the appeal.—Baji Lal v. Nawal Singh, 39 A. 388.

This rule applies to a case in which the respondent has been prevented by sufficient cause from attending when the appeal was called on, whether appearance has been entered for him or not.—Esab v. Krishna Narain, 11 C. L. R. 164.

Where pleaders were engaged on behalf of the respondent, but they were unavoidably prevented from appearing, held that although vakalatnamas had been filed by the defendant's pleaders, the defendant could not be said to have appeared in person or by pleader and the order made under this rule was correct.—Sheo Churn v. Heera Lall, 11 C. L. R. 537 (7 W. R. 81 followed).

Held by the Full Bench, that a respondent in whose absence the appeal has been heard ex parte, and against whom judgment has been given, may prefer a second appeal from the decree under the provisions of s. 584, C. P. Code, 1882, and his remedy is not limited to an application under this rule to the Court which passed the decree to re-hear the appeal —Ajudhia Prasad v. Balmukand, 8 A 351, F. B. (1 A. 387, and 6 B. L. R. A. C. 161 referred to).

An appeal was heard ex parte in the absence of a respondent; he then applied for re-hearing, but his application was refused. Held, that he was not debarred, by reason that he had not appealed from the order refusing to rehear the appeal, from appealing from the decree of the Appellate Court.—Ramjas v. Baijnath, 2 A. 567.

A defendant who obtains a judgment in his favour in the Court of first instance and who, on appeal by the plaintiff, does not appear at the hearing of the appeal or present a petition for a re-hearing, may present a second appeal against the decree of the lower Appellate Court.—Ex parte Modalatha, 2 M 75

An application for re-hearing of an appeal presented originally within the period of limitation but returned for amendment, and presented after amendment, after the period of limitation, cannot be rejected as long out of time.—Shama Prasad v. Tala Mulik, 5 C W N 816

This rule applies to a case where the respondent is absent and not dead at the time of hearing.—Soudamini v. Ganga Kumar, 3 C. L. J. 35*n*.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order of refusal to re-hear an appeal under Or. XLIII, r 1, cl (t).

Upon hearing, respondent may object to decree as if he had preferred separate appeal.

22. (1) Any respondent, though he may not have appealed from any part of the decree, may not only support the decree on any of the grounds decided against him in the Court below, but take any cross-objection to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal, provided he has filed such objection in the Appellate Court within one month from the date of service on him or his pleader of notice of the day fixed for hearing the appeal, or within such further time as the appellate Court may see fit to allow.

Form of objection and provisions applicable thereto

(2) Such cross-objection shall be in the form of a memorandum, and the provisions of r 1, so far as they relate to the form and contents of the memorandum of appeal, shall apply therto.

(3) Unless the respondent files with the objection a written acknowledgment from the party who may be affected by such objection or his pleader of having received a copy thereof, the Appellate Court shall cause a copy to be served, as soon as may be after the filing of the objection, on such party or his pleader at the expense of the respondent.

(4) Where, in any case in which any respondent has under this rule filed a memorandum of objection, the original appeal is withdrawn or is dismissed for default, the objection so filed may nevertheless be heard and determined after such notice to the other parties as the Court thinks fit.

(5) The provisions relating to pauper appeals shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to an objection under this rule. [S. 561.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 561 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The alterations made in sub-rule (1) and (2) are merely verbal, viz., the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against," and the word "cross-objection" has been substituted for the word "objection"

In sub-rule (3), the words "from the party who may be affected by such objection or his pleader," have been substituted for the words "from the appellant or pleader," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (4) is new It has been inserted to set at rest the several conflicting rulings on the point. The question was the subject of discussion in several cases, as will appear from the ruling noted under the heading "WITHDRAWAL OR DISMISSAL OF APPEAL FOR DEFAULT—ITS EFFECT UPON CROSS-OBJECTION"

Sub-rule (5) corresponds to the last para of s. 561, C. P Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

Cross-objections by Respondents.—Where a decree is entirely in favour of a party, it is not necessary for him to file a notice of objection under this rule simply because an issue was decided by the lower Court against him.—Lala Gauri Sanker v. Janki Pershad, 17 C. 809, P. C., p. 813; Bhagoji v Bapuji, 13 B. 75.

It is not necessary to entitle a respondent to support a decree upon a particular ground under this rule that the ground should have been in express terms decided against him If it has not been decided in his favour it must be taken to have been decided against him within the meaning of this rule —Shrish Chandra v Mungri Bewa, 9 C. W. N. 14.

Though a person who has not appealed from a decree cannot question its correctness he can support the decree on reasons not given by the lower Court under Or. XLI, r. 22 (2), C. P. Code.—Raj Kumar Jagannath Prasad v. Mirza Elkbal, 5 Pat L J 239· 55 I C. 214.

An application to file a cross-appeal orally was rejected, (1) because a written memorandum of its grounds had not been filed previously; (2) because the objection, when taken, was not filed on the regulated stamp; and, lastly, (3) because the ground now urged had not been advanced as an objection in a regular appeal previously filed —Hoolas Kooeree v. Sufeehun, 8 W. R. 379.

If no cross-objections are filed at all by a respondent, the appellate Court has no power to grant any relief to him in a case where the granting of such relief is not necessarily incidental to the relief granted to the appellant.—Kulai Kada v Viswanatha, 28 M. 229, Caspersz v. Kishorilal, 23 C. 922 (929); nor has the Appellate Court the power, in the absence of cross-objections, to disturb so much of the original decree as is favourable to the appellant so as to place the appellant in a worse position — Cheda Lal v Badullah, 11 A 35, Agilul v. Dino Nath, 31 C 996; Shailes v. Becchai, 40 C L J. 67. 84 I C. 121· A. I. R 1925 Cal 94. In any case, the Court cannot record a finding which does not affect the point at issue.—Sir Prodyat Kumar v Bal Gobinda, 41 C L J 31: 86 I. C. 6: A. I. R. 1925 Cal: 518.

A respondent, in taking advantage of the provisions of s 348 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), can only take such objections as have reference to the party appealing. If he wishes to raise objections against parties, who do not appeal, he must do so by independent appeal —Ganesh Pandurang v Gangadhar, 6 Bom H C. 244.

If a decree is passed partly in favour of, and partly against, a plaintiff, and one of the defendants alone appeals as against the decree in favour of the plaintiff, making a co-defendant a respondent, there is no reason why the latter should appear or interest himself in the result, nor why the plaintiff should be allowed at the hearing to raise objections to his suit having been dismissed against the other defendant —Goonomonee v. Parbutty, 10 W R 326

Both parties appealed from the decree of the first Court, and both the appeals were dismissed The plaintiff preferred a second appeal against the decree dismissing his appeal, whereupon the defendant took objections to the decree of the lower Appellate Court dismissing his appeal Held, that such objections could not be entertained —Ganga Prasad v Gajadhar Prasad, 2 A 651.

When a plaintiff's suit is dismissed, and a defendant appeals, seeking no relief whatever, but acting in the same interest with the plaintiff, the latter is not entitled by way of cross appeal, to argue that his suit was wrongly dismissed —Sadetoollah v. Rahim Dewan, 9 W R 273

This rule in no way prevents an Appellate Court from upholding the decree of the lower Court on any ground which in law warrants such upholding, even though that ground may not have been referred to or disallowed, in the lower Court —The Receiver v Vegasena, 28 M 427, p. 435.

Objections under this rule can only be filed by a party who might have appealed from the decree of the Court below but has not done so It is not open to a party who has appealed, and where appeal has been dismissed, subsequently to such dismissal, to prefer objections under this rule to the appeal preferred by the opposite party —Ramji Das v Ajudhia Prasad, 25 A 628.

In an appeal against an award under the Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), the respondent is entitled to file cross-objections under this rule. —Raghunath Das v Secretary of State, 29 B. 514; 7 Bom. L R. 509.

Cross-objections Against Co-respondents.—As a general rule the right of a respondent to urge cross-objections should be limited to his urging them against the appellant, and it is only by way of exception to this general rule that one respondent may urge a cross-objection against another respondent, the exception holding good, among other cases, in those in which the appeal of some of the parties opens out questions, which cannot be disposed of completely without matters being allowed to be opened up as between co-respondents.—Bishun Churn v. Jogendra Nath, 26 C. 114 (7 W R. 39, and 15 W R 26 referred to); Shabiuddin v Deomoorat, 30 C. 655; Abdul Gani v. Muhammad, 28 A 95: 2 A L J 607; Jagannath v Hanuman Singh, 54 I. C. 332; Nursey v. Harrison; 37 B. 511; Jadunandan v Deo Narain, 16 C. W. N 612, 614; Mathura v. Ram Kumar 43 C. 780, (828) Muslcha v Ramnarain 40 A. 536; Official Trustee of Bengal v Smith, 5 Pat. L J. 328: 56 I. C 262; Bhuban v. Co-operative Bank, 29 C. W. N. 784: 88 I. C 866 A I. R. 1925 Cal. 973. According to the Madras and Lahore High Courts, a respondent may urge cross-objection against a co-respondent in any and every case.—Kulaikada v. Viswanatha, 28 M. 229; Munisamy v Abbu, 38 M. 705 F B.; Alagappa v. Chockalingam, 41 M. 904· 48 I. C. 203; Chhaju v. Qutab Din, 5 Lah L J. 92: 69 I C 330: A I. R. 1923 Lah 39.

As a general rule cross-objections can be urged only against the appellant and not against a co-respondent. No cross-objections can be filed against a defendant who has not filed any appeal from the decree passed against him.—Santram v Kidarnath, 56 I. C. 469; Qara Mahomed Shaban v. Bazarara Begum, 70 I. C. 79.

The objections allowed to be urged by a respondent under this rule are limited to the person who has appealed against him, and his (respondent's) rights are not enlarged by the mere addition to the list of such persons of other persons who should not have been put on the list at all — Kallu v. Manni, 23 A. 93 See, however, Timmaya Mada v Lakshmana, 7 M 217, where it has been held that a party who has been improperly made a respondent in appeal is entitled to take objections to the decree under this rule

In suit for dissolution of partnership and for accounts, it is open to any respondent to prefer cross-objections against a co-respondent on any item in dispute between them —Balgobind v. Ramsarup, 86 A. 505

Cross-objections Against Absent Co-respondents.—An objection by way of cross-appeal cannot be taken against a co-respondent who is not present in Court and so unable to answer the objection of the cross-appellant.—Lall Chand v. Kudnoo Koonwar, 7 W. R. 532. See also, Maizunnissa v. Moraree Dhur, 22 W. R. 314.

An objection by way of cross-appeal cannot be taken against a party who is not present in Court But if it be considered necessary to have the absent party present, the Court should direct that he should be made respondent.—Pran Kishore v. Mahomed Ameer, 21 W. R. 338.

Cross-objections Against Findings Embodied in the Judgment but Not in the Decree.—The findings in a judgment upon matters which subsequently turn out to be immaterial to the grounds upon which a suit is finally disposed of as to the plaintiff's right to any portion of the relief sought by him as declared by the decree, amount to no more than obiter dicta, and do not constitute a final decision against a party so as to enable him to appeal or to prefer cross-appeal against it. Parties have no right to cross-appeal against findings embodied in judgment, but not in the decree.—Jamaitunnissa v Latfunnissa, 7 A 666; Balak Tiwari v Kausil Miser, 4 A. 491

Cross-objections by Pauper Respondent.—Objections by a respondent to a decree under this rule cannot be filed in forma pauperis—Narayana v. Krishna, 8 M. 214 (1 B 75 followed) See also, Brojeshwari v. Guroo Churn, 11 C. 735.

Applicability of this Rule to Letters Patent Appeal.—Or XLI, r. 22 is not applicable to an appeal under cl 15 of the Letters Patent, and a memorandum of cross-objection cannot be entertained in these appeals.—Brojendra Chandra v. Prasanna Kumar, 24 C W N 1016 · 32 C. L. J. 48; Mangat Rai v Musst. Purna Kuar, 70 I C 488. A I R 1922 All. 55 (21 A. 297 folld.) But see, Venkatesam Chetty v Moti Chand, 49 M 291 · 50 M. L. J 190 F B A I R 1926 Mad 316, in which it has been held (following 48 I A 76) that the provisions of Or. XLI, apply to original side appeals under the Letters Patent, and rule 22 of that order expressly provides for cross-objections being raised by respondents.

Court-fees on Cross-objections.—The effect of s 16 of Court Fees Act (VII of 1870) is to place the respondent in the position of a cross-appellant, in so far that he must, before the hearing specify his matter of objection, and must pay into Court the Court-fee attaching thereto A Court cannot give effect to the cross-objection of a respondent subject to his payment of the Court-fee stamp—Sharada Soonduree v Gobindmonee, 24 W. R 129 But see Reference under Court Fees Act, s. 5, 25 M. 24, where it has been held that stamp duty on a memorandum of objections filed under this rule need not, under s 16 of the Court Fees Act, be paid till the time for hearing

Where the memorandum of cross-appeal was not stamped before by mistake and it was acted upon, the subsequent filing of the stamp makes the memo. of the appeal as valid as if it were stamped at the first instance—Jagabandhu v Choudhry Shama Charan, 2 C L J 68-n 9 C. W. N cclxxx (280)

The Court has jurisdiction over a memorandum of objections presented under this rule although not stamped or moved by the respondent at the hearing of the appeal, and where it is not so stamped or moved the proper order is to dismiss it with or without costs—Palani v Udayar, 32 M 170.

Where the respondent in an appeal from a decree which totally dismissed the plaintiff's suit put in a petition stating the reasons on which they supported the decree, the respondent need not pay court-fee on the petition—Ram Prasad v Musst Ajanasia, 44 A 577 68 I C 861

Time for Filing Cross-objections.—The cross-objections referred to in this rule must be filed by the respondent within one month from the date of the service of notice of the appeal But the time may be extended if sufficient cause is shown.—Sullman v. Joosub, 14 B. 411; Kuksa v. Dajiba Bhau, 5 N. L. J. 192: 66 I. C. 217.

Where the time for filing objection under this rule expired on a day when the Court was closed, the objections were allowed to be filed on the day when the Court re-opened.—Baghelin v. Mothura, 4 A. 430.

The withdrawal of the appeal by which the respondent loses his opportunity of having his cross-objections heard, affords no sufficient reasons for enlarging the time for the cross-appeal which he might have presented.—Chudasama v. Ishwargar, 16 B. 249. See also, Surbhai Doyalji v. Raghunathji, 10 Bom. H. C. 397 (2 B. L. R. A. C. 184: 10 W. R. 178 followed). But see, Hurgovindas v. Judavahoo, 23 B. 692, where the withdrawal of the appeal was considered "sufficient cause" within the meaning of s. 5 of the Limitation Act.

An appeal cannot definitely be posted until the Court has ascertained that notice has been served upon the respondent, and a date must then be fixed not less than one month from the date of service and a respondent can file a cross-objection within a month from the date of service of notice.—Sundaram v. Annangar, 13 M. 492.

Power of Appellate Court to Deal with the Whole Case after Return of Findings on Remand.—The first Court dismissed the suit as barred by limitation, but the decision was reversed in appeal, and the case was remanded for trial on the merits. The first Court then gave a decree, but on appeal the Appellate Court dismissed the suit on the merits. The plaintiff preferred a special appeal. Held, that the defendant was competent on such appeal to raise cross-objections that the suit was barred by limitation.—In the matter of Himmat Bahadur, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 429: 5 W. R. 91. See also, Ray Kishorce v. Bonomalee, 10 W. R. 209, and Kishen Chunder v. Sreeshtee Dhur, 8 W. R. 208.

In a second appeal by the defendant, the plaintiff filed cross objections under this rule and the High Court remitted an issue under s. 566, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 25), with reference to plaintiff's objections expressing their views thereon. Held, that, upon the return of the findings on remand, the Court could not treat the appeal as already decided, and the objections as the sole matter for the consideration, but must consider both appeal and cross-objections and decide the whole case.—Lachman Prasad v. Jamna Prasad, 10 A. 162.

H sued B for arrears of rent at the rate of Rs. 212-1-0 per annum, and obtained a decree at the rate of Rs. 94. He appealed, and the Appellate Court gave him a decree at the rate of Rs. 128-12-0. B appealed to the High Court. H neither appealed nor filed any cross-appeal. The High Court remanded the case. The lower Appellate Court then found that the annual rent payable by B was Rs. 212-10. Held, that the second finding of the lower Appellate Court should be accepted, and H was entitled to the benefit of the finding in his favour, notwithstanding that he had not appealed or preferred objection under this rule.—Bikramajit v. Husaini Begam, 3 A. 643. Distinguished in Agilul Hossain v. Dino Nath, 34 C. 996.

Sub-rule (4). Withdrawal or Dismissal of Appeal for Default—Its Effect upon Cross-objections.—If an appeal in which cross-objections have been filed under this rule is withdrawn, the cross-objections cannot be heard.—Jaffar Hussain v. Ranjit Singh, 17 A. 518. See also, Bahadur Singh v. Bhagwan Dass, 1 Agra 23; Ram Pershad v. Bharosa Kunwar, 9 W. R. 328; Shama Churn v. Radha Kristo, 14 W. R 210; Poresh Narain v. Watson & Co., 23 W. R. 229; Surbhai Dayalji v. Raghunathji, 10 Bom. H. C 307. But after the hearing of the suit has commenced the appeal cannot be withdrawn so as to prevent the objections from being heard and determined. The appellant if he wishes to withdraw his appeal, must do so before hearing of the appeal has commenced.—Kalyan Singh v. Rahmu, 23 A. 130, Dhondi Jagannath v The Collector of Salt Revenue, 9 B 28 But in the case of Venkataramnaiya v Kuppi, 3 M. H. C. 302, the Madras High Court has held that where, in the course of the hearing of an appeal, the appellant desired to withdraw, in order to avoid the decision of a question raised by the respondent at the hearing, the respondent was entitled to have the case heard and determined. See also, the cases noted under Or XXIII, r 1

The entertainment of cross-objections under this rule is contingent and dependant upon the hearing of the appeal in which such objections are taken, and when that appeal itself fails, is rejected, or dismissed without being disposed of upon the merits, the objections cannot be entertained either.—Rampiwan Mal v Chand Mal, 10 A. 587. See also, Baroda Kant v. Pearce Mohun, 23 W. R. 57; Maklab Beg v. Hasan Ali, 8 A. 551; Jaigopal Singh v Muna Lal, 4 L 140, 5 Lah L J. 345

An appeal from an order dismissing a suit for want of jurisdiction is not such an appeal as is contemplated by this rule, and on such an appeal the respondent is not entitled to go into the merits.—Kameckha Pershad v. Larmour, W. R (F. B.) 86

Where an appeal is dismissed for want of necessary parties, it was held that the appeal was heard within the meaning of this rule and therefore the cross-objections of the respondent should be heard —Kombi Achen v. Kochunni, 21 M 352.

By Insertion of Sub-rule (4), the Above Rulings have been Rendered Obsolete.—It would appear from the above rulings that in some of the cases it was held that where cross-objections are filed by the respondent, the appellant, if he wishes to withdraw his appeal must do so before the hearing of the appeal has commenced In others it was held that where the appeal is withdrawn, by the appellant, the cross-objections cannot be heard. By insertion of sub-rule (4), it has now been definitely laid down that even if the appellant withdraws his appeal after receiving notice of cross-objection or if the appeal is dismissed for default, the cross-objection so filed may nevertheless be heard and determined, although the appeal may be withdrawn by the appellant or dismissed for his default This rule is advantageous to the respondent, as he will have the advantage of his cross-objections being heard, as if he has filed a separate appeal.

Under the old section cross-objections were entirely dependent upon the hearing of the appeal, but by insertion of sub-rule (4) it has been made clear that cross-objections are to be treated as independent and separate appeals; and the difference of opinion which hitherto existed with regard to the meaning of the term " hearing " has been set at rest.

Under the present rule, the withdrawal of an appeal is no bar to the hearing of cross-objections filed by a respondent, whether the appeal is withdrawn before or after the hearing. In the same way, the dismissal of an appeal for default is no bar to the hearing of cross-objections. The dismissal of an appeal upon the appellants' failure to give security for costs is a dismissal for default within the meaning of Or. XLI, r. 22, sub-rule (4).—Mowar Sheobaksh v. Mowar Thakur Dayal, 4 Pat L. J. 164: 56 I. C. 729.

Abatement of Appeal Owing to Death of Appellant—Effect upon Cross-objections.—Where owing to the death of the appellant, an appeal abates and is dismissed, the memorandum of cross-objection preferred by the respondent cannot also be heard.—S. T. M. R. Murugappa Chettiar v. ponnuswami, 44 M. 828: 41 M. L. J. 304: 13 L. W. 705.

Application of the Rule.—Under Or. XLII, cross-objections may also be filed in second appeals. They may also be filed in appeals from order as laid down in Or. XLIII, r. 2. But cross-objections cannot be filed in Letters Patent appeals unless the rules of the High Court allow it.—Kausalia v. Gulab Kuar, 21 A. 297.—In the matter of Mirza Himmat, (1866) B. L. R. (F. B.) 429.

A memorandum of cross-objections as to costs in the Courts below is not a matter which can be considered on second appeal.—Madho Prasad v. Firm of Ashan Ilahi, 5 Lah. L. J. 108.

Second Appeal.—A second appeal will lie from a decree of the first Appellate Court disallowing the cross-objections of a respondent.—Ganapati v. Sitarama, 10 M. 292.

Remand of case by Appellate Court.

23. Where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded, and shall send a copy of its judgment and order to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register of civil suits, and proceed to determine the suit; and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions, be evidence during the trial after remand. [S. 562.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced below for comparison and for observing the changes introduced. "If the Court against whose decree the appeal is made has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree upon such preliminary point is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, together with a copy of the order in appeal to the Court against whose decree the appeal is made, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register, and proceed to "determine" the suit on the merits."

"The Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, direct that issue or issues shall be tried in any case so remanded."

The following report of the Special Committee will explain the object of the addition of the words "and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions, be evidence during the trial after remand," at the end of this rule:—

"After due consideration the committee have thought it safer not to give legislative sanction to the views enunciated in Habib Buksh v. Baldeo Prasad (23 A 167). The power of reversal and remand is liable to be abused, while the procedure under s 566 is free from this liability and at the same time furnishes an effectual remedy "

"The words at the end of the rule have been added to clear up a doubt which is stated by the Select Committee to exist as to whether evidence recorded at the original trial can be used on the trial after remand."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Upon a comparison of the provisions of the present rule with the old section it would appear that the words "upon such preliminary point," which stood after the words "and the decree," in the old section have been omitted

Section 564 of the old Code which ran as follows "The Appellate Court shall not remand a case for a second decision, except as provided in s. 562," has also been omitted The effect of these omissions is that the Legislature has withdrawn the restriction which existed under the old Code with regard to Court's power of remand under this rule, as will appear from the following report of the Select Committee "We have struck out this rule as in our opinion it is unduly restrictive "

Under the old Code it was held in several cases by all the High Courts that an Appellate Court has no power to remand a case under s 562 (now r 23), except when the lower Court has disposed of it on a preliminary point But it sometimes happens that a remand is necessary on account of an error, omission, or irregularity, for the proper trial and complete adjudication of the suit In the old Code there was no section strictly applicable to such cases and s 564 was rather restrictive, as will appear from 28 M 445, 30 M 54 16 M L J. 479 23 A 167 and 17 A 29, therefore the Legislature has omitted s 564 of the old Code, and also the words "upon such preliminary point," which occurred in the old section, and thereby has empowerd the Appellate Courts to remand a case under this rule where there has not been a proper trial in consequence of an error, omission or irregularity It is true that the Legislature has not given any legislative sanction to such a case apprehending that the power is liable to be abused But by the omissions above alluded to, it has impliedly sanctioned the power of remand in cases similar to those above referred to, where for the ends of justice, a remand would be necessary In the absence of any express provision for remand where the case is not disposed of upon a preliminary point, but where there are errors, omissions or irregularities in the trial, by which the party complaining has been materially prejudiced, the Appellate Court may for the ends of justice remand the case under this rule, as the absolute prohibition contained in s. 564 has now been removed.

When the Legislature has declined to insert any express provision for remand in the cases above referred to on the ground that the power is liable to be abused, the proper course for the lower Appellate Courts would be strictly to follow the principles laid down in 23 M. 445 30 M 54. 17 A. 29 and 23 A 167, and in other cases which may hereafter be decided by the High Courts

Preliminary Point—Grounds for Remand.—The expression " preliminary point " is not confined to such legal points only as may be pleaded in bar of suit but comprehend all such points as may have prevented the Court disposing of the case on the merits, whether such points are pure questions of law or pure questions of fact There are many instances of such points such as, that a suit is barred by limitation; that the Court has no jurisdiction under some Act; that evidence tendered was not admissible, that on the plaintiff's evidence there is no evidence for the defendant to answer, in a libel suit that there is no proof of publication; Malayath Veethil v Krishnan Nambudripad, 43 M. L. J. 354: 31 M. L T 208 (1922) M W N 588 F B., Mahammad Alladad v Muhammad, 10 A. 289, Rama Chandra v Hazi Kassim, 16 M. 207.

" Preliminary point " in this rule means a matter preliminary to the general determination of the suit which the parties bring before the Court for decision In this case the preliminary point which the District Munsif had to decide was whether there was a valid award which decided the matter in dispute He found that there was such award, and that he could not, therefore, go into the merits of the dispute That finding by the District Munsif was a decision on a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule —Krishnan Chetti v. Muthu Palandi, 22 M. 172.

The only connotation of a preliminary point in this rule is, that it should suffice for the disposal of the suit. Any point the decision of which does not enable the Court to decide the suit is excluded from the category of a preliminary point.—Abdul Gafar v. Muhammad Ziauddin, 2 P R 1908, F B. 12 P W R. 1908 .96 P C. R. 1908

An Appellate Court has no power to remand a case except when the lower Court has disposed of it on a preliminary point, and thereby excluded essential evidence —Mudun Mohan v. Bhaggomantp, 8 C. 923 See also, Deokishen v Bansi, 8 A 172, Abrahim Khan v. Faizunnessa Bibi, 17 C 168, Lall Chunilal v Mohip Singh, 1 C. W. Chendu*, 19 M 157; Seshan Pattar v Seshan Pattar, 23 M. 447 (23 M. 445 distinguished); Hafiz Abdul Rahim v Raja Hari Raj, 22 A. 405; Rameshur Singh v. Sheonundun, 12 A 510 F. Gopalan*, 30 M. 203; Brijmohun v. Deobhajan, 5 Pat. L. J. 146 55 I. C. 484. But where the main point in a suit is decided by the Appellate Court it has no power to remand the case under this rule for disposal on the remaining issues as its decision is not a preliminary point.—Pouangi v. Sri Rajah Lakshmi, 12 L. W. 667: 60 I. C. 609

Even if an Appellate Court be deemed competent to remit a case for re-hearing on an issue not raised in the pleadings nor even suggested in the trial Court, this ought only to be done in exceptional cases, for good cause shown, and on payment of all costs thrown away.—Gopalkrishna v. Abdul Samad, 34 C. L. J. 319 (43 C 1101, P. C referred to).

The award of arbitrators in a suit was set aside by the Court on the ground that it seemed so unreasonable and in appeal it was reversed and a remand ordered under Or. XLI, r 23. Held, it was not a decision on a preliminary point and they should have acted under Or XLI, r. 25.—Chandan v. Mt Bibi, 75 I. C. 198

On an appeal from the decision of a Munsif in favour of the plaintiff, in a suit for rent, the Appellate Court set aside the decree of the lower Court, ordered a new trial, and directed the amendment of the plaint by inserting the exact boundaries of the land on which the plaintiffs claimed the rent Held that, the order for amendment of the plaint was bad under this rule, since the original Court had not " disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point."—Krishnaya Narada v. Panchu, 17 M. 187

Where a Court of first instance decided a suit, not upon a preliminary point so as to exclude evidence of facts, but upon the merits, and upon all the evidence tendered and issues framed, the Appellate Court cannot remand the case under this rule.—Rameshur Singh v Sheodin Singh, 12 A 510 (2 B L. In a suit by a tenant for ejectment and damages against a trespasser, the first Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to establish his tenancy right, without deciding the issue as to damages The lower Appellate Court found in his favour as regards his title, and remanded the case under this rule Held, that the order of remand was wrong, as there was no occasion for remanding the whole case, inasmuch as it had not been decided upon a preliminary point It ought to have referred an issue as to damages under s 566 C P Code, 1882 (Or XLI, r 25).—Hukum Singh v Raghubir, 27 A 700 (1905), A W N 157

Where a Subordinate Court has not decided a case on a preliminary point, but has dealt with questions arising on the merits of the case, no order of remand can be made by the Appellate Court under this rule, but if the Appellate Court is of opinion that there should be a finding upon any particular issue, or further evidence should be taken on any such issue, it may make an order of remand under Or. XLI, r. 25.—Rakhit Mahanta v. Piddo Bauri, 9 C. W. N. 54. See also, Ambika Churn v. Kala Chand, 10 C. W. N 422.

Where a District Munsif without entering into the merits of the case, dismissed a suit on the ground that the plaintiffs had no cause of action and on appeal the Appellate Court reversed his decree and remanded the case Held, that the suit had been disposed of upon a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule and that the remand was right.—Kanakammal v. Rangachariar, 20 M. 25.

Where several issues are raised in a suit one of which is that of undue influence, and the Court dismisses the suit on a finding that there was undue influence without a finding on the other issues, the decision amounts to a disposal of the suit upon a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule.—Mahant Rachu v. Mahant Raghunath, 2 Pat. L. J. 398

The defendant in a suit on the day fixed for hearing applied for an adjournment on the ground of illness. Her application was refused and the case decreed ex parte. The Appellate Court reversed the decree and remanded the case under s. 562, C. P. Code, 1882 On appeal to the High Court—Held, discharging the order of remand, that the suit having been tried on the merits, the lower Appellate Court could not remand the case under this rule, but ought to have proceeded under ss. 568 and 569, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, rr. 27, 28).—Parvatishankar v Bai Naval, 17 B 733.

The C. P. Code does not make any provision for an order of remand where all the issues have been settled and tried.—Injad Ali v. Mohini, 27 C. W N 1025

Where the first Court had framed all the necessary issues and decided all those issues, and the lower Appellate Court reversing the decision on one of the issues remanded the case for trial:—Held, that order of remand was not only irregular but illegal.—Manager of the Court of Wards v. Ramasami Reddi, 28 M 437; 15 M. L. J. 236. (19 M. 479, referred to) See also, Sadak Ali v. Safar Ali, 56 I C. 984; Malayandi v. Bomman, 17 L. W. 159 71 I C. 204; and Munisami Naiker v. Muniswami Naiker, 1923 M. W. N. 11.

Where a District Court reversed the District Munsif's decree, and remanded the case for revised finding on the merits: Held, that this procedure was ultra vires and illegal—Mallikarjuna v. Pathaneni, 19 M 479.

An order remanding a case is not legal where all the questions raised between the parties and on which they went to trial were decided and the questions so raised were purely questions of law.—Arumugam Chetty v. Raja Jaganeera Rama, 28 M. 444.

An Appellate Court cannot remand a case for making a person defendant in the suit, and to try the question of title between him and the plaintiff The right of framing new issues arises where the issues framed are insufficient to dispose of the matters raised in the plaint.—Bhoobun Das v Bilash Money, 1 C. L. R. 415 (9 B. L. R. 107. 12 W. R. 404 distinguished).

Where a lower Court rejected an application of an intervenor, the Appellate Court cannot remand the case with directions to make the intervenor a party.—Khandakar Kafaetoollah v. Mahomed Kabel, 9 W. R. 345 See also, Bulaki Singh v. Jaikishen, 7 N. W. P. 203.

An Appellate Court cannot remand a case under this rule for addition of necessary parties. In such case the proper course for the Appellate Court is to join the parties, and, if necessary, to refer issues to the Court of the first instance for trial under s. 566, C P Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 25)—Ganesh Bhikaji v Bhikaji Krishna, 10 B 398 But see, Mihin Lal v. Intiaz Ali, 18 A. 332.

It is competent for an Appellate Court to remand a case when the Court of first instance records evidence on all the issues, and at the final hearing decides the suit erroneously on some particular point without expressing any opinion on the other issues —Ramchandra Joshi v Hazi Kassim, 16 M 207. Followed in Matadin v Jamna Das, 27 A 691 2 A L J 685, in Meghan Dube v Pran Singh, 30 A 63 5 A L J. 14; and in Salim Sheikh v. Nazir Khan, 8 C L J 159. 12 C. Where the first Court heard the entire suit, and found all issues in favour of the plaintiff except one, namely, whether the suit was maintainable having regard to the provisions of Or XXI, r 22, and dismissed the suit on the finding that the suit was not maintainable. Held, that the suit was disposed of on a preliminary point within the meaning of this rule —Bhadai v. Shaikh Manowar, 4 Pat L J 645

Where the first Court dismissed a suit on the issue of title without deciding the issue of limitation and the lower Appellate Court decreed the suit reversing the finding on the issue of title, without recording any finding on the issue of limitation. Held, that the case must be remanded to the lower Appellate Court for findings on the remaining issues —Kailash Chandra v Kunja Behari, 4 C L J. 86.

Where no preliminary point has been wrongly decided by the Court of first instance, and no evidence has been excluded, and the Appellate Court considers the issues nevertheless, to have been defective or insufficient, it is the duty of the latter not to remand the case, but to resettle the issues and to determine the case itself.—Futtechoolah v. Oomdanissa, 14 W. R 69. But see, Guru Prasad v. Ras Mohun, 1 C. L. R. 431. See also, Habibullah v Lalta Prasad, 34 A. 612

An application under s. 108, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r. 13), was rejected on the ground that there was neither fraud nor suppression of summons. The District Judge remanded the case for trial on the merits Held, that the case having been tried on the merits, the District Judge had no jurisdiction to remand the case.—Sonaulla v. Beahul, 7 C. L. J 379.

Where the finding of the lower Appellate Court on the existence of a custom or usage was mainly based upon irrelevant matters, the High Court in special appeal remanded the case for retrial, holding that the appeal was not properly tried.—Palakdhari Rai v. Manners, 23 C 179. See also, Womes Chunder v. Chundee Churn, 7 C. 293.

The lower Appellate Court not having decided material issues and having based its decree on a document not recorded in the case, the decree was reversed and the case remanded for a fresh decision on the merits — Nichhabhai Pragji v. Issee Khan, 2 Bom. H. C. 313; Dalpat Singh v. Nanabhai, 2 Bom. H C. 323; Bai Vijkar v. Fakirbhai, 2 Bom. H. C. 335; Chandrabhagabhai v. Kashi Nath, 2 Bom H C 341; Balaji Visvanath v. Dharma, 2 Bom H. The lower Appellate Court has no power to remand a case, which has come before it on appeal, to the Court of first instance for a second trial, except where the first Court has decided the case upon a preliminary issue in such a way as to cause an absence of material evidence bearing upon issues on the merits between the parties —Lala Shoobh Narain v. Nursingh Narain, 20 W R 148

An Appellate Court is not justified in remanding a case, merely because the lower Court has disposed of it on a preliminary point, unless such point has been so disposed of as to exclude evidence of fact which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the rights of the parties — Jook Maya v. Ram Chunder, 10 W. R. 378 See also, Muniapa v. Iyasamy, 5 M. H. C. 313.

The Judge, after disposing of the case on the only point on which the Munsif had decided, viz, whether there was a cause of action, and having satisfied himself that there was not sufficient evidence on the record to enable him to pass a proper decision on the merits was held clearly right in remanding the case to the Munsif.—Brommo Moyee v. Koomodinee Kant, 17 W. R 466.

When the decision of a lower Court is not on a preliminary point, the lower Appellate Court cannot remand a suit to that Court, with directions to take further evidence and to retry the case, but the appeal must be kept pending on the file, and the record must be sent to the lower Court, with orders to take the necessary evidence —Kalee Sunkar v. Kishto Doolal, W. R. (1864) 296

Where a suit instituted in the Revenue Court is dismissed by the Court of first instance, on the ground that it should have been instituted in the Civil Court, and the Appellate Court affirms the decisions of the first Court, the Appellate Court should, under s. 208 of the N. W. P Rent Act, 1881, remand the case to the Civil Court competent to entertain it for disposal on the merits.—Ahmaddin v. Majlis Rai, 5 A. 438 But see, Girwar Singh v Sita Ram, 10 A. 31.

Held, that an Appellate Court is not empowered by the Civil Procedure Code to order or allow a plaint to be amended, or to remand a case under this rule for the purpose of such amendment —Farzand Ali v. Yusuf Ali, 2 A. 669. But see, Lingammal v. Chinna, 6 M. 230, where it has been held that when a plea of misjoinder has been allowed and the suit decided and an appeal brought, the Appellate Court should dispose of the suit in the mode in which the lower Court ought to have disposed of it, by returning the plaint for amendment

Where the evidence is accepted by an Appellate Court as sufficient to warrant a decree, and the case is only remanded for a defect of parties, it is justified, when the case is returned by the first Court, in respecting the former judgment and looking upon the evidence as prima facie good and sufficient.—Wise v. Ishan Chunder, 14 W R. 380.

This rule authorizes a remand only where the entire suit, and not merely a portion of it, has been disposed of by the Court below upon a preliminary point —Banwari Lal v. Samman Lal, 11 A. 488. Followed in Mahesh Prasad v Ranjar Singh, 27 A 163 (165) See also, Vemi v. Nallappa, 11 L W 611; Jauahor v Fateh Mapton, 97 I C 1: A I. R. 1926 Pat. 514.

A case ought not, as a rule, to be remanded upon a point which has been framed as an issue by the Court below, and brought to the attention of the parties, and where they have failed at the trial to give any evidence upon it —Ram Prasad v. Abdul Karim, 9 A 513

A Sub-Judge decided a case on the grounds of res judicata and limitation. On appeal the Judge upheld the decision on the point of res judicata without deciding the point of limitation On second appeal, the High Court reversed the Judge's decision on the point of res judicata, and remanded the case for trial on the merits On receipt of the order of the High Court the Judge reversed the decision of the Sub-Judge without giving any decision on the point of limitation, and remanded the case. On appeal to the High Court, held that the Judge's order of remand was unauthorized under this rule —Raisangji v Balvant Rao, 11 B 663.

Where the lower Court had decided a case on the merits, and the Appellate Court did not find that there had been any omission to try any issue or determine any question essential to the decision of the case on the merits, or that further evidence was necessary to enable it to determine any such issue or question Held, the Appellate Court was in error in remanding the case for a fresh trial —Mahesh Chandra v Madhav Chandra, 2 B L. R S N 13 10 W R. 388.

Inherent Power of Remand—Remand on the Grounds of Error, Defect or Irregularity.—Under Or XLI, r 23, no order of remand can be made except when the suit has been disposed of on a preliminary point But it sometimes happens that a remand is necessary in cases where the lower Court has committed any error, omission or irregularity, by reason of which there has not been a proper trial or an effectual or complete adjudication of the suit and the party complaining of such error, omission or irregularity has been materially prejudiced thereby. S 564 of the old Code, which prohibited the Appellate Court from remanding a case except as provided by s. 562 (Or XLI, r 23), having now been omitted as unduly restrictive in its provisions, the Appellate Court is free under s 151 to make an order of remand though the case may not fall either under this rule or rule 25 —Narottam v. Mohanlal, 37 B. 289, 293; Jambulayya v. Rajamma, 36 M. 492: Zohra Bibi v. Zobeda, 12 C. L. The Allahabad High Court treats the question as unsettled but puts a wide construction on r. 23 —Gopal Prasad v Ram Kumar, 44 A 176: 64 I. C. 878: A I. R. 1922 All. 254.

Ex parte decision in Court of first instance after hearing plaintiff's evidence—Order by Appellate Court reversing decree and remanding suit for decision after taking further evidence as the parties might produce Held that, notwithstanding sections 562 and 564, C. P. Code, 1882, an Appellate Court has inherent power, in such a case, not only to reverse the decree passed on evidence given by the plaintiff only, the defendant being ex parte but also to direct a retrial of the case —Perumbra Nayar v Subrahmania, 23 M. 445.

When a suit is decided ex parte, an Appellate Court to which an appeal is preferred under s. 540, C. P. Code, 1882 (s 96), has jurisdiction to reverse the decree of the lower Court on the ground that such Court was wrong in proceeding to decide the suit ex parte and remand the suit for re-hearing.—Sadhukrishna v. Kuppan, 30 M. 54; 16 M. L J. 479 (23 M 445 followed; 23 C. 738, 17 B. 733, and 23 M. 260 dissented from)

It is competent to the Appellate Court on an appeal to reverse a decree and remand the suit to the trial Court quite apart from the provisions of Or. XLI, r. 23, if there has been a defective trial, i.e., a refusal to grant an adjournment.—Jethalal v. Varjlal, 23 Bom. L R. 769: 63 I. C. 478 (30 M. 54 followed).

It is competent to an Appellate Court to remand a case under this rule where the Court of the first instance having framed issues and recorded all the evidence, has decided the suit with reference to its finding upon one or more of the issues framed by it, leaving other issues undecided.—Matadin v. Jamna Das, 27 A. 691. 2 A. L J. 658 (16 M. 207 followed) Followed in 30 A. 63: 5 A L J. 14, and in 8 C L J. 159.

Section 564, C. P. Code, 1882, must be read subject to the other provisions of the Code, for example, those contained in ss. 27, 32 and 53 of the C. P. Code, 1882. An Appellate Court has power to make an order under any of those sections and in order to give effect to the provisions of the section which is applicable, it is necessary that it should in certain cases send back the case to the Court of the first instance Under such circumstances s. 564, C. P. Code, 1882, will not preclude an Appellate Court from remitting a case to the Court of first instance.—Habib Bakhsh v. Baldeo Prasad, 23 A. 167 (12 A. 510; 17 A. 29; 18 A. 131, 332 and 390; 10 B. 398; and 19 M. 157 referred to).

The plaintiffs in a suit produced both oral and documentary evidence in support of their claim, but the Court being satisfied with the documentary evidence and without recording the evidence of the witnesses tendered by them passed a decree in their favour. On appeal by the defendants, the Appellate Court without taking any fresh evidence, reversed the decree. On appeal by the plaintiffs to the High Court, it was held that though there was no section of the Code of Civil Procedure strictly applicable to the circumstances of the case, the Court was, notwithstanding s. 564, C. P. Code, 1882, warranted ex debito justitiæ in setting aside all proceedings of both Courts below, and in directing the Court of first instance to retry the case admitting all admissible evidence which had been previously tendered to the first Court.—Durga Dihal v. Anoraji, 17 A. 29.

Held, that s 562 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), applied not only to cases where the first Court had expressly excluded evidence, but also to cases where the parties were or might have been misled by the act of the Court as to the issues or the evidence necessary, and where, in consequence of the Court erroneously considering one issue only, the parties did not tender or bring forward their evidence and that, as in the present case, evidence had been excluded in this broad sense, s. 562 (the operation of which in such cases should be rather expanded than limited) was applicable, and the case should be remanded for trial of the remaining issues —Mahammad Allahdad v. Muhammad Ismail, 10 A 289.

When, in second appeal, it appears that the lower Appellate Court does not substantially comply with the provisions of s 574, C. P Code, 1882 (r. 31 of Or XLI), the procedure is to make an order setting aside the decree and remanding the case to the lower Appellate Court to be disposed of according to law.—Saravana Pillai v Sesha Reddi, 31 M. 469, F B . 11 M. L. J 34 (20 M 496, 22 M 12, 25 C 97, 17 B. 428, 19 B 551, referred to). See also, Santishwar v Lakhikanta, 13 C W. N. 177

An Appellate Court can remand a case second time on account of error, defect, or irregularity of procedure in passing a decree or order, provided the error, defect or irregularity be such as to affect the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court When a suit has been regularly heard and determined, and on appeal the decree is reversed, the Appellate Court has the discretionary power to remand the case only if the decree should have been upon a preliminary point, and have the effect of excluding the consideration of evidence essential to the rights of the parties.—Muniappah Naidu v Iyasamy, 5 M H C. 313.

When an Appellate Court is of opinion that a person, not a party to the suit, should be a party to the record, its proper course is to remand the case to the first Court with directions to bring on the particular person as a defendant or as a plaintiff, if he consents and give him opportunity to file his written statement and to produce his evidence —Mihin Lal v Intiaz Ali, 18 A 332 But see, Ganesh Bikhaji v Bhikaji Krishna, 10 B 298.

Where a case had been decided under the provisions of ss 10 and 11 of the Oaths Act (X of 1873) with reference to the depositions of a person appointed by agreement of parties as referee, and where, on appeal, it was found that the said depositions did not fully cover the questions in issue between the parties: Held, that the case should be remanded to the lower Court for disposal according to the usual procedure.—Mahabir Prasad v. Mahadeo Dat, 13 A. 386.

Improper or Erroneous Order of Remand.—A decree in a suit having been passed on the merits by the Court of first instance, the Court of Appeal, being of opinion that an issue not tried by the former Court ought to have been tried, reversed the decree, and under this rule remanded the case for trial upon the issue. Held, that the order reversing the decree and remanding the case for trial of the issue was improper, and that the proper course for the Appellate Court should have been to follow the procedure as laid down by s 566 and 567 of the Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, rr 25 and 26). If a remand was ordered in a case in which it ought not to have so ordered, both the order of remand and all the proceedings subsequent thereto are void and illegal.—Ramashur v. Sheodin, 12 A. 510 Mokund Lal v Hurballabh, 12 C L. R. 136

Where a lower Appellate Court instead of remanding a suit under s 566, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or XLI, r. 25), as it ought to have done, remanded it under this rule after setting aside the decree of the first Court, and where no appeal was preferred against this erroneous remand order. Held that, having regard to the provisions of s. 99, the remand order and the subsequent proceedings were not null and void, as by the remand there was no error affecting the jurisdiction of the Court or the merits of the case —Mohesh Chandra v. Jamiruddin, 28 C 324: 5 C. W. N. 509 (12 A 510 dissented from) Followed in Troylakya Mohini v. Kaliprasanna, 11 C W N 380, in Durgahinkar v Konchai Ranza, 5 C L. J. 71, and in Debendranath v Prasanna Kumar, 5 C L. J. 328 But see, Palani v. Rangia Dass, 32 M. 83, where it has been held that an erroneous order of remand is not merely irregular but illegal and cannot be invalidated by s. 578, C P Code, 1882 (s. 99) See also, Baikantanath v. Nawab Salimulla, 12 C W N 590 6 C L J 547, where it has been further held that proceedings subsequent to an illegal order of remand might be valid under certain circumstances

Whether upon a remand order being wrongly made, the decree and all the proceedings taken under that order, are null and void, depends upon the circumstances in each case and on the nature of the invalidity of the remand order. If the remand order is finally set aside and is such an order as ought not to have been passed at all in any case, it may be that the proceedings in the Court below fall with it It would be turning the law into absurdity and would amount to a denial of justice if a proper trial which has taken place under a remand order made by the Appellate Court and in obedience to such remand order, now held to be invalid, whereas as the result of the High Courts' own decision that remand order turned out to have been prefectly justified.—Raj Kali v. Gopi Nath, 41 A. 211: 20 A L J 44

Where the order of remand was found to be invalid as made without jurisdiction, held, that all proceedings taken by the Court of first instance, after the remand and pending the hearing of the appeal against the remand order, were null and void, inasmuch as the jurisdiction of that Court to hear the case upon remand depended upon the validity of a remand order. An appeal, therefore, lay from the order of remand notwithstanding that the Court of first instance had subsequently made what purported to be a final decree in the case.—Jatinga Valley Tea Co. v. Chera Tea Co., 12 C. 45. But see, Madhu Sudan v. Kamini Kanta, 9 C. W. N. 895; 2 C. L. J. 35-n.: 32 C. 1023. Dissented from in 30 A. 479, F. B. (29 A. 659 overruled)

Where an order of remand is illegal no consent of parties can make it valid.—The Manager of the Court of Wards v. Ramasami Reddi, 28 M. 487; 15 M. L. J 235 (16 M. 479 referred to). See also, Baikuntha Nath v. Nawab Salimulla, 12 C. W. N. 590. But see, 12 C. W. N. 590: 6 C L. J. 517 In Palani v Rangia Dass, 32 M 83 4 M L. J. 479, it has been held that even if such illegal order might be validated by consent or waiver, neither the omission of the plaintiff to appeal nor his acquiescing in the trial on remand amounts to such consent or waiver Inherent Powers of Court to Order a Remand.—An Appellate Court has inherent powers to order a remand in cases other than the case specified in Or. XLI, r. 23 if the justice of the case demands it —Sashi Mukhi v. Abinash, A. I. R. 1922 Cal 279; Ghuznavi v. The Allahabad Bank Ld., 44 C. 929: 41 I C. 598; Atul Chandra v. Sheikh Kobadali, 64 I C. 436; Bisai Nath v Tara Nath, 72 I. C 588 1923 C. 385; Bhup Singh v Prem Singh, 5 Lah. L. J. 384; Bhairab v Kali Kumar, 37 C. L J 491: A I R 1923 Cal. 606. Misrisahu v. Bishu, 29 C. L J. 419 52 I C. 958; Brij Indar Singh v Kanshi Ram, 44 I. A 218 45 C 94, 107.

Power of High Court to Remand.—Where an issue has been raised and determined by the first Court and the appellate Court on the evidence adduced, it is not within the competence of the High Court in second appeal to remand the case for rehearing upon that very issue —Gunput Rao v. Raj Kumar, 67 I C 494

Where the plaintiff has not come into Court with a definite statement of facts necessary for him to succeed and with all his evidence, he cannot in second appeal ask for a remand so as to give him an opportunity to supplement his case in the Court below —Jatindra Mohan v Bejoy Chand Mahatab, 71 I C 284.

Power of the High Court to Go into the Merits on Appeal from a Remand Order.—The Court of first instance dismissed a suit as barred by limitation In appeal that decision was reversed, and the case was remanded under this rule Against the order of remand the defendant appealed to the High Court under Or. XLIII, r 1, cl (u) It was contended by the plaintiff that the High Court had no power to decide the point of limitation but could only consider whether the order of remand satisfied the requirements of this rule Held by the Full Bench, that in an appeal against such an order of remand, the power of the High Court is not confined to the question whether that order satisfies the requirements of this rule, but may also determine the correctness of the lower Appellate Court's decision on the preliminary point on which the Court of first instance disposed of the case —Badam v Imrat, 5 A 975, Bhau Bala v Bapaji Bapuji, 14 B 14 (12 B 589 referred to, 3 A 675 followed). See also, Chinnasami v Karuppa, 21 M 234, Abrahim Khan v Faizunnissa Bibi, 17 C 168, Lohi Mahto v Aghoree Ajail Lall, 5 C. 144 4 C L

R. 465; Hasan Ali v. Siraj Husain, 16 A. 252; Sankaran v. Roman Kutti, 20 M. 152. But see, Sohan Lal v. Azizunnissa, 7 A. 136; Noimullah Paramanik v. Grish Narain, 8 C. 674.

Decision on Question of Law Already Decided by Order of Remand Whether can be Reopened.—Where an appellate Court remands to the Court below, it is not open to the appellate Court to reopen a question of law already decided by the order of remand when the case again comes on appeal from the final decree after the remand.—Vasted Mushkir Saib v. Karnam Chowdappa, 40 M. L J. 528: 14 L. W. 236; see also, Gopal Rao v. Nemi Chand, 61 I. C. 575; Janki Shah v. Mahomed Abbas, 70 I. C. 983.

Where the High Court in second appeal differs from the lower Court on an issue of law and remands the case to the Court below, the order of the High Court is binding upon that Court and cannot be questioned in an appeal from the final decree passed after remand.—Rai Brij Raj Krishna v Chathu Singh, 4 Pat. L. T. 35.

Powers and Duties of Succeeding Judge with Regard to Remand Case.—Disposal of suit by lower Court on preliminary point.—Reversal by Appellate Court of such decree on such point and irregular remand of case under this rule for trial of certain issue. Held, that the succeeding Judge or the Appellate Court cannot retry and decide such preliminary point —Suraj Din v. Chattar, 3 A. 755.

Where a case is remanded to a particular Judge merely to record the reasons for his finding, his successor, if the deciding Judge has left the district, acts without jurisdiction when he reheats the whole appeal de novo.—Bhyrub v. Khettur Mohan, 5 W. R. 124; Lalla Bhoyro Lall v. Lalla Mokoond Lal, 2 W. R 175.

Where a case is remanded to the lower Court to record the reasons for its judgment, if the Judge who passed the decree is absent, the superior Court should be informed of it by his successor. Under such circumstances his successor has n [illegible] should be made to the Bench which granted t[illegible] the present Judge to retry the case de [illegible] han, 1 Ind Jur. N S. 101.

If the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded for not complying with the requirements of s. 574, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 31), is the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance, he is not bound to rehear the appeal if he considers that the case might be properly disposed of without so doing In such a case, his writing of judgment satisfying the requirements of that rule will be a sufficient compliance with the order to dispose of the case according to law. But when the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded is not the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance as also in cases where the Judge, though the same, considers such a course necessary for a proper disposal of the case, a rehearing is necessary for a disposal of the case according to law.—Sararana Pillai v. Sesha Reddi, 31 M. 469, F. B.: 18 M. L. J. 34

Dismissal of suit by Munsif on preliminary point —Remand by Sub-Judge on appeal—Fresh appeal before Second Sub-Judge, who disagrees with the finding of the former Subordinate Judge. Where there are two Sub-Judges in the same place, one of such Judges is not competent to overrule the decision of the other. The Court is one, thought there are separate presiding officers.—Kharag Prasad v. Durdhari Raj, 14 A. 348 (3 A. 755, and 6 A. 169 referred to).

Where a single Judge of the High Court hearing a second appeal remands it for fresh decision to the lower Court and the case then comes up on second appeal from the revised decision of the lower Court, it is not open to the High Court to question its own earlier judgment remanding the case to the lower Court.—Munshi Lal v. Ramasis, 3 Pat L T. 343: 65 I. C. 175.

An order of remand by a Subordinate Judge is final so far as the purpose of the remand goes, and cannot be set aside by his successor.—Luleet Pandey v. Byjnath, 14 W R 285.

A Sub-Judge on appeal, having framed an issue, remanded the case under this rule to the first Court for trial thereof, but instead of directing that the finding should be returned to his own Court, he directed the Munsif to give the plaintiff a decree in accordance with the finding at which he might arrive. The Munsif having decided the case accordingly, it went up on appeal to the Additional Judge Held, that the proper course for the Additional Judge was simply to confine himself to considering whether the decision of the Court below on the issue directed was correct or not; he had no power to go behind the order of the Sub-Judge on the previous occasion —Bodun Buroοan v Abdool Gunny, 19 W R. 281.

Whether Appellate Court has Power to Remand a Case for Trial to a Court Other than the Original Court.—Order, XLI, r 23, C P Code, contemplates that the remand should be to that Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred but if the appellate Court has power to transfer a case from one Court to another, there is nothing illegal in remanding the case to another Court —Chhaju v Sham Lal, (1922) Lah 239 66 I C 113.

Procedure After Remand.—When a case is remanded for trial some date should be fixed for the re-hearing, giving the parties opportunity to appear and take measures to carry on the suit.—Haradhun v Protap Narain, 14 W. R. 401.

After a case is remanded on appeal, reasonable time should be given to the parties to appear and conduct their case; and if they fail to appear before the lower Court, the case should be dismissed for default —In re Kalee Mohun, 17 W. R 70

This rule contemplates a remand back to the Court which first disposed of the suit, and to no other Court —Bai Shri Majirajba v. Magan Lall, 19 B. 303.

Where a District Judge, after transferring a case from the file of a Sub-Judge decided it himself, and on appeal the High Court remanded the suit under this rule to the District Court —Held, that after the remand order, the District Judge had no power to transfer the case to the Sub-Judge, but was bound to try it himself Section 25 of the C P. Code,

1882, has no application to a case remanded under this rule.—Sita Ram v. Nauni Dulaiya, 21 A. 230. But see the amended s. 24 of the present Code

Effect of Order of Remand.—An order to a lower Appellate Court implies a reversal of the first judgment of that Court.—Kebul Kishen v. Ambala, 7 W. R 326.

The effect of an order of remand for a new trial is entirely to nullify the first decision, and, to re-open the whole case.—Tarinee Kant v. Koonj Beharee, 12 W. R 112 See also, Gudadhur v Sushee Moone, 21 W R 7

When a decree is set aside in appeal and the case is remanded under this rule, the appellant is entitled to restitution of the property taken possession of in execution of the decree so set aside, although an appeal has been preferred against the order of remand.—Saroda Prasad v. Saudamini, 3 C L J. 181 (14 C 484, 21 C 989, referred to)

Where a case is sent back for trial on its merits, the order of remand shuts out objections regarding limitation or res judicata—Sheo Sahoy v Ram Pershad, 24 W R 333.

Where a case was remanded for reconsideration of the whole evidence with the exception of one specified point, and the Judge after consideration came to the conclusion that his finding on that point had been erroneous, it was held that he could not, without a miscarriage of justice, allow that finding to remain unchanged —Huree Nath v. Issen Chander, 21 W R. 316

When a case is remanded to the lower Appellate Court for decision of a question, e g, one of title, that Court has no authority to go beyond the order of remand, and re-open a matter already adjudicated upon between the parties —Shaheb Tewaree v Kishoree Sahoy, 24 W. R. 330

Under an order of remand in a boundary suit in which the Privy Council had made an order in a former appeal, held that the High Court had no power to go behind the order of the Privy Council, and that so much of the High Court's decision as re-opened on fresh evidence what had previously been decided, must be set aside, but that the evidence that had thus been brought to bear on the case was entitled to consideration so far as it bore on those portions of the suit in respect of which the former decision of the Privy Council was not conclusive.—Court of Wards v. Leelanund, 25 W R. P C 157

Where a Full Bench ruling is brought to the notice of a Judge retrying a case on remand, he is bound, whether the ruling has been published or not, either to ask the pleader to produce the decision relied on, or to take other means for satisfying himself as to the ruling of the High Court, so as to apply the correct law to the case —Tumeezoodeen v. Mohin Chunder, 18 W R. 227

Rights of Parties After Remand.—Where a case is remanded for the trial, of an issue which had not been laid down by the Court which tried the case, the parties are entitled to have the opportunity of giving evidence upon it although the order of remand contains no express direction to that effect.—Kristo Churn v. Mugun Chuckerbutty, 10 W. R 491.

When a suit has been dismissed upon a preliminary point, and the decision on that point has been reversed by the Appellate Court, and the case goes down with a view to trial on its merits, evidence may properly be received even from defendants who had appeared and a fortiori from a defendant who had not appeared.—Koonj Behary v. Kalee Churn, 8 W. R. 285.

Where a case has been remanded by an Appellate Court in an appeal against the decision given after the remand, fresh points which might and ought to have been urged before the remand, cannot be allowed to be taken. —Anzar Ali v. C. E. Grey, 2 C L. J. 403.

A defence of limitation cannot be raised for the first time after there has been a remand on special appeal from the decree of the Court which has heard the cause on remand —Moru Bin v. Gopal Bin, 2 B 120 (6 W. R. 178 followed; 9 Bom. H C 282, 11 Bom H. C. 283 distinguished; 2 Bom. H. C. 162, 4 Bom H. C 197 referred to) See also, Dattu v. Kasai, 8 B. 535.

Unless such objection is taken in memorandum of appeal, it is not open to an appellant at the hearing of the appeal to question the validity of an order of remand previously made in the case under this rule —Tilak Raj Singh v. Chakardhari Singh, 15 A 119.

Court-fee.—Held that, in an appeal under s 10 of the Letters Patent from an order of a single Judge of the Court remanding a case under this section, the proper Court-fee is Rs 2 —Ballai Rai v. Mahabir Rai, 21 A. 178.

Revision.—No revision lies against an order of remand —Bisha nath v. Mt Ramsin, 1923 A. 464.

Appeal from an Order of Remand under this Rule.—Under Or XLIII, r. 1 (u), an appeal lies from an order remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court The period of limitation for an appeal from an order of remand is 90 days from the date of the order, under Art 156 of the Limitation Act But where a party submits to an order of remand and does not appeal against the order he cannot dispute its correctness at a latter stage of the appeal —Musst Mashi-un-nissa v Musst. Kanib Sughra, 19 A L. J 139; 60 I. C 975

An appeal lies from an order of remand under this rule, even though before the filing of the appeal, the suit has been decided by the first Court in compliance with the order of remand.—Jatinga Valley Tea Co v Chera Tea Co, 12 C 45 Followed in Uman Kuari v Jarbandhan, 30 A. 479, F B : 5 A. L J. 447 · 4 M L T 162 (29 A 659 overruled, 32 C 1023: 9 C. W. N 895 dissented from) But see, Madhu Sudan v Kamini Kanta, 9 C W N 895; 2 C L J 35-n · 32 C 1023, where it has been held that an appeal from an order of remand passed under this rule cannot be entertained if presented after the disposal of the suit Followed in 29 A 659, and in Gulzari Mal v. Kalimunnissa, 30 A. 191 5 A L J 270 But 29 A 659 has been overruled in 30 A 479, F B It would appear from the above rulings that there is a diversity of opinion on the above point

No appeal lies to the High Court from a general order of remand by the lower appellate Court on the ground of the mishandling of the trial in the first Court.—Firm Chajju Mal Munna Lal v. Firm Pyare Lal Jumma Prasad, 63 I. C. 858.

Held, that an order under this rule is not ordinarily capable of being the subject of an appeal to His Majesty in Council, though it may possibly be so if the order in question has the effect of deciding finally the cardinal point in the suit —Habibunissa v Munawarunissa, 25 A 629 (17 A. 112, 8 B. 548, and 10 M I A 340 referred to).

Though an appeal lies under Or XLIII, r (1) (u) of the C. P Code from an order of remand, no appeal will lie from the order when the order itself is made in an appeal preferred under any other clause of that rule.—Naubat Singh v. Baldeo Singh, 33 A 479; Mathura v. Nabin Chandra, 24 C. 774, Jhanday Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A. 291.

An appeal lies from an order remanding a case under Or. XLI, r. 23, even if the suit has been decided on a preliminary point.—Sashi Mukhi v. Abinash, A I R 1922 Cal 279

Appeal from Remand Order Passed Otherwise than under Order XLI, Rule 23.—No appal lies against an oder passed by an Appellate Court remanding a case otherwise than under Or XLI, r. 23 of the Civil Procedure Code —Mahendra v Ram Taran, 23 C. W. N. 1049: 31 C. L J. 357 But the question is whether an appeal lies in cases where the order purports to be an order under Or XLI, r 23, although the order ought not to have been made under that rule The question was answered in the affirmative by the Calcutta High Court in Basumati v Taritbasini, 31 C. L J 354 · 44 I C 416, where Richardson, and Beachcroft, JJ , observed: " It may be that regard being had to terms of Or XLI, r. 23, this is not a case in which it was, strictly speaking, open to the learned Subordinate Judge to make an order under that rule But whether the order was regularly made or irregularly made, it appears to me, to be in form and substance an order under that rule That being so, the order must be treated as an order under r 23 from which an appeal lies." The same view was also taken in the following cases. Prosanno v. Baidya, 24 C. W. N 708 56 I C. 516, Radha Krishna v Kama Kamini, 35 C. L. J. 345. 70 I. C 547 A I R 1922 Cal 456, Gokul Prasad v. Ram Kumar, 44 A 176 A I R. 1922 All 254, Bibi Kulsumanissa v. Ram Prasad, 44 A 492, A I R 1922 All. 226, Bhairab v Kali Kumar, 37 C L J. 491; Kayem Biswas v Bahadur Khan, 30 C W N. 41: A. I. R 1925 Cal 1258 But where the order of remand has neither passed nor purported to have been passed under r 23 no appeal will lie.—Jagathari v. Medini, 31 C W N 878 A. I R. 1927 Cal 642

Appeal from Remand under the Inherent Power.—In several cases it has been held that when the order of remand is not made under Or XLI, r. 23, but by reason of a Court's inherent jurisdiction under s 151, the order is not appealable —Radha Krishna v. Venkata, 48 M. 713: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 229 84 I C 965, Raghunandan v. Jadunandan, 3 Pat L. J. 253 · 43 I C 959, Shaik Mahomed Maracayar v. Rangasami, 41 M. L. J. 182; Wasakhi Ram v. Hanal, 6 Lah L J 153: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 516. Chaudhuri Chandrika Prasad v. Mithu, 6 Pat 380, A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 296.

Appeal from Order of Remand when such Order does Not Specify the Provision of Law under which it is Made.—Where an Appellate Court passes an order of remand without specifying the provision of law under which the order is made, it must be presumed to be made under Or. XLI, r 23, C. P. Code, and the order is appealable —Bibi Kulsoomunnissa v. Ram Prasad, 20 A. L. J. 321 '41 A. 492, Firm of Gokul Prasad Har Prasad v Ram Kumar, 44 A. 176; 19 A. L. J. 971

Letters Patent Appeal.—An order of a single Judge of High Court under this rule is a " judgment " within the meaning of s. 15 of the Letters Patent and is therefore appealable —Gopinath v. Moheshwar, 35 C 1096 But see, Guru Prosanno v Ambicamoyi, 13 C W N. cclii.

When evidence on record sufficient, Appellate Court may determine case finally.

24. Where the evidence upon the record is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce judgment, the Appellate Court, may, after resettling the issues, if necessary, finally determine the suit, notwithstanding that the judgment of the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has proceeded wholly upon some ground other than that on which the Appellate Court proceeds. [S. 565.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 565, C. P Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only The word " where " has been substituted for " when "; the word " suit " has been substituted for the word " case "; the word " from " has been substituted for the word " against ", and the word " Preferred " has been substituted for the word " made," which occurred in the old section The object and meaning of this rule is clearly explained in 3 M 96 noted below

Where Evidence on Record Sufficient, Appellate Court may Determine Case Finally.—Where a Court of first instance after taking evidence, dismisses a suit upon a preliminary objection without giving a decision upon the merits of the case, and the decree is reserved on appeal, the Court of Appeal, if it considers the evidence on record sufficient, may decide the case, and is not bound to remand it for trial under r 23 —Bandi Subbayya v. Madalapalli, 3 M 96 See also, Amma v Kunhunni, 9 M 355.

This rule does not enable an Appellate Court to declare a right in favour of one of the parties, where no issue has been fixed on the point, and the right has not been set up in the lower Court —Official Trustee of Bengal v Krishna Chandra, 12 C 239, L R 12 I A 166

Where a lower Appellate Court has before it all the evidence which the parties wish to adduce, and decides upon a preliminary point (e.g , the genuineness of a pottah), it has no authority to remand the case, but should itself try it —Ram v Joy Nundo Moyce, 10 W R 374

The Appellate Court will not remand a case for re-trial on a point not raised in the Court below if the evidence already recorded is sufficient to enable the Appellate Court itself to decide the point.—Haridas Purshotam v. Gamble, 12 Bom H C. 23.

Where an objection was taken to the jurisdiction, and the objection was allowed, but the Court at the same time disposed of the case on the merits and dismissed the suit, and on appeal the Appellate Court affirmed the decree of the lower Court on the question of jurisdiction only. Held, that there were materials before the Appellate Court to dispose of the appeal on the merits —Debi Saran v. Debi Saran, 6 A. 378; Sheo Prasad v. Anrudh Singh, 6 A. 440

Where a Court of first appeal omits to determine a material issue of fact, the High Court as a Court of second appeal is not competent, under this rule to determine such issue itself, but should refer it for determination to the Court of first appeal —Sheo Ratan v. Luppa Kuar, 5 A. 14.

Where Appellate Court may frame issues and refer them for trial to Court whose decree appealed from.

25. Where the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted to frame or try any issue, or to determine any question of fact, which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the right decision of the suit upon the merits, the Appellate Court may, if necessary, frame issues, and refer the same for trial to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, and in such case shall direct such Court to take the additional evidence required; and such Court shall proceed to try such issues, and shall return the evidence to the Appellate Court together with its findings thereon and the reasons therefor [S. 566.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 566, C. P. Code, with some alterations of a verbal character and with the addition of the words "and the reasons therefor" in the concluding part adopting 19 B 551.

Distinction between an Order under Order XLI, Rule 23 and an Order under Order XLI, Rule 25.—There is a distinction between an order under Or XLI, r. 23 and an order under Or. XLI, r. 25 C. P. Code which remands specific issues for decision An order of the former class in a final order which is subject to appeal and cannot be considered by the Court which passed it except on review, whereas an order under Or. XLI, r 25 is an interlocutory order which it is open to the Court to consider.—Kuar Nageshar Sahai v Kuar Mata Prasad, 25 O C. 189: 9 O. L J. 235.

Framing Issues and Remanding the Case.—The functions of the Appellate Courts under Or XLI, rr 24, 25 and 27 discussed and pointed out. In cases where the Court, acting under r. 25 has been obliged, in the absence of evidence on the record, to supplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its jurisdiction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby or by reason only of the circumstance that the evidence is accompanied by a "finding" of the inferior Court, the term "finding" being used in s. 566 (this rule) in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for enquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court —Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuar, 7 A. 765. Not followed in Beni Pershad Kuari v Nand Lal, 24 C. 98.

Where a Subordinate Court has dealt with questions arising on the merits of the case, no order of remand can be made by Appellate Court under r. 23, but if the Appellate Court is of opinion that there should be a finding upon any particular issue or further evidence should be taken on any such issue, it may make an order of remand under this rule —Rakhit Mahanta v. Puddo Bauri, 9 C. W. N. 54 See also, Hukam Singh v. Raghubir, 27 A. 700 (1905), A. W. N. 157

Where the Court of first appeal remanded a case under r. 23, for addition of necessary parties Held, that the proper course for the lower Appellate Court would have been to join the necessary parties, and then to raise the proper issues and to refer the issues to the first Court for trial under this rule.—Ganesh Bhikaji v. Bhikaji Krishna, 10 B 398 See also, Kelu Mulachen v Chendu, 19 M. 157

If the Appellate Court is of opinion that the trial Court has failed to decide any issue or has failed to draw up any necessary issue, the proper course to follow was itself to frame the issue and to send it down, if necessary, to the trial Court for taking evidence and to return the evidence, together with its finding, to the lower Appellate Court. An order remanding the whole case is bad —Krishna Das v Manindra Chandra, 95 I C. 123; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 954.

Where an Appellate Court finds it necessary that a particular issue should be framed and tried, it should proceed under the provisions of Or XLI, r 25, to frame the issue and refer it for trial to the lower Court. It is not proper for the Appellate Court to set aside the judgment of the trial Court and send back the case to that Court for deciding it by framing an issue which the Appellate Court considers necessary for the decision of the case.—Mansur Ali v Jamiran Bewa, 44 C. L J 101 95 I C 203 A I R 1926 Cal 976

Under this rule an Appellate Court can frame a new issue and refer it for trial although it has not been raised by the defendant's written answer.—Chandi Din v Naraini Kuar, 14 A 366 See 30 B. 173

A lower Appellate Court has power under this rule to send back a case for trial upon an issue not satisfactorily tried by the Court of first instance. —Umbika Charan v Ramadhan, 11 W R 35

A decree in a suit having been passed on the merits by the Court of first instance the Court of appeal, being of opinion that an issue not tried by the former Court, ought to have been tried, reversed the decree, and under r 23 remanded the case for trial upon that issue. Held, that the order reversing the decree and remanding the case for trial of the issue was improper, and that the proper course for the Appellate Court was to have taken that laid down by rr 25 and 26 —Mokund Lal v. Hurbullubh, 12 C L. R 136

Where there is no sufficient evidence before the Appellate Court for the disposal of an issue which is material to the determination of the suit, the proper course to be followed is to remand the case under this rule.—Ram Pershad v. Krishna, 3 Agra 146. See also, Shumbhoo Chunder v. Russick Chunder, 15 W. R. 346.

Where the Appellate Court finds that the parties failed to grasp the essential questions arising in the case and to adduce evidence adequately, the appellate Court is entitled to frame new issues and remand them for trial.—Shah Mahomed v. Ramzan, 66 I. C. 833.

The District Court on appeal remanded the suit to the lower Court for finding on fresh issues. After return of the findings the District Judge transferred the appeal to the Sub-Judge, who heard and determined it. Held, that the District Judge had no power to transfer to a Sub-Judge an appeal which was part-heard and pending before him.—Kumara Sami v. Subbarayya, 23 M. 314.

When a Court of first instance has tried out a suit, the Appellate Court has no jurisdiction to make an order of remand under r. 23, but if a new issue has to be tried, it should proceed under r. 25.—Ram Das Mondal v. Indra Moni, 3 C. W. N. 325. See also, Lalla Chunni Lal v. Mohipi Singh, 1 C. W. N. 340.

Where, in a suit the plaintiff tendered three witnesses in support of his claim, but the Court having examined one of such witnesses and being satisfied with his evidence, declined to examine the others, and passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff and on appeal by the defendant, the lower Appellate Court reversed the decree, without allowing the plaintiff to produce fresh evidence. Held, that under the circumstances above described, it was competent to the High Court in special appeal to set aside all proceedings in both Courts below, and to remand the case under this rule with directions to the first Court to retry the case, admitting all admissible evidence which had been previously tendered.—Ganga Prasad v. Lal Bahadur, 17 A. 112 (11 A. 342 referred to). See also, Durga Dihal v. Anoraji, 17 A. 29.

Apart from rr. 23 and 25, no express power of remand is given by the Code to an Appellate Court.—Habib Baksh v. Baldeo, 23 A. 167 (171)

On an appeal from the decision of a Munsif in favour of the plaintiffs, in a suit for rent, the District Judge set aside the decree, ordered a new trial, and directed the amendment of the plaint by inserting the boundaries of the land. Held, that the order for amendment of the plaint was bad under r. 23, as the original Court had not disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point. If the information was necessary, the District Judge should send down an issue on the point for trial under this rule.—Krishnaya Navada v. Panchu, 17 M. 187.

When a Case should Not be Remanded.—Where no specific issue has been framed on the question of adoption, but the matter had been tried and determined without any objection on the part of the plaintiff, who had not been taken by surprise, but was fully informed by the defendant's lists of documents, and from the cross-examination of his witnesses that the defence would be taken, held that it was undesirable that the case should be remanded for re-trial on a special issue framed as to the adoption.—Chandra Kunwar v. Narpat Singh, 29 A. 184, P. C.: 11 C. W. N. 321: 5 C. L. J. 115: 17 M. L. J. 103: 9 Bom. L. R. 257: 4 A. L. J. 102: 2 M. L. T. 109.

Since a declaratory decree is a matter of discretion, a claim for a declaration ought not to be remanded by an Appellate Court for further enquiry which is likely to entail delay and expense.—Doorga Pershad v. Doorga Kunwari, 4 C. 190: 3 C. L. R. 31.

Where the lower Appellate Court framed a wrong issue for decision, but it appeared from its judgment that there was a finding on the point which would have been raised if the correct issue had been framed, the High Court in second appeal refused to remand the case for a new finding on that issue.—Vishnu Ramchandra v. Ganesh, 21 B. 325.

An Appellate Court is not justified in framing an issue which does not arise from the pleadings of the parties, and in remanding the case under this rule for fresh enquiry.—Illika Parkamar v. Kutti Kunhamed, 17 M. 69.

An Appellate Court cannot affirm some of the findings of the trial Court and set aside the decree and remand the case for a fresh trial. If the lower Court thinks it necessary that a fresh local investigation should be held, it should order it itself or it should direct the lower Court to direct a local investigation to be held and to send back to the Appellate Court the result of such local investigation.—Mahendra v. Narayani, 95 I. C. 170: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 912.

Powers and Duties of the Court to which Issues are Remitted.—A Court of first instance to which issues have been remitted under this rule, by the Appellate Court has only jurisdiction to try the issues remitted, and is functus officio in other respects and cannot make a reference of the case to arbitration which is only within the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court.—Nand Ram v. Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523. See also, Gossain Dowlat Geer v. Bissessur Geer, 22 W. R. 207; Habib v. Baldeo, 23 A. 167, 171.

A Court to which a case is remanded for retrial on a particular issue amongst others, cannot, on remand allow that issue to be abandoned and proceed to try the case upon the other issues raised.—Shib Chunder v. Joymala Dasi, 7 C. L. R. 103.

Power of lower Court to take additional evidence on remand where order of remand does not so order. Held, that the lower Court had power to take additional evidence on the issue remanded, although not specially authorized to do so by the order of remand.—Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127.

Held, that an Appellate Court is not bound to accept a finding returned to it by the first Court, under r. 25, merely because no objections to such findings are preferred, but is competent to examine and satisfy itself that the finding is correct and is fit to be accepted.—Akbari Begam v. Wilayat Ali, 2 A. 908 (1 Agra 50 dissented from; 1 A. 165 followed). Followed in Umed Ali v. Salima Bibi, 6 A. 383; Mukhtara v. Sardara, 71 I. C. 444.

Certain issues were admitted under Or. XLI, r. 25, C. P. Code for trial on additional evidence that might be tendered by the parties. On the date fixed for production of evidence, the plaintiff appeared but the defendants were absent. The Court took the evidence for the plaintiff and recorded its findings ex parte. On the application by the defendants showing sufficient cause for the non-attendance, the Court, after notice to the plaintiffs set aside the ex parte finding, restored the suit and fixed a new date for parties to produce their evidence. Held, on revision from this order, that the Court had power to make and had acted properly in making the order inasmuch as a full compliance with the directions of the Appellate Court under Or. XLI, r. 25, C. P. Code required the taking of evidence for both parties.—Ajodhia Prasad v. Ram Narain, 19 A. L J. 79: 62 I C. 447.

Power of Appellate Court to deal with the whole appeal after return of findings. Held, that, upon the return of the finding on remand, the Court could not treat the appeal as already decided and the objections as the sole matter for consideration, but must consider both appeal and objections, and decide the whole case.—Lachman Prasad v. Jamna Prasad, 10 A. 162. Gopal Nath v Sat Narain, 74 I. C. 1014. See also, Lala Prag Lal v Jai Narayan, 22 C. 419, where it has been held that on the hearing of the appeal, the entire case, including the order of remand, was open to consideration, and that the High Court had power to determine whether that order or the order subsequently passed was correct on the merits.

A Court of Appeal framed certain issues, under this rule and remanded them for findings by the original Court. On the return of these findings as neither party filed any objections, the Appellate Court accepted these findings without giving any reasons for so doing, or even stating in its judgment whether it concurred in them or not, and confirmed the decree of the original Court. Held, that judgment of the Appellate Court was not a judgment according to law.—Bhagwan v. Kesur Kuverji, 17 B. 428.

New Issue Raised before High Court.—Where the lower Appellate Court has omitted to determine a question of fact which appears essential to the right decision of the suit on the merits, the High Court can frame the necessary issues and refer them for trial under Or. XLI, r. 25—Sethee Ratnam v. Venkata Chala, 38 M. L. J. 476 (P. C.): 18 A. L. J. 707 (P C) 22 Bom. L R. 574 (P. C.): 47 I. A. 76 (P. C.). But the finding of the lower Court upon the issues so remanded is conclusive and cannot be challenged.—Ram Mehr v Pali Ram, 6 Lah. L. J. 145.

Though the High Court is competent in second appeal to remit a case to the lower Court for re-hearing on an issue not raised in the pleadings nor even suggested in the Courts below, this ought to be done only in exceptional cases for good cause shown and on payment of costs—Ram Chandra v. Secretary of State for India, 43 C. 1104, 1118; Chandu Lal v. Firm of Lakshmi Chand Jowaladat, 5 Lah L. J. 40; Brikabai v. Gaja Mhaku, 28 Bom. L R. 1090: 98 I. C. 297: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 577.

Issues Remitted are Triable by the Court which Originally Tried the Suit or Appeal.—When issues are remitted for trial under this rule such issues are triable only by the Court which originally tried the case—Sabri v. Ganeshi, 14 A. 23 Followed in Ali Sher Khan v. Ahmadullah Khan, 29 A. 660; 4 A. L J. 603. See also, Lahore Bank Ltd. v. Lakhiram, 105 P. R. 1903; Uttamchand v. Muhammad Baksh, 71 I. C. 896.

Appeal.—An order referring issues for trial under this rule is not appealable.—Kali Kristo v. Ram Chunder, 8 C. 147: 9 C. L. R. 461.

(Followed in 12 C. W. N. ccliii (253). A suit to recover a sum of money having been decreed against one of the two defendants, he appealed. The lower Appellate Court held that the decree was prima facie correct, but as it was of opinion that the issue of limitation had not been sufficiently explored, the case was remanded to the Court of first instance for rehearing and disposal on that issue. Against that order of remand, an appeal was preferred to the High Court Held, that in making the order, the lower Appellate Court was purporting to act under Or. XLI, r. 25 and not under Or. XLI, r. 23 (although it had jurisdiction under neither), and no appeal lay —Jagathari v. Medini Mohan, 31 C. W. N. 878. Nor does an appeal lie under the Letters Patent.—Bara Estate, Ltd. v. Anup Chandra, 2 Pat. L. J. 663.

A partial order of remand under Or. XLI, r. 25 is not appealable.—Maung Shwcon v. N. K. R. P Mudaliar, 2 Bur. L. J. 216

26. (1) Such evidence and findings shall form part of the record in the suit; and either party may within a time to be fixed by the Appellate Court present a memorandum of objections to any finding.

Findings and evidence to be put on record. Objections to finding.

(2) After the expiration of the period so fixed for presenting such memorandum, the Appellate Court shall proceed to determine the appeal. [S. 567.]

Determination of appeal.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 567, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character. In sub-rule (1) the word "form" has been substituted for the word "become," which stood after the word "shall", the word "any" has been substituted for the word "the" which stood after the words "objections to," and in sub-rule (2), the word "so" has been added before the word "fixed"

"Such evidence and findings shall form part of the record in the suit."—The evidence and findings become part of the record in the suit and when the Court proceeds to determine the appeal after remand under Or. XLI, r. 25, such determination must be based upon all the materials on the record; these include whatever was part of the record as it stood before the order under Or XLI, r 25 was made as also what has been added in the Court of appeal, namely, the order together with the evidence taken pursuant thereto and the reasoned findings thereon.—Kamini Kumar v Durga Charan, 37 C. L J 122.

Where No Memorandum of Objection is Filed.—If no memorandum of objection is filed by either party, the Court is not thereby absolved from its duty of hearing the appeal —Subbaya v Rami, 22 M 344 The Appellate Court, even if no objections are filed, is bound to examine the correctness of the findings and to state in its judgment the reason for which it either accepts or rejects the findings.—Kunhi v. Kutti, 20 M. 496.

An Appellate Court though not bound to entertain objections filed after the expiration of the prescribed period, should, nevertheless, upon the hearing of the remand, allow the party filing them to be heard with regard to them. Further, an Appellate Court, apart from any objection by the parties to the findings when returned, should examine and test them to see whether or not they ought to be accepted.—Mumtaz Begam v. Fateh Husain, 6 A. 391 (6 A. 383, 1 A. 165, and 2 A. 908 referred to).

Where no objections have been filed under Or. XLI, r. 26, C. P. Code the Court may in its discretion decline to hear objections at the hearing.—Partab Singh v. Achar Singh, 3 Lah. L. J. 230.

But the Appellate is not bound to accept any finding blindly, namely, because no objections to such finding are preferred, but is competent to examine the evidence on which such finding is founded, and to satisfy itself that it is correct and fit to be accepted.—Akhari Begam v. Wilyat Ali, 2 A. 908 (1 Agra 50 dissented from; 1 A. 165 followed). Followed in Umed Ali v. Salima Bibi, 6 A. 383. See also, Woomesh Chunder v. Jonardun, 15 W. R. 235; Mumtaz Begam v. Fateh Husain, 6 A. 391; Bhagwan v. Kesur, 17 B. 428; Ram Chandra v. Sono, 19 B. 551.

Time to File Objection to Finding.—The limitation of time in this rule is obviously meant to be a restriction upon the rights of the parties, and not upon the discretion of the Court.—Damodar Das v. Gokul Chand, 7 A. 79. (92).

After the expiry of the period fixed, the Appellate Court may, in its discretion, receive or decline to receive memorandum of objections to the finding on remand.—Chotay Lall v. Chunoo Lall, 3 C. L. R. 465 (468): 4 C. 744 (731): L. R. 6 I. A. 15.

" Shall proceed to determine the appeal."—When an Appellate Court has made an order referring issues for trial under r. 25, the return to such order must be made to the same Court, and such Court is not competent to transfer the appeal for disposal to another Court.—Udit Narain v. Jhanda, 15 A. 315; Kumarasami v. Subbaraya, 23 M. 314.

Second Appeal.—The provisions of this rule and of r. 25 apply, so far as may be by virtue of Or. XLII, to second appeals. The High Court may, in second appeal, therefore, refer issues of fact for trial to the lower Appellate Court, but when the finding and evidence upon such issues are returned to the High Court, the finding is conclusive, and it cannot be challenged upon the evidence before the High Court as in first appeal. The reason is that second appeal is not allowed on questions of fact.

Production of additional evidence in Appellate Court.

27. (1) The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the Appellate Court. But if—

(a) the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or

(b) The Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court may allow such evidence or document to be produced, or witness to be examined.

(2) Wherever additional evidence is allowed to be produced by an Appellate Court, the Court shall record the reason for its admission. [S. 568.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 568, C. P. Code, with some alterations of a verbal character.

Sub-rule (1) exactly corresponds to para. 1 of the old section.

Clause (a) corresponds to cl. (a) of the old section with this modification that the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against"; the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made"; and the words "has refused" have been substituted for the word "refuses."

Clause (b) exactly corresponds to cl. (b) of the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to last para. of the old section with this alteration that the word "wherever" has been substituted for the word "whenever"; and the words "allowed to be produced" have been substituted for the words "is admitted," which occurred in the old section.

Scope of this Rule—Powers and Functions of Appellate Court.—The legitimate occasion for the admission of additional evidence under this rule arises only when, on examining the evidence as it stands, some inherent lacuna or defect becomes apparent, and not where a discovery is made outside the Court of fresh evidence and application is made to import it. Such evidence cannot be imported into the case on an application under Or. XLVII, r. 1.

Additional evidence under this rule should not be taken until the Appellate Court has examined the evidence on the record and has, after such examination, come to the conclusion that the evidence, as it stands, is inherently defective; as, for instance, when the lower Court has omitted to take the evidence of an attesting witness to mortgage deed.—Bank of Bengal v. Lucas, 51 C. 185: 81 I. C 471: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 578.

The circumstance that evidence has been improperly excluded by the trial Court does not justify a reversal of the decree made by that Court. The Code of Civil Procedure provides in Or. XLI, rr. 27 (1) (a), 28 and 29, the method to be followed in a case of this description It is open to the Judge of the Appellate Court to take the evidence himself or to direct the primary Court to take the evidence and to send it to the Appellate Court for consideration.—Jyot Kumar v. Jadu Nath, 34 C. L. J. 160.

The legitimate occasion for the admission of additional evidence by the Appellate Court under this rule arises only when, on examining the evidence as it stands, some inherent lacuna or defect becomes apparent. Where fresh evidence is discovered outside the Court, such evidence can be imported into the case on an application under Or. XLVII, r. 1.—Krishna Chariar v. Narasimha, 31 M. 114: 3 M. L. T. 308 (13 B. 381, P. C., followed); Garden Reach Spg. and Wvg. Co. v. Secretary of State for India, 42 C. 675; Uchant Ahir v. Basawan Ahir, 55 I. C. 226; Firm of Ram Richpal Sham Lal v. Firm of Bansi Dhar Sons, 66 I. C. 370 (31 B. 381 P. C. relied on; 31 M 114, and 42 C. 675 followed). See also, Bhairon Singh v Hindu Singh, (1922) Nag. 119: 67 I. C. 237; Jai Krishna v. Bibi Saghra, 4 Pat. L. T. 418: 71 I. C. 881; Labh Singh v. Ahmad Shah, 97 I C 369.

It is largely discretionary with an Appellate Court to admit additional evidence on appeal and a party cannot claim it as a matter of right.—Syed Nayajan Ali v. Midnapore Zemindary Company, 67 I. C. 770.

The Appellate Court should exercise its power of allowing additional evidence very cautiously and sparingly and only in the interests of justice.—Raja Sri Nath Roy v Secy. of State for India, 36 C. L. J. 315.

Or. XLI, r. 27 does not mean that in order to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce judgment in favour of a particular party additional evidence should be admitted in appeal. It only means that where there is a lacuna in the evidence which precludes the Appellate Court from pronouncing judgment on the evidence which is already in the record, additional evidence should be allowed to be adduced.—Baijnath v. Diplal, 57 I. C. 843.

On an appeal on the merits of the case being filed the Appellate Court without recording any reason as required by this rule allowed such further evidence to be taken, not after the appeal on the merits had been heard and the evidence as it stood had been examined by the Judges but on special and preliminary application. Held, that the Appellate Court had no jurisdiction to admit the additional evidence, that it was wrongly admitted and must be disregarded.—Kessowji Issur v. G. I. P. Railway Company, 31 B. 381, P. C.: 11 C. W. N. 751: 6 C. L J. 5, P. C.

Where additional evidence is taken by the High Court with the assent of both sides, it is not open to either party to complain of it.—Jagarnath v. Hanuman, 36 C 833 (P. C.): 36 I. A 221: 13 C. W. N. 830 P. C.

The test as to whether additional evidence should be received in an Appellate Court under this rule, depends upon the question whether or not the Appellate Court requires the evidence "to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause." As to this, the Appellate Court is to be the sole Judge. The rejection of an application under that section cannot be said to involve any "substantial question of law" within the meaning of s. 110, C. P. Code, so as to give the right of an appeal to the Privy Council.—Upendra Mohan v. Gopal Chandra, 21 C. 481; Jhingur Jha v. Badni Sahu, 51 I. C. 666.

The functions of the Appellate Courts under Or. XXI, rr. 24, 25 and 7, discussed and pointed out. In cases where the Court acting under . 25 has been obliged in the absence of evidence on the record, to upplement the defect through the agency of the Court below, its juris-iction in respect of such evidence does not become limited thereby r by reason only of the circumstances that the evidence is accompanied y a "finding" of the inferior Court, the term "finding" being used n r. 25 in its restricted sense of an answer to the proposition referred for nquiry, and not of an award or decision of the issue before the Court.—Balkishen v. Jasoda Kuar, 7 A. 765. Not followed in Beni Pershad Kuari v. Nand Lal, 24 C. 68.

In a second appeal, the High Court remanded a case to the Lower Appellate Court for proper decision of certain issues raised in the suit; and he Lower Appellate Court, taking evidence on the issues, came to findings of fact on that evidence. Held, that the lower Appellate Court tried the ase, not as an original case, but as an appeal. Beni Preshad Kuari v. Nand Lal, 24 C. 98

When Additional Evidence should be Allowed.—Under this rule the admissibility of additional evidence is made to depend, not upon the elevancy or materiality to the issue before the Court of the evidence ought to be admitted or upon the fact whether or not the applicants had an opportunity of adducing evidence at some earlier stage, but upon whe-her or not the Appellate Court requires the evidence to enable it to pronounce judgment or for any other substantial cause.—In the goods of Prem Chand, 21 C 484, 486.

The power given by this rule of taking of its own motion, additional evidence should be very sparingly exercised by the Courts and great caution should be exercised in this matter.—Sreeman Chunder v. Gopal Chunder 11 M. I. A. 28· 7 W. R 10; Hurpershad v Sheo Dyal, 26 W R. 55: L R. 3 I. A. 259

Where pending an appeal from a decree in a rent suit, a decree is passed in favour of the appellant in a title suit, the Appellate Court should receive the decree in evidence and act upon it—Sashi Bhuson v. Prafulla (64 I. C. 721, 31 B 481 P. C., 31 M. 114, 36 A 93 referred to).

When the first Court was satisfied with the evidence produced, and, therefore, did not allow the plaintiff to produce all his evidence, and the Appellate Court does not think the evidence, sufficient, it ought to allow the plaintiff on appeal to call the evidence excluded by the first Court.—Brijo Soondar v Kamroonnisa, 23 W R. 63

Where a Court of first instance, considering it unnecessary to examine certain witnesses for the defence, dismissed the suit, and the lower Appel-late Court, disbelieving the evidence of those witnesses for the defence who were examined, allowed the plaintiff's appeal, held that, before doing so, the Lower Appellate Court should have afforded the defendants an op-portunity of supplementing the evidence which they had given in the first Court by the testimony of those witnesses whom that Court had declared it unnecessary to hear, and that the case must be regarded as one in which the first Court had refused to examine the witnesses tendered by the defendants.—Khuda Baksh v. Imam Ali, 9 A. 330

It is within the discretion of the lower Appellate Court to allow the parties an opportunity to adduce fresh evidence if it is satisfied that the interests of justice require that course.—Damodur Das v. Ritoo Singh, 24 W. R. 325.

Where the evidence upon the record is not sufficient to enable the Appellate Court to pronounce a judgment upon regular appeal, it may require the Court against whose decree the appeal is made to take additional evidence, defining the points to which such evidence is to be confined, in order to enable the Appellate Court finally to determine the case.—Narasimharav v. Antaji, 2 Bom. H. C. 64 (2nd Ed. 61).

Where a lower Appellate Court admitted a review with the object of taking into consideration a material issue which it had omitted to consider at the trial, held that, having admitted the review on grounds independent of fresh evidence, it was competent for the Court, under this rule, to admit fresh evidence, if required to enable it to pronounce a satisfactory judgment, or for any substantial cause.—Beharee Lal v. Troylukho, 12 W. R. 223.

The true interpretation of this rule is that, when a Court sees that by some inadvertance or mistake, a party has not produced some evidence which he was capable of adducing, and that he is likely to be prejudiced by that omission or mistake, which was simply unintentional, undesigned, and accidental, the Court will allow such further evidence to be taken.—Gowhur Ali v. Sakeena Khanum, 15 W. R. 507.

When a lower Court disposes of a case upon the merits as proved by evidence not legally admissible against the defendants, and the Appellate Court considers it proper to allow the plaintiff to adduce further evidence, it may either take such further evidence itself, or send the case back to the lower Court to take such evidence.—Ramjoy Surma v. Purankishen, W. R. (F. B.) 124.

Where the first Court refused the plaintiff's application to summon five of his witnesses, notwithstanding that it postponed the case for ten days, although fifteen other of the witnesses were present, the High Court held that the first Court's omission to summon the witnesses was, under the circumstance, a sufficient reason, for the lower Appellate Court to send for them, and take their evidence.—Abelagh Roy v. Guggun Bhuggut, 22 W. R. 269.

When the lower Court is wrong in excluding evidence bearing on the question at issue, the Appellate Court is justified in admitting the evidence. Further, when a Court has doubt as to whether a certain evidence is admissible or not, and its decision is open to appeal, it is better to adimt than to exclude such doubtful evidence.—Kali Kishore v. Bhusan Chunder, 18 C. 201.

In a bond-suit the plaintiff relied in bar of limitation on endorsements of part-payments appearing on the bond. The first Court held that the endorsements were genuine. The Appellate Court remanded the suit to take further evidence with regard to the endorsements; and held upon the return of the evidence that the endorsements were forgeries and dismissed the suit. Held, that the additional evidence was legally taken and admissible under this rule.—Srinivasa Chariar v. Rangammal, 18 M. 94.

Where in a second appeal the High Court remanded a case for return of findings on an issue previously framed but not tried. Held, that the lower Court had power to take additional evidence on the issue remanded, although not specially authorised to do so by the order of remand.—Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127.

A District Munsif after hearing evidence and deciding issues, passed a decree. On appeal the Sub-Judge reversed the decree, and remanded the case under Or. XLI, r. 23, on the ground that certain documentary evidence tendered by the defendant had been excluded, and the plaintiff's witnesses who had been cited in the list had not been wholly examined. Held that r. 23 was inapplicable to such a case; and that the proper course for the Sub-Judge would have been to act either under Or. XLI, r. 27 or r. 28.—Seshan Pattar v. Seshan Pattar, 23 M. 447 (23 M. 445 distinguished); Rajani v. Khater Mahomed, 94 I. C. 393: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 897.

Where the lower Court after rejecting defendant's application for adjournment heard the case ex parte, and passed a decree in plaintiff's favour; and where on appeal by the defendant the Appellate Court reversed the decree and remanded the case. Held, on second appeal, that the suit having been tried on the merits, the lower Appellate Court could not remand the case under s 562, but ought to have proceeded under ss. 568, 569, C. P. Code, 1882.—Parvati Shankar v. Bai Naval, 17 B. 733.

When Additional Evidence should Not be Allowed.—An Appellate Court should not receive evidence, though alleged to be material and important, which has not been produced in the lower Court, without substantial reason for its non-production. The High Court, refused to reverse a decision on the ground of the improper admission of evidence.—Jagadindra v. Bhobo Tarini, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 54.

The mere fact that a litigant was not aware of the existence of documentary evidence in the case is no ground for the admission of such evidence for the first time on appeal.—Srimati Manmohini v. Ram Kishore 68 I. C. 334.

An unregistered document admitted to be all along in possession of a party, cannot be allowed in evidence in second appeal, merely because it is alleged that it is recently discovered.—Prem Singh v. Md. Khurshid, A. I. R 1926 Lah. 574 103 I. C. 215; Kessowji Issue, v. G. I P. Ry. Co., 31 B. 381 P. C

An Appellate Court acts improperly in admitting additional evidence after the close of the arguments in the case.—Isap Ali v Satiss, 65 I. C. 504.

An appellant who had ample opportunity of giving evidence in the Court below elected not to do so, but to rest his case on the evidence as it stood, he ought not to be allowed at the stage of appeal to give evidence which he could have given below.—Ram Das v. Official Liquidator, 9 A. 366.

Circumstances under which an Appellate Court will not allow additional evidence to be produced at the hearing of an appeal under this rule.—Nadai Chand v. Chunder Sikher, 15 C 765.

The plaintiffs had applied, during the hearing of the case in the Court of first instance, for the production of certain books of account of the defendants. The defendants resisted the application, and the Court refused to order the books to be produced. The suit having been dismissed, the plaintiffs appealed; and in the Court of Appeal the defendants applied to be permitted to put in evidence the books which they had refused to produce. Held, that the evidence could not be admitted. Manohar Ganesh v. Lakhmiram, 12 B. 247.

The Appellate Court should not send for and admit fresh documentary evidence which has not been put in by either party in the lower Court.—Dwarka Nath v Ram Lockan, 10 W. R. 92; Zahrah v. Bhagwan, 16 W. R. 211; Narendra Nath v. Radha Charan, 46 C. 119, 128. Nor should it allow additional evidence to prove the genuineness of a document held by the lower Court to be a fabrication.—Nadiar Chand v. Chunder 15 C. 765.

Omission to call evidence in the lower Court, held, on appeal, that the plaintiff's case could not at this stage be supplemented by examining parties whom the plaintiffs did not think fit to call, or by books which they did not produce in the Court below.—Valaet Ali v. Motadeen, 10 W. R. 402.

Where, in the first Court, the defendant's pleader deposed on oath that the defendant had no documents whatever, and that all were burnt, held, that the lower Appellate Court was wrong in permitting the defendant to file a Pottah, which was alleged to have escaped the general destruction —Serajool Huq v. Keramatoolah, 19 W. R. 88.

The High Court decided a case irrespective of certain documents brought forward by a party at the hearing of the appeal, and afterwards rejected an application for a review of that judgment. In an application to the Privy Council for special leave to bring in those documents, held, that further evidence ought not to be admitted under this rule, that there was a great danger in the Court of ultimate appeal lightly introducing evidence which had not been under the consideration of the Court below and which the parties had no means of testing.—Gobind Sundari v. Jagdamba, 3 B. L. R. P. C ; 25. See also, Ram Chandra v. Krishnaji, 28 B 4.

Although the plea of res judicata may be taken at any stage of a suit, including first or second appeal, an Appellate Court is not bound to entertain the plea if by so doing further findings of fact will be rendered necessary, and if its consideration involves the reference of fresh issues for determination by the lower Court.—Kanahai Lal v. Suraj Kunwar, 21 A. 440.

The refusal by an Appellate Court to exercise the discretion vested in it by this section, with respect to the admission of additional evidence would be an error or defect in procedure within the meaning of s. 584, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 100), because s. 568 (this rule) distinctly implies that discretion must be exercised. But a refusal in the exercise of discretion to admit additional evidence is undoubtedly not such an error or defect.—Ram Piary v. Kallu, 23 A. 121 (15 W. R. 429 referred to).

"If the Appellate Court Requires any Document to be Produced."— Unless a document is required by a lower Court to enable it to pronounce judgment, it has no power under this rule to require it to be produced; where judgment could be pronounced without the document, the Appellate Court should not allow the production of the document.—Kalika v. Tulsi, 1 Pat. L. J. 435.—Kessowji Issur v. G. I. P. Ry., 31 B. 381.

"Or any witness to be examined."—Additional evidence which has the effect of impeaching the testimony of a witness called in the Court below should not be allowed by the Appellate Court unless that witness is also called and is given an opportunity to contradict or explain the additional evidence so given.—Jagrani v. Kuar Durga, 36 A. 93-41 L. R. I. A. 76. See also, Muhammad v. Mahmudunnissa, 38 A. 191, 193, 194.

The High Court, in second appeal, cannot be said to require any document to be produced or any witness to be examined, to enable it to pronounce judgment on a question of fact.—Shamsuddin v. Molannessa Bibi, 95 I. C. 300: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 941.

"Or for any other substantial cause."—The words "any other substantial cause" confer a wide discretion on the Appellate Court to admit additional evidence when the ends of justice require it.—Ambuja v. Appadurai, 38 M. 414. It has accordingly been held that the discovery, after the filing of the appeal, of fresh evidence not known to nor available to the appellant after due diligence during the pendency of the proceedings in the first Court, is a "substantial cause" within the meaning of this rule, justifying the admission of such evidence in appeal.—Venkata Chella v. Ranga, 28 M. L. J. 334. 28 I. C. 694, Indrajit v. Amar Singh, 50 I. A. 183: 2 Pat. 671. A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 128. The "cause" referred to here need not be ejusdem generis with the causes stated in the earlier part of this rule.—Andiappa v. Muthukumara, 36 M. 477. Badri Prasad v. Makandi, 26 O. C. 66. 75 I. C. 331, Parbhu Lal v. Gulzari Lal, 1923, Lah. 584; Naraindas v. Tek Chand, 1923 S. 42.

Even where a party satisfies the Court that since the filing of the appeal he has discovered further evidence that was not known or available to him and could not have been discovered with due diligence during the pendency of the appeal even up to the date of judgment, that is no sufficient cause for an Appellate Court to admit that evidence under Or. XLI, r. 27. It is a ground for review under Or. XLVII, r. 1, C. P. Code.—The Bombay Sizing and Stores Supplying Co. v. Kusumgar & Co., 47 B. 674. 25 B. L. R. 310.

Inability to understand the legal issues involved is not a substantial cause.—Rameshra v. Kalpa, 46 A. 264. A. I. R. 1924 All. 538; nor the slackness of the party or his legal advises.—Wali Muhammad v. Muhammad Buksh, 5 L. 84. 80 I. C. 998. A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 444.

"Court shall record reasons for admission."—The power given by this rule of taking, of its own motion, original evidence anew, should be exercised very sparingly by the Courts and, when exercised, it is desirable that the reasons for exercising it should always be recorded or minuted by the Court in the proceedings.—Sreeman Chunder v. Gopal Chunder, 7 W. R. 10 P. C., 11 M. I. A. 28; Ambica Prosad v. Gopal Buksh, 1 C. L. J. 550, Ganga Gobinda v. Collector of 24-perganahs, 7 W. R. 21, P. C.: 11 M. I. A. 345; Hurpershad v. Sheo Dyal L. R. 3 I. A. 259; 26 W. R. 55, Juggobundhoo v. Goluck Chunder, 10 W. R. 228, Joog

Maya v. Ram Chunder, 10 W. R. 378; Lowa Jha v. Bisseshur, 11 W. R. 6; Benee Pershad v. Lalla Joggessur, 11 W. R. 47; Chardon v. Ajeet Singh, 12 W. R. 52; Shib Chunder v. Kasheenath, 12 W. R. 245; Juggut Indur v. Bhubo Tarinee, 14 W. R. 19; Snadden v. Todd, Finely & Co., 7 W. R. 313. See, Kessanji Issur v. G. I. P. Ry. Co., 31 B. 381, P. C.: 11 C. W. N. 721: 6 C. L. J. 5, P. C.: Ambica Charan v. Gins Chandra, 68 I. C. 719.

The provision in this rule as to an Appellate Court recording its reasons for admitting additional evidence is directory merely, and not imperative.—Gopal Singh v. Jahri Rai, 12 C. 37; followed in Barha Mandari v. Megh Nath, 2 C L. J 4-n. See also, Beni Pershad Kuari v. Nado Lal, 24 C. 98; Rahimuddin Kazi v. Radha Govinda, 64 I. C. 238.

Where the evidence of a defendant has been taken by the Court of first instance so imperfectly that the lower Appellate Court cannot pass a satisfactory judgment between the parties, it is competent to the Judge of that Court under the provisions of s. 355, C. P. Code, 1859, to have the defendant fully examined before himself, but not to remand the case for re-hearing and re-trial. If he examines the defendant he is bound to record his reasons for so doing, in order that the High Court may be enabled on appeal to decide whether or not the new evidence has been rightly admitted —Mohesh Chunder v. Madhub Chunder, 13 W. R. 85.

Where a Judge sends for a map or other document, he is bound to record his reasons for doing so, according to the provisions of the C. P. Code, and the evidence so obtained must be taken and received by him in the presence of the parties in open Court, and afterwards kept on the record. It is not competent to him under s. 355, C. P. Code, 1882, merely of his own discretion to send for a document for personal inspection irrespective of the parties to the suit.—Ganpat Roy v. Ramdeour Roy, 21 W. R. 416 See also, Sookrah Sheikh v. Nund Coomar, 25 W. R 246.

Where the lower Appellate Court allows additional evidence to be taken though it is not satisfied that the evidence is necessary under clause (a) or clause (b) of s 568 of the C P. Code, 1882, (this rule) the High Court will interfere; but where this does not appear to be the case, and there is simply an omission on the part of the Appellate Court to record its reasons for allowing additional evidence to be taken, the High Court will not interfere —Hafiz Abdul Kurrim v. Srikissen, 11 C. 139: See, however, Juggernath v. Kanai Das, 6 C. W N. 31.

The provision of this rule as to an Appellate Court recording its reasons, for admitting additional evidence is complied with if the Court records " that it considers necessary, for the proper decision of the case, to take additional evidence."—Radha Nath v. Ramgovind, 3 B. L. R. 218: 12 W. R. 224. See also, Hafiza v. Hosein, 13 W. R. 328.

An Appellate Court is not justified in taking additional evidence after a case has been argued before it and a date fixed for judgment, without recording reasons for admitting such evidence. Or XLI, r. 27 has no application to a case in which the judge records no reasons for admitting additional evidence.—Hansraj v. Shiam Sundar, 19 A. L. J. 407: 63 I. C. 423; followed in Ali Ahmed v. Kishan Prasad, 71 I. C. 289.

Where evidence has been taken by an Appellate Court in the presence of parties or their agents, it should not be rejected on appeal merely because the Court omitted to record its reasons for admitting it.—Bhugwan Chunder v. Raj Coomar, 13 W. R. 303.

Right of Opposite Party to Rebut Additional Evidence.—When the appellate Court admits additional evidence under Or. XLI, r. 27, the other side must have an opportunity of rebutting it.—Hirday Krishna v. Rajanikanta, 1923 Cal. 800 (31 B. 381, 24 C. L. J. 457 referred to); Man Singh v. Newlakhbati, 72 I. C. 239; Ramzan v. Nabi Bux, 6 Lah. L. J. 234: 80 I. C. 530: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 638. Where additional evidence was recorded and no reason stated for its admission, the suit was remanded with a direction to allow the opposite party to adduce rebuting evidence.—Kebal v. Rajani, 39 C. L. J. 261: 81 I. C. 999: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 98.

Second Appeal.—Where the Court of first appeal has admitted additional evidence under this rule, the hearing in the Court of second appeal will not for that reason be treated as a first appeal so as to entitle the parties to go into questions of fact —Beni Pershad v. Nand Lal, 24 C. 98; Gopal v. Jhakri, 12 C. 37. The reason being that by virtue of the provisions of the s 100, the High Court is precluded from entering into questions of fact except as provided by s. 103. A refusal by the lower Appellate Court to admit fresh evidence is not appealable.—In the goods of Prem Chand, 21 C. 484; Ram Piari v. Kallu, 23 A. 121; Durga Prasad v. Jai Narain, 33 A. 379 See also, Vaithi Natha v. Kupper, 42 M. 737 (F. B.).

Appeal to Privy Council.—Where an application is rejected under this rule, such rejection does not give a right of appeal to the Privy Council.—In the goods of Prem Chand, 21 C. 484

Power of Appellate Court to Take Notice of Facts which have Happened Since the Date of Judgment of the Lower Court.—Public documents coming into existence subsequent to the filing of second appeals may be admitted in evidence in the High Court. A Court cannot shut its eyes to the events that came into existence during the pendency of any suit or proceeding —James Henry George Hill v. Satan Singh, (1920) Pat. 4 (20 C. W N. 109 referred to).

See 11 C. W N 732· 6 C. L J 74, and 6 C L. J. 92, 102, 662, noted under r. 33 of this Order.

Mode of taking additional evidence.

28. Wherever additional evidence is allowed to be produced, the Appellate Court may either take such evidence, or direct the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, or another subordinate Court, to take such evidence and to send it when taken to the Appellate Court. [S. 569.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 569, C P Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only. The word "wherever" has been substituted for "whenever"; the word "produced" has been substituted for the word "received"; the word "from" has been substituted for the word "against" and the word "preferred" has been substituted for the word "made" which occurred in the old section.

A lower Court in taking evidence ordered under this rule acts in a ministerial capacity.—Ram Joy v. Prankishen, 2 W. R. 80.

If the case is remanded for the attendance and examination of the plaintiff, the lower Court may dispense with his attendance, and accept the evidence of his agent instead, if the plaintiff be ill and unable to attend.—Syud Rezza v Enaet Hossein, 1 W. R. 330.

If a case is remanded for the examination of one of the plaintiffs, the defendants cannot insist upon, nor the Court can examine, the other plaintiffs also.—Bolakee Lall v Radha Singh, 1 W R. 357.

Where the additional evidence consists of documents, they should be made exhibits in the case —Daji v. Sakharam, 38 B. 665.

Points to be defined and recorded.

29. Where additional evidence is directed or allowed to be taken, the Appellate Court shall specify the points to which the evidence is to be confined, and record on its proceedings the points so specified. [S. 570.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 570, C. P Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "in all cases" which occurred in the beginning of the old section.

JUDGMENT IN APPEAL.

Judgment when and where pronounced.

30. The Appellate Court, after hearing the parties or their pleaders and referring to any part of the proceedings, whether on appeal or in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, to which reference may be considered necessary, shall pronounce judgment in open Court, either at once or on some future, day, of which notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders. [S. 571.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 571, C P Code, 1882, with the substitutions of the words "from" for the word "against," and "preferred" for the word "made," which occurred in the old section.

A Judge may, at the close of the hearing of a suit, state at once orally the judgment which he intends to record and deliver.—Anonymous, 5 Mad. H. C. Ap. 8.

"After hearing the parties or their pleaders."—This rule only authorizes the Court to pronounce judgment after hearing the parties, and judgment pronounced without hearing them is unauthorized by the Code. Thus where an Appellate Court heard and decided an appeal without being aware of the death of the appellant, the decree was held to be a nullity.—Janardhan v. Ram Chandra, 26 B. 317; Narain v. Kalu, 2 Lah. L. J. 144.

As to amendment of clerical or arithmetical mistakes in judgments, decrees or orders, see s. 152 and the notes thereunder.

Language of Judgment.—A Judge whose vernacular language is English ought to write his decision in his own language, though to do otherwise does not affect its validity.—Huro Soondury v. Sreedhur, 17 W. R. 352.

Section 572 and 573 of the old Code, which contained provisions relating to the language and translation of the judgment, have been omitted. The reasons for the omission is, that sub-rule (3) of s. 137 of the present Code provides that " where this Code requires or allows anything other than the recording of evidence, to be done in writing in any such Court, such writing may be in English." In r. 31, the words " shall be in writing " have been added, hence s. 572 of the old Code has been omitted as unnecessary Section 573 of the old Code has also been omitted because s. 137 (3) makes provision for supplying translation.

Effect of Delivery of Judgment after Death of Respondent.—Where argument in an appeal was heard before but judgment was delivered after the death of the respondent Held, that the judgment should be treated as operating as if it had been delivered on the day when the argument was heard —Narna v. Anant, I. L. R. 19 B. 307 and Chitanchaan v. Balbhadra Das, 21 A. 314 See, however, Janardhan v. Ram Chandra, 26 B. 317: 4 Bom. L R. 23, where it was held that the decree is a nullity when the appeal is heard and decided by the Appellate Court without being aware of the death of the appellant

See Or XXII, r. 6 and the cases noted thereunder.

Contents, date and signature of Judgment.

31. The judgment of the Appellate Court shall be in writing and shall state—

(a) the points for determination;

(b) the decision thereon;

(c) the reasons for the decision; and

(d) where the decree appealed from is reversed or varied, the relief to which the appellant is entitled;

and shall at the time that it is pronounced be signed and dated by the Judge or by the Judges concurring therein. [S. 574.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 574, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The words "shall in writing" have been added before the words "shall state." The other changes are merely verbal. The object of the above addition will clearly appear on referring to sub-rule (3) of s. 137 of the present Code, which supplies the omission of s. 572 and 573 of the old Code. Section 137 (3) lays down, that where this Code requires or allows anything, other than the recording of evidence, to be done in writing in any such Court, such writing may be in English. Thus the words "shall be in writing," read with s. 137 (3), make it incumbent upon Courts to write judgments in English.

Contents of the Judgment of the Appellate Court.—Where it is found that the judgment of the lower Appellate Court does not fulfil the requirements of this rule, the proper order is to set aside the decree and to remand the case to the lower Appellate Court to dispose of the appeal according to law. Duty of Appellate Court in case of change of officer, pointed out.—Saravana Pilli v. Sisha Reddi, 31 M. 469, F. B.: 18 M. L. J. 34: 3 M L. T. 71: 20 M. 496 (25 C. 97; 17 B. 551 referred to).

Where the judgment of the lower Appellate Court dismissing an appeal was merely as follows "The appeal is dismissed with costs," the High Court set aside the decree on the ground that the Court had not complied with the provisions of this rule.—Srikant Deya v. Hari Das, 11 C. L. R 131. The same course was adopted where the judgment was "appeal rejected" under s. 551 (Or. XLI, r. 11) of the Civil Procedure Code.—Rami Deka v. Brojo Nath, 25 C. 97.

The judgment of a lower Appellate Court, after setting forth the claim, the defence, the nature of the decree of the first Court, and the effect of the pleas in appeal, concluded, with general observations, as follows: "The point to be determined on appeal is whether or not the decision is consistent with the merits of the case. The Court, having considered the evidence on the record and the judgment of the Munsif, which is explicit enough, concurs with the lower Court. The finding arrived at by the Munsif, that the plaintiff's claim is established, is correct and consistent with the evidence The pleas urged in appeal are therefore undeserving of consideration." Held, that this was in law no judgment at all inasmuch as it did not satisfy the requirements of s. 574, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule)—Sohawan v. Babu Nand, 9 A. 26. But see Sundar Bibi v. Bisheshurnath, 9 A. 93, F. B. (9 A. 29 and 30-note, referred to). See also, Bahau Singh v. Jaimangal, (1906) A. W. N. 86

An Appellate Court is bound to write judgment, when an appeal is dismissed after rejecting an application for adjournment on the ground of absence of counsel.—Patinhare v. Vellur Krishnan, 26 M. 267.

Or. XLI, r. 31 controls Or. XLI, r. 11, and an appellate Court dismissing a second appeal under the latter provision must state the points for decision and the decision thereon with reasons.—Bipin Behari v. Jogendra Nath, 65 I. C. 479.

The judgment of the Appellate Court dismissing an appeal was as follows: "The point in dispute is a question of fact and I see no reason to differ from the finding of the lower Court." Held, that the judgment did not comply with the provisions of this rule as the reasons for the decision were not stated; that the defect was not cured by s. 578, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 99); and that the defect in the appellate judgment is a ground of special appeal.—Shaharulla Mondul v Bangoo Mandul, 13 C W. N. 143 (12 C. 199 distinguished) But see, Rakhal Chandra v. Satindra Deb, 5 C. L. J. 348 (25 C. 97 distinguished), and Pachi Dasi v. Bala Das, 13 C. W. N. 1931

The omission in a judgment to make any special reference to the oral evidence by the parties to a case is not in itself sufficient to show that as a matter of fact the Court did not consider the evidence of the witnesses who were examined in the case.—Motiwor Rasuk v. Dhanu Molla, 59 I. C. 963.

A judgment of a lower Court setting out no part of the evidence which leads the judge to the conclusion at which he has arrived, is insufficient to enable a Court of second appeal to say whether the arguments of the trial Court on the evidence have been appreciated correctly and is a judgment in accordance with law.—Upendra Nath v. Adhanchandra, 63 I. C. 436.

Points for Determination.—The object of the Legislature in making it incumbent on an Appellate Court to raise points for determination, is to clear up the pleadings and focus the attention of the Court and of the parties on the specific and rival contentions of the latter —Mahsu Bhujee v. Davala, 7 B L R 174 The judge of the lower Appellate Court not having recorded his judgment as required by s 359 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), the case was sent back to the lower Court, for the judge to state the point for the decision and to give his decision upon those points consecutively —Tatur Khwas v. Jagan Nath, 7 B. L. R. Ap 14 15 W. R. 131 A judge's decision, not being in conformity with the provisions of s 359, Act VIII of 1859, was held to be illegal and defective.—Rughobur v Chattrapat, 1 Agra 73; Imrit Singh v. Koylashoo, 11 W. R. 558

Section 359, C P Code, 1859 (this rule), made it incumbent upon an Appellate Court to set down distinctly the point or points on which it has to decide the appeal, and record its reasons for the decision it arrives at in each and all of these points.—Shurbessur v. Sadhoo Churn, 15 W. R. 130: and Raj Chunder v Rama Kant, 15 W R. 324.

The judgment of Appellate Court should clearly and fully dispose of all the points in issue between the parties by a distinct finding on each of them —Bhagbut Khan v Puddo Bewa, 3 W R 192; Dhun Rae v. Ramphul, 2 N W P 109, Sookh Raj v Tuffazool, 2 W. R. 142

We wish to impress upon the lower Courts of Appeal, the necessity of always raising points for determination, as required by the provisions of the C. P Code, in every appeal, before it is argued, because they narrow the points in controversy and leave little or no room for complaint in second appeals —Govind v Visuji Khandoji, 10 B. L. R 492

The judgment of an Appellate Court must contain the points for determination, the decision thereupon and the reasons therefor. It need not contain a review or setting forth of the whole of the evidence. The propriety of giving an intelligent and clear account of the evidence in the judgment is laid down.—Noor Mahomed v Zuhoor Ally, 11 W. R 34

The judgment of an Appellate Court should show on the face of it that the points in dispute were clearly before the mind of the Judge, and that he exercised his own discrimination in deciding them —Sitarama Sastrulu v Suryanarayana, 22 M 12

An Appellate Court cannot make a declaration of right in favour of one of the parties, where no issue has been fixed on the point, and the right has not been set up in the lower Court —Official Trustee of Bengal v Krishna Chandra, 12 C 239, L R. 12 I. A 166

The Decision thereon.—This rule does not make it imperative on an appellate Court to record its finding or decision on every point where it is really unnecessary to do so —Ismail Khan v Hari Charan, 9 C. W. N. 60. Contra Rampini, J

The dismissal of an appeal under s. 551, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r 11), by a Court whose decision may be the subject of an appeal does not relieve the Court from the necessity of writing a judgment which, according to the provisions of this rule should show the points raised, the decision upon these points and the reasons for deciding them —Rami Deka v Brojo Nath, 25 C 97 See also, Rayal Reddi v Linga Reddi, 3 M 1, and the cases under rule 11

The finding on an issue of a lower Appellate Court, which is based on a misconception of what the evidence is, cannot be accepted in second appeal as legal finding on it —Govind v Vithal, 20 B 753

A Court is not precluded from basing its decision upon a ground not specifically pleaded by either of the parties.—Thakuri v Kundan, 17 A. 280

Decision of Appellate Court on Other Grounds—Effect of Such Decision.—When the decision of a lower Court is taken on appeal to a superior tribunal and that tribunal for any reason, does not think fit to decide the matters it is left an open question (8 C 631 referred to). If the Appellate Court declines to decide an issue and disposes of the case on other grounds, the judgment of the first Court upon that issue is no more a bar to a further suit than it would be, if that judgment had been reversed by the Court of Appeal —Ghurphekan v Purmushar Dayal, 5 C L J 653 (6 B. 110, 7 C 381 referred to)

"To state reasons for the decision."—The judgment of an Appellate Court should state clearly the reasons of the conclusion therein contained.—Chunder Kant v Hurrish Chunder, 1 W. R. 214; Goburdhun v. Sadhoo, 1 W. R. 214, Kartic Napit v. Prasonnomoyee, 2 W. R. 77; Dooler Chund v Oomda Begum, 18 W. R 473; Khettur Mohun v. Bhyrub Chunder, 3 W R. 126; Trilochun v. Ishen Chunder, 3 W. R. 176. Hossein Buksh v. Ameena Khatoon, 16 W. R. 280; Korban Ali v. Ashan Ali, 4 W. R 4; Sathak Paul v. Gudadhur Roy, 4 W. R. 100;

Ganpatram v. Jaichand, 4 Bom. H. C. 109; Bhagvat Singji v. Pratab Singji, 4 Bom. H. C. 105; Robert Wilson v. Radha Dulari, 2 C. W. N. 63.

The reasons for the decision should be stated not only when the decree of the first Court is varied or set aside, but also when it is confirmed.—Rami Deka v. Brojo Nath, 25 C. 97, Babu Madhav v. Venkatesh, 16 B. 540. If this rule is not observed, the proper form of the order to be made by the High Court in second appeal is to set aside the decree of the lower Appellate Court and send back the case to that Court in order that the appeal may be disposed of according to law.—Saravanna Pillai v. Sesha Reddi, 31 M. 469.

Where the decision of a case involves issues of fact, and the first Court has gone fully into the evidence, and recorded its finding and decision, if the Appellate Court agrees with the conclusions of the Court below, the Appellate Court is not obliged by law to state in detail the reasons previously recited in which it concurs.—Lala Juggeshur Sahoy v. Gopal Lall, 15 W. R. 54. See also, Imrit Lall v. Nuckshed, 10 W. R. 100; Kulumutee v. Jawahur Lall, 11 W. R. 318. But see, Pertab Narain v. Maigh Lall, 13 C. W. N. 949, Mahomed Hussain Choudhury v. Rabia Khatun, 68 I. C. 467.

Where a lower Appellate Court took no notice in its decision of a large quantity of evidence of very considerable importance, which had been urged before it as of the highest possible character, and gave no reasons for agreeing with the Court of first instance that the evidence in question had very little connection with the case, its judgment was held to be not a legal decision.—Adheen Misser v. Jograj Misser, 11 W. R. 312.

A plaintiff is entitled to some opinion by the lower Appellate Court upon the oral testimony on his side. The mere affirmance of the decision of the first Court which considered the oral evidence in detail does not involve the adoption by the lower Appellate Court of the first Court's view of the oral testimony.—Rajoo v. Rajkumar, 7 W. R. 137.

Where the lower Appellate Court omits to give reasons for its decision, the High Court will retain the case in second appeal, and either require the Judge to state his reasons, or, in the event of his absence refer the case to his successor for fresh trial.—Assanullah v. Hafiz Mahomed, 10 C. 932.

The reasons for their decisions must in all cases be recorded by the Judges of the High Courts in India.—Kachekalyana v. Kachiviga Jaya, 2 B. L. R. P. C. 72. 11 W. R. P. C., 33.

Where the decree of the first Court is confirmed in appeal, the Judge of the Appellate Court should state his own reasons of the case, and should not confine himself to approving of the reasons of the Court of first instance.—Rohimoni v. Zumirudin, 10 C. L. R. 597, Kurani v. Subahat, 8 B. 28. The reason is that the judgment should show on the face of it that the points in dispute were clearly before the mind of the Judge and that he exercised his own discrimination in deciding them.—Gupta v. Behari, 21 A. L. J. 567. 74 I. C. 827: A. I. R. 1924 All. 100. But there is no objection whatever to the Judge's adopting the lower Court's findings and reasoning as his own, without once more writing down the same reasons at length, if it is clear that the appellate Judge, in dealing with the appeal, has really applied his mind to the case and has come to his judgment independently of the findings and reasonings of the lower Court.—Surja Kumar v. Kamakhya, 97 I. C. 760.

An Appellate Court is not bound to discuss seriatim the arguments adduced by a lower Court in support of its judgment, but need only give its own reasons for its own judgment.—Indrabati v. Mahadeo, 1, B. L. R. S. N. 2; Krishendro Roy v. Digumburee, 16 W. R. 15; Shumshurooddy v. Jan Mahomed, 21 W. R. 260. See also, Golam Hossein v. Ram Doyal, 12 W. R. 152.

An Appellate Court is bound to state its reasons for reversing the decision of a lower Court.—Mahadeo Ojha v. Parmeswar, 2 B. L. R. Ap. 20; Munsoob Bibee v. Ali Meah, 17 W. R. 358; Mahomed Selleh v. Nusseerooddeen, 21 W. R. 284. Rajmohan v. Harendra, 56 I. C. 816.

Held, by Markby, J., that, in saying that the "reasons" for the decision of an Appellate Court must be stated, section 359, Act VIII of 1859 (this rule) meant not the reasons for coming to any conclusion of act but the reasons showing upon what points of fact or law the decision runs. The bare fact that a Judge had not given the reasons for his judgment is not itself a ground of special appeal.—Ramessur v. Bhanoo, 12 W. R. 272.

The finding of an Appellate Court not accompanied by reasons is not conclusive.—Gopalrao Ganesh v. Kishor Kalidas, 9 B. 527; Krishnarao v. Vasudev, 8 B. 371. See also, Ningappa v. Shivappa, 19 B. 323.

Order discharged under the circumstances, the District Judge having given no reasons for making the order.—Raghunath Gopal v. Nilu Nathaji, 9 B. 452.

An Appellate Court is bound to give reasons for deciding a specific point (in this case limitation) raised before it on appeal, even if it confirms generally the order of the Court below.—Radha Gobindo v. Ram Kishore, 8 W. R. 340. See also, Haimavati v. Govinda Chandra, 2 C. W. N. 695.

This rule is imperative, and under it the Appellate Court is bound to state the reasons for its decision.—Bhagvan v. Keshur Banerji, 17 B. 428 (6 A. 383, 391, referred to); Guptanand v. Behari Lal, 21 A. L. J. 567.—The judgment of the Appellate Court must state the reasons for the finding.—Santiswar v. Lakhikanta, 13 C. W. N. 177. A general and wholesale adoption of the judgment of the Court of the first instance cannot be regarded as a sufficient compliance with the law.—Mt. Aisha Bibi v. Bhan Singh, 70 I. C. 830: 1923 Lah. 30.

In certifying to the High Court the findings on issues sent back on remand, and found by the Court of first instance, it is the duty of the lower Appellate Court to form its own opinion on the evidence and record reasons for findings.—Ram Chandra Govind v. Sono Sadashiv, 19 B. 551.

A Judge having remanded a case for further evidence to be taken and fresh finding to be recorded on a question of fact, is bound to examine the correctness of the finding, and to state in his judgment the reasons for which he either accepts or rejects it.—Kunhi Marakkar v. Kutti Umma 20 M. 496.

Failure to Comply with the Requirements of this Rule.—When the first Appellate Court has failed to comply with the requirements of this rule, the proper form of order to be made by the second Appellate Court is to set aside the decree and remand the case to the first Appellate Court for disposal according to law. If the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded is the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance, he need not re-hear the appeal unless he is of opinion that he cannot dispose of the remanded case without a re-hearing But where the Judge of the Court to which the case is remanded is not the Judge who heard the appeal in the first instance, a re-hearing is always necessary in order that there may be a compliance with the order of the second Appellate Court that the case be disposed of according to law.—Saravana Pillai v. Sesha Reddi, 31 M 469

The omission by an appellate Court to comply strictly with the provisions of Or. XLI, r 31 amounts to no more than an irregularity curable by s. 99 of the Code —Musst. Lachambati v. Musst. Deubai 59 I. C. 673; Anandpal v. Mahabal, 30 W. N. 352: 95 I. C. 925

Judgment Affirming the Decision of the Trial Court.—A judgment of an Appellate Court, affirming the decision of the trial Court, need not deal with the matter in dispute at the same length as would be necessary in a judgment of reversal —Mahendra v Ashutosh, 91 I. C. 478. A. I R. 1926 Cal. 545; Kulumutee v. Jouahur, 11 W R 318

Where decree is reversed or varied—Relief must be stated.—It is the duty of the Appellate Court when it reverses the decision of the first Court, and more especially when the judgment of the first Court is full and cogent, to point out the grounds on which it comes to a different conclusion Where a District Judge had omitted to do so and, having left the country, could not be required to supply the omission, the High Court, being unable to make the ordinary presumption that he had fully considered the evidence, set aside his judgment, and remanded the case to be heard in appeal de novo —Kristo Chunder v. Ram Bromho, 20 W. R 403.

When an Appellate Court upholds the decree of the first Court for reasons different from those given by the lower Court, it must specify in the decree the exact modifications necessary according to its conclusions. —Lachho v. Har Sahai, 12 A. 46

A decree of an Appellate Court, not specifying the relief granted, but merely repeating the judgment that the " appeal be decreed," is not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the law —Hursarun v. Pursun Singh, 2 N W P 415, Bell v Guru Das Roy, 1 B. L R. A C. 50.

Appeal to Privy Council.—Non-compliance with the requirements of this rule is not a ground for appeal to the Privy Council —Sundar Bibi v Bishesar Nath, 9 A. 93.

As to the applicability of the provisions of this rule when an appeal is summarily dismissed under r. 11, see the cases noted under r. 11 of this Order.

What judgment may direct.

32. The judgment may be for confirming, varying or reversing the decree from which the appeal is preferred, or, if the parties to the appeal agree as to the form which the decree in appeal shall take, or as to the order to be made in appeal, the Appellate Court may pass a decree or make an order accordingly. [S. 577.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 577, C. P. Code, with the substitution of the word "preferred" for the word "made," which occurred in the old section. The use of the word "may" in this rule clearly indicates the discretionary power of the Appellate Court.

"If the parties agree as to form of decree in appeal, appellate Court may pass a decree accordingly."—Where an application purporting to contain terms of a compromise was presented to the High Court by one of the parties to an appeal before it, but on the so-called solehnama being sent down to the lower Court for verification, it was found that the attendance of the parties for that purpose could not be procured. Held, that the High Court was not justified in passing a decree under s. 577, C. P. Code, 1882, in accordance with the terms of the unverified solehnama.—Bandhu Bhagal v. Muhammed Tequi, 14 A. 350.

Power of Court of Appeal.

33. The Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made and to pass or make such further or other decree or order as the case may require, and this power may be exercised by the Court notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree any may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties may not have filed any appeal or objection. [New.]

Provided that the Appellate Court shall not make any order under s. 35 A, in pursuance of any objection on which the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted or refused to make such order.

Illustration.

A claims a sum of money as due to him from X or Y, and in a suit against both obtains a decree against X. X appeals. A and Y are respondents. The Appellate Court decides in favour of X. It has power to pass a decree against Y.

COMMENTARY.

Object and scope of the Rule.—This rule is new. It has been taken for the most part from Or. 58, (4) of the Rules of the Supreme Court of Judicature in England It should be read with r 4 of this order. By the addition of this rule, the power of the Appellate Court has been enlarged

The object of introducing this rule in the present Code will appear from the following Report of the Special Committee —

"The Committee consider it most important that an Appellate Court should have the fullest power to do complete justice between the parties The illustration indicates a type of case for which provision is intended to be made."

This rule has virtually superseded 27 A 23, 28 M 229, and other cases in which similar view was taken and has adopted the principle laid down in 31 C 643, F B 8 C W N 496, F B. All those cases are noted under r 4 of this order under the hearing "DECREE AGAINST SOME OF THE DEFENDANTS—ALTERATION OF DECREE BY APPELLATE COURT"

The Proviso to this rule has been added by the C P Code Amendment Act (IX of 1922).

Cases to which the Rule Applies.—Although the terms of Or XLI, r. 33 are very wide and they do confer on an Appellate Court wide powers for the purpose of making such decree or order as the exigencies of the case or the ends of justice may require, still, ordinarily, the powers contained in r. 33 should be limited to those cases where, as a result of the Appellate Court's interference with a decree in favour of the appellant, a further interference is required in order to adjust the rights of the parties in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience —Nandalal v Mukundalal, A I R 1926 Cal. 57 89 I C 24 (44 C 759 P C ; 34 M. L J 361 P C expld, 22 C L J 390, 28 C L J 123 folld).

Under Or XLI r 33, the appellate Court may pass any order it thinks fit in appeal, though the appeal does not extend to the whole of the decree appealed against and though the power is exercised in favour of any respondent or any party who has not objected before it to the decree The section is to be given a liberal interpretation But the power must be exercised in the interest of and for the furtherance of justice, and not as a mode of evading other statutory rules and orders —Bhutnath v. Sashimukhi, 30 C W N 885 A I R 1926 Cal 1042; Narain Singh v Kairan, 3 O W N. 299· A I R 1926 Oudh 304.

This rule is applicable to all cases where an appeal is heard after this Code came into force —Chandramurthy v Narayanaswamy, 33 M 241 It is open to the Appellate Court to vary the decree appealed against either in points (if any) in which it is erroneous or in respect of supplemental matters which are admitted —Sakharam Mahadev v Hari Krishna, 6 B 113, 115 The Courts, in the exercise of the powers conferred by this rule should not lose sight of the other provisions of the Code, nor of the Court Fees Act, nor of the Limitation Act It should in particular bear in mind the case stated in the illustration —Rangam Lal v Jhandu, 34 A. 32, distd in Govind v Jai Gopal, 72 I C 96

Where an appellate Court is seized of the whole case on appeal, it can make such orders as are necessary to terminate the controversies and to do justice between the parties by making the necessary alterations in the decree of the lower Court.—Govind Dass v. Ramcharan, 4 U. P. L R. 25: 68 I. C. 307.

A decree was passed for varying amounts against three defendants, of whom two only appealed; the third being made it a party to the appeal. Held, that it was competent to the appellate Court to modify the decree in favour of the defendant who had not appealed by decreeing the whole sum due to the plaintiffs against the defendants who had.—Jawahar Bano v. Shiyat Husain, 43 A. 85 18 A. L. J 925; Mohsham Ali v. Muloo, 24 A. L. J. 586: 94 I. C. 347.

Where in a suit on a mortgage, a preliminary decree is passed specifying the separate liability of each property for a separate sum and only some of the defendants appeal in respect of a part of the decree, the Appellate Court could not by virtue of Or. XLI, r. 33, C. P. Code have dismissed the suit against those defendants who were not parties to the appeal and had in fact submitted to the decree.—Gayan Singh v. Ala Husain, 43 A. 320: 19 A. L. J. 83.

It is not competent to an appellate Court to interfere with the decree obtained by the appellant in so far as it has not been challenged by the respondent by way of appeal or cross-objections.—Ram Lal Johari Lal v. Dip Chand, 3 Lah. L. J. 231: 60 I. C. 705.

An appellate Court can grant relief to an appellant as against a defendant against whom there is no appeal. The power conferred by Or. XLI, r. 33 should be exercised in cases where, as the result of an Appellate Court's interference in favour of the appellant further interference is required to adjust the rights of the parties in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience.—Bikram Kumar v. Mohit Krishna, 61 I. C. 178.

"Such respondents or parties."—The use of the expression "respondents or parties" shows that the Appellate Court may pass an order in favour of the respondents who have not appealed, and it may similarly decide any question in favour of a party, by which is meant a party to the suit and who is not a respondent in the appeal. The illustration to the rule does not limit the rule and is not intended to illustrate its full scope.—Bhutnath v. Sashimukhi, 30 C. W. N. 885: 96 I. C. 474: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1042.

Appellate Court is Competent to Take Cognizance of Events Happened Since the Decreeor Order Challenged was passed.—It is not only competent to a Court of Appeal but it may be its duty to take notice of events which have happened subsequently to the passing of the decree or order appealed against, and such events when not appearing in the record may be proved by extrinsic evidence.—Ram Ratna v. Mohant Sahu, 11 C. W. N. 732: 6 C. L. J. 71 (6 B. 113, 16 M. 350, 1 Bom. L. R. 218, 25 B. 606, 11 A. 148 referred to); Ahmadji v. Mahamadji, 1 Bom. L. R. 289 See also, Hazari Mull v. Janaki, 6 C. L. J. 92; Ramayad Sahu v. Bindeswari, 6 C. L. J. 102, and Udi Chobey v. Radhika Prasad, 10 C. L J. 662.

Proviso.—The proviso was added by Act IX of 1922. It provided that where, in pursuance of any objection, the lower Court has omitted or refused to make any order as to compensatory costs under s. 35-A, the Appellate Court shall not make any order as to such omission or refusal.

Dissent to be recorded.

34. Where the appeal is heard by more Judges than one, any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court shall state in writing the decision or order which he thinks should be passed on the appeal, and he may state his reasons for the same. [S. 576.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 576, C. P Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "where" for "when" in the beginning

See notes under s. 98.

DECREE IN APPEAL.

Date and contents of decree.

35. (1) The decree of the appellate Court shall bear date the day on which the judgment was pronounced.

(2) The decree shall contain the number of the appeal, the names and descriptions of the appellant and respondent, and a clear specification of the relief granted or other adjudication made.

(3) The decree shall also state the amount of costs incurred in the appeal, and by whom, or out of what property, and in what proportions such costs and the costs in the suit are to be paid.

(4) The decree shall be signed and dated by the Judge or Judges who passed it:

Judge dissenting from judgment need not sign decree.

Provided that where there are more Judges than one and there is a difference of opinion among them, it shall not be necessary for any Judge dissenting from the judgment of the Court to sign the decree. [S. 579.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 579, C P Code, 1882 with some additions and alterations

Sub-rule (1) exactly corresponds to para 1 of the old section

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para 2 of the old section, with some additions, alterations and omissions. The words "and the memorandum of appeal" which stood after the words "the number of the appeal" in the old section, have been omitted. The result of the omission seems to be that the appellate decree need not contain the memorandum of appeal. By the above omission the ministerial officers of the Civil Courts have been relieved of a great deal of clerical work. But Form No. 9 of Sch. I, App G which is the form of the decree in appeal, has not been amended in accordance with this omission. The forms are not intended to override the express provision of the law. See notes under Or. XLVIII, r. 3. The words "and a clear specification of the relief granted or other adjudication made" have been substituted for the words "and shall specify clearly the relief granted or other determination of the appeal," which occurred in the old section. This alteration is simply change of words and phrases.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 3 of the old section with some additions and alterations. The words "by whom" have been substituted for the words "by what parties" which occurred in the old section; and the words "out of what property" have been added after the words "by whom."

Sub-rule (4) exactly corresponds to para 4 of the old section.

The proviso also corresponds to the proviso of the old section with the substitution of the word "and" for the word "if."

Effect of Appellate Decree—Relief Granted.—Where the Appellate Court has modified the decree of the Court below, the decree of the Appellate Court supersedes entirely that of the lower Court, and is the only decree capable of execution.—Shohrat Singh v. Bridgmann, 4 A. 376, F. B.; Muhammad Sulaiman v. Muhammad Yar Khan, 11 A. 267; Muhammad Sulaiman v. Fatima, 11 A. 314; Naurang Rai v. Latif Chaudhri, 13 A. 394, Shiv Lal v. Jumak Lal, 18 B. 542; Sakhal Chand v. Velchand, 18 B. 203; Nan Chand v. Vithu, 19 B. 258; Daulat v. Bhukan Das, 11 B. 172; Noor Ali v. Koni Meah, 13 C. 13; Kislo Kinkar v. Burroda Kant, 10 B. L. R. 101, P. C.; Manavikraman v. Unniappan, 15 M. 170; Jawahir Mal v. Kustur Chand, 13 A. 343; Pichuvayyangar v. Seshayyangar, 18 M. 214, F. B.; Mul Chand v. Ram Ratan, 20 A. 498. See also, the case noted under Or. XXI, r. 11, under the heading "FINAL DECREE SUSCEPTIBLE OF EXECUTION."

Sections 579 and 587, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 85, s. 108), do not require the claim to be stated in the decree so as to make such statement a part of the decree itself.—Saude Shrinivasapa v. Krishnapa, 11 B. 177.

A decree takes priority over other decrees in respect of the date on which it was passed, and not in respect of the priority of the debt which it enforces.—Gheran v. Kunj Behari, 9 A. 413.

The date which the decree should bear is the date on which the judgment is pronounced.—Parbati v. Bhola, 12 A. 79.

Where the decree of the Appellate Court did not specify the sums that would be due to the appellant under that decree, except by reference to the judgment on which it was based, and to the decree of the first Court. Held that, though the decree was informal, yet as the amount due to the decree-holder was ascertainable from the record, and the decree was capable of execution, execution should, as a matter of equity, be granted to the decree-holder.—Jawahir Mal v Kistur Chand, 13 A. 343.

Pending an appeal in a partition suit, one of the defendants died, and the plaintiff became entitled to a larger share on account of his death. Held that the Appellate Court had power to vary the decree by giving the plaintiff his larger share —Sakharam Mahadev v Hari Krishna, 6 B. 113

After the disposal of an appeal, and before preparation of decree, a Court has power to direct the plaintiff to correct the valuation and pay additional Court-fees on his memorandum of appeal —Mahmood, J , contra in Mahadei v Ram Kishen, 7 A 528

Costs.—When an Appellate Court decrees an appeal and gives costs of its own Court, the costs of the first Court should be included in the decree.—Mahomed Busseerullah v. Ram Kant, 16 W R. 266

Where a decree is confirmed in appeal upon grounds wholly different from those relied on in the lower Court, the proper course is to dismiss the appeal without costs.—Fischer v Kamala Naicker, 8 M. I A 170

Section 360, Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), only requires the Judge of an Appellate Court to state in his decision by what parties (and in what proportions if necessary) the costs of the original suit, which he must take for granted, are to be paid, but not to go into particulars, or append to his judgment a schedule setting forth the different items which make up the costs of the first Court —Mothoora Mohun v Huree Kishore, 18 W R 286 (reversing on review, 17 W R. 415)

Where a decree of the High Court awards costs, the order is not bad in law simply because it does not specify the exact amount to be paid as costs of the lower Court Such specification is not rendered incumbent by Act VIII of 1859, s 360 (this rule), which only requires a Court of Appeal to declare the proportions in which the costs are to be paid where more parties than one are made liable —Raj Krishna v Pranoda Debee, 21 W R. 74

An Appellate Court finally determining a suit is bound to decide by which of the parties before it the costs shall be borne, it is not at liberty to declare that the costs shall be borne by the unsuccessful party in a suit to be hereafter brought —Kashee Chunder v Bungshee Buddun, 23 W R 89

Chartered High Courts.—This rule does not apply to Chartered High Courts in the exercise of their appellate jurisdiction (Or XLIX, r 3).

Form.—For Form of decree in appeal, See App G Form No 9.

Copies of judgment and decree to be furnished to parties.

36. Certified copies of the judgment and decree in appeal shall be furnished to the parties on application to the Appellate Court and at their expense [S. 580.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 580 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the word "Appellate" before the word "Court."

Certified copy of decree to be sent to Court whose decree appealed from.

37. A copy of the judgment and of the decree certified by the Appellate Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf, shall be sent to the Court which passed the decree appealed from and shall be filed with the original proceedings in the suit, and an entry of the judgment of the Appellate Court shall be made in the register of civil suits. [S. 581.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 581, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "from" for the word "against."

This section simply specifies how appellate decrees are to be dealt with, and inter alia, it goes on to say that such decree shall be filed with the original proceedings in the suit, and an entry of the judgment of the Appellate Court shall be made in the register of civil suits.—Kasa Mal v Gopi, 10 A. 389, 392.

The reason for sending a certified copy of the appellate decree to the lower Court is, that the decree of the Appell [illegible] the decree of the lower Court, and is the onl [illegible] Muhammad Sulaiman v. Muhammad Yar [illegible] also, Naurang Rai v. Latif Chaudri, 13 A. [illegible]

ORDER XLII.

APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES.

Procedure. 1. The rules of Or. XLI shall apply so far as may be, to appeals from appellate decrees.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to first part of s 587, C. P. Code, 1882, and it should be read with s. 108 of the Code under which all the rulings have been noted

Second Appeals.—See notes under ss 100, 102, 103, 107 and 108, and the notes under the preceding Or XLI

Presentation of Second Appeal Without Copy of First Court's Judgment, If Valid.—A memorandum of second appeal must be accompanied not only by the copies specified in Or XLI, r. 1, C. P Code, but also by a copy of the judgment of the Court of first instance, and where the latter is filed after the expiry of the period of limitation, the appeal must be dismissed as time barred unless just cause is shown for extending the period —Dyala v. Hiru, 67 I. C. 670, Bhairon v. Ram Autar, 19 A. L J 598.

Inherent Power of High Court to Remand in Second Appeal.—When the Court of first instance declined to record oral evidence tendered by the plaintiff on the ground that the documentary evidence produced by him was quite sufficient to prove his case and the decree passed in his favour was reversed in appeal, but the lower Appellate Court declined to permit the plaintiff to produce oral evidence, it was held by the High Court that it had inherent power, ex debito justitiæ, to set aside the proceedings of both the Courts below and to direct the first Court to retry the case —Durga v Anoraji, 17 A 29, Kebal v Rajani, 39 C L. ORDER XLIII.

APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

Appeals from orders.

1. An appeal shall lie from the following orders under the provisions of s. 104, namely :—

(a) an order under r. 10 of Or. VII returning a plaint to be presented to the proper Court;

(b) an order under r. 10 of Or. VIII pronouncing judgment against a party ;

(c) an order under r. 9 of Or. IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit ;

(d) an order under r. 13 of Or. IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte ;

(e) an order under r. 4 of Or. X pronouncing judgment against a party ;

(f) an order under r. 21 of Or. XI ;

(g) an order under r. 10 of Or. XVI for the attachment of property ;

(h) an order under r. 20 of Or. XVI pronouncing judgment against a party;

(i) an order under r. 34 of Or. XXI on an objection to the draft of a document or of an endorsement ;

(j) an order under r. 72 or r. 92 of Or. XXI setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale ;

(k) an order under r. 9 of Or. XXII refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit ;

(l) an order under r. 10 of Or. XXII giving or refusing to give leave ;

(m) an order under r. 3 of Or. XXIII recording or refusing to record an agreement, compromise or satisfaction ;

(n) an order under r. 2 of Or. XXV rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit ;

(o) an order under rule 3 or r. 8 of Or. XXXIV refusing to extend the time for the payment of mortgage money ;

(p) orders in interpleader-suits under r. 3, r. 4 or r. 6 of Or. XXXV ;

(q) an order under r. 2, r. 3 or r. 6 of Or. XXXVIII ;

(r) an order under r. 1, r. 2, r 4 or r. 10 of Or. XXXIX ;

(s) an order under r. 1 or r. 4 of Or. XL ;

(t) an order of refusal under r. 19 of Or. XLI to re-admit, or under r. 21 of Or. XLI to re-hear, an appeal ;

(u) an order under r. 23 of Or. XLI remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court ;

(v) an order made by any Court other than a High Court refusing the grant of a certificate under r. 6 of Or. XLV.

(w) an order under r. 4 of Or. XLVII granting an application for review. [S. 588.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 588, C P 1882, with additions, alterations and omissions.

" We suggest that there should be appeals from orders pronouncing judgment against a party under Or VIII, r. 10, Or X, r. 4, and Or. XVI, r. 20. These orders are under the present law appealable as decrees, but, having regard to the definition of a decree under the Code they would no longer be appealable in that way, and we think it necessary to make them appealable as orders We have also given an appeal against an order made under r. 21 of Or. XI."—See the Report of the Select Committee

Section 104.—This order read with s 104 (2), of which it is a part, makes it clear that no appeal shall lie from any order passed in appeal under this order; that is, no second appeal will lie from orders passed in appeals from this order See Naubat Singh v Baldeo Singh, 33 A 479,

ORDER XLIII.

APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

Appeals from orders.

1. An appeal shall lie from the following orders under the provisions of s. 104, namely :—

(a) an order under r. 10 of Or. VII returning a plaint to be presented to the proper Court;

(b) an order under r. 10 of Or. VIII pronouncing judgment against a party ;

(c) an order under r. 9 of Or. IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit ;

(d) an order under r. 13 of Or. IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte ;

(e) an order under r. 4 of Or. X pronouncing judgment against a party ;

(f) an order under r. 21 of Or. XI ;

(g) an order under r. 10 of Or. XVI for the attachment of property ;

(h) an order under r. 20 of Or. XVI pronouncing judgment against a party;

(i) an order under r. 34 of Or. XXI on an objection to the draft of a document or of an endorsement ;

(j) an order under r. 72 or r. 92 of Or. XXI setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale ;

(k) an order under r. 9 of Or. XXII refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit ;

(l) an order under r. 10 of Or. XXII giving or refusing to give leave ;

(m) an order under r. 3 of Or. XXIII recording or refusing to record an agreement, compromise or satisfaction ;

s. 57 for presentation to the proper Court. This was not done. Held, that a second appeal would lie.—Joynath v. Lall Bahadoor, 8 C. 126: 10 C. L. R. 146.

After the suit had been admitted, and the parties called on to produce evidence, the Munsif ordered the plaint to be returned for presentation in the proper Court, on the ground that the suit should have been instituted in the Sub-Judge's Court Held, that the Munsif's order was appealable to the lower Appellate Court, and under Act X of 1877, the lower Appellate Court's order to the High Court—Kalian Das v. Nawal Singh, 1 A. 620.

Orders amending plaints then and there, are not made appealable under this section of the Code —Rajendra Kishore v Radha Prasad, 3 A. 854.

No appeal lies against the order of an Appellate Court returning a memorandum of appeal for presentation to the proper Court.—Raghunath Charan v. Shamo Koeri, 31 C. 344 (14 M 462 dissented from); Nazar Husain v. Kesri Mal, 12 A. 581 Nuruddin v. Pran Kishan, 40 A. 659; Bankey Lal v. Mighraj, 19 A L. J 868 63 I. C 951.

Clause (b)—an order under r. 10 of Or. VIII pronouncing judgment against a party;

This clause corresponds to part of cl. (10) of the old section.

Rule 10 of Or. VIII lays down the procedure when a party from whom a written statement is required by the Court fails to present the same within the time fixed by the Court. The Court may in such a case either pronounce judgment against the defaulting party or make such other order as the Court thinks proper. See notes under r. 10, Or VIII.

Clause (c)—an order under r. 9 of Or. XI rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit.

COMMENTARY.

This clause corresponds to cl. (8) of the old section with some verbal changes only. Rule 9 of Or. IX lays down the procedure for setting aside a decree passed against the plaintiff by default

When a decree is made against a plaintiff by default under r. 8 of Or. IX, the following courses are open to him viz , (1) he may apply to set aside the order of dismissal under r. 9 of Or IX, (2) he may apply for review; (3) he may appeal from the decree dismissing the suit under s 96 (see, 8 C W. N 313, noted below, and the cases therein referred to), or (4) he may appeal under this clause See notes under r 9, Or IX The words "in a case open to appeal" exclude Small Cause Court and such other cases not open to appeal.

When the plaintiff's application under Or. IX, r 9, C. P Code, is rejected on the ground that the previous order of dismissal was under Or. XVII, r. 3 and not under Or XVII, r. 2, the plaintiff is entitled to appeal against it under Or. XLIII, r. 1 —Syed Bakar Husain v. Mirza Hussain Mirza, 4 Pat L. T 46 73 I C 373.

An order under s. 102, C. P Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r. 8), dismissing a suit is as much a decree as an order under any other section deciding a suit. The order comes within the definition of a decree and is appealable as such. The mere fact that a further remedy is given under s. 588, C P. Code, 1882 (this rule), does not bar an appeal.—Gosto Behary v. Hari Mohan, 8 C W. N. 813 (9 A 427, and 30 C 660, F B.; 7 C. W. N 486 referred to)

No appeal lies from an order rejecting an application to restore to the file an application to set aside a sale under s. 311, C. P. Code 1882 (Or XXI, r 90), which has been dismissed for default under s 102, C P. Code, 1882 (Or IX, r 8) —Sujaudhin v Reazuddin, 27 C. 414; Raja v. Srinivasa, 11 M 319; Ningappa v Gangaua, 10 B. 433; and Jaung Bahadur v Mahadeo Prosad, 31 C 207, 8 C. W. N. 160 (19 W. R. 112 followed) Followed in principle in Ghaseti Bibi v. Abdul Samad, 29 A 626 (1907) A W N. 186 See also, Hara Kumar v. Murari Mohon, 36 C L J. 184 (19 C W. N. 25 refd to) When a suit is dismissed at an adjourned hearing for plaintiff's non-appearance the dismissal is one under Or XVII, r 2 and is appealable under this clause —Shrimant Sagajirao v Smith, 20 B 736

Where the Court dismissed an application for execution for want of prosecution and subsequently refused to restore the application there is no appeal from the order refusing to restore the application —Bharat Indu v. Ashgar Ali Khan, 45 A 148 21 A L J. 135

Clause (d)—an order under r. 13 of Or. IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte;

This clause corresponds to cl (9) of the old section, with some additions and verbal alterations. See notes under r. 13, Or. IX The words "in a case open to appeal" have been added, to exclude Small Cause Court and other cases in which no appeal lies.

An appeal lies under s 581, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXVII, r. 4), refusing to set aside an ex parte decree.—Luckmidas Vithaldas v. Ebrahim, 2 B 644

An appeal lies under Or XLIII, r 1 (d), against an order dismissing for default an application to set aside an ex-parte decree.—Musst, Bodhia v. Ram Chandra, 101 I. C. 753 · A I. R. 1927 Pat. 240.

This clause applies to ex parte orders passed in execution proceeding — Krishna Chandra v. Protap Chandra, 3 C. L J 276

There is no appeal from an order setting aside an ex parte decree — Shama Dass v Hurbuns Narain, 16 C 426; Tasadduq Husain v. Hayatunnissa, 25 A 280, Beera Ram v Mitha Ram, 103 P. R 1905 · 45 P. L R 1906

No appeal will lie from an order made under s. 157 (Or XVII, r. 2) read with s 108 (Or IX, r. 13) C. P. Code, 1882, setting aside a decree passed ex parte in default of appearance of the defendant on a day to which the hearing of the suit had been adjourned,—Bhaguan v. Hira, 19 A 355. (28 C. 738 referred to.)

An order refusing to set aside an ex parte order in execution proceedings was held appealable—Krishna Chandra v. Pratab Chandra, 3 C. L J. 276.

An appeal lies from an order rejecting the application for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte, when the order is made because the conditions which were lawfully imposed on the defendants were not complied with.—Naryan v Vaikunt, 28 Bom. L. R. 124: A. I R 1927 Bom. 1 F. B. (Fakirgowda v Vishundas, 28 Bom L R 578 overruled).

Clause (e)—an order under r. 4 of Or. X pronouncing judgment against a party;

This clause corresponds to cl. (10) of the old section. Rule 4 of Or. X (s. 120 of the old Code) lays down that where a pleader refuses or is unable to answer any material question relating to the suit, the Court may direct the party to appear in person and in default pronounce judgment against him.—See notes under r 4, Or X.

Clause (f)—an order under r. 21 of Or. XI;

This clause is new An order under r 21 of Or. XI has been held to be a decree and hence the order has been made appealable Vide 19 B 307, 7 A. 159, and 6 C. L J 374, noted under r. 21 of Or. XI

Rule 21, Or XI, which corresponds to s 136 of the old Code, lays down that where a party fails to comply with an order to answer interrogatories, for discovery or inspection, then his suit (if plaintiff) is liable to be dismissed and if defendant, his defence shall be struck out

Clause (g)—an order under r 10 of Or. XVI for the attachment of property;

This clause corresponds to part of cl (14) of the old section

Rule 10 of Or XVI, which corresponds to s 168, C P Code, 1882, lays down the procedure for attachment of property of an absconding witness—See notes under Or XVI, r 10

Clause (h)—an order under r. 20 of Or. XVI pronouncing judgment against a party;

This clause corresponds to part of cl (10) of the old section Rule 20 of Or XVI, (s 177 of the old Code) empowers the Court to pronounce judgment against a party who being present in Court refuses, without lawful excuse, to give evidence or produce any document then and there in his possession—See notes under r 20, Or XVI

Clause (i)—an order under r 34 of Or. XXI on an objection to the draft of a document or of an endorsement;

This clause corresponds to cl (15) of the old section Rule 34 of Or XXI, (s 216 of the old Code) relates to decree for execution of document

Clause (j)—an order under r. 72 or r. 92 of Or. XXI setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale;

This clause corresponds to cl. (16) of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications Rule 72 of Or XXI (s. 294 of the old Code) prohibits the decree-holder to bid for or buy property without permission; and rule 92 makes orders under rules 89, 90 and 91 (310-A, 311 and 313 of the old Code) appealable as orders

An order confirming a sale does not expressly come within this clause, it may, however be appealable under s 47.

An order under r 66 of Or XXI, setting the valuation to be published in the sale-proclamation is a decree and is appealable under s 47, C P. Code, 1908.—Lakhpati Koer v Hurho Singh, 13 C. W. N. (281-n)

In an application by the judgment-debtor under s 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (s 47), to set aside an execution-sale on the ground of fraud, a second appeal lies to the High Court The question of a right to a second appeal does not turn upon who may happen to be the appellant, but upon whether or not the case is one within s. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 47).—Hira Lal v Chundra Kanto, 26 C. 539.

Where, on the application of the judgment-debtor, the sale was set aside on the ground of fraud practised by the judgment-creditor on the judgment-debtor in connection with the sale: Held that the order, though not appealable under s 588 (16), was appealable as a decree under the provisions of ss 2 and 244, C P Code, 1882 (s. 47).—Ballodeb Lall v. Anadi, 10 C 410

No appeal lies from an order passed by a District Judge setting aside a sale in execution of an ex parte rent decree valued at less than Rs 100 —Monmohini v Lukhinarain, 28 C. 116 (27 C. 484 followed).

Where, after a judgment-debtor has applied, under s. 311, C. P. Code, 1882, to have a sale set aside, the auction-purchaser is made a party to the proceedings, and the sale is set aside, the auction-purchaser can appeal against the order setting aside the sale —Gopal Singh v. Dular Kuar, 2 A. 352; Kanthi Ram v Banke Lal, 2 A. 396.

An order passed under the first clause of s. 312, C. P. Code, 1882, after an objection made under the provisions of s. 311 has been disallowed, is appealable under clause (16) of s 588, C. P. Code, 1882.—Tota Ram v. Kheub Chand, 7 A 253 See also, Dakshina Mohan v. Basumati Debi, 4 C W. N 474 (479); and Bejoy Singh v Hukum Chand, 29 C. 518

No second appeal lies against an order under s. 312, C. P. Code, 1882, setting aside a sale —Abhoya Dassi v Padmo Lochun, 22 C 802 (18 C 422 followed)

There is no appeal to the High Court from an order refusing to set s made under ss. 294, 312 or 313 of the C. P v. Gorinda Chandra, 10 C. 368 See also, A 413.

No second appeal lies to the High Court from an order refusing to set aside a sale in execution of a decree —Daivanayagam v. Rangasami, 19 M. 29.

No appeal lies from an order passed under s. 294, C. P. Code, 1882, refusing permission to a decree-holder to bid at a sale in execution of his decree.—Jadoo Nath v Brojo Mohun, 13 C 174

An appeal does not lie from an order setting aside a sale, passed under s 312, para 2 of the C. P. Code, 1882.—Sakharam v Bhiku, 11 B, 603 But see, Shib Singh v Mukat Singh, 18 A 437, overruled by Shiam Behari v. Rup Kishore, 20 A. 379, F. B.

Where on the application of the judgment-debtors, a sale was set aside, but the order setting aside the sale saddled them with the costs of the other side, and they filed an appeal against that part of the order which directed them to pay the costs of the other side, held, that an appeal lay, Shib Kumar v. Sheo Ghulam, 44 A. 209; 20 A L J 11.

An application under s. 311, C P Code, 1882, on behalf of a judgment-debtor who was a minor, was rejected on the ground that the applicant did not legally represent the minor, and the Court thereupon confirmed the sale A second application to the same effect was then filed on behalf of the minor by his guardian, and was rejected on the ground that the Court had already confirmed the sale From this order the judgment-debtor appealed Held, that the appeal must be considered to be one from an order under the first para. of s 312, C. P. Code, 1882, confirming the sale after disallowing the appellant's objection, and that it would therefore lie.—Baldeo Singh v Kishen Lal, 9 A 411

No second appeal lies from an order made by a District Judge, on appeal setting aside a sale under s 294, C. P Code, 1882, notwithstanding that section 244 bars a separate suit in such a case, that section (s 244), whilst it precludes a right of suit, does not enlarge the right of appeal, which is limited strictly by s 588, C P Code, 1882 —Bhagbat Lall v Narku Roy, 21 C 789

Under the provisions of s 588, C P Code, 1882, no second appeal lies to the High Court from an order passed in appeal by a District Judge, on an application by judgment-debtor to have a sale in execution of a decree set aside on the ground of material irregularity —Gopi Koeri v Gopi Lal, 21 C. 799. See also, Bansidhar v Golab Kuar, 16 A 443

An order rejecting an application by a judgment-debtor, under section 293, C. P Code, 1882, to recover from the purchaser the loss occasioned by re-sale, is appealable under this section —Baijnath v Moheep Narain, 16 C. 535; Kali Kishore v Guru Prasad, 25 C 99 2 C W N. 408, Rajendra Nath v Ramcharan, 2 C W N. 411, Amir Baksha v Venkatachala, 18 M 439; Vallabhau v Paugunni, 12 M 454

Land having been sold in execution of a decree, one claiming that it had been held by the judgment-debtor benami for him, applied to set aside the sale under s 311, C. P Code, 1882, and his petition was rejected The Appellate Court remanded the case to be disposed of on the merits Held, that the order remanding the case was not appealable —Thimmanna v Mahabala Bhatta, 19 M 167.

Clause (k)—an order under r. 9 of Or. XXII refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit;

This clause corresponds to cl. (20) of the old section

Rule 9 of Or XXII corresponds to ss 371 and 372-A of the old Code, and it prescribes the procedure for setting aside an order of abatement or dismissal of a suit An order under Or. XXII, r. 3 is not open to appeal Trilochan Prasad v Bhagwati, 9 O & A. L. R. 70: 73 I C 230

Clause(l)—an order under r. 10 of Or. XXII giving or refusing to give leave;

This clause corresponds to cl (21) of the old section Rule 10 of Or XXII (s. 372 of the old Code) lays down the procedure in other cases of an assignment, creation or devolution of interest during the pendency of a suit.

An appeal will lie from an order dismissing an application under s. 372 C P. Code, 1882, to be brought upon record as representative of a deceased party, such order being a decree within the meaning of section 2, C P. Code —Indo Mati v Gaya Prasad, 19 A. 142 Followed in Moti Ram v Kundanlal, 22 A 380 See also, Sourindra Mohun v. Siromoni Debi, 28 C 171. 5 C W. N. 307, where it has been held that an appeal lies from an order directing substitution of parties under s 372, C P. Code, 1882 But see, Lalit Mohan v. Shebock Chand, 4 C. W. N. 403. (19 A 142, explained and distinguished); Tej Singh v. Chabeli Ram, 24 A. 342, and Jamna Bibi v Sheikh Jhan, 24 A. 532, F B. (4 C W. N. 403 followed, 22 A. 380 overruled, 19 A 142 explained and distinguished).

An order passed on an application under s. 372, C P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r 10), is appealable under s. 588, cl (21), C. P. Code, 1882, and is not open to revision by the High Court under s. 622 of the Code (s 115).—Raynor v Mussorie Bank, 7 A 681

Section 372, C P Code, 1882 (Or XXII, r. 10), has no application to proceedings in execution of decree, and a Court has no jurisdiction reading s 372, with s. 647, C. P Code, 1882, to bring in a party after decree, and make him a judgment-debtor for the purposes of execution. Where a Court had so acted, its order was held appealable under s. 588, C P. Code, 1882 —Goddall v. Mussorie Bank 10 A 97 (5 C. 726 referred to)

Clause (m)—an order under r. 3 of Or. XXIII recording or refusing to record an agreement, compromise or satisfaction ;

This clause is new Rule 3 of Or XXIII (s. 375, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to compromise of suits. In this connection, see, 23 M. 101 and other cases noted under Or. XXIII, r 3, under the heading "APPEAL"

Where the Court, holding that the compromise is not valid and binding on the parties, refuses to record the same, an appeal lies under Or. XLIII. r. 1 (m), assailing the grounds for refusal to record.—Nandlal v. Ramsarup. 103 I C. 80: A I. R. 1927 Lah. 546

The words used in Or. XLIII, r. 1 (m), C. P. Code, " an order under [illegible] XXIII [illegible] efusing to record an agreement, compromise [illegible] existence of an agreement, compromise or [illegible] that no compromise has been proved is not [illegible] The Firm of Jahangir Mal Bansi Mal, 73 I. C. 177.

Clause (n)—an order under r. 2 of Or. XXV rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit;

This clause is new Rule 2 of Or XXV (s 381 of the old Code) relates to the effect of failure to furnish security for costs This clause gives legislative sanction to the law as laid down in 8 A 108 F. B , noted under Or. XXV, r. 2.

Clause (o)—an order under r. 3 or r. 8 of Or. XXXIV refusing to extend the time for the payment of mortgage-money;

This clause is new Rule 3 or r 8 of Or. XXXIV (ss 87 and 93 of the T P. Act IV of 1882), empowers Courts to enlarge time for payment of money due upon decrees in mortgage suits This clause has been inserted adopting the law as laid down in Hulas Rai v. Prithi Rai, 9 A 500, and in Rahima v Nepal Rai, 14 A 520, where it has been held that such an order is appealable as a decree See notes under those two rules

" The extension of time for the payment of mortgage money is obviously of much greater moment to the mortgagor than to the mortgagee. Therefore the Committee have provided for an appeal from an order refusing but not from an order granting, an extension of time "—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Clause (p)—orders in interpleader-suits under r. 3, r. 4 or r. 6 of Or. XXXV;

This clause corresponds to cl (23) of the old section Rules 3, 4 and 6 correspond respectively to ss 473 and 475 of the old Code

The adjudication upon the claims of the defendants in an interpleader suit is a decree and is appealable under s 540, C P Code, 1882 (s 96). The direction as to interpleading is an order and is appealable under s 588, cl. (23), C P Code, 1882 —Maharaj Singh v Chittar Mal, 30 A 22 4 A. L J. 633 (1907), A. W. N 270

Clause (q)—an order under 2, r 3 or r 6 of Or. XXXVIII;

This clause corresponds to part of cl (24) of the old section Rule 2 of Or XXXVIII (s 479, C P Code, 1882) relates to defendant's furnishing security for his appearance, (after arrest before judgment) to satisfy a decree that may be passed against him

Rule 3 (s 480, C P Code, 1882) relates to procedure in case of application, by the person who becomes surety, to be discharged

Rule 6 (s. 485, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to attachment before judgments of defendant's property when he fails to show cause.—See notes under each of those rules.

An order of attachment before judgment is appealable under s 588, cl (24), C. P Code, 1882 —Mir Ali Mahomed v. Biharilal, 21 B. 273.

Clause (r)—an order under r. 1, r. 2, r. 4, or r. 10 of Or. XXXIX ;

This clause is part of cl (24) of the old section. Rule 1 of Or. XXXIX (s 492) relates to cases in which temporary injunction may be granted.

Rule 2 (s. 493) relates to injunction to restrain repetition or continuance of breach of contract or injury, etc

Rule 4 (s 496) relates to interlocutory orders

Rule 10 (s. 502) relates to deposit of money, etc , in Court. See notes under those rules

An appeal will lie under s 588, cl (24), C P. Code, 1882, from an order under s. 496 of the Code, refusing to set aside an injunction —Zabadajan v. Muhammad Taib, 15 A. 8 (6 C 168 referred to)

A petition praying for a temporary injunction in a suit was presented by the plaintiff in a subordinate Court. The Judge refused to pass orders on it without hearing the defendants, and ordered a notice to issue to them. The plaintiff appealed to the District Judge, who granted the injunction. Held, that the order of the subordinate Court was not appealable to the District Judge.—Luis v. Luis, 12 M. 186.

An order of Court refusing to attach property for disobedience of an interim injunction falls within Or. XXXIX, r. 2 (3) C P. Code, and is open to appeal —Diwan Anand v Jharia Coal Co , (1922) Lah. 347: 66 I. C. 9

Clause (s)—an order under r. 1 or r. 4 of Or. XL ;

This clause is part of cl (24) of the old section.

Rule 1 of Or. XL (s 503, C. P Code, 1882) relates to appointment of receiver.

Rule 4 is new and relates to enforcement of receiver's liabilities See notes under those rules.

An order under Or XLIII, r 1 (s), declaring that a receiver should be appointed in the case or appointing anybody by name as Receiver is an order which is appealable —Gobind Ram v. Ganesh Ram, (1922) Pat. 250 (14 C. L J. 489 folld ; 13 C. L.J. 157, 17 Bom. L. R. 510, 18 A L J. 212 not folld)

An order refusing to remove a receiver appointed under s. 503, C. P. Code, 1882, is appealable.—Mithibai v. Limji Nowroji, 5 B. 45.

An order removing a receiver is appealable.—Sripati v. Bibhuti, 92 I. C. 910: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 593.

An order authorizing a receiver appointed by the Court to remove any person in possession of the property is appealable under s 588, cl. (24), C. P. Code, 1882, at the instance of the person sought to be dispossessed.—Hudson v. Morgan, 13 C. W. N. 654; 9 C. L. J. 563 · 36 C. 718.

An order refusing to appoint a receiver under s. 503, C P. Code, 1882, is [illegible] Stridavamma, 10 M. 179 and 180-note (6 [illegible] Boidya Nath v. Makhan Lal, 17 C. 680. The directions which a Court gives in passing a receiver's accounts are not appealable under this clause.—Rani Keshabati Kumari v. Mac Gregor 12 C. W. N. 648: 35 C. 568.

Clause (t)—an order of refusal under r. 19 of Or. XLI to re-admit, or under r. 21 of Or. XLI to re-hear, an appeal ;

This clause corresponds to cl. (27) of the old section.

Rule 19 of Or. XLI (s. 558, C. P. Code, 1882) relates to re-admission of an appeal dismissed for default. Rule 21 of Or XLI (s. 560, C. P Code, 1882) relates to an application for re-hearing of an appeal heard ex parte

An appeal does not lie from an order dismissing an appeal for default—Mansab Ali v Nihal Chand, 15 A 359. See also, Nund Ram v. Muhammad Baksh, 2 A. 616; Mukhi v. Fakir, 3 A 382, Dhan Singh v. Basant Singh, 8 A. 519; Chand Kuar v. Pratab Singh, 16 C. 98; Muhammad Naimullah v Irsanullah, 14 A 266; Jawahir Singh v. Debi Singh, 18 A. 119. B.. 7 C. W. N 486, F B (23 C. 115 and 827 overruled) Referred to in Gosto Behary v Hari Mohan, 8 C W N 313

Where an appeal has been dismissed under s 556, C. P. Code, 1882, for the appellant's default, he may apply for its re-admission under s 558, and if such re-admission is refused, he is entitled to an appeal under s 588, cl. (27), C P Code 1882 —Elahi Buksh v Marachow, 4 C 825. 3 C. L R. 593

Besides the above cases, see 36 C. 510. noted under rules 19 and 35 C. 799. 12 C. W N 888 7 C. L J 426, noted under r. 21 of Or. XLI, and also the other cases collected under each of those two rules

Clause (u)—an order under r. 23 of Or. XLI remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court;

This clause corresponds to cl (28) of the old section, with the addition of the words "Where an appeal would lie from decree of the Appellate Court." The above addition has been made to give effect to 24 C. 774 and 21 A. 291, and it overrides 10 C 523, 19 M .391, 3 A. 18, 7 B. 292, 8 B 260, and 11 C. W. N. 862. In these latter cases it was held that where an Appellate Court passed an order remanding a case of Small Cause Court class, an appeal does lie to the High Court from the order of remand. In the former two cases it was held that an appeal does not lie. By the above addition, the conflicting cases have been reconciled adopting the law as laid down in Mathura Nath v Nabin Chandra, 24 C 774, and in Jhandy Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A 291.

Where the first Court rejected the plaint on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action and of defendants and the lower Appellate Court set aside the order and remanded the case for decision on the merits: Held that an appeal lies to the High Court under s. 588 (28), C P. Code, 1882, against that order.—Ram Prasad v Sachi Dassi, 6 C W N. 585.

The first Court made an order returning the plaint in a suit to be presented to the proper Court, on the ground that it was not competent to try such suit; but the Appellate Court holding that the first Court was competent to try the suit, made an order "decreeing the appeal" and directing that the case "should be returned for retrial" Held, that no second appeal would lie, as it was in reality one from an order returning a plaint, and not an appeal from an order remanding the case under s 562, C P Code, 1882.—Krishna Ram v Narsing Sevak, 3 A. 855

Where an order of remand was made without jurisdiction, held that an appeal lay from the order of remand, notwithstanding the Court of first instance had subsequently made what purported to be a final decree in the case.—Jatinga Valley Tea Co, v Chera Tea Co., 12 C. 45 See also, Narain Pal v Kali Kishore, 1 C W N (S N.) xxix (29)

An appeal from an order of remand under s. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, cannot be entertained if presented after the final disposal of the suit The right of appeal given by s. 588 of the Code, from orders specified in that section ceases with the disposal of the suit.—Madu Sudan v. Kamini Kanta, 9 C. W. N 895 2 C L. J. 85-n: 32 C. 1023 (12 C. 45 distinguished. Followed in Gulzari Mal v Kobirunnessa, 30 A. 191. 5 A L. J. 270) See also, the cases noted under r. 23 Order XLI.

Where a Court of first instance decided a suit, not upon a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of facts, but upon the merits, and upon all the evidence tendered and issues framed. Held, by the Full Bench, that legality of the remand order and the subsequent proceedings could, under s 591, C P Code, 1882, be questioned in second appeal from the decree in the suit, though no appeal had been preferred against the order itself under s. 588 (28), C. P. Code, 1882—Rameshar Singh v. Sheodin Singh, 12 A. 510; followed in Sheonath v. Ramdin, 18 A. 19. See also, Mohesh Chandra v Jamiruddin, 28 C 324: 5 C. W. N. 500

A party aggrieved by an interlocutory order of remand may object to its validity in his appeal against the final decree though he might have appealed against the order under s 588, C P. Code, 1882, and has not done so.—Savitri v. Ramji, 14 B 232.

An appeal from an order in an appeal remanding a suit for retrial is not to be confined to the question whether the remand has been made contrary to the provisions of s 562, C. P. Code, 1882, or not, but the question whether the decision of the Appellate Court on the preliminary point is correct or not may also be raised and determined in such an appeal.—Badam v. Imrat, 3 A 675,; Loki Mahto v Aghoree Ajail, 5 C. 144: 4 C. L. R. 465: Bhau Bala v. Bapuji Bapuji, 14 Bom. 14; Abrahim Khan v Faizunissa, 17 C. 168; Hasan Ali v Siraj Husain, 16 A. 252. See also, Sankaran v Raman Kutti, 20 M. 152

An order of remand under the inherent powers of an appellate Court and not falling within Or XLI, r. 23, C. P Code, is not appealable Sheik Mahomed v Rangasami, 31 M L. T. 182: 16 L. W. 515; Wisakhi Ram v. Alawad, 6 Lah L J, 153, Permanand v. Bhon Lohar; 7 Pat. L. T. 535. 97 I. C. 165.

An appeal does not lie from an order of remand passed by a special Judge under the Bengal Tenancy Act.—Mothur Chandra v. Tara Sunkar, 7 C. W. N. 440, Debi Prasad v. Official Trustee, Bengal, 37 C. L. J. 314.

Section 190 of the N. W. P. Rent Act (XII of 1881) makes s. 562, C P. Code, 1882, applicable to appeals from a Court of Revenue to a District Judge, and where in such a case a District Judge has made an order of remand under s. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, an appeal will lie from such order to the High Court under s 588, cl. (28), C. P Code, 1882.—Partap Singh v Naram Das, 16 A 375 See also, Veeraswamy v. Manager of Pittapur Estate, 26 M 518, which was a case under the Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865).

A Judge of the High Court when hearing an appeal against an erroneous order of remand under s. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, (Or. XLI, r. 23), may pass a final decree in the suit, instead of remanding the suit to the lower Appellate Court No appeal lies against such decree under the Letters Patent clause 15.—Sankaran v. Ramakutti, 19 M. 152. Followed in Vasudeva v. Visvaraja, 20 M. 407.

Though orders under s 562 C. P. Code, 1882, (Or XLI, r. 23), are appealable under s 588, cl 28, C P Code, 1882, yet the provisions of the latter section are subject to its last para which says that orders passed under this section shall be final and therefore no second appeal lies from an order passed under s. 588, cl. (16), notwithstanding that it is an order passed by the lower Appellate Court remanding the case under s 562, C P. Code, 1882.—Mathuranath v. Nabin Chandra, 24 C. 774: Followed in Jhandy Lal v. Sarman Lal, 21 A. 291.

Where a lower Appellate Court instead of remanding a suit under s 566, C. P. Code, 1882, erroneously remands it under s. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, Or. XXI, r. 23, and the party aggrieved by its order appeal to the High Court under s 588, cl. (28), the High Court cannot deal with the case as if it were a first appeal from a decree. All that the High Court can do is to rectify the procedure of the Lower Appellate Court, and to direct that it decide the case itself on the merits.—Sohan Lal v. Azizunnissa, 7 A. 136 (3 A. 675 distinguished). See also, Deokishen v. Bansi, 8 A 172.

In an appeal from an order of an Appellate Court, the High Court is bound to accept, as in a second appeal from a decree, the findings of

21 A 291, and it overrides 10 C 523, 19 M .391, 3 A. 18, 7 B. 292, 8 B 260, and 11 C. W. N. 862. In these latter cases it was held that where an Appellate Court passed an order remanding a case of Small Cause Court class, an appeal does lie to the High Court from the order of remand In the former two cases it was held that an appeal does not lie. By the above addition, the conflicting cases have been reconciled adopting the law as laid down in Mathura Nath v Nabin Chandra, 24 C. 774, and in Jhandy Lal v Sarman Lal, 21 A 291

Where the first Court rejected the plaint on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action and of defendants and the lower Appellate Court set aside the order and remanded the case for decision on the merits. Held that an appeal lies to the High Court under s. 588 (28), C .P Code, 1882, against that order.—Ram Prasad v Sachi Dassi, 6 C. W N. 385

The first Court made an order returning the plaint in a suit to be presented to the proper Court, on the ground that it was not competent to try such suit, but the Appellate Court holding that the first Court was competent to try the suit, made an order "decreeing the appeal" and directing that the case 'should be returned for retrial.' Held, that no second appeal would lie, as it was in reality one from an order returning a plaint, and not an appeal from an order remanding the case under s 562, C. P. Code, 1882 —Krishna Ram v Narsing Sevak, 8 A 855.

Where an order of remand was made without jurisdiction, held that an appeal lay from the order of remand, notwithstanding the Court of first instance had subsequently made what purported to be a final decree in the case —Jatinga Valley Tea Co., v Chera Tea Co., 12 C. 45 See also, Narain Pal v Kali Kishore, 1 C W N. (S N.) xxix (29)

An appeal from an order of remand under s. 562, C. P. Code, 1882, cannot be entertained if presented after the final disposal of the suit The right of appeal given by s 588 of the Code, from orders specified in that section ceases with the disposal of the suit.—Madu Sudan v Kamini Kanta, 9 C. W. N 895 2 C L J. 35-n· 32 C. 1023 (12 C 45 distinguished. Followed in Gulzari Mal v Kobirunnessa, 30 A. 101: 5 A L J. 270) See also, the cases noted under r. 23 Order XLI.

Where a Court of first instance decided a suit, not upon a preliminary point so as to exclude any evidence of facts, but upon the merits, and upon all the evidence tendered and issues framed. Held, by the Full Bench, that legality of the remand order and the subsequent proceedings could, under s 591, C P Code, 1882, be questioned in second appeal from the decree in the suit, though no appeal had been preferred against the order itself under s 588 (28), C. A party aggrieved by an interlocutory order of remand may object to its validity in his appeal against the final decree though he might have appealed against the order under s 588, C P. Code, 1882, and has not done so.—Savitri v. Ramji, 14 B. 232

An appeal from an order in an appeal remanding a suit for retrial is not to be confined to the question whether the remand has been made contrary to the provisions of s 562, C. P. Code, 1882, or not, but the therefore appealable.—Kally Soondery v. Hurrish Chunder, 6 C. 594: 7 C L. R. 543; on appeal, 9 C. 482: 12 C. L. R. 511.

In a suit for account, the High Court refused, under s. 601, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLIV, r. 6), to grant the defendant a certificate on the ground that a decree directing the taking of accounts is not final within the meaning of s 595, C. P. Code, 1882 (s 109). On application for special leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council, not by way of an appeal from the local Court's refusal, but asking for the exercise of the prerogative right of the Crown to admit an appeal, held, that the real question in this suit having been the liability of the defendant to account to the plaintiff upon several claims, the decree had decided this against the defendant in such a way that, although the account had not been taken, the decree was final within s. 595 (s. 109)—Rohimbhoy v. Turner, 15 B. 155: L. R. 18 I. A 6 Followed in Muzhar Hossein v Bodha Bibi, 17 A. 112 P. C.

Clause (w)—an order under r. 4 of Or. XLVII granting an application for review;

This clause is new, it gives general right of appeal from an order under r. 4 of Or. XLVII (s. 626 of Act XIV of 1882).

Sub-rule (2) of r. 4, Or. XLVII, provides that " where the Court is of opinion that the application for review should be granted, it shall grant the same." This clause (w) should be read with r. 7 of Or. XLVII, which also gives appeal from an order granting review on the grounds specifically mentioned therein.

Distinction between Rule 1 of Order XLIII (w) and Rule 7 of Order XLVII.—The language of cl. (w) is general, and it allows appeal when a review is granted on ar ... -rules (1) and (2) of r. 1, or when review is ... ions of r. 2, or r. 3, or in disregard of the ... nuch as, under sub-rule (2) of r. 4, a Court is quite competent to grant a review on any ground whatsoever which may appear to it sufficient. But r. 7 allows appeal only on the three grounds specified therein, viz., (a) where the review is granted in contravention to the provisions of r. 2, that is, where the review is granted in violation of the latter part of r. 2, (b) in violation of clauses (a) and (b) of the proviso to r 4, or (c) where it is granted after the prescribed period of limitation Thus cl. (w) covers all the grounds for granting a review including the three grounds mentioned in r. 7. It may, however, be said, that when cl (w) covers the grounds mentioned in r 7 of Or. XLVII, that rule is therefore superfluous or unnecessary. " There is no real inconsistency between Or. XLIII, r 1 (w) and Or. XLVII, r 7, the former merely gives a party aggrieved by an order granting a review a right of appeal, but it does not deal with the grounds on which the order appealed against can be objected to That is a matter dealt with in Or XLVII, r 7. The two provisions of the Code are not mutually inconsistent, but are really complementary of each other. The one gives the right to appeal and the other defines the extent to which that right can be exercised."—Sikhandar Khan v. Baland Khan, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 436. The provisions of Or. XLIII, r. 1 (w) are to be read subject to the provisions of Or. XLVII, r 7, and an order granting a review can be appealed against only on one of the grounds set out in Or. XLVII, r. 7.—Srinivasa v. Official Assignee, Madras, 52 M L. J. 682: A. I. R 1926 Mad. 641.

An application for review was filed within one month of the date of the order sought to be reviewed and was allowed. An appeal was preferred against the order granting the review and the appellate Court set it aside on the ground that the order sought to be reviewed was really an earlier order Held that, although Or. XLIII, r 1 (w) allows an appeal against an order granting a review, that clause must be read with Or. XLVII, r. 7, by which the grounds on which an order granting a review can be set aside on appeal set aside the order granting the review.—Surya Narain v. Kunja Behari, 25 C. W. N. 884; Kanshir Ram v. Karan, Narain, 3 Lah L. J. 166: 60 I. C. 259.

There is no second appeal from an order granting a review.—Barada Kishore v. Jagat Chandra, 64 I. C. 568.

Procedure.

2. The rules of Or. XLI shall apply, so far as may be, to appeals from orders. [S. 590.]

This rule corresponds to s. 590, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications This rule is to be read with s. 108, and all the cases bearing upon this rule are collected under that section. See the cases noted under s. 108.

ORDER XLIV.

PAUPER APPEALS.

1. Any person entitled to prefer an appeal, who is unable to pay the fee required for the memorandum of appeal, may present an application accompanied by a memorandum of appeal, and may be allowed to appeal as a pauper, subject, in all matters including the presentation of such application, to the provisions relating to suits by paupers, in so far as those provisions are applicable.

Who may appeal as pauper.

Provided that the Court shall reject the application unless, upon a perusal thereof and of the judgment and decree appealed from, it sees reason to think that the decree is contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law, or is otherwise erroneous or unjust. [S. 592.]

Procedure on application for admission of appeal.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 592, C P Code, with some additions, alterations and omissions.

The words " under this Code or any other law," which stood after the words " any person entitled," have been omitted The words " including the presentation of such application " have been added, to give effect to 8 M 504 The addition of the above words overrides 26 M 369 The other changes introduced in this rule are change of words and phrases; that is, some words and phrases of the old section have been replaced by more appropriate words and phrases, but no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

" Words have been added to avoid the conclusion at which the Madras High Court has recently arrived in 26 M 369 "—See the Report of the Special Committee

A person who desires to appeal as a pauper, must present an application for permission to appeal as a pauper, together with a memorandum of appeal in a separate paper If his application for permission to appeal as a pauper is rejected, his memo of appeal stil remains in the record; and if he can subsequently procure funds and pay the necessary Court-fees, then his appeal shall proceed in the ordinary way But when a suit is brought in forma pauperis under Or XXXIII, and the application is rejected, the applicant is required to present a fresh plaint in the ordinary way, as the application for permission to sue in forma pauperis, is itself the plaint and the Court has no power to allow it to be stamped as plaint This is the distinction between an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis and an application for permission to appeal in forma pauperis As to question of limitation see the cases noted below.

The rules of this order are to be read with the rules of Or XXXIII, as the rules contained in this order are subject to the provisions of the rules of that order.—See notes under those rules.

" In all matters including the presentation of such application."—This rule provides that the provisions relating to suits by paupers shall apply, so far as may be, to appeals by paupers. Therefore the application referred to in this rule, for leave to appeal as a pauper, must be presented by the applicant in person just as an application for leave to sue as a pauper as provided by Or. XXXIII, r 3.

An application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis under this rule must be made by the party in person, subject to the exemption contained in Or. XXXIII, r. 3.—In re Narisi, 8 M. 504. (Dissented from in Mallhi v. Somappa Banta, 26 M. 369, where it has been held that the provisions of Or. XXXIII, r. 3 do not apply to an application under this rule, to be allowed to appeal as a pauper.) The addition of the words " in all matters including the presentation of such application " overrides this Madras Decision and it is no longer law.

An application for permission to appeal as a pauper was presented, not by the applicant personally, but by his pleader, and was on that ground rejected Held, that the order was not subject to revision by the High Court under s. 622, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 115), as that section did not apply to a proceeding of so purely interlocutory a character as mentioned in s 592 of the Code (this rule) —Harinarain Singh v. Muhammad, 4 A. 91.

Subect to the Provisions relating to Suits by Paupers.—In deciding duty of the Court to have regard to the rules contained in Or. XXXIII, whether [illegible] a pauperis, it is the the right [illegible] that order When at the ti [illegible] ubsisting agreement falling within the terms of Or. XXXIII, r. 5 (d), no leave to appeal under this rule could be given to plaintiff.—Hanifa Bai v. Haji Siddick, 30 M 547: 17 M. L. J. 447: 3 M. L. T. 11.

An application for leave to appeal as a pauper contained no schedule of any property and was not verified in the manner provided by Or. XXXIII, r 2. Held, that the Court had no other alternative than to reject the application.—Muhammad Salamatullah v. Ram Jiwah, 11 Oudh Cases 19

Application and Memorandum of Appeal.—This rule contemplates the presentation of two separate documents, viz, a memorandum of appeal and an application for leave to appeal as a pauper. The disposal by the Judge of the pauper application does not therefore mean the disposal of the appeal The Judge may still treat it as an existing appeal if the appellant desires to continue it as an ordinary appeal by paying the full court fees. The Judge is under no obligation to dismiss the appeal when he refuses leave to the appellant to appeal as a pauper.—Bai Ful v. Desai Manorbhai, 22 B. 849; Muhammad v Rahat Ali, 40 A. 381.

The dismissal of the application for leave to appeal as a pauper does not involve the dismissal of the appeal —Mahant Diyal Das v. Sundar Das, 3 L. 35: 65 I. C. 741: A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 225.

The Court should Carefully See that the Proviso is Satisfied.—In granting leave to appeal as a pauper the Court should be careful to see that the proviso to this rule is satisfied. The Judge admitting a pauper appeal should express and record very briefly the reasons for granting leave, so that the bench before whom the appeal ultimately comes may have an assurance that the leave was properly given.—Sakubai v. Ganpat, 28 B. 451. The proviso is mandatory and is a necessary safeguard introduced by the Legislature for the benefit of litigants who find themselves opposed by paupers —Rajendra v. Gopal, 4 Pat. 67: A. I R 1925 Pat. 442; Vidyvanti v. Jai Dayal, 7 Lah. L J 214: 89 I C. 292: A I. R 1925 Lah. 391 Under the proviso to Or. XLIV, r. 1, the Court is to proceed upon a perusal of the application and the judgment appealed from If it decides thereafter that the decision sought to be appealed from, is correct, the High Court will not interfere, in revision, with an order rejecting the application for leave to appeal as a pauper —Shamsuddin v Gur Bakhsh, 91 I. C 96: A. I. R 1926 Oudh 204

Limitation in Pauper Appeals.—The period of limitation for leave to appeal as a pauper is 30 days from the date of the decree appealed from. See, Mahadev v. Lakshman, 19 B 48, and Art 170 of the Limitation Act.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order refusing leave to appeal as a pauper.

No appeal lies, under clause 15 of the Letters Patent, from an order of a single Judge of the High Court refusing an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis.—Banno Bibi v Mehdi Husain, 11 A. 375 (9 M. 253 followed; 9 C. 482 distinguished) See also, In re Rajagopal, 9 M 447; and Appasami Pillai v Somasundra, 26 M 437 (22 M. 109, 23 M. 169 and 24 M 358 followed) See also, Toolsee Money v Sudevi, 26 C. 361; Chappan v Moidin, 22 M 68, and Shabhapathi v. Narayanasami, 25 M. 555 But see, Tuljaram v Alagappa, 35 M. 1, 9, 17 in which a contrary view has been taken.

Pauper Respondent.—A pauper-respondent is not entitled to present objections under s. 561 of the C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r 22), at the trial of an appeal without payment of stamp-duty —Babaji Hari v Rajaram Dallal, 1 B. 75: Narayani v. Krishna, 8 M 214 See also, Brojeshwari Dasi v Guroo Churn, 11 C 735 and Rashmonee v Junmojoy, 9 W. R 356

Form.—For Form of application to appeal in forma pauperis, see App. G, Form No 10 For Form of notice, see Form No. 11

Inquiry into pauperism.

2. The inquiry into the pauperism of the applicant may be made either by the Appellate Court or under the orders of the Appellate Court by the Court from whose decision the appeal is preferred

Provided that, if the applicant was allowed to sue or appeal as a pauper in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, no further inquiry in respect of his pauperism shall be necessary, unless the Appellate Court sees cause to direct such inquiry.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 593, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

The order of the Court calling upon the subordinate Court to report, does not operate as a final disposal of the application, and it is open to the High Court upon receipt of the report to consider whether the case is one in which leave to appeal in forma pauperis ought to be granted.—Hanifa Bai v. Haji Siddick, 30 M. 547: 17 M. L. J. 447.

ORDER XLV.

APPEALS TO THE KING IN COUNCIL.

"Decree" defined.

1. In this Order, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context, the expression "decree" shall include a final order. [S. 594.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 594, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations. The words "shall include a final order" have been substituted for the words "includes also judgment and order," which occurred in the old section.

"Decree—Final Order."—For the meaning of the terms "decree" and "final order," see notes under ss 109-110.

Application to Court whose decree complained of.

2. Whoever desires to appeal to His Majesty in Council shall apply by petition to the Court whose decree is complained of. [S. 598.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 598, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations. The word "shall" has been substituted for the word "must," which occurred in the old section The other alterations are merely verbal. See notes under s. 110.

Limitation for an Application for Leave to Appeal to the Privy Council.—The application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council must be made within 6 months from the date of the decree appealed from.—See Limitation Act, Art 179

The application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council must be made within six months from the date of decree, and in computing the period of limitation the time required for obtaining a copy of the decree cannot be excluded, as s 12 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such application. —Moroba Ram Chandra v Ghanasham Nilkant, 19 B. 301 See also. Lakshmanan v Periyasami, 10 M 373

The provisions of the second paragraph of s 5 of Act XV of 1877 (s 4 of Act IX of 1908) do not extend to applications for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council The limitation therefore for an application for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council is six months from the date of the decree to appeal from which leave is sought —In the matter of Sita Ram, 15 A. 14 (6 A 250, 2 M 230, 10 C 557, and L R 11 I A. 7 referred to) See also, Shib Singh v Gandhrap Singh, 28 A 391 · 3 A L J 165 (1 A 644, 15 M 159, 15 A. 14, 19 B 301 followed)

The aforesaid decisions are no longer law and it has now been expressly held that under s. 12 of the Limitation Act of 1908, the time requisite to obtain a copy of the decree appealed from is to be excluded.—Abdullah v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 42 C. 35; Ram Sarup v. Jaswant Rai, 38 A. 82.

Privy Council appeal filed during vacation, when the High Court was closed, but the offices were open. Held, that the applicant was entitled to the benefit of para. 2 of s. 5 of the Limitation Act, 1877 (s. 4 of Act IX of 1908).—Rani Venkata Ramama v. Kherode Mull, 10 C. L. J. 118; Parameswar v. Baijnath, 10 C. L. J. 120.

In an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the disability by reason of minority is not to be excluded from the prescribed period of limitation.—Thurai Rajah v. Jainiladeen, 18 M. 484.

Application to Appeal to the Privy Council In Forma Pauperis.—When a person applies for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council in forma pauperis, he must present an application for that purpose to the High Court, and a separate application to His Majesty in Council.—Munni Ram v. Sheocharan, 7 W. R. P. C. 29 : 4 M. I. A. 114. Or. XLIV, r. 1 does not apply to appeals to His Majesty in Council, and the High Court has no power to grant leave to appeal in forma pauperis to His Majesty in Council.—Jagadanand v. Rajendra, 17 C. L. J. 381; Ram Kishen v. Manna Kumari, 3 Pat. L. J. 179; Amba v. Srinivasa, 42 M. 32.

Certificate as to value or fitness

3. (1) Every petition shall state the grounds of appeal and pray for a certificate either that, as regards amount or value and nature, the case fulfils the requirements of s. 110, or that it is otherwise a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council.

(2) Upon receipt of such petition, the Court shall direct notice to be served on the opposite party to show cause why the said certificate should not be granted. [S. 600.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 600, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations. The words "shall state" have been substituted for the words "must state"; and in sub-rule (2) the words "shall direct notice" have been substituted for the words "may direct notice," which occurred in the old section. The other alterations are merely verbal.

Certificate.—In determining whether leave to appeal has been properly granted or not, the document which the Judicial Committee are bound to consider and act upon is the certificate of leave to appeal and not the order for such certificate and unless the certificate upon which the leave to appeal is based is in such a form as to justify that leave they ought to hold that leave has not been properly given.—Radha Krishna v. Rai Krishna, 23 A. 415 : 28 I. A. 182. See also, the cases noted under s. 109, (c), under the heading "IS CERTIFIED TO BE A FIT ONE FOR APPEAL

Petition to State the Grounds of Appeal.—The petition of appeal to the Privy Council should distinctly state what the substantial question of law is that it is proposed to submit to the Privy Council.—Ali Akbar v. Abdul Latif, 12 Bom H. C. 8.

It is incumbent upon a party applying for special leave to appeal to set out in the petition a full statement of the facts and legal grounds to show that there is a substantial case on the merits, and a point of law involved, proper to be determined by the Appellate Court A petition too general and vague was ordered to be dismissed or to stand over for amendment as being too general and vague—Goree Monee v Juggut Indro, 11 M. I. A. 1.

A petition for special leave to appeal being ex parte, it is a universal and most important rule of the Court, that every fact which is material to the determination of the question raised upon the petition should be truly and fairly stated and where there is an omission of material facts, whether it arises, from improper intention on the part of the petitioner, or whether it arises from accident or negligence, still the effect is the same, if the Court has been induced to make an order which, if the facts had been fully before it, it would not, or might not, have been induced to make —Mohun Lall v. Bebee Doss, 8 M I A 193

Where a party applies to the Judicial Committee for special leave to appeal, the matter being under the appealable value, he should first apply to the Court below for a certificate under s 600, C P. Code, 1882 (Or XLIV, r 3) But this rule will not bind this Board not to grant such leave in any special case, although that course has not been followed —Moti Chand v. Ganga Prasad, 24 A. 174, P C 6 C W N 362, P. C.

In a suit for malicious prosecution in which the plaintiff claimed Rs. 3,00,000 as damages, held, that the question of malice and reasonable and probable cause is a question of fact and not a substantial question of law, and that the certificate was granted by the High Court under a misapprehension —Pestonji v The Queen Insurance Co., 25 B. 332

See notes under s 110 as to amount or value

Procedure.—If the applicant fails to take the necessary steps to prosecute his petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, it may be struck off for want of prosecution —Moorajee Poonja v Visranjee, 12 C 658

If leave to appeal be granted ex parte, the respondent may, as a matter of course, present a counter-petition to dismiss the appeal —Sibnaram v Hullodhur, 6 M I A 207

Form.—For Form of Notice under sub rule (2), see, App G, Form No 12

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order granting a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council because such order is not a judgment within the meaning of cl 15 of the Letters Patent —Lutif Ali v Asgur Reza 17 C 455 So also no appeal lies under that clause from an order refusing leave to appeal to the Privy Council where such refusal is based on the ground that the case did not fulfil the requirements of s. 110 —Manly v Patterson, 7 C 339

Consolidation of suits.

4. For the purposes of pecuniary valuation, suits involving substantially the same questions for determination and decided by the same judgment may be consolidated: but suits decided by separate judgments shall not be consolidated, notwithstanding that they involve substantially the same questions for determination.
[New.]

COMMENTARY.

Consolidation of Suits.—This rule is new. It has been added to give effect to the following decisions of the Calcutta High Court in which it was held that consolidation could not be permitted unless the suits, besides involving the same questions for determination, where decided by the same judgment.—Deo Narain Singh v. Guni, 34 C. 400; Royal Insurance Co. v. Akhoy Coomar, 5 C. W. N. 41; Byjnath v. Graham, 11 C. 740.

The High Court has power to consolidate appeals under Or. XLV, r. 4, C. P. Code, and to calculate the amount of valuation upon the aggregate values of all the suits but the judgment appealed against should be the same. Where the trial Court disposed of all the analogous suits by one and the same judgment but in one case, valued at over Rs. 5,000, the appeal was decided by the High Court and the other cases were decided by the District Court, the appellate judgment, against which leave to appeal to the Privy Council was sought, being not the same, Or. XLV, r. 4 cannot apply, and no consideration can be granted by the High Court The inherent power to consolidate appeals cannot be exercised for setting pecuniary valuation when Or. XLV, r. 4 forbids it in cases governed by different judgments —Deokinandan v. Narsing Raut, 2 Pat. L. T. 157. 6 Pat. L J. 97.

Under Or. XLV, r. 4, the case is only consolidated for the purpose of pecuniary value. It does not matter what the reason is why the appeals are consolidated. Once they are consolidated for whatever reason, they form in fact one appeal and the parties in that appeal must be treated just as the parties in one suit.—The Midnapore Zemindary Co. v. Madan Marwari, (1923) Pat. 17. 70 I. C. 782.

Or. XLV, r. 4 allows consolidation but only to make good a defect of pecuniary valuation and not a defect of any other kind The rule speaks only of the consolidation of different suits decided by the same judgment but the principle applies where the interests of the two parties are so entirely separate that they are practically defendants in two different suits decided by one judgment.—Seth Narayandas v. Mt. Kamalabai, 69 I. C. 525; 1923 Nag. 108.

Inherent Power to Consolidate Suits.—This rule provides for consolidation of suits "for the purposes of pecuniary valuation". It has been held by the High Court of Patna that the High Court has inherent power to permit consolidation of cases on grounds other than those specified in this rule. Accordingly, two appeals to His Majesty in Council, which were in substance one, were ordered to be consolidated and tried together "in the interest of justice and to save unnecessary expense."—Chaudry Har Prasad v. Brij Kishore, 3 Pat. L. J. 440. 45 I. C. 551.

See notes under s. 110.

Remission of dispute to Court of first instance

5. In the event of any dispute arising between the parties as to the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit in the Court of first instance, or as to the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute on appeal to His Majesty in Council, the Court to which a petition for a certificate is made under rule 2 may, if it thinks fit, refer such dispute for report to the Court of first instance, which last-mentioned Court shall proceed to determine such amount or value and shall return its report together with the evidence to the Court by which the reference was made. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Dispute Regarding Value of Subject-matter.—This rule is new. It has given legislative sanction to the practice followed in cases where there was a dispute as to the true value of the subject-matter of the suit. When there is a contest as to the true value of the matter in dispute it has been the invariable practice, a practice sanctioned by the Judicial Committee, to ascertain by evidence and inquiry, what the true value is.—Amrita Nath v. Abhoy Charan, 9 C W N 370.

The High Court should not direct any fresh inquiry under this rule where the Court of first instance in the trial of the suit has already made an inquiry as to the value of the subject-matter of the suit and the appellant has acquiesced in the finding of the Court of first instance on this point.—Anant v. Ramchandra, 42 B 609 See also, Hansman v. Bahuji, 43 C 225, where it has been held that the Court of first instance should itself hold the inquiry when a reference is made to it under this rule.

Effect of refusal of certificate

6. Where such certificate is refused, the petition shall be dismissed. [S. 601, Para. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to para 1 of s 601, C P Code, 1882 The proviso attached to that section (regarding appeals from orders of refusal) has been relegated to Or XLIII as clause (v)

Costs.—Where the petition is made to the High Court and it is dismissed with costs, the proper Court to execute the order is the lower Court.—Jogendra v Wazidunnissa, 34 C 860

Appeal.—An order made by any Court other than a High Court refusing the grant of a certificate under this rule is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1, cl (v)

7. (1) Where the certificate is granted, the applicant shall within ninety days or such further period, not exceeding sixty days, as the Court may upon cause shown allow, from the date of the decree complained of, or within six weeks from the date of the grant of the certificate, whichever is the later date,—

Security and deposit required on grant of certificate.

(a) furnish security in cash or in Government securities for the costs of the respondent, and

(b) deposit the amount required to defray the expense of translating, transcribing, indexing and transmitting to His Majesty in Council a correct copy of the whole record of the suit except—

(1) formal documents directed to be excluded by any order of His Majesty in Council in force for the time being ;

(2) papers which the parties agree to exclude;

(3) accounts, or portions of accounts, which the officer empowered by the Court for that purpose considers unnecessary, and which the parties have not specifically asked to be included; and

(4) such other documents as the High Court may direct to be excluded;

Provided that the Court at the time of granting the certificate may, after hearing any opposite party who appears, order on the ground of special hardship that some other form of security may be furnished :

Provided further, that no adjournment shall be granted to an opposite party to contest the nature of such security.

(2) Where the applicant prefers to print in India the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, he shall also, within the time mentioned in sub-rule (1), deposit the amount required to defray the expense of printing such copy. [S. 602.]

COMMENTARY.

Rule Amended.—The italicized words were added into this rule by Act XXVI of 1920 In sub-rule (1) the words originally were "within six months." The period is now reduced to 90 days The provisos were also added by the same Act

"Date of the decree."—The date on which the decree is pronounced, not the date on which it is signed—Harendra v. Haridas, 14 C. W. N. 420: 5 I. C. 844.

Extension of Time.—The time allowed by this rule for giving the security and making the deposit may be extended by the High Court when there are cogent reasons—Fazulunnissa v. Molu, 6 A. 250; Burjore v. Bhagana, 10 C. 557, P. C. (2 C. 272 approved). Followed in Jotindra Nath v. Prasanna Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 1104.

The cogent reasons must be such as would lead the Court to believe that the party was diligent in due time to be prepared to lodge the deposit within the limited period, and that he was prevented from doing so, not owing to the absence and difficulty of getting funds, but owing to some circumstances, accidental or otherwise, over which he had no control, or owing to mistake which the Court would consider not unreasonable or caused by negligence—Rangasaya v. Mahalakshmamma, 14 M. 391. But where the sum of money required is large, and diligence of the petitioner is shown by his having paid in three-fourths of the money in time, there is sufficient reason for extension of time—Bagga v. Salihon, 44 P. R. 1910: 70 P. W. 1910: 6 I. C. 723. But the provisions of Act XXVI of 1920 do not apply to an appeal from a decree passed before the coming into force of the Act—Debi Rai v. Prahlad, 44 A. 242: 20 A. L. J. 51: 65 I. C. 840. A. I. R. 1922 All. 87.

Under Or. XLV, r. 7, as amended by s. 3 of Act XXVI of 1920, the High Court's discretion to extend the time for furnishing security and making a deposit for translation printing and other charges has been curtailed and limited to the period mentioned in the amendment. The High Court has no power to extend the period beyond six weeks—Ram Dhan v. Prag Narain, 44 A. 216: 20 A. L. J. 13: A. I. R. 1922 All. 43; Ashiq Ali v. Arjunan Unnissa, 70 I. C. 937: 1923 Oudh 50; Kachi Reddi v. Saki Reddi, (1923) M. W. N. 510: 18 L. W. 29, J. N. Surty v. T. S. Chittyar, 4 R. 265: A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 20.

The only discretion which the High Court has under r. 7 is to extend the period of 90 days from the date of the decree to a further period of 60 days, but no discretion is given to the High Court by the rule (as amended by Act XXVI of 1920) to extend it beyond the period of 6 weeks from the date of the grant of the certificate—Ramani Ranjan v. Durga Dutt, A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 330, Jaikissen v. Baijnath, 103 I. C. 213: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 332.

It has, however, been recently held by the Bombay High Court that the High Court, under Rule 9 of the Privy Council Rules, 1920, has power to enlarge the time prescribed by r. 7 of Or. XLV, as amended by Act XXVI of 1920, for furnishing security and making the deposit after default has been made—Nil Kant Balwant v. Sri Sachidanand, 29 Bom. L. R. 352 F. B.: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 217.

Inclusion of Unnecessary Papers in the Record.—The Privy Council have strongly condemned the inclusion in the record of unnecessary papers and disallowed the costs occasioned thereby—Gopal v. Rajani, 47 C. 5: 46 I. A. 299 P. C.

Delay.—If delay in the preparation of the record is due to the inaction of the appellant, it seems that the appeal may be certified as effectually prosecuted.—Saklat v Bella, 2 R 91: A I R 1924 Rang 217 80 I. C. 74.

Appeal.—No appeal will lie under cl. 15 of the Charter from an order refusing to extend the time for furnishing security for costs, and directing the appeal to be struck off for not furnishing security within the prescribed time.—Kishen Pershad v Tiluckdhari, 18 C. 182

Security in case of Consolidated Appeal.—Where two or more appeals are consolidated for purposes of pecuniary jurisdiction, the security required by this rule is the whole security which the applicants together have to furnish and not only a portion thereof. If, therefore, two or more appeals are consolidated and some sets of appellants furnish the security required from them, but others do not, the consolidated appeal cannot be admitted under r. 8 below.—Bibi Nabi v. Rai Baijnath, 4 Pat. L J 198: 50 I. C. 511.

As to the mode of enforcement, attestation and registration of security bond, see notes under s. 145.

Admission of appeal and procedure thereon.

8. Where such security has been furnished and deposit made to the satisfaction of the Court, the Court shall—

(a) declare the appeal admitted,

(b) give notice thereof to the respondent,

(c) transmit to His Majesty in Council under the seal of the Court a correct copy of the said record, except as aforesaid, and

(d) give to either party, one or more authenticated copies of any of the papers in the suit on his applying therefor and paying the reasonable expenses incurred in preparing them. [S. 603.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 603, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations

In the first para. of the rule, the word, "furnished," has been substituted for the word "completed" and the word, "shall," has been substituted for the word, "may," which occurred in the old section Th other changes are merely verbal.

"Made to the satisfaction of the Court.—A deposit made out of time is not one made to the satisfaction of the Court within Or. XLV, r. 8—Jag Mohan v. Sahu Dorki Nandan, 1923 A. 572.

Admission of Appeal.—After the admission of an appeal under this rule, only so much of the original record as bore upon, and is material to, the questions decided by the High Court and the subject of the appeal should be printed in the copy.—Venkata Surya v. Court of Wards, 20 M. 305, P. C.

After the declaration of admission of an appeal under this rule, the High Court refused to stay execution, but the execution of the decree was stayed pending the appeal by an order of the Privy Council.—Shatrapat Singh v. Dwarka Nath, 22 C. 1 P. C.

Where a petition for leave to appeal to the Privy Council from a decree of the High Court has been presented, the High Court may grant stay of execution, although the appeal has not as yet been admitted under this rule.—Janbai v. Sale Mahomed, 19 B. 10. Dissented from in Bibi Jarao Kumari v. Gopi Chand, 5 C. W. N 562

The High Court has power to strike off a petition of appeal to Her Majesty in Council for want of prosecution.—Moorajee Poonja v Visranjee, 12 C 658

An objection that an appeal has come before the Judicial Committee without proper authority ought to be taken at the earliest opportunity, but may be entertained at any stage of the appeal and is not unfrequently heard when the appeal is called on and before the arguments on the merits have commenced.—Gajadhar Pershad v Widows of Eman Ali, 15 B L R, P. C., 221, L. R 2 I A 205

The High Court passed a separate decree on a cross-appeal, identical in terms with those of a decree passed on the appeal in the suit. From the latter decree an appeal to the Privy Council was declared by the High Court to be admitted, under this rule Held, that special leave should be granted to appeal from the decree in cross-appeal, without further security being required than had already been taken in respect of the appeal in the other.—Muhammad Ikramuddin v Musammat Najaban, 19 A. 95

"Give notice thereof to the respondent."—The accidental omission to notify the respondents of the admission of an appeal to the Privy Council is not a sufficient ground for re-hearing provided the respondents in fact knew of the admission.—Hardit Singh v Gurmukh Singh, 4 P. W. R 1921: 59 I. C 7 P C

Revocation of acceptance of security.

9-A. Nothing in these rules requiring any notice to be served on or given to an opposite party or respondent shall be deemed to require any notice to be served on or given to the legal representative of any deceased opposite party or deceased respondent in case, where such opposite party or respondent did not appear either at the hearing in the Court whose decree is complained of or at any proceedings subsequent to the decree of that Court :

Power to dispense with notices in case of deceased parties

Provided that notices under sub-rule (2) of rule 3 and under rule 8 shall be given by affixing the same in some conspicuous place in the Court-house of the Judge of the District in which the suit was originally brought, and by publication in such newspapers as the Court may direct.

COMMENTARY.

This rule was added by Act XXVI of 1920.

10. Where at any time after the admission of an appeal but before the transmission of the copy of the record except as aforesaid to His Majesty in Council, such security appears inadequate,

Power to order further security or payment.

or further payment is required for the purpose of translating, transcribing, printing, indexing or transmitting the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, the Court may order the appellant to furnish, within a time to be fixed by the Court, other and sufficient security, or to make, within like time, the required payment. [S. 605.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 605, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

"Further payment is required."—Where it was impossible to say whether certain account-books and papers were material or relevant, or even were part of the evidence in the case, the High Court declined to put the appellant to the expense of translating and transcribing them but gave the respondent the option of translating them at his own expense, with a view to their being sent to England as an appendix to a record.—In the matter of Rajkoomar Baboo, 7 W. R. 90.

11. Where the appellant fails to comply with such order, the proceedings shall be stayed, and the appeal shall not proceed without an order in this behalf of His Majesty in Council,

Effect of failure to comply with order and in the meantime execution of the decree appealed from shall not be stayed. [S. 606.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 606, C P Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

12. When the copy of the record, except as aforesaid, has been transmitted to His Majesty in Council, the appellant may obtain a refund of the balance (if any) of the amount which he has deposited under r. 7. [S. 607.]

Refund of balance deposited.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s 607, C P Code, 1882 —See notes under r 7.

13. (1) Notwithstanding the grant of a certificate for the admission of any appeal, the decree appealed from shall be unconditionally executed, unless the Court otherwise directs.

Powers of Court pending appeal.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, on special cause shown by any party interested in the suit, or otherwise appearing to the Court,—

(a) impound any moveable property in dispute or any part thereof, or

(b) allow the decree appealed from to be executed, taking such security from the respondent as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of any order which His Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(c) stay the execution of the decree appealed from, taking such security from the appellant as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of the decree appealed from, or of any order which His Majesty in Council may make on the appeal, or

(d) place any party seeking the assistance of the Court under such conditions or give such other direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal, as it thinks fit, by the appointment of a receiver or otherwise. [S. 608.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 608, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The words " admitting the appeal " which occurred in the first para. of the old section after the word " Court " have been omitted. These words gave rise to a conflict of decisions. It was held by the High Court of Bombay that the Court had power, under the old section, to stay the execution of the decree appealed from, after a petition had been presented for leave to appeal but before the appeal was admitted.—Dame Janbai v. Sale Mahomed, 19 B. 10; on the other hand, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the Court had no such power because the words " admitting the appeal " indicated that no stay could be granted until the appeal was admitted.—Jarao Kumari v. Gopi Chand, 5 C. W. N. 562. The omission of the words " admitting the appeal " now makes it clear that the power conferred by this rule may be exercised at any time after the presentation of the petition, and even before the grant of a certificate for the admission of the appeal.

The words " by the appointment of a receiver or otherwise " have been added in clause (d). By the addition of these words the power of the High Court has been enlarged. The other changes are merely verbal.

" The Court."—In this rule and r. 14, " the Court " means the High Court.—Ram Bahadur v. Radha Krishen, 3 Pat. L. J. 40.

Cl. (a). " Impound any moveable property."—In the case of an appeal to the Privy Council, the Court has no power, on failure of both parties to furnish security as required, to attach any property held by the appellant beyond that decreed.—Khoroo Lall v. Kant Lall, 5 W. R. Mis. 37.

Cl. (b). " Taking such security."—The Court has power to require security to be given under this rule even after the decree has been executed wholly or in part.—Jariutool Batool v. Hoosainee Begum, 10 M. I. A. 196; Inder Kumari v. Jaipal Kumari, 14 C. 290, 295, L. R. 14 I. A. 1; Narayanan v. Aruna Chellam 19 M. 140, 142.

The respondent decree-holder's failure to give security will not deprive him of the benefit of s. 15 of the Limitation Act.—Panday Sadho v. Srimati Radhey, 5 Pat. L. J. 89; 53 I. C. 9.

Stay of Execution.—The High Court has inherent power to make an order for stay of execution in view of an application by the judgment-debtor to the Judicial Committee for special leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.—Nanda Kishore v. Ram Golam, 40 C. 955, 18 I. C. 207.

Practice.—In appeals pending before the Privy Council application to stay proceedings in execution ought always to be made, in the first instance at any rate, to the Court in India which has ample power to deal with the matter according to the circumstances of the particular case and has knowledge of the details which the Judicial Committee cannot possess on an interlocutory application.—Vasudeva v. Sadagopa 29 M 379 P C 4 C L J 101 10 C W N. 945, P C

If the application is refused by the High Court and the Judicial Committee is of opinion that the application ought to have been granted it may grant a stay of execution But it will not do anything further, for instance, it will not appoint a receiver of the property under attachment nor take the security referred to in cls (b) and (c) of sub-rule (2). In such cases, the Judicial Committee will grant leave to the applicant to apply to the High Court with an intimation of its opinion and the High Court is bound to act according to the direction of the Judicial Committee.—Jariutool Batool v Hosseinee Begum, 10 M I A. 196, 202; Chatrapat Sing v Dwarka Nath, 22 C 1, P C

Procedure where there is an order of Court to stay the execution of a decree obtained by a party who appealed to the Privy Council from another decree against himself, if the holder of the decree which is appealed against attempts to execute it.—Dwarka Nath v Woomasoonduree, 14 W R 329.

A party to a suit in an Appellate Court, who had obtained leave to appeal from its decree to Her Majesty in Council, petitioned for the order of the latter staying execution of interlocutory orders made in execution of such decree, and directing payment by the petitioner to the opposite party of large sums without security taken for their repayment in the event of the decree being reversed. This accompanied a petition for special leave to appeal against those orders The latter was granted, but the prayer for stay of execution was refused, with an intimation to the Court below that it appeared to be the reasonable course, that the opposite party should not, pending the appeal, be put in possession of the large sums in dispute —Indur Kumari v. Jaipal Kumari, 14 C 290; L R 14 I. A. 1 (10 M I A 196 and 322, referred to)

The Privy council which has seisin of the appeal and not the High Court which passed the decree, has power to stay proceedings in a partition suit after a preliminary decree Under Or XLV, r. 13, the High Court which passed the decree may stay execution of the final decree on special cause being shown.—Lalitesvar Singh v. Bhabeswar Singh, 9 C. L. J. 561 13 C W N. 690. On appeal to the P. C. the proceedings were stayed; see 13 C W. N. cclxxv (275-n).

Cl. (d). "To give such other direction."—Pending an appeal by special leave to the Privy Council, the High Court, on an application by the appellant, for an interim order for continuing a manager under the Encumbered Estates Act until final adjudication, or till respondent furnished proper security, refused it on the ground that the Code gives them no jurisdiction in an appeal not certified by themselves. But the Privy Council, on an application by the appellant ordered stay of proceedings at appellant's request.—Mohesh Chandra v. Satrughan, 4 C. W. N. 34 P. C. 27 C. 1, P. C.

(d) place any party seeking the assistance of the Court under such conditions or give such other direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal, as it thinks fit, by the appointment of a receiver or otherwise. [S. 608.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 608, C P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The words " admitting the appeal " which occurred in the first para. of the old section after the word " Court " have been omitted These words gave rise to a conflict of decisions It was held by the High Court of Bombay that the Court had power, under the old section, to stay the execution of the decree appealed from, after a petition had been presented for leave to appeal but before the appeal was admitted.—Dame Janbai v. Sale Mahomed, 19 B. 10; on the other hand, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that the Court had no such power because the words " admitting the appeal " indicated that no stay could be granted until the appeal was admitted.—Jaroa Kumari v. Gopi Chand, 5 C. The omission of the words " admitting the appeal " now makes it clear that the power conferred by this rule may be exercised at any time after the presentation of the petition, and even before the grant of a certificate for the admission of the appeal.

The words " by the appointment of a receiver or otherwise " have been added in clause (d) By the addition of these words the power of the High Court has been enlarged The other changes are merely verbal.

" The Court."—In this rule and r. 14, " the Court " means the High Court.—Ram Bahadur v. Radha Krishen, 3 Pat L J. 40.

Stay of Execution.—The High Court has inherent power to make an order for stay of execution in view of an application by the judgment-debtor to the Judicial Committee for special leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.—Nanda Kishore v. Ram Golam, 40 C. 955; 18 I. C 207.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 609, C. P Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

15. (1) Whoever desires to obtain execution of any order of His Majesty in Council shall apply by petition, accompanied by a certified copy of the decree passed or order made in appeal and sought to be executed, to the Court from which the appeal to His Majesty was preferred.

Procedure to enforce orderf of King in Council.

(2) Such Court shall transmit the order of His Majesty in Council to the Court which passed the first decree appealed from, or to such other Court as His Majesty in Council by such order may direct, and shall (upon the application of either party) give such directions as may be required for the execution of the same; and the Court to which the said order is so transmitted shall execute it accordingly in the manner and according to the provisions applicable to the execution of its original decrees.

(3) When any monies expressed to be payable in British currency are payable in India under such order, the amount so payable shall be estimated according to the rate of exchange for the time being fixed at the date of the making of the order by the Secretary of State for India in Council with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and the Indian Governments.

(4) Unless His Majesty in Council is pleased otherwise to direct, no order of His Majesty in Council shall be inoperative on the ground that no notice has been served on or given to the legal representative of any deceased opposite party or deceased respondent in a case, where such opposite party or respondent did not appear either at the hearing in the Court whose decree was complained of or at any proceedings subsequent to the decree of that Court, but such order shall have the same force and effect as if it had been made before the death took place. [S 610]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 610 C P Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions

Paras 3—4 of the old section which related to execution of decree against the surety and the proviso attached to it, have been omitted.

The reason for the omission is, that s. 145 of the Code contains provisions for enforcement of decrees against sureties

The word "enforce" or "enforcement," which stood before the words "execute" or "execution" in the old section, have also been omitted

In sub-rule (3) the words "at the date of the making of the order" have been added before the words by the Secretary of State Sub-rule (4) was added by Act XXVI of 1920 in order to prevent delays in the disposal of Privy Council appeals

"Whoever desires to obtain execution."—An application to obtain execution under sub-rule (1) by some of the plaintiffs does not entitle all of them to apply under sub-rule (2) for execution to the Court to which the order of His Majesty in Council is sent for execution under that sub-rule unless the decree was passed in favour of all the plaintiffs jointly—Maharaja Ravaneshwar v Rai Baijnath, 2 Pat L. J. 496; 40 I C 508

Where a party to whom the Order in Council, in accordance with the ordinary practice, was issued, delays or refuses to lodge the order with the High Court, the opponent can apply to the High Court, under cl (1) of this rule, with a certified copy of the order and ask for a summary order on the party to lodge the order which had been entrusted to him so that execution might follow in terms of the judgment of the Board—Sourendra v Hari Prasad, 5 Pat 461: 53 I. A. 80. A I R 1926 P C 31

"Execution."—A person desiring to obtain execution even if it be by way of restitution, must apply in the first instance to the Court indicated by this rule because "execution" includes restitution as stated, in s 144—Damodar Das v Brijlal, 37 A. 567. The provisions of this rule are mandatory so that if the petition is presented to a different Court, the execution application is liable to be dismissed; Bhagwanta v. Zamir, 3 Pat 596· 78 I C 766· A I R 1924 Pat. 576

"To the Court from which the appeal to His Majesty was preferred.—A party in a suit, desirous of executing an order or judgment of Her Majesty in Council, ought to apply to the Court from which the appeal was finally brought to the Queen in Council; and it is the duty of such Court to give directions for executing the decree to the Court of first instance by which the suit was originally tried.—In re Barlow v. Orde, 18 W R. 175.

"Certified copy."—Before a decree-holder in the District Court can obtain execution of a decree which has been affirmed by the Privy Council, he must produce, on th[illegible] a certified copy of the order passed by Her [illegible]ath Sahoo v Judoo Roy, 5 C. 329 4 C I [illegible] [illegible]llowed)

The provisions of this rule are not to be construed as restricting the only admissible evidence of an order of Her Majesty in Council, to a certified copy, on an application for execution made under such rule They must be read as directory, having the object that proper information regarding the order shall be supplied to the Courts in India. When the original order (given to the successful party) had not been filed in the High Court, so as to enable the proper officer to supply a certified copy: held, that a copy, though not certified by him, might accompany a petition for execution under this rule.—Hurish Chunder v. Kali Sunderi, 9 C. 482: 12 C. L R. 511.

Restitution.—Pending an appeal to the Privy Council, certain property, the subject-matter of the appeal, was sold in execution of a money decree against the plaintiff who held the decree of the High Court, under appeal. The defendant's appeal to the Privy Council was decreed. Held, that the successful appellant (defendant) was entitled to recover the property sold by an application under s. 47 read with this section.—Garurdhuj v. Baij Mal, 28 A. 337: 3 A. L J. 110 (26 A. 317 followed; 19 A. 136, 20 A. 139 distinguished)

" Shall transmit."—In receiving and filing for the purpose of execution an order of His Majesty in Council made on appeal from an order or decree of the Court of first instance, the latter Court does not exercise a discretionary power, but performs a function of a purely ministeral character The Court to which an order in Council is transmitted for execution must enforce or execute it in the manner and according to the rules applicable to the execution of its original decrees.—Prem Lall v. Sumbhoo Nath, 22 C. 960, 972; Gooroo Saran v. Hunooman Prashad, 20 W. R. 419; Garurdhuj v. Baij Mal, 28 A. 337, 339

The Court which formerly had, but now no longer has, territorial jurisdiction, ought, when the decree is sent to it, to transfer the decree for execution to the Court which has territorial jurisdiction. 'But the question whether or not the decree ought to be sent direct from the High Court to the Court having territorial jurisdiction was not decided.—Girindra Chunder v Jarawa Kumari, 20 C. 105.

Where a High Court acting under Or. XLV, r. 15 of the C P. Code transmits an order of His Majesty in Council to the first Court for execution, it is competent to the High Court to give directions to pay out the money on taking sufficient security from the decree-holder —Rani Bijai Raj Koer v Thakur Jai Indra, 9 O L J 5 66 I C 982

Though Or XLV, r 15, C P Code, makes it part of the procedure for the enforcement of order of His Majesty in Council that the person desiring to obtain execution of such an order shall obtain its transmission, it is inconvenient, if not impossible, to require that each person interested in the execution of a particular order shall obtain a separate transmission when that order has already been transmitted at the instance of another successful party The fact that a person applying for restitution was not a party to an appeal to the Privy Council does not disentitle him to such relief.—Balusami Iyer v Venkataswami Naicken, 32 M L T 249; 75 I. C. 219.

Rate of Exchange.—Under cl (3) of this rule the amount payable must be estimated at the rate of exchange " for the time being fixed by the Secretary of State for India in Council," and the words "for the time being " mean the year in which the amount is realised or paid or execution taken out, and not the year in which the decree was passed.—Param

Sukh v Ram Dayal, 8 A 650. Dissented from in Dakhina Mohan v. Saroda Mohan, 23 C 357, which has been followed in Mahommed Abdul Hye v Gajrai Sahai, 25 C 283. 2 C. W. N. 89

Costs and Mesne Profits.—It is settled law that where a decree is silent as regards interest or mesne profits subsequent to the institution of the suit, the Court executing the decree cannot assess or give execution for such interest or mesne profits.—Aruna Chellam v. Aruna Chellam, 15 M. 203; Sadasiva Pillay v Ramalinga Pillai, L. R 2 I. A. 219: 15 B. L R 383. 24 W R 193.

Execution of a decree for possession merely of certain land having been stayed and the defendant, pending an appeal to the Privy Council, continued in possession by the High Court, upon his giving security for the "due performance of such order as might be made by the Privy Council," the appeal was subsequently dismissed, no order being made as to mesne-profits. Held, that the decree-holder was entitled to mesne profits from the date of the decree until he was put in possession and that the amount of such mesne-profits should be determined by the execution department —Gogun Chunder v Laidlay, 5 C L. R. 189 (15 B L R 383, L R 2 I. A 219, and 24 W. R. 193 referred to).

When the Privy Council decrees not only a certain specified sum as the costs of the appeal to England, but also awards the costs incurred in the Courts in India, the decree-holder is entitled to the costs of translating the record of the appeal and of transmitting it to England.—Asgur Ali v Nogendro Chunder, 23 W R 463, Madan Thakur v Lopez, 9 B L R App 22 18 W R 253, Umatul Fatima v. Azhur Ali, 9 B L R Ap 23-note 15 W R. 356, Saroda Prasad v. Luchmipat Singh, 9 B. L. R. 23-note 18 W R 89, and Nil Madhub v. Bissumbhur, 21 W. R. 411.

Costs of printing and translation, certified by the Deputy Registrar of the High Court, are a necessary part of the costs of an appeal to the Privy Council The amount of such costs is left to be ascertained by the High Court, and is not assessed by the Privy Council office —Ram Coomer v Prosunno Coomer, 10 C 106.

A party to a suit whose case has been dismissed in both the lower Courts with costs, is entitled, when the decrees of the lower Courts are reversed by the Privy Council and the case remanded for re-trial, to apply for a refund of the costs already paid under the decrees of the lower Courts, but not for interest on such costs. Such an application need not be made to the Privy Council, but may be made to the Court in which the suit was instituted.—Dorab Ally v. Abdool Azeez, 4 C. 220: 3 C L R 358

Limitation for Execution of Decree of the Privy Council.—An application for execution under this rule is governed by Art. 183 of the Limitation Act —Tribikram v Badri, 1 Pat. L. J. 385; Chutter Pat Singh v. Saita, 20 C. W. N 889 Where an appeal is preferred to the Privy Council from the decree of a High Court, but the appeal is dismissed for want of prosecution, the order of the Judicial Committee does not amount to a decree for purposes of limitation or for any other purpose —Abdul Majid v. Jawahir Ali, 36 A 350 P. C.; Batuk Nath v. Munni De, 36 A. 284: L. R. 41 I. A. 104.

As to the mode of enforcement, attestation and registration of security bond, see notes under s. 145.

Letters Patent Appeal.—An order of a judge presiding over the Privy Council Department in the High Court, rejecting an application for execution, is a final order, and is a judgment within the meaning of clause (15) of the Charter, and is therefore appealable. Per Garth, C. J.—That the duties of a Judge in dealing with the meaning of decrees of the Privy Council are purely ministerial, and that any order made in such capacity is not appealable.—Hurrish Chunder v. Kally Sundari, 9 C. 482: L. R. 10 I. A 4.

Interest on Costs.—No interest on costs can be allowed by any Court in this country where it is not allowed by the Privy Council.—Dakhina v. Saroda, 23 C 357; Forester v Secy. of State, L R 4 I. A 137 3 C 161.

16. The orders made by the Court which executes the order of His Majesty in Council, relating to such execution, shall be appealable in the same manner and subject to the same rules as the orders of such Court relating to the execution of its own decrees.

Appeal from order relating to execution.

[S. 611.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 611, C P Code, 1882 with some omissions and alterations The words "enforce" and "enforcement," which occurred in the old section before the words "execute" and "execution," have been omitted The other alterations are merely verbal.

ORDER XLVI

REFERENCE.

Reference of question to High Court.

1. Where, before or on the hearing of a suit or an appeal i which the decree is not subject to appeal, c where, in the execution of any such decree any question of law or usage having the force of law arises, on which the Court trying the suit or appeal, o executing the decree, entertains reasonable doubt, the Court may either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties, draw up a statement of the facts of the case and the point on which doubt is entertained, and refer such statement with its own opinion on the point for the decision of the High Court.

[S. 617.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 617, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions; it should be read with s 113

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" wherever it occurred in the old section. The words "not subject to appeal" have been substituted for the word "final," which occurred in the old section. The word "final" means, conclusive or decisive, that is, not open to review or revision; hence the words "not subject to appeal" have been substituted for it.

The words "on the construction of a document, which construction may affect the merits," have been omitted. The reason for the ommission will appear from the following Report of the Special Committee.

The words "on the constrution of a document, which construction may affect the merits," have been omitted, as they appear to be sufficiently covered by the power to refer any question of law.

Necessary Conditions of Reference—Reasonable Doubt.—A reference under this rule can only be made when the Judge trying the suit entertains a reasonable doubt on a question of law or usage having the force of law and he cannot ordinarily entertain a reasonable doubt on point of law clearly decided by the rulings of the High Court of his Presidency unless the authority of the decision can be questioned by virtue of anything said or decided in Privy Council.—Bhanaji Raoji v. Joseph De Brito, 30 B. 226: 7 Bom. L R. 995 (21 B. 198 referred to). See also, Naru Koli v Chima Bhosle, 13 B. 51. Fillingham v. Dunn, (1914) Punj Rec. No. 8 p. 22; 20 I. C. 198 If the Court has no reasonable doubt, it should not make a reference merely because it is asked to make one.—Daroodjee v. Municipality of Rangoon, 1 R. 220: 76 I C. 519: A I. R. 1923 Rang 193.

Order XLVI, r. 1 applies when doubts arise in the proceeding of a suit or appeal, or execution or other proceeding. This rule was not intended to provide for suppositious cases which do not naturally arise in a proper proceeding before the Court.—Mahammad Haji v. Ahmadbhai, 25 B. 327. See, Harish Chundra v. O'Brien, 14 W. R 248.

The High Court can only express its opinion upon a matter referred to it when three conditions have been complied with. (1) that the Court referring the matter entertains a reasonable doubt upon some question of law, (2) that it states what the point is upon which the doubt is entertained, and (3) that it gives a statement of the facts containing an expression of opinion on the point which is referred to the decision of the High Court.—Garling v. Secretary of State, 30 C. 458

" In which the decree is not subject to appeal."—A reference to the High Court is authorized by this rule only when the decree is not subject to appeal.—Rangji v Bhaiji, 11 B 57, Krishna v. Ram Kumar, 7 C. L R. 144; Secy. of State v Fazal, 18 C. 234, Oriental Loan Association Ltd. v. Hatch, 17 B. 735; Mahant v Chudasama, 12 B 30.

Where therefore, the applicant presented an application to a Sub-Judge praying that the adjustment of certain decrees might be certified, and the Sub-Judge being of opinion that the application could not be granted, inasmuch as the execution of the decree was then barred by limitation, referred the case to the High Court under this rule. Held, that the question could not be referred to, as the order applied for to the Sub-Judge was appealable under ss 2 and 47 of the Code.—Ranji v Bhaiji Harijivan, 11 B 57.

A question arising in execution of a decree cannot be referred for the decision of the High Court under s 617, C. P. Code, 1882, except where the decree is final.—Oriental Loan Association v Hatch, 17 B 735, Mahant v Chudasama, 12 B 30

It is only when a matter cannot come before the High Court as a Court of Appeal that a reference can be made under s 617, C P Code, 1882.—Krishna Nath v Ram Kumar, 7 C L R 144, Secy of State v Fazal, 18 C. 234.

A Munsif, being of opinion that he had no jurisdiction to entertain a particular suit, made an order returning the plaint for presention to the proper Court The District Judge, on appeal entertaining a doubt upon the question of jurisdiction, made a reference under this rule Held that, as the order of the Munsif is an appealable order and not a final decree in the suit, the High Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the reference — Ram Phul v. Durga, 7 A 815

A bail-bond was executed to a Munsif, who expressed no doubt as to the amount of duty to be paid, and made no application to have the case referred The District Judge referred the case to the High Court. Held, that the District Judge was not authorized to make the reference — Reference under Stamp Act, 1879, 11 M 38

The order made by a District Judge on an application for probate, not being a final order, cannot be referred for the opinion of the High Court under s. 617, C. P. Code, 1882.—In the matter of Monohur Mookerji, 5 C. 756: 7 C. L. R 228

The question as to the amount of security required on granting an application to stay execution is a question relating to execution as contemplated by s. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (s. 47), and therefore an order determining that question is appealable under s. 2, C. P. Code, 1882, and no reference would lie under this rule.—Ishwargar v. Chudasama, 12 B. 30

Reference Not Authorised by this Rule.—Or. XLVI, r. 1, does not authorize a reference, except on a point arising in a litigation between the parties in a suit, or appeal, or in a matter wherein the Court is called on to adjudicate, that is, to pronounce on the opposite pretensions of contending parties. An enquiry into the professional conduct of a pleader with reference to a case cannot be a proper subject of reference under this rule.—Yeshvant Narayan v. DeSouza, 12 B. 78; Mahammad v. Ahmadbhai, 25 B 327. Nor can any reference be made in a proceeding other than a suit or an appeal in a suit even by virtue of the provisions of s 141 above.—Damodara v. Kittappa, 36 M 16: 10 I. C. 879; Tencred v. Mullick, 29 C. W. N. 591: A. I R. 1925 Cal. 391. 84 I C. 543

This rule merely authorizes the reference of such questions as may arise in the trial of the suit, and not of questions arising on an application for a review of judgment, which cannot in any sense be considered as the trial of a suit.—Bonomally v. Ram Sodoy, 17 W. R. 94 and 95

The Full Bench of a Presidency Court of Small Causes cannot state a case for the opinion of the High Court on an application for a new trial made under s 37 of Act XV of 1882.—Oakshott v. The British India Steam Navigation Co., 15 M. 179.

This rule does not contemplate a reference as to the proper Court fee payable on memorandum of appeal.—Pir Boksh v Faiz Mahomed, (1906) A. W N. 180

The High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Sub-Judge with Small Cause Court powers. The judgment of the High Court in such a case is not a decree or order, but it is simply a statement of the grounds in conformity with which the lower Court is to dispose of the case.—Ram Chunder v. Sitaram, 14 B 68

Practice and Procedure on Reference.—In making a reference under this rule, the precise question of law or usage having the force of law must be formulated; a general question without stating the precise question arising in the case should not be referred.—Ralli Brothers v. Goculbhai Mulchand, 15 B. 376 See also Ishwardas v. Kalidas, 20 B. 779.

A party requiring a judge to make a reference to the High Court, must do so before the Judge has delivered his judgment.—Bank of Bengal v. Byabhoy Gangji, 16 B. 618

The Small Cause Court passed a decree for the plaintiff, but contingent upon the opinion of the High Court, which decided that the plaintiff could not recover: Held, that the Small Cause Court, on receipt of the copy of the judgment of the High Court, was bound to enter judgment for the defendant.—Yule & Co v. Mahomed Hossein, 24 C. 129: 1 C. W. N. 71. Dissented from in 25 C. 505: 2 C W. N. 283.

On a reference under ss. 617 and 647, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLVI, r. 1 and s. 141), held, that the word 'land' includes land covered by a house, and consequently a suit for house-rent, unless due under a written contract signed by a defendant is not cognizable in a village Munsif's Court. —Narayanamma v. Kamakshamma, 20 M. 21.

When, upon an application for a new trial, the Judges of the Presidency Small Cause Court differ in their opinion as to any question of law, and the majority without ordering a new trial reverse the decree of the judge who tried the suit, the Court is bound to state a case for the opinion of the High Court under s. 69 of Act XV of 1882.—Seshammal v Munusami, 20 M. 358.

On a reference to the High Court under s. 617, C P. Code, 1882, by a Court of Small Causes, held, that ss 27, 28 and 29 of the Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879) do not relate to any arrangements or agreement made between a litigant and his own pleader as to the receipt of the fees which are actually allowed upon taxation.—Raziuddin v. Karim Bakhsh, 12 A. 169 (9 M. 375 followed).

A reference to the High Court under this rule is not bad, merely because it arises out of the action taken by a third person not a party to the suit. In this case the reference was made at the instance of the Collector, who was not a party to the suit —Purshottam v Balvant, 32 B. 157: 10 Bom L R 13· 3 M L .T 135.

Court may pass decree contingent upon decision of the High Court.

2. The Court may either stay the proceedings or proceed in the case notwithstanding such reference, and may pass a decree or make an order contingent upon the decision of the High Court on the point referred;

but no decree or order shall be executed in any case in which such reference is made until the receipt of a copy of the judgment of the High Court upon the reference [S. 618.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 618, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations

In para 1, the words " make an " have been added before the word " order;" and the word " decision " has been substituted for the word " opinion," which occurred in the old section, before the words " of the High Court."

In para. 2, the words " but no decree or order shall be executed," have been substituted for the words " but no execution shall be issued, property sold, or person imprisoned," which occurred in the old section.

3. The High Court, after hearing the parties if they appear and desire to be heard, shall decide the point so referred, and shall transmit a copy of its judgment, under the signature of the Registrar, to the Court by which the reference was made, and such Court shall, on the receipt thereof, proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with the decision of the High Court. [S. 619.]

Judgment of High Court to be transmitted, and case disposed of accordingly.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to section 619, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modification.

"After hearing the parties."—The words "after hearing the parties if they appear and desire to be heard," have been substituted for the words "shall hear the parties to the case in which the reference is made, in person or by their respective pleaders," which occurred in the old section The alteration in the language seems to have been made to make it clear that the parties may be heard only when they appear and desire to be heard; but according to the wording of the old section it was incumbent upon the High Court to hear the parties even if they had not appeared

"Dispose of the case."—The Calcutta Small Cause Court passed a decree for the plaintiff but contingent upon the opinion of the High Court, which decided that the plaintiffs could not recover The judgment of the High Court was transmitted to the Small Cause Court, and the Small Cause Court Judge, instead of entering judgment for the defendants, allowed the suit to be withdrawn by the plaintiffs with liberty to bring a fresh suit. Held, on revision, that the Small Cause Court on receipt of the copy of the judgment from the High Court was bound to enter judgment for the defendant and to dispose of the case in conformity with the decision of the High Court.—Yule & Co. v Mahomed Hossein, 24 C. 120

The High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Small Cause Court. The judgment of the High Court in such a case is not a decree or order, but is simply a statement of the ground in conformity with which the lower Court is to dispose of the case as provided by this rule —Ramchandra v Sitaram, 10 B. 68

4. The costs (if any) consequent on a reference for the decision of the High Court shall be costs in the case. [S. 620.]

Costs of reference to High Court.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 620, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations

The word "the" has been added in the beginning, and the word "decision" has been substituted for the word "opinion," which occurred in the old section.

Costs.—Under this rule the cost of a reference to the High Court cannot be dealt with separately, but must be dealt with when awarding the costs of the suit. They are, however, in the discretion of the Court, and need not necessarily follow the event of the suit.—Nicol v. Mathura Dass, 15 C. 507.

Power to alter, etc. decree of Court making reference.

5. Where a case is referred to the High Court under r. 1, the High Court may return the case for amendment, and may alter, cancel or set aside any decree or order which the Court making the reference has passed or made in the case out of which the reference arose, and make such order as it thinks fit. [S. 621]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 621, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "when," and the words "or made," have been added after the word "passed."

"For Amendment."—Where the three conditions mentioned in Or XLVI, r. 1, are not complied with, the High Court can under this rule return the case to the lower Court for amendment —Garling v. Secretary of State, 30 C 458.

Power to refer to High Court question as to jurisdiction in small causes

6. (1) Where at any time before judgment a Court in which a suit has been instituted doubts whether the suit is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes or is not so cognizable, it may submit the record to the High Court with a statement of its reasons for the doubt as to the nature of the suit.

(2) On receiving the record and statement, the High Court may order the Court either to proceed with the suit or to return the plaint for presentation to such other Court as it may in its order declare to be competent to take cognizance of the suit [S. 646-A.]

COMMENTARY.

This section corresponds to section 646-A of the C P Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only

"At any time before judgment."—A reference under Or XLVI, r 6, can only be made before judgment —Ducali Bai v. Sadashirdas, 24 B. 310

Power to District Court to submit for revision proceedings had under mistake as to jurisdiction in small causes.

7. (1) Where it appears to a District Court that a Court subordinate thereto has, by reason of erroneously holding a suit to be cognizable by a Court of Small Causes or not to be so cognizable, failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law, or exercised a jurisdiction not so vested, the District Court may, and if required by a party shall, submit the record to the High Court with a statement of its reasons for considering the opinion of the subordinate Court with respect to the nature of the suit to be erroneous.

(2) On receiving the record and statement, the High Court may make such order in the case as it thinks fit.

(3) With respect to any proceedings subsequent to decree in any case submitted to the High Court under this rule, the High Court may make such order as in the circumstance appears to it to be just and proper.

(4) A Court subordinate to a District Court shall comply with any requisition which the District Court may make for any record or information for the purposes of this rule. [S. 646-B.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 646-B with some verbal changes only.

Applicability of this Rule.—This rule does not apply to every case in which a Court of Small Causes has failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law or has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law but only to a restricted number of such cases, namely, those cases, in which a Court of Small Causes has erroneously held a suit to be, or not to be cognizable by it Where no question as to Court's jurisdiction was raised by either party, and the Court proceeded to judgment as if the case was properly cognizable by it, the High Court refused to interfere upon a reference under this rule —Ram Lall v. Kabul Singh, 25 A. 135

Small Cause suit tried as ordinary suit by both the lower Courts—Or XLVI, r. 7 is an enabling rule and does not cut down the jurisdiction of the Appellate tribunal —Sri Raja Simhadri v. Chelasane Bhaadrayya, 30 M 41 1 M L T 414.

A plaint in a small cause suit was returned under s. 23 of Act IX of 1887, for presentation in the ordinary Civil Court, which tried the suit and passed a decree On appeal the decree was reversed on the ground that the Munsif had no jurisdiction to try the suit. Held, that, having regard to ss. 646-A and 646-B of the Code, 1882 (Or. XLVI, rr. 6 and 7) it is doubtful whether the Appellate Court would have been right in dismissing the suit for want of jurisdiction.—Mahamaya v. Nety Hari, 23 C. 425.

Powers of High Court under this Rule.—Notwithstanding s. 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts' Act, the High Court has, on a case being submitted to it under this rule, full power to consider the matter of jurisdiction, or to deal with it on the merits, so as to do substantial justice without putting the parties to the expense of a fresh trial. Where a suit cognizable by a Small Cause Court was tried both in the Munsif's and District Judge's Courts without objection to the jurisdiction, held, on a second appeal to the High Court that this rule must be read with s. 16 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, so as to modify its full effect in the case wrongly tried by an ordinary Civil Court, and taken in appeal to the District Court.—Suresh Chunder v Kristo Rangini, 21 C 249 (1 C. 123: 24 W. R. 478 referred to) Followed in Parameshwaran v Vishnu (27 M. 478: 26 M 176 not followed). See also, Parameshwari v. Jagat, 19 C. W. N 900 A contrary view was however taken by the Madras High Court in Kollipara v Kankipati, 33 M. 323 F. B, in which it has been held that the High Court should in such a case set aside the decree of the District Court as having been made without jurisdiction and then dispose of the case on the merits either restoring or not restoring the decree passed by the Munsif as may in its discretion appear best. The same view was adopted by the Bombay High Court in Sankarbhai v Soonabhai, 25 B 417. The Allahabad High Court, in Abdul Majid v. Bidyadhar, 39 A. 101, followed the above Full Bench decision of the Madras High Court in 33 M. 323 F B

The Court should State its Reasons.—When a reference is made to the High Court under this rule, the Court which makes it should state its reasons for considering the opinion of the Subordinate Court with respect to the nature of the suit to be erroneous —Chhotu v Jawahir, 28 A. 293; 3 A. L J. 23.

" District Court shall submit, if required by a party."—Where a Small Cause Court Judge returned a plaint, for presentation to a Munsif, who again returned it, being of opinion that the suit was cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and the plaintiff then applied to the District Judge to submit the record for the orders of the High Court. Held, that the District Judge was bound under this rule on the requisition of the plaintiff, to submit the record, although the plaintiff might have appealed to the District Judge against the order of the Munsif —Simson v Mc Master, 13 M 344 See also, Suresh Chunder v Kristo Rangini, 21 C 249 (251)

Before a District Court can make reference under this rule it must be of opinion that the Subordinate Court has erroneously held upon the point of jurisdiction in regard to the particular suit before it, and that, therefore, the matter is one in which the interference of the High Court should be sought. The word " shall " in s. 646-B, clause (1) C P Code, 1882 (Or. XLVI, r 7) is not mandatory, but directory —Madan Gopal v Bhagwan Das, 11 A 304

It would appear from the above rulings that there is a difference of opinion between the Calcutta and Madras High Courts on one side and the Allahabad High Court on the other The Calcutta and the Madras High Courts holding that the Judge is bound to make the reference if required by a party; the Allahabad High Court has held that the word " shall " in this rule is not mandatory but directory.

ORDER XLVII

REVIEW.

Application for review of judgment.

1. (1) Any person considering himself aggrieved—

(a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal has been preferred,

(b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed, or

(c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, and who, from the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence, was not within his knowledge or could not be produced by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made or on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or for any other sufficient reason, desires to obtain a review of the decree passed or order made against him, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order.

(2) A party who is not appealing from a decree or order may apply for a review of judgment notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal by some other party except where the ground of such appeal is common to the applicant and the appellant, or when, being respondent, he can present to the Appellate Court the case on which he applies for the review. [S. 623.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 623, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. It should be read with s. 114. The word "hereby," which stood before the word "allowed" in clauses (a) and (b) of the old section, has been omitted; and in clause (c) the word "decision" has been substituted for the word "judgment." The words, "or to the Court (if any) to which the business of the former Court has been transferred," which occurred in the old section after the words "to the Court which passed the decree or made the order," have been omitted. This omission seems to have been made probably in view of s. 150 of the present Code (See, 35 C. 974; 12 C. W. N. 859).

In sub-rule (2), the word "order" has been added after the word "decree."

An application for review in a suit under the B. T. Act or under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act shall not be admitted, unless a deposit of the decretal amount is made See, s. 153-A of Act I of 1907 B. C. and Act of 1908 E B Assam Tenancy Amendment Act; and s. 17 of the Provincial S. C. Courts Act.

Application for Review of Judgment.—Any person considering himself aggrieved by a decree or a decision as stated in clauses (a), (b) or (c) of sub-r. (1) is competent to apply for a review of judgment on any of the following grounds. (1) on the ground of the discovery of new and important matter or evidence which, after the exercise of due diligence was not within the knowledge of such person or could not be procured by him at the time when the decree was passed or order made, or (2) on account of some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, or (3) for any other sufficient reason.

Petition of Review Involves Three Stages.—A petition of review involves three stages of procedure The first stage commences ordinarily with an ex parte application under this rule The Court may then either reject the application at once, or may grant a rule calling on the other side to show cause why the review should not be granted. In the second stage, the rule may either be admitted or rejected and the hearing of the rule may involve to some extent an investigation into the merits. If the rule is discharged then the case ends If, on the other hand, the rule is made absolute then the third stage is reached The case is re-heard on the merits and may result in a repetition of the former decree or in some variation of it. In either case, the whole matter having been re-opened, there is a fresh decree.—Vadi Lal v. Ful Chand, 30 B. 56· 7 Bom. L. R 664; until that fresh decree is passed, the old decree remains in suspense —Achut v Tapibai, 48 B 210 79 I C 753 A I. R 1924 Bom. 310.

" Any person considering himself aggrieved.''—This means a party to the suit against whom a decision has been pronounced, who has suffered some actual loss, or legal grievance, or derogation of some right, or who has failed to obtain some right, title or interest to which he is entitled directly as a matter of legal right It does not mean any person who is disappointed of benefit which he might have received if some other order had been made —Jhabbal Lal v. Shib Charan, 15 A L. J 1. But when defendants having separate interests bring separate second appeals which are dismissed, the Court cannot, on an application for review on the part of two of them, modify the decrees in which there is no application of review.—Pegoo Jan v Waizoodeen, 18 W R. 464.

" By a decree or order.''—An order under Or XXXIII, r 7, refusing leave to sue as a pauper is open to review under this rule —Adarji v Manilji, 4 B 414; so is an order rejecting an application for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council —Nand Kishore v Ram Gulam, 39 C 1037; 16 C. W N. 1089; so is an ex parte order granting letters of administration.—Parman v Nekram, 13 A L J. 441; and an order as to costs —Braja v Jagannath, 6 Pat L J. 284· 63 I C 768. But an order under s 39 (h) of the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, is not open to review —Balla v. Manglan, 116 P R 1912; nor is an order dismissing a second appeal under Or. XLI, r. 11, C P Code.—Rajani v.

Kali Prasanna, 41 C. 809. The provisions of this rule are applicable to an Insolvency Court.—Challa Abtireddi v. Challa Venkatareddi, 51 M. L. J. 60: 94 I. C 351

" By a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed."—This rule clearly shows that not only is an application for review by a party who has already appealed disallowed by that rule, but even in the case of a party not appealing no review lies when there is an appeal by some other party on a common ground, or where the former as a respondent is in a position to bringing before the Appellate Court the matter to be reviewed The manifest intention of the provision is to avoid a conflict of jurisdiction and to prevent any action on the part of the inferior Court which would have the effect of controlling the powers of the higher Court with reference to the matter actually under appeal. Though a party who has applied for a review is not precluded from appealing, the Code does not provide for the procedure to be followed when an appeal is preferred after the review. Of course both the proceedings cannot go on simultaneously. If the review proceeding is to be continued and the appeal stayed, expediency would require that the party affected by the final order in the review should be enabled to obtain a remedy in the pending appeal notwithstanding that such remedy would be in respect of what was not in existence on the date of the appeal.—Ramanadhan Chetti v Narayanan Chetty, 27 M. 602 (606): 14 M. L. J. 321

Clause (a). " From which an appeal is allowed but from which no appeal has been preferred."—Sub-rule (1) of this rule provides that any person considering himself aggrieved by a decree from which an appeal is allowed, but from which no appeal is preferred, may apply for a review of a judgment to the Court which passed the decree. Hence an application for a review of a decree after an appeal has been preferred against it, is not maintainable; Muhammad Yusaf v. Raja Ram, 35 I. C. 13; Raja Indrajit Pratap v. Amar Singh, 2 Pat. 676 F. C. A party against whom a decree has been passed is precluded, after dismissal of his appeal under Or. XLI, r. 11, from applying for a review. Ramappa v. Bharma, 30 B 625: 8 Bom L R 842. If an appeal is dismissed for default and an application under Or. XLI, r. 19 has become time-barred, review is incompetent —Manphul Singh v. Hakim Hamid Ali, 21 A. L J 416. 74 I. C. 528: A. I. R. 1923 All. 576. But after an appeal is withdrawn, the Court from whose decree the appeal was preferred, has jurisdiction to entertain an application to review its judgment. An appeal which has been withdrawn must be treated as if it had never been " preferred " within the meaning of this rule.—Pandu v. Devji, 7 B 289; Ram Prasad v. Asaram, 43 A. 228. 61 I C. 334, Mariamunnissa v Baluram. 45 A. 458: 73 I. C. 1016: A. I. R. 1923 All. 541; Rambaran v. Bhagwati, 47 A. 751: 89 I. C. 295: A I. R. 1925 All. 804; Madhori v Parbati, 47 A. 881: 88 I. C. 653. A. I. R. 1925 All. 552.

Filing of Appeal Pending Application for Review.—Where after the presentation of an application for review, by a party to the suit, an appeal is preferred from the same decree, whether by the same party or by the other party to the suit, the Court to which the application for review is made, is not thereby deprived of its jurisdiction to entertain the application.—Chuma Reddi v. Peddaobi Reddi, 32 M 416: 2 I. C. 802 F. B.;

Narayan v. Laxmibai, 38 B. 416: 23 I. C. 513; Pyari Mohan v. Kalu Khan, 44 C. 1011: 41 I. C. 497. But that power exists so long as the appeal is not heard, because once the appeal is heard, the decree on appeal is the final decree in the case, and the application for review of judgment of the Court of first instance can no longer be proceeded with.—Pyari Mohan v. Kalu Khan, 44 C. 1011: 41 I. C. 497; Gour v. Nil Madhab, 36 C. L. J. 84: 73 I. C. 34: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 113; Shivappa v. Ram Chandra, 46 B. 1: 63 I. C. 910: A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 130. If, on the other hand, the application for review is granted and a new decree is passed, the appeal cannot be heard and it must be dismissed because the decree appealed from is superseded by the new decree.—Kanhaiya Lal v. Baldeo Prasad, 28 A. 240; Brijbasi v. Saligram, 34 A. 282; Pyari Mohan v. Kalu Khan, 44 C. 1011.

Review of Small Cause Court Decree.—The provisions of s. 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act as to the deposit of costs on an application for review are not mandatory, but merely directory.—Ramsami v. Kurisu, 13 M. 178. But see, Jogi Ahir v. Bisen Dyal, 18 C. 83. See, however, 32 C. 339: 1 C. L. J. 43: 8 C. W. N. 355

An application for a review of judgment by the High Court on a reference from a Small Cause Court, was not admissible under the Code of 1859.—Doyle v Kosal, 3 W R. S C. C. Ref. 8.

The High Court has no power to review a judgment passed by it on a reference from a Sub-Judge with Small Cause Court powers. Clause (c) of s 623, C. P Code, 1882, (Or. XLVII, r 1), allows of a review of judgment, on a reference only from a Court of Small Causes —Ramchandra v Sitaram, 10 B. 68.

The Judge of a mofusil Small Cause Court may grant an application for a review of judgment under the Civil Procedure Code.—Isan Chunder v. Luchun Gopi, 5 C 699, 5 C. L R. 539. See also, Ratan Krishen v. Raghunath, 8 C. 287: 10 C. L. R. 275; Madan Mohan v Purno Chandra, 10 C. 297 (in which distinction between new trial and review pointed out).

Review of Ex Parte Decree.—It is competent to a party against whom an ex parte decree has been made to apply for review of judgment —Mutto v. Ilahi Begum, 6 A 65; Poresh Nath v. Khettro Monee, 20 W. R. 284; Ali Azim v. Ram Manick, 12 W. R. 195; Hari Hur v. Buddu, 13 C. L. R. 254. See also, Amir Hasan v. Ahmad Ali, 9 A. 36, and Ramchandra v. Droupadi, 20 B 281

Review from Order of Dismissal for Default.—When a suit is dismissed under s. 98, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or IX, r 8), it can only be restored under s. 99 of that Code (Or. IX, r 4). A Court has no jurisdiction under this rule to reinstate the case, where a person by his own negligence allowed his rights under s 99, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r 4), to be barred.—Koilash Mondul v Nabadwip Chandra, 2 C W N 318 See, however, Rajnarain v. Ananga Mohan, 26 C 598, where it has been held that a Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for review under this rule in a suit dismissed for default under s. 102, C P Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r 8), without any previous application to have the order of dismissal set aside under s 103, C. P Code, 1882 (Or. IX, r 9)

For distinction between review and revival, see, Jonardan Dobey v. Ramdhone, 23 C. 738 (760 and 764).

Review of Consent and Compromise Decree.—When a consent decree is sought to be attacked on the ground of fraud, misrepresentation, mistake, coercion or undue influence, or any similar grounds, the appropriate remedy is by a suit although on the terms of this rule, as also on the authorities, it cannot be said that a Court has no jurisdiction to review a consent decree —Mirali Rahimbhoy v. Rehmobhoy, 15 B. 491; Fool Coomary v Woodoy, 25 C. 649; Barhamdeo v. Banarsi, 3 C L J. 119; Golab Koer v. Badshah Bahadur, 10 C. L. J. 420: 13 C. W. N 1197

The ground that fraud was practised upon a party in connection with a petition of compromise upon which a decree was made is a good ground for review A mistake in the matter of copying out the petition of compromise may not, by itself, fall within the scope of this rule but taking it with other ground stated above it might be a good ground of review.—Rasik Chandra v. Rajani Ranjan, 10 C W. N. 286 (Referred to in Chandra Mohan v Prosunna Kumar, 64 I C. 259).

A person who wishes to displace a decree passed in terms of a compromise to which she was a party on the ground that she affixed her signature to the compromise at the instance of an agent in ignorance of its contents, can either apply for a review of the decree or institute a separate suit for the purpose; the affixing of signature in ignorance of the contents of the document is "new and important matter" within the meaning of Or. XLVII, r. 1, C. P. Code.—Alamelu Ammal v. Rama Iyer, 43 M L J. 290: A I. R 1922 Mad. 446.

A Court has no jurisdiction under Or. XLVII, r. 1, to review a compromise decree on the ground that the compromise had been procured by undue influence or coercion and that subsequent to the decree that compromise has been repudiated A Court's power to review its order depends on a ground which existed on the date when the order was made and cannot be exercised on a ground which has came into existence subsequently —Nathulal v. Raghubir, 48 A. 160: 23 A. L. J. 1029: A. I. R. 1926 All. 50.

Discovery of New and Important Matter or Evidence.—The Code of Civil Procedure permits applications for review, on the ground of discovery of new and important evidence, but exacts very strict conditions, so as to prevent litigants lying on their oars when they ought to be looking for evidence. It enjoins the Judge to require the facts as to the absence of the negligence to be strictly proved, and makes the Judge who tried the case final on such application. Where such an application for review was refused by the original Court, but the Court of Appeal, upon a special and preliminary application and before hearing the appeal on the merits, made an order for the admission of the further evidence, held, that the Appellate Court's order was without jurisdiction —Kesowji v The G. I. P Ry. Co, 31 B. 281, P. C.; 11 C. W. N 721· 6 C L. J. 5: 17 M L J. 347: 4 A. L. J. 461.

A review of judgment, on the ground of discovery of new evidence not within the applicant's knowledge at the hearing of the case, should not be admitted without proof of the truth of the ground alleged.—Umrao Thakur

v. Gokul Mundul, 8 B. L. R. Ap. 34; 16 W. R. 7; Nolita Mohan v. Dinonath, 13 B. L. R. 427-note, Khelat Chander v. Pran Kisto, 11 B. L. R. 428-note; 12 W. C 49; Brojendro Coomar v. Wise, 19 W R 130; Nissa Bibee v Abdoor Ruhman, 18 W. R. 413. The " discovery of new and important evidence " in Or. XLVII, r 1, would refer only to a discovery made since the order sought to be reviewed was passed.—Musst. Tribeni v Mohan Lal, (1922) A. 366: 66 I. C. 558.

A Court's power to review its order depends on a ground which existed on the date when the order was made and cannot be exercised on a ground which had come into existence subsequently.—Nathu Lal v. Raghubir, 48 A. 160. 23 A. L J. 1029: A. I. R. 1926 All. 50; Katagiri Venkata v. Vellanki, 24 M. 1 · 27 I. A. 197 P. C.. 4 C. W. N. 725; Balwant Rao v Farid Sahib, A. I. R 1926 Nag. 10.

A judgment delivered after the passing of the decree sought to be reviewed is no material on which an application for review can be based; for " the new and important matter " alleged to have been discovered must have existed at the date of the decree.—Kaliprasanna v. Bhagabati, 64 I. C 324.

The words " or could not be produced by him at the time " in Or. XLVII, r. 1, C P Code, must refer to the words which precede, namely, " was not within his knowledge." The whole clause means that the new and important matters alleged by the applicant were not within his knowledge and as such could not have been produced by him at the trial.—Rameshwardhari v. Sadho Saran, 75 I. C. 91.

When a review is sought on the ground of the discovery of new evidence, the evidence must be relevant and of such character that if it had been given in the suit it might possibly have altered the judgment —In re Appa Rao, 10 M. 73, 77 · L R 13 I. A. 155, Nandalal v. Panchanan, 45 C 60 (67-68) But the discovery of evidence not originally available tending to prove that a decree had been obtained by perjury is ground for an application for review.—Munshi Mosaful v. Surendra, 16 C. W. N 1002; Abdul Huq v. Abdul Hafi, 14 C. W. N. 695, Lakshmi v. Nur Ali, 38 C. 936 15 C. W. N 1010.

If a suit is dismissed on two grounds and the plaintiff applies for a review on the discovery of new evidence on one of the grounds only, the application ought to be rejected —Mahabir v Collector of Allahabad, 36 A. 277.

The High Court will not accept a review of a judgment in a Second appeal dismissed under Or. XLI, r 11, C P Code, on the ground that new evidence to prove a fact has been discovered —Sailabala v. Gadadhar, 36 C. L. J. 76

As a general rule, the discovery of new evidence is not a ground for the admission of a review of a judgment passed in special appeal. When new evidence is discovered, the proper course for the appellant to adopt is to withdraw his special appeal, and, apply to the lower Court for a review of its judgment.—Nanabhai v. Nathabhai, 9 Bom. H. C 89 Followed in Ram Chandra v. Krishnaji, 28 B. 4. See also, Pandurang v. Moro Bhasudev, 6 Bom H. C. 68; Pandu v. Revji, 7 B 287; and Raru Kutti v Ramad, 18 M. 480.

The High Court cannot, in a second appeal, entertain an application for a review of judgment based on the ground that, since the disposal of the appeal, documentary evidence has been discovered which if sufficiently proved, would have led the Court below to come to a different finding, although had such evidence been discovered before the disposal of the appeal the Court might have allowed the appellant to withdraw the appeal with a view to apply to the lower appellate Court for a review of judgment on the discovery of fresh evidence.—Marianunnaissa v. Babu Ram, 45 A 458: 21 A. L. J. 377.

The decision of the Privy Council in an appeal is "new and important matter" for the purposes of an application for review in respect of a decree made on a subsequent accrual of the same cause of action as that on which the decree appealed against was barred.—Waghela v. Masludin, 13 B. 330; Ramlal v. Kalka, 33 A. 566; Waman v. Hari, 31 B. 128.

The production of a new ruling or authority, which if brought to the notice of the Judge at the first hearing might have altered the judgment is "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule.—Ellem v. Bashu, 1 C. 181; Abdul Sadiq v Abdul Aziz, 21 A. 152, 153.

The objection to the admission of a review of judgment on the strength of a new document was not allowed to prevail in a case where the so-called new document was not the sole reason for the admission of the review.—Huro Gobind v. Huro Sundari, 18 W. R. 316.

The High Court has no authority to admit a review of judgment passed in special appeal merely on the ground that new evidence to prove a fact has been discovered.—Bhyrup Nath v. Kally Chunder, 16 W. R. 112; Ex parte Basigagarulu, 1 Mad H. C. 254; Jacammal v. Palneappa, 5 Mad. H. C. 464; Punchanan v. Radha Nath, 4 B L. R 213

Where no case of fraud or surprise having been made out, a party to the suit sought for a new trial on the ground of discovery, after judgment of an important document, which was in the possession of the opposite party but which the party first-named had neglected to obtain discovery before judgment. Held, that a new trial should not be lightly granted and in the present case it ought not to be granted.—Turnbull & Co v. Duval, 6 C. W. N. 809, P. C.

During the pendency of a suit for rent, a plaintiff applied for postponement on the ground that he was unable to obtain a copy of a document, which he had applied for from the Collectorate. The application was refused, and the plaintiff got a modified decree. He subsequently obtained a review of judgment and a decree in full. Held, that the review was properly admitted.—Goor Dyal v. Deka Noonya, 22 W. R. 446

Where new evidence is adduced in an application for review, it need not be per se, sufficient to show that the previous decision is wrong or such as to cause an overmastering balance of evidence. If there is sufficient ground for receiving the new evidence, the case is to be heard as if it were being originally heard with the materials then before the Court.—Saleb Jan v. Sufdur Ali, 22 W. R. 288.

Decree Rendered Ineffectual by Reversal.—The plaintiffs sued the defendant to recover the amount of assessment paid in respect of land for the years 1872-76, and got a decree. The defendant appealed to the Privy Council. The plaintiffs subsequently filed a second suit to recover the assessment paid in respect of the land for the years 1877-82, and obtained a decree solely on the strength of the former decree. The Privy Council reversed the decree. The defendant thereupon applied for review of the decree in the second suit. Held, that the Court had jurisdiction to entertain the application for review. The decision of the Privy Council reversing the first decree was a "new and important matter" within the meaning of this rule.—Waghela Rai Sangji v. Masludin, 13 B. 330, and Jogesh Chundra v. Kali Churn, 3 C. 30, F B., p. 46. See also, Satto Saran v. Tarini Charan, 3 B. L. R. 287; 12 W. R. 154. Doubted in Panchanan v. Gurudas, 9 B L R 187. 18 W. R. 317. But it has been held that a subsequent Full Bench case overruling the authority on which the judgment sought to be reviewed was based was not a ground for granting an application for review.—Amritlal v. Madho Das, 6 A. 292. The discovery of a fresh authority was also held to be not a good ground for review.—Velleya v. Jaganatha, 7 M. 307; see also, Banu Pershad v. Radha Pershad, 15 W. R 143; Chandi Charan v. Manoranjan, 17 C. L. J. 416.

Mistake or Error Apparent on the Face of the Record.—A review of judgment may be granted for the ends of justice where there is an error of law on the face of the judgment, or where the decision of the Court has proceeded upon a mistaken view of the law.—Sharup Chand v. Pat Dassee, 14 C. 627 (14 C. 18, P. C., referred to, 6 B. L. R. 126, L. R. 3 I. A. 221, 2 C 131 cited) See also, Koh Poh v. Moung Tay, 19 W R. 143.

A review may be granted whenever the Court considers that it is necessary to correct an evident error or omission whether on any ground urged at the original hearing of the suit or not.—Kalu v Vishram, 1 B 543; but see, Sheoratan v Lappa Kuar, 5 A. 14 Thus a review was granted where an error on a point of law was apparent on the face of the judgment.—Sharup Chand v Pat Dassee, 14 C 627; Jatra Mohun v. Aukhil, 24 C. 334, Murari v Balvanth, 46 M 955 76 I C 342: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 98, Probhas v Nithar Lal, 28 C W N. 928. 84 I C 278: A. I. R. 1921 Cal 1054.

Where in a case the provisions of the second paragraph of s 575, C P Code, 1882 [s 98, sub-s (2)], were erroneously applied, it was held that there was a mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, and that there was a sufficient cause for granting a review of the Court's decree.—Husani Begum v Collector of Muzaffarnagar, 11 A 176

A mere omission to raise a point of law which had it been raised, might and probably would have brought about a different result is not necessarily "a mistake or error apparent on the face of the record" for which a review can be claimed.—Kamla Prasad v. Kunj Behari, (1922) Pat. 1.

It is no ground for review that the judgment proceeds on an incorrect exposition of the law.—Chhajju Ram v. Neki, 49 I. A. 144. 72 I C 566: A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 112; nor is it a ground for review that the judgment proceeds on a ruling which has subsequently been modified or reversed —Garabini v. Suraja Narain, 3 Pat. 134: 75 I. C. 177: A. I. R 1924 Pat. 250, Laxman v. Mt. Shevantibai, 102 I. C. 6: A. I. R. 1927 Nag 252; Venkamma v. Rangrao, 43 M. L J. 33: 70 I C. 741: A. I R. 1922 Mad. 227. See, contra in Brindaban v. Damodar, 29 C. W N. 148: 85 I. C. 65: A. I. R. 25 Cal. 304.

Where there is no mistake in computing the period of notice but only an error in law in holding that 15 days from the 17th to the 31st inclusive of the month were sufficient, there is no sufficient ground for review, Akshay Kumar v. Agarwala, (1922) P. 308.

Where in ignorance of a decision of the High Court, the Court below decided a question and subsequently on the decision being brought to its notice reviewed its prior judgment. Held, the error of law was one apparent on the face of the record and Or. XLVII, r. 1, applied to the case. Error need not necessarily be limited to errors of fact —Murari Rao v. Balvanth, 46 M. 955: 45 M. L. J. 309.

Where a Court passed an order under a wrong section, it has jurisdiction to review the wrong order for sufficient reason, and the High Court will not interfere under s. 115 if the right result has been reached and that which was irregularly done has been set right.—Bollapragoda Guru v. Bollapragoda Janki, 31 M. 414.

For Any Other Sufficient Reason.—The words "any other sufficient reason," as pointed out by the Privy Council in L. R. 3 I. A. 221: 2 C 131, confer a wide discretion on the Court to which an application for review is presented and enables it to grant a review for good and sufficient reasons so far as may be requisite for the ends of justice.—Gobinda Lal v. Shiva Das, 3 C. L J. 545 (557): 10 C. W. N. 986. 33 C. 1323

Rule 1 of Or. XLVII of the C. P. Code must be read as in itself definitive of the limits within which review is permitted and reference to practice under former and different statutes is misleading. The words "any other sufficient reason" in Or. XLVII, r. 1 mean a reason sufficient on grounds at least analogous to those specified immediately previously that is to say, to excusable failure to bring to the notice of the Court new and important matters or error on the face of the record—Chhajju Ram v. Neki, 41 P. L R. 1922 P. C. : 26 C. W. N. 697 P. C: 49 I A. 144 P. C. A. I. R. 1922 (P. C.) 112: Ramaraghavareddi v Raja of Venkatagiri, 52 M. L J. 123: 99 I C. 954: A. I. R. 1927 Mad 355; In the application of Dwarkadhish, 46 A. 245: A. I. R 1924 All 398, Kumar Gopika v. Mahar Ali, 39 C. L J. 217.

The reversal of a judgment of the lower Appellate Court was not a "sufficient reason" for review within the meaning of Or. XLVII, r. 1. "Sufficient reason" must be some reason analogous to the reasons which have been stated in Or. XLVII, r. 1.—Sudanunda v. Rakhal, 31 C. W. N 822 (Chhajju Ram v. Neki, L. R. 49 I. A 144: 26 C. W. N. 697 referred to).

The words "or for any other sufficient reason" mean that the reason must be one sufficient to the Court or Judge to whom the application for review is made, and they cannot be held to be limited to the discovery of new and important matter on evidence or the occurring of a mistake or error apparent on the record. Whether or not there is in such cases "any other sufficient reason" may depend on a question of law or a question of fact, or mixed question of law and fact.—Amir Hasan v. Ahmad Ali, 9 A. 36 (2 C. 131, P. C, referred to). Gangabai v Ghansaram, 62 I. C. 253. In Gopal Chandra v. Solomon, 13 C. 62 (reversing 11 C. 767), it has been held that although it is difficult to define precisely the meaning of the words "any other sufficient cause" in this rule yet, from the earlier part of the clause, it is clear that a point which might have been, but which has not been, discovered at the trial by the exercise of due diligence, was not intended by the rule to afford any sufficient reason for review. In Narayan v. Chiranji, 46 A. 568· 79 I. C. 945· A. I. R. 1924 All. 730, the Allahabad High Court described the rule in Chhajju Ram's case (49 I. A. 144) as "technical," and said· "In our opinion the words in Or. XLVII, r I, 'for any other sufficient reason' are not only very wide in themselves, but are intentionally so made by the Legislature because of the possibility of exceptional cases arising in which obvious injustice would be worked by a strict adherence to the terms of the decree." Mukerji, J, in Gopika v Mahar Ali, 39 C. L J. 247: A. I. R 1924 Cal 827, referring to Chhajju Ram's case, said: "Whether any analogy can be discovered between the two grounds specified, viz., the discovery of new and important matter or evidence, and some mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, need not be discussed. But whether a particular reason is analogous to either one or other of these two grounds may obviously lead to very refined if not subtle arguments." The powers exercisable under s 151 and under Or. XLVII, r. 1 are not mutually exclusive (Prabhas v Nitharlal, 28 C. W. N 928: 84 I. C. 278 A I R 1924 Cal 1045), and it has held in the following cases that it is immaterial whether the review was granted under Or. XVII or under the inherent jurisdicion —Basanta v. Abhoy, 37 C L J 99· A I R 1923 Cal 450, Adit Prasad v Ravi Harakh, 4 Pat. 180 A I R. 1925 Pat 435, Rameshwar v. Dwarka Prasad, 3 Pat. 778· A. I R 1925 Pat 36

An appeal was heard and disposed of by the Full Bench in the absence of the respondent Subsequently, on the application of the respondent, a review was granted on the ground that no notice of reference to the Full Bench was served on him, and that his absence of the hearing came within the words "any other sufficient reason" in this rule — Ghanasham v Lal Singh, 9 A. 61

Where the point sought to be raised in review had not been raised or argued by either party, but was first taken by the Court itself in giving its opinion upon the case referred to it, the Court granted a review observing as follows "The question arising in this case is not a question merely between two parties, but is one of great general commercial importance, and under the circumstances, and on very special grounds we think th review ought to be granted."—Sulleman Hussein v. New Oriental Bank Corporation, 15 B. 267.

The words "for any other sufficient reason" in this rule will cover the case where there is a good ground for not filing the deficient printing costs, and therefore an application to set aside a dismissal of appeal for failure to file printing costs is one for review and not an application under Or. XLI, r. 19.—Anant Patdar v. Mangal Patdar, 7 Pat. L. T. 291: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 27.

A suit was dismissed on the ground of deficiency of Court-fee stamp. Subsequently the Court granted a review having found that the Court-fee paid was sufficient. Held that this constituted most fitting ground for granting a review and was clearly "any other sufficient ground" within the meaning of this rule.—Ali Akbar v. Khurshed Ali, 27 A. 695: 2 A. L. J. 465 Followed in Gopala Aiyar v. Ramaswami, 31 M. 49: 17 M. L. J. 603.

It is not a "sufficient reason" for granting a review that if another opportunity was given to the applicant, he would satisfy the Court that its previous order was wrong.—Binda Prasad v. Raghubir, 37 A. 440.

Where an auction purchaser applied for an order for delivery of possession and the order was made, it was held that it was a sufficient ground for reviewing the order that the application was on the face of it barred by limitation.—Dhanindar Das v. Bakshi, 3 Pat. L. J. 571.

Omission to raise a point of law is not sufficient.—Kamala Prasad v. Kunj Behari, 5 Pat. L. J. 344: 57 I. C. 11. Nor is it a ground for review of compromise that a party alleges that his consent was procured by undue influence.—Alamelu v. Rama, 43 M. L. J. 290: 90 I. C. 425: A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 446.

The mere fact that another Judge is inclined to take a different view of the case from that taken by a Judge who originally decided the case, is no ground for review.—Ma Kyaw v. Ma Kyin, (1922) U. B. 16: 64 I. C. 895.

The absence of a pleader is not a ground for review.—Rama Raghavareddi v. Raja of Venkatagiri, 52 M. L. J. 123: A. I. R 1927 Mad. 355 (A. I. R. 1926 Mad 980 folld.).

That the lower Court should have improperly neglected to examine a witness is not a ground for a review of judgment, if the objection was not taken when the case was heard by the Court in regular appeal.—Munshad Bibee v. Luchmeeput, 9 W. R. 129.

The fact that the High Court ought to have remanded the case on the ground that the Judge had wrongly decided a point of law is no ground for review.—Prasunno Nath v. Judoo Nath, 9 W. R. 589.

It is not a proper ground for granting a review of judgment that a Judge, by going through the evidence a second time, might arrive at a different conclusion.—Chunder Churn v. Loodun Ram, 25 W. R. 324.

A review cannot be given merely for the purpose of allowing the parties to re-argue the case upon the evidence, on the chance of eventually throwing doubt upon the decision already passed.—Kolcemoodden v. Heerun Mundal, 24 W. R. 186.

A review cannot be granted on the ground that, if the facts had been better or more fully placed before the Court, the judgment would have been different, or even on the ground of a subsequent decision of a question of law by the Privy Council in another suit where there has been no discovery of new evidence such as is contemplated in this rule.—Jadub Ram v. Ram Lochun, 19 W. R. 189.

Where a Judge had made a mistake as to the subject of certain daugh in a Government chitta, held, that an error of this kind was sufficient ground for entertaining a review.—Gunesh Ram v. Rohinee Dassee, 14 W. R. 236.

Where a Judge on appeal declined to admit additional evidence on the ground that the application should have been made to the lower Court, held, it was a ground for applying for a review of his order pointing out his mistake.—Ram Lall v. Rung Lal, 17 W. R. 47.

It is not a sufficient ground to order a review that the decision of the Court was based on a view of the law which had been overruled by a Full Bench decision, but which had not been taken to the notice of the Court by the pleader appearing in the case.—Sm. Garabini Kumari v. Surja Narain, 1923 Pat. 361: 75 I. C. 177.

It is not a sufficient ground for a review of judgment passed on special appeal that the point which was then raised and on which the Court's decision was based, was one not raised in either of the lower Courts, and specially, as in this case, where the question was pointedly raised in the special appeal, and the respondent had ample time to prepare himself to meet the statement therein.—Cowell v Mahadeb Mundul, 17 W. R. 182.

A Munsif granted a review on a ground which was no ground in law for granting a review, but his order in review had the effect of making the decree in the suit a right decree instead of a wrong decree. The District Judge allowed an appeal from that order On an application for revision, held, that the proper course was to set aside the District Judge's order and to leave standing the order of the Munsif granting the review, which order, though wrong in principle, was right in its results —Abdul Sadiq v. Abdul Aziz, 21 A 152.

Where a suit is dismissed for non-joinder of parties, the Court is justified in granting a review of his order and in allowing the plaintiff to bring in all the persons interested.—Girish Chunder v. Juramoni De, 5 C. W. N. 83.

New Exposition of Law by Privy Council, Full Bench or Division Bench.—A lower Court admitted a review of judgment on the ground that the decision of a Divisional Bench of the High Court, which it had followed in that judgment, had subsequently been overruled by the Full Bench. Held, that the lower Court was not authorized to admit a review of judgment on such ground —Amrit Lal v Madho Das, 6 A. 292

A new exposition of the law by a Full Bench after the passing of the original decree is " just and reasonable cause " for admitting a review after the prescribed period.—Jonmejoy v. Das Monee, 8 C. 700; Forbes v. Dyanutoollah, 10 W. R. 415. Contra—Madhub Chunder v. Radhika, 7 W. R. 405; Dwarka Nath v Manick Chander, 9 W. R. 102, Shama Shurn v. Bindabun, B. L R. Sup. Vol. 892: 9 W. R. 181; Bura Boodha v. Kaylash Chunder, 6 W. R 100; and Allad Monee v. Joy Sunkur, W. R. 408.

The ground for review under Or. XLVII, r. 1, must be something which existed at the date of the decree and the rule does not authorize the review, of a decision which was right when it was made on the ground of happening of some subsequent event. Where the lower Court had decided a case following the decision of the High Court in a connected case which was subsequently reversed on appeal by the Privy Council, the reversal of the High Court's judgment is not a ground for review of the lower Court's jugdment.—Katagiri Venkata v. Vellanki Venkata, 24 M. 1 (P. C.); Ganna Bathula Venkamma v. Ganna Bathula Ranga Rao, 43 M. L J. 33: (1922) M. W. N. 304: 15 L. W. 593 (24 M 1, P. C., 4 M. L. T. 86 folld ; 13 B 330, 33 A. 566, 31 B. 128, 13 M. L. T. 225, 3 Pat. L. J. 372 refd. to); Sar Faraj Khan v. Ramachandra, 73 I. C. 4, Sudananda v. Rakhal, 31 C. W. N. 822.

Although the discovery of a new ruling may not entitle a party to a review of judgment, yet when a Court is satisfied that its judgment has proceeded upon an erroneous view of the law, the provisions of this rule allow review of judgment —Vallaya v Jagannatha, 7 M. 307.

That one Division Bench of the High Court has decided a point at variance with the decision of another Division Bench is no reason for granting a review of judgment.—Nobeen Kishen v. Shib Pershad, 9 W. R. 161, and Fergusson v. Government, 9 W R. 158.

The production of an authority which was not brought to the notice of the Judge at the first hearing, and which lays down a view of the law contrary to that taken by the Judge, is not a sufficient ground for granting a review.—Ellen v. Bosheer, 1 Cal. 184: 24 W. R. 382; Sheikh Abdul Aziz v. Musst. Munro, (1921) Pat. 152: 1 P. L T. 561.

Where a review of judgment was applied for on the ground of the subsequent publication of the report of a High Court decision on a point of law which governed the case, but which had not been urged at the previous hearing, it was considered that the applicant was not to blame for this omission, and the application for review was granted.—Achuta v. Mammavu, 10 M 357. See also, Jatra Mohun v. Akhil Chandra, 24 C. 334 (336).

Review by Minors.—A decree passed against an infant properly represented is binding upon him like a decree passed against an adult, and it not subject to review on his application after attaining majority; but it is open to the infant to impeach such a decree by a suit in cases where his guardian had been guilty of fraud or negligence —Gursanda Natha v. Ladkavahu, 19 B 571.

The only modes of setting aside a decree prescribed by the Indian Code of Civil Procedure are by review under this rule and by suit under s. 9 —Mirali Rahimbhoy v Rehmoobhoy, 15 B 594 (affirming 13 B. 137). See also, Ram Sarup v. Shah Latapat Hossein, 29 C. 735, where it has been held that where the next friend of a minor plaintiff withdraws from the suit, it is open to the minor through another next friend to have the suit re-opened on review. See also, Rakhal Moni v. Advaita Prosad, 30 C. 613: 7 C. W. N. 419, and 2 C. L. J. 508: 10 C. W N. 529. But see, Baramdeo Prasad v. Banarasi Prasad, 3 C. L. J. 119, where it has been held that if a decree is regular in itself and on the face of it correct, the minor's remedy lies in a fresh suit and not by an application for review. See, also, Gulab Koer v. Badshah, 13 C. W. N 1197.

Review of Judgment in Letters Patent Appeals.—The High Court has power to review judgments passed in appeals preferred under cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Venkata Subbarayudu, v. Sri Rajah Krishna, 40 M. 651.

Order Made by One Judge Cannot be Set Aside by Another Judge.—One Judge of a High Court cannot set aside an order made by another Judge of that Court although such order might be wrong The proper remedy in such a case is by review on any of the grounds mentioned in this rule.—Basanta Kumar v. Kusum Kumari, 44 C. 28

Commissioner.—A Commissioner for taking accounts has no power of review under this order; but before his report is submitted, he may re-open the enquiry into any item on grounds analogous to those of this rule —Fernandez v. Rodrigues, 47 B. 593: 82 I C 593: A I. R. 1924 Bom. 231.

Court-fee on Application for Review.—The proper fee leviable on an application for review of judgment when it refers to a portion of the decree is the fee leviable on the plaint or memo of appeal, in which the judgment, review of which is asked for, is passed —In re Sheikh Maqbul, 31 A. 294 (4 B. 26 not followed; 3 C W N. 292 followed).

The stamp-fee on an application for review must be calculated on the amount that would be obtained if the review were granted, and not necessarily on the whole value of the suit —In re Manohar G Tambekar, 4 B. 26; Anonymous, 7 Mad H C Ap. 1. But see, Nobin Chandra v Mahamed Uzir Ali, 3 C. W. N. 292, in which a different view has been taken

An application for review of an interlocutory order is properly stamped with a Court-fee of Rs 2 and neither art 4 nor 5 of Sch I of the Court Fees Act refers to an interlocutory order —Jagannath v Mulchand, 31 A. 262.

An application for review of judgment, such as is alluded to in Arts 4 and 5, Schedule I of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), does not include an application for a new trial in a Small Cause Court in the mofussil.—Gopeenath v Ram Joy, 14 W R 249

To whom applications for review may be made.

2. An application for review of a decree or order of a Court not being a High Court, upon some ground other than the discovery of such new and important matter or evidence as is referred to in rule 1 or the existence of a clerical or arithmetical mistake or error apparent on the face of the decree, shall be made only to the Judge who passed the decree or made the order sought to be reviewed; but any such application may, if the Judge who passed the decree or made the order has ordered notice to issue under rule 4, sub-rule (2), proviso (a), be disposed of by his successor. [S. 624 and cl. (c) of S. 626.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule is not applicable to S. C. Courts.—See, Or. L.

The first part of this rule corresponds to s. 624 and the latter part corresponds to cl (c) of s. 626 of the C. P. Code, 1882. The wording of the old section has been changed in order to make the provisions more clear.

The words "or the existence of a" have been substituted for the word "some," and the words "or arithmetical mistake" have been added.

Section 624 and s. 626, cl. (c) are reproduced below for the purpose of comparison:—

"624. Except upon the grounds of the discovery of such new and important matter or evidence as aforesaid, or some clerical error apparent on the face of the decree, no application for a review of judgment, other than that of a High Court, shall be made to any Judge other than the Judge who delivered it."

"626. (c) An application made under s. 624 to the Judge who delivered the judgment may, if that Judge has ordered notice to issue under proviso (a) to this section, be disposed of by his successor."

To whom Applications for Review may be Made.—Where a decree is passed by a Judge other than a High Court Judge and the review is sought not upon the grounds mentioned above, but upon other grounds the application shall be made to the very Judge who passed the decree; it cannot be made to his successor in office.—Sarangapani v. Narayanasami, 8 M. 567, Moheshur Singh v Bengal Government, 7 M. I. A. 283 · Ram Barran v. Bhagwati, 47 751: 89 I. C. 295: A. I. R. 1925 All. 804

A review was intended to be a consideration of the same subject by the same Judge, as distinguished from an appeal, which is a hearing before another tribunal. A review, therefore, should be presented with as much expedition as possible with a view to the re-hearing before the same Judge. The exceptions to this rule are allowable only ex necessitate, that is, from the death of the original Judge, or some unexpected or unavoidable cause which prevents him from hearing the review. The causes accounting for delay in applying for a review must, to justify the grant of it, be of grave importance —Moheshur Singh v. Government of India, 3 W. R, P. C, 45; 7 M. I. A. 283, Shamser Ali v. Jagannath, 17 C. W N. 403; Sarut Soondurec v Rajendra Kishore, 9 W. R., 125.

A Judge has no power to allow a review of his predecessor's judgment on the ground that he comes to a different conclusion on the facts of the case. It is only the discovery of new evidence or the correction of a patent and indubitable error or omission or some other particular grounds of like description which justifies the granting of a review.—Roy Megh Raj v. Becjoy Gobind, 1 C. 197: 23 W R. 438; In the petition of Mathura Pershad, 1 A. 296; Banee Madhub v. Kalee Churn, 24 W. R. 387; Muneeroodeen v. Kadir Buksh, 24 W. R. 410; and Wolfut v. Nusrutoollah, 25 W. R. 48.

Under this rule a review petition, on the ground of an "accidental slip", in the decree, is entertainable before the successor of the Judge who disposed of the case. Only if the ground is other than accidental slip or discovery of fresh evidence, such petition cannot be entertained by successor.—Kathyumma v. Muhammad Kutty, 24 L. W. 447: 97 I. C. 545: A. I. R. 1926 Mad 1083.

If review of a decree passed by a Judge other than a High Court Judge is sought on the ground of a supposed error of judgment, the application for review must be made to the Judge who passed the decree or made the order —Behari Lall v Mungolanath, 5 C. 110: 4 C. L. R. 371. So also where review is sought on the ground that the order complained of was made by the Judge in the absence of or without notice to a party, the application for review should be made to the Judge who made the order.—Khema v. Dhangi, 14 B. 101.

A Judge (not being a Judge of the High Court), other than a Judge who delivered the judgment, has no jurisdiction to grant a review on the ground that no leave or consent of the Court under s. 462, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 7), had been given to the guardian ad litem to refer the matter in dispute between the parties to the suit to arbitration.—Ananda Krishna v Jogendra Nath, 8 C. L. J. 294.

An application for review of judgment upon a ground other than those mentioned in s 624, C P Code, 1882 (this rule), if presented to the Judge who delivered it, and who thereupon directs notice to be given to the opposite party, may be heard and disposed of by his successor.—Karoo Singh v Deo Narain, 10 C 80: 13 C. L R. 261 (4 A. 278 dissented from); Fazel Biswas v. Jamadar Sheikh, 13 C. 231; Rama Sami v. Kurisu, 13 M. 178; and Gunpat v Jiran, 16 B 603. Contra—Pancham v. Jhinguri, 4 A. 278.

A Judge of a Mofussil Small Cause Court was held to have jurisdiction to direct a new trial of a case tried by his predecessor. The Judge however, in dealing with applications for new trial, should have regard to the rule laid down in s 624, C. P Code, 1882 (this rule) —Shumsher Ally v Kurkut Shah, 6 C. 236. 6 C. L. R 549.

An application for review of judgment was presented, on other grounds than those specified in s. 624, C P. Code, 1882 (this rule), to a District Munsif, who had delivered the judgment, and he thereupon ordered the decree to be produced The District Munsif having resigned, his successor heard and determined the application Held, it was not competent to the District Munsif, who had not delivered the original judgment, to entertain the application for review —Cheru Kurup v Cheru Khanda, 12 M 509.

A suit was decided by the Additional Sub-Judge, who was afterwards transferred to the Court of the permanent Sub-Judge Application for review was made to the successor of the Additional Sub-Judge, and was subsequently transeferred to the same Sub-Judge, who was then the presiding officer of the permanent Court. Held, that the requirements of s. 624, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), were substantially complied with—Sundar Das v. Saroda Charan, 13 C. W. N. xci (91-n).

Per Mahmood, J.—Where a decree has been simply affirmed on appeal, s 579, C. P. Code, 1882, does not imply that the appellate decree supersedes the original decree so as to render it ineffective for purposes of execution. In such a case the lower Court continues to have jurisdiction to entertain an application for amendment of its own decree under s. 206, C P Code, 1882, and such application is not governed by any article of the Limitation Act, and may be made at any time. It may be granted under s 206, even where an application for review of judgment under s 623 upon the same ground would be barred by s. 624, C. P. Code, 1882.—Muhammad Sulaiman v Muhammad Yar Khan, 11 A. 267.

A Judge cannot, by transferring a case to his own file, confer on himself the power to review an order of dismissal pronounced by a principal sudder ameen —Golam Esha v. Hurrish Chunder, W. R. (1864) Mis. 29.

In a pre-emption suit, the money was directed to be given to a wrong person and the decree was passed in pursuance of the judgment. An application for review was made to the successor of the Judge who passed the decree Held, the erroneous direction in the decree as to the person to whom the pre-emption price was to be paid was not a clerical mistake apparent on the face of the decree under Or. XLVII, r. 2, and the successor in office cannot entertain such an application —Baliram Piraji v. Yeshwant, 75 I. C 829.

"If the Judge who passed the decree has ordered notice to issue."—An application for review of judgment, upon a ground other than those mentioned in s 624 of the C P. Code, 1882 (this rule) if presented to the Judge who delivered it, and who thereupon directs notice to be given to the opposite party, may be heard and disposed of by his successor.—Karoo Singh v Deo Narain, 10 C 80: 13 C. L. R. 261; Fazel Biswas v. Jamadar Sheik, 13 C. 231; Ganpat v Jivan, 16 B. 603; Ramasami v Kurisu, 13 M. 178 Contra—Pancham v Jhinguri, 4 A. 278; Cheru Kurup v Cheru Kanda, 12 M. 509.

Form of applications for review.

3. The provisions as to the form of preferring appeals shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to applications for review. [S. 625.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 625, C. P. Code, with change of some words. This rule is not applicable to S C. Courts —See Or. L.

Form of Applications for Review.—Applications for review of judgment should set forth concisely the grounds mentioned in the application for review.—Purna Chandra v. Nil Madhub, 5 C. W. N. 485.

Applications for review of judgment should set forth concisely the grounds of objection to the decision of which a review is sought, without argument or narrative, and such grounds should be numbered consecutively.—Mahadaji Ramchandra v. Vithal, 1 Bom. H. C. 185.

A petitioner applying for review under s. 623, C. P. Code, 1882 must file a copy of the order of which he seeks a review, together with a memorandum of objections.—Adurji Edulji v. Manikji Edulji, 4 B. 414. But see Wajid Ali v Nawal Kishore, 17 A. 213.

This rule relates to form and does not enlarge the right. It does not make Or. XLIII, r. 1 (t) applicable to a refusal to restore an application for review.—Girdhari Lal v. Zorawar Singh, 47 A 1· 80 I C. 649: A. I. R. 1925 All. 57.

Application where rejected.

4. (1) Where it appears to the Court that there is not sufficient ground for a review, it shall reject the application.

Application where granted.

(2) Where the Court is of opinion that the application for review should be granted, it shall grant the same·

Provided that—

(a) no such application shall be granted without previous notice to the opposite party to enable him to appear and be heard in support of the decree or order, a review of which is applied for: and

(b) no such application shall be granted on the ground of discovery of new matter or evidence which the applicant alleges was not within his knowledge, or could not be adduced by him when the decree or order was passed or made, without strict proof of such allegation. [s. 626.]

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s. 626, C P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions

In sub-rule (2) which corresponds to para. 2 of the old section, the words "and the Judge shall record with his own hand his reasons for such opinion," which occurred in the concluding part of para 2 of the old section, have been omitted By the omission, the rulings in 4 C W. N. 203, P. C., 23 M 496, 3 A 316 and 22 C 734 noted below have been rendered obsolete

Cl (c) of the old section has been detached from this rule and added to the last part of r 2 The other alterations are merely verbal

Sufficient Ground for Review.—On application for review of Judgment, held, a party applying for review of judgment must show that there is good and sufficient cause for granting the review before he can be heard to argue that the decision is erroneous. In so showing cause (1) no point can be raised which has been already discussed and decided on the original hearing of the appeal, and (2) no new point which has not been raised at the hearing of the appeal can be argued on the application for review. Bhawabal Singh v. Rajendra, 5 B. L. R. 321: 14 W. R. 105 (upholding on review, 13 W. R. 157); Janab Ali v. Chandi Charan, 5 B. L. R. 334-note: 11 W. R. 202; Gunga Persad v. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 5 B L. R. 340-note: 15 W. R., F. B., 5-note; Hazra Begum v Hossein Ali, 5 B. L. R. 341-note; Collector of Tipperah v. Mafzunnissa, 5 B. L R. 341-note: 14 W. R. 84; Garib Hossein v. Wise, 5 B L. R. 342-note; Mehuroonissa v. Wise, 15 W. R., F. B., 2-note; Beni Madhab v Ganga Gobind, 5 B. L. R. 345-note 15 W. R., F. B., 3-note. But see, Chintamani v. Pyari Mohuun, 6 B. L. R 126: 15 W. R., F. B., 1. See also, Kalu Bin v. Vishram, 1 B. 543; and Huree Pershad v. Nund Kishore, 17 W. R. 479.

The Judges are not required to re-adjudicate points considered and adjudicated when brought before them by a pleader then employed, though they may be better argued, and put in a different light by another pleader subsequently, but are to be guided in their admission of reviews by the definite terms of ss. 377 and 378 of the C. P. Code, 1859.—Choonee Mundur v. Chundee Lall, 14 W. R. 334.

Where a Sub-Judge, after deciding a regular appeal, granted an application for review of judgment on the ground that new evidence had been discovered, but without any inquiry or proof that such evidence was not within the knowledge of the applicant, or could not have been adduced by him at the time the decree was passed, held, that this was an error or defect in the procedure or investigation of the case which affected the decision, and was a ground of appeal when the decision, upon review was brought before the High Court on special appeal.—Bhyrub Chunder v. Madhubram, 11 B. L. R., F. B., 423: 20 W. R. 84; Nubo Kishore v Jadub Chunder, 20 W. R. 426; Dhunka Devla v. Hira Ramla, 4 Bom. H. C. 57.

Where, owing to the conduct of the opposite party, who, though served with notice, made no objection, an applicant for review had no opportunity of showing that a new piece of evidence which he adduced was not within his knowledge, and could not be adduced by him when the decree was passed, such opposite party cannot afterwards be allowed to object on the ground of the Full Bench ruling in 11 B L. R. 423: 20 W. R. 84.—Ramjoy v. Jugodessurer, 22 W. R. 399.

A decree of the Division Bench of the High Court, dismissing an appeal for default in depositing the estimated costs of preparation of the paper-book under the Rules of the High Court can only be set aside by an order under s. 626, C P. Code, 1882 (this rule).—Fatimunnissa v. Deoki Pershad, 24 C. 350, F. B.: 1 C. W. N. 21. (Ramhari Sahu v. Madan Mohun, 23 C. 339, so far as it decides the contrary, is wrongly decided)

Previous Service of Notice Necessary.—A proceeding admitting a review, without notice to the opposite party, as required by this rule, is wholly vitiated by such defect, and not binding on that party.—Golaboo v Ram Dyal, 8 W. R. 304. See, In re Huro Mohun Mookerji, 16 W. R. 135.

Notice to the other side is imperative under this rule, and an order without such notice is illegal and not merely an irregularity, and a party is not bound by the illegal order.—Narayana Chettiar v. Muthu Chettiar, 51 M. L. J. 219: 97 I. C. 1008 A. I R 1926 Mad 980; Abdul Hakim v. Hem Chandra, 42 C. 433: 30 I. C. 165.

In the case of a summary dismissal of appeal under Or. XLI, r. 11, the order of dismissal may be set aside on an ex parte application for review without notice to the respondent because the respondent in such a case cannot be said to mean the " opposite " party within the meaning of cl. (a) of this rule.—Janki Nath v. Prabhasini, 43 C. 178 (42 C. 433 dissented from); Official Trustee of Bengal v Benode, 51 C 943: 84 I. C 147: A. I. R. 1925 Cal 114.

Where the defendant was given every opportunity to raise any objection that he could raise, he is in no way, therefore, prejudiced by reason of the fact that no notice was issued to him Held, the order granting review should not be set aside by the Appellate Court —The Firm Gopal Mal Ganda Mal v. Harachand, 75 I. C 656.

The expression " opposite party " in Or XLVII, r. 4 (2) (a) of the C P. Code is not limited to cases in which such party has actually appeared before the Court It means the party interested to support the order or decree sought to be set aside on review Where an appeal has been dismissed for default, it cannot be restored under Or. XLI, r. 19, which has no application to such a case; nor can it be restored under Or XLVII, r. 4 (2), without notice to the opposite party —Surajpal v. Utim Pandey, A. I XLVII, r. 4 R. 1922 Pat. 281 63 I C 99

Strict Proof of Such Allegation.—See notes to rule 1 of this Order under the heading " DISCOVERY OF NEW AND IMPORTANT MATTER OR EVIDENCE."

The provision of s 626, C P. Code, 1882, requiring the Judge granting a review to record his reasons, is rather a direction to the Judge how to act when he has decided to grant the application than a condition of granting it, and the failure to record his reasons is not a ground for granting special leave to appeal to the Privy Council.—Thakur Sunker Buksh v Balwant Singh, 4 C W N. 203, P C : 27 C 333 See also, Manicka Mudaliar v. Gurusami Mudaliar, 23 M 496, where it has been held that the provision in s 626, C P. Code, 1882, requiring a Judge to record reasons for granting review is rather directory and not mandatory.

Before a review of judgment is granted, an order granting the application for review, and the reasons for granting the same should be recorded —Bhairon Din Singh v Ram Sahai, 3 A 316. See also, Gyanund Asram v Bepin Mohun, 22 C 734.

These cases, in so far as they decided that reason for granting the review must be recorded, are no longer the law

Death of Party Pending Review.—The order granting a review only holds the judgment in suspense The death of a party does not therefore cause the suit or appeal to abate —Achyut v Tapibai, 48 B 210 79 I. C. 753 · A. I. R. 1924 Bom 310

Form.—For Form of notice, see, App G, Form No 14

Appeal.—Or. XLIII, r. 1, cl. (w) provides that an appeal lies from an order under this rule granting applications for review. Cl. (w), however, should be read with r 7 of this Order as subject to it —Hari Charan v. Baran Khan, 41 C. 746; Ahia v. Mohendra, 42 C. 830; Nundalal v. Panchanan, 45 C. 60, 78; Sundar Mull v Upendra Nath, 1 Pat. L J. 193 An order granting a review on the ground that the view of the law taken was contrary to a Full Bench decision which had not been taken to its notice is appealable.—Garabini v. Surja Narain, 1923, Pat 361: 75 I. C. 177.

Application for review in Court consisting of two or more Judges.

5. Where the Judge or Judges, or any one of the Judges, who passed the decree or made the order, a review of which is appied for, continues or continue attached to the Court at the time when the application for a review is presented, and is not or are not precluded by absence or other cause for a period of six months next after the application from considering the decree or order to which the application refers, such Judge or Judges or any of them shall hear the application, and no other Judge or Judges of the Court shall hear the same. [S. 627.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 627, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations only. This rule is not applicable to S C. Courts —See, Or. L.

" Attached to the Court."—A second appeal was heard and decided by two Judges, and an application for review was filed with the Registrar. One of the Judges having left India, it was heard and decided by the other of the two Judges sitting alone. Held, that he had jurisdiction to hear and dispose of the rule.—Aubhoy Churn v. Shamant Lochun, 16 C. 788.

" No other Judge shall hear the same."—A review may be admitted by the sole remaining Judge of the Bench which heard the case originally. —Jardine, Skinner & Co. v. Dhun Kishen, 13 W. R. 82.

Where an appeal was heard by two Judges and thereafter on account of the absence of one of them, a review application came before the other Judge sitting with a third new Judge and was granted. Held, the proceedings were entirely vitiated, as the terms of Or. XLVII, r. 5 prohibited the new Judge from taking part in the review.—Chhajju Ram v Neki, 41 P. L. R. 1922: 26 C W. N. 697, P. C : 49 I. A. 144, P. C

Application for Review in Courts Consisting of Two or More Judges. —Application for re-admission of an appeal dismissed on failure to deposit the costs for the preparation of the paper-book under the Rules of the High Court is not an application for review of judgment, and cannot be disposed of by a single Judge of the High Court under this rule —Ramhari Sahu v. Madan Mohan, 23 C. 839 Partially overruled by Fatimunnissa v. Deoki Pershad, 24 C. 350, F. B.: 1 C. W. N. 21.

Application where rejected.

6. (1) Where the application for a review is heard by more than one Judge and the Court is equally divided, the application shall be rejected.

(2) Where there is a majority, decisions shall be according to the opinion of the majority. [S. 628.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule croresponds to s. 628, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only This rule is not applicable to S C Courts.—See, Or L.

Where two Judges of a Division Bench have concurred in a final decree, the fact that there is a difference of opinion as to one point amongst others, raised in review on the judgment on which such final decree is based, is no ground for an appeal under clause 15 of the Letters Patent.—Hurbuns Sahay v Thakoor Pershad, 10 C. 108: 13 C L R 285.

Order of rejection not appealable. Objections to order granting application.

7. (1) An order of the Court rejecting the application shall not be appealable; but an order granting an application may be objected to on the ground that the application was—

(a) in contravention of the provisions of r. 2,

(b) in contravention of the provisions of r. 4, or

(c) after the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed therefor and without sufficient cause.

Such objection may be taken at once by an appeal from the order granting the application or in any appeal from the final decree or order passed or made in the suit.

(2) Where the application has been rejected in consequence of the failure of the applicant to appear, he may apply for an order to have the rejected application restored to the file, and where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when such application was called on for hearing, the Court shall order it to be restored to the file upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for hearing the same.

(3) No order shall be made under sub-rule (2) unless notice of the application has been served on the opposite party [S 629.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to s 629, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

In sub-rule (1), the words "shall not be appealable" have been substituted for the word "final," and the words "but an order granting the application" have been substituted for the words "but whenever such application is admitted, the admission," which occurred in the old section. The words "the Court shall order it to be restored" in sub-rule (2) have been substituted for the words "the Court may order it to be restored." The word "final" means conclusive and not open to revision or review, hence it has been replaced by the words "shall not be appealable." There was a diversity of opinion on the point (see, 25 C 432 and 26 B. 485).

The last para. of s. 629 has been detached from this rule and reproduced in a modified form as r 9

The other changes are mere changes of words and phrases.

It should be noted here that, besides the provisions contained in sub-rule (1) for appealing against an order granting review, appeal has also been allowed by cl (w) of Or XLIII, from an order granting review. Clause (w) seems to be more general and it includes the grounds mentioned in sub-rule (1). For the difference between sub-rule (1) and cl. (w) of Or. XLIII, see, notes under the latter.

Order of Rejection Not Appealable.—Where a Court rejects an application for review its decision is not open to revision —Ram Lal v. Ratan Lal, 26 A. 572 (Distinguished in Wallis v Jamad Husain, 29 A. 468; 4 A. No appeal lies even if the application be rejected by a single Judge on the Original Side of the High Court —Achaya v. Ratnavelu, 9 M. 253

An order rejecting an application for review of an order dismissing an execution case for non-payment of process-fees is not appealable —Raja Pudmanund v. Doorga Pershad, 4 C. W N. 89. See also, Vadi Lal v. Fulchand, 30 B. 56, 7 Bom L R. 30.

Only the order rejecting the application for review is final; but the decision as to whether there was just and reasonable cause for allowing the application to be made after the prescribed period of ninety days is not final.—Shama Churn v Bindabun, B. A mere refusal to grant a review of judgment cannot alter the judgment sought to be reviewed or the decree founded on it, and nothing which the Judge says with reference to his refusal to grant the review can be binding so as to alter such judgment or decree.—Ramhurry v. Mothoor Mohun, 20 W. R., P. C., 450

Order Granting Review is ... , r. 1, cl. XLIII, r 1 has to be read along with the provisions of this rule which specifically lay down that an order granting an application for review can be objected to in appeal only on one or the other of the three grounds specified therein. There is no real inconsistency between the two rules the former rule merely gives a party aggrieved by an order granting a review a right of appeal, but it does not deal with the grounds on which the order appealed against can be objected to The two provisions of the Code are not mutually inconsistent but are really complementary to each other. The one gives the right to appeal, and the other defines the extent to which that right can be exercised.—Sikandar Khan v Baland Khan, A. I. An application under s 311, C P Code, 1882 (Or XXI, r 90), to set aside a sale was rejected Subsequently on review the sale was set aside The District Judge on appeal set aside the order setting aside the sale Held, that the order was not appealable, as it was not an order granting application for review, but one setting aside a sale —Bhairon Din Singh v Ram Sahai, 3 A 316.

Second Appeal from Order Passed in Appeal under this Rule.—No second appeal lies from an order passed in appeal from an order granting an application for review of judgment —Gopal Das v Alaf Khan, 11 A 383, Than Singh v. Chundun Singh, 11 C 296, and Papayya v. Chela mayya, 12 M. 125. But see, Balanath v. Bhiva Natha, 18 B. 496 This is now clear from the provisions of Or XLIII, r. 1 (w), read with s. 104, sub-s. (2).

No second appeal lies to the High Court from an order setting aside an order granting a review of judgment — Kanti Chunder v. Saligram, 24 C 319 and 319-note.

The admission of a review presented out of time without any sufficient cause is a good ground of appeal under s 629, clause (c) of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882 (r. 7) —Purna Chandra v. Nil Madhub, 5 C W. N. 485

Where an order granting a review has been set aside on appeal, the order passed in appeal is final and not open to second appeal —Jainal Bibi v. Abdul Jalil, 6 C L. J 225

May be Objected to in any Appeal from the Final Decree.—Under this rule it is open to the appellant on appeal from the final decree, to take objection to the order passed on the application for review.—Ananda Krishna v Jogendra Nath, 8 C L. J 294

A suit was at first dismissed, but afterwards a review was applied for by the plaintiff and granted, overruling the objections of the defendant Both plaintiff and defendant adduced new evidence, and a decree was given for the plaintiff Held, on special appeal, that the fact of the defendant's having adduced fresh evidence in the Court below, did not debar him from objecting on appeal that the review was wrongly granted — Prannath v Sreekant, 2 C L R 257

Sections 584 and 591, C P Code, 1882 (ss. 100 and 105), do not control s. 629, C P Code, 1882 (r 7), so as to confer a right of appeal in a case, where appeal is not based on one of the objections mentioned in this rule An objection against an order of admission of an application for review cannot be taken in an appeal against the final decree except on one of the grounds mentioned, as grounds of objection in this rule.—Gopal Aiyar v Ramaswami, 31 M 49, 17 M L J. 603. 2 M. L. T. 519 (27 A 695 24 C 878 followed) —Khurseed v. Rahamatullah, 40 A. 68, Baroda Charan v Gobind Prosad, 22 C. 984.

The provisions of this rule that objection can be taken by appeal against the order or an appeal against the final decree are not controlled by s 591, C P Code, 1882 (s 105) —Gyanund Asram v. Bepin Mohun, 22 C 734 See also, Manicka v Gurusami, 23 M. 496

Sub-rule (1), Cl. (b). Application in Contravention of the Provisions of Rule (4).—This clause does not refer to the weight or sufficiency of evidence, and an Appellate Court cannot set aside an order of review merely because in its opinion the probative force of the evidence is insufficient to establish the allegations made in support of the application for review, though such evidence had such probative force to the Court granting the review —Ahid v. Mohendra, 42 C. 830; Bai Nematbu v Bai Nematullabu, 43 B. 295; Nandalal v. Panchanan, 45 C. 60: 42 I. C. 484.

Where the Court of first instance grants an application for review on the ground of discovery of new and important evidence not within the knowledge or power of the applicant at the time of the trial, the Appellate Court will not generally consider the evidence afresh and disturb the conclusion of the lower Court.—Ambika Charan v. Bhaniram, 64 I. C 219.

The appeal under this rule will be confined to a disregard of the provisions of r 2 or r. 4 only and not to any matter on which the granting of the review is based Where the ground of attack is that the lower Court was incorrect in thinking that there was mistake or error apparent on the face of the record, no appeal is provided for in such a case under Or. XLVII —Shaukat Ali v. Mt Shakila Bano, 94 I C. 78 A. I. R. 1926 All. 492

Cl. (c). Application After Prescribed Time.—Under Arts. 161, 162, and 173 of the Limitation Act, the period for an application for review of judgment by a Provincial Small Cause Court is 15 days, by the High Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, 20 days, and by other Courts, 90 days from the date of the decree, and the applicant is entitled, under s 12 of the Limitation Act, to deduct the time spent in obtaining copy of the decree —Fazal v Umar, 7 Lah L J 129 88 I. C 1029. A I. R. 1925 Lah 377 But s. 5 of that Act says that the Court may admit the application if the applicant satisfies the Court that he had " sufficient cause " for not making the application within the prescribed period.

Where a party, applying for a review of judgment after the expiry of the prescribed period, had not shown any just and reasonable cause for not preferring his application within the prescribed period, the order admitting the review was held to have been improperly granted, and was set aside with all subsequent proceedings thereon —Luchmun Singh v Tirbani Baksh, 14 B L R. 373 P C , Luleet Mohun v Sowtra Beebee, 10 W R. 42, Gour Pershad v Anjub Ali, 24 W R. 294; Fakira v Basapa, 8 Bom. There seems to be no limit to the time after the expiration of ninty days at which the application for review may be filed, provided the applicant can satisfy the Court that there is a just and reasonable ground for review —Joogal Kishore v Oogor Narain, 8 W R 483

A new exposition of the law by a Full Bench after the passing of the original decree is not " just and reasonable cause for admitting a review after the prescribed period When a review has been granted, the Court is bound to decide the case according to any new exposition of the law by a Full Bench made since the original decision —Shama Churn v Bindabun, B L R Sup Vol 892, 9 W R 181; Buru Boodho v Koylash Chunder, 6 W R 100, Alladmonee v Joysunkur, 7 W R 408, Madhub Chunder v Radhika, 7 W R 405, Dwarkanath v Manick

Chunder, 9 W. R. 102 Contra—Forbes v. Dyanutullah, 10 W R 415; and Jonmenjoy v Dasmoney, 8 C. 700.

An application for review of judgment of a lower Court is not admissible after the limited period merely in consequence of a decision of the High Court, or of the Privy Council, modifying the law or practice which prevailed at the time when the judgment sought to be reviewed was passed.—Onoop Chunder v. Ekkowree Singh, 6 W R 167 But see, Banee Pershad v. Radha Pershad, 15 W. R. 143.

Where an application for review is not made within the prescribed period the pendency of a special appeal is not such a " just and reasonable cause " for the loss of time, as the Court to which the application is made is bound to arrive at before it can entertain the application at all.—Lucas v Stephen, 9 W. R. 301; Fakera v. Basapa, 8 Bom H. C 234

An applicant for review cannot plead his ignorance of the effect of the judgment as a justification for his delay.—Gulam Husen v Musa Miya, 8 B. 260.

An application for a review of judgment having been made on the first day after the vacation, after the ninetieth day from the date of the judgment which it was sought to review, it appeared that the ninetieth day fell during the vacation when the High Court was closed. Held, that the full fee leviable on the memorandum of appeal must be paid in the first instance, but that the Court, if satisfied that the delay was not caused by the laches of the applicant, might direct a refund of one-half of such fee —In the matter of Doorga Prosunno, 9 C. L. R. 479.

In computing the period of 90 days from the date of decree, within which an application for review of judgment may be presented on payment of half the fee, leviable on the plaint or memorandum of appeal (under Art 5 of Sch. I of the Court Fees Act, 1870), the time during which the Court is closed for vacation cannot be excluded.—In re Kota, 9 M. 131

Pendency of second appeal is not a sufficient cause for the delay in filing an application for review.—Gulam Husen v. Musa Miya, 8 B 260

An insufficiently stamped application for review was presented to the *Munsarim of the Court within 90 days, but the deficiency was not sup*plied till after the expiry of that period Held, that there was no presentation within the prescribed period, and that the Judge had no power to admit the application.—Munro v. Cawnpore Municipal Board, 12 A 57.

Review Granted Without Jurisdiction.—If review is granted in a case where the Court granting it had no jurisdiction, the order is open to revision under s. 115 as made without jurisdiction but it is doubtful whether in such a case an appeal will lie from the order granting the review.—Ramanadhan v.Narayanan, 27 M. 602, 607; Chunilal v. Sonibai, 21 B. 329.

Registry of application granted, and order for rehearing

8. When an application for review is granted, a note thereof shall be made in the register and the Court may at once re-hear the case or make such order in regard to the re-hearing as it thinks fit.

[S. 630.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to s. 630 C P. Code, 1882.

What Questions may be Gone into After Grant of Review.—When a review of a decision has been admitted, the whole case is thereby re-opened —Sainal Ranchhod v. Dullabh, 10 Bom H C 360

Where a review of judgment is granted on a particular ground, the Court is not bound to re-hear the whole case under this rule It is in the discretion of the Court to re-hear the whole case, or only the particular point on which the review has been granted —Hurbuns Sahye v Thakoor Pershad, 9 C 209. 12 C. L. R. 64

It cannot be treated as a universal rule that no point can be raised on an application for review which has been already discussed and decided on the original hearing of the appeal, or that no new point, which has not been raised on the hearing of the appeal, can be argued on the application for a review In each case, the Court to which the application, is made must consider and decide whether a review is necessary to correct any evident error or omission, or is otherwise requisite for the ends of justice —Chintamani v. Pyari Mohun, 6 B L R 126, F B 15 W. R 1, F B Followed in Kalu Bin v Vishram, 1 B. 543 See also Huree Pershad v Nund Kishore, 17 W R 479 But see the cases noted under r. 4 of this Order.

Effect of Grant of Review on Original Decree.—When the application for review is granted, the decree previously made is vacated, with the consequence that an appeal preferred against the decree can no longer be prosecuted But the parties can appeal from the final decree passed on review —Gour Krishna v Nilmadhab, 36 O. L J 484

MISCELLANEOUS.

1. (1) Every process issued under this Code shall be served at the expense of the party on whose behalf it is issued, unless the Court otherwise directs.

Process to be served at expense of party issuing.

(2) The court-fee chargeable for such service shall be paid within a time to be fixed before the process is issued. [S. 93.]

Costs of service.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 93, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes

In sub-rule (2), the word "chargeable" has been substituted for the word "leviable," and the word "paid" has been substituted for the word "levied" which occurred in the old section.

"Unless the Court otherwise directs."—This rule does not give a Court any power to depart from the rules of the High Court on the subject of levy of fees or to remit them. The rule relates to the payment of process fees by the parties to a suit, and gives the Court, acting judicially, power to make an order, between party and party only, as to who should pay the process fees It does not expressly give power to remit the fees, and to order that the process should be served free, at the expense of Government —In the matter of the application of Studd, 26 C. 124: 3 C. W. N. 82

2. All orders, notices and other documents required by this Code to be given to or served on any person shall be served in the manner provided for the service of summons. [Part of s. 94.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to the latter part of s. 94 of the C. P. Code, 1882 The former part of s. 94 has been made a separate section (s 142) This rule should be read with s. 142.

The rules for issue and service of summons are given in Or. V.

3. The forms given in the appendices, with such variation as the circumstances of each case may require, shall be used for the purposes therein mentioned. [S. 644.]

ORDER XLIX.

CHARTERED HIGH COURTS.

1. Notice to produce documents, summonses to witnesses, and every other judicial process, issued in the exercise of the original civil jurisdiction of the High Court, and of its matrimonial, testamentary any intestate jurisdictions, except summonses to defendants, writs of execution and notices to respondents may be served by the attorneys in the suits, or by persons employed by them, or by such other persons as the High Court, by any rule or order, directs. [S. 636.]

Who may serve processes of High Court.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 636, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

"Or by persons employed by them."—There is no provision of law for handing the notice to a village headman to serve upon a party resident in his village. The special employment of an individual does not seem to be contemplated by Or. XLIX, r. 1, which might be deemed to refer to persons in the attorneys regular service.—Sugan Chand v. Kanappa Chetty, 30 C. W. N. 734: 96 I. C. 375: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 977.

2. Nothing in this schedule shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any rules in force at the commencement of this Code for the taking of evidence or the recording of judgments and orders by a Chartered High Court. [New.]

Saving in respect of Chartered High Courts.

COMMENTARY.

Section 633, C P. Code, 1882, contained provisions for the taking of evidence and recording judgment and orders. The section ran as follows:—"The High Court shall take evidence and record judgments and orders in such manner as it by rule from time to time directs."

The intention of the Legislature, as expressed in s. 633 of the C P. Code, 1882, was that the High Court might frame rules as to how its judgments should be given, whether orally or in writing, or according to any mode which might appear to it best in the interests of justice—Sundar Bibi v. Bisheshwar Nath, 9 A. 93.

3. The following rules shall not apply to any Chartered High Court in the exercise of its ordinary or extraordinary original civil jurisdiction, namely :—

Application of rules.

(1) rule 10 and r. 11, clauses (b) and (c), of Or. VII;

(2) rule 3 of Or. X;

(3) rule 2 of Or. XVI;

(4) rules 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 15 and 16 (so far as relate to the manner of taking evidence) of Or XVIII;

(5) rules 1 to 8 of Or. XX; and

(6) rule 7 of Or. XXXIII (so far as relates to the making of a memorandum); and r. 35 of Or. XLI shall not apply to any such High Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. [S. 638.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to part of s 638, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions, alterations and omissions. The first part and the last part of the old section, are inserted in s 120, and this rule is to be read with s. 120.

This order is to be read with PART IX of this Code, which contains special provisions relating to the Chartered High Courts

For the power of the High Courts to make rules, see, PART X

Notice is hereby given that, under rule 64 of Order XXI of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, an order has been passed by this Court for the sale of the attached property mentioned in the annexed schedule, in satisfaction of the claim of the decree-holder in the suit (1) mentioned in the margin, amounting with costs and interest up to date of sale to the sum of

The sale will be by public auction, and the property will be put up for sale in the lots specified in the schedule The sale will be of the property of the judgment-debtors above-named as mentioned in the schedule below; and the liabilities and claims attaching to the said property, so far as they have been ascertained, are those specified in the schedule against each lot

In the absence of any order of postponement, the sale will be held by at the monthly sale commencing at o'clock on the at In the event, however, of the debt above specified and of the costs of the sale being tendered or paid before the knocking down of any lot, the sale will be stopped

At the sale the public generally are invited to bid, either personally or by duly authorized agent No bid by, or on behalf of, the judgment-creditors above-mentioned, however, will be accepted nor will any sale to them be valid without the express permission of the Court previously given. The following are the further Conditions of Sale.

1 The particulars specified in the schedule below have been stated to the best of the information of the Court, but the Court will not be answerable for any error, mis-statement or omission in this proclamation

2 The amount by which the biddings are to be increased shall be determined by the officer conducting the sale. In the event of any dispute arising as to the amount bid, or as to the bidder, the lot shall at once be again put up to auction.

3. The highest bidder shall be declared to be the purchaser of any lot, provided always that he is legally qualified to bid, and provided that it shall be in the discretion of the Court or officer holding the sale to decline acceptance of the highest bid when the price offered appears so clearly inadequate as to make it advisable to do so.

4. For reasons recorded, it shall be in the discretion of the officer conducting the sale to adjourn it subject always to the provision of rule 69 of Order XXI.

5. In the case of moveable property, the price of each lot shall be paid at the time of sale or as soon after as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of payment shall forthwith be again put up and re-sold.

6. In the case of immoveable property, the person declared to be the purchaser shall pay immediately after such declaration a deposit of 25 per cent. on the amount of his purchase-money to the officer conducting the sale, and in default of such deposit the property shall forthwith be put up again and re-sold.

7. The full amount of the purchase-money shall be paid by the purchaser before the Court closes on the fifteenth day after the sale of the property, exclusive of such day, or if the fifteenth day be a Sunday or other holiday, then on the first office day after the fifteenth day.

8 In default of payment of the balance of purchase-money within the period allowed, the property shall be re-sold after the issue of a fresh notification of sale. The deposit, after defraying the expenses of the sale, may, if the Court thinks fit, be forfeited to Government and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property or to any part of the sum for which it may be subsequently sold

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

ARBITRATION.

ARBITRATION IN SUITS.

Parties to suit may apply for order of reference.

1. (1) Where in any suit all the parties interested agree that any matter in difference between them shall be referred to arbitration, they may, at any time before judgment is pronounced, apply to the Court for an order of reference.

(2) Every such application shall be in writing and shall state the matter sought to be referred. [S. 506, para. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Two questions of importance have arisen in connection with this subject. (1) Should any of the sections of the Arbitration Act of 1899, be incorporated in the Code; (2) should the right of appeal as now existing be altered, and if so, in what direction? We are of opinion that the best course would undoubtedly be to eliminate from the Code all the clauses as to arbitration, and insert them in a new and comprehensive Arbitration Act. There are perhaps difficulties as to this at present We have determined therefore to leave the arbitration clauses much as they are in the present Code, but we have placed them in a Schedule in the hope that at no distant date, they may be transferred into a comprehensive Arbitration Act —See the Report of the Special Committee

This para corresponds to para 1 of section 506, C P Code of 1882 with some modifications The words "where in any suit all the parties interested agree" have been substituted for the words "if all the parties to a suit desire," which occurred in the old section, the words "in the suit" which followed the words "between them" in the old section, and the words "in person or by their respective pleaders specially authorized in writing in this behalf," which stood after the words, "before the judgment is pronounced" in the old section, have been omitted

Sub-rule (2) is almost similar to para 2 of s 506 of the old Code, with the omission of the adjective "particular," which stood before the word "matter" in the old section

The reason for the substitution of the words "all the parties interested" for the words "all the parties to a suit" which occurred in the old section is that the words in the old section gave rise to much discussion as will appear from the cases reported in 21 A 229, 33 C 899 and 11 C W N 1152, in those cases it has been held that the expression "all the parties to a suit" in s. 506, C P Code, 1882, does not include defendants who never appeared and between whom and the plaintiff, there was not any matter of difference. Thus a pro forma defendant, who never enters appearance and against whom no relief is asked by the plaintiff, is not a party "interested" within the meaning of the present rule, although he is made a defendant as a matter of form. It would thus appear that the word interested refers only to parties who are interested and not to the parties who are formal parties and not interested in the result of the suit. This would explain the object of the change.

The reason for the omission of the words "in person, or by their respective pleaders specially authorized in writing in this behalf" seems to be, that those words are quite unnecessary, when this rule is read with the rule 1 of Order III, which provides that any appearance, application, etc., etc., required or authorized by law to be made or done by any party, may be made or done by a pleader duly appointed to act on his behalf.

The other changes introduced in this rule, are not material.

S. 506 and the following sections, up to section 522, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 16), deal with cases in which the parties to a suit desire to leave the matters in difference between them to arbitration and apply to the Court for an order of reference.—Sheo Dat v. Sheo Shankar, 27 A. 53.

Reference to be Made by All the Parties Interested.—In the case of a reference under this rule the agreement to refer and the application to the Court must have the concurrence of all parties and the actual reference is the order of the Court, so that no question can arise as to the regularity of the proceedings up to the order of reference by the Court.—Ghulam Jilani v. Muhammad Ahmed, 6 C. W. N. 226, P. C.: 29 C. 167.

An application for reference was signed by some of the defendants personally, and on behalf of others by a pleader; but the vakalutnama was not signed by one of the defendants on whose behalf the pleader had signed it. Held, that the reference and the subsequent proceedings were invalid. —Kadhu Singh v. Baljit Singh, 29 A. 423. 4 A. L. J. 347 (24 A. 229 distinguished).

According to the Allahabad High Court, a defendant who does not put in an appearance and does not contest the suit is not a "party" within the meaning of this rule. The mere fact, therefore that such a defendant has not joined in the application for an order of reference will not invalidate an award.—Ishardas v. Keshub Deo, 32 A. 657; Ajudhia Prasad v. Badarul Husani, 39 A. 489, 495.—Contra in Haswa v. Madhub, 8 A. L. J. 645; Sabta v. Dharam, 35 A. 107. The Calcutta and the Madras High Courts have taken a contrary view and held that the mere fact that the defendant has not put in an appearance and does not contest the suit is no ground for holding that he is not a party "interested" within the meaning of this rule.—Girija v. Kanai, 27 C. L. J. 939; Seth Duli Chand v. Mamuji, 25 C. L. J. 339; Laduram v. Nandlal, 47 C. 553: 55 I. C. 747 F. B.; Patita v. Narasinga, 42 M. 632, (Contra in Vaithianatha v. Viathialinga, 18 Mad. L. T. 374). A party may be interested, though no relief is claimed against him.—Subbarao v. Appadurai, 48 M. L. J. 142: 86 I. C. 839: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 621.

To constitute a valid reference to arbitration it is enough if all the parties to suit interested in the subject matter agree to the reference.

From the mere fact that certain defendants did not appear and the suit proceeded ex parte so far as they were concerned it could not be assumed that they were not interested parties —Bhagavanulu v. Seetharamaswami, 44 M. L. J. 539; (1923) M W. N 296; Raghunath v Ramrup, 2 Pat. 777; 1924 Pat. 33.

A defendant who is ex parte may be a party " interested " within the meaning of Sch. II, Part 1, C P Code —Patita v. Narasinga, 42 M. 632: 36 M. L J. 538.

A person who is not a necessary party to a suit is not a party " interested " within the meaning of this para.—Sabta v Dhram, 35 A. 107: 18 I. C. 609 —Ajudhia Prasad v. Badar-ul-Husain, 39 A 489: 41 I. C. 357.

The words " all the parties interested " in para 1 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code mean that all the parties interested in the litigation only need be parties to the application for reference to arbitration It is a question of fact in each case as to who are the parties interested in the litigation —Jaipal Tewary v. Tapeswari, 45 I C 321.

As to the meaning of the " person interested " see also, Vythinatha Aiyar v Vaithilinga Mudaliar, 18 M. L. T. 375 (1915) M W. N 817.

All the parties interested in a suit must join in the reference to arbitration and where only some of the parties agree to refer, the award on such reference is void —Debendra Nath v Jogendra Nath, 64 I C. 221.

The words " all the parties to a suit " in s 506, C P. Code, 1882 (this para.) refer to the succeeding words of the same section " any matter in difference between them in the suit," and would not necessarily include parties who never put in any appearance in the Court, and between whom and any of the parties to the submission there was not in fact any matter in difference in the suit —Pitam Mal v. Sadiq Ali, 24 A. 229 See also, Lal Mohan v. Surja Kumar, 11 C. W. N 1152 and Chairman of Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C 899.

Section 506, C P Code, 1882 (this para), contemplates an application to the Court in which all the parties join as applicants or parties consenting to the application. There is no provision made for giving an opportunity to an objecting party to be heard —Tincoury Dey v Fakir Chand, 30 Cal. 218. 7 C. W. N 180

In a suit for partnership accounts two out of three defendants petitioned the Court to refer the matters in dispute to arbitration The representatives of the third defendant (who was then deceased) were not parties to the application Held, that the reference was illegal and the award was void —Indur Subbarami v Kandadai Rajmannar, 26 M 47

An application for arbitration must be made by all the parties who are materially interested, otherwise it is liable to be declared invalid by the Court, and to be set aside —Baikantha Nath v Nasiruddin, 1 B L R S N. 11; 10 W R. 171

Where in a suit against the members of a partnership an order was made under para 1 of Sch II of the C P Code, referring all the matters in difference between the parties to the suit to arbitration with the consent of all the parties, with the exception of two of the defendants who did not enter appearance and an award was made thereon, held, that the order of reference was invalid not only against the parties who did not agree to the order of reference but also against those who had agreed and the award must be set aside (9 C W. N. 873 folld; 11 C. W. N dissented from; 25 C. 167 refd. to); Seth Dooly Chand v. Mamuji Musaji, 21 C. W N 387; 25 C. L. J 339. (Relied on in Hera Prasanna v. Arabali, 71 I. C. 326.)

An application for arbitration on behalf of an absent plaintiff is not allowable without special authority.—Goor Chunder v. Joogul Chunder, 1 W. R. 80 See also, Bhuguan Dass v Nund Lal, 12 C 173 (178)

One partner has no power, in the absence of special authority, to bind the firm by a submission to arbitration.—Ram Bharasi v Kallu Mal, 22 A. 135

A manager of a joint Hindu family has the power to bind the family by reference of a dispute with any outsider regarding the family property, to arbitration, provided such reference be for the benefit of the family. Minors in the family are bound by the reference —Balaji v. Nana, 27 B 287; Hardeo Sahai v Gouri Shankar, 28 A. 35: 2 A. L. J. 493 (27 C. 229, 12 M 483 followed), Annanda Krishna v. Jogendra Nath, 8 C L J. 294; Guran Ditta v Pokhar Ram, A I R. 1927 Lah. 362.

The Judge intimated that he should refer the suit to arbitration, and allowed a certain time to the parties to object to that course No objection was made within such time, and thereupon the Judge referred the cause to arbitrators named by him. Held, that the reference was not warranted, there having been no express consent by the parties —Degumbur v Ram Prea, Marsh. 715. 2 Hay. 583 Referred to Beni Madhub v Preo Nath, 28 C. 303 5 C W. N. 343.

Where a claimant objects to the attachment of property in execution of a decree and the matter is referred to arbitration, the judgment-debtor is a necessary party to the reference —Basdeo v Must Saraswati, 64 I. C. 469.

"Apply."—This para requires that all the parties interested should not only agree to a reference, but that they should all apply to the Court for an order of reference.—Dooly Chand v Mamuji Musaji, 21 C W. N 387 41 I C 295. Therefore, if one of the parties interested agrees to a reference, but changes his mind subsequently and does not join in the application, the application for an order of reference should be refused —Miran Bakhsh v Sher Muhammad, 17 P R, 39· 9 I. C. 195

Application for Reference by Pleader.—A pleader unless specially authorized cannot apply for reference to arbitration; and if there is nothing to show that the reference was acquiesced in by the subsequent conduct of the parties the reference is invalid.—Sheo Das Misser v. Nandan, 7 C W. N. 343, Azizdin v Motiram, 96 I. C. 277. A Vakalatnama in general terms is wholly insufficient —Ram Juwan v. Kali Charan, 29 A 429, 4 A. L. J. 342

The application for a reference to arbitration must be made in Court by an instrument in writing by the parties in person or their pleaders specially authorized in that behalf.—Bhrigoo Roy v Bhagruth, W. R. (1864), Act X, 41; Gazee v. Hamid Buksh, 16 W. R. 160.

Effect of Acquiescence and Tacit Consent.—Where a party after signing a petition for reference to arbitration does not make any objection to the appointment of the arbitrator, on the day when the order of reference is made, he must be taken to have tacitly acquiesced in the course adopted by the Court, and such acquiescence amounts to a fresh submission.—Halimbhai v Shankar Sai, 10 B 381 (9 Bom H C 117 and 8 W. R. 171 followed). See also, Dharnidhar v Sakharam, 71 I C 860.

When a party authorized his agent to conduct a suit, and the agent consented to the case being referred to arbitration, which was carried on with the assent and knowledge of the party, he cannot afterwards apply to set aside the award on the ground that his pleader had no authority in writing to refer the matter to arbitration.—Unniraman v. Chattan, 9 M. 451. Followed in Saturjit Pertap Bahadur v Dulhin Gulap Koer, 24 C. 469, which has been distinguished in Sheo Das Misser v. Brij Nandan, 7 C. W. N. 343. See also, Abdul Hamed v. Raizuddin, 30 A. 32 and Luxmibai v. Hajee Widina, 23 B. 629, where it has been held that the absence of a written authority did not invalidate the order of reference. These cases have been distinguished in Beni Madhub v. Preo Nath, 28 C. 303: 5 C. W. N. 268, where it has been held that a mere silence on the part of a person, not a party to an order of reference to arbitration, and his omission to inform the arbitrators that he was not a party to the reference, cannot make the award binding on him, even though, during the arbitration, he produced through a servant a document before the arbitrators in obedience to a summons, and declined to produce others.

In a suit pending before arbitrators, a person who is made a co-plaintiff on application, and makes no objection to the arbitration, is bound by the award.—Shita Nath v. Kishen Mohan, 5 W R 130.

Effect of Award Made Without All Parties Joining.—An arbitration award, not being one which has been made upon a reference by all the parties to the suit, is not capable of being converted into a final decree, though it is evidence against any party who agreed to the reference.—Beejoy Chunder v Bhyrub Chunder, 15 W R 427

The agreement to refer to arbitration and the application to the Court founded upon it must have the concurrence of all the parties concerned and if all the defendants including those who have not appeared and contested the suit, do not join in the reference to arbitration, the award is wholly invalid and not merely against those who joined in it and is liable to be set aside on the application of any of the parties; Dooly Chand v. Mamuji 25 C L J 339 21 C W N 387 41 I C 295 (9 C W N. 873, 25 C. L. J 339, 11 C. W N 1152, 29 C 167, refd to); Girija Nath v Kanai Lal, 27 C L J 339 43 I C 169; Fanindra Nath v Dwarka Nath, 25 C W N 832 (29 A 429, 21 C W N 387 27 C L J 339 refd to); Venkataramanuja Charlu v Vasudeva Charyulu, 23 L W 769: 96 I C 273

An award made without all parties consenting to arbitration, was held binding upon those only who agreed to the arbitration.—Bishoka Dasia v. Anunto Lal, 4 C L R 65 See also, Doorga Churn v Kally

Dass, 10 W. R. 463. In Joy Prokash Lall v. Sheo Golam, 11 C 37 (approving 5 W. R. 130, 6 W R. 25, 10 W. R. 463, and 4 C. L R. 65), it has been laid down that an award is good not withstanding that some and not all the parties to the suit may not have joined in the reference to arbitration See also, Lal Mohan v. Surya Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 1152, and Chairman of Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C. 899 (9 C W N 873 dissented from) But see, Parshidh Narain v. Ghanashyam, 9 C W N. 873, and Indur Subbarami v. Kandadai, 26 M. 47, where a contrary view has been taken.

A Court has no jurisdiction to make an order of reference under Sch II, Para 1 of the C P Code without the consent of all the parties including the party who does not appear interested. If an order be made without the consent of such non-appearing party it is illegal and an award made on such reference is also illegal.—Laduram Nathmull v. Nandlal, 47 C 555· 31 C L J. 150 •

An arbitrator's award declared the right of a member of a Hindu family jointly possessed of property, such member being deaf and dumb, and not a party to the arbitration award. He afterwards sued for a separate possession against the others who in their defence denied his title to inherit by Hindu law, on account of his physical infirmity. The award having been produced at the hearing, held, that this member of the family, not being a party to the award, was not bound by the award.—Hira Singh v. Ganga Sahai, 6 A. 322, P. C. (affirming 2 A. 809)

Application for Reference shall be in Writing.—The provision of the second clause of this para , viz , that an application for reference shall be in writing, is directory only and not imperative, and non-compliance with the provision does not render the reference a nullity, but is only an irregularity which would be cured by s 578, C. P. Code 1882 (s. 99) and that the defect was further cured by the written application subsequently made to extend the time —Shama Sundaram v. Abdul Latif, 27 C 61: 4 C. W. N. 92 (Followed in Abdul Hamid v. Riazuddin, 30 A 32, referred to in Mahabir v Manohar, 22 A. L. J. 67); Mirza Mahomed Hasan Beg v. Mirza Shakir Beg, 10 O & A. L R. 55. Where the agreement was in writing but was not signed by one of the parties, it was held that para 1 of this Schedule did not require that the writing should of necessity be signed —Umed Singh v. Sobbaq Mal, 43 I. A. 1: 43 C. 290: 32 I. C. 161. It has also been held that the record made by the Court on an oral application for reference is sufficient.—Mahabir v. Mandhar, 46 A. 208. 79 I C 816 A I R. 1924 All. 540. But the award was held to be invalid where a pardanashin lady was a party and the application was signed by her pleader, who was not authorized to do so by his Vakalatnama, Fanindra v Dwarka, 25 C. W. N. 832.

Application for Reference should be Made by All the Parties Interested.—This para. requires that all the parties interested should not only agree to a reference, but that they should all apply to the Court for an order of reference.—Miran Baoksh v. Sher Muhammed, Punj. Rec. No. 17, p. 39

Effect of Omission of One Party to Sign Petition of Reference.—The omission of one of the parties to a case referred to arbitration to sign the petition of reference is not conclusive that he was not a party to the reference and the award will not be invalid merely on that ground.—Tekait Mal v Anandamoyi, 38 I. C. 226.

"Before judgment."—A suit may be referred to arbitration after a reference is made to the High Court.—Ramlal v. Deoraj, 44 A. 91: 64 I. C. 601: A. I. R. 1922 All. 173.

Power of Appellate Court to Make Reference.—Under s. 107, an Appellate Court has the power with the consent of the parties, of referring to arbitration matters in dispute in an appeal if all the parties interested agree to a reference.—Bhugwan Das v. Nund Lall, 12 C. 173. Followed in Suresh Chunder v. Ambica Churn, 18 C. 507. See also, Dutta v. Khedu, 33 A. 645. In re Sangralingam Pillai, 3 M. 78; Russool Bibee v. Jan Ali, 12 B L. B. 21 W R 210, F. B

An Appellate Court, in remanding a case, has no power to order the first Court to call upon the parties to the suit to agree to arbitration, or, on their refusing to do so, to appoint arbitrators —Punna Bibee v. Khoda Buksh, 22 W R. 396

A Court to which issues have been remitted by the Appellate Court under s 566, C P Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r 25), has only jurisdiction to try the issues remitted and is functus officio in other respects, and cannot make a reference of the case to arbitration, which is only within the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court —Nand Ram v Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523 (22 W. R 207 referred to).

Power of Court to Refer Matters Outside Suit.—Under Sch II, para. 1, C. P. Code, the jurisdiction of the Courts to refer to arbitration is confined to matters in difference in the suit itself and does not extend so as to include other matters in dispute between the parties not included in the suit. An award under an invalid reference being itself invalid, gives no rights as an award or as a compromise —Peddapalayam Bodachari v. Peddapalayam Muniya Chari, (1921) M W N. 756· 14 L W. 666.

Arbitration under Special Acts.—Under the general law the parties to suits for arrears of rent, may, with the leave of the Court, refer the matters in suits between them to arbitration —Khemna Gowala v Budoloo Khan, 6 C 251 7 C L R 92, Goshain Girdharji v Durga Debi, 2 A. 119, Gouri Shankar v Babhan Lal, 14 A 347. Contra,—Fahimunnissa v. Ajudhia Prasad, 6 A 170

A suit under s 16 of the Religious Endowments Act (XX of 1863) may be referred to arbitration —Perumal Naik v. Sami Natha, 10 M 468. See also, Protap Chandra v Brojo Nath, 19 C 275, and Karedla Vijayaraghava v Vemavarapu, 26 M 361

An executor, against whose application for probate a caveat has been entered, cannot submit to arbitration the question whether the will propounded by him was duly executed by the deceased —Ghellabhai Atmaram v. Nandubai, 21 B 335 (reversing in appeal, 20 B 238).

When a complaint has been preferred to a Criminal Court, and the Magistrate has directed that the subject-matter of the complaint be referred to arbitration, if the parties consent and proceed to such reference, the award may be enforced under the provisions of the C. P Code—Sheo Nund Rai v Mahanund Ram, 1 Agra 45.

Withdrawal of Suit After Reference to Arbitration.—After a case has been referred to arbitration on the application of the parties under this para, the Court has no power to allow one of the parties to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit. An order of Court permitting the withdrawal of the suit and liberty to bring a fresh suit is ultra vires and a fresh suit instituted in pursuance of the permission thus given, is barred by s. 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), and also by the second clause of s 373, C. P Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r 1)—Sheorambet v. Deodat, 9 A 168 See however, Gouri Shankar v. Maida Koer, 31 C 516

Where a Party Dies After Application but Before Order of Reference.—In such a case, the death of the party does not operate as a revocation of the authority of the proposed arbitration If, therefore, the right to sue survives, it is competent to the Court to make an order of reference after substitution of the representative of the deceased party.—Dutta v. Kheda, 33 A 645, Binayakdas v Sashi, 26 C W. N 801: 70 I. C. 459: A I R 1922 Cal 226

Execution Proceedings.—This Schedule does not apply to execution proceedings, and a reference to arbitration by an execution Court is without jurisdiction.—T Wang v Sonawangdi, 52 C. 530: 87 I C. 633: A I R 1925 Cal. 812

Form.—For form of application for an order of reference, see, the Appendix to this Schedule, Form No. 1.

Appointment of arbitrator. 2. The arbitrator shall be appointed in such manner as may be agreed upon between the parties. [S. 507, para. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to para 1 of s 507 of the C. P. Code, 1882 with this modification that the word "appointed" has been substituted for the word "nominated," which occurred in the old section. The other changes are not material

The second para, of s. 507 has been omitted from this para and inserted in para 5 with some amendments.

Appointment of Arbitrator.—Before a Judge refers a case for arbitration he should ascertain whether the persons nominated are willing to accept the office, and, till he has done so, any nomination of an arbitrator by him, without the application or consent of the parties, is illegal—Troylucko Nath v The Collector of Beerbhoom, W. R. (1864) 338.

Where a party has selected an arbitrator, he cannot ask the Court to appoint another arbitrator.—Shiam Sundar v Bhairon Singh, A. W. N. (1906), 51: 3 A. L. J. 185.

The Code gives no power to a Court to force arbitrators on an unwilling suitor. The award of arbitrators so appointed will not be enforced.—Sheo Nath alias Burray Kaka v. Ram Nath alias Chotay Kaka, 5 W. R. 21 P. C., 10 M. I. A. 418.

A pleader of one of the parties to the suit should not be appointed as arbitrator.—Kali Prosanno v. Rojani Kant, 25 C. 141. Referred to in Mahomed Wahiduddin v. Hakiman, 29 C. 178: 6 C. W. N. 235.

Order of reference.

3. (1) The Court shall, by order, refer to the arbitrator the matter in difference which he is required to determine, and shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of the award and shall specify such time in the order.

(2) Where a matter is referred to arbitration, the Court shall not, save in the manner and to the extent provided in this schedule, deal with such matter in the same suit. [S. 503.]

COMMENTARY.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to s. 508 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the words "for the making" have been substituted for the words "for the delivery," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of s. 508, C. P. Code, 1882, with change of language only; there being no change in the meaning.

Discretion of Court to Refuse Application for Reference to Arbitration by Parties.—If the parties agree to refer the matter in dispute to arbitration and apply to the Court for reference accordingly, the Court has no discretion to refuse to do so, even though the application may have been made after a long hearing of the case by the Court.—Mohendra Lal v. Fakir Chandra, 24 I. C. 610, Baldeo Sahai v. Harbans, 33 A. 626: 8 A. L. J. 652.

Matters in Difference between the Parties.—Where all matters in difference between the parties in the suit were referred to arbitration under an order of Court Held, that the arbitrators had power to award interest after the date of the submission, and to deal with the costs of reference and award.—Mohan Lal v. Mahu Ram, 1 B. L. R. 144.

The arbitrators to whom the matters in difference in two suits for money were referred to arbitration, made an award for payment to the plaintiff of certain sums by the defendant, and further directed that these sums should be paid by certain instalments. Held, that as it was clear that the reference to arbitration gave the arbitrators full powers, not only as to the amount to be paid, but also as to the manner of payment the lower Appellate Court was wrong in reducing the number of instalments which had been fixed by the award.—Jawahir Singh v. Mul Raj, 8 A. 449.

A decision of arbitrators in a matter not in difference between the parties nor referred to them, is null and void for want of jurisdiction.—Moshaheb Singh v. Konomutty Bewa, 15 W. R 172.

An award upon a question referred to arbitrators, on whose part no misconduct or mistake appears, precludes the parties who have submitted to the reference from afterwards contesting in a suit the question so referred and disposed of by the award.—Bhagoti v. Chandan, 11 C. 386. P. C.; 12 I. A. 67.

Power of Arbitrators to Deal with the Question of Costs.—See notes under para. 13.

Courts shall Fix Time for Delivery of Award.—Paragraph 3 provides that the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of the award and shall specify such time in the order of reference. Paragraph 8 enables the Court from time to time to enlarge the period for the making of the award Paragraph 15 provides that an award made after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court may be set aside by the Court. The provision contained in this paragraph, requiring the Court to fix a reasonable time for the making of the award, is not merely directory but imperative. Hence the provisions of this para should be strictly followed It has, however, been held that, if no time is fixed for the delivery of the award in the order of reference, but the Court subsequently makes an order under para 8 for enlarging the time and fixes in that order the time within which the award is to be made, the omission to fix the time in the order of reference is not fatal to the award —Raja Har Narain v. Chaudhrain Bhagwant Kuar, 13 A. 300: 18 I. A 55 In Robindra Deb v Jogendra Deb, 27 C. W. N. 420: 80 I. C. 459: A I R 1923 Cal. 410, it was held by Rankin, J., recalling the order of reference, that the provision in para. 3 of Sch II, viz., "the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of the award," is mandatory; accordingly, a reference which gave the arbitrators leave to extend for such further time as they may allow themselves was bad and of no effect. See also, Gouri Shankar v. Babban Lal, 14 A. 347, Luchman Das v. Abparkash, 30 A 169

But the Madras High Court in Muthukutti Nayakan v. Acha Nayakan, 18 M. 22 (referring to Har Narain v. Bhogwant Kuar, 10 A 137), held that an award is not invalid merely because no time has been fixed for the making of the award, s. 508, C. P. Code, 1882, being directory and not mandatory. This view of the Madras High Court is opposed to the Privy Council case reported in 13 A. 300 In Omersey Premji v. Shamji Kanji, 13 B 119, the Bombay High Court has held that an award made but not filed within the time specified by order of the Court is not invalid. See also, Mohan Lal v. Baz Khan, 46 I. C 324, Radhakant v. Jaladhar, 37 I C. 844.

In the case of an arbitration made under the order of a Court it is sufficient if the award is made, completed and signed by the arbitrators within the period limited under s. 508, C P. Code (this rule). It is not necessary for the validity of such award that it should actually reach the hands of the Court within such period.—Asadullah v. Mohammad Nur, 27 A. 459. (22 M 22, 13 B 119, and 13 A. 300 followed; 8 A 543 dissented from). See also, Debendra Nath v. Sarbamongola, 8 C. W. N. 916.

The time fixed by the Court for the delivery of an award was the 16th of April 1900. The award was actually completed and signed and made over to a peon of the Court on that day; but as it was received by the peon after Court hours, it did not in fact reach the hands of the Court until the next day Held, that the award is within time.—Sitaram v. Bhawani Din, 26 A. 105 (8 A. 543 and 518, 13 A. 300, 13 B 119, and 22 M. 22 referred to).

Where no time had been fixed in the order directing the arbitrators for sending in the award or where the Court omitted to fix a date for delivery of the award, the award is invalid.—Ganga Gobinda v. Kali Prosanno, 1 B. L. R. S. N. 13: 10 W. R. 206. See also, Lachman Das v Abparkash, 30 A. 169 (8 A. 548 followed)

Where no time was originally fixed within which the award was to be made, it is open to either party to hasten the proceedings by giving notice to the arbitrators that the award must be made, and an umpire appointed, within a reasonable time; but where the time elapsing after the notice has been actively employed by the arbitrators, and the delay has been owing to necessity which they could not control, the parties cannot recede from their submission by reason of the notice.—Pestonjee v. Manockjee & Co., 10 W. R 51, P C : 12 M I A 112 See also, Ablokhee Kooer v. Oodun Singh, 15 W R. 331.

Power of Courts to Extend Time for Making Award.—See notes under rule 8.

Cl. (2). "The Court shall not deal with such matter in the same suit."—When once a matter is referred to arbitration, it is not competent to the Court, under the second paragraph of this para. to "deal with" the matter in difference between the parties except as provided in this schedule. There is no rule of that schedule which authorizes the Court to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator and to appoint a new one except in cases strictly within the purview of s 510, C P Code, 1882 (r 10, Sch II) The enactment of the second paragraph of this section, has the effect of rigidly restricting the Courts to the exact procedure laid down when dealing with cases in which the appointment of a new arbitrator becomes necessary —Halimbhai Karimbhai v Shankar Sai, 10 B 381

Where a matter is referred to arbitration, the Court has no power to grant permission to the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, for there is no paragraph in this Schedule corresponding to Or. XXIII, r 1 —Sheo Amber v Deodat, 9 A 168, Debi Churn v. Bipra, 7 C W N 186

It is not open to the Court to hear the suit on the merits unless the arbitration has been superseded under paras 5, 8 or 15 —Jamna v Nazib, 24 A 312 Similarly, the Court has no power to confirm an order passed by arbitrators making payments of their fees a condition precedent to the hearing of the reference, there being no paragraph in this Schedule empowering the Court to make an order in that behalf —Sted v Roberts, 6 C. 809

The parties to a suit applied for an adjournment on the ground that they had agreed to refer the matters in difference between them to arbitration The Court accordingly referred the matters in difference to arbitration and an award was made. Held, that under the circumstances, the further hearing of the suit was barred.—Saliq Ram v. Jhunna Kuar, 4 A. 546.

When a Court has referred a suit to arbitration, it has jurisdiction over the arbitrators to compel them to give up documents filed before them as exhibits during the course of the arbitration, and to return the original record of the suit which may have been handed to them. Such jurisdiction can be exercised by an application made in the suit on notice to the arbitrators.—Nursing Chunder v. Nuffer Chunder, 17 C. 832.

A suit was referred to three arbitrators who were to make an award within six months. The arbitrators had only one meeting, at which an agreement was come to by parties to settle all matters in dispute among themselves and withdraw the matters from arbitration, which was accordingly done, but nothing appeared to have been afterwards done. No award was made within six months. On an application by the plaintiff to have the suit restored to the file of the Court,—held, that the suit was still pending, the arbitrators not having determined it while they had jurisdiction to do so, and it was ordered that it should be brought again before the Court.—Gopi Nath v. Shib Chandra, 6 B. L. R. App. 74.

After reference to arbitration award was made and delivered, but it was subsequently discovered that one of the plaintiffs had died before the determination of the arbitration proceedings, and the Munsif accordingly set aside the award, and again referred the matter to the arbitrators after the heirs of the deceased plaintiff were brought upon the record. The arbitrators made a fresh award, and the Court passed a decree accordingly. Held, that the Court had no power to deal with the matter.—Pachkouri Ram v. Nand Rai, 30 A. 505.

Revocation of, or Withdrawal from, Arbitration.—It is almost an universal rule that a submission to arbitration is revocable before award is made.—Surubjeet Narain v. Gouree Pershad, 7 W. R. 269.

When persons have agreed to submit the matter in difference between them to the arbitration of one or more specified persons, no party to the agreement can revoke the submission to arbitration, unless for good cause, and a mere arbitrary revocation of the authority is not permitted.—Pestanjee Nusserwanjee v. Manockjee & Co., 10 W. R. 51, P. C.: 12 M. I. A. 112 (followed in Nainsukh Rai v. Umadai, 7 A. 273, and also in Sultan Mohammad v. Sheo Prasad, 20 A. 145). See also, Ram Coomar v. Kala Chand, 21 W. R. 395; Ablakee Kooer v. Oodun Singh, 15 W. R. 331 and Bansidhar v. Sital Prasad, 29 A. 13, where it has been held that if it be proved that the arbitrator is in fraudulent collusion with one of the opposite side, that may be a good ground for revocation. A reference to arbitration made under an order of Court cannot be revoked at the instance of a party.—Nilmonee v. Mohima Chunder, 17 W. R. 516.

An agreement to refer an existing dispute to arbitration is as binding and capable of enforcement as any other lawful contract; and a submission of such a dispute to arbitration once made is not, without just and sufficient cause, revocable.—Perumalla v. Perumalla, 27 M. 112. See also, Nagasawmy Naik v. Rungasamy, 8 M. H. C. 46 (3 Mad. H. C. 82 overruled; 3 Mad. H. C. 183 and 7 Mad. H. C. 257 followed).

An agreement by parties to a suit to have a case decided in accordance with the statement made on oath by a third party, is in the nature of a reference to arbitration under the C. P. Code, and the revocation of such a reference is not prohibited by the law.—Lekhraj Singh v. Dulhma Kuar, 4 A. 302.

If, after a reference to arbitration, it transpires that the arbitrator has been acting as a muktear of one of the parties without any remuneration, the other party is entitled to withdraw from the reference and the award made by the arbitrator after receipt of notice of revocation cannot be enforced by suit. So, where an arbitrator is indebted to one of the parties. —Mahomed Wahiduddin v Hakiman, 29 C. 278: 6 C. W. N. 235

A submission to arbitration can only be revoked on good grounds. Long and unreasonable delay in the conduct of the proceedings is a good ground for revocation of the agreement for submission. When an agreement to refer has been duly revoked the Court is incompetent to order it to be filed under s 523, C. P Code, 1882.—Coley v. DaCosta, 17 C 200.

In the course of arbitration proceedings in Calcutta, the parties telegraphed to the arbitrators to stay further proceedings. Held, that the telegrams sent to arbitrators did not amount to a revocation of their authority.—Kellie v. Fraser, 2 C 445.

Form.—For form of order of reference, See Form No. 2, to the Appendix to this Schedule

Where reference is to two or more, order to provide for difference of opinion.

4. (1) Where the reference is to two or more arbitrators, provision shall be made in the order for a difference of opinion among the arbitrators—

(a) by the appointment of an umpire; or

(b) by declaring that, if the majority of the arbitrators agree, the decision of the majority shall prevail; or

(c) by empowering the arbitrators to appoint an umpire; or

(d) otherwise as may be agreed between the parties or, if they cannot agree, as the Court may determine.

(2) Where an umpire is appointed, the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of his award in case he is required to act. [S. 509.]

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to s 509, C P Code, 1882, with some alterations in the language of clauses (b) and (d). The changes are of a verbal character; no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Provision as to Difference of Opinion among Arbitrators.—Where a case has been referred to arbitration, but no provision has been made in the order of reference for any difference of opinion among them. Held, that the Court should have ordered that the arbitrators should appoint an umpire; or should have declared that the decision of majority should prevail; or should have appointed an umpire; or should have made such arrangements as the parties would have consented to; or if they could not agree such arrangement as it thought fit. Where this was not done, the High Court in special appeal remanded the case with instructions to submit the case again to the arbitrators with a distinct order.—Haradhan Dut v Radha Nath, 2 B L R. S. N. 14, 10 W. R. 398 But see, Thakoor Dass v. Ram Jeebun, 14 W. R. 150.

The mere absence of a clause in the order of reference providing for a difference of opinion between the arbitrators cannot vitiate the award where there is no such difference of opinion.—Gour Chunder v. Sodoy Chunder, 17 W R. 30. Followed in Bepin Behary v. Krishna Behary, 8 C. L. J. 475. Where an order of reference to arbitration does not provide for difference of opinion among the arbitrators, and for authorizing a majority to decide the case, the award will, on objection being taken, be set aside.—Futteh Singh v. Gango, 4 W. R. 4. Distinguished in 8 C. L J. 475.

Where the parties agreed to refer a suit to arbitration, but no provision was made that the decision by the majority of arbitrators should be binding, and two of five arbitrators withdrew, held, that the decision by the remaining three who constituted the majority was invalid.—Garupathappa v. Narasingappa, 7 M 174.

In an agreement to refer certain matters to arbitration, no provision was made for difference of opinion between the arbitrators by appointing an umpire or otherwise. The arbitrators being unable to agree, the Court, on the application of one of them, appointed an umpire, and directed that the award should be submitted on a particular date. An award was made by the umpire, and one arbitrator and a decree followed. Held, that the award was not legal, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties.—Muhammad Abid v Muhammad Ashgar, 8 A. 61.

Effect of Award Made Contrary to Order of Reference.—When a case has been referred to arbitration, the presence of all the arbitrators at all meetings, and, above all, at the last meeting, when the final act of arbitration is done, is essential to the validity of the award.—Nand Ram v. Fakeer Chand, 7 A. 523. See, however, Nadiar Chand v. Gobinda Chunder, 2 C. L. J 61.

A case was referred to the arbitration of five persons, with a proviso that, in the event of any two of the arbitrators being absent, the arbitration should be continued by the other three. Two of the arbitrators were pleaders on either side, and they, with the consent of the parties, ceased to act as arbitrators, but argued the matter before the other arbitrators. Held, that the award made by the other three arbitrators was a valid award.—Devendro Nath v. Aubhoy Churn, 9 C. 905, 12 C. L R 525

Umpire appointed contrary to the terms of the agreement—Decision by majority of arbitrators Held, that, as it was stipulated as an essential part of the submission that an umpire should be chosen from seven persons named, the power of the Court to appoint an umpire under this section was controlled and limited by that stipulation; and that the umpire not being one of the seven persons named in the submission, there was no valid award.—Barracho v. De Souza, 7 M. H. C. 72.

Delegation of Duty by Arbitrator.—An arbitrator cannot delegate his duties to a third person.—Jamna v Nasib, 24 A 312. But he may delegate, to a third person, the performance of acts of a ministerial character; —Bula v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 29 C. 854; 29 I. A. 168

Arbitrators Cannot Delegate their Power of Appointment of an Umpire.—Where by a contract the matters in dispute between the parties were referred to the arbitration of two persons, with a provision that, if they disagree, they should appoint an umpire. Held, that the arbitrators could not delegate the power of appointment of umpire conferred on them by the contract to a third person.—Smith v Ludha Ghella, 17 B. 129.

Extension of Period for Submission by Umpire.—As in the case of an arbitrator, so in the case of an umpire, a Court has power to extend the period within which the award is to be submitted. The Court can extend the time allowed to an umpire under this section.—Kupu Rau v. Venkataramayyar, 4 M. 311.

Power of Court to appoint arbitrator in certain cases.

5. (1) In any of the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the parties cannot agree within a reasonable time with respect to the appointment or an arbitrator, or the person appointed refuses to accept the office of arbitrator, or

[S. 507 (2) and s 510.]

(b) where an arbitrator or umpire—

(i) dies, or

(ii) refuses or neglects to act or becomes incapable of acting, or [S. 510.]

(iii) leaves British India in circumstances showing that he will probably not return at an early date, or

(c) where the arbitrators are empowered by the order of reference to appoint an umpire and fail to do so, any party may serve the other party or the arbitrators, as the case may be, with a written notice to appoint an arbitrator or umpire. [S. 511.]

(2) If, within seven clear days after such notice has been served or such further time as the Court may in each case allow, no arbitrator or no umpire is appointed as the case may be, the Court may, on application by the party who gave the notice, and after giving the other party an opportunity of being heard, appoint an arbitrator or umpire or make an order superseding the arbitration, and in such case shall proceed with the suit. [S. 510.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. embodies in a concise and amended form the provisions contained in ss 507 (2), 510 and 511 of the C. P. Code of 1882 The provisions of the old sections have been recast and summarized in this rule by change of language and phraseology, as will appear on a comparison of the provisions of the old sections with this para.

Duty of Court under This Paragraph.—The Court must, on the happening of any of the events mentioned in this para. either appoint a new arbitrator or supersede the arbitration altogether and proceed with the suit. When, therefore, one of the three arbitrators refused to act, and the Court neither appointed a new arbitrator nor made an order superseding the arbitration, it was held that the award made by the other two was invalid.—Nand Ram v Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523; Thammiraju v Bapiraju, 12 M 113; Thakurdas v Narain, 2 Lah. L. J., 637: 56 I C 644

Death, Negligence, Refusal or Incapacity of Arbitrators to Act.—Where a case was referred to the arbitration of three persons, and the parties agreed to be bound by the majority, and one of the arbitrators subsequently refused to act and withdrew: Held, that the Court could not pass a decree on the award of the remaining arbitrators, and could only, under this section, appoint a new arbitrator or supersede the arbitration and proceed with the suit —Nand Ram v Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523; Thammiraju v Bapiraju, 12 M 113

Where two of five arbitrators nominated by the parties and appointed by the Court had not consented before, and after appointment declined to act, and the Court appointed two arbitrators in their place against the consent of one of the parties, held, that the appointment of new arbitrators was not warranted by the provisions of s 510, C P Code, 1882, and that the order of reference to such arbitrators, the award made by them, and the decree passed upon their award, were illegal.—Pagardin Ravutan v. Moidinsa Ravutan, 6 M. 414. Approved in Bepin Behari v. Annoda Prasad, 18 C. 324 But under this para. the Court has power to appoint an arbitrator or arbitrators either in the place of an arbitrator, or in the place of arbitrators for which the consent of all parties is not necessary —Rampersad v Jaggernaath, 6 C. L. R. 1.

When a person goes away from the country and remains away, and there is no evidence to show an intention to return, that person becomes incapable of acting as umpire.—Godadhar Moitry v Ganga Prosad, 4 B L. R. O. C. 89.

The Court has no power to revoke the authority conferred on an arbitrator and to appoint a new one, except in cases falling strictly within the purview of this para. where " the scope and the object of the reference cannot be executed." It is only in those cases, apparently, that the authority conferred on arbitrators can be revoked " for good cause," the cause being such as is contemplated in that section, as where " an arbitrator refuses, or neglects, or becomes incapable to act, or leaves British India under circumstances showing that he will probably not return to India at an early date."—Halimbhai Karimbhai v Shankar Sai, 10 B 381

Matters in dispute were referred to the arbitration of five persons of whom four made their award. Subsequently the same arbitrators granted an application for re-hearing. Before the matter was re-heard one of the four died, and an order striking off the application was made by two of the surviving arbitrators. Held, that the award was not valid and final.—Boon Jad Mathoor v. Nathoo Shahoo, 3 C 375; 1 C L. R. 455.

Where certain matters were referred to arbitrators who refused to act, and the Court of first instance passed an order directing them to proceed and to make an award, and they, on the passing of such order made an award. Held, that all proceedings taken by the arbitrators in obedience to the order of the Court, directing them to arbitrate against their will, were null and void —Shib Charan v. Ratiram, 7 A. 20

Where one of the arbitrators, before duly signing the award, tendered his resignation in a letter to the Judge, but was induced to withdraw it, and afterwards signed the award, held, that the award was valid —Joy Mungal Singh v. Mohun Ram, 23 W R 429, P. C (affirming 15 W. R 38).

Appointment of New Arbitrator or Umpire.—It was held under the corresponding section 507 of the old Code, that the Court had no power, on the happening of either of the events referred to in cl. (a) of this paragraph, to appoint a new arbitrator without the consent of all the parties to the reference.—Pugardin v. Moidinsa, 6 M 414. Bepin v. Annoda, 18 C. 324 But under this paragraph, the Court has power to appoint a new arbitrator without the consent of all the parties even in the cases mentioned in cl (a) In cases covered by cl. (b), it is open to the Court to appoint only one new arbitrator in place of several old arbitrators — Rampersad v Juggannath, 6 C L R 1 But the Court has no power to appoint an arbitrator or umpire under sub-para (2) unless notice as required sub-para (1) is given and the party served with the notice has been given an opportunity of being heard.—Abdul Gani v. Din Doyal, 41 A. 578 50 I. C 655; Thakar Das v Ram Das, 7 Lah L J 163: 88 I C 975: A I R 1925 Lah. 374 An irregularity of procedure in the appointment of a new arbitrator is cured by consent of parties —Mahmud Sheikh v. Messrs Kankinarah & Co, 28 C W N 634 A I R 1924 Cal 665

Appointment of Umpire.—The appointment of an umpire under s. 511, C. P Code, 1882, is required where there are two or more arbitrators to provide for any difference of opinion amongst them; but not where, with the consent of the Court, only one arbitrator has been appointed.—Mahabir Misser v. Juggar Nath Misser, 25 W R. 11.

Provision should be made in the order of reference for the appointment of an umpire in case of difference of opinion among the arbitrators —Huradhan v. Radha Nath, 2 B. L. R. S. N. 14; 10 W. R. 398

Award by umpire and one arbitrator without provision for the appointment of an umpire—agreement to refer not providing for disagreement of arbitrators—Appointment of umpire by the Court. Held, that there had been no legal award such as the law contemplated, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire, and required that the award should be made by the arbitrators named by the parties—Muhammad Abid v. Muhammad Asghar, 8 A. 64.

Where the terms of a submission to arbitration were that an umpire should be selected by seven persons named, and the umpire first selected declined to act, and the Court of its own motion appointed an umpire who was not one of the seven persons named in the submission. Held, that, as it was stipulated as an essential part of the submission that an umpire should be chosen from seven persons named, the power of the Court to appoint an umpire was controlled and limited by that stipulation; and that the umpire not being one of the seven persons named, there was no valid award.—Barracho v. De Souza, 7 Mad. H. C. 72.

Where Arbitrator Refuses to Act.—It is an essential principle of the law of arbitration that the adjudication of disputes by arbitration should be the result of the free consent of the arbitrators to act; and the finality of the award is based entirely upon the principle that the arbitrators are Judges chosen by the parties themselves, and that such Judges are willing to settle the disputes referred to them. Thus, where an arbitrator refused to act, and the Court, instead of accepting his refusal, directed him to proceed and make an award, it was held that the award was invalid.—Shib Charan v. Ratiram, 7 A. 20.

Order Superseding Arbitration.—If a Court refers a dispute to arbitration, it cannot proceed with the suit until it supersedes the arbitration. If it does proceed without supersession, it acts without jurisdiction—Ganesh Prasad v. Domodar Das, 10 A. L. J. 28; Jamna v. Nasib, 24 A. 312.

Form.—For form of appointment of new arbitrator, see, Appendix to this Schedule, Form No. 3.

Powers of arbitrator or umpire appointed under paragraph 4 or 5.

6. Every arbitrator or umpire appointed under paragraph 4 or paragraph 5 shall have the like powers as if his name had been inserted in the order of reference. [S. 512.]

This para. corresponds to s. 512, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only Summoning witnesses and default.

7. (1) The Court shall issue the same processes to the parties and witnesses whom the arbitrator or umpire desires to examine, as the Court may issue in suits tried before it.

(2) Persons not attending in accordance with such process, or making any other default, or refusing to give their evidence, or guilty of any contempt to the arbitrator or umpire during the investigation of the matters referred, shall be subject to the like disadvantages, penalties and punishments, by order of the Court on the representation of the arbitrator or umpire, as they would incur for the like offences in suits tried before the Court.

COMMENTARY.

This para exactly corresponds to s 513, C P. Code, 1882

Arbitrator's ought only to take such evidence as is required by the terms of the agreement referring the question in dispute to arbitration.—Krishna Kantha v Bidya Sundaree, 2 B L. R. App. 25.

"Refusing to give their evidence."—The words refusing to give their evidence in Sch. II, para. 7 (2) are intended to refer to the case of a person who refuses to give evidence when placed on oath and required to answer questions put to him A person therefore who elects not to produce any evidence cannot be said to refuse to give evidence within the meaning of the enactment —Janan v Narain Das, 8 A L. J 929; 11 I. C. 259.

Extension of time for making award.

8. Where the arbitrators or the umpire cannot complete the award within the period specified in the order, the Court may, if it thinks fit, either allow further time, and from time to time, either before or after the expiration of the period fixed for the making of the award, enlarge such period; or may make an order superseding the arbitration, and in such case shall proceed with the suit.

[S. 514.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This para corresponds to s 514, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions

The words "where the arbitrators or the umpire cannot complete the award" have been substituted for the words "if from the want of the necessary evidence or information, or from any other cause the arbitrators," which occurred in the old section. By the above change, the scope of the present rule has been enlarged, as it includes any cause for non-completion of the award within the time fixed; but under the old section certain causes were specifically mentioned.

The words "either before or after the expiration of the period fixed," have been added after the words "from time to time." The other changes are merely verbal.

Extension of Time for Making an Award.—Under this para the Court may extend the time for making the award after the time fixed therefor has expired. It is not necessary that the application to extend the time should be made before the expiry of the period originally fixed The application may be made even after the expiry of the time originally fixed —Hari Narain v Bhagwant, 10 A. 137. But the application must be made before the award is made, and the Court has no power to enlarge the time for the making of an award after the time for making it has expired and after the award has been made —Raja Har Narain v. Bhagwan 13 A. 300 18 I A 55; Lakshminarasinham v. Somasundaram, 15 M 384 S 148 of this Code does not enable the Court to extend the time when the award has already been made.—Shibkrishna v Satish, 38 C 522. The application for extension of time need not necessarily be in writing.—Sakal Chand v. Ambaram, 26 Bom. L. R. 280: 80 I C. 260: A I R 1924 Bom. 380.

Application for the extension of the period for the submission of an award and orders thereon should be made in writing and recorded— Monji Premji v Maliyakel Koy Assan, 3 M. 59.

As in the case of an arbitrator, so in the case of an umpire, a Court has power to extend the period within which the award is to be submitted The Court can extend the time allowed to an umpire under s 509, C. P Code, 1882 —Kupu Rau v Venkataramayyar, 4 M. 311.

A Court has power, to act under this para. at any time before the award is actually made whether the time previously limited for making the award has expired or not —Ram Manohar v. Lal Behari, 14 A 343 (13 A 300 referred to)

An order extending time for the presentation of an award upon application presented within time is not bad in law by reason of its having been made after the expiry of the term which it purports to extend— Suppu v. Govinda Charyar, 11 M 85

Award Made Out of Time.—An award made out of time is invalid unless time for its submission is expressly enlarged by the Court —Simson v. Venkatagopalam, 9 M. 475 See also, Bhugwan Dass v. Nunda Lall, 12 C. 173; Behari Das v Kallian Das, 8 A. 543; and Debendra Nath v. Sarbamangola, 8 C. W. N. 917. In Har Narain v. Chaudhrain Bhagwant Kuor, 13 A. 300, P. C., it has been held (approving Chuha Mal v Hari Ram, and reversing 10 A. 137) that where an award was not made within the period fixed by the Court's order, but was made after the date given in the last order extending the time for its delivery, the award was invalid. But the Madras High Court in Muthukutti Nayakan v. Acha Nayakan, 18 M. 22 (following the ruling in 10 A. 137, which has been reversed by the P. C in 13 A 300), has held that an award is not invalid because no time has been fixed for the making of the award. The Judicial Committee, in 13 A. 300, has held that the provisions in s. 508, C. P Code, 1882, requiring the Court to fix a reasonable time for the delivery of the award is not merely directory but is mandatory and imperative. But the Madras High Court, in 18 M. 22, has held that the provisions are directory and not mandatory. S. 148 of this Code does not alter the law laid down in this respect. An award made after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court may be set aside under rule 15, cl (c).

Where a Judge dismissed a suit for failure of the parties to attend on the date fixed for filing of the award even though the award was not filed on that date the order of dismissal is improper and would be set aside. Since the filing of the award is an act of the arbitrator, the parties need not be present in Court.—Maharaj Bhagat v. Harihar Bhagat, 3 Pat. L T. 346: 65 I. C. 144.

If the arbitrators fail to submit their award within the time prescribed, Sch. II of para. 8 of C. P. Code applies and it is within the discretion of the Court after hearing both the parties to the suit to make an order under that article superseding the arbitration and proceeding with the suit.—Haishikesh Das v. Lal Mohan, 57 I. C. 890.

The time fixed by the Court for the delivery of an award was the 16th April 1900. The award was actually completed and signed and made over to a peon of the Court on the same day, but, as it was received by the peon after Court hours, it did not in fact reach the hands of the Court, until the next day. Held, that the award was within time.—Sita Ram v. Bhawani Din, 26 A 105 (8 A 543 and 548, 13 A. 300, 13 B. 119, and 22 M. 22 referred to).

An award made, that is, completed and signed but not submitted to the Court within the time limited for delivering the same in Court is valid in law.—Asadullah v Muhammad Nur, 27 A 459 (22 M. 22, 13 B 119, 13 A. 300 followed, 8 A. 543 dissented from) See also, Debendra Nath v. Sarbamangola, 8 C. W N. 916 Where by an order of reference an arbitrator is given power to extend the time for making the award, he can only extend the time before the time originally fixed for making the award has expired.—Co-operative Hindusthan Bank v Bhola Nath, 19 C. W. N. 165.

Estoppel by Conduct.—The parties to a reference may be estopped by their conduct from impeaching the validity of an award on the ground that it was made after time —Patto Kumari v Upendranath, 4 Pat L. J. 265, 270; Kishen Lal v. Jai Lal, 521, C 352.

Order Superseding the Arbitration.—Before the Court can proceed to hear the suit it is necessary that it would itself make, either under this para. or para 5, an order superseding the reference to arbitration —Jamna Kunwar v. Nasib Ali, 24 A. 315.

Appeal.—Under s. 104 (1) (a) an appeal lies from an order superseding arbitration, where the award has not been completed within the period fixed by the Court

Where umpire may arbitrate in lieu of arbitrators.

9. Where an umpire has been appointed, he may enter on the reference in the place of the arbitrators—

(a) if they have allowed the appointed time to expire without making an award, or

(b) if they have delivered to the Court or to the umpire a notice in writing stating that they cannot agree. [S. 515.]

Extension of Time for Making an Award.—Under this para. the Court may extend the time for making the award after the time fixed therefor has expired. It is not necessary that the application to extend the time should be made before the expiry of the period originally fixed. The application may be made even after the expiry of the time originally fixed.—Hari Narain v. Bhagwant, 10 A. 137. But the application must be made before the award is made, and the Court has no power to enlarge the time for the making of an award after the time for making it has expired and after the award has been made.—Raja Har Narain v. Bhagwan, 13 A. 300 18 I. A 55; Lakshminarasinham v. Somasundaram, 15 M 384 S 148 of this Code does not enable the Court to extend the time when the award has already been made.—Shibkrishna v. Satish, 38 C 522 The application for extension of time need not necessarily be in writing.—Sakal Chand v Ambaram, 26 Bom. L. R 280; 80 I C 260 A I. R. 1924 Bom. 380.

Application for the extension of the period for the submission of an award and orders thereon should be made in writing and recorded.—Monji Prempu v Maliyakel Koy Assan, 3 M. 59.

As in the case of an arbitrator, so in the case of an umpire, a Court has power to extend the period within which the award is to be submitted The Court can extend the time allowed to an umpire under s 509, C P Code, 1882.—Kupu Rau v Venkataramayyar, 4 M. 311.

A Court has power, to act under this para. at any time before the award is actually made whether the time previously limited for making the award has expired or not.—Ram Manohar v. Lal Behari, 14 A. 343 (13 A 300 referred to).

An order extending time for the presentation of an award upon application presented within time is not bad in law by reason of its having been made after the expiry of the term which it purports to extend.—Suppu v. Govinda Charyar, 11 M. 85

Award Made Out of Time.—An award made out of time is invalid unless time for its submission is expressly enlarged by the Court.—Simson v. Venkatagopalam, 9 M 475. See also, Bhugwan Dass v. Nunda Lall, 12 C. 173; Behari Das v. Kallian Das, 8 A 543; and Debendra Nath v Sarbamangola, 8 C. W. N. 917. In Har Narain v. Chaudhrain Bhagwant Kuor, 13 A. 300, P C., it has been held (approving Chuha Mal v Hari Ram, and reversing 10 A. 137) that where an award was not made within the period fixed by the Court's order, but was made after the date given in the last order extending the time for its delivery, the award was invalid. But the Madras High Court in Muthukutti Nayakan v. Acha Nayakan, 18 M 22 (following the ruling in 10 A. 137, which has been reversed by the P. C in 13 A. 300), has held that an award is not invalid because no time has been fixed for the making of the award. The Judicial Committee, in 13 A 300, has held that the provisions in s 508, C. P. Code, 1882, requiring the Court to fix a reasonable time for the delivery of the award is not merely directory but is mandatory and imperative But the Madras High Court, in 18 M. 22, has held that the provisions are directory and not mandatory. S 148 of this Code does not alter the law laid down in this respect. An award made after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court may be set aside under rule 15, cl (c).

Draft of award was signed by all the five arbitrators, but the fair copy was signed by only four of the arbitrators. Held, that the award was complete at the date of rough draft, and that its validity was not affected by the subsequent occurrences—Kula Nagabushanam v. Kula Seshachalam, 1 Mad. H. C. 178.

Arbitrator's Presence at Meetings Essential to the Validity of the Award.—The presence of all the arbitrators at all meetings, and, above all, at the last meeting when the final act of arbitration is done, is essential to the validity of the award.—Nandram v. Fakir Chand, 7 A. 523. The absence of one of the arbitrators from a part of the hearing vitiates the judicial character of the proceeding.—Benode v Pran Chandra, 14 C. L. J. 143: 11 I. C. 898.

"Together with any depositions and documents."—Although the arbitrator may deliver his award to one of the parties, he ought not to hand over with it the proceedings, depositions and exhibits.—Jagot Sunderi v. Sonatan Bysak, 5 B L R 357

When a Court has referred a suit to arbitration, it has jurisdiction over the arbitrators to compel them to give up documents filed before them as exhibits during the course of the arbitration and to return the original records of the suit which may have been handed to them Such jurisdiction can be exercised by an application made in the suit on notice to the arbitrators.—Nursing Chunder v. Nuffur Chunder, 17 C. 832

Notice of Filing to be given to Parties.—When a Court passed a decree in the terms of an award without giving notice of the filing of the award under this rule, it was held that the Court had acted with material irregularity and the judgment was liable to be set aside in revision.—Ranjit v. Bissan Ram, 94 I. C 115 A. I R 1926 Cal 1018; Rangasami v Muthusami, 11 M. 144. Followed in Chaturbhuj v. Ganesh, 20 A 474 Where pleaders of both parties were shown the order of the Court recording the filing of the award and initialled the order sheet as an acknowledgment, it was held that this was good notice —Bholanath v Bata Krishta, 7 Pat L T. 739, Saroj Bala v Jatindra, A I R 1927 Cal 619

When the arbitrator himself brings in the award, the Court is bound to give notice to the parties that the award has been filed, and the Court cannot pass a decree unless such notice has been given If the parties or their pleaders bring in the award and ask that it should be filed, and the Court informs them that they should file objections within the time then no notice is necessary —Valchand v Gulba, 28 Bom L. R 511 98 I. C 547 A I R 1926 Bom 312.

Delivery of an Award.—The act of an arbitrator in handing an award to the proper officer of the Court for the purpose of being filed in Court, is not an "application" within the meaning of the Limitation Act. Hence there is no period of limitation within which an award should be delivered by an arbitrator in Court —Roberts v Harrison, 7 C. 333 · 9 C. L. R. 207.

Form.—For form of award see Form No 5 in the Appendix to this schedule.

Statement of special case by arbitrators or umpire.

11. Upon any reference by an order of the Court, the arbitrator or umpire may, with the leave of the Court, state the award as to the whole or any part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court, and the Court shall deliver its opinion thereon, and shall order such opinion to be added to and to form part of the award. [S. 517.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 517 of the C. P. Code, with some alterations. The words "with the leave" have been substituted for the words "with the consent"; and the words "shall order such opinion to be added to" have been substituted for the words "such opinion shall be added to," which occurred in the old section.

Special Case.—The scope of the special case contemplated by this para. is limited to questions of law.—Laxman v. Ram Chandra, 48 B. 663; 26 Bom. L. R. 836: 84 I. C 378: A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 22

Appeal.—Under s 101 (1) (b) an appeal lies from an order on an award stated in the form of a special case. Where, however, the arbitrators differ on a question of law arising in the arbitration and refer it for opinion to the Court without making an award stated in the form of a special case, no appeal lies from an order made upon such reference—Purshottam Das v Ram Gopal, 35 B. 130: 12 Bom. L R. 852: 8 I C. 171.

Form.—For form of special case, see, Form No 4, given in the appendix to this schedule

Power to modify or correct award.

12. The Court may, by order, modify or correct an award—

(a) where it appears that a part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitration and such part can be separated from the other part and does not affect the decision on the matter referred; or

(b) where the award is imperfect in form, or contains any obvious error which can be amended without affecting such decision; or

(c) where the award contains a clerical mistake or an error arising from an accidental slip or omission. [S. 518.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 518 of the C. P Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions. The word "and" has been substituted for the ord " provided," which occurred in cl. (a) of the old section; and cl. (c) as been newly added.

" The Court may, by order, modify or correct an award."—The Court as no power to modify or correct an award except in the three cases mentioned in this rule. Where a Court modifies an award because it takes a iew different from that held by the arbitrator, it acts without jurisdiction. —Parma Dut v. Bipju, (1916) Punj. Rec. No. 78, p. 213: 35 I. C. 887; opal Dinkar v. Ganesh Narayan, 45 B. 512. 59 I. C. 785; Aftab Begam . Haji Abdul, 22 A. L. J. 816: 81 I C. 525 A I. R. 1924 All 800.

When, under para 12 of the second schedule, the Court proceeds to orrect an award in a case where a severable matter not referred has been ealt with, it does so by cancelling that part of the award and the part cancelled is set aside for all purposes. Neither para 12 nor para. 14 directed to such a confusion of jurisdiction as the present case disoses.—Rampratap Chamria v Durga Prasad Chamria, 28 C. W N.424.

" When a part of the award is upon a matter not referred to arbitraon."—The addition, in a judgment according to an award, of a trifling rection upon a matter not referred to the arbitrators, which was quite parable from the other parts of the award, and did not affect the decision the matter referred, was held not to affect the finality of the judgment.— uro Soonduree v Sreedhur, 17 W. R 352

The arbitrators to whom the matters in difference in two suits were ferred for arbitration, made an award for payment of certain sums of oney to plaintiff by certain instalments The plaintiff preferred objecons to the award in so far as it directed payment by instalments and the st Court modified it to that extent. The Appellate Court while allowg the power of the arbitrators to direct payment by instalments reduced e number of instalments Held, that the reference gave the arbitrators ll powers to direct payment by instalments and that the lower Appellate ourt was wrong in reducing the number of instalments.—Jawahir Singh Mul Raj, 8 A. 449

The decision of arbitrators in a matter not in difference between the rties, nor referred to them, is null and void for want of jurisdiction — oshahel Singh v. Kononuutty, 15 W R 172 See also, Mumtaz Ali v. hakhawat Ali, 23 A. 394, Buta v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 20 . 854, 87 P. R. 1902 P. C.

" And such part can be separated from the others."—See notes under ara. 14.

" Where the award contains a clerical mistake," etc.—Under para. 2 (b) and (c) of Sch. II to the C. P Code, the only power the Court has either to amend without affecting the decision or to rectify a clerical istake or an error arising from an accidental slip or omission It has o power to correct an error of calculation or arithmetic and award a sum fferent from that awarded by the arbitrator —Gopal Dinkar v. Ganesh arayan, 45 B 512 22 Bom L. R 1416 59 I. C 785, Shamlal v ashottam Das, 42 A. 277· 58 I. C 585

An award was made upon the basis of certain figures contained in rtain documents relied on by both the parties and a decree was passed according to the award without any objection from any of the parties It was subsequently found that there was a mistake in the figures, on which the award was based and the party who was affected by the mistake applied for correction of the error: Held, that the application was not to correct an error patent and apparent on the face of the record but to go much deeper into the matter and to reopen the accounts and the figures at which the arbitrators had arrived and the remedy lay either by review or by appeal; Makam Lakshmi v. Makam Batchayya, 53 M. L. J. 88 A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 720; see also Ramanathan v. Muthiah Chetty, 43 M. 429

" Or contains any obvious error."—In a suit for dissolution of partnership and for accounts plaintiff claimed interest which the defendant denied The matter in dispute was referred to arbitration, one of the points referred being whether the defendant was liable for any money and, if so, the amount due. Held, that it was not an error on the part of the arbitrator to include in his award the sum payable by the defendant as interest both on sums advanced to the firm and on those advanced to defendant for the personal use and also for the period before and after the suit and up to the date of the award.—Jaharmal v. Birinchi, 56 I. C. 941.

Appeal.—Under s 104 (1) (c), an appeal lies from an order modifying or correcting an award.

Order as to costs of arbitration.

13. The Court may also make such orders as it thinks fit respecting the costs of the arbitration where any question arises respecting such costs and the award contains no sufficient provision concerning them [S. 519.]

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to s. 519, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the word " where " has been substituted for the word " if " after the word " arbitration."

Power of Arbitrators to deal with costs.—The parties to a suit having referred the matter in dispute to arbitration, the arbitrators, without being specially authorized to decide the question of costs, included in the award a direction that the defendant should pay the costs of the plaintiff. Held, that the arbitrators had no implied authority to deal with the question of costs and directed the award to stand good, except so far as it awarded costs.—Dagdusa Tilak Chand v. Bhukan Govind, 9 B. 82, Amolak v Charan Das, 52, P. R. 1913: 16 P. W. R. 1913: 17 I. C. 684

Where award or matter referred to arbitration may be remitted.

14. The Court may remit the award or any matter referred to arbitration to the reconsideration of the same arbitrator or umpire, upon such terms as it thinks fit—

(a) where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration, or where it determines any matter not referred to arbitration, unless such matter can be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred;

(b) where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution;

(c) where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it. [S. 520.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s. 520, C. P Code, 1882, with some additions. The words "unless such matters can be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred," have been added to clause (a). The above additions seem to have been made adopting the law as laid down in the Privy Council case (29 C. 854, P. C.: 7 C. W. N. 82, P. C.) noted below.

Award Going Beyond Matters in Dispute in Suit and Adjudging rights of a Stranger to Suit, If Valid.—Where the arbitrators made an award which dealt with matters not included within the scope of the suit and was in excess of their authority in respect of matters included within its scope, held, that the award was invalid and could not be enforced either under the C. P. Code, Sch II, or the Indian Arbitration Act, and at any rate, it was not a case in which the Court should exercise its discretionary powers under para. 12 or para. 14 of Sch II of the C P Code.—Ram Pratap Chamria v. Durga Prasad Chamria, 28 C W N 424

Cl. (a)—" Where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to or determines any matter not referred to arbitration."—The ground for holding an award to be invalid on account of its not disposing of all the matters referred, appears to be that there is an implied condition in the submission of the parties to the arbitration that the award shall dispose of all. This condition may be waived by the consent of the parties before the arbitrators —Mahund Ram v Salig Ram, 21 C 590, P. C.: Bhagwan Das v Shiv Dial, (1913) P R 92, p. 332 17 I C. 584 —Where there was no distinct and separate finding on each of the issues, but there was a decision on the whole matter in controversy, the award cannot be said to have left undetermined any of the matters referred to in arbitration, and it should not therefore be remitted for re-consideration —George v Vastian Soury, 22 M 202 A separate finding on each issue is not necessary, when the whole matter in issue between the parties is decided by the arbitrators —Ghulam Khan v Muhammad Hassan, 29 C 167, 186: 29 I. A. 51

In a suit for partition and for settlement of accounts, the arbitrator to whom the case was referred for determination made an award only with reference to partition, but omitted to settle accounts Held, that the Court had acted erroneously in confirming the award before the accounts had been settled, inasmuch as the award had left undetermined a very important matter, viz., the settlement of accounts, and that the Court should, under this rule have remitted the award for the reconsideration of the arbitrator.—Sadik Ali v. Imdad Ali, 5 A. 286. Where several issues in a suit are referred to arbitration, but the arbitrator makes his award deciding only some of the issues, the award must be remitted for the determination of the other matters raised in the case.—Jonardan v. Sambhunath, 16 C 806

In a suit for division of certain lands to which the parties were equally entitled, the arbitrators decided the other matters, but as regards the field, said that it was inconvenient to divide them in consequence of the rains, and ordered the parties to receive the profits half and half. Held, that the award left undetermined one of the principal subjects of dispute; and as the Court had no power to remit the award to the arbitrators, the applicant was entitled to a judgment setting aside the order for filing the award.—Dandekar v. Dandekars, 6 B. 663. Followed in Mustafa Khan v. Phulji Bibi, 27 A 526, where it has been further held that a Court has no power to amend the private award or remit it for reconsideration of the arbitrators

In cases where a reference to arbitration is made by the order of the Court, the Court may remit the award for the determination of the matter left undetermined under para 14 of Sch II; but in the case of an arbitration without the intervention of the Court, para. 21 of the schedule confers no such power on the Court.—Babu Kunj Lal v. Babu Banwari Lal, 4 Pat L. J 394 48 I C 711.

Where Reference to Arbitration Proves Abortive.—When the arbitration agreed to by the parties proves abortive, the Court has no jurisdiction to send the case to another arbitrator of its own motion without the consent of all the parties. The Court can supersede the award or remit it to the original arbitrator but it cannot make a fresh reference to arbitration.—Satish Chandra v. Baliram, (1921) Pat. 170: 2 Pat. L. T. 277.

" Unless such matter can be separated."—Where one portion of the award related to the matters referred, and another portion went beyond the strict terms of the reference, but the two portions were clearly separable so that any direction given by the arbitrators in excess of their authority could be treated as null and void without affecting the rest of the award Held, that the whole award was not invalid as being in excess of the jurisdiction of the arbitrators.—Buta v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 29 C 854, P. C : 7 C. W. N. 82, P. C.

An award that goes beyond the terms of reference to the arbitrators is to that extent ultra vires.—Raja Mohammed Mamtaz Ali v. Sakhawat Ali, 23 A. 394 P C : 5 C. W. N. 881 P. C.

Cl. (b). " Where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution."—Under cl. (b) of this para. the award is to be remitted when it is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution. But the fact that a particular expression used in an award is capable of more than one interpretation, does not show that it is indefinite; much less that it is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution. The expression in such a case has to be interpreted in execution proceedings consequent on the decree following the award.—Raghuraj Bahadur v. Rajeswar, 35 I. C. 761: 3 O. L. J. 258.

Cl. (c). "Where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent on the face of it."—An award, defective and illegal on the face of it, should be at once remitted to the arbitrators —Luchmee Narain v. Pyle, 2 N. W. P. 150; Ram Kuru v. Zahira, 101, P R. 1868; Narain v. Kanhe, 3 P. R 1872. But where there is no illegality apparent on the face of an award, a Court cannot remit it for re-consideration.—Manak Chand v. Ram Narayan, 2 A. 181 F. B.

An error in law on the face of an award, such as will justify the Court in setting it aside, must be an error in some legal proposition, to which the arbitrators have tied themselves, the same being found in the award or a document actually incorporated therein, and forming the basis of the award.—Champsey Bhara & Co v. The Jivraj Ballov Spinning Co., A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 66; Ram Devi v Gamshi Lal, 48 A. 475 95 I. C. which cannot be amended by the Court under s. 518 (para 12). Such 416: A. I. R. 1926 All 501.

This section authorizes a Court to remand a case, to arbitrators for reconsideration when their award contains mistakes, omissions, or defects, award on the refusal of the arbitrators to reconsider it, becomes null and void, without proof of corruption or misconduct.—Mohun Kishen v. Bhoobun Shyam, 7 W. R 406

A case involving questions of Hindu law having been referred to arbitration, the arbitrator decided the case against the plaintiff The plaintiff obtaining the opinions of certain pundits in his favour, applied to the Court to remit the award The Court accordingly remitted the award with the opinions of the pundits, requesting the arbitrator to reconsider them The arbitrator having refused to act further, the Court proceeded to determine the suit and gave the plaintiff a decree Held, that there being no illegality apparent on the face of the award, the Court was not justified in remitting the award, or setting the award aside, and proceeding to determine the suit itself —Nanak Chand v Ram Narain, 2 A 181 Referred to in George v Vastian Soury, 22 M 202.

Where six arbitrators were appointed but they did not all take part in the proceedings, it was held that the award so passed by the arbitrators was invalid on the face of it under para 14 (c) of Sch II of the C P Code —Kali Charan v Guptnath, 16 A. L J. 307. 45 I C 34

A reference to arbitration provided that the arbitrator should determine the case after hearing the evidence and that if one of the parties failed to appear before him, he should have power to proceed to hear the evidence ex parte Held, that, on the plaintiff's failure to appear before the arbitrator on the day fixed for trial, the arbitrator could not make an award without taking evidence but should have proceeded to hear the evidence of the other side. Held, also that the award so made without taking any evidence could not be set aside by the Court on the plaintiffs' application under Or. IX, r. 9, C. P. Code, but should be remitted under para 14 of Sch II of the C P. Code to the arbitrator for reconsideration if a proper case was made out by the plaintiff to execuse his absence before the arbitrator.—Gopal Chandra v. Kshetra Mohan, 22 C W. N 933 46 I. C 195.

Where a suit was referred to arbitration for the determination of the only question whether a Hindu was born blind and therefore not entitled to inherit and the arbitrator made an award whereby the blind man was declared to be entitled to a life interest in a certain portion of the property, it was held on an objection to the award under cl. (c) of this para that the award was not so patently illegal that it could be remitted to the reconsideration of the arbitrator.—Madepalli v. Madepalli, 41 M 1022: 34 M. L. J. 323: 45 I. C. 644.

Part of the Award Cannot be Remitted.—There is no provision in the Civil Procedure Code by which a portion of an award may be remitted.—Tursi Ram v Basdeo, 24 A. L. J. 705: 96 I. C. 531: A. I. R. 1926 All 567.

Pleader—Whether can be Arbitrator.—A gentleman of the legal profession does not become incompetent to act as an arbitrator merely because on some occasions he was engaged by one of the parties as their pleader; Rajendra Nath v Abdul Hakim Khan, 39 I. C. 767.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order under this para. remitting an award to the reconsideration of the arbitrators. Where an award is remitted to the reconsideration of the arbitrator, and a decree is passed in accordance with the revised award, no appeal lies from the decree on the ground that the order of remittal was wrong.—Subbiah v Subramania, 31 M. 479, Baland Bakhsh v. Ram Chandra, 6 Lah L. J 500. 84 I. C. 693.

15. (1) An award remitted under paragraph 14 becomes void on failure of the arbitrator or umpire to reconsider it. But no award shall be set aside except on one of the following grounds, namely :—

Grounds for setting aside award.

(a) corruption or misconduct of the arbitrator or umpire;

(b) either party having been guilty of fraudulent concealment of any matter which he ought to have disclosed, or of wilfully misleading or deceiving the arbitrator or umpire;

(c) the award having been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration and proceeding with the suit or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court, or being otherwise invalid.

(2) Where an award becomes void or is set aside under clause (1), the Court shall make an order superseding the arbitration and in such case shall proceed with the suit. [S. 521.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Para.—This para. corresponds to s. 521, C. P. Code, 1882, with several alterations and additions.

The words "on failure" have been substituted for the words "on the refusal," after the words "becomes void."

The words "and proceeding with the suit or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court, or being otherwise invalid" have been added to clause (c); and the last para of s. 521, which ran as follows: "and no award shall be valid unless made within the period allowed by the Court" has been omitted The object of the addition of the words "or being otherwise invalid" will appear from the following report of the Special Committee.

To meet the difficulty expressed in the case reported in 25 C. 141, (which followed many other cases in the Calcutta High Court), we have inserted the words "or being otherwise invalid" in sub-section (c) of s. 521 of the present Code. If, therefore, either party considers the award invalid on any ground he can apply to have it set aside.—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Sub-section (2) is new

"But no award shall be set aside."—There is a clear distinction between setting aside an award and remitting it, the latter implying that the award is alive and in existence and once an award is set aside under para. 15, it cannot be remitted under para. 14, and the Court must pass an order superseding the award and in case of an application under para. 17, there being no pending suit, the Court's power comes to an end with the order superseding the award.—Satish Chandra v Baliram, (1921) Pat. 170: 2 Pat. L T 277

"Corruption or misconduct."—The word "misconduct" does not necessarily imply moral turpitude, but it includes neglect of the duties and responsibilities of the arbitrators, and what Courts of Justice expect from them before allowing finality to their awards —Ganga Sahai v. Lekhraj, 9 A. 253, Amir Begam v. Badruddin, 36 A 336 23 I. C. 625 P C.; Tyebbhai v. Abdul Husein, 25 Bom. L R. 392 85 I. C 424 A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 149 Yusuf Khan v. Riyasat Ali, 3 O. W N. 279 93 I. C. 446: A. I. R 1926 Oudh 307

The term "misconduct" in s 521, C P Code, 1882 (r 15), does not necessarily imply "corruption."—Kali Charan v Sarat Chandra, 30 C. 397 7 C. W. N 545.

Perversity is misconduct within the meaning of s 15 of the Second Schedule of the C P. Code, and a Court would be justified in setting aside an award on that ground.—Nga Tok v. Nga Kasmi, 5 Bur L T. 55. 14 I C. 978

"Acts amounting to misconduct."—The following acts have been held to amount to "misconduct" within the meaning of this para. affording grounds for setting aside an award:—

Proceeding with the arbitration in the absence of one of the arbitrators.—Thammiraju v. Bapiraju, 12 M. 113; Nandram v. Fakirchand, 7 A 523; Benode v. Pran Chandra, 14 C. L. J. 143.

Where three out of five arbitrators were not present at the time the award was made and did not sign the award, although it purported to be signed by all of them, it was held that it amounted to misconduct, justifying the setting aside of award.—Ram Narain v. Baijnath, 29 C. 36

Irregularities in procedure which amount to no proper hearing of the matters in dispute amount to misconduct on the part of the arbitrator—Amir Begam v. Badruddin, 36 A. 336; 23 I. C 625 P. C.

Hearing and receiving evidence from one side in the absence of the other side, without giving the other side the opportunity of meeting and answering it, is also "misconduct" within the meaning of this para Cursetji v. Crowder, 18 B. 299; Mohammed Afzal v. Abdul Hamid, 7 Lah L. J. 463 · 88 I. C. 161 · A. I R 1925 Lah. 570.

Refusal of arbitrator to hear witnesses produced by the parties amounts to judicial misconduct within the meaning of this para —Rughoobar v Maina Koer, 12 C L. R. 564. Receiving documents from one party and basing the award upon those documents, without giving the other party an opportunity of seeing those documents and of meeting the inferences deducible therefrom, is misconduct within the meaning of this para—Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co v. Kidari Pershad, 64 I. C. 363

Making private inquiries and basing their award on information privately obtained.—Daya Kishan v. Dhram Das, 4 A. L. J. 169, Kanhaiya Lal v. Khairati Lal, 49 I. C. 303. 9 P. W. R. 1919; Ganga Sahai v Baldeo, 20 A L. J. 117 65 I. C. 279, or failing to disclose their interest in any one of the parties or the subject-matter of the reference —Kaliprasanna v Rajani, 25 C. 141; Mahommad v. Hakiman, 29 C 278, or improperly adding another to their number amounts to misconduct within this para.—Phiran v. Baroran, 7 N. W. P. 367.

Making enquiries behind the back of any party also amounts to misconduct within the meaning of this para.—Abdul Hamid v. Md Afzal, A. I. R 1927 Lah. 425.

Acquiecence in Acts Amounting to Misconduct.—It is well-settled that arbitrators must be present during the whole of the proceedings and deliberations, but it is open to the parties to waive the absence of one of the several arbitrators. Therefore an award signed by an arbitrator, who was present one day only or for a short time and did not hear the evidence or take part in the deliberations of the remaining arbitrators is not invalid, if the irregularity is waived.—Kunj Lal v. Banwari Lal, 4 Pat L. J. 394: 48 I. C. 711; Cursetji v. Crowder, 18 B. 299; Ramanath v. Ram Narain, 67 I. C. 866.

Acts not Amounting to Misconduct.—It is not a valid objection to to an award that the arbitrators have not acted in strict conformity to the rules of evidence.—Suppu v. Govindacharyar, 11 M. 55; Maung Shere v. Min Nyun, 3 Rang. 387; 91 I. C. 659: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 383. It is not misconduct on the part of an arbitrator to delegate, to a third person, the performance of acts of a ministerial character, so long as he exercises his own judgment on the matters referred.—Buta v. Municipal Committee of Lahore, 29 C. 854: 29 I. A. 168. Misconduct cannot be presumed from the fact that the arbitrator is the relative of one of the parties —Nainsukh v. Umadai, 7 A. 273. From the mere fact that the arbitrators failed to satisfy the Court that their delay was due to the negligence of the parties or other proper causes, it cannot be presumed that they acted fraudulently. —Savlappa v. Dev Chand, 26 B. 182. An award cannot be set aside on the mere surmise that the arbitrator has been partial.—Nainsookh v. Umadai, 7 A. 273. An award is not vitiated by material irregularity by reason of the facts that one of the arbitrators used knowledge obtained by him privately, provided he communicated that knowledge to the other arbitrators in the presence of the parties.—Sheik Mohidin v Ramaswami, 41 M. L. J. 276.

The mere fact that the arbitrators questioned the parties as to their respective cases, would not amount to misconduct so as to vitiate an award, unless the parties were denied the opportunity of meeting the representations made by the other side —Ramaswami v. Subbier, 24 L. W. 482: 97 I. C. 472, A. I R. 1926 Mad. 1158

An award is not illegal by reason of the acceptance, by the arbitrators, of the offer of a fee for their services, such acceptance not involving any misconduct on their part —Subraya v. Manjunath, 29 M. 44

Where a particular arbitrator has been selected only because of his personal knowledge of the matter in dispute, it would not be a misconduct on his part to use his personal knowledge in coming to a certain decision, although in such cases it is desirable that he should tell the parties what his personal knowledge is and give an opportunity to adduce evidence sufficient to vary his views —Daulat Sing v Ratna Anand Sing, 28 Bom. L. R. 926: 97 I C 673· A I R. 1926 Bom 527.

Where the arbitrator is directly interested in the subject-matter of the litigation in that he would get a share out of the money which may be decreed to the plaintiff on the strength of the award, and the plaintiff does not disclose this matter in Court when the case is going to be referred to his arbitration, he, the plaintiff, can be considered to be guilty of fraudulent misconduct, and the case comes within cl (b) of this para — Yusuf Khan v Riyasat Ali, 3 O. L J 224 93 I. C. 446. A. I R 1926 Oudh 307.

A Court is justified in holding that an award is not valid and binding upon the defendant when the arbitrator was the retained pleader of the plaintiff, and no disclosure of this fact was made, before the arbitrator was appointed, to the defendant who was consequently unaware of it — Kali Prosonno v. Rajani Kant, 25 C 141, Mahomed Wahiduddin v. Hakiman, 29 C 278 6 C 235

Where the agreement to refer to arbitration was vague and indefinite and did not clearly lay down the power of the arbitrators in dealing with the subject-matter in dispute, and it was not possible to make out what powers were intended to be conferred upon the arbitrators Held, that the objection to the validity of the award was well founded —Bindessuri Pershad v Jankee Pershad, 16 C 412.

Award Made After the Expiration of the Period Allowed by the Court.—The words "or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court" have been added to sub-cl. (c), and the words "and no award shall be valid unless made within the period allowed by the Court," which occurred in s. 521, have been omitted. The effect of this alteration is that the only remedy now open to the party impeaching an award, on the ground that it was made after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court, is to apply, under this para. to set aside the award. If no application is made to set aside the award under this paragraph, or if the application is made but refused, the award becomes final, and no appeal will lie from a decree based upon the award.—Shib Kristo Daw & Co. v. Satish Chandra, 39 C. 882. Followed in Bhai Khan Singh v. Rai Bahadur. See also, Lala Mohan Lal, 56 P. L. R. 1917.

Paragraph 15 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code does not render an award made out of time per se a nullity. The award is merely voidable and if not sought to be set aside within 10 days from the time when it was filed, it is binding upon the parties.—Bibi Patto Kumari v. Upendra Nath, 4 Pat L. J. 265; 50 I. C. 52

Under s. 521 of the old Code (this para.), an award made out of time was a nullity.—Behari Das v. Kallian Das, 8 A. 543; Bhugwan Das v. Nund Lal, 12 C. 173; Simson v. Venkatagopalam, 9 M. 475. See also, Har Narain v. Bhugwan Kuor, 13 A. 300, P. C., in which, approving Chuha Mal v. Hari Ram, 8 A. 548, and reversing 10 A. 137, it was held that where an award was not made within the period fixed by the Court's order, but was made after the date given in the last order extending the time for its delivery, the award was invalid. The above Privy Council case was followed in Ram Monohur v. Lal Behari, 14 C. 343. But under the present para. it is merely voidable, and if not set aside within the period provided by s. 158, Limitation Act, is binding upon the parties.

Objection to Invalidity of Award, When to be Taken.—An objection to an award on the ground that it is not an award or on the ground that it is invalid must be made at the time when it is filed. If no objection is then taken, or if it is made and disallowed, the party objecting cannot reagitate the matter by way of appeal from the decree.—Mahomed Valli Asmal v. Valli Asmal, 26 Bom. L. R. 171 26 M. 47: 31 A. 450 distd.; 36 B. 105 reld. on).

"Or being otherwise Invalid."—These words at the end of sub-cl. (c) are new. The object of adding them will appear from the following report of the Special Committee: "To meet the difficulty expressed in the case reported in 25 C. 141 (Kali Prosonno Ghose v. Rajani Kant), which followed many other cases in the Calcutta High Court, we have inserted the words "or being otherwise invalid" in sub-section (c) of s. 521 of the present Code. If therefore, either party considers the award invalid on any ground he can apply to have it set aside." The addition of these words is also meant to give effect to the principle of finality in cases of arbitration enunciated by the Judicial Committee in Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan, 29 C. 167 (183): 29 I. A. 51, and followed in Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C. 899 (902).

The words "or being otherwise invalid" in clause (c) should not be read as ejusdem generis with the other cases mentioned in that clause and are not restricted to cases where an award is bad on grounds like want of jurisdiction. On the other hand, they are meant to include all cases of invalidity, on grounds other than those mentioned. It is open to a minor by a suit instituted either through a guardian or when he attains majority, to impeach an award if he can prove that his guardian was grossly negligent or acted fraudulently in conducting the proceedings before the arbitrator.—Lakshminarayana v. Ram Chandra, 34 M. L. J. 71: 23 M. L. T. 89.

The meaning of the words " or being otherwise invalid " in Sch. II, para. 15, C. P. Code, and the doctrine of finality of decision either upholding or rejecting objections to an award explained with reference to the ruling in the Full Bench case of Lutawan v. Lachiya, 12 A. L. J. 57. —Kanhaiya Lal v. Jagannath Pershad, 43 A 305· 19 A L J. 33.

The words " being otherwise invalid " in Sch. II, para. 15 (1) (c) are intended to give effect to the principle of finality to awards.—15 S. L. R. 165: 65 I. C. 50.

Where an arbitrator, in a reference pending a suit, treats a person, who is not a party to the suit, as a party to the arbitration and decides disputes between parties to the suit or any of them and such person, however just and equitable the award may be, " it is otherwise invalid " within the meaning of para. 15, sub-cl (c).—Lilaram v. Balchand, A. I. R. 1927 Sind 193

An award is invalid if the arbitrators go beyond the scope of the suit and decide matters which are not in suit and which concern persons who are not parties to the suit.—Rampratap v Durgapratap, 28 C. W. N. 424. 83 I. C. 300: A. I. R 1924 Cal 567 The Privy Council held that such an award was not in accordance with the order of reference and therefore " otherwise invalid " under para. 15 —Chamria v Chamria, 53 I. A. 1, 53 C 258. 92 I C. 633· A. I. R 1925 P. C. 293.

Appeal.—Except in the case provided by s. 104, cl. (a), no appeal lies from an order under the paragraph setting aside or refusing to set aside an award —Zahur Ahmed v Tashmunnissa, 23 A L J. 891: 89 I C. 404: A. I R. 1926 All. 55 If the objecting party does not appear in support of the objection, the Court has no option but to pronounce judgment in accordance with award —Raghunath v Bridhichan, 3 Pat. 839 83 I. C. 26. A I R 1924 Pat. 603; and the decree made thereon cannot be set aside under Or. IX, r. 13, because it is not an ex parte decree.—Raghunath v. Bridhichan, 3 Pat. 839· 83 I C. 26 A I. R 1924 Pat 603 It has been held by the High Courts of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and the Chief Court of the Punjab that though no appeal lies from an order setting aside an award, the legality of the order may be challenged on appeal from the decree that may ultimately be passed in the suit.—Achuthayya v. Thimmayya, 31 M 345; Damodar v. Raghunath, 26 B. 551; Juma v Mubarak, 97 P R 1912 133 P L R 1912· 106 P. Revision.—An order setting aside or refusing to set aside an award is not open to revision.—Kalicharan v. Sarat Chunder, 30 C. 397; Damodar v Raghu Nath, 26 B. 537; Chimanbhai v. Keshavlal, 47 B 721· 73 I. C.

But an order superseding arbitration may be attacked under s. 105 in appeal from the decree in the suit. —Rudra Prasad v Mathura Prasad, 47 A. 916: 89 I. C. 175. A. I R 1925 All. 566. An order under this para. setting aside an award on the ground of the arbitrator's misconduct, is not subject to revision by the High Court in the exercise of the power conferred on it under s 115—Chatter Singh v Lekhraj, 5 A. 293; Damodar Trimbak v. Raghunath Hari, 26 B 551

Judgment to be according to award.

16. (1) Where the Court sees no cause to remit the award or any of the matters referred to arbitration for reconsideration in manner aforesaid, and no application has been made to set aside the award, or the Court has refused such application, the Court shall, after the time for making such application has expired, proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award.

(2) Upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Para.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to paras. 1 and 2 of s. 522, C. P. Code, with this modification that the word "pronounce" has been substituted for the word "give."

The third para of s 522, which ran as follows, "or if the award has been submitted to it in the form of a special case, according to its own opinion on such case," has been omitted.

Sub-para. (2). "No appeal shall lie from such a decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award." —Sub-para. (2) corresponds to the last para. of the old section, with some alterations and omissions; the old para. is reproduced here for the purpose of comparison: "Upon the judgment so given, a decree shall follow, and shall be enforced in manner provided in this Code for the execution of decrees. No appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award."

This paragraph gives effect to the "principle of finality" of awards, by declaring that no appeal shall lie from a decree based on an award, except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award.—Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hassan, 29 C. 167: 29 I A. 51; Hansraj v. Sundar Lal, 35 C. 648: 35 I. A. 88.

"After the time for making an application to set aside an award has expired."—The period of limitation for an application to set aside an award is ten days from its submission to the Court under Art 158 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908). The date of submission of the award to the Court is the date on which the award is received by the Registrar of the Court —Nobin Kally v. Ambica, 5 C. W. N. 813. In Sova Chand v. Hurry Bux, 40 C. 721: 53 I. C. 40, it was held that it means the date of filing the award

" An appeal lies from a decree based upon a judgment pronounced in contravention of the provisions of this paragraph, though the decree may be in accordance with the award."—Where a decree is passed on an award before the time for making the application to set aside the award has expired an appeal will lie from the decree, though the decree may be in accordance with the award.—Najimuddin v. Albert Puech, 29 A 584; Baijnath v Narain Prasad, A I. R 1927 All. 614. The Bombay, Lahore and Madras High Courts have held that in such cases the High Court can interfere in revision under s. 115 —Raojibhai v. Dabyabhai, 45 B. 832: 59 I C 811; Bhikka Lal v. Acharat Lal, 49 B. 535 87 I. " The Court shall proceed to give judgment according to the award."—The Court can only give judgment in accordance with the award, and cannot add an order for interest to it, if interest has not been given —Mohun Lall v Joy Narain, 23 W R. 105

Held, per Mahmood, J —The word " award " used in the last sentence of s 522, C P Code, 1882 (r. 16), must be understood to mean an award as given by the arbitrators and as amended by the Court under s 518, C. P. Code, 1882 (r 12) The words " in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award " used in s 522, C P .Code, 1882 (r. 16), were intended to enable the Court of appeal to check the improper use of the power conferred by s. 518, C P Code, 1882 —Jawahar Singh v. Mulraj, 8 A 449.

Where the partners of a firm in their partnership deed agreed to refer the dispute to arbitration, and the reference gave the arbitrators a power to make partition, but omitted a power to sell Held, on the award being made a rule of Court, that the Court had no power to order the sale of certain property of which the arbitrators were unable to make partition, and the sale of which they recommended on that ground —Chunimoney v. Nistarini, 3 C. Finality of Decree in Accordance with Award.—See the Report of the Special Committee quoted under the heading " NO APPEAL SHALL LIE FROM SUCH A DECREE, ETC "

No appeal lies from a decree based on an award except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award.—Ghulam Khan v Muhammad Hassan, 29 C 167, P C 6 C W N. 226, P. C.; Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v Siva Shankar, 33 C 899, Behary Lal v Chuni Lal, 29 A 457, Hansraj v Sundar Lal, 35 C 648, P C. 7 C. J. 507, Hari Shanker v. Ram Pyari, 45 A 441: 21 A L. J 326 The only cases in which the Code allows an appeal from a decree based on an award are: (1) where the decree is in excess of the award, or (2) where the decree is not in accordance with the award.

No appeal lies from a decree passed in terms of the award, even though the award itself was one liable to be set aside as one made beyond the date allowed —Shib Kristo v. Satis Chandra, 39 C. 822

An Appeal Lies where the Award is Not in Accordance with the Provisions of Para. 16, cl. (1).—An award must be in conformity with cl. (1) of para 16 in order that a decree passed on it may be unappealable—Tursi v Basdeo, A I R 1926 All. 567. This is perfectly clear from the language used in cl. (2) of para 16. The words are " upon the judgment so pronounced " The words " so pronounced " imply that the award should be one contemplated by cl. (1) of para 16 —Sahdeo v. Melha Singh, 24 A. L J. 1036, A I R. 1926 All 120

Finality of Decree on Fresh Award.—Where the Court remits an award under rule 14 and the arbitrators submit a fresh award and the Court passes a decree in accordance with such revised award under this para no appeal lies against such decree on the ground that the order of the remittal was wrong and that the original award ought to have been accepted and acted upon —Subbiahiyer v Subramonia, 31 M. 479: 18 M L J 485.

Invalid Award.—It was held under the old Code in a number of cases that though a decree might be in accordance with the award, it could be challenged by way of appeal on the ground that there was no valid and legal award · the reason being that s. 521 of the old Code presupposed a valid and legal award and not an award upon which no decree could be passed —Kali Prasanna v. Rajani Kant, 25 C 141; Nandram v Hem Chand, 17 B 357; Lachman v Brijpal, 6 A. 174; Shiblal v Chatrabhuj, 31 A 450, Romes v. Karunamayi, 33 C. 498. But a contrary view was taken by the Privy Council in Ghulam Khan v. Muhammad Hussain, 29 C. 167 · 29 I A 51 The words " except in so far as the decree is in excess of, or not in accordance with, the award," in cl. (2) of para 16, now make it clear that no appeal lies from a decree passed in accordance with the award on the ground that the award was invalid —Chairman of the Purnea Municipality v. Siva Sankar, 33 C. 899; Kanakku v. Nagalinga 32 M 510 In such a case the party aggrieved may apply under para 15 (1) (c) to have the award set aside.—Guran Ditta v. Pokhar Ram, A. I. R 1927 Lah 362, Hari Shankar v Ram Piari, 45 A. 441: A. I. R. 1923 All 502 If he does not avail himself of that remedy, the award becomes final and no appeal lies from the decree based upon the award —Mahomed v Valli, 26 Bom. L R. 171: A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 324.

Second Appeal.—Where the Court of first instance sets aside the award and passes a decree on the merits, and the first Appellate Court reversing that decree passes judgment in accordance with the award Held, that the decision of the Appellate Court is not final under s 522, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 16), and a second appeal lay. The mere fact that the decree of the first Appellate Court is in accordance with the award is no ground for refusing the appeal —Shyama Charan v. Prolhad, 8 C W N. 390; Ganga Prasad v. Kurra, 28 A. 408.

A second appeal will also lie to the High Court where the decree of the Court of first instance is in accordance with the award, and such decree is set aside by the first Appellate Court.—Krishnan v. Muthu, 22 M 172

Power of Arbitrators to Review their Decision.—After an award has been made and handed to the parties, the functions of the arbitrators cease. They have no power afterwards to deal with an application for review of their decision.—Dutto Singh v. Dosad Bahadur, 9 C. 575.

High Court's Power of Revision.—An order under s 521, C P. Code 1882 (r. 15), setting aside an award, made on a reference to arbitration in the course of a suit, on the ground of the arbitrator's misconduct, is not subject to revision by the High Court under s 622, C P. Code, 1882 (s 115)—Chatter Singh v. Lekraj Singh, 5 A 293

Where an order is made refusing to file an award no appeal lies from it, but the High Court can interfere under s 622, C P Code, 1882 (s 115)—Mana Vikroma v Mallicherry, 3 M 68

Where a decree was passed in the terms of an arbitration award without giving notice of its filing to the parties as required by s. 516, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 18). Held, that it was a good ground for a revision of the decree based upon the award under s 622, C. P .Code, 1882 (s 115)—Chatarbuj Das v Ganesh Ram, 20 A 474 See also, Rangasami v. Muthusami, 11 M 144

Where a Court passes a decree in terms of an award without giving the parties time to file objection, no appeal lies, against the decree, but the High Court has power to set aside the decree in the exercise of its discretion under s. 115, C P Code.—Ranjibhai v Dahyabhai, 45 B 832, 22 Bom L. R 1454.

Where a Court passes a decree on an award over ruling the objections of a party without giving him an opportunity to substantiate them by evidence, there is a revision, but not an appeal against the decree.—Bhagat Darbari Ram v Bhikha Ram, 3 Lah L J. 487; 20 P L R 1922

In any case where there is a disregard of the law amounting to an excess jurisdiction, or a perversion of the purposes of the Legislature, the High Court will interfere under its extraordinary jurisdiction where no other remedy is available.—Dagdusa Tilak Chand v Bhukan Govind, 9 B 82. See also Merali v Sheriff 36 B 105.

Binding Effect of an Arbitration Award.—An award upon a question referred to arbitrators, on whose part no misconduct or mistake appears, precludes the parties who have submitted to the reference from afterwards contesting in a suit the question so referred and disposed of by the award—Bhagoti v Chandan, 11 C 386, P C See also, Ghellabhai v Nandubai, 20 B. 238

A judgment and decree passed in terms of an award under s 522, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 16), constitute res judicata.—Vyankatesh v Sakharam, 21 Bom 465 See also, Wazeer Mahton v Chuni Singh, 7 C. 727.

An award on a private reference made by some of the plaintiffs and the defendants is binding on the rights of the parties to it. The award is not invalid on the ground that all the plaintiffs were not parties to it—Jadu Nath v. Kailas, 10 C. L. J. 41. See, Lal Mohun v. Surju Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 1152.

A person who is stranger to the submission to arbitration and who is not a party to the award, is not under an obligation to abide by the award.—Hira Singh v. Ganga Sahai, 6 A. 322, P. C. (affirming 2 A. 809)

A decree on an arbitration award, one of the parties to the submission having been a Hindu widow or daughter, is not binding on the reversioners.—Gobind Krishna v. Khunni Lal, 29 A. 487

"Suit upon award."—Where a decree is passed in terms of an award, the only mode of enforcing the award is by way of executing the decree, and no separate suit will lie to enforce the award.—Sasi Sekhareswar v Lalit Mohan, 52 C 314 52 I A 79.

Distinction between Valuer and Arbitrator.—In a partition suit it was arranged between the parties that the defendant, who was the owner of two-thirds share, should buy the plaintiff's one-third share at a price to be settled by certain persons named in the petition of compromise. The referees accordingly made their award and the Court gave judgment upon the award Held, on appeal, that the persons to whom it was referred to settle the price were rather valuers than arbitrators, and the order of reference cannot accordingly be regarded as one under s 506 C P. Code, 1882 (r 1) and no decree on the award of the valuers can be made under s. 522, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 16).—Chooncy Money v Ram Kinkar, 28 C. 155: 5 C. W. N. 242. Followed in Macnaghten v. Rameshwar, 30 C 831.

When the Court Acts as Arbitrator.—In the course of a suit, both the plaintiff and the defendant jointly presented a petition requesting the Court to inspect the site and peruse the documents filed in the suit and agreeing to abide by the decision which the Court might be pleased to pass as the final decision Held, that the Court acted as an arbitrator by consent of the parties and no appeal lay from its decision —Nidamarthi v Thammana 26 M. 76; Sayad Zain v. Kalabhai, 23 B. 752. A decree passed in accordance with such a decision must be regarded as a consent decree, and it comes within the purview of Or. XXIII, r. 3 —Chinna v. Venkatasami, 42 M 625, 628. See also, Baikanta v. Sita Nath, 38 C. 421.

ORDER OF REFERENCE ON AGREEMENTS TO REFER.

Application to file in Court agrement to refer to arbitration.

17. (1) Where any persons agree in writing that any difference between them shall be referred to arbitration, the parties to the agreement, or any of them, may apply to any Court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates, that the agreement be filed in Court.

(2) The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between one or more of the parties interested or claiming to be interested as plaintiff or plaintiffs, and the others or other of them as defendants or defendant, if the application has been presented by all the parties, or, if otherwise, between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants.

(3) On such application being made, the Court shall direct notice thereof to be given to all the parties to the agreement, other than the applicants, requiring such parties to show cause, within the time specified in the notice, why the agreement should not be filed.

(4) Where no sufficient cause is shown, the Court shall order the agreement to be filed, and shall make an order of reference to the arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the agreement or, if there is no such provision and the parties cannot agree, the Court may appoint an arbitrator. [S. 523.]

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to s 523, C P. Code, 1882, with several alterations and additions

Sub-rule (1) with some additions and alterations, corresponds to para. 1 of the old section, which ran as follows "When any persons agree in writing that any difference between them shall be referred to the arbitration of any person named in the agreement, or to be appointed by any Court having jurisdiction in the matter to which the agreement relates, the parties thereto, or any of them, may apply that the agreement be filed in Court"

Sub-rule (2) exactly corresponds to para. 2, and sub-rule (3) exactly corresponds to para 3 of the old section

Sub-rule (4) has been substituted for para 4 of the old section, which ran as follows· "If no sufficient cause be shown, the Court may cause the agreement to be filed, and shall make an order of reference thereon, and may also nominate the arbitrator, when he is not named therein and the parties cannot agree as to the nomination."

The changes introduced by the present rule will clearly appear on a comparison of the provisions of the new rule with that of the old section.

Application of the Para. to Cases Governed by the Indian Arbitration Act.—The procedure prescribed by this paragraph does not apply to cases to which the Arbitration Act applies —See s 3 of the Indian Arbitration Act (IX of 1899)

Meaning and Scope of this Para.—Para 17 and the subsequent para. refer to cases in which persons themselves agree, independently of the Court, to refer the matters in difference between them to arbitration.

In such a case any party to the agreement may apply to the Court to have the agreement filed and to have an order of reference made thereon. Where such an order is made, the provisions of paras 2 to 16 apply to the proceedings in so far as they are consistent which the agreement so filed.—Sheo Dat v. Sheo Shankar, 27 A. 53; Ghulam Khan v. Mahammad Hussain, 29 C. 167: 29 I. A. 51.

Agreement to Refer Future difference to Arbitration.—A general agreement to refer future differences to arbitration comes within this para and may be filed. The para. is not confined to cases in which a dispute actually existing at date of agreement is agreed to refer to arbitration. But the agreement must name the arbitrator or arbitrators and an agreement which provides for the future appointment or election of arbitrators does not fall within the section. The effect of the last clause of s. 523, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 17) is to give the parties to such an agreement power to nominate the arbitrator, even when they have agreed that he shall be appointed by the Court. In such cases the Court must appoint their nominee.—Fazulbhoy v. Bombay and Persia Steam Navigation Company, 20 B. 232.

Agreement to refer to Arbitration Matters in Dispute in a Pending Suit.—An agreement between the parties to refer matters in difference in a pending suit to arbitration, without the leave of the Court under paras 1 to 3, is illegal as an invasion of the jurisdiction of the Court, and that an award made on such an agreement is a nullity and cannot be treated as an adjustment, because Or. XXIII, r. 3 is subject to s. 89.—Amarchand v. Banwari, 49 C. 608: 69 I. C. 808: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 404; Ram Pratap v. Durga Prasad, 28 C. W. N. 424: 83 I. C. 300: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 567. Under the old Code it was held by the Calcutta and Punjab Courts that the corresponding section 523 did not apply to an agreement to refer to arbitration matters in difference in a pending suit.—Tin Cowry v. Fakir Chand, 30 C. 218: 7 C. W. N. 180, Dhan Singh v. Kahu Singh, 115 P. R. 1912. But a contrary view was taken by the Bombay and Allahabad High Courts in Harivalab Das v. Utam Chand, 4 B. 1, Sheo Dat v. Sheo Shankar, 27 A. 53. Where a pending suit was, by an agreement between the parties, withdrawn, and after such withdrawal, the matter in dispute was referred to arbitration under this para., and an award was made and filed under paras 20 and 21, it was held that the Court having surrendered its jurisdiction by allowing the suit to be withdrawn, the procedure was quite correct.—Kolil Singh v. Ramaswami, 3 Pat 443. A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 488.

Revocation of Agreement to Refer to Arbitration.—See notes under para. 3.

Where a party has been induced by misrepresentation to refer to arbitration he is at liberty to revoke the reference and the agreement to refer cannot be filed in Court.—Ganesh Das v. Kesho Das, 50 I. C. 637.

Power of Court to Remit or Set Aside Award Made under this Para.—In a suit for partition and to take account, where the arbitrators to whom the case was referred to under this section, omitted to carry out the terms of reference and left undetermined a very important matter viz., the settlement of the accounts. Held, that the Court, instead of confirming the award, should have remitted it under s 523, C. P. Code, 1882 (r 17), for the consideration of the arbitrators.—Sadik Ali v Imdad Ali, 3 A. 286.

In an agreement to submit to arbitration, which was filed in Court under the provisions of s 523, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 17), it was stipulated that the decision of the arbitrator should be accepted as final, and that no appeal therefrom should be made by either party. Held, that this stipulation did not prevent the Court from setting aside the award, on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrator.—Ranga v Sithoya, 6 M. 368.

" The agreement shall be in writing."—The paragraph does not apply unless the agreement to refer is in writing —Tin Cowry v. Fakir Chand, 30 C. 218.

" Shall be numbered and registered as a suit."—When an application is presented under sub-para (1), it has to be numbered and registered as a suit, but that does not mean that proceeding under this para is a suit, because a suit is commenced by filing a plaint —Satish v Paliram, 6 Pat. L. J. 287 : 61 I. C 390; Rajmal v. Maruti, 22 Bom. L R 1377: 59 I. C. 755 It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that a proceeding under para. 21 is a suit —Guru Charan v Uma Charan, 26 C. W N. 240: 70 I C 985

Umpire.—In an agreement to refer certain matter to arbitration which was filed in Court under s 523, C P Code, 1882 (r. 17), and on which an order of reference was made, there was no provision for difference of opinion by appointment of an umpire The arbitrators being unable to agree, the Court appointed an umpire An award was made by the umpire and one arbitrator, without the concurrence of the other arbitrator, and submitted to the Court, which passed a decree in accordance with its terms Held, that there had been no legal award, inasmuch as the agreement to refer gave the Court no power to appoint an umpire —Muhammad Abid v. Muhammad Ashgar, 8 A 64

" Sufficient cause " Against the filing of the Agreement.—Where the parties had executed a deed agreeing to refer all matters in dispute to the arbitration of three persons, and one of the arbitrators refused to continue to act, and the others had consequently refused to proceed with the reference, the Court refused to order the agreement to be filed in the Court —Brooke v Surdial, 12 B L R App 13

Under ss 523 and 525, C P Code, 1882 (rr 17, 20) parties to a suit as well as persons not engaged in litigation may agree to refer matters in dispute between them to private arbitration without the intervention of the Court, and may apply to have the agreement filed; and the mere fact that a suit is pending with respect to the matters in dispute, is not of itself a sufficient reason to induce the Court to refuse to file the agreement —Harivalab Das v Utamchand, 4 B 1, Rahatullah v Ibadullah, 4 O L. J 131 40 I C 38.

The Court should not make an order of reference under this para. where the agreement is to refer to several persons specifically named as arbitrators and one of them dies before the application under this para.

is made.—Mohanlal v Damodar Das, (1918) Punj. Rec. No. 71, p 238, Ma Ba U v Maung Pe Lan, 11 Bur. L T. 160: 42 I. C. 911. But the Court is competent to make an order of reference if the agreement expressly provides that in case of death of any arbitrator, another arbitrator may be appointed in his place.—Sri Ram v. Sorabji, (1919) Punj Rec No. 155, p. 114.

On a reference to arbitration without the intervention of the Court, one of the parties declined to act after the proceedings were begun Held, that it was competent to the Court to make an order of reference under para. 17, Sch II, C. P Code on the application of one of the parties and to appoint a new arbitrator under para. 5 even in the absence of a provision to that effect in the deed of aggreement —Fazal Illahi v Prag Narain, 44 A. 523 20 A. L. J. 327.

During the pendency of the arbitration proceedings on a private reference one of the parties died and the arbitrator thinking that he had no power to bring the representatives of the deceased on the record refused to go on with the arbitration On an application for filing the agreement referring the matters to arbitration, held, that the Court could not order the arbitrator to carry on the arbitration proceedings.—Ahmad Noor Khan v. Abdul Rahman Khan, 42 A 191: 18 A L J. 76: 54 I. C 366

Under the Mahomedan Law, a mother who has not been appointed guardian of the properties of her minor children by the District Judge under the Guardians and Wards Act is not competent to bind the minors by an agreement to refer to arbitration disputes between the minors and other persons regarding their moveable and immoveable properties Such an agreement is not for the manifest advantage of the minors and does not amount to an acceptance on their behalf of an unburdened bounty and can not be filed in Court under Sch II para 17 of the C P. Code—Mohesenuddin Ahmed v Khabiruddin Ahmed, 47 C 713: 57 I C 915

An agreement to refer to arbitration does not become void by reason of the resignation of one of the arbitrators and this is not a sufficient reason for refusing to file the agreement in Court, in as much as there was a distinct provision in the agreement that in case of disability, resignation or death of any arbitrator, the party which had elected such arbitrator would be competent to appoint another in such arbitrator's place —Sriram v Sorabji, 3 Lah L J 276.

"Arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the agreement."—The provision is mandatory Thus where an agreement provides for a reference to a European merchant, the Court has no power to appoint an Indian merchant, Dreyfus & Co. v. Gurditta, 35 P. R 1911: 9 I. C. 655.

Appeal from Orders Filing or Refusing to File an Agreement to Refer to [illegible] (1) (d), an appeal lies from an order under this [illegible] file an agreement to refer to arbitration It [illegible] under the old Code —Ghulam Khan v. Mu [illegible]

18. Where any party to any agreement to refer to arbitration, or any person claiming under him, institutes any suit against any other party to the agreement, or any person claiming under him, in respect of any matter agreed to be referred, any party to such suit may, at the earliest possible oppportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, apply to the Court to stay the suit; and the Court if satisfied that there is no sufficient reason why the matter should not be referred in accordance with the agreement to refer to arbitration, and that the applicant was at the time when the suit was instituted and still remains, ready and willing to do all things necessary to the proper conduct of the arbitration, may make an order staying the suit. [New.]

Stay of suit where there is an agreement to refer to arbitration.

COMMENTARY.

Scope and Object of the Para.—This para. is new and it corresponds to section 19 of the Indian Arbitration Act (IX of 1899). It gives a party who is willing to abide by the agreement, the right to apply for a stay of the suit filed by the other party and has been inserted to meet the cases noted below Under this para the suit will not be barred, but its proceedings may be stayed by an application at the earliest opportunity

Applicability of the para.—A suit was referred to arbitration but subsequently although the arbitrator did not resign or decline to act, practical difficulties arose so as to prevent arbitration proceedings being taken in by the arbitrator and the Court cancelled the arbitration and ordered the suit to be proceeded therewith. Held, that para 18, C. P Code, was not applicable to the circumstances of the present case —Rani Sashi Mukhi v. Parbati Roy Chowdhury, 23 C W N 293 50 I C. 879

"No sufficient reason."—It is for the plaintiff to show that some sufficient reason exists why the matter should not be referred to arbitration and not for the defendant to show that no such reason exists —Dinabandhu v Durgaprasad, 46 C. 1041, Gonesh Das Ishar Das v Durga, 3 Lah L J 61 60 I C 776

"Institutes any suit."—This para applies only to suits inst[illegible] after the agreement to refer to arbitration has been made The C[illegible] no power to stay the suit under this para where a suit is fi[illegible] then the parties agree to refer the matters to arbitration.—[illegible] House, 35 C 199; Peruri v Gullapadi, 34 B 372.

The institution of a suit has not ipso facto the effe[illegible] a previous reference to arbitration dealing with the sam[illegible] but if after the institution of the suit, neither party [illegible] of the hearing of the suit under Sch II, para 18, C[illegible] the time of the settlement of issues or before, th[illegible] is to supersede the arbitration for good and any d[illegible] arrived at in that suit would be binding on th[illegible] reference to arbitration had been made prior to the suit.—Bainab v Budhna, 25 O. C. 63: 68 I. C. 235; Sarat Chandra v Rajkumar, 60 I C. 863.

Agreement to Refer to Arbitration, Whether Bars a Suit.—Where parties to a suit have agreed to refer the matters in dispute between them in such suit to arbitration, such an agreement ousts the jurisdiction of the Court to proceed with the suit, whether it is filed in Court under the provisions of s. 523, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 17) or not.—Sheo Dat v Sheo Shanker, 27 A. 53 (4 A. 546 and 9 A. 168 followed). But the Court should proceed with the suit after removing the stay where the arbitrators having been found unwilling to act, the plaintiff applied for removal of the stay —Laxman Upendra v Manju Nath, 45 B. 1181: 23 Bom L R 511

When a Court is apprised that a suit has been instituted in contravention of an arbitration agreement, the Court has a discretion to stay the suit and the burden lies on the plaintiff to show that some sufficient reason exists why the matter should not be so referred and not on the defendant to show that such reason exists.—Gonesh Das v. Durga Dat, 3 Lah L J 61 · 60 I C 776; Volkart Bros v. Fateh Muhammad Karim Baksh, 61 I C 322

To bar a suit under s 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), it must be shown that the plaintiff had refused to perform the agreement to refer to arbitration before the action is brought; the filing of the plaint is not such a refusal.—Koomud Chunder v. Chunder Kant, 5 C 498, 5 C. L R. 264; Crisp v Adlard, 23 C 956; and Tahal v. Bisheshar, 8 A 57 On this point, see also, Saliq Ram v. Jhunna Koer, 4 A. 546; Sheoamber v Deodat, 9 A. 168, and Adhibai v. Cursandas Nathu, 11 B. 199.

A suit will not lie to enforce an agreement to refer to arbitration even in the case referred to in the first exception to s. 28 of the Contract Act, IX of 1872 But that section does not forbid an action for damages for the breach of such an agreement —Koegler v. The Coringa Oil Company, 1 C 42 (on appeal 1 C 466)

See also the cases noted under para. 22.

Power of Court When Agreement to Refer Dispute to Arbitration is Set Up by One Party and Denied by the Other.—A Court can only take action under para 18, Sch. II, C P. Code, when there is a subsisting agreement to refer a dispute to arbitration. It is not necessary that both parties should admit that there is an agreement to refer. It is for the Court to decide whether or not such an agreement had as a matter of fact been made —Firm of Sheo Parshad Radha Kishen v. Indore Malwa United Mills, 62 P. R. 1917 · 65 P. W. R. 1917: 39 I. C. 508

" Apply to the Court to stay the suit."—Where after a reference to arbitration one of the parties brings a suit against the other and the latter deliberately refrains from applying for stay of the suit, he must be deemed to have waived his right to arbitration.—Chimman Lal Posti Mal v Firm Fool Chand Fateh Chand, 44 A. 292: 20 A. L J. 128. 65 I C. 795; Ram Nath v Ramrangam, (1922) C. 181.

Appeal.—Under s 104 (1) (c), an appeal lies from an order staying or refusing to stay a suit when there is an agreement to refer to arbitration.

19. The foregoing provisions, so far as they are consistent with any agreement filed under paragraph 17, shall be applicable to all proceedings under the order of reference made by the Court under that paragraph, and to the award and to the decree following thereon.
[S. 524.]

Provisions applicable to proceedings under paragraph 17.

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 524, C. P Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

"So far as they are consistent with any agreement filed under para. 17—The words "so far as they are consistent with any agreement so filed" in this para. do not mean that the agreement must contain in every case an express provision as to what ought to be done if any arbitrator is unwilling to act in order that a Judge may act in conformity to it, and that r 5 has otherwise no application The reasonable construction is that the action of the Judge under r. 5 should not be inconsistent with the agreement, if it contains any special provision on the subject.—Bala v. Seetharama, 17 M. 498

In an agreement to submit to arbitration, which was filed in Court under s 523, C P Code, 1882 (r 17), it was stipulated that the decision of the arbitrator should be accepted as final, and that no appeal therefrom should be made by either party Held, that this stipulation did not prevent the Court from setting aside the award on the ground of misconduct on the part of the arbitrator —Bala v Kalapali, 6 M 368

ARBITRATION WITHOUT THE INTERVENTION OF A COURT.

20. (1) Where any matter has been referred to arbitration without the intervention of a Court, and an award has been made thereon, any person interested in the award may apply to any Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the award that the award be filed in Court

Filing award in matter referred to arbitration without intervention of Court.

(2) The application shall be in writing and shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the applicant as plaintiff and the other parties as defendants

(3) The Court shall direct notice to be given to the parties to the arbitration, other than the applicant, requiring them to show cause, within a time specified, why the award should not be filed.
[S. 525.]

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to s 525, C. P. Code, 1882 No other alteration has been made except that the words "any Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the award" have been substituted for the words "Court of the lowest grade having jurisdiction over the matter to which it relates."

The provisions of the Code, relating to arbitration are not compulsory, but enabling and they provide certain courses of procedure to be followed if the parties desire to adopt those provisions, but it does not enact that no other course shall be pursued So, where an award is made otherwise than in a suit, the parties need not apply under this rule but may file a suit to enforce it See the cases noted under rule 21 under the heading "Suit to enforce a private award"

Scope of the Paragraph.—This para and para. 21 refer to cases where the agreement of reference is made and the arbitration itself takes place without the intervention of the Court, and the assistance of the Court is only sought in order to give effect to the award —Ghulam Khan v Muhammad Hassan, 29 C 167 29 I A 21

This Para. does Not Apply to Arbitration in a Pending Suit.—The provisions of paras 20 and 21 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code have no application to cases where the matters referred to arbitration are already the subject matter of a suit between the parties to the reference —Mani Lal Moti Lal v. Gokal Das, 45 B 245 22 Bom. L R 1048; Chaubasappa v. Baslingayya, 29 Bom. L R 1254 F B : A I. R. 1927 Bom 567

This Paragraph is No Bar to a Regular Suit to Enforce an Award.—Under the corresponding section 525 of the old Code, it was held that a party interested in an award may, at his option, either avail himself of the summary remedy to enforce the award as provided by that section or he may bring a regular suit to enforce the award —Subbaraya v. Sadasiva, 20 M. 490, Bhajahari v. Bihari Lal, 33 C. 381. A suit can be brought upon an award independently of the summary procedure authorized by this paragraph at any period which the law of limitation of suits permits —Wazir Ali v Mulkyar, 34 P R. 1910 11 P W. R. 1910: 5 I. C. 597.

A Valid Award Bars a Suit on Original Demand.—A valid award operates to merge and extinguish all claims embraced in the submission, and after it has been made, the submission and the award furnish the only basis by which the rights of the parties can be determined and constitutes a bar to any action on the original demand.—Krishna v. Balaram, 19 M 220, Bhajahari v Bihari Lal, 33 C 881.

"Any person interested in the award."—A person who is a stranger to the submission to reference and under no obligation to abide by the award could not be said to be a person interested in the award within the meaning of Sch II, para 20 of the C P. Code.—Pandit Sankara Prasad v. Jagannath, 9 O L J 410 (1922) Oudh 276

"Where any matter has been referred to arbitration."—A Civil Court has jurisdiction to file an award and pass a decree thereon under this para. and para 21 though the matter referred to arbitration is one to which a Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit under s. 9 of the C.

P. Code.—Raghavendra v. Gururao, 15 Bom. L. R. 362; see also, Muhammad Ibrahim v. Ahmad, 32 A. 503, in which it was held that the right to succeed to the trusteeship of a public charitable trust is not a right which can be settled by arbitration without the intervention of a Court. A Court therefore has no jurisdiction to entertain an application to file an award in such a matter under this paragraph Court to which Application should be Made under this Paragraph.—The words " subject-matter of the award " have been substituted in the paragraph for the words " matter to which the award relates," to make it clear that an application under this paragraph may be made to any Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the award. It is the subject-matter of the award, and not the subject-matter of the reference, that determines the jurisdiction of the Court under this paragraph A Court has therefore no jurisdiction to file an award and to pronounce judgment upon it and to frame a decree in accordance with the provisions thereof where the decree would not affect any person or property within the jurisdiction of the Court —Ram Lal v. Kishan Chand, 51 C. 361 · 51 I. A. 72: 83 I C 534 A I R 1924 P C. 95

Persons Competent to Apply under this Para.—The word " parties," as used in s. 525, C P Code, 1882 (r 20), should not be confined to persons who are actually before the arbitrators, as well as those who are likely to be affected by the award —If parties, by an agreement, have undertaken between themselves that, in the event of a certain state of things happening, a particular procedure shall be followed, which, under one set of circumstances, may be adapted in invitum, then, for the purposes of this paragraph, they should be regarded as parties to the arbitration.—Jones v. Ledgard, 8 A. 340

Where a matter has been referred to arbitration, without the intervention of the Court, by parties, one of whom is an agriculturist, and an award has been made thereon, any person interested in the award may, without obtaining the conciliator's certificate, apply for the filing of the award under s 525, C P Code, 1882 (r 20), the provisions of which are not superseded by s. 47 of the Dekhan Agriculturist's Relief Act, 1879 —Gangadhar v. Mahadu Santaji, 8 B 20

A natural guardian of a minor has power to submit to a private arbitration, provided the submission and the award are for the benefit of the minor —Romon Kissen v Hurrolall, 19 C. 334 But see, Lakshmana v. Chinnathambi, 24 M 326, where it has been held that submission and award by a minor's guardian without the sanction of the Court under s. 462, C P Code, 1882 (O XXXII, r 7), are invalid.

Proceedings taken to file and enforce a private award are of the nature of a suit, and a minor must be represented in such proceedings by a person holding a certificate of administration —Vasudev Vishnu v Narayan Jagannath, 9 Bom H C 289

The power given by Sch II, para 20 to any person interested to apply to a Court to have an award filed in Court does not override the general power under Or XXIII, r. 3 to adjust disputes by a lawful compromise at any time after the institution of a suit —Chintalapalli v. Venkanna, 76 I C. 502.

Small Cause Court.—When a matter has been referred to arbitration without the intervention of any Court, a Small Cause Court in the Mofussil has jurisdiction to entertain an application, under this section, to file the award, provided it relates to a debt not exceeding the amount cognizable by such Court, and the defendant resides within its jurisdiction.—Flam Pramanick v. Sojaitullah, 1 B. L. R. A. C. 43; 10 W. R. 85. See also, Bridge v. Edalji, 10 Bom. H. C. 54; and Gangappa v. Kapinappa, 5 Mad. H. C. 128. See also, Simson v. McMaster, 13 M. 341.

A Sub-Judge invested with powers of Small Cause Court, does not on that account become a Judge of a Court of Small Causes, nor his Court such a Court within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Code. He therefore has power, within limits of his ordinary pecuniary jurisdiction, to receive and file awards of arbitrators under s. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20).—Balkrishna v. Lakshman, 3 B. 219.

The jurisdiction of a Court to file an awarrd depends on the reliefs awarded by the award. It is not open to a party to confer jurisdiction on a Court by asking for only one relief granted by the award and getting the award filed under para. 20 of Sch. II where the other reliefs granted are beyond the competence of the Court.—Rathnmali v. Ramasuami, 10 L. W. 57: 51 I. C. 53.

Rejection of Application Out of Court.—See, Ramdhari v. Ramchantter, 38 C. 143.

Effect of Refusal of an Application to File an Award.—The refusal of an application under para. 20 of Sch. II of the C. P. Code to file an award does not operate as res judicata in respect of a subsequent suit brought to enforce the award.—Harakh Ram Jain v. Lakshmi Ram Jani, 18 A. L. J. 960.

Filing and Enforcement of Private Awards.—Where there is no matter in difference between the parties which can be referred to arbitration, the valuation made by three persons appointed by the plaintiff is not an award within the meaning of s. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), and it cannot therefore be filed in Court.—Macnaghten v. Romeshwar Singh, 30 C. 831 (28 C. 155: 5 C. W. N. 242 followed).

In the case of a private award where the arbitrators granted a new trial and eventually disposed of the case in the absence of the defendant, and the award was signed by the arbitrators at different times. Held, that such an irregular award should not be enforced under this section.—Nader Ali v. Majoo, 21 W. R. 77.

A Court to which an application is made under this section, to file a private award, has no power to amend the award or remit it for reconsideration, but only possesses the power to file and enforce it or to reject the application.—Mustafa Khan v. Phulji Bibi, 27 A. 526.

Matters in dispute were referred to seven arbitrators without the intervention of a Court. The arbitrators held several sittings extending over some six months and at their last sitting they unanimously came to a decision and informed the parties of it. Subsequently the award was drawn up and signed by four out of the seven arbitrators. Held, that the actual award was an oral award made by all the arbitrators at their last sitting, and the fact that the minority of the arbitrators did not sign the award was not fatal to the award —Dandekar v. Dandekars, 6 B. 663

An award made under s 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), which is partly within, and partly exceeds, the terms of the submission to arbitration, cannot be enforced by summary procedure under s. 526 as to such portion as does not exceed those matters.—Mana Vikrama v. Mallichery, 3 M. 68, followed in Mustafa Khan v Phulji Bibi, 27 A. 526

On an application to have the award filed in Court under s. 525, C. P Code, 1882 (r 20), the defendant amongst others objected that the agreement of submission was vague and indefinite The Sub-Judge, overruling the objection, directed the award to be filed and passed a decree upon it Held, that the objection was well-founded inasmuch as the agreement to refer was vague and indefinite, and the award should not be allowed to be enforced under s 525, C. P Code, 1882 (r. 20) —Bindessari Pershad v. Jankee Pershad, 16 C 482.

Under para 20 (1) of Sch II of the C P. Code, the Court cannot refuse to file the award for grounds other than those mentioned in paras. 14 and 15 of that Schedule. Held, therefore, that the lower Court was right in filing the award notwithstanding the objection of the defendant on the ground that everything that was to be performed under the award has been already performed by him —Annamalay Chetti v Ramaswami Chetti, 19 M L. T 228· (1916) 1 M W N 203

Held, where a private award determined a matter not referred to arbitration, that a claim under s 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r 20), that such award should be filed in Court was properly dismissed —Juala Singh v. Narain Das, 3 A. 541, followed in Mustafa Khan v Phulji Bibi, 27 A. 526. See also, Thiruvengadathingar v Vaidhnatha Ayyar, 29 M. 303, in which it has been held that where an award determines matters not referred to arbitration the Court is bound to refuse to file the award.

When a private award between parties is filed in a Court, the prescribed course is for the Court to give judgment upon it and pass a decree, not to order execution thereof before such decree has been passed — Saheb Ram v Kashee Nath, 21 W R 295 So also Ishwardas v. Dosibai, 7 B. 316, where it has been held that it is the duty of the Court to proceed to pass judgment according to the award as soon it is ordered to be filed, without waiting for an application that that should be done.

Where an Award is Delivered in parts.—If the agreement to refer provides that the matters in dispute may be taken up and dealt with seriatim, and that the award may be delivered bit by bit, each portion decided may be dealt with as a distinct award under this paragraph — Shoshimukhi v. Nobin, 4 C L R 92.

Withdrawal of an Application to File an Award.—Where an application has been made under s 525, C P Code, 1882 (r 20), to have a certain award filed in Court, which had been made without the intervention of the Court, the applicant is at liberty at any stage of the hearing prior to the delivery of judgment and preparation of the decree to withdraw the application under s 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or XXIII, r 1).— Gauri Shanker v Maida Koer, 31 C 516; Mohes Chunder v Amar Chand, 19 C. L. J. 260. But see, Sheoamber v. Deodat, 9 A. 168.

Award Determining Matters Not Referred.—See, Muhammad Ibrahim v. Ahmed Said, 32 A. 503; Nagendra v. Harendra, 16 C W. N. 34, Dhanpat Rai v. Musst Khan Devi, 30 P .R 109; Theruvengadathingar v. Vaidhnath Ayyar, 29 M. 303.

Court-fee upon an Application to File a Private Award.—The proper Court-fee upon an application to file an award under s 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20) is the Court-fee prescribed for applications, and not the Court-fee upon a plaint —Byadhur Bhugut v. Monohur Bhugut, 10 C 11. 13 C L. R 171.

An order directing a private award to be filed is a decree and ought to have a Court-fee in accordance with Art. 1, Sch. I of the Court-fees Act —Hari Mohan v. Kali Prasad, 33 C. 11.

In proceedings under para 20 of the Second Schedule to the C P. Code, an unstamped award may be admitted in evidence and filed in Court after payment of the penalty under the provisions of the Stamp Act, Gowardhan Das v. Keshoram, 66 P. R. 1913: 291 P L R. 1913

Loss of Private Award—Secondary Evidence as to its Contents.—In the absence of the original award a Court acting under this section is not at liberty to take secondary evidence of the award and pass decree accordingly; in such a case the plaintiff must be referred to a regular suit to enforce the terms of the award —Gopi Reddi v. Mahanandi Reddi, 12 M. 231; Musst Khodija v Ghulam Nabi, 1 L. 45: 55 I C. 845 In the same case after the rejection of an application under this section the plaintiff brought a regular suit to enforce the terms of the award, and it was held therein that secondary evidence of the contents of the award was admissible on proof of the loss of the original.—Gopi Reddi v Mahanandi Reddi, 15 M 99

Limitation for an Application to File an Award.—The period of limitation for an application to file a private award is six months —See Art 178 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Ram Ugram v Achraj, 38 A 85, (91)

The date of the award means not the date the award bears, but the date on which it was given to the parties, i e., the date of publication —Kunj Lall v Banwari Lall, 4 Pat. L. J. 394: 48 I. C. 711

It is clearly the intention of the Legislature that a party to an arbitration should have six months to enforce the award, under this section from the time when he is in a position to enforce it, that is, from the time when the award is delivered to the parties, and not from the date when the award is signed by the arbitrators —Dutto Singh v. Dosad Bahadur, 9 C. 575.

Filling and enforcement of such award.

21. (1) Where the Court is satisfied that the matter has been referred to arbitration and that an award has been made thereon and where no ground such as is mentioned or referred to in paragraph 14 or paragraph 15 is proved, the Court shall order the award to be filed and shall proceed to pronounce judgment according to the award. [S. 526.]

(2) Upon the judgment so pronounced a decree shall follow, and no appeal shall lie from such decree except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Sub-rule (1), with some modification, corresponds to s. 526 of the C. P. Code of 1882, which ran as follows " If no ground such as is mentioned or referred to in s. 520, or s 521, be shown against the award, the Court shall order it to be filed, and such award shall then take effect as an award made under the provisions of this chapter."

It would appear from a comparison of the provisions of the old section with sub-rule (1), that the language of the present rule has been changed to set at rest the conflicting rulings of the several High Courts which hitherto existed as to the proper course for the Court to pursue, when an objection is raised on grounds mentioned in rr. 14 and 15. In some of the cases it was held that where an objection to the factum or validity of the submission and award is raised, the Court had no jurisdiction to deal with them and must refer the parties to a regular suit. But in some other cases it was held that where objections are raised to the validity of an award on the ground mentioned in rr 14 and 15, the Court is not bound to hold its hand and reject the application, but it is the duty of the Court to enquire into the validity of the objections raised and thereupon to determine whether the award should be filed or not The conflicting rulings have been noted below to understand clearly the object of the amendment

Sub-rule (2) is new It has been framed adopting the view of the Judicial Committee as expressed in Ghulam Khan's case (29 C 167 6 C W. N. 226, P C). The main object of the insertions of the sub-rule will appear from the " Report of the Special Committee " noted under r. 16, and also from the conflicting rulings noted under the heading " APPEAL FROM ORDERS ALLOWING OR DISALLOWING APPLICATIONS TO FILE A PRIVATE AWARD IN COURT."

The provisions of ss. 523 to 526. C P Code, 1882, shall not apply to any submission to arbitration to which the provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act for the time being apply —See s 3 of the Indian Arbitration Act (IX of 1899)

Grounds of Objection under Paras. 14 and 15.—If an award in a matter referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court determines any matter not referred to arbitration the only course open to the Court under the present rule is to refuse to file the award, even where the portion of the award open to exception can be separated from the rest — Dinabandhu v. Chintamoni, 19 C. W. N 476, Kunj Lall v Banwari Lall, 4 Pat. L. J 394, 401-402), Dhanpat Rai v. Kahan Devi, (1914) Punj Objections to the Filing of Awards upon Any of the Grounds tioned in Paras. 14 and 15 and the Jurisdiction of the Courts to E into the Validity of the Objections.—When an application is mad Court to file an award under s 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), and tion is made to the filing of it upon any of the grounds mentio ss 520 and 521, C P Code, 1882 (rr 14, 15), the proper course Court to pursue is to dismiss the application and to leave the ap to bring a regular suit to enforce the award in which all the objecti its validity may be properly tried and determined —Hurro N Nistarini, 10 C 74; 13 C L R 14 See also, Bijadhur Bha Monohur Bhagut, 10 C 11, 13 C L R. 171; Ichamoyee v. Pr Nath, 9 C 557, Sree Ram v Denobundhoo, 7 C. 490: 9 C. L R Bindessuri Pershad v Jankee Pershad, 16 C. 482; and Hussain v Mohsin Khan, 1 A 156 But see, Dendekar v Dandekars, 6 B Dhanjibhai v Mathurbhai, 28 B 287, Dutto Singh v. Dosad B 9 C 575, Jagan Nath v. Mannu Lal, 16 A. 231; and Jones v. L 8 A 340 In these latter cases it has been held (dissenting fro former cases) that in ss 525 and 526, C P. Code, 1882 (rr. 20, 21 terms "to show cause" does not mean merely to allege cause no to make out that there is reason for argument, but both to allege and to prove it to the satisfaction of the Court. This view is sup by the Full Bench case of Sujan Raot v. Bhikhari Raot, 21 C 2 which it has been held that where objections are raised to the vali an award in a verified written statement, and the objections are as fall within s 521, C P Code, 1882 (r. 15), the Court is not bo hold its hand and reject the application, but it is the duty of the to enquire into the validity of the objections raised, and thereup determine whether the award should be filed or not. This view is f supported by the recent Full Bench case of Mahomed Wahidud Hakiman, 25 C 757, F B : 2 C W. N. 529, in which the Full case of Amrit Ram v Dasrat Ram, 17 A. 21, has been followed; ar case of Tejpur v Mahomed Jamal, 20 B 596, has been dissented and this Full Bench virtually overrules the former decisions report 10 C 74 13 C L R 14, 11 C. 11 13 C L R. 171, 9 C. 557, 7 C and 9 C L R 147 See also, Ganesh Singh v. Kashi Singh, 28 A and Mani Lal v Vanmalidas, 29 B 621, in which the principle laid in 25 C 757, F B has been followed

"Where the Court is satisfied that the matter has been referr arbitration and that an award has been made thereon."—These are new In the absence of these words in the corresponding sectio of the old Code, the Bombay High Court held that where an applic was made under that section to file an award, and the other party objections to the factum or validity of the submission and award Court had no jurisdiction to deal with them, and the Court should fore reject the application and refer the applicant to a regular su enforce the award —Tejpur Deve Chand v Mahomed Jamal, 20 B. On the other hand, it was held by the High Courts of Calcutta, Allal and Madras that the Court had the power under that section to mine all questions relating to the factum and validity of the a agreement to refer and of the award, and that the applicant must not be referred to a regular suit.—Mahomed v. Hakiman, 25 C. 757, Amrit Ram v. Dasrat Ram, 17 A. 21; Ganesh v. Kashi, 28 A. 621; Chintamallaya v. Thadi Gangireddy, 20 M. 89.

Where on an application to file an award under ss. 525 and 526, C. P. Code, 1882 (rr. 20, 21), objections, which in the opinion of the Court are not merely frivolous or colourable, are raised to the factum or validity of the submission and award, the Court has no jurisdiction to deal with them, and must refer the parties to a regular suit.—Tejpur Devechand v. Mahomed Jamal, 20 B. 596. See also, Samal Nath v. Jaisanker, 9 B. 254; Venkatesh v. Chanapgarda, 17 B. 674; and also the judgment of Prinsep, Pigot, and Macpherson, JJ., in the Full Bench case of Surjan Raot v. Bhikari Raot, 21 C. 213, F. B. But see, Mahomed Wahiduddin v. Hakiman, 25 C. 757, F. B. 2 C. W. N. 529 F. B., Amrit Ram v. Dasrat Ram, 17 A. 21, F. B.; and Chintamallayya v. Thadigangireddi, 20 M. 89. In these cases a different view has been taken.

A Private Award is Valid and Binding though Proceedings under Para. 20 have Not been Taken to Enforce it.—An award made by private submission may be valid and binding though no proceedings under s. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20) have been taken to enforce it.—Surubjeet Narain v. Gouree Pershad, 7 W. R. 260. See also, Ramyad Sahoo v. Doolar Sahoo, 9 W. R. 441, and Nursingh v. Putto, 20 W. R. 120.

An arbitration award may be valid without being enforced by the Courts, as for instance, where possession under the award is shown.—Mohesh Chunder v. Buloram, 6 W. R. 94.

The refusal of an application for the filing of an award under s. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), merely leaves the award to have its own ordinary legal effect, and it cannot be contended that an award is not to be relied upon as a defence in a suit relating to the subject-matter dealt with by it, only because such an application has not been granted.—Muhammad Newaz Khan v. Alam Khan, 18 C. 415, P. C.

Where an award which purported to be a considered award of the arbitrators framed after consideration of the statements of the parties and the evidence of witness, was found in reality to be merely the adoption by the arbitrators of an agreement arrived at and signed by the parties to the reference, it was held that this would not prevent the award being a valid and binding award between the parties.—Gobardhan Das v. Jai Kishen Das, 22 A. 224.

"A decree shall follow."—Sch. II of the C. P. Code is not complete in itself. A decree passed under para. 21 (2) of Sch. II is a decree in a suit and Or. IX, r. 13 applies to such a decree.—Mahabir Prasad v. Balkishen Das, 62 I. C. 927.

Suit to Enforce Private Award—Limitation.—The chapter of the Code on arbitration is not compulsory, but enabling, and provides certain courses of procedure to be followed if the parties desire to adopt its provisions, but it does not enact that no other course shall be pursued. So where an award is made otherwise than in a suit, the parties need not apply under s. 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), but may file a suit to enforce it.—Pragdas v. Girdhardas, 26 B. 76.

A suit lies to enforce an award made without the intervention of a Court of justice The procedure provided by s 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), is not imperative upon a plaintiff who seeks to enforce an award so made —Palaniappa Chetti v. Rayappa Chetti, 4 M. H. C. 119, and Kota Seetamma v Kali Purla, 8 M. H. C. 81. Followed in Subbaraya Chetti v. Sada Siva Chetti, 20 M 490 (15 M. 99 followed).

Where an award cannot be filed and a decree obtained upon it under s 525, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 20), a party is not precluded from suing upon it.—Gopi Reddi v. Mahanandi, 15 M. 99. See also, Narasayya v. Ramabadra, 15 M 474, and Jafri Begum v. Syed Ali Reza, 5 C. W N. 585 P. C.

A suit is maintainable to enforce specific performance of a private award, where it is not possible to assess compensation in money for breach of the particular condition in the award.—Brij Mohan Singh, 24 A. 104

A suit to enforce an award cannot be treated as a suit for specific performance of contract within the meaning of article 113 of the Limitation Act, 1877, the article applicable, being Article 144 of the Act—Sornavalli Ammal v. Muthayya Sastrigal, 23 M. 593 (I. L R 5 A. 263, and 16 A 3 distinguished). Followed in Sheo Narayan v. Beni Madho, 23 A 285 See also, Bhajahari v Behary Lal, 33 C. 881: 4 C. L J 162

Whether Matters Heard and Determined in Proceedings under this Para. are Res Judicata and cannot be Re-opened in Subsequent Suit.—Matters heard and determined in proceedings under para. 21 of Sch II of the C P Code are res judicata and cannot be re-opened in a subsequent suit between the same parties and brought for the purpose of setting aside the award and the decree following upon the judgment pronounced in accordance therewith A proceeding under para. 21 of Sch II is a suit within the meaning of s 11 of the C. P. Code —Guru Charan v Uma Charan, 26 C W N 940 The Allahabad and Bombay High Courts have held that the refusal of a Court to file a private award on the ground of misconduct of the arbitrators does not operate as res judicata in respect of a suit subsequently brought to enforce the award.—Kunji Lal v. Durga Prasad, 32 A 484, Harakh Ram v Lakshmi Ram, 43 A. 108. 60 I C 628, Rajmal v Maruti, 45 B 329 59 I. Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order under this rule filing or refusing to file an award —See s 104 sub-s. (1), cl. (f); Shankar Das v Amir Chand, 7 Lah L. J 91 88 I. C. 533: A I. R. 1925 Lah. 321; Jagat Pande v Sarwan Pande, 47 A. 743: 88 I C. 76: A. I. R. 1925 All. 404. But no appeal lies from the order passed in appeal —Ahmed Din v. Atlas Trading Co., (1915) P. R. No. 66, p. 287. It must be noted however that though an appeal lies from an order made under this rule, no appeal lies from a decree passed on an award except in so far as the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award —Bahadur Singh v. Negi Paran Singh, 30 A. 151; Kulsum v. Ali Akbar, 39 A. 401 (411); Maung Tunu v Maung Po., 1 Rang. 265: A I R. 1923 Rang 190

When an order is made directing an award to be filed, and a decree is passed on such award before an appeal is preferred from the order directing the award to be filed, it has been held that the right of appeal from the order, is not lost and if the Appellate Court set aside the order, the previous decree based on such order is vacated.—Kshetra Nath v. Ushabala, 18 C. W. N. 381; Saudamini v. Gopal, 19 C. W. N. 948; Hari v. Lakshmi, 38 A. 380, 387, Nihal Singh v Khusal Sing, 38 A. 297; Lachminarani v. Sheonath, 42 A. 185; 54 I. C 443.

An appeal lies in case where the reference itself is impugned for want of consent of the parties interested.—Fanindra Nath v. Dwarka Nath, 25 C W. N. 832

Withdrawal of Suit.—An application filed under para. 20 has to be numbered and registered as a suit Such an application can therefore be withdrawn under Or XXIII, r 1 at any time prior to the pronouncement of judgment and preparation of the decree.—Gouri Shankar v. Maida Koer, 31 C. 516.

Exclusion of certain words in the Specific Relief Act, 1877.

22. The last thirty-seven words of section 21 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877, shall not apply to any agreement to refer to arbitration, or to any award, to which the provisions of this schedule apply. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

This para is new

" Shall not apply."—The proviso to section 21 of the Specific Act (I of 1877), of which the last 37 words shall not apply to any agreement to refer to arbitration, is reproduced below " And, save as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure (and the Indian Arbitration Act of 1892), no contract to refer (present or future differences) to arbitration shall be specifically enforced, but if any person who has made such a contract and has refused to perform it, sues in respect of any subject which he has contracted to refer, the existence of such contract shall bar the suit "

The object of exclusion of the last 37 words of section 21 of the Specific Relief Act is to remove the bar whereby a party was precluded from bringing a separate suit in respect of any matter which he has agreed to refer to arbitration Reading this para with the new para 18 it would appear that although an agreement to refer to arbitration cannot be specifically enforced, a suit in respect of any matter agreed to be referred is maintainable, and where such a suit is instituted any party may apply to stay the suit under para 18 by adopting the procedure laid down in para 17 In this connection the exceptions 1 and 2 to section 28 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872) and the case of Bhajahari Shaha v. Behary Lal, 33 C 881 4 C L. J 162, may be consulted See also, Nathu Mal v Muhammad Shafi, 12 P R 1917. 39 I C 349

In the case of Bhajahari Shaha v. Behary Lal, 33 C 881 4 C L J. 162, it has been held that a suit for recovery of possession of land on declaration of plaintiff's right thereto on the basis of an award made by arbitrators appointed by the parties is one to which Art 144 of the Limitation Act, 1877, applies and may be brought within 12 years from the date of the award Such a suit cannot be regarded as a suit for the specific performance of a contract. A valid award is operative even though neither party has sought to enforce it under s. 525, C P. Code, 1882 (r 20) Per Mookerjee, J —As an ordinary rule, a valid award operates to merge and extinguish all claims embraced in the submission, and after it has been made the submission and award furnish the only basis by which the rights of the parties can be determined, and constitute a bar to any action on the original demand From the above case it is quite clear that a party can sue within 12 years for possession of his property, his title to which was declared in the award, although he has not filed any application to enforce the award under rule 20, and that such a suit cannot be regarded as a suit for specific performance of a contract within the meaning of s 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877).

The following rulings under s 21 of the Specific Relief Act and under s 28 of the Indian Contract Act will explain the meaning and object of this rule.

Contract to Refer to Arbitration, If Bars a Suit.—The proviso to s 21 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1871) is intended to prevent persons, who of their own free will entered into contracts to refer matters in controversy to arbitration, from breaking them wilfully and capriciously. The Courts of Equity will not enforce the specific performance of a contract to refer a controversy to arbitration But before this para can be relied on as a bar to a suit upon a contract containing a stipulation that matters in dispute shall be referred to arbitration, it must be shown that the plaintiff has refused to refer to arbitration, and that the filing of the plaint was not such a refusal —Koomud Chunder v. Chunder Kant, 5 C. 498; 5 C L R 264 To bar a suit under s 21 of the Specific Relief Act, a refusal to arbitrate must be before the action is brought —Crisp v Adlard, 23 C 956.

Where parties to a suit have agreed to refer the matters in dispute between them in such suit to arbitration, such an agreement ousts the jurisdiction of the Courts to proceed with the suit, whether it is filed in Court under the provisions of section 523, C P Code, 1882, (r 17).—Sheodat v Sheo Shankar, 27 All 53 (9 A. 168, 4 A. 546 followed).

The wording of s 21 of Specific Relief Act (I of 1877) is wide enough to cover contracts to refer any matter which can legally be referred to arbitration, and one of such matters is a suit proceeding in Court.—Sheomber v Deodat, 9 A 168

THE THIRD SCHEDULE

EXECUTION OF DECREES BY COLLECTORS.

Powers of Collector.

1. Where the execution of a decree has been transferred to the Collector under s. 68, he may—

(a) proceed as the Court would proceed when the sale of immoveable property is postponed in order to enable the judgment-debtor to raise the amount of the decree or

(b) raise the amount of the decree by letting in perpetuity, or for a term, on payment of a premium, or by mortgaging, the whole or any part of the property ordered to be sold; or

(c) sell the property ordered to be sold or so much thereof as may be necessary. [S. 321.]

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to s 321, C P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations The words "when the sale of immoveable property is postponed in order to enable the judgment-debtor to raise the amount of the decree," have been added in cl. (a) after the word "proceed" The other changes are merely verbal

All the paras contained in this Schedule, are subject to the provisions contained in ss 68, 69, 70, 71 and 72 of the Code, so the notes under those sections should be referred to in addition to the cases noted under these rules

Payment by Instalments.—A Collector, to whom a decree for sale of mortgaged property has been transferred for execution under s 68, is limited to one of the three courses specified in this rule, and may not depart from them, much less may he do what the Court itself could not do in such a case—allow payment of the debt to be made by instalments—Mahadaji v Hari, 7 B 332, referred to in 19 M. 435 Nor has the Collector jurisdiction, when mortgaged property is sold under Or XXXIV, r. 12, free of a prior mortgage encumbrance, to settle accounts as to what is due on each mortgage —Abdul Shakur v Muhammad Matadin, 46 A 414: 78 I. C 429 A I R 1924 All 307. When the Collector receives sale proceeds, they are assets held by the Court, and so an application for rateable distribution must be made before receipt of sale proceeds by the Collector.—Dattatraya v. Pundlik, 22 Bom. L R 1001. 58 I. C 902.

2. Where the execution of a decree, not being a decree ordering the sale of immoveable property in pursuance of a contract specifically affecting the same, but being a decree for the payment of money in satisfaction of which the Court has ordered the sale of immoveable property, has been so transferred, the Collector if, after such inquiry as he thinks necessary, he has reason to believe that all the liabilities of the judgment-debtor can be discharged without a sale of the whole of his available immoveable property, may proceed as hereinafter provided. [S. 322.]

Procedure of Collector in special cases.

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to s 322, C P Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations only

Held, that the assignees of a decree for money obtained against a person whose property had been taken over by the Collector under s 72, whilst such property was under the management of the Collector, were not entitled to be placed on the list of creditors prepared by the Collector under this para, and that, in any case application to be placed on the said list of creditors should have been made to the Collector and not to the District Judge—Murari Das v Collector of Ghazipur, 18 A. 313.

3. (1) In any such case as is referred to in paragraph 2, the Collector shall publish a notice, allowing a period of sixty days from the date of its publication for compliance and calling upon—

Notice to be given to decree-holders and to persons having claims on property.

(a) every person holding a decree for the payment of money against the judgment-debtor capable of execution by sale of his immoveable property and which such decree-holder desires to have so executed, and every holder of a decree for the payment of money in execution of which proceedings for the sale of such property are pending, to produce before the Collector a copy of the decree, and a certificate from the Court which passed or is executing the same, declaring the amount recoverable thereunder;

(b) every person having any claim on the said property to submit to the Collector a statement of such claim, and to produce the documents (if any) by which it is evidenced

(2) Such notice shall be published by being affixed on a conspicuous part of the Court-house of the Court which made the original order for sale, and in such other places (if any) as the Collector thinks fit; and where the address of any such decree-holder or claimant is known, a copy of the notice shall be sent to him by post or otherwise. [S. 322-A.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 322-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, with several additions and alterations

In sub-rule (1), the words "allowing a period of sixty days from the date of publication for compliance" have been transposed from the last para of the old section. The alterations have been made by transposition and substitution of words and phrases, as will appear on comparison

Power of Collector to Hear Objections.—Where a decree for money has been transferred for execution to the Collector under the provisions of s 68, the Collector is not authorized under this rule to hear any objection by the parties interested in the property advertised for sale to the sale of that property, nor is it any part of the Collector's duty to decide whether the property has or has not been properly attached.—Onkar Singh v. Mohan Kuar, 20 A 428

Amount of decrees for payment of money to be ascertained, and immoveable property available for their satisfaction.

4. (1) Upon the expiration of the said period, the Collector shall appoint a day for hearing any representations which the judgment-debtor and the decree-holders of claimants (if any) may desire to make, and for holding such inquiry as he may deem necessary for informing himself as to the nature and extent of such decrees and claims and of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, and may, from time to time, adjourn such hearing and inquiry.

(2) Where there is no dispute as to the fact or extent of the liability of the judgment-debtor to any of the decrees or claims of which the Collector is informed, or as to the relative priorities of such decrees or claims, or as to the liability of any such property for the satisfaction of such decrees or claims, the Collector shall draw up a statement, specifying the amount to be recovered for the discharge of such decrees, the order in which such decrees and claims are to be satisfied, and the immoveable property available for that purpose.

(3) Where any such dispute arises, the Collector shall refer the same, with a statement thereof and his own opinion thereon, to the Court which made the original order for sale, and shall pending the reference, stay proceedings relating to the subject thereof. The Court shall dispose of the dispute if the matter thereof is within its jurisdiction, or transmit the case to a competent Court for disposal, and the final decision shall be communicated to the Collector, who shall then draw up a statement as above provided in accordance with such decision. [S. 322-B.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 322-B with some verbal alterations.

"Appeal from decision of a dispute under this rule."—An appeal from the decision of a dispute under s 322-B of the C P. Code, 1882 (this rule), is cognizable as a miscellaneous appeal, i e, an appeal from a decree not passed in a regular suit —Srinivasa Ayyangar v Peria Tambi, 4 M. 420 This case has been dissented from in Ahmad Khan v Madho Das, 7 A. 565, where it has been held that an appeal from the decision of a dispute under s 322-B (this rule) is to be regarded as an appeal from a decree in a suit and not a miscellaneous appeal, and should, therefore, be presented upon an ad valorem stamp See 18 A 313, noted under rule 2.

Where District Court may issue notices and hold inquiry.

5. The Collector may, instead of himself issuing the notices and holding the inquiry required by paragraphs 3 and 4, draw up a statement specifying the circumstances of the judgment-debtor and of his immoveable property so far as they are known to the Collector or appear in the records of his office, and forward such statement to the District Court; and such Court shall thereupon issue the notices, hold the inquiry and draw up the statement required by paragraphs 3 and 4 and transmit such statement to the Collector. [S. 322-C.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 322-C of the C P Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

Effect of decision of Court as to dispute.

6. The decision by the Court of any dispute arising under paragraph 4 or paragraph 5 shall, as between the parties thereto, have the force of and be appealable as a decree. [S. 322-D.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 322-D of the C P Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

Scheme for liquidation of decrees for payment of money.

7. (1) Where the amount to be recovered and the property available have been determined as provided in paragraph 4 or paragraph 5, the Collector may—

(a) if it appears that the amount cannot be recovered without the sale of the whole of the property available, proceed to sell such property; or,

(b) if it appears that the amount with interest (if any) in accordance with the decree, and, when not decreed, with interest (if any) at such rate as he thinks reasonable, may be recovered without such sale, raise such amount and interest (notwithstanding the original order for sale)—

(i) by letting in perpetuity or for a term, on payment of a premium, the whole or any part of the said property; or

(ii) by mortgaging the whole or any part of such property; or

(iii) by selling part of such property; or

(iv) letting on farm, or managing by himself or another, the whole or any part of such property for any term not exceeding twenty years from the date of the order of sale; or

(v) partly by one of such modes, and partly by another or others of such modes.

(2) For the purpose of managing the whole or any part of such property, the Collector may exercise all the powers of its owner.

(3) For the purpose of improving the saleable value of the property available or any part thereof, or rendering it more suitable for letting or managing, or for preserving the property from sale in satisfaction of an incumbrance, the Collector may discharge the claim of any incumbrancer whether it has become payable or not, and, for the purpose of providing funds to effect such discharge or composition, may mortgage, let or sell any portion of the property which he deems sufficient. If any dispute arises as to the amount due on any incumbrance with which the Collector proposes to deal under this clause, he may institute a suit in proper Court, either in his own name or the name of the judgment-debtor, to have an account taken or he may agree to refer such dispute to the decision of two arbitrators, one to be chosen by each party or of an umpire to be named by such arbitrators.

(4) In proceeding under this paragraph the Collector shall be subject to such rules consistent with this Act as may, from time to time, be made in this behalf by the Local Government.
[S. 323.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 323, C P Code, 1882, with some modifications

In sub-rule (4) the words " Local Government " have been substituted for the words " Chief Controlling Revenue Authority " The other alterations are verbal.

The powers under s 323, C P. Code, 1882, conferred on the Collector and those conferred on the Talukdari Settlement Officer by s. 31 of the Talukdari Act (VI of 1888), as amended by Act II of 1905, are both enabling or discretionary and are not necessarily of a mutually contradictory character.—Purusottam v Harbhamji, 33 B 443

Recovery of balance (if any) after letting or management.

8. Where, on the expiration of the letting or management under paragraph 7 the amount to be recovered has not been realized, the Collector shall notify the fact in writing to the judgment-debtor or his representatives in interest, stating at the same time that, if the balance necessary to make up the said amount is not paid to the Collector within six weeks from the date of such notice, he will proceed to sell the whole or a sufficient part of the said property, and, if on the expiration of the said six weeks the said balance is not so paid, the Collector shall sell such property or part accordingly

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s 324, C P Code, 1882, with verbal alterations

Mortgage.—Instead of selling, the Collector may mortgage the property —Bechausang v Naran Moti, 27 Bom L R 217 · 86 I C 810: A I R 1925 Bom. 277

Collector to render accounts to Court.

9. (1) The Collector shall, from time to time, render to the Court which made the original order for sale an account of all monies which come to his hands and of all charges incurred by him in the exercise and performance of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on him under the provisions of this schedule, and shall hold the balance at the disposal of the Court.

(2) Such charges shall include all debts and liabilities from time to time due to the Government in respect of the property or any part thereof, the rent (if any) from time to time due to a superior holder in respect of such property or part, and, if the Collector so directs the expense of any witnesses summoned by him.

(3) The balance shall be applied by the Court—

(a) in providing for the maintenance of such members of the judgment-debtor's family (if any) as are entirely to be maintained out of the income of the property, to such amount in the case of such member as the Court thinks fit; and,

(b) where the Collector has proceeded under paragraph 1, in satisfaction of the original decree in execution of which the Court ordered the sale of immoveable property, or otherwise as the Court may under section 73 direct; or

(c) where the Collector has proceeded under paragraph 2,—

(i) in keeping down the interest on incumbrances on the property;

(ii) where the judgment-debtor has no other sufficient means of subsistence, in providing for his subsistence to such amount as the Court thinks fit; and

(iii) in discharging rateably the claims of the original decree-holder and any other decree-holders who have complied with the said notice, and whose claims were included in the amount ordered to be recovered.

(4) No other holder of a decree for the payment of money shall be entitled to be paid out of such property or balance until the decree-holders who have obtained such order have been satisfied, and the residue (if any) shall be paid to the judgment-debtor or such other person as the Court directs. [S. 324-A.]

COMMENTARY.

This para. corresponds to s 324-A of the C P Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

Collector to Render Accounts.—Though the Collector is bound to render accounts under this rule, he cannot be compelled to deliver the account books in Court This rule also does not require him to pay the balance in Court.—Rupali v. Kalyan Singh, 6 Bom. L R. 825

Sales how to be conducted.

10. Where the Collector sells any property under this schedule, he shall put it up to public auction in one or more lots, as he thinks fit, and may—

(a) fix a reasonable reserved price for each lot;

(b) adjourn the sale for a reasonable time whenever, for reasons to be recorded, he deems the adjournment necessary for the purpose of obtaining a fair price for the property;

(c) buy in the property offered for sale, and re-sell the same by public auction or private contract, as he thinks fit. [S. 325.]

COMMENTARY.

This para corresponds to s 325 of the C P Code, 1882 with verbal alterations

As soon as the Collector has exercised or performed the powers or duties conferred or imposed upon him by ss 321 to 325, C P Code, 1882 (para 1-10), he is functus officio If he has sold the property or re-sold it under the power given by s 325 (c) of that Code, he has completed the execution of the decree so far as he can legally complete it, and it is then his duty to retransmit the decree to the Court under rules prescribed in that behalf by Government under the second paragraph of s 320, C P Code, 1882 —Lallu Trikam v Bhavla Mithia, 11 B 487. See, 18 A 313 under paragraph 2 of this Schedule

Restrictions as to alienation by judgment-debtor or his representative, and prosecution of remedies by decree-holders.

11. (1) So long as the Collector can exercise or perform in respect of the judgment-debtor's immoveable property, or any part thereof, any of the powers or duties conferred or imposed on him by paragraphs 1 to 10, the judgment-debtor or his representative in interest shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate such property or part except with the written permission of the Collector, nor shall any Civil Court issue any process against such property or part in execution of a decree for the payment of money.

(2) During the same period no Civil Court shall issue any process of execution either against the judgment-debtor or his property in respect of any decree for the satisfaction whereof provision has been made by the Collector under paragraph 7.

(3) The same period shall be excluded in calculating the period of limitation applicable to the execution of any decree affected by the provisions of this paragraph in respect of any remedy of which the decree-holder has been temporarily deprived.

[S. 325-A.]

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to s. 325-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

Object of the Para.—The object of Sch. III, para 11, C. P. Code is to protect the debtor as far as possible from the risk of losing his property wholly or for all time and mere attachment before judgment cannot defeat that object, for by such attachment alone the property is not exposed to the risk of such loss; Bansilal v. Sitaram, (1922) Nag 238, 68 I. C. 188.

Restrictions as to Alienation by Judgment-debtor.—A judgment-debtor is incompetent to mortgage his property when a decree against him has been transferred to the Collector for execution and his property is under the management of such Collector. In such a case a mortgage by him is absolutely void and not merely void as against the Collector and those claiming under him.—Gourishanker v. Chinnumaya, 46 C. 183 (Magniram v. Bakubai 36 B. 510, dissented from). See also, Ganga Prasad v. Ganga Baksh, 29 A. 415 A. W. N. (1907) 112. It is, however, competent to the judgment-debtor to transfer his property after the decree is satisfied by him and the fact of such adjustment is intimated by him to the Collector.—Kushal Chand v. Nandram, 35 B. 516.

Held, that the judgment-debtor was incompetent to make the transfer as until the sale by the Collector was confirmed, his power and duties under Sch. III, para 11, C. P. Code had not ceased and until then the property was under his management.—Mahadeo v. Krishnaji, 16 N. L. R. 194, 60 I. C. 310.

"Shall be incompetent to mortgage, charge, lease or alienate."—A mortgage by a judgment-debtor of his property, while it is under the management of the Collector, to whom decrees against the judgment-debtor have been transferred for execution, is absolutely void, and not merely void as against the Collector and those claiming under him—

Gaurishankar v. Chinumaya, 45 I. A. 219: 46 C 183: 48 I. C. 312; Tikaram v. Narayan, 92 I. C. 44: A I. R. 1926 Nag. 246.

Limitation.—When the property of the judgment-debtor was taken under management by the Collector and released more than 12 years after the date of the decree, that period was excluded in the computation of limitation both under the Limitation Act and under section 48 of the Code.—Shayam Karan v. Collector of Benares, 42 A. 118: 52 I. C. 742.

The word "alienate" contemplates a transfer which is to take effect immediately and not after death. A disposition of property by will does not therefore come under its purview, Muhammad Sayed v. Muhammad Ismail, 33 A. 233: 8 I. C. 834

The last clause of the first paragraph of s 325-A, C. P Code, 1882, (para. 11), prevents a Civil Court in execution of a decree for money from issuing any process against the judgment-debtor's immoveable property in the hands of the Collector.—Girdhar Das v Har Shankar, 20 A. 383, p 385.

"The same period shall be excluded in calculating the period of limitation."—The presentation of a darkhast for execution by one of the surviving coparceners of the deceased decree-holder cannot be said to be invalid so as to render the proceedings before the Collector invalid and so as to prevent the deduction of the time mentioned in sub-para. (3) of para 11 of the Third Schedule of the Code.—Madhav Prabhakar v Balaji Govind, A I R 1927 Bom 123 29 Bom L R 75

Provision where property is in several districts.

12. Where the property of which the sale has been ordered is situate in more districts than one, the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Collector by paragraphs 1 to 10 shall be exercised and performed by such one of the Collectors of the said districts as the Local Government may by general rule or special order direct. THE HIGH COURTS ACT OR THE CHARTER ACT, 1861

An Act for Establishing High Courts of Judicature in India (1)

(24 & 25 Vict., C. 104); (6th August 1861).

[Repealed and re-enacted with slight modifications by the Government of India Act, 1915 (5 & 6 Geo. V, C. 61.)

Be it enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same as follows:—

High Courts may be established in the several Presidencies of India.

1. It shall be lawful for Her Majesty, by Letters Patent under the great Seal of the United Kingdom to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, aforesaid, and by like Letters Patent to erect and establish like High Courts at Madras and Bombay for those Presidencies respectively. Such High Courts to be established in the said several Presidencies at such time or respective times as to Her Majesty may seem fit and the High Court to be established under any such Letters Patent in any of the said Presidencies shall be deemed to be established from and after the publication of such Letters Patent in the same Presidency, or such other time as in such Letters Patent may be appointed in this behalf

Constitution of High Courts.

2. The High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal and at the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, respectively shall consist of a Chief Justice and as many Judges not exceeding fifteen as Her Majesty may, from time to time, think fit and appoint who shall be selected from—

1st. Barristers of not less than five years standing, or

2nd. Members of the Covenanted Civil Service of not less than ten years' standing and who shall have served as Zillah Judges or shall have exercised the like powers as those of a Zillah Judge for at least three years of that period; or—

---

(1) By the terms of this Act the exercise of jurisdiction in any part of Her Majesty's Indian Territories by the High Courts was meant to be subject to, and not exclusive of, the general legislative power of the Governor-General in Council. An exercise of legislative authority by the Governor-General in Council whereby any place or territory is removed from the jurisdiction of the High Courts is one expressly contemplated by this Statute, and by the Letters Patent issued under it—Empress v. Burah (1879) 4 C. 172, L. R. 5 I. A. 178

3rd Persons who have held judicial Office not inferior to that of Principal Sudder Ameen or Judge of a Small Cause Court for a period of not less than five years; or

4th. Persons who have been Pleaders of a Sudder Court or a High Court for a period of not less than ten years if such Pleaders of a Sudder Court shall have been admitted as Pleaders of a High Court.

Provided that not less than one-third of the Judges of such High Courts, respectively, including the Chief Justice, shall be Barristers, and not less than one-third shall be Members of the Covenanted Civil Service

Certain existing Judges herein named to be the first Judges of the High Court.

3. Provided always that the persons who at the time of the establishment of such High Court in any of the said Presidencies, are Judges of Supreme Court of Judicature and permanent Judges of the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut or Sudder Adawlut of the same Presidency shall be and become Judges of such High Court without further appointment for that purpose, and the Chief Justice of such Supreme Court shall become the Chief Justice of such High Court.

Tenure of Office of High Courts.

4. All the Judges of the High Courts established under this Act shall hold their offices during Her Majesty's pleasure provided that it shall be lawful for any Judge of a High Court to resign such office of Judge to the Governor-General of India in Council or Governor in Council of the Presidency in which such High Court is established.

Precedence of Judges of High Court.

5. The Chief Justice of any such High Court shall have rank and precedence before the other Judges of the same Court and such of the other Judges of such Court as on its establishment shall have been transferred thereto from the Supreme Court shall have rank and precedence before the Judges of the High Court not transferred from the Supreme Court and except as aforesaid, all the Judges of each High Court shall have rank and precedence according to the seniority of their appointments unless otherwise provided in their Patents.

Salaries, etc., of Judges of the High Courts.

6. Any Chief Justice or Judge, transferred to any High Court from the Supreme Court, shall receive the like salary, and be entitled to the like retiring pension and advantage as he would have been entitled to for and in respect of service in the Supreme Court, if such Court had been continued, his service in the High Court being reckoned as service in the Supreme Court and except as aforesaid it shall be lawful for the Secretary of State in Council of India to fix the salaries, allowances, furloughs, retiring pensions, and (when necessary) expenses for equipment and voyage of the Chief Justices and Judges of the several High Courts under this Act, and from time to time to alter the same Provided always such alteration shall not affect the salary of any Judge appointed prior to the date thereof

Provision for vacancy of the office of Chief Justice or other Judge.

7. Upon the happening of a vacancy in the office of Chief Justice and during any absence of a Chief Justice, the Governor-General in Council or Governor in Council, as the case may be, shall appoint one of the Judges of the same High Court to perform the duties of Chief Justice of the said Court until some person has been appointed by Her Majesty to the office of Chief Justice of the same Court, and has entered on the discharge of the duties of such office, or until the Chief Justice has returned from such absence, and upon the happening of a vacancy in the office of any other Judge of any such High Court and during any absence of any such Judge or on the appointment of any such Judge to act as Chief Justice, it shall be lawful for the Governor-General in Council or Governor in Council, as the case may be, to appoint a person, with such qualifications as are required in persons to be appointed to the High Court to act as a Judge of the said High Court, and the person so appointed shall be authorised to sit and to perform the duties of a Judge of the said Court until some person has been appointed by Her Majesty to the office of Judge of the same Court, and has entered on the discharge of the duties of such office, or until the absent Judge has returned from such absence, or until the Governor-General in Council or Governor in Council as aforesaid, shall see cause to cancel the appointment of such acting Judge

Abolition of Supreme Courts and Sudder Courts.

8. Upon the establishment of such High Court as aforesaid in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal, the Supreme Court and the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut and Sudder Nizamut Adawlut at Calcutta, in the same Presidency, shall be abolished

And upon the establishment of such High Court in the Presidency of Madras, the Supreme Court and the Court of the Sudder Adawlut and Foujdarry Adawlut in the same Presidency shall be abolished:

And upon the establishment of such High Court in the Presidency of Bombay, the Supreme Court and the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut and Sudder Foujdarry Adawlut in the same Presidency shall be abolished:

And the records and documents of the several Courts so abolished in each Presidency shall become, and be, records and documents of the High Court established in the same Presidency

Jurisdiction and powers of High Courts.

9. Each of the High Courts to be established under this Act shall have and exercise all such Civil, Criminal, Admiralty, and Vice-Admiralty, Testamentary, Intestate, and Matrimonial Jurisdiction, original and appellate and all such powers and authority for, and in relation to, the administration of justice in the Presidency for which it is established, as Her Majesty may by such Letters Patent as aforesaid, grant and direct subject, however, to such directions and limitations as to the exercise of original, civil and criminal jurisdiction beyond the limits of the Presidency Towns as may be prescribed thereby, and save as by such Letters Patent may be otherwise directed, and subject and without prejudice to the legislative powers in relation to the matters aforesaid of the Governor-General of India in Council, the High Court to be established in each Presidency shall have and exercise all jurisdiction and every power and authority whatsoever in any manner vested in any of the Courts in the same Presidency abolished under this Act at the time of the abolition of such last-mentioned Courts

High Courts to exercise same jurisdiction as Supreme Courts.

[10. Until the Crown shall otherwise provide under the powers of this Act all jurisdiction now exercised by the Supreme Courts of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, respectively, over inhabitants of such parts of India as may not be comprised within the local limits of the Letters Patent to be issued under this Act establishing High Courts at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, shall be exercised by such High Courts, respectively.]

[Repealed by 28 Vict., c. 15, s. 2.]

11. Upon the establishment of the said High Courts in the said Presidencies respectively, all provisions then in force in India of Acts of Parliament or of any Orders of Her Majesty in Council, or Charters, or of any Acts of the Legislature of India which at the time or respective times of the establishment of such High Courts are respectively applicable to the Supreme Courts at Fort William in Bengal, Madras and Bombay, respectively, or to the Judges of those Courts shall be taken to be applicable to the said High Courts and the Judges thereof respectively, so far as may be consistent with the provisions of this Act, and the Letters Patent to be issued in pursuance thereof, and subject to the legislative powers in relation to the matters aforesaid of the Governor-General of India in Council

Existing provisions applicable to Supreme Courts to apply to High Courts.

12. From and after the abolition of the Courts abolished as aforesaid in any of the said Presidencies, the High Court of the same Presidency shall have jurisdiction over all proceedings pending in such abolished Courts at the time of the abolition thereof, and such proceedings and all previous proceedings in the said last-mentioned Courts shall be dealt with as if the same had been had in the said High Court, save that any such proceedings may be continued, as nearly as circumstances permit, under and according to the practice of the abolished Courts respectively

Provisions as to pending proceedings in abolished Courts.

13. Subject to any laws or regulations which may be made by the Governor-Genral in Council, the High Courts established in any Presidency under this Act may, by its own rules, provide for the exercise, by one or more Judges or by Division Courts constituted by two or more Judges of the said High Court of the original and appellate jurisdiction vested in such Court, in such manner as may appear to such Court to be convenient for the due administration of justice

Power to High Courts to provide for exercise of jurisdiction by single Judges or Division Courts

14. The Chief Justice of each High Court shall, from time to time, determine what Judge in each case shall sit alone, and what Judges of the Court, whether with or without the Chief Justice, shall constitute the several Division Courts as aforesaid.

Chief Justice to determine what Judges shall sit alone or in the Division Courts.

15. Each of the High Courts established under this Act shall have superintendence over all Courts which may be subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and shall have power to call for returns, and to direct the transfer of any suit or appeal from any such Court to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction, and shall have power to make and issue general rules for regulating the practice and proceedings of such Courts, and also to prescribe forms for every proceeding in the said Court for which it shall think necessary that a form be provided, and also for

High Court to superintend and to frame rules of practice for Subordinate Courts keeping all books, entries, and accounts to be kept by the officers and also to settle tables of fees to be allowed to the Sheriff, Attorneys, and all clerks and officers of Courts and from time to time to alter any such rule or form or table; and the rules so made and the forms so framed, and the tables so settled, shall be used and observed in the said Court, provided that such general rules and forms and tables be not inconsistent with the provisions of any law in force, and shall before they are issued, have received the sanction, in the Presidency of Fort William of the Governor-General in Council, and in Madras or Bombay, of the Governor in Council of the respective Presidencies

Her Majesty may establish a High Court in the North-Western Provinces.

16. It shall be lawful for Her Majesty, if at any time hereafter Her Majesty sees fit so to do, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature in and for any portion of the territories within Her Majesty's dominions in India, not included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court, to consist of a Chief Justice and of such number of other Judges with such qualifications as are required in persons to be appointed to the High Courts established at the Presidencies hereinbefore mentioned, as Her Majesty from time to time, may think fit and appoint; and it shall be lawful for Her Majesty by such Letters Patent to confer on such Court any such jurisdiction, powers, and authority as under this Act is authorized to be conferred on or will become vested in the High Court to be established in any Presidency hereinbefore mentioned, and, subject to the directions of such Letters Patent all the provisions of this Act having reference to the High Court established in any such Presidency, and to the Chief Justice and other Judges of such Court, and to the Governor-General or Governor of the Presidency in which such High Court is established, shall as far as circumstances may permit, be applicable to the High Court established, in the said territories, and to the Chief Justice and other Judges thereof, and to the person administering the Government of the said territories.

Other or supplementary Charters may be granted within three years after establishment of a Court.

17. It shall be lawful for Her Majesty, if Her Majesty shall so think fit, at any time within three years after the establishment of any High Court under this Act by Her Letters Patent, to revoke all or such parts or provisions as Her Majesty may think fit, of the Letters Patent by which such Court was established and to grant and make such other powers and provisions as Her Majesty may think fit and as might have been granted or made by such first Letters Patent, or, without any such revocation as aforesaid, by like Letters Patent to grant and make any additional or supplementary powers and provisions which might have been granted or made in the first instance Territorial limits of jurisdiction of Court may be altered by order in Council.

18. It shall be lawful for Her Majesty from time to time, by Her Order in Council, to transfer any territory or place from the jurisdiction of one to the jurisdiction of any other of the High Courts established under this Act and generally to alter and determine the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the said several Courts as to Her Majesty, with the advice of Her Privy Council, may seem meet.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915.

An Act to Consolidate Enactments relating to the Government of India.

(29th July 1915.)

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

* * * * *

Part IX.

The Indian High Courts.

Constitution.

101. [Ch. Act, ss. 2, 19.]—(1) The High Courts referred to in this Act are the High Courts of judicature for the time being established in British India by Letters Patent.

Constitution of High courts.

(2) Each High Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and as many other Judges as His Majesty may think fit to appoint: Provided as follows.—

(i) the Governor-General in Council may appoint persons to act as additional Judges of any High Court, for such period, not exceeding two years, as may be required; and the judges so appointed shall, whilst so acting, have all the powers of a judge of the High Court appointed by His Majesty under this Act;

(ii) the maximum number of judges of a High Court, including the Chief Justice and additional judges, shall be twenty

(3) A Judge of a High Court must be—

(a) a barrister of England or Ireland, or a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland, of not less than five years' standing or

(b) a member of the Indian Civil Service of not less than ten years' standing, and having for at least three years served as, or exercised the powers of a District Judge; or

(c) a person having held judicial office, not inferior to that of a subordinate Judge or a Judge of a Small Cause Court, for a period of not less than five years; or

(d) a person having been a pleader of a High Court for a period of not less than ten years.

(4) Provided that not less than one-third of the Judges of a High Court, including the Chief Justice but excluding additional Judges, must be such Barristers or Advocates as aforesaid, and that not less than one-third must be members of the Indian Civil Service.

(5) The High Court for the North-Western Provinces may be styled the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, and the High Court at Fort William in Bengal is in this Act referred to as the High Court at Calcutta.

Tenure of office of Judges of High Courts.

102. [Ch. Act, s. 4.]—(1) Every Judge of a High Court shall hold his office during His Majesty's pleasure.

(2) Any such Judge may resign his office, in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, to the Governor-General in Council, and in other cases to the local Government.

Precedence of Judges of High Courts.

103. [Ch. Act, s. 5.]—(1) The Chief Justice of a High Court shall have rank and precedence before the other Judges of the same court.

(2) All the other Judges of a High Court shall have rank and precedence according to the seniority of their appointments, unless otherwise provided in their patents.

Salaries, &c., of judges of High Courts.

104. [Ch. Act, s. 6.]—(1) The Secretary of State in Council may fix the salaries, allowances, furloughs, retiring pensions, and (where necessary) expenses for equipment and voyage, for the Chief Justices and other Judges of the several High Courts, and may alter them, but any such alteration shall not affect the salary of any Judge appointed before the date thereof.

(2) The remuneration fixed for a Judge under this section shall commence on his taking upon himself the execution of his office, and shall be the whole profit or advantage which he shall enjoy from his office during his continuance therein.

(3) If a Judge of a High Court dies during his voyage to India, or within six months after his arrival there, for the purpose of taking upon himself the execution of his office, the Secretary of State shall pay to his legal personal representatives, out of the revenues of India, such a sum of money, as will, with the amount received by or due to him at the time of his death on account of salary, make up the amount of one year's salary.

(4) If a Judge of a High Court dies while in possession of his office and after the expiration of six months from his arrival in India for the purpose of taking upon himself the execution of his office, the Secretary of State shall pay to his legal personal representatives, out of the revenues of India, over and above the sum due to him at the time of his death, a sum equal to six months' salary

Provision for vacancy in the office of Chief Justice or other Judge.

105. [Ch. Act., s. 7.]—(1) On the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of Chief Justice of a High Court, and during any absence of such a Chief Justice, the Governor-General in council in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, and the local Government in other cases, shall appoint one of the other Judges of the same High Court to perform the duties of Chief Justice of the Court, until some person has been appointed by His Majesty to the office of Chief Justice of the Court, and has entered on the discharge of the duties of that office, or until the Chief Justice has returned from his absence, as the case requires.

(2) On the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of any other Judge of a High Court and during any absence of any such Judge, or on the appointment of any such Judge to act as Chief Justice the Governor-General in Council in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, and the local Government in other cases, may appoint a person, with such qualifications as are required in persons to be appointed to the High Court, to act as a Judge of the Court; and the person so appointed may sit and perform the duties of a Judge of the Court until some person has been appointed by His Majesty to the office of Judge of the Court, and has entered on the discharge of the duties of the office or until the absent Judge has returned from his absence, or until the Governor-General in Council or the local Government, as the case may be, sees cause to cancel the appointment of the acting Judge, Jurisdiction.

Jurisdiction of High Courts

106. [Ch. Act, s. 9.]—(1) The several High Courts are Courts of record and have such jurisdiction, original and appellate, including admiralty jurisdiction in respect of offences committed on the high seas, and all such powers and authority over or in relation to the administration of justice, including power to appoint clerks and other ministerial officers of the Court, and power to make rules for regulating the practice of the Court, as are vested in them by Letters patent, and, subject to the provisions of any such Letters Patent, all such jurisdiction, powers and authority as are vested in those Courts respectively at the commencement of this Act.

(2) [21 Geo. 3, c. 70.]—The High Courts have not and may not exercise any original jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue, or concerning any act ordered or done in the collection thereof according to the usage and practice of the country or the law for the time being in force.

Powers of High Court with respect to subordinate courts.

107. [Ch. Act, s. 15.]—Each of the High Courts has superintendence over all courts for the time being subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and may do any of the following things, that is to say,—

(a) call for returns;

(b) direct the transfer of any suit or appeal from any such Court to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction;

(c) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such Courts;

(d) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such Courts; and

(e) settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff, attorneys, and all clerks and officers of Courts :

Provided that such rules, forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of any Act for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval, in the case of the High Court at Calcutta, of the Governor-General in Council, and in other cases of the local Government.

Exercise of jurisdiction by single judges or division courts.

108. [Ch. Act, ss. 13, 14.]—(1) Each High Court may by its own rules provide as it thinks fit for the exercise, by one or more Judges, or by division Courts constituted by two or more Judges of the High Court of the original and appellate jurisdiction vested in the Court.

(2) The Chief Justice of the High Court shall determine what Judge in each case is to sit alone, and what Judges of the Court, whether with or without the Chief Justice, are to constitute the several division Courts.

Power of Governor-General in Council to alter local limits of Jurisdiction of High Courts.

109. [28 & 29 Vict., c. 15, ss. 3, 4, 6.]—(1) The Governor-General in Council may, by order, transfer any territory or place from the jurisdiction of one to the jurisdiction of any other of the High Courts, and authorise any High Court to exercise all or any portion of its jurisdiction in any part of British India not included within the limits for which the High Court was established, and also to exercise any such jurisdiction in respect of Christian subjects of His Majesty resident in any part of India outside British India.

(2) The Governor-General in Council shall transmit to the Secretary of State an authentic copy of every order made under this section.

(3) His Majesty may signify, through the Secretary of State in Council, his disallowance of any such order, and such disallowance shall make void and annul the order as from the day on which the Governor-General notifies that he has received intimation of the disallowance, but no act done by any High Court before such notification shall be deemed invalid by reason only of such disallowance.

110. [13 Geo. III, c. 63, ss. 15, 17; 21 Geo. III, c. 70, s. I; 37 Geo. III, c. 142. s. 11; 39 & 40, Geo. III c. 79, s. 3; 4 Geo. IV, c. 41, s. 7.]—(1) The Governor-General, each Governor, and each of the members of their respective executive councils, shall not—

Exemption from Jurisdiction of High Court.

(a) be subject to the original jurisdiction of any High Court by reason of anything counselled, ordered or done by any of them in his public capacity only; nor

(b) be liable to be arrested or imprisoned in any suit or proceeding in any High Court acting in the exercise of its original jurisdiction; nor

(c) be subject to the original criminal jurisdiction of any High Court in respect of any offence not being treason or felony.

(2) The exemption under this section from liability to arrest and imprisonment shall extend also to the Chief Justices and other Judges of the several High Courts.

111. [21 Geo. III, c. 70, ss. 2, 3, 4.]—The order in writing of the Governor-General in Council for any act shall, in any proceeding, civil or criminal, in any High Court acting in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, be a full justification of the act, except so far as the order extends to any European British subject; but nothing in this section shall exempt the Governor-General, or any member of his executive council, or any person acting under their orders, from any proceedings in respect of any such act before any competent Court in England.

Written order by Governor-General—Justification for act in any court in India.

Law to be administered.

112. [21 Geo. III, c. 70, s. 17; 37 Geo. III, c. 142, s. 13.]—The High Courts at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, in the exercise of their original jurisdiction in suits against inhabitants of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, as the case may be, shall, in matters of inheritance and succession to lands, rents and goods, and in matters of contract and dealing between party and party, when both parties are subject to the same personal law or custom having the force of law, decide according to that personal law or custom, and when the parties are subject to different personal laws or customs having the force of law, decide according to the law or custom to which the defendant is subject.

Law to be administered in cases of inheritance and succession.

Additional High Courts.

113. His Majesty may, if he sees fit, by Letters Patent, establish a High Court of Judicature in any territory in British India, whether or not included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court and confer on any High Court so established any such jurisdiction, powers and authority as are vested in or may be conferred on any High Court existing at the commencement of this Act; and where a High Court is so established in any area included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court, His Majesty may, by Letters Patent, alter those limits, and make such incidental, consequential and supplemental provisions as may appear to be necessary by reason of the alteration.

Power to establish additional High Courts.

Advocate-General.

114. [53 Geo. III, c. 155, s. III; 21 & 22 Vict., c. 106, s. 29]—(1) His Majesty may, by warrant under His Royal Sign Manual, appoint an Advocate-General for each of the presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay Appointment and powers of Advocate-General.

(2) The Advocate-General for each of those presidencies may take on behalf of His Majesty such proceedings as may be taken by His Majesty's Attorney-General in England.

DESPATCH THE FROM SECRETARY OF STATE.

SIR CHARLES WOOD'S DESPATCH ACCOMPANING THE FIRST LETTERS PATENT OR CHARTER.

Judicial, No. 24.

INDIA OFFICE,

London, 14th May, 1862.

To

HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONOURABLE
THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL

MY LORD,

I HEREWITH transmit to you the Letters Patent or Charter (2), under the Royal Sign Manual, for the High Court of Judicature to be established in Bengal in accordance with the provisions of the Act 24 and 25 Victoria, Chapter 104, for establishing High Court of Judicature in India and request that you will take immediate measure for instituting the Court, the first Judges of which, including those appointed under the 3rd section of the Act, are designated in the second clause of the Charter Those appointed by the Crown will be severally informed by me of their appointments to the Court

2. This Charter will accomplish the great object which has so long been contemplated, of substituting for the Supreme and Sudder Courts abolished by the Act of High Court of Judicature, possessing the combined powers and authorities of the abolished Courts and exercising jurisdiction both over the Provinces under the Sudder Court and over the Presidency Town which forms the local jurisdiction of the Supreme Court

3. Before I review the provisions in detail, it is necessary that I should direct your attention to the general scope and main provisions of the Act in question.

4. It abolishes, in the first place (as soon as the Charter shall issue), the Supreme Court and the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut. It vests in the High Court (by the last provision of section 9) the powers and authorities of those Courts respectively, except so far as the Crown may by such Charter otherwise direct. And (by the first part of the same section) it invests the High Court with such Civil, Criminal, Admiralty, Vice-Admiralty, Testamentary, Intestate and Matrimonial Jurisdiction, and all such powers and authority in relation to the administration of justice in the Presidency, as the same Charter may confer. With respect, therefore, to the fusion of the Supreme and Sudder Courts, it

(2) The Letters Patent, dated the 14th May, 1862, forwarded with this despatch were afterwards revoked by further Letters Patent, dated 28th December, 18[illegible] for which see post appears obvious that the Act itself speaks, and that to assume and effect the same purpose by affirmative declaration in the Charter would be superfluous. It has been, consequently, deemed unnecessary that the Charter should exhibit on the face of it an explicit statement of the powers and jurisdiction to be possessed by the new Court in consequence of the fusion as would have been the proper course if these powers and jurisdiction had been entirely new. Recourse has been had in some places in lieu of such explicit statement to reference to statutory provisions, and in others, to the Charter of the Supreme Court when the object of clearness appeared to require it. But wherever the Charter does not otherwise specify, the High Court will use the powers and administer the jurisprudence appertaining to those Courts respectively to whose authority it now succeeds

5. But the Charter is intended positively to declare all such Civil, Criminal and other jurisdictions above specified as the Crown thinks proper by this Charter to confer on it supplementary or additional to its main purpose, namely, the fusion of the aforesaid Courts.

6. Moreover, the words giving authority to confer on the Court such jurisdiction and such powers and authorities for the administration of justice as the Crown may direct, appear very large and such as, in point of fact, invest the Crown with extensive legislative powers, so far as "the administration of justice," within the meaning of the sections, may require It has been, however, thought best to use this power very sparingly and simply as ancillary to the real purpose of the Act, namely, the establishment of new Courts.

7. Another reason for the form which the present Letters Patent assume, is to be found in the provisions of section 17 of the Act of last Sessions By that section power is given to the Crown to recall the Letters Patent establishing the Court at any time within three years after its establishment, and to grant other Letters Patent in their stead. This provision was inserted in the Act, mainly with the view of enabling Her Majesty's Government to avail themselves of the advice and assistance of the Judges of the Court in framing the more perfect Charter by which the jurisdiction and authority of the Court is to be permanently fixed On this point, I request you will put yourselves in communication with the Judges of the Court, and, at any time previous to the expiration of two years from the date of establishment of the Court, furnish me with any suggestions they make, or any amendments they may propose in the Letters Patent now transmitted, and I shall be glad if, in proposing alterations, the Judges will put their recommendations as nearly as possible in the form in which they wish them to appear in the future Letters Patent.

8. I proceed to notice, in order, such of the provisions of the Charter as appear to me call for special remark.

9. By clause 6, power is given to the Chief Justice to appoint the officers of the Court, and to fix their salaries subject, however, in both cases, to the approval and confirmation of the Governor-General in Council.

Clause 6.

This provision does not refer to the settling of tables of fees, where fees are allowed, which, under section 15 of the Act, is required to be done by the Court.

10. The Supreme Court exercise an authority entirely independent of the Government in regard to its ministerial officers The Government, however, has always considered itself at liberty to receive representations from any of the officers of the Sudder or Subordinate Courts who felt themselves aggrieved by the orders of the Judicial Authorities, and to express its opinion on the propriety or otherwise of the proceedings of the Courts in such cases It will be expedient for you to take the question into your consideration, and, after communication with the Court, to adopt some rule in regard to it, which of course must be uniformly applicable to all the officers of the Court Constituted as the High Court will be, it will merit all the confidence you can repose in it; but as a question of policy, the extension of the liberty of application to the Government to those who have not hitherto enjoyed it appears to me preferable to taking it away from those who have heretofore been permitted to avail themselves of it, as a mode of obtaining redress against proceedings alleged by the applicants to be unjust and oppressive.

Clauses 7-10.

11. In regard to the admission of Advocates, Vakeels, and Attorneys, the recommendations of the Law Commissioners have been followed. Under the existing practice, the Advocate pleads, and the Attorney acts, for the suitors of the Supreme Court and the Vakeel both pleads and acts for the suitors of the Sudder Court, of which Court the Advocate and Attorney of the Supreme Court are ex-officio Vakeels. These terms are employed in the Charter simply to express the functions of these several classes of practitioners The Advocate and Attorney will respectively plead and act in the High Court and the Vakeel will both plead and act in the High Court as he did in the Sudder Court. Any person may apply to be admitted either as an Advocate, or Vakeel, or Attorney under the rules which the Court is authorized by the Charter to make, and there is nothing in the Charter to prevent the admission of Advocates and Attorneys to be also Vakeels of the High Court, should the Judges consider such a course to be expedient.

12. The provisions in the Act, section 2, clause 4, which declares that Pleaders of the Sudder Court, "who shall have been admitted as Pleaders of the High Court," shall be eligible, under certain conditions, to the Bench of the Court, implies that a discretionary power may be exercised as to the admission of the present Pleaders of the Sudder Court to the Bar of the High Court. This enactment will account to you for the omision from the Charter of any provision appointing all the present practitioners of the Supreme and Sudder Courts to the High Court. I conclude, however, that unless in any special cases, there are strong reasons to the contrary, the Court will admit the whole of the practitioners in the abolished Courts at the date of their abolition, to be the first Advocates, Vakeels, and Attorneys of the High Court.

Clause 10.

13. With reference to the concluding sentence of clause 10, it is to be observed that the Letters Patent contain no provision reserving to the Attorneys of the present Supreme Court the right of pleading after the issue of this Charter, in the Insolvent Court, as newly regulated by clause 17. No such provision, however, is necessary, as the Insolvent Court is a separate tribunal not affected by the Act authorising the Letters Patent and will continue a separate Court though, for the future, presided over by a Judge of the High Court. The Attorneys, therefore, will, as heretofore, practice in accordance with the rules of the Insolvent Court itself.

14. By the important provisions contained in the clauses of the Charter, 11 to 38 inclusive, effect is given to the 9th section of the Act, respecting the jurisdictions and powers to be exercised by the High Court.

Civil Jurisdiction, Clause 11.

15. The original civil jurisdiction now exercised by the Supreme Court within the limits of the Presidency Town will henceforth be exercised under the Charter, by the High Court, including in that term (Clause 36 of the Charter) a Judge or Division Court of the High Court, appointed or constituted under the provisions of the 13th section of the Act

16. As it is very desirable that every suit should be instituted in the Court of the district in which the property forming the subject of dispute is situated, or in which the cause of action has its origin, or in which the defendant resides or carries on business, the jurisdiction hitherto exercised by the Supreme Court (on the ground of constructive inhabitancy or otherwise) over persons and property beyond the local limits of the Presidency Town, but within the limits of the Presidency or Division subject to the authority of the High Court has not been vested in the High Court. The concluding provision of clause 11 provides that the exercise of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the Court shall be confined to the local limits of the Presidency Town, with power, however, to the Court, under clause 13, to call for and try any suit instituted in any Court subject to its superintendence, when, for reasons to be recorded, it shall think proper to do so

Clause 12.

17. The terms of clause 12, defining the original jurisdiction of the High Court as to suits, are nearly similar to those employed in section 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act VIII of 1859), and are intended to include every description of case over which the Mofussil Courts have jurisdiction. By the 8th section of the 21st George III, C 70, the Supreme Court is precluded from exercising any jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue. Further, a decision* of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, pronounced in April 1856, ruled against the exercise of the Ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in matters matrimonial between others than Christians, and even expressed some hesitation as to whether that Court should administer a remedy in such cases on the Civil side It is one object of the present Charter to do away with all such restrictions and limitations as far as this can be done without trenching on the proper province of legislation. It has, therefore, been sought to invest the High Court, in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, with as ample powers in receiving and determining cases of every description, and in applying a remedy to every wrong as are exercised by the Courts not established by Royal Charter, and thus to place the Courts of first instance in the Presidency Towns and in the interior of the country in this respect, as nearly as may be, on the same footing.

*Ardaseer Cursetji v. Perozeboye.

* Reported in 6 Moo. I. A. 348.

18. I shall be glad to be furnished with your opinion, after consultation with the Judges of the Courts, as to the concluding portion of clause 12, excluding the jurisdiction of the Court in regard to cases falling within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court of Calcutta, in which the debt or damage or value of the property sued for does not exceed 100 Rupees Hitherto, I believe, there has been no tendency to bring into the Supreme Court cases cognizable by the Small Cause Court; but should it appear that under the new system, the time of the High Court is unnecessarily taken up with trying cases which might be instituted in the Small Cause Court, it may become a question for consideration whether the sum, excluding the jurisdiction of the High Court, might not be raised to, say, 300 or 500 Rupees.

19. It has been suggested that the Small Cause Court should be placed on the same footing as a Zillah Court in its subjection to the High Court as a Court of appeal and general superintendence. But I do not consider that it was the purpose of the Act of Parliament of last Session that the Crown, in framing a Charter under it for the High Court, should interfere with the present position and jurisdiction of other and independent Courts This subject, if desirable, is properly to be attained by legislation. Should you be of opinion that the Small Cause Court ought to be placed in the same relation to the High Court as any other Court subject to its appellate jurisdiction and general control, the measure can be carried into effect by an Act of the Governor-General in Council

Clause 13.

20. As already observed, the effect of clause 12 will be to confine the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court within narrower limits than the Civil jurisdiction exercised by the Supreme Court. By clause 13, however, the High Court is empowered to call for and to try, as a Court of first instance, any suit which the law requires to be instituted before some other tribunal. By the exercise of the power thus conferred on it, the High Court will be enabled to obviate all reasonable ground of complaint, when it shall deem that any hardship or injustice is likely to result from the compulsory institution in a Zillah Court of a suit which, but for the change in the system, might have been instituted in the Supreme Court.

21. The introduction of the words " whether within or without the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William " in this and in several other clauses, may appear to require explanation The Court about to be established is called in section 2 of the Act, 24 and 25 Victoria, C. 104, a Court " for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William." That title is of course preserved in the Charter. By section 8, the Supreme and Sudder Courts are abolished and by section 9 all their jurisdiction, power, and authority, except when otherwise provided, are vested in the High Court. But the Supreme Court has various original jurisdictions, extending over the whole of the Presidency of Fort William, and also over some of the Non-Regulation Provinces under the Government of India, and the Sudder Court has various appellate jurisdictions extending over the Bengal Division of the Presidency, and also over the Province of Assam and others, which are not properly parts of the Presidency. The result is, that the High Court " for the Bengal Division," succeeding to the powers of both the Supreme and the Sudder Courts, has, in several respects, jurisdictions in territories not within the Bengal Division As this is the result of the Act, it might not have been necessary to notice it in the Charter. But for the sake of clearness, and in order to show distinctly that the Charter is meant to apply to these extra local jurisdictions, as well as to the strictly local jurisdiction within the Bengal Division, it has been deemed advisable to introduce these words.

22. Clauses 14 and 15 give effect to the recommendation of the Law Commissioners, that the High Court shall have all the appellate jurisdiction which is now exercised by the Sudder Dewany Adawlut, and a new appellate jurisdiction in civil cases, from the Courts of original jurisdiction, constituted by one or more of its own Judges, except that in the case of a decision which has been passed by a majority of the full number of the judges of the Court, the appeal shall lie to Her Majesty in Council.

Clauses 14 and 15.

23. It will appear, from a subsequent clause on the Letters Patent, that the proceedings in the High Court in civil cases are to be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure enacted by the Legislature of India, of which Act XXIII of 1861 forms a part By section 23 of the last mentioned Indian Act, provision has been made for a difference of opinion on the hearing of an appeal. A difficulty, however, may occur when two Judges, constituting a Division Court for the trial of cases in the exercise of original jurisdiction, differ as to the judgment to be given For such a case, the Code of Civil Procedure, which is adapted to Courts of first instance presided over by single Judges only, contains no provision. To call in a third Judge, and to re-try the case, with a view to a judgment from which there may be an appeal to the High Court under clause 14 would be productive of unnecessary delay and expense to the parties; and I am of opinion that the Court should make provision for such a contingency, by a rule made under the 13th section of the Act of Parliament, providing either that the judgment shall be in accordance with the opinion of the senior of the Judges constituting the Division Court, or that the final judgment shall be entered pro forma, according to such opinion, such judgment being a judgment for the purpose of an appeal against the same, but not for any other purpose.

24. The substantive civil law to be administered by the High Court within the jurisdiction of the Supreme and Sudder Courts, respectively, will, until otherwise provided, continue as at present. This, as I have said, it was no part of the purpose of the Act of Parliament or Charter to effect And the clauses on which I am now commenting are probably superfluous. But they have been introduced to obviate any apprehension which might have been entertained that in fusing the two Courts together, it was intended to fuse also the law which they have respectively hitherto administered, and thus to make a substantial innovation, not only in the tribunals for administration of the law but of the law itself. I trust, however, that measures may be taken ere long for effecting great improvements in this respect, by enacting for the British possessions in India a body of substantive law, by which all classes shall be governed, and all transactions shall be regulated except in cases to which our Judicatures are required to apply the personal laws of any classes of our Indian subjects.

Clauses 18, 19 and 20.

25. Under clauses 21, 22, and 38, no change will be effected by the Charter in the administration of criminal justice in the Presidency Town or in respect of persons subject to its criminal jurisdiction, residing in the interior of the country. It

Clauses 21, 22 and 38.

36. Clause 37 is a very important one, and there is little doubt, will prove a very salutary provision It has, therefore, been inserted, although the change introduced is somewhat greater and more substantial than is generally aimed at in this Charter It extends to the High Court the Code of Civil Procedure enacted by the Legislature of India for the Court, not established by Royal Charter, and thus accomplishes the object so long contemplated of substituting one simple Code of Procedure for the various systems (corresponding to its common law, equity and admiralty jurisdiction) which have been in operation in the Supreme Court since the date of its establishment

Clause 37

37. In regard to the rules respecting appeals to the Privy Council the object has been to avoid unnecessary innovation where so much of change, with its necessary inconvenience, is unavoidable. The existing rules which regulate these appeals are, therefore, left in force, with one or two additions only, which experience in the Court of the Judicial Committee has found advisable. For instance, clause 40 is introduced, as it had been commonly introduced, of late years in the appeal rules of other dependencies of Great Britain in order to remove all doubts as to the power of the High Court to allow an appeal to the Council from interlocutory judgments.

38. It will, however, be obvious to you that the rules, as now framed, will be liable to the reproach of confusion, and perhaps of uncertainty They will be compounded of those contained in the Charter and those already in force which will necessitate reference to several documents You will agree with me that a simple and intelligible Code of Rules, to regulate appeals to the Privy Council from the new High Courts, or rather from the High Courts in general which may be constituted under the Act of Parliament, will be of great advantage to the suitors and the public I should wish, therefore, that one of the first objects of the Judges, as soon as the amount of labour thrown on them by their new position may allow it, might be to prepare suggestions for such a Code of Rules, which might then be reduced into a complete shape by the authority of the Privy Council at Home.

39. In forwarding the Letters Patent to the Judges of the High Court, you are requested to furnish them with a copy of this despatch. I trust that the Letters Patent taken in connection with the Act for establishing the Court, will be found to contain everything requisite for enabling the Court to proceed at once to the discharge of its important duties It is possible that omissions may be discovered by the legal authorities in India, which may impede the proper action of the Courts, and should the Judges represent to you that such is the case you will take immediate steps for supplying what is wanting by such legislative measures as you may consider most expedient for remedying the defects brought under your consideration.

40. I cannot conclude this despatch without expressing the deep interest felt by Her Majesty's Government in the success of this important measure The Crown by its Letters Patent has sanctioned the establishment of a tribunal as the Chief Court of Justice in India, which in the trained learning of the Judges selected from the Bar, and in the knowledge of the language, feelings, and habits of the Natives of that country possessed by the other members of the Court, combines the most material elements of success. And Her Majesty's Government look with confidence to the zealous exertions and cordial co-operation of the Judges to place the administration of Justice in India, under the controlling authority of the Court, in such a state of efficiency as will render it in very respect adequate to its ends, and satisfactory to the people and to the Government.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

(Signed) C. WOOD.

APPENDIX II

LETTERS PATENT FOR THE HIGH COURT OF CALCUTTA.

(December 28, 1865.)

[N.B.—The Letters Patent for the High Courts of Madras and Bombay are mutatis mutandis in almost the same terms.]

Recital of Acts 24 & 25, Vic., c. 104.

VICTORIA, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith. To all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas by an Act of Parliament passed in the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth years of Our reign, entitled An Act for establishing High Courts of Judicature in India " it was, amongst other things, enacted that it shall be lawful for Her Majesty, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, aforesaid, and that such High Court should consist of a Chief Justice and as many judges, not exceeding fifteen, as Her Majesty might, from time to time, think fit to appoint, who shall be selected from among persons qualified as in the said Act is declared: Provided always that the persons who at the time of the establishment of such High Court were Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature and permanent Judges of the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut or Sudder Adawlut of the same Presidency, should be and become Judges of such High Court without further appointment for that purpose, and the Chief Justice of such Supreme Court should become the Chief Justice of the High Court, and that upon the establishment of such High Court as aforesaid, the Supreme Court and the Court of Sudder Dewany Adawlut and Sudder Nizamut Adawlut at Calcutta, in the said Presidency, should be abolished.

And that the High Court of Judicature so to be established should have and exercise all such Civil, Criminal. Admiralty and Vice-Admiralty, Testamentary, Intestate and Matrimonial Jurisdiction, original and appellate, and all such powers and authority for, and in relation to, the administration of justice in the said Presidency as Her Majesty might, by such Letters Patent as aforesaid, grant and direct subject, however, to such directions and limitations as to the exercise of original, civil and criminal jurisdictions beyond the limits of the Presidency Town as might be prescribed thereby: and save as by such Letters Patent might be otherwise directed subject and without prejudice to the legislative powers in relation to the matters aforsaid of the Governor-General of India in Council, the High Court so to be established should have and exercise all jurisdiction, and every power and authority whatsoever in any manner vested in any of the Courts in the same Presidency abolished under the said Act at the time of the abolition of such last-mentioned Courts.

Revocation of Letters Patent of 1862.

1. Now know ye that We, upon full consideration of the premises, and of Our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have thought fit to revoke, and do by these presents (from and after the date of the publication thereof as hereinafter provided, and subject to the provisions thereof) revoke Our said Letters Patent of the fourteenth of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, except so far as the Letters Patent of the fourteenth year of His Majesty King George the Third, dated the twenty-sixth March, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, establishing a Supreme Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal were revoked or determined thereby.

High Court at Fort William to be continued.

2. And We do by these presents grant, direct and ordain that notwithstanding the revocation of the said Letters Patent of the fourteenth of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, the High Court of Judicature, called the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall be and continue, as from the time of the original erection and establishment thereof, the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William aforesaid; and that the said Court shall be and continue a Court of record, and that all proceedings commenced in the said High Court prior to the date of the publication of these Letters Patent shall be continued and depend in the said High Court as if they had commenced in the said High Court after the date of such publication, and that all rules and orders in force in the said High Court, immediately before the date of the publication of these Letters Patent, shall continuue in force, except so far as the same are altered hereby, until the same are altered by competent authority.

Judges of the said High Court to be continued.

3. And We do hereby appoint and ordain that the person and persons who shall immediately before the date of the publication of those Letters Patent, be the Chief Justice or Judges, or acting Chief Justice or Judges, if any, of the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall continue to be the Chief Justice and Judges or acting Chief Justice or Judges, of the said High Court, until further or other provision shall be made by Us or Our heirs and successors in that behalf, in accordance with the said recited Act for establishing High Courts of Judicature in India.

Clerks, etc., of the said High court to be continued.

4. And we do hereby appoint and ordain that every clerk and ministerial officer of the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, appointed by virtue of the said Letters Patent of the fourteenth of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two shall continue to hold and enjoy his office and employment with the salary thereunto annexed until he be removed from such office and employment; and he shall be subject to the like power of removal, regulations, and provisions as if he were appointed by virtue of these Letters Patent.

Declaration to be made by Judges.

5. And We do hereby ordain that the Chief Justice and every Judge who shall be from time to time appointed to the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, previously to entering upon the execution of the duties of his office shall make and subscribe the following declaration before such authority or person as the Governor-General in Council may commission receive it :—

" I, A.B., appointed Chief Justice [or a Judge] of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, do solemnly declare that I will faithfully perform the duties of my office to the best of my ability, knowledge and judgment."

Seal.

6. And We do hereby grant, ordain and appoint that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort Willam in Bengal shall have and use, as occasion may require, a seal bearing a device and impression of Our Royal Arms, within an exergue or label surrounding the same with this inscription, " The Seal of the High Court at Fort William in Bengal." And We do further grant, ordain, and appoint that the said Seal shall be delivered to and kept in the custody of the Chief Justice, and in case of vacancy of the office of Chief Justice or during any absence of the Chief Justice, the same shall be delivered over and kept in the custody of the person appointed to act as Chief Justice under the provisions of section 7 of the recited Act; and We do further grant, ordain and appoint that whensoever it shall happen that the office of Chief Justice or of the Judge to whom the custody of the said Seal be committed shall be vacant, the said High Court shall be and is hereby authorized and empowered to demand, seize, and take the said Seal from any person or persons whomsoever, by what ways and means soever the same may have come to his, her, or their possession.

Writs, etc., to issue in name of the Crown and under the Seal.

7. And We do hereby further grant, ordain, and appoint that all writs, summons, precepts, rules, orders and other mandatory process to be used, issued or awarded by the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall run and be in the name and style of Us, or of Our heirs and successors, and shall be sealed with the Seal of the said High Court.

Appointment of Officers.

8. And We do hereby authorize and empower the Chief Justice of the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, from time to time, as occasion may require, and subject to any rules and restrictions which may be prescribed by the Governor-General in Council, to appoint so many and such clerks and other ministerial officers as shall be found necessary for the administration of Justice and the due execution of all the powers and authorities granted and committed to the said High Court by these Our Letters Patent. And it is our further will and pleasure, and We do hereby for Us, Our heirs and successors, give, grant, direct and appoint that all and every the officers and clerks to be appointed as aforesaid shall have and receive respectively such reasonable salaries as the Chief Justice shall from time to time appoint for each office and place respectively, and as the Governor-General in Council shall approve of: Provided always and it is Our will and pleasure, that all and every the officers, and clerks to be appointed as aforesaid shall be resident within the limits of the jurisdiction of the said Court so long they shall hold their respective offices; but this proviso shall not interfere with or prejudice the right of any officer or clerk to avail himself of leave of absence under any rules prescribed by the Governor-General in Council, and to absent himself from the said limits during the term of such leave, in accordance with the said rules.

Admission of Advocates, Vakeels, and Attorneys.

9. And We do hereby authorize and empower the said Hig Court of Judicature at Fort William in Beng to approve, admit and enrol such and so man Advocates, Vakeels and Attorneys as to th said High Court shall seem meet; such Ad vocates, Vakeels and Attorneys shall be and are hereby authorize to appear for the suitors of the said High Court, and to plead o to act, or to plead and act, for the said suitors, according as the said High Court may by its rules and directions determine, and subject to such rules and directions.

Powers of High Court in admitting Advocates, Vakeels and Attorneys.

10. And We do hereby ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal shall have power to make rules for the qualifications and admission of proper persons to be Advocates, Vakeels, and Attorneys-at-law of the said High Court, and shall be empowered to remove, or to suspend from practice, on reasonable cause, the said Advocates, Vakeels, or Attorneys-at-law; and no person whatsoever but such Advocates, Vakeels, or Attorneys shall be allowed to act or to plead for, or on behalf of any suitor in the said High Court, except that any suitor shall be allowed to appear, plead, or act on his own behalf or on behalf of a co-suitor.

In making rules for the qualifications etc., of advocates, Vakeels and Attorneys.

Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court.

11. And We hereby ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal shall have and exercise ordinary original civil jurisdiction within such local limits as may, from time to time, be declared and prescribed by any law made by competent legislative authority for India and until some local limits shall be so declared and prescribed within the limit declared and prescribed by the proclamation fixing the limits of Calcutta issued by the Governor-General in Council, on the 10th day of September, in the year of Our Local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court.

Lord, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-four and the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the said High Court shall not extend beyond the limits for the time being declared and prescribed as the local limits of such jurisdiction.

Original jurisdiction as to suits.

12. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction shall be empowered to receive, try, and determine suits of every description, if, in the case of suits for land or other immoveable property, such land or property shall be situated, or, in all other cases, if the cause of action shall have arisen either wholly, or, in case the leave of the Court shall have been first obtained, in part, within the local limits of the ordinary original jurisdiction of the said High Court, or if the defendant at the time of the commencement of the suit shall dwell or carry on business, or personally work for gain, within such limits; except that the said High Court shall not have such original jurisdiction in cases falling within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court at Calcutta, in which the debt or damage, or value of the property sued for does not exceed one hundred rupees.

Extraordinary original civil jurisdiction.

13. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal shall have power to remove and to try and determine, as a Court of extraordinary original jurisdiction, any suit being or falling within the jurisdiction of any Court, whether within or without the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, subject to its superintendence, when the said High Court shall think proper to do so, either on the agreement of the parties to that effect or for purposes of justice, the reasons for so doing being recorded on the proceedings of the said High Court.

Joinder of several causes of action.

14. And We do further ordain that, where plaintiff has several causes of action against a defendant, such causes of action not being for land or other immoveable property, and the said High Court shall have original jurisdiction in respect of one of such causes of action, it shall be lawful for the said High Court to call on the defendant to show cause why the several causes of action should not be joined together in one suit, and to make such order for trial of the same as to the said High Court shall seem fit.

15. And We do further ordain that an appeal shall l the said High Court of Judicature at Fort liam in Bengal, from the judgment (not l an order made in the execution of reris jurisdiction and not being a sentence or passed or made in the revision of the pow superintendence under the provisions of section one hundred seven of the Government of India Act, 1915, or in the exerci criminal jurisdiction) of one Judge of the said High Court or Judge of any Division Court, pursuant to section 13 of the re Act, and that an appeal shall also lie to the said High Court the judgment (not being a sentence or order as aforesaid) of tv more Judges of the said High Court, or of such Division Co whenever such Judges are equally divided in opinion, and do amount in number to a majority of the whole of the Judge the said High Court at the time being; but that the righ appeal from other judgments of Judges of the said High Court of such Division Court, shall be to Us, Our heirs or succes in Our or Their Privy Council, as hereinafter provided.

Appeal from the Courts of original jurisdiction to the High Court in its appellate jurisdiction.

16. And We do further ordain that the said High Cour Judicature at Fort William in Bengal shal a Court of Appeal from the Civil Courts the Bengal Division of the Presidency of I William, and from all other Courts subject to its superintender and shall exercise appellate jurisdiction in such cases as are s ject to appeal to the said High Court by virtue of any laws or re lations now in force

And We do further ordain that the Court for re of Insolvent Debtors at Calcutta shall be l before one of the Judges of the said H Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, and the s High Court, and any such Judge thereof, shall have and exerc within the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort Willi such powers and authorities with respect to original and appel jurisdiction, and otherwise, as are constituted by the laws relating to insolvent debtors in India.

Law to be administered by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

19. And We do further ordain that, with respect to the law or equity to be applied to each case coming before the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction, such law or equity shall be the law or equity which would have been applied by the said High Court to such case, if these Letters Patent had not issued.

By the High Court in the exercise of ordinary original civil jurisdiction.

20. And We do further ordain that, with respect to the law or equity and rule of good conscience to be applied to each case coming before the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal in the exercise of its extraordinary original civil jurisdiction such law or equity and rule of good conscience shall (until otherwise provided) be the law or equity and rule of good conscience which would have been applied to such case by any local Court having jurisdiction therein.

In the exercise of extraordinary original civil jursidiction.

21. And We do further ordain that, with respect to the law or equity and rule of good conscience to be applied by the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal to each case coming before it in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction, such law or equity and rule of good conscience shall be the law or equity and rule of good conscience which the Court in which the proceedings in such case were originally instituted ought to have applied to such case.

By High Court in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction.

And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal shall have extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction over all persons residing in places within the jurisdiction of any Court now subject to the superintendence of the said High Court, and shall have authority to try at its discretion any such persons brought before it on charges preferred by the Advocate-General or by any Magistrate or other officer specially empowered by the Government in that behalf.

No appeal from High Court exercising original jurisdiction.

Court may reserve points of law.

25. And We do further ordain that there shall be no appeal to the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal from any sentence or order passed or made in any criminal trial before the Courts of original Criminal Jurisdiction, which may be constituted by one or more Judges of the said High Court. But it shall be at the discretion of any such Court to reserve any point or points of law for the opinion of the said High Court.

High Court to review on certificate of the Advocate-General.

26. And We do further ordain that on such point or points of law being so reserved as aforesaid, or on its being certified by the said Advocate-General, that in his judgment there is an error in the decision of a point or points of law, decided by the Court of original Criminal jurisdiction, or that a point or points of law which has or have been decided by the said Court should be further considered, the said High Courts shall have full power and authority to review the case or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such point or points of law, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment and sentence as to the said High Court shall seem right.

Appeals from criminal Courts in the Provinces.

27. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall be a Court of Appeal from the Criminal Courts of the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, and from all other Courts subject to its superintendence, and shall exercise appellate jurisdiction in such cases as are subject to appeal to the said High Court by virtue of any law now in force.

28. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall be a Court of reference and revision from the Criminal Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and shall have power to hear and determine all such cases referred to it by the Sessions Judges or by any other Officer now authorized to refer cases to the said High Court, and to revise all such cases tried by any Officer or Court possessing criminal jurisdiction, as are now subject to reference to, or revision by, the said High Court.

Hearing of referred cases and revision of criminal trials

29. And We do further ordain that the said High Court shall have power to direct the transfer of any criminal case or appeal from any Court to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction, and also direct the preliminary investigation or trial of any criminal case by any Officer or Court otherwise competent to investigate or try it, though such belongs, in ordinary course, to the jurisdiction of some other Officer or Court

High Court may direct the transfer of a case from one Court to another.

30. And We do further ordain that all persons brought for trial before the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, either in the exercise of its original jurisdiction or in the exercise of its jurisdiction as a Court of appeal, reference or revision, charged with any offence for which provision is made by Act No. XLV of 1860, called the "Indian Penal Code," or by any Act amending or excluding the said Act, which may have been passed prior to the publication of these presents, shall be liable to punishment under the said Act or Acts, and not otherwise.

Offenders to be punished under Indian Penal Code.

Exercise of Jurisdiction elsewhere than at the ordinary place of sitting of the High Court.

31. And We do further ordain that whenever it shall appear to the Governor-General in Council convenient that the jurisdiction and power by these Our Letters Patent, or by the recited Act vested in the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, should be exercised in any place within the Judges may be authorized to sit in any place or by way of circuit or special commission.

jurisdiction of any Court now subject to the superintendence of the said High Court, other than the usual place of sitting of the said High Court, or at several such places by way of circuit, the proceedings in cases before the said High Court at such place or places shall be regulated by any law relating thereto which has been or may be made by competent legislative authority for India.

Admiralty and Vice-Admiralty Jurisdiction.

Civil.

32. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall have and exercise all such civil and maritime jurisdiction as may now be exercised by the said High Court as a Court of Admiralty or of Vice-Admiralty, and also such jurisdiction for the trial and adjudication of prize causes, and other maritime questions arising in India as may now be exercised by the said High Court.

Criminal.

33. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall have and exercise criminal jurisdiction as may now be exercised by the said High Court as a Court of Admiralty or of Vice-Admiralty, or otherwise in connection with maritime matters or matters of prize.

Testamentary and Intestate Jurisdiction.

Testamentary and intestate jurisdiction.

34. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall have the like power and authority as that which may now be lawfully exercised by the said High Courts, except within the limits of the jurisdiction for that purpose of any other High Court established by Her Majesty's Letters Patent, in relation to the granting of probates of last wills and testaments, and letters of administration of the goods, chattels, credits, and all other effects whatsoever of persons, dying intestate, whether within or without the said Bengal Division, subject to the order of the Governor-General in Council, as to the period when the said High Court shall cease to exercise testamentary and intestate jurisdiction in any place or places beyond the limits of the provinces or places for which it was established: Provided always that nothing in these Letters Patent contained shall interfere with the provisions of any law which has been made by competent legislative authority for India, by which power is given to any other Court to grant such probates and letters of administration.

Matrimonial jurisdiction.

35. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall have jurisdiction, within the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, in matters matrimonial between Our subjects, professing the Christian religion: Provided always that nothing therein contained shall be held to interfere with the exercise of any jurisdiction in matters matrimonial by any Court not established by Royal Charter within the said Presidency lawfully possessed thereof.

Powers of single Judges and Division Courts.

Single Judges and Division Courts.

36. And We do hereby declare that any function which is hereby directed to be performed by the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, in the exercise of its original or appelate jurisdiction, may be performed by any Judge or by any Division Court thereof, appointed or constituted for such purpose in pursuance of section one hundred and eight of the Government of India Act, 1915; and if such Division Court is composed of two or more Judges, and the Judges are divided in opinion as to the decision to be given on any points, such point shall be decided accordingly to the opinion of the majority of the Judges, if there shall be a majority; but if the Judges should be equally divided, then the opinion of the senior Judge shall prevail.

Civil Procedure.

Regulation of proceedings—civil cases.

37. And We do further ordain that it shall be lawful for the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, from time to time, to make rules and orders for the purpose of regulating all proceedings in civil cases which may be brought before the said High Court, including proceedings in its Admiralty, Vice-Admiralty, Testamentary, Intestate and Matrimonial Jurisdiction, respectively: Provided always that the said High Court shall be guided in making such rules and orders as far as possible by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, being an Act passed by the Governor-General in Council, and being Act No VIII of 1859, and the provisions of any law which has been made, amending or altering the same, by competent legislative authority for India.

38. And We do further ordain that the proceedings in all criminal cases, which shall be brought before the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, in the exercise of its ordinary original criminal jurisdiction and also in all other criminal cases over which the said High Court had jurisdiction immediately before the publication of these presents, shall be regulated by the procedure and practice which was in use in the said High Court immediately before such publication, subject to any law which has been or may be made in relation thereto by competent legislative authority for India; and that the proceedings in all other criminal cases shall be regulated by the Code of Criminal Procedure, prescribed by an Act passed by the Governor-General in Council, and being Act No. XXV of 1861, or by such further or other laws in relation to criminal procedure as may have been or may be made by such authority as aforesaid.

Regulation of proceedings — criminal cases.

Appeals to Privy Council.

39. And We do further ordain that any person or persons may appeal to Us, Our heirs and successors in Our or Their Privy Council, in any matter not being of criminal jurisdiction from any final judgment, decree or order of the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal made on appeal and from any final judgment, decree, or order made in the exercise of original jurisdiction by Judges of the said High Court, or of any Division Court, from which an appeal shall not lie to the said High Court under the provisions contained in the 15th clause of these presents: Provided, in either case, that the sum or matter at issue is of the amount or value of not less than Rupees 10,000, or that such judgment, decree, or order shall involve, directly or indirectly, some claim, demand, or question to or respecting property amounting to or of the value of not less than Rupees 10,000; or from any other final judgment, decree or order made either on appeal or otherwise aforsaid, when the said High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for appeal to Us, Our heirs or successors, in Our or Their Privy Council. Subject always to such rules and orders as are now in force, or may from time to time, be made, respecting appeals to Ourselves in Council from the Courts of the said Presidency, except so far as the said existing rules and orders respectively are hereby varied, and subject also to such further rules and orders as We may, with the advice of Our Privy Council, hereafter make in that behalf.

Power to appeal.

40. And We do further ordain that it shall be lawful for the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, at its discretion on the motion, or if the said High Court be not sitting then for any Judge of the said High Court upon the petition of any party who considers himself aggrieved by any preliminary or interlocutory judgment, decree, order, or sentence of the High Court, in any such proceeding as aforesaid, not being of criminal jurisdiction, to grant permission to such party to appeal against the same to Us, Our heirs and successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, subject to the same rules, regulations, and limitations, as are herein expressed respecting appeals from final judgments, decrees, orders and sentences.

Appeal from interlocutory judgment.

41. And We do further ordain that, from any judgment, order or sentence of the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal made in the exercise of original criminal jurisdiction, or in any criminal case where any point or points of law have been reserved for the opinion of the said High Court in manner hereinbefore provided, by any Court which has exercised original jurisdiction, it shall be lawful for the persons aggrieved by such judgment, order, or sentence to appeal to Us, Our heirs or successors in Council, provided the said High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for such appeal and under such conditions as the said High Court may establish or require, subject always to such rules and orders as We may, with the advice of Our Privy Council, hereafter make in that behalf.

Appeal in criminal cases, etc.

42. And We do further ordain that in all cases of appeal made from any judgment, order, sentence, or decree of the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to Us, Our heirs or successors, in Our or Their Privy Council a true and correct copy of all evidence, proceedings, judgments, decrees, and orders had or made in such cases appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matters of appeal, such copies to be certified under the seal of the said High Court, and that the said High Court shall also certify and transmit to Us, Our heirs and successors in Our or Their Privy Council, a copy of the reasons given by the Judges of such Court, or by any such Judges, for or against the judgment or determination appealed against.

Rule as to transmission of copies of evidence and other documents.

And We do further ordain that the said High Court shall, in all cases of appeal to Us, Our heirs or successors, conform to and execute or cause to be executed, such judgment and orders as We, Our heirs or successors in Our or Their Privy Council, shall think fit to make in the premises in such manner as any original judgment, decree or decretal orders, or other order or rule of the said High Court should or might have been executed.

Calls for Records, etc., by the Government.

High Court to comply with requisition from Government for records, etc.

43. And it is Our further will and pleasure that the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal shall comply with such requisitions as may be made by the Government for records, returns, and statements in such form and manner as such Government may deem proper.

Powers of the Indian Legislature preserved.

44. And We do further ordain and declare that all the provisions of these Our Letters Patent are subject to the legislative powers of the Governor-General in Legislative Council, and also of the Governor-General in Council under section seventy-one of the Government of India Act, 1915, and also of the Governor-General in cases of emergency under section seventy-two of that Act and may be in all respects amended and altered thereby.

Provisions of former Letters Patent inconsistent with these Letters Patent to be void.

45. And it is Our further will and pleasure that these Letters Patent shall be published by the Governor-General in Council, and shall come into operation from and after the date of such publication; and that from and after the date on which effect shall have been given to them, so much of the aforesaid Letters Patent granted by His Majesty, King George The Third, as was not revoked or determined by the said Letters Patent of the fourteenth of May, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and is inconsistent with these Letters Patent, shall cease, determine and be utterly void, to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

In Witness thereof We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent. Witness Ourself at Westminster, the twenty-eighth day of December, in the twenty-ninth year of Our reign.

LETTERS PATENT FOR THE HIGH COURT OF ALLAHABAD.

(March 17, 1866.)

[The two first paragraphs of the Preamble are similar to those of the Calcutta Letters Patent of 1865.]

And whereas it is further declared by the said recited Act that it shall be lawful for Us by Letters Patent, to erect, and establish a High Court of Judicature in and for any portion of the territories, within Her Majesty's dominions in India, not included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court, to consist of a Chief Justice and such number of other Judges, with such qualifications as were by the same Act required in persons to be appointed to the High Courts, established at the said Presidencies, as We from time to time might think fit and appoint, and that, subject to the directions of the Letters Patent, all the provisions of the said recited Act, relative to High Courts and to the Chief Justice and other Judges of such Courts and to the Governor-General or Governor of the Presidency, in which such High Courts were established shall, as far as circumstances may permit, be applicable to any new High Court which may be established in the said territories, and to the Chief Justice and other Judges thereof, and to the persons administering the Government of the said territories,

And whereas We did upon full consideration of the premises, think fit to erect and establish, and by Our Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the fourteenth day of May, in the twenty-fifth year of Our reign, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, did accordingly, for Us, Our heirs and successors, erect and establish at Fort William in Bengal, for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, aforesaid, a High Court of Judicature which should be called the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, and did thereby constitute the said Court to be a Court of Record.

Establishment of High Court for the North-Western Provinces.

1. Now know ye that We, upon full consideration of the premises and of Our special grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, have thought fit to erect and establish, and by these presents We do accordingly, for Us, Our heirs and successors, erect and establish, for the North-Western Provinces of the Presidency of the Fort William aforesaid, a High Court of Judicature, which shall be called the High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces, and We do hereby constitute the said Court to be a Court of Record.

Constitution and first Judges of the High Court.

2. And We do hereby appoint and ordain that the High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces shall, until further or other provisions shall be made by Us, or Our heirs and successors, in that behalf, in accordance with the said recited Act, consist of a Chief Justice and five Judges, the first Chief Justice being Walter Morgan, Esquire, and the five Judges being Alexander Ross, Esquire, William Edwards, Esquire, William Roberts, Esquire, Francis Boyle Pearson, Esquire, and Charles Arthur Turner, Esquire, being respectively qualified as in the said Act is declared.

Declaration to be made by Judges.

3. And We do ordain that the Chief Justice and every Judge of the said High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces previously to entering upon the execution of the duties of his office, shall make and subscribe the following declaration before such authority or person as the Governor General in Council may commission to receive it:—

"I, A B, appointed Chief Justice [or a Judge] of the High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces do solemnly declare that I will faithfully perform the duties of my office to the best of my ability, knowledge and judgment."

4-8. [These clauses are similar to clauses 6 to 10 of the Calcutta Letters Patent of 1865.]

Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court.

Extraordinary original civil jurisdiction.

9. And we do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces, shall have power to remove and to try and determine, as a Court of extraordinary original jurisdiction, any suit being or falling within the jurisdiction of any Court subject to its superintendence, when the said High Court shall think proper to do so, either on the agreement of the parties to that effect, or for purpose of justice, the reasons for so doing being recorded on the proceedings of the said High Court

10-11. [These clauses are similar to clauses 15 and 16 of the Calcutta Letters Patent of 1865.]

Jurisdiction as to infants and lunatics.

12. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces, shall have the like power and authority with respect to the persons and estates of infants; idiots, and lunatics within the North-Western Provinces, as that which is exercised in the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, but subject to the provisions of any laws or regulations now in force.

13-14. [These clauses are similar to clauses 20 and 21 of the Calcutta Letters Patent of 1865.]

Criminal Jurisdiction.

Ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court.

15. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces, shall have ordinary original criminal jurisdiction in respect of all such persons within the said Provinces as the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, shall have criminal jurisdiction over at the date of the publication of these presents; and the criminal jurisdiction of the said last-mentioned High Court over such persons shall cease at such date. Provided, nevertheless that criminal proceedings which shall at such date have been commenced in the said last-mentioned High Court shall continue as if these presents had not been issued.

16. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces, in the exercise of its ordinary original criminal jurisdiction, shall be empowered to try all persons brought before it in due course of law Jurisdiction as to persons.

17. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces, shall have extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction over all persons residing in places within the jurisdiction of any Court now subject to the superintendence of the Sudder Nizamut Adawlut, and shall have authority to try at its discretion any such persons brought before it on charges preferred by any Magistrate or other officer specially empowered by the Government in that behalf Extraordinary original criminal jurisdiction.

18. [This clause is similar to clause 25 of the Calcutta Letters Patent of 1865]

19. And We do further ordain that, on such point or points of law being so reserved as aforesaid, the said High Court shall have full power and authority to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such point or points of law and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such judgment and sentence as to the said High Court shall seem right.

High Court to review cases on points of law reserved by one or more Judges of the said High Court.

20. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature, for the North-Western Provinces, shall be a Court of Appeal from the Criminal Courts of the said Provinces, and from all other Courts from which there is now an appeal to the Court of Sudder Nizamut Adawlut for the said Provinces, and shall exercise appellate jurisdiction in such cases as are subject to appeal to the said Court of Sudder Adawlut by virtue of any law now in force.

Appeals from Criminal Courts in the Provinces.

21. And We do further ordain that the said High Court shall be a Court of reference and revision from the Criminal Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and shall have power to hear and determine all such cases referred to it by the Session Judges or by any other Officers now authorized to refer cases to the Court of Sudder Nizamut Adawlut of the North-Western Provinces, and to revise all such cases tried by any Officer or Court possessing criminal jurisdiction, as are now subject to reference or to revision by the said Court of Sudder Nizamut Adawlut.

Hearing of referred cases and revision of Criminal trials.

22. And We do further ordain that the said High Court shall have power to direct the transfer of any criminal case or appeal from any Court to any other Court of equal or superior jurisdiction, and also to direct the preliminary investigations or trial of any criminal case by any Officer or Court otherwise competent to investigate or try it, though such case belongs in ordinary course to the jurisdiction of some other Officer or Court.

High Court may direct the transfer of a case from one Court to another.

23. [This clause is similar to clause 29 of the Calcutta Letters Patent of 1865]

Exercise of Jurisdiction elsewhere, than at the ordinary place of sitting of the High Court.

Judges may be authorized to sit in any places by way of circuit or special commission.

24. And We do further ordain that whenever it shall appear to the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council, convenient that the jurisdiction and power by these Our Letters Patent, or by the recited act, vested in the said High Court, should be exercised in any place within the jurisdiction of any Court now subject to the superintendence of any Sudder Dewany Adawlut or the Sudder Nizamut Adawlut of the North-Western Provinces, other than the usual places of sitting of the said High Court, or at several such places by way of circuit, the proceedings in cases before the said High Court, at such place or places, shall be regulated by any law relating thereto which has been or may be made by competent legislative authority for India.

Testamentary and Intestate Jurisdiction.

Testamentary and intestate jurisdiction.

25. And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces, shall have the like power and authority as that which is now lawfully exercised within the said Provinces, by the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, in relation to the granting of probates of last wills and testaments, and letters of administration of the goods, chattels, credits, and all other effects whatsoever of persons dying intestate; and that the jurisdiction of the said last-mentioned High Court in relation hereto shall cease from the date of the publication of these presents; Provided always that any proceedings already commenced in relation to any of the matters aforesaid in the said last-mentioned High Court shall continue as if these presents had not been issued: Provided also that nothing in these Letters Patent contained shall interfere with the provisions of any law which has been made by competent legislative authority for India, by which power is given to any other Court to grant such probates and letters of administration.

26-27. [These clauses correspond to clauses 35 and 36 of the Calcutta Letters Patent of 1865]

Civil Procedure.

Regulation of proceedings.

28. And We do further ordain that it shall be lawful for the said High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces from time to time to make rules and orders for the purpose of adapting as far as possible the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, being an Act passed by the Governor-General in Council and being Act No VIII of 1859, and the provisions of any law which has been or may be made, amending or altering the same, by competent legislative authority for India, to all proceedings in its testamentary, intestate, and matrimonial jurisdiction respectively.

Criminal Procedure.

29. And We do further ordain that the proceedings in all criminal cases which shall be brought before the said High Court, in the exercise of its ordinary original criminal jurisdiction, shall be regulated by the procedure and practice which was in use in the High Court of Judicature for Fort William in Bengal, immediately before the publication of these presents, subjects to any law which has been or may be made in relation thereto by competent legislative authority for India; and that the proceedings in all other criminal cases shall be regulated by the Code of Criminal Procedure, prescribed by an Act passed by the Governor-General in Council, and being Act No XXV of 1861, or by such further or other laws in relation to criminal procedure as may have been or may be made by such authority as aforesaid

Regulation of proceedings.

Appeals to Privy Council

30. And We do further ordain that any person or persons may appeal to us, Our heirs and successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, in any matter not being of criminal jurisdiction, from any final judgment, decree, or order of the said High Court Judicature for the North-Western Provinces, made on appeal, and from ny final judgment, decree, or order made in the exercise of original jurisdiction by the Judges of the said High Court, or of any Division Court, om which an appeal shall not lie to the said High Court under the ovision contained in the 10th Clause of these presents, Provided in either se, that the sum or matter at issue is of amount or value of not less an 10,000 rupees, or that such judgment, decree, or order shall involve, rectly or indirectly, some claim, demand or question to or respecting operty amounting to, or of the value of not less than 10,000 rupees, or om any other final judgment, decree or order made either on appeal otherwise as aforesaid when the said High Court shall declare that the se is a fit one for appeal to Us, Our heirs or successors in Our or Their ivy Council subject always to such rules and orders as are now in rce, or may from time to time be made respecting appeals to Ourselves Council from the Courts of the said Provinces except so far as the id existing rules and orders, respectively, are herby varied and subject so to such further rules and orders, as we may with the advice of our rivy Council, hereafter make in that behalf

LETTERS PATENT FOR THE HIGH COURT OF PATNA.

(February 9, 1916.)

Recital of Act 24 and 25 Vict., c. 104.

GEORGE THE FIFTH, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India. To all to whom these Presents shall come, greeting WHEREAS by an Act of Parliament passed in the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth Years of the Reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and called the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, it was amongst other things, enacted, by section one, that it should be lawful for Her Majesty, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom, to erect and establish a High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William, and, by section two, that such High Court should consist of a Chief Justice and as many Judges, not exceeding fifteen, as Her Majesty might, from time to time, think fit to appoint, who should be selected from among persons qualified as in the said Act was declared; and, by section eight, that upon the establishment of such High Court as aforesaid the Supreme Court and the Court of Diwani Adalat and Sadar Nizamat Adalat at Calcutta, in the said Presidency, should be abolished, and, by section nine, that the High Court of Judicature so to be established should have and exercise all such civil, criminal, admiralty, and vice-admiralty, testamentary intestate and matrimonial jurisdiction, original and appellate, and all such powers and authority for and in relation to the administration of justice in the said Presidency as Her Majesty might by such Letters Patent as aforesaid grant and direct, subject, however, to such directions and limitations, as to the exercise of original civil and criminal jurisdiction beyond the limits of the Presidency town, as might be prescribed, thereby, and that, save as by such Letters Patent might be otherwise directed, and, subject and without prejudice to the legislative powers in relation to the matters aforesaid of the Governor-General of India in Council, the High Court so to be established should have and exercise all jurisdiction, and every power and authority whatsoever in any manner vested in any of the Courts in the same Presidency abolished under the said Act at the time of the abolition of such last-mentioned Courts

And whereas it was further declared by section sixteen of the said recited Act that it should be lawful for Us by Letters Patent to erect and establish a High Court of a Judicature in and for any portion of territories within Our Dominions in India, not included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court, to consist of Chief Justice and such number of other Judges, with such qualifications as were by the said Act required in persons to be appointed to the High Courts established at the Presidencies of Fort William in Bengal, of Madras, and of Bombay, as We from time to time might think fit and appoint; and that it should be lawful for Us, by such Letters Patent, to confer on any new High Court which might be so established any such jurisdiction, powers and authority as under the same Act was authorized to be conferred on or would become vested in the High Court established in any of the said Presidencies; and that subject to the directions of the Letters Patent, all the provisions of the said recited Act relative to High Courts and to the Chief Justice and other Judges of such Courts, and to the Governor-General or Governor of the Presidency in which such High Courts were established, should, as far as circumstances might permit, be applicable to any new High Court which might be established in the said territories, and to the Chief Justice and other Judges thereof, and to the persons administering the Government of the said territories:

Recital of establishment of High Courts at Fort William and Allahabad.

And whereas, upon full consideration of the premises, Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the Fourteenth day of May, in the Twenty-fifth Year of Her Reign, in the Year of Our Lord One thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, did erect and establish a High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal for the Bengal Division of the Presidency of Fort William aforesaid and did constitute that Court to be a Court of Record

And whereas Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the Twenty-eighth day of December in the Twenty-ninth Year of Her Reign, in the Year of Our Lord One thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, did revoke the said Letters Patent bearing date the Fourteenth day of May in the Year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, but notwithstanding that revocation did continue the said High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal and declared that the Court should continue to be a Court of Record

And whereas, upon full consideration of the premises, Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing date at Westminster the Seventeenth day of March, in the Twenty-ninth year of Her Reign in the Year of Our Lord One thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, did erect and establish a High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces which said Court is situated at Allahabad in the Province of Agra and is now called the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad and did constitute that Court to be a Court of Record

Recital of Act 1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 18.

And whereas by an Act of Parliament passed in the First and Second Years of Our Reign, and called the Indian High Courts Act, 1911, it was enacted, amongst other things, by section one that the maximum number of Judges of a High Court of Judicature in India, including the Chief Justice, should be twenty, and, by section two that Our power under section sixteen of the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, might be exercised from time to time and that a High Court might be established under the said section sixteen in any portion of the territories within Our Dominions in India whether or not included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court; and that, where such a High Court was established in any part of such territories included within the limits of the local jurisdiction of another High Court, it should be lawful for Us by Letters Patent to alter the local jurisdiction of that other High Court, and to make such incidental, consequential and supplemental provisions as might appear to be necessary by reason of the alteration of those limits:

And whereas the said Indian High Courts Acts, 1861 and 1911, have been repealed and re-enacted by an Act of Parliament passed in the Fifth and Sixth Years of Our Reign, and called the Government of India Act, 1915;

Recital of Act 5 & 6 Geo. 5, c. 61.

And whereas certain territories formerly subject to and included within the limits of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal were by proclamation made by the Governor-General of India on the Twenty-second day of March in the Year of Our Lord One thousand nine hundred and twelve, constituted a separate Province, called the Province of Bihar and Orissa, and are now governed by a Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Recital of creation of Province of Bihar and Orissa.

And We do further ordain that the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon shall have and exercise all such criminal jurisdiction as might immediately before the publication of these presents be exercised by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal as a Court of Admiralty or otherwise in connection with maritime matters or matters of prize.

Testamentary and Intestate Jurisdiction.

Testamentary and intestate jurisdiction

32. And We do further ordain that the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon shall have the like power and authority as that which was immediately before the publication of these presents lawfully exercised within the Province of Burma by the Chief Court of Lower Burma and the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Upper Burma in relation to the granting of probates of last wills and testaments, and letters of administration of the goods, chattels, credits and all other effects whatsoever of persons dying intestate: Provided always that nothing in these Letters Patent contained shall interfere with the provisions of any law which has been made by competent legislative authority for India, by which power is given to any other Court to grant such probates and letters of administration.

Matrimonial Jurisdiction.

Matrimonial jurisdiction.

33. And We do further ordain that the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon shall have jurisdiction, within the Province of Burma, in matters matrimonial between Our subjects professing the Christian religion: Provided always that nothing herein contained shall be held to interfere with the exercise of any jurisdiction in matters matrimonial by any Court not established by Letters Patent within the said Province which is lawfully possessed of that jurisdiction.

Powers of Single Judges and Division Courts.

Single Judges and Division Court.

34. And We do hereby declare that any function which is hereby directed to be performed by the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon in the exercise of its original or appellate jurisdiction, may be performed by any Judge, or by any Division Court, thereof, appointed or constituted for such purpose in pursuance of section one hundred and eight of the Government of India Act; and if such Division Court is composed of two or more Judges and the Judges are divided in opinion as to the decision to be given on any point, such point shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of the Judges, if there be a majority, but, if the Judges be equally divided, then the opinion of the senior Judge shall prevail

Civil Procedure.

Regulation of proceedings.

35. And We do further ordain that it shall be lawful for the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon from time to time to make rules and orders for the purpose of regulating all proceedings in civil cases which may be brought before the said High Court, including proceedings in its Admiralty, testamentary, intestate and matrimonial jurisdiction, respectively: Provided always, that the said High Court shall be guided in making such rules and orders as far as possible by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, being an Act passed by the Governor-General of India in Legislative Council, and being Act No V of 1908, and the provisions of any law which has been or may be made, amending or altering the same by the local legislature or by competent legislative authority for India.

Criminal Procedure.

Regulation of proceedings.

36. And We do further ordain that the proceedings in all criminal cases brought before the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon shall be regulated by the Code of Criminal Procedure, being an Act, No. V of 1898, passed by the Governor-General of India in Legislative Council, or by such further or other laws in relation to criminal procedure as have been or may be made by the local legislature or by competent legislative authority for India.

Appeals to Privy Council

Power to appeal in civil cases.

37. And We do further ordain that any person or persons may appeal to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, in any matter not being of criminal jurisdiction from any final judgment, decree or order of the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon made on appeal and from any final judgment, decree or order, made in the exercise of original jurisdiction by Judges of the said High Court, or of any Division Court, from which an appeal shall not lie to the said High Court under the provisions contained in the 13th clause of these presents

Provided in either case that the sum or matter at issue is of the amount or value of not less than 10,000 rupees, or that such judgment, decree or order involves, directly or indirectly, some claim, demand or question to or respecting property amounting to or of the value of not less than 10,000 rupees, or from any other final judgment, decree or order made either on appeal or otherwise as aforesaid, when the said High Court declares that the case is a fit one for appeal to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, but subject always to such rules and orders as are now in force or may from time to time be made, respecting appeals to Ourselves in Council from the Courts of the Province of Burma, except so far as the said existing rules and orders respectively are hereby varied, and subject also to such further rules and orders as We may, with the advice of Our Privy Council, hereafter make in that behalf.

Appeal from interlocutory judgment.

38. And We do further ordain that it shall be lawful for the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon at its discretion, on the motion, or, if the said High Court be not sitting, then for any Judge of the said High Court, upon the petition, of any party who considers himself aggrieved by any preliminary or interlocutory judgment, decree or order of the said High Court in any such proceeding as aforesaid, not being of criminal jurisdiction to grant permission to such party to appeal against the same to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, subject to the same rules, regulations and limitations as are herein expressed respecting appeals from final judgments, decrees and orders.

Appeal in criminal cases.

39. And We do further ordain that from any judgment, order or sentence of the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon made in the exercise of original criminal jurisdiction or in any criminal case where any point or points of law have been reserved for the opinion of the said High Court, in manner provided by the 24th clause of these presents, by any Court which has exercised original jurisdiction, it shall be lawful for the person aggrieved by such judgment, order or sentence to appeal to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, provided the said High Court shall declare that the case is a fit one for such appeal, and that the appeal be made under such conditions as the said High Court may establish or require, but subject always to such rules and orders as are now in force, or may from time to time be made, respecting appeals to Ourselves in Council from the Courts of the Province of Burma Rules as to transmission of copies of evidence and other documents.

40. And We do further ordain that, in all cases of appeal made from any judgment, decree, order or sentence of the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, such High Court shall certify and transmit to Us, Our Heirs and successors in Our or Their Privy Council a true and correct copy of all evidence, proceedings, judgments, decrees and orders had or made, in such cases appealed, so far as the same have relation to the matters of appeal, such copies to be certified under the seal of the said High Court And that the said High Court shall also certify and transmit to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, a copy of the reasons given by the Judges of such Court, or by any of such Judges, for or against the judgment or determination appealed against. And We do further ordain that the said High Court shall, in all cases of appeal to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, conform to and execute, or cause to be executed, such judgments and orders as We, Our Heirs and Successors, in Our or Their Privy Council, may think fit to make in the premises, in such manner as any original judgment, decree or decretal order, or other order or rule of the said High Court, should or might have been executed.

Exercise of Jurisdiction elsewhere than at the usual place of sitting of the High Court.

41. And We do further ordain that, unless the Governor of Burma in Council otherwise directs, one or more Judges of the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon, as the Chief Justice may from time to time direct, shall sit at Mandalay, in order to exercise in respect of cases arising in such areas in Upper Burma as the Governor of Burma in Council may direct the jurisdiction and power by these Our Letters Patent, or by or under the Government of India Act, vested in the said High Court provided that the Chief Justice may, in his discretion, order that any particular case arising in the said areas in Upper Burma shall be heard at Rangoon.

Special commission and circuits.

42. And We do further ordain that whenever it appears convenient to the Governor of Burma in Council, that the jurisdiction and power by these Our Letters Patent, or by or under the Government of India Act, vested in the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon should be exercised in any place within the jurisdiction of any Court subject to the superintendence of the said High Court, other than the usual place of sitting of the said High Court or at several such places by way of circuit, one or more Judges of the said High Court shall visit such place or places accordingly.

Proceedings of Judges on special commission or circuit.

43. And We do further ordain that whenever any Judge or Judges of the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon shall visit or sit at any place under the 41st or the 42nd clause of these presents the proceedings in cases before him or them at such place shall be regulated by any law relating thereto which has been or may be made by the local legislature or by a competent legislative authority for India

Provisions regarding Pending Proceedings

44. And We do further ordain that all suits, appeals, revisions, applications, reviews' executions and other proceedings whatsoever pending immediately before the publication of these presents in the Chief Court of Lower Burma, or before the Judicial Commissioner of Upper Burma, or in the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Upper Burma, in the exercise of any jurisdiction vested in them by any law, shall be continued and concluded in the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon as if the same had been instituted in the said High Court, and the High Court shall in relation to all such proceedings exercise the jurisdiction given to it by these presents

Delegation of Duties to Officers

Power to delegate duties.

45. The High Court of Judicature at Rangoon may, from time to time, make rules for delegating to any Registrar, Prothonotary or Master or other official of the Court any judicial, quasi-judicial and non-judicial duties

Calls for Records, etc., by the Government.

High Court to comply with requisitions from Government for records, etc.

46. And it is Our further will and pleasure that the High Court of Judicature at Rangoon shall comply with such requisitions as may be made by the Governor-General of India in Council or by the Governor of Burma in Council for records, returns and statements, in such form and manner as he may deem proper.

Powers of Indian Legislatures.

Powers of Indian Legislatures preserved.

47. And We do further ordain and declare that all the provisions of these Our Letters Patent are subject to the legislative powers of the local legislature and of the Indian legislature, and also of the Governor-General in Council under section seventy-one of the Government of India Act; and also of the Governor-General under section seventy-two of that Act; and may be in all respects amended and altered thereby.

IN WITNESS whereof We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent.

WITNESS Ourself at Westminster the eleventh day of November in the Year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two and in the thirteenth Year of Our reign.

BY WARRANT under the King's Sign Manual.

(Signed) SCHUSTER.

RULES MADE BY THE HIGH COURT OF CALCUTTA UNDER S. 122.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

I. Cancel Clause (1), Rule 9, Order VII and substitute therefor the following.—

"(1) The plaintiff shall endorse on the plaint, or annex thereto, a list of the documents (if any) which he has produced along with it.

(1) (a) The plaintiff shall present with his plaint:—

(i) as many copies on plain paper of the plaint as there are defendants, unless the Court by reason of the length of the plaint or the number of the defendants, or for any other sufficient reason, permits him to present a like number of concise statements of the nature of the claim made, or of the relief claimed in the suit, in which case he shall present such statements;

(ii) a petition for service of summons to appear and answer together with the fees and draft forms of summons" (P 1056.)

Schedule 1, Appendix D, Form No. 5.—For clause (2) of Form No 5 in Appendix D, substitute " (2) That if such payment is not made on or before the said day of 19 , the defendant shall be entitled to apply for a final decree for foreclosure or sale."

Schedule, 1, Appendix D, Form No. 10-A.—Add the following form No. 10-A —

No. 10-A.

Final Decree for Sale.

(Title)

Upon reading the decree passed in the above suit on the day of 19 , and the application of the plaintiff, dated the day of 19 , and after hearing pleader for the plaintiff and pleader for the defendant, and it appearing that the payment directed by the said decree has not been made.

It is hereby decreed as follows —

(1) That the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is declared due to the plaintiff as aforesaid together with subsequent interest at per cent. per annum and subsequent costs, and that the balance, if any, be paid to the defendant

(2) That if the net proceeds of the sale are insufficient to pay such amount and such subsequent interest and costs in full, the plaintiff shall be at liberty to apply for a personal decree for the amount of the balance.

APPENDIX V

Rules made by the High Court of Allahabad under s. 122.

ORDER V.

27. To Or. V., r. 27, add the following as note 1 and note 2:—

1. A list of heads of offices to whom summonses shall be sent for service on the servants of Railway Companies working in whole or in part in these Provinces is given in Appendix (2) to the General Rules (Civil) of 1911.

2. In every case where a Court sees fit to issue a summons direct to any public servant other than a soldier under Order XVI, simultaneously with the issue of the summons notice shall be sent to the head of the office in which the person concerned is employed in order that arrangements may be made for the performance of the duties of such person.

Illustration. If the Court sees fit to issue a summons to a kanungo or patwari it shall inform the Collector of the district, and if to a sub-registrar it shall inform the District Registrar to whom the sub-registrar is subordinate.

Add the following rules at the end of Or V.—

31. An application for the issue of a summons for a party or a witness shall be made in the form prescribed for the purpose No other forms shall be received by the Court

32. Ordinarily every process, except those that are to be served on Europeans, shall be written in the Court vernacular But where a process is sent for execution to the Court of a district where a different language is in ordinary use, it shall be written in English and shall be accompanied by a letter in English requesting its execution

In cases where the return of service is in a language different from that of the district from which it is issued, it shall be accompanied by an English translation.

ORDER VII.

Add the following rules at the end of Or VII —

19. Every plaint or original petition shall be accompanied by a proceeding giving an address at which service of notice, summons or other process may be made on the plaintiff or petitioner Plaintiffs or petitioners subsequently added shall immediately on being so added, file a proceeding of this nature.

20. An address for service filed under the preceding rule shall be within the local limits of the District Court within which the suit or petition is filed, or of the District Court within which the party ordinarily resides, if within the limits of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh

21. Where a plaintiff or petitioner fails to file an address for service, he shall be liable to have his suit dismissed or his petition rejected by the Court suo motu or any party may apply for an order to that effect, and the Court may make such order as it thinks just.

22. Where a party is not found at the address given by him for service and no agent or adult male member of his family on whom a notice or process can be served, is present, a copy of the notice or process shall be affixed to the outer door of the house. If on the date fixed such party is not present another date shall be fixed and a copy of the notice, summons or other process shall be sent to the registered address by registered post, and such service shall be deemed to be as effectual as if the notice or process had been personally served.

23. Where a party engages a pleader, notices or processes for service on him shall be served in the manner prescribed by Order III, rule 5, unless the Court directs service at the address for service given by the party

24. A party who desires to change the address for service given by him as aforesaid shall file a verified petition, and the Court may direct the amendment of the record accordingly Notice of such petition shall be given to such other parties to the suit as the Court may deem it necessary to inform, and may be either served upon the pleaders for such parties or be sent to them by registered post, as the Court thinks fit

25. Nothing in these rules shall prevent the Court from directing the service of a notice or process in any other manner, if, for any reasons, it thinks fit to do so

26. Nothing in these rules shall apply to the notice prescribed by Order XXI, rule 22

ORDER VIII.

Add the following rules at the end of Or. VIII.—

11. Every party, whether original, added or substituted, who appears in any suit or other proceeding shall on or before the date fixed in the summons or notice served on him as the date of hearing, file in Court a proceeding stating his address for service, and if he fails to do so he shall be liable to have his defence, if any, struck out and to be placed in the same position as if he had not defended In this respect the Court may act suo motu or on the application of any party for an order to such effect and the Court may make such order as it thinks just.

12. Rules 20, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26 of Order VII shall apply, so far as may be to addresses for service filed under the preceding rule.

ORDER XIII.

Add the following rules at the end of Or. XIII —

12. Every document not written in the Court vernacular or in Eng-

at any other time tendered in evidence in any suit, appeal, or proceeding, shall be accompanied by a correct translation of the document into the Court vernacular. If any such document is written in the Court vernacular but in characters other than the ordinary Persian or Nagri characters in use, it shall be accompanied by a correct transliteration of its contents into the Persian or Nagri character.

13. When a document included in the list, prescribed by rule 1, has been admitted in evidence, the Court shall, in addition to making the endorsement prescribed in rule 4 (1) mark such document with serial figures in the case of documents admitted as evidence for a plaintiff, and with serial letters in the case of documents admitted as evidence for a defendant, and shall initial every such serial number or letter. When there are two or more parties defendants, the documents of the first party defendant may be marked A1, B1, C1, etc., AA1, BB1, etc., and those of the second A2, B2, C2, etc., AA2, BB2, etc. When a number of documents of the same nature is admitted, as for example a series of receipts for rent, the whole series shall bear one figure or capital letter or letters and a small figure or small letter shall be added to distinguish each paper of the series.

ORDER XVI.

Add the following to Or XVI, r. 2 —

2. (4) This rule shall not apply, in cases to which Government is a party, in the case of witnesses who are Government servants whose salary exceeds Rs 10 per mensem and who are summoned to give evidence in their public capacity at a Court situated more than five miles from their headquarters.

Add the following rules at the end of Or. XVI —

22. (1) Save as provided in this rule and in rule 2, the Court shall allow travelling and other expenses on the following scale —

(a) In the case of witnesses of the class of cultivators, labourers, and menials, six annas a day;

(b) In the case of witnesses of a better class, such as zamindars, traders, pleaders, and persons of corresponding rank, from eight annas to two rupees a day, as the Court may direct; and

(c) In the case of witnesses of superior rank, including officers of Government in receipt of salary of not less than Rs 200 a month, from three to five rupees a day

(2) If a witness demands any sum in excess of what has been paid to him, such sum shall be allowed if he satisfies the Court that he has actually and necessarily incurred the additional expense

Illustration.

A post office employee summoned to give evidence is entitled to demand from the party, on whose behalf or at whose instance he is summoned, the travelling and other expenses allowed to witnesses of the class or rank to which he belongs, and in addition the sum for which he is liable as payment to the substitute officiating during his absence from duty. The sum so payable in respect of the substitute will be certified by the official superior of the witness on a slip, which the witness will present to the Court from which the summons was issued

(3) If a witness be detained for a longer period than one day the expenses of his detention shall be allowed at such rate, not usually exceeding that payable under clause (1) of this rule, as may seem to the Court to be reasonable and proper

Provided that the Court may, for reasons stated in writing, allow expenses on a higher scale than that hereinbefore prescribed.

23. In cases to which Government is a party, Government servants, not being police constables, whose salary exceeds Rs. 10 per mensem, and who are summoned to give evidence in their official capacity at a Court situated more than five miles from their headquarters, shall be given a certificate of attendance by the Court in lieu of travelling and other expenses

ORDER XVIII.

Add the following rules at the end of Or. XVIII.—

19. (1) The Judge shall record in his own hand in English all orders passed on applications, other than orders of a purely routine character

(2) The Judge shall record in his own hand in English all admissions and denials of documents, and the English proceedings shall show how all documents tendered in evidence have been dealt with from the date of presentation down to the final order admitting them in evidence or rejecting them.

(3) The Judge shall record the issues in his own hand in English, and the issues shall be signed by the Judge and shall form part of the English proceedings

ORDER XIX.

Add the following rules at the end of Or. XIX:—

4. Affidavits shall be entitled in the Court of at (naming such Court). If the affidavit be in support of or in opposition to, an application respecting any case in the Court, it shall also be entitled in such case. If there be no such case, it shall be entitled In the matter of the petition of

5. Affidavits shall be divided into paragraphs, and every paragraph shall be numbered consecutively and, as nearly as may be, shall be confined to a distinct portion of the subject.

6. Every person making any affidavit shall be described therein in such manner as shall serve to identify him clearly; and where necessary for this purpose, it shall contain the full name, the name of his father, of his caste or religious persuasion, his rank or degree in life, his profession, calling, occupation or trade, and the true place of his residence

7. Unless it be otherwise provided, an affidavit may be made by any person having cognizance of the facts deposed to Two or more persons may join in an affidavit: each shall depose separately to those facts which are within his own knowledge, and such facts shall be stated in separate paragraphs

8. When the declarant in any affidavit speaks to any fact within his own knowledge he must do so directly and positively, using the words "I affirm" or "I make oath and say."

9. Except in interlocutory proceedings, affidavits shall strictly be confined to such facts as the declarant is able of his own knowledge to prove. In interlocutory proceedings, when the particular fact is not within the declarant's own knowledge, but is stated from information obtained from others, the declarant shall use the expression "I am informed," and, if such be the case, "and verily believe to be true," and shall state the name and address of, and sufficiently describe for the purposes of identification, the person or persons from whom he received such information When the application or the opposition thereto rests on facts disclosed in documents or copies of document produced from any Court of Justice or other source, the declarant shall state what is the source from which they were produced, and his information and belief as to the truth of the facts disclosed in such documents.

10. When any place is referred to in an affidavit, it shall be correctly described. When in an affidavit any person is referred to, such person, the correct name and address of such person, and such further description as may be sufficient for the purpose of the identification of such person, shall be given in the affidavit

11. Every person making an affidavit for use in a Civil Court, shall, if not personally known to the person before whom the affidavit is made, be identified to that person by some one known to him, and the person before whom the affidavit is made shall state at the foot of the affidavit the name, address, and description of him by whom the identification was made as well as the time and place of such identification

12. No verification of a petition and no affidavit purporting to have been made by a pardahnashin woman who has not appeared unveiled before the person before whom the verification or affidavit was made, shall be used unless she has been identified in manner already specified and unless such petition or affidavit be accompanied by an affidavit of identification of such woman made at the time by the person who identified her

13. The person before whom any affidavit is about to be made shall, before the same is made, ask the person proposing to make such affidavit if he has read the affidavit and understands the contents thereof, and if the person proposing to make such affidavit state that he has not read the affidavit or appears not to understand the contents thereof. or appears to be illiterate, the person before whom the affidavit is about to be made shall read and explain, or cause some other competent person to read and explain in his presence, the affidavit to the person proposing to make the same, and when the person before whom the affidavit is about to be made is thus satisfied that the person proposing to make such affidavit understands the contents thereof, the affidavit may be made

14. The person before whom an affidavit is made, shall certify at the foot of the affidavit the fact of the making of the affidavit before him and the time and place when and where it was made and shall for the purpose of identification mark and initial any exhibits referred to in the affidavit

15. If it be found necessary to correct any clerical error in any affidavit, such correction may be made in the presence of the person before whom the affidavit is about to be made, and before, but not after, the affidavit is made Every correction so made shall be initialled by the person before whom the affidavit is made and shall be made in such manner as not to render it impossible or difficult to read the original word or words, figure or figures, in respect of which the correction may have been made.

ORDER XX.

Add the following rule at the end of Or. XX:—

21. (1) Every decree and order as defined in section 2, other than a decree or order of a Court of Small Causes, or of a Court in the exercise of the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, shall be drawn up in the Court vernacular As soon as such decree or order has been drawn up, and before it is signed, the Munsarim shall cause a notice to be posted on the notice board stating that the decree or order has been drawn up, and that any party or the pleader of any party may, within six working days from the date of such notice, persue the draft decree or order and may sign it, or may file with the Munsarim an objection to it on the ground that there is in the judgment a verbal error or some accidental defect not affecting a material part of the case, or that such decree or order is at variance with the judgment or contains some clerical or arithmetical error Such objection shall state clearly what is the error, defect, or variance alleged, and shall be signed and dated by the person making it

(2) If any such objection be filed on or before the date specified in the notice, the Munsarim shall enter the case in the earliest weekly list practicable, and shall, on the date fixed, put up the objection together with the record before the Judge who pronounced the judgment, or, if such Judge has ceased to be the Judge of the Court, before the Judge then presiding.

(3) If no objection has been filed on or before the date specified in the notice, or if an objection has been filed and disallowed, the Munsarim shall date the decree as of the day on which the judgment was pronounced and shall lay it before the Judge for signature in accordance with the provisions of rules 7 and 8.

(4) If an objection has been duly filed and has been allowed, the correction or alteration directed by the Judge shall be made Every such correction or alteration in the judgment shall be made by the Judge in his own handwriting. A decree amended in accordance with the correction or alteration directed by the Judge shall be drawn up, and the Munsarim shall date the decree as of the day on which the judgment was pronounced and shall lay it before the Judge for signature in accordance with the provisions of rules 7 and 8.

(5) When the Judge signs the decree he shall make an autograph note

ORDER XXI

22. In Order XXI substitute the words "two years" for "one year" both in rule 22 (1) (a) and in the second line of the proviso to rule 22.

Substitute the following for paragraph (2) in rule 25:—

25 (2). "2 Where the endorsement is to the effect that such officer is unable to execute the process, the Court may examine him personally or upon affidavit touching his alleged inability, and may, if it thinks fit, summon and examine witnesses as to such inability, and shall record the result."

Substitute the following for rule LV —

55. (1) Notice shall be sent to the sale officer executing a decree of all applications for rateable distribution of assets made under section 73 (1) in respect of the property of the same judgment-debtor by persons other than the holder of the decree for the execution of which the original order was passed.

(2) Where—

(a) the amount decreed (which shall include the amount of any decree passed against the same judgment-debtor), notice of which has been sent to the sale officer under sub-section (1), with costs and all charges and expenses resulting from the attachment of any property are paid into Court, or

(b) satisfaction of the decree (including any decree passed against the same judgment-debtor), notice of which has been sent to the sale officer under sub-section (1), is otherwise made through the Court or certified to the Court, or

(c) the decree (including any decree passed against the same judgment-debtor), notice of which has been sent to the sale officer under sub-section (1), is set aside or reversed.

the attachment shall be deemed to be withdrawn, and, in the case of immoveable property, the withdrawal shall, if the judgment-debtor so desires, be proclaimed at his expense, and a copy of the proclamation shall be affixed in the manner prescribed by the last preceding rule.

Add the following rules at the end of Or. XXI:—

104. When the certificate prescribed by section 41 is received by the Court which sent the decree for execution, it shall cause the necessary details as to the result of execution to be entered in its register of civil suits before the papers are transmitted to the record room.

105. Every attachment of moveable property under rule 43, of Negotiable Instruments under rule 51, and of immoveable property under rule 54, shall be made through a Civil Court Amin, or bailiff, unless special reasons render it necessary that any other agency should be employed; in which case those reasons shall be stated in the handwriting of the presiding Judge himself in the order for attachment.

106. When the property which it is sought to bring to sale is immoveable property within the definition of the same contained in the law the time and place when and where it was made and shall for the purpose of identification mark and initial any exhibits referred to in the affidavit

15. If it be found necessary to correct any clerical error in any affidavit, such correction may be made in the presence of the person before whom the affidavit is about to be made, and before, but not after, the affidavit is made Every correction so made shall be initialled by the person before whom the affidavit is made and shall be made in such manner as not to render it impossible or difficult to read the original word or words, figure or figures, in respect of which the correction may have been made

ORDER XX.

Add the following rule at the end of Or. XX:—

21. (1) Every decree and order as defined in section 2, other than a decree or order of a Court of Small Causes, or of a Court in the exercise of the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, shall be drawn up in the Court vernacular As soon as such decree or order has been drawn up, and before it is signed, the Munsarim shall cause a notice to be posted on the notice board stating that the decree or order has been drawn up, and that any party or the pleader of any party may, within six working days from the date of such notice, persue the draft decree or order and may sign it, or may file with the Munsarim an objection to it on the ground that there is in the judgment a verbal error or some accidental defect not affecting a material part of the case, or that such decree or order is at variance with the judgment or contains some clerical or arithmetical error Such objection shall state clearly what is the error, defect, or variance alleged, and shall be signed and dated by the person making it.

(2) If any such objection be filed on or before the date specified in the notice, the Munsarim shall enter the case in the earliest weekly list practicable, and shall, on the date fixed, put up the objection together with the record before the Judge who pronounced the judgment, or, if such Judge has ceased to be the Judge of the Court, before the Judge then presiding.

(3) If no objection has been filed on or before the date specified in the notice, or if an objection has been filed and disallowed, the Munsarim shall date the decree as of the day on which the judgment was pronounced and shall lay it before the Judge for signature in accordance with the provisions of rules 7 and 8.

(4) If an objection has been duly filed and has been allowed, the correction or alteration directed by the Judge shall be made. Every such correction or alteration in the judgment shall be made by the Judge in his own handwriting. A decree amended in accordance with the correction or alteration directed by the Judge shall be drawn up, and the Munsarim shall date the decree as of the day on which the judgment was pronounced and shall lay it before the Judge for signature in accordance with the provisions of rules 7 and 8.

(5) When the Judge signs the decree he shall make an autograph note stating the date on which the decree was signed.

conduct the sale whether there are any persons, in addition to the decree-holder, entitled to share in the sale proceeds.

114. Whenever any Civil Court has sold, in execution of a decree or other order, any house or other building situated within the limits of a Military Cantonment or station, it shall, as soon as the sale has been confirmed, forward to the Commanding Officer of such cantonment or station for his information and for record in the Brigade or other proper office, a written notice that such sale has taken place, and such notice shall contain full particulars of the property sold and of the name and address of the purchaser.

115 Whenever guns or other arms in respect of which licenses have to be taken by purchasers under the Indian Arms Act (Act No. XI of 1878) are sold by public auction in execution of decrees by order of a Civil Court, the Court directing the sale shall give due notice to the Magistrate of the district of the names and addresses of the purchasers, and of the time and place of the intended delivery to the purchasers of such arms, so that proper steps may be taken by the police to enforce the requirements of the Indian Arms Act.

116. When an application is made for the attachment of live-stock or other moveable property, the decree-holder shall pay into Court in cash such sum as will cover the costs of the maintenance and custody of the property for fifteen days. If within three clear days before the expiry of any such period of fifteen days the amount of such costs for such further period as the Court may direct be not paid into Court, the Court, on receiving a report thereof from the proper officer, may issue an order for the withdrawal of the attachment and direct by whom the costs of the attachment are to be paid.

117. Live-stock which has been attached in execution of a decree shall ordinarily be left at the place where the attachment is made either in custody of the judgment-debtor on his furnishing security, or in that of some landholder or other respectable person willing to undertake the responsibility of its custody and to produce it when required by the Court.

118. If the Custody of live-stock cannot be provided for in the manner described in the last preceding rule, the animals attached shall be removed to the nearest pound established under the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and committed to the custody of the pound-keeper, who shall enter in a register—

(a) the number and description of the animals

(b) the day and hour on and at which they were committed to his custody;

(c) the name of the attaching officer or his subordinate by whom they were committed to his custody; and shall give such attaching officer or subordinate a copy of the entry.

119. For every animal committed to the custody of the pound-keeper as aforesaid, a charge shall be levied as rent for the use of the pound for each fifteen or part of fifteen days during which such custody continue, according to the scale prescribed under section 12 of Act No. I of 1871.

And the sum so levied shall be sent to the Treasury for credit to Municipal or District Board, as the case may be, under whose the pound is. All such sums shall be applied in the same manner as fines levied under section 12 of the said Cattle Trespass Act.

120 The pound-keeper shall take charge of, feed and water, animals attached and committed as aforesaid until they are withdrawn from his custody as hereinafter provided and he shall be entitled to be paid for their maintenance at such rates as may be, from time to time, prescribed under proper authority Such rates shall, for animals specified in the section mentioned in the last preceding rule, not exceed the rates for the time being fixed under section 5 of the same Act In any case, for special reasons to be recorded in writing, the Court may require payment to be made for maintenance at higher rates than those prescribed.

121. The charges herein authorized for the maintenance of live-stock shall be paid to the pound-keeper by the attaching officer for the first fifteen days at the time the animals are committed to his custody, and thereafter for such further period as the Court may direct, at the commencement of such period Payments for such maintenance so made in excess of the sum due for the number of days during which the animals may be in the custody of the pound-keeper shall be refunded by him to the attaching officer.

122. Animals attached and committed as aforesaid shall not be released from custody by the pound-keeper except on the written order of the Court, or of the attaching officer, or of the officer appointed to conduct the sale, the person receiving the animals, on their being so released, shall sign a receipt for them in the register mentioned in rule 118.

123 For the safe custody of moveable property other than live-stock while under attachment, the attaching officer shall, subject to approval by the Court, make such arrangements as may be most convenient and economical.

124. With the permission of the Court the attaching officer may place one or more persons in special charge of such property.

125. The fee for the services of each such person shall be payable in the manner, prescribed in rule 116. It shall not be less than two annas, and shall ordinarily not be more than three and a half annas per diem The Court may at its discretion allow a higher fee; but if it do so, it shall state in writing its reasons for allowing an exceptional rate.

126. When the services of such person are no longer required the attaching officer shall give him a certificate on a counterfoil form of the number of days he has served and of the amount due to him; and on the presentation of such certificate to the Court which ordered the attachment, the amount shall be paid to him in the presence of the presiding Judge Provided that, where the amount does not exceed Rs. 5, it may be paid to the Sabna by money order on requisition by the Amin, and the presentation of the certificate may be dispensed with.

127. When in consequence of an order of attachment being withdrawn or for some other reasons, the person has not been employed or has remained in charge of the property for a shorter time than that for which payment has been made in respect of his services, the fee paid shall be refunded in whole or in part, as the case may be.

128. Fees paid into Court under the foregoing rules shall be entered in the Register of Petty Receipts and Repayments

129. When any sum levied under rule 110 is remitted to the treasury, it shall be accompanied by an order in triplicate (in the form given as form 9 of the Municipal Account Code), of which one part will be forwarded by the Treasury Officials to the District or Municipal Board, as the case may be A note that the same has been paid into the Treasury as rent for the use of the pound, will be recorded on the extract from the pass book.

130 The cost of repairing attached property for sale, or of conveying it to the place where it is to be kept or sold, shall be payable by the decree-holder to the attaching officer. In the event of the decree-holder failing to provide the necessary funds, the attaching officer shall report his default to the Court, and the Court may thereupon issue an order for the withdrawal of the attachment and direct by whom the costs of the attachment are to be paid.

131. Nothing in these rules shall be deemed to prevent the Court from issuing and serving on the judgment-debtor simultaneously the notices required by Order XXI, rules 22, 66 and 107.

132. For the purpose of all proceedings under this order service on any party shall be deemed to be sufficient if effected at the address for service referred to in Order VIII, rule 11, subject to the provisions of Order VII, rule 24

ORDER XXVII.

Add the following rule at the end of Or XXVII:—

9. In every case in which the Government Pleader appears for the Government as a party on its own account, or for the Government as undertaking, under the provisions of rule 8 (1), the defence of a suit against an officer of the Government, he shall in lieu of a vakalatnama, file a memorandum on unstamped paper signed by him and stating on whose behalf he appears Such memorandum shall be, as nearly as may be, in the terms of the following form :—

(2) Add the following proviso to r 25 (2):—

Provided that an examination of the officer entrusted with the execution of a process by the Nazir or the Deputy Nazir under the general or special orders of the Court shall be deemed to be sufficient compliance with the requirements of this clause

39. Delete the present sub-rules 4 and 5 of rule 39 of Order XXI and substitute the following —

(4) Such sum (if any) as the Judge thinks sufficient for the subsistence and cost of conveyance of the judgment-debtor for his journey from the Court house to the civil prison and from the civil prison, on his release, to his usual place of residence together with the first of the payments in advance under sub-rule (3) for such portion of the current month as remains unexpired, shall be paid to the proper officer of the Court before the judgment-debtor is committed to the civil prison, and the subsequent payments (if any) shall be paid to the officer in charge of the civil prison

(5) Sums disbursed under this rule by the decree-holder for the subsistence and cost of conveyance (if any) of the judgment-debtor shall be deemed to be costs in the suit.

40. Add the following as a proviso to Or XXI, r. 40 (5) —

Provided that, in order to give the judgment-debtor an opportunity of satisfying the decree, the Court before making the order of committal may leave the judgment-debtor in the custody of an officer of the Court for a specified period not exceeding ten days, or release him on his furnishing security to the satisfaction of the Court for his appearance at the expiration of the specified period if the decree be not sooner satisfied

Add the following as sub-rule (6) to Or. XXI, r. 40 —

(6) No judgment-debtor shall be committed to the civil prison or brought before the Court from the prison to which he has been committed pending the consideration of any of the matters mentioned in sub-rule (2) unless and until the decree-holder pays into Court such sum as the judge may think sufficient to meet the travelling and subsistence expenses of the judgment-debtor and the escort for the journey to and from the prison.

Sub-rule (5) of rule 39 shall apply to such payments.

For Or XXI, r 43, substitute the following rules, viz —

43. (1) Where the property to be attached is moveable property other than agricultural produce, in the possession of the judgment-debtor, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the attaching officer shall keep the property in his own custody or in the custody of one of his subordinates, and shall be responsible for the due custody thereof, provided that, when the property seized is subject to speedy and natural decay or when the expense of keeping it in custody is likely to exceed its value, the attaching officer may sell it at once, and provided also that, when the property attached consists of live-stock, agricultural implements or other articles which cannot conveniently be removed and the attaching officer does not act under the first proviso to this rule, he may at the instance of the judgment-debtor or of the decree-holder or of any person claiming to be interested in such property leave it in the village or place where it has been attached—

(a) in the charge of the person at whose instance the property is retained in such village or place, if such person enters into a bond in the Form No 15-A of Appendix E to this schedule with one or more sufficient sureties for its production when called for, or

(b) in the charge of an officer of the Court, if a suitable place for its safe custody be provided and the remuneration of the officer for a period of 15 days at such rate as may from time to time be fixed by the High Court be paid in advance.

(2) Whenever an attachment made under the provisions of this rule ceases for any of the reasons specified in rule 55 or rule 57 or rule 60 of this order, the Court may order the restitution of the attached property to the person in whose possession it was before attachment.

Insert the following rules:—

43-A. (1) Whenever attached property is kept in the village or place where it is attached, the attaching officer shall forthwith report the fact to the Court and shall with his report forward a list of the p perty seized.

ORDER XXXII.

3.—For Or XXXII, r 3, substitute the following rule:—

3. (1) Where the defendant is a minor, the Court, on being satisfied of the fact of his minority, shall appoint a proper person to be guardian for the suit for the minor.

(2) An order for the appointment of a guardian for the suit may be obtained upon application in the name and on behalf of the minor or by the plaintiff.

(3) The application shall be supported by an affidavit verifying the fact that the proposed guardian has no interest in the matters in controversy in the suit adverse to that of the minor and that he is a fit person to be so appointed The affidavit shall further state the name of the person or persons on whom notice has to be served under the provisions of sub-rule (5).

(4) An application for the appointment of a guardian for the suit of a minor shall not be combined with an application for bringing on record the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or defendant. The application shall be by separate petitions.

(5) No order shall be made on any application under this rule except upon notice to any guardian of the minor appointed or declared by an authority competent in that behalf or, where there is no guardian, upon notice to the father or other natural guardian of the minor or, where there is no father or other natural guardian, to the person in whose care the minor is, and after hearing any objection which may be urg on behalf of any person served with notice under this sub-rule T notice required by this sub-rule shall be served six clear days before t day named in the notice for the hearing of the application and may be form No 11 set forth in appendix II hereto.

4.—For Or XXXII, r 4, substitute the following rule.—

4. (1) Any person who is of sound mind and has attained majority may act as next friend of a minor or as his guardian for the suit·

Provided that the interest of that person is not adverse to that of the minor and that he is not, in the case of a next friend, a defendant, or, in the case of a guardian for the suit a plaintiff.

(2) Where a minor has a guardian appointed or declared by competent authority, no person other than the guardian shall act as the next friend of the minor or be appointed as guardian for the suit unless the court considers, for reasons to be recorded, that it is for the minor's welfare that another person be permitted to act or be appointed, as the case may be

(3) No person shall without his consent be appointed guardian for the suit Whenever an application is made proposing the name of a person as guardian for the suit, a notice in form No. 11-A set forth in appendix II hereto shall be served on the proposed guardian, unless the applicant himself be the proposed guardian or the proposed guardian consents

(4) Where there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit, the Court may appoint any of its officers to be the guardian, and may direct that the costs to be incurred by that officer in the performance of his duties as guardian shall be borne either by the parties or by any one or more of the parties to the suit, or out of any fund in Court in which the minor is interested, and may give directions for the repayment or allowance of the costs as justice and the circumstances of the case may require

(5) When a guardian for the suit of a minor defendant is appointed, and it is made to appear to the Court that the guardian is not in possession of any, or sufficient funds for the conduct of the suit on behalf of the defendant, and that the defendant will be prejudiced in his defence thereby, the Court may, from time to time, order the plaintiff to advance moneys to the guardian for the purpose of his defence and all moneys so advanced shall form part to the costs of the plaintiff in the suit The order shall direct that the guardian, as and when directed, shall file in Court an account of the moneys so received by him.

7.—Add the following in Or XXXII, r. 7:—

Rule —(1-A). Where an application is made to the Court for leave to enter into an agreement or compromise or for withdrawal of a suit in pursuance of a compromise or for taking any other action on behalf of a minor or other person under disability and such minor or other person under disability is represented by counsel or pleader, the counsel or pleader shall file in Court with the application a certificate to the effect that the agreement or compromise or action proposed is in his opinion for the benefit of the minor or other person under disability. A decree or order for the compromise of a suit, appeal or matter, to which a minor or other person under disability is a party, shall recite the sanction of the Court thereto and shall set out the terms of the compromise, as in the following Form which shall be numbered as Form No 24 in Appendix D to this Schedule

14-A.—In Or. XXXII, after r 14, add the following as rule 14-A:—

14-A. The appointment or discharge of a next friend or guardian for the suit of a minor in a matter pending before the High Court in its appellate jurisdiction, except in case under appeal to the King in Council, shall be deemed to be a quasi-judicial act within the meaning of section 128 (2) (i) of the Code of Civil Procedure and may be performed by the Registrar, provided that contested applications and applications presented out of time shall be posted before a judge for disposal.

17.—Add as rule 17 of Or XXXII:—

APPENDIX VIII

Rules made by the High Court of Patna under s. 122.

ORDER III.

1. Notwithstanding anything contained in Order III, rule 4 (3) of e first Schedule of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, no advocate all be entitled to make or do any appearance, application or act for y person unless he presents an appointment in writing, duly signed by ch person or his recognised agent or by some other agent duly authorised power of attorney to act in this behalf; or unless he is instructed by attorney or pleader duly authorised to act on behalf of such person.

ORDER XII.

Substitute the following for rule 6 in Order XII—

6. Where admissions of fact have been made, either on the pleadings or otherwise, the Court may, at any stage of a suit, on the application of any party, or, of its own motion, without waiting for the determination of any other question between the parties, make such order or give such judgment, as it may think just

ORDER XIII.

Add the following as sub-rule (A) in rule 9, Order XIII—

9 (1-A). Where a document is produced by a person who is not a party in the proceeding, the Court may require the party on whose behalf the document is produced, to substitute a certified copy for the original as hereinbefore provided

ORDER XVI.

2. (1)—Add the following proviso to Or XVI, r 2 (1)—

Provided that the Secretary of State shall not be required to pay any expenses into Court under this rule when he is the party applying for the summons, and the person to be summoned is an officer serving under Government, who is summoned to give evidence of facts which have come to his knowledge, or of matters with which he has had to deal in his public capacity

(3).—Add the following proviso to rule 3 —

Provided that when the person summoned is an officer of Government who has been summoned to give evidence in a case to which Government is a party, of fact, which have come to his knowledge, or of matters with which he has had to deal, in his public capacity, then

(i) if the officer's salary does not exceed Rs. 10 a month, the Court shall at the time of the service of the summons make payment to him of his expenses as determined by rule 2 and recover the amount from the Treasury

(ii) if the officer's salary exceed Rs. 10 a month and the Court is situated not more than 5 miles from his headquarters, the Court may, at its discretion, on his appearance, pay him the actual travelling expenses incurred·

(iii) if the officer's salary exceeds Rs. 10 a month and the Court is situated more than 5 miles from his headquarters no payment shall be made to him by the Court. In such cases any expenses paid into Court under Rule 2 shall be credited to Government.

ORDER XLI.

Add the following as rule 14-A in Order XLI—

14 (A). The appellate Court may, in its discretion, dispense with the service of notice hereinbefore required on a respondent, or on the legal representative of a deceased respondent, in a case where such respondent did not appear, either at any stage of the proceedings in the Court whose decree is appealed from or in any proceedings subsequent to the decree of that Court and no relief is claimed against such opposite party or respondent or his legal representative either in the original case or appeal.
